CHILD'S PLAY

Tech students bring 1,300 children to Saturday's game

By Gretchen Verry
Staff Writer

The stadium quiets—a sea of red and black. A single child takes a Tech student's hand.

"What's going on?," he asks.

Suddenly, the crowd explodes as the Red Raiders storm the field.

Going to the football game is a luxury that many Tech students take for granted, but at Saturday's game against Fresno State University, students got the chance to give that same opportunity to many children that might otherwise never have the chance.

Bring a Child To the Game is an annual program co-sponsored by the Student Government Association and the Committee for Champions, where Tech students are paired with underprivileged children from the community.

The kids are given tickets to the football game and Tech students escort them to both the game and Raider Alley.

"The idea for the program originated in the Committee for Champions four years ago," said Alan Berger, Committee for Champions member and Bring A Child's chairman.

"We basically saw that Tech didn't do much for the community, and we saw it as a chance to give something back, and take some underprivileged kids to a game."

This year, about 1,300 kids from various organizations throughout the city participated in the event, along with close to 1,000 Tech students.

The kids selected were fourth, fifth and sixth graders. Older children were also included in the program, but not given escorts.

Different organizations in the city were selected to participate in the program based on need. The largest group was from Boys Town, with more than 200 participants.

"We basically see the same groups every year. They are contacted about the program, and we take the groups that are interested," Berger said.

Various organizations on campus donated their time to the event.

"We saw a lot of help from Tech students here, especially student organizations," said Bryan Adams, external vice president of the SGA.

Berger said Tech students have always been eager to help, and in years past, they have always ended up turning things away.

"The game being so early in the year may have been a hindrance this year," Berger said.

Tech students met with their children at the baseball field before the game.

Papa John's pizza donated pizzas and Southwest Coca-Cola donated soft drinks.

The students were then escorted to Raider Alley, and eventually, the game, where two sections had been reserved for the event.

Students expressed benefits received from the event.

"I volunteered to do this because it's a great way to get involved with a great cause," said Melissa Green, a sophomore psychology major from Clovis, N.M.

Americans to view footage of testimony

Clinton urged to answer all questions before House Judiciary Committee

WASHINGTON (AP) — A key Democratic senator suggested Sunday that President Clinton immediately volunteer to testify before Congress to halt a "political water torture" that escalates Monday morning when Americans view raw footage of the president's grand jury testimony about Monica Lewinsky.

That video will show Clinton admitting "inappropriate intimate contact" and "sexual banter" with Lewinsky but resisting prosecutors' efforts to define the conduct further. Clinton offers many legalistic replies and, at times, shows remorse.

"I regret that what began as a friendship came to include this conduct," the president answered when he was first asked a sex-related question by prosecutors just seven minutes into his Aug. 17 testimony.

The president's testimony was described to The Associated Press by lawyers familiar with it.

The moments of presidential regret are interspersed with legal hairsplitting involving the terms "sexual relations" and "alone" and, in one exchange, the tense of a verb.

At one point, Clinton was asked why he failed to produce to Paula Jones' lawyers a series of correspondence between himself and Kathleen Willey, the former White House volunteer who accused the president of an unwanted sexual advance near the Oval Office in 1993.

Clinton replied that he understood the subpoena to cover personal documents, and the Willey letters were in White House files.

If the lawyer wanted the letters, Clinton said, they should have issued two subpoenas — one personal and the other official, lawyers said.

The White House and Congress — both facing perils in the unfolding impeachment proceedings — braced for the release today of an avalanche of new evidence that includes more material in which Lewinsky explicitly describes sex acts with Clinton, the president's videotape, presidential phone messages left at Lewinsky's home and the FBI test results that conclude semen on one of Lewinsky's dresses belongs to Clinton.

Clinton made a brief appearance Sunday morning at a fund-raiser aboard a Potomac River cruise ship and then he and the First Lady attended services at Foundry United Methodist Church, the first time since before his Aug. 17 grand jury testimony.

Today, when the 2,800 pages of documents and videotape are released, Clinton will be in New York City addressing the United Nations.

A key senator suggested on the Sunday talk shows that Clinton immediately volunteer to testify to the House Judiciary Committee and answer all questions fully to spare the country further embarrassment.

"I believe the president would be well served to explain exactly what he did, exactly what he was thinking, do it to the Judiciary Committee and let's vote and let's move on one way or the other," said Sen. John Kerry a Massachusetts Democrat and Clinton ally.

"The nation is being ill served by this political water torture that is taking place in a highly calculated, highly partisan way," Kerry told NBC regarding Congress' selected release of evidence.

College establishes rodeo scholarship

By Melody Ragland
Staff Writer

Texas Tech has always had a rodeo club, but now the administration wants it to become a winning rodeo team.

At the Ranching Heritage Center on Friday, the College of Agricultural Sciences had a dinner to announce the establishment of a Rodeo Scholarship Endowment.

Margaret Lutherer, director of Tech's news and publications, said Tech has had a rodeo club since the 1940s and that until now, it had only been a club sport.

Lutherer said Tech has raised the funds to turn it into an athletic sport. The team will not be part of the athletic department, it will be part of the College of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources.

Tech has hired Chris Guay as the Auction raises money for endowment to benefit students, recruitment first rodeo coach, said Lutherer.

Scott Cooksey, the director of development for the College of Agricultural Sciences and Natural Resources, said Guay was a part of the pro-rodeo circuit.

Guay is from Weatherford and has won state and national rodeo championships. He attended Wharton College.

"It is important for us to have a team," Lutherer said. "Other schools all over the country have them."

Chancellor John Montford said he was glad to see the rodeo program alive and well. He said the administration strongly supports the rodeo team and that it was about time Tech stepped up to the plate.

The rodeo team won the 1955 National Championship and Montford said he hoped to revive the competition by announcing the scholarship endowment had $330,650.

"I hope you agree this is a healthy start," Montford said.

Montford said he would like to see the endowment grow to about $1 million. He said he expects Tech to have the best rodeo in the country.

"We're glad (the program is) taken more seriously," said Kelly McWilliams, a junior English major from Roby.

Tech alumni Chuck Senter emceed the event and said rodeo is one of the greatest sports there is.

An auction at the dinner raised almost $19,000 for the endowment. Items auctioned were western paraphernalia including paintings, a sculpture, handmade silver spurs, a handmade handbag, a saddle, saddle blanket and other items.

"What we've done here tonight is amazing," Senter said.

John Abernathy, dean of the college, said he is excited about the program.

"It will be good for the college and university," Abernathy said.

Guay said the rodeo club is well represented and that his goal is to build the team on what they already have, but there are things that the team needs — like an operational budget and rodeo facilities.

Money from the endowment will be given as scholarships, and Senter said, the scholarships will bring students to Tech.

To thank Montford for his support, Guay presented him with a plaque and belt buckle.

Hurricane Georges strikes Caribbean islands

ST. JOHN'S, Antigua (AP) — Hurricane Georges began lashing the easternmost islands of the Caribbean on Sunday, forcing families to huddle in basements and businesses to pile sandbags in front of their entrances.

Winds were gusting to 50 mph in Antigua by late afternoon, with forecasters predicting the hurricane's full 130-mph fury by later Sunday evening.

Government officials throughout the region warned that Georges could cause the worst damage in decades. The storm is a category 4 hurricane, comparable to Hurricane Andrew, which tore through parts of southern Florida in 1992.

Residents of Guadeloupe and Dominica, fearing the hurricane would peel off roofs from homes, moved beds into their basements or headed to hurricane shelters in schools.

The eye of Georges was expected to pass over the small, eastern Caribbean islands late Sunday before moving on to the U.S. and British Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico on Monday, according to the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

The center announced a hurricane watch for the Dominican Republic on Sunday evening. Earlier, it warned that storm-surge flooding of 5 feet to 10 feet above normal tide levels and 5 inches to 8 inches of rain should be expected in islands within an 85-mile radius of the eye of the hurricane.

The U.S. Federal Emergency Management Agency sent early response teams to the U.S. Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico before the storm.

Fergie's mother killed in car crash

LONDON (AP) — Susan Barrantes, mother of the Duchess of York, has been killed in a car crash in Argentina, dealing the former Sarah Ferguson another cruel blow just a year after her onetime sister-in-law Princess Diana died in a Paris crash.

The duchess, or "Fergie," ex-wife of Queen Elizabeth II's second son, Prince Andrew, heard the news early Sunday while on vacation in Italy.

She flew into London's Gatwick Airport late Sunday afternoon and spent two hours at Sunninghill Park, the mansion she shares with her former husband, before returning to Gatwick on Sunday night to continue on to Argentina.

The duchess's mother settled in Argentina in 1975 with her second husband, the late Hector Barrantes, an Argentine professional polo player.

"She is devastated," spokeswoman Kate Waddington said of the duchess.

Barrantes, 61, was killed instantly Saturday night when the Rover she was driving collided with a van on a rural road near Tres Lomas, about 310 miles southwest of the capital, Buenos Aires, police said.

Barrantes was decapitated in the crash, Tres Lomas Police Commissioner Hector Dimas Moleneuvo told The Associated Press in Buenos Aires.

The collision was near the ranch El Pucara, where she raised polo ponies. She also had a TV station in Buenos Aires.

The Rover was left a heap of twisted metal, shattered glass and plastic. However, Barrantes' passenger, nephew by marriage Rafael Barrantes, 25, escaped with minor injuries.

The driver of the other car, Jose Maria Rodriguez, suffered a broken ankle, police said.

Barrantes abruptly left Maj. Ronald Ferguson, the queen's former polo manager, and their two daughters, then teen-agers, for Barrantes — becoming in the parlance of the English upper classes "a bolter."

However, the duchess, now 38, remained close to her mother and stepfather. She visited Hector Barrantes at the ranch shortly before his death from cancer in 1990.

Annual vigil for all POWs, MIAs

By Melody Ragland
Staff Writer

The Texas Tech Air Force ROTC, Detachment 820, held their annual 24-hour vigil for prisoners of war and soldiers missing in action, this weekend.

The vigil began at noon on Friday and ended at noon on Saturday. The vigil took place at Memorial Circle.

Tech has been nationally recognized for their efforts in promoting POW and MIA awareness.

Cadet Colin Alexander said Tech held the first vigil in 1983 and by 1993 every one of the 143 Air Force ROTC units in the country were holding similar vigils.

This year's vigil began with raising the American, POW/MIA and Tech's flags.

The guest speaker was 1st Sgt. Johnnie Lindsey. Lindsey fought in the Vietnam War and retired from the U.S. Army in 1978.

Lindsey said that 11 years ago he began a POW and MIA search team. He said he looks for POWs and MIAs because the people lost in Vietnam were his brothers.

"I still think of them as 23-year-olds," Lindsey said.

Kathleen McMurray, president of the Silver Wings, told about the table set in Memorial Circle for the POWs and MIAs. The table was guarded for 24-hours.

McMurray said the table was a reminder of those missing. It consisted of a white table cloth, one red rose, a Bible, four chairs and four plates consisting of salt and a lemon slice and a service cap representing each of the four military services (Army, Marines, Air Force, and Navy).

Lezie Warren, public affairs officer for Arnold Air Society, said the vigil made her realize the sacrifice the soldiers made.

Alexander said the purpose of the vigil is to raise the awareness of the POWs and MIAs that still exist.

The opening ceremony ended with a 21-gun salute and an F-16 fly-by. The F-16s flew in the missing man formation.

The Tech Air Force ROTC, Arnold Air Society, Sabre Flight and the Silver Wings put on the event.

Tapes prove peace was Johnson's plan

AUSTIN (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson hoped to go down in history as a peace president and sought to spell that out in his first State of the Union speech, new tape recordings show.

In January 1964, Johnson told Secretary of State Dean Rusk that he wanted to emphasize in the speech that he was "doing something in the peace field" himself.

"I do not want to turn this peace thing over to anybody else," he said. "I would like to be out in front, and I wish you all would come up with some fresh, new proposals that would be food for thought and not just a lot of rehash," Johnson said.

The tapes, released this week by Johnson's presidential library in Austin, were made from selected telephone conversations during Johnson's first three months in office and during September and October of 1964.

In a story published Saturday, the Austin American-Statesman reported that the tapes showed Johnson wanting to say in his State of the Union address that he intended to close some military bases, reduce the nation's military budget and slow the nuclear building — "something that would not be too shocking and dangerous to our own people but yet factual."

"Now there is no question that we are pulling in our horns on the question of nuclear production, and it seems to me that should be a matter that would indicate a state of mind," Johnson told Rusk.

United States, Japan to study missile defense against North Korea

NEW YORK (AP) — Concerned about North Korea's ballistic missile development, the United States and Japan agreed Sunday to conduct joint research on a missile defense system that could protect the island nation from attack.

"No one should doubt our commitment to defend our interests and to work together for peace and stability in Asia," Defense Secretary William Cohen said at a joint news conference with Secretary of State Madeleine Albright and their Japanese counterparts.

"And this is the best way to protect both the United States and Japan."

The United States has 100,000 troops in the region, about one-third of them guarding the always tense demilitarized zone between North and South Korea.

Sunday's agreement comes after North Korea launched a rocket over Japan on Aug. 31 in a failed attempt to send a satellite into orbit.

It was the latest example of Pyongyang's aggressive program to develop long-range missiles that could one day hit American shores, U.S. officials said.

Japan has conducted preliminary studies, some with the United States, on ways to defend against missiles. The United States is developing several theater missile defense systems as well, although American scientists haven't been able to overcome technological hurdles to knock a fast-moving target out of the sky.

Now, U.S. and Japan will work together on research and development, which could lead to a missile defense system in the future.

No target date was set.

"Our two countries will spare no efforts" to improve defense and security in the region, said Japanese Foreign Affairs Minister Masahiko Komura.

The United States, after Japan's surrender in World War II, pledged to defend the island nation — partly to contain its historic aggression.

The two sides reaffirmed that security alliance on Sunday and the Japanese agreed to legislatively approve revisions to increase cooperation as outlined in guidelines approved here last year.

How other Asian nations will respond to Sunday's announcement was not immediately clear, but China in particular long has been wary of any move towards rearming Japan.

'Fitness' jams in awareness

By Amy Bishop
Staff Writer

Women's Health Awareness week begins today to help educate all women on Texas Tech campus about health issues and concerns that could affect them.

This is a time for women to focus on establishing healthy lifestyles and maintain a productive life, said Michelle Pettus, health educator for the Tech Student Health Services.

"We want to inform more women of all the options available at the Student Health Services Center," said Pettus. "We want them to be aware of annual exams, the on-site pharmacy, free HIV testing, and other health services that are offered here on campus."

Tuesday at the Texas Tech Student Recreation Center, events continue to raise health awareness for women.

Registration for Fitness Jam begins at 5 p.m. The first 100 people will receive free T-shirts.

The activities begin at 5:30 p.m. and will last until 7:30 p.m. The event will be held on basketball court 5, which is located on the lower level of the rec.

This event will present tid bits of information on every aspect of women's health, Janda Ibbetson said, the assistant director of the student rec.

The activities will consist of high-low aerobics, step-aerobics, and toning sessions. Each of these activities will be taught in classroom format by the student rec staff. All of these activities will be taught so that every fitness level is able to participate, Pettus said.

Between each of the events topics on women's health will be addressed. These topics will briefly cover aspects on women's breast cancer, smoking and nutrition. The physical activities will cover the importance of maintaining physical health by combining cardiovascular activities with toning and strength training.

"This event will address important aspects of women's health while teaching the importance of physical activity and nutrition," Pettus said. "We want students to be able to learn useful and important information, while having fun and getting in shape."

Prizes will be given away during Fitness Jam. The prizes range from free massages and manicures, to gift certificates at exclusive stores.

"We are encouraging everyone to come out and participate. I feel that this event is not only to help to educate women on these health problems in a fun and laid-back manner, but to also let other women know that they are not the only ones that have these concerns," Pettus said.

All fitness levels are encouraged to come and participate, and remember to wear comfortable clothing to jam in fitness style, Pettus said.

"I hope this week is beneficial to the women on campus, and helps to raise their awareness on health problems that they may encounter," Pettus said.

Black activists condemn sitcom set in Civil War

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Black activists are condemning "The Secret Diary of Desmond Pfeiffer," an upcoming UPN comedy set during the Civil War.

The groups are condemning the show, saying that it makes fun of slavery.

"This show desensitizes the pain and devastating suffering of slavery," said Ron Wright, pastor of the Emmanuel AME Church in Los Angeles.

"There is no compromise on this. This show need not air," said Danny Bakewell, head of the Brotherhood Crusade civil rights group.

Bakewell and Wright said they plan to organize a protest to demand that the show be kept off the air, and say they will target advertisers if it does appear.

The network has no plans to yank the show. UPN President Dean Valentine told the Los Angeles Times.

"We have nothing to feel bad about," he said. "They can march up and down the street all they want to."

The series, set to debut Oct. 5, is a farce about a black English nobleman who winds up as a servant and adviser to Abraham Lincoln.

Chi McBride, who plays Pfeiffer, said he anticipated the controversy but stands by the show.

"If this were a comedy about slavery, I would not be involved," he said.

There are a few jokes referring to slavery in early episodes.

Including one joke in which Lincoln's chief of staff sees the title character relaxing in the kitchen and remarks: "The slaves haven't been emancipated yet, Pfeiffer. Get your feet off that table."

Valentine said the pilot was shown to black groups, who "found it incredibly funny."

He said the network has gone out of its way to avoid alienating blacks.

"The last thing we want to do is offend an important part of our constituency."

New Miss America pledges diabetes aid

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Diabetes has a new face: Miss America's.

Hours after being crowned Miss America 1999, Nicole Johnson, who

"I've been taught, since I was a little girl, to never give up."

Nicole Johnson
Miss America

"It makes me the perfect spokesperson for that issue," said the aspiring TV news anchor from Roanoke, Va.

The 24-year-old native of Seminole, Fla., is a graduate of the University of South Florida and Regent University in Virginia Beach, Va., who has worked for the Christian Broadcasting Network. Seeking scholarship money, she competed twice in the Miss Florida Pageant before moving to Virginia to attend graduate school and competing in that state's pageant three times, finally winning this year.

She walked off with the Miss America crown — and a $40,000 scholarship — on Saturday after performing "That's Life," a song about triumph over adversity. It's a topic she knows plenty about.

"I've been taught, since I was a little girl, to never give up," she said.

She was diagnosed with juvenile diabetes, an uncommon form of the disease, at the age of 19. For four years, she had to eat meals at the same time each day, take insulin injections and carefully monitor her blood sugar levels.

Fourteen months ago, Johnson got an insulin pump, a small instrument that looks like a telephone pager. It delivers insulin through a needle and regulates the flow, giving her as much as she needs. The device has freed her from the restrictions and injections, she said. She wore it during all phases of the pageant except the swimsuit competition.

One thing she won't be wearing is the crown. Pageant officials are deemphasizing the royal aspects of Miss America in hopes of casting her as a relevant, down-to-earth role model, and Johnson declined to put the crown on during a news conference Sunday hold it instead.

Her diabetes didn't interfere with tradition. After getting 2 1/2 hours sleep, she frolicked in the surf for photographers, a tradition for all new Miss Americas.

And it won't get in her way as Miss America, she said.

Asked for her opinion on the White House sex scandal, Johnson called on President Clinton to resign for the good of the country.

"I personally think it would be better for him to resign," she said. "That's my personal opinion because I think it is so sad. He is the number one role model in the world, basically."

"We're dealing with far more than his personal life. It is affecting children, it is affecting families."

Scandal tarnishes position

The presidency will take another shot today as the videotape of Clinton's grand jury testimony is released for all to gaze upon.

According to The Associated Press, the tape "will show Clinton admitting 'inappropriate intimate contact' and 'sexual banter' with Monica Lewinsky.

Laura Hipp
Editor

In between comments, Clinton is said to still deny having a sexual relationship but does show regret for his actions.

Well, he should.

He should show remorse not because whatever happened was right or wrong. He should regret what he did to the presidency in the eyes of the future.

Clinton will move on. He'll be paid loads of money for speaking engagements and personal appearances.

He can always move back to Hope, Ark., where the Western Sizzlin' is filled with postcards, magnets and cardboard cutouts of the first family.

His marriage may be ruined but that only makes him similar to thousands of other Americans.

The question is: What becomes of the presidency now? As children, we were told to grow up and be the president.

We were taught that George Washington would never lie — even about a tree.

Abraham Lincoln walked for miles to school and was always honest.

But not all were good influences on the office.

Thomas Jefferson owned slaves, but how many of the white, male voters truly cared?

John F. Kennedy showed Hollywood starlets around the White House a time or two. But when he was in office, public perception was different. Capitol Hill was mostly white males. They wouldn't care if ol' Jack had a "special friend."

Even the press was different. The press corps was full of men who had an unwritten agreement with politicians. They didn't write about any extramarital activities.

It's a shame that Clinton's put the biggest dent on the position.

Clinton should've been smart enough to better disguise his actions.

With Republicans and other enemies around every corner, he should've really watched his back.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Fad allows individual expression, not pain

To the editor: This letter is in response to Karina Aul's Sept. 10 column on painful fads. After reading it, I couldn't believe that she willingly displayed her ignorance. How her article was considered newsworthy, I will never know.

Putting outward appearance aside, I am no different from anyone else. I have a beating heart. I feel pain and I cry. No one sees me and other "abnormal" people for who they really are. My hair is naturally brown, but I choose to dye it blonde. I choose to put a 1 1/2 inch barbells through my tongue. The five holes in my ears were no accident. I even think the ring through my navel is sexy. I wear baggy pants and T-shirts to class. In reality, I am somewhat of a minority on campus. I get dirty looks on a daily basis.

Yes, I do notice.

Karina opened with the comment, "Sometimes I feel like I am surrounded by stupidity." She goes on to question why people get unusual piercings and why people dye their hair purple. I will be the first to admit that some people try to look "weird" just to do that — look weird. That is something I look down upon. Then, there are those, like me, who do it because that is who they are.

I don't go into a department store without spotting security watching me. And in most cases, I am the first to be noticed and the last to be helped. When I stand near women, they hold their purses and their children tight. People approach me in clubs, assuming that I can either sell them some drugs or tell them where to find some.

In my opinion, we aren't the stupid ones, as Karina ignorantly stated.

Everyone that believes the myths that "freaks" are bad and drug users are dangerous are the stupid ones. I choose not to wear khakis. I choose not to wear my hair long and adorn it with a cute white bow. I choose not to join a sorority. I choose to break the mold. I choose to be an individual, not for attention or shock factor, but because that is how I express myself. Few people at this institution of higher learning follow this philosophy. The people who criticize me and the people who give me dirty looks and the people who whisper cruel things about me, hold a prejudice deep within them. This is a prejudice that goes unrecognized just because it is a socially acceptable way to feel.

Am I less of a human because Matchbox 20 isn't my favorite band? Does it scare you that I don't shop at The Gap? Does my spiked bondage bracelet, which I proudly wear, make you want to hold your purse a little bit tighter?

Lubbock, Texas Tech and especially Karina, open your eyes! Diversity is what makes this country beautiful. We don't all want to be Barbie and Ken dolls.

Conformity is the equivalent of the devil. When I look in the mirror, I see a beautiful person, despite all of the extra holes in my body.

Do all of us "abnormal" people a favor. Next time you sit next to one of us in class, smile. Get to know us. Put aside every premature conclusion you have made and see us as your equals.

Karina, you owe us an apology. Your public admittance of your prejudices towards anyone different from you should cause you some embarrassment. People like you are the ideal breeding grounds for hate and misunderstanding. Next time you decide to talk about the way someone looks, look in the mirror.

You'll see that you're just as imperfect as the next person. And no, the peroxide hasn't melted my brain yet.

Animal care questioned

To the editor: I have been a customer of Pets Plus on the 6400 block of University Avenue for over a year. I am a biologist, and the care and management of captive and wild animals are of concern to me.

I have been disappointed in the past to note sugar gliders (Australia) being sold there. In recent months, the pursuit of exotic animals heightened with the addition of coatis (Mexico) and a Fennec fox (Africa). It is irresponsible and unprofessional to recommend such animals as reasonable domestic pets.

Species, for which little is known regarding their nutritional, behavioral and medical requirements, present problems.

A television advertisement recently run by this store, encouraged the public to feed the coati its "favorite food:" marshmallows. I am appalled that they would blatantly advertise a food that, while readily consumed, is directly detrimental to its health.

This undermines the importance of nutrition. This animal is not adapted for refined sugar in its diet. Zoological parks have restrictions from the public feeding such things as popcorn to their captives for good reason: the digestive problems incurred quickly cause dietary difficulties and often death.

I can no longer continue to support a store with disregard for the health and longevity of its animals, and am taking my patronage elsewhere and recommend that others do the same.

I would hope that Pets Plus will reconsider their position in dealing with the sale of exotics and be more responsible of their portrayal to the public.

Tech columnist clarifies points stated

ShaRhonda Knott
Columnist

Recently there has been a lot of disapproval of my column by different people — particularly white people — excuse me, Julie Mitchell explained that she is not white but beige.

I want to start by explaining that I am not surprised. To me, the fact that certain white people — beige people, orange people (those who tan), European-Americans (those who prefer the more politically correct term) and anyone else who felt upset by my column — can't see what I am talking about proves my point even further. I would first like to offer a rebuttal to Ms. Mitchell's column.

First, I will start with her statement that the statistics for the number of African-Americans admitted weren't available yet is false.

She said and I quote, "the truth is no one knows because those statistics don't come out until the 20th day of school."

In actuality, the statistics that come out on the 20th are the number of African-American currently enrolled. Ms. Mitchell we need to read more carefully, let's say it a little slower for her since she didn't understand it properly the first time. I said, "the...number...of...people...admitted..." not the number of people currently enrolled.

Secondly, Texas has ruled out minority scholarships based on race. So once again I would urge Julie to get her facts together. So, for all the white people — beige people, pink people, European-Americans — and any other people that were affected, you can sleep better at night. There are no longer scholarships based on race.

Another remark that showed how obviously misinformed she is, was that black privilege comes in the form of Black Entertainment Television, Essence Awards, etc.

Obviously, Ms. Mitchell needs a brief lesson in American history. Historically in America, Africans-Americans were not allowed to intermingle with white people — beige people, orange people, European-Americans. So African-Americans had to start up something of their own for those who enjoy theater and wanted to watch and read about issues surrounding their culture.

BET, Ebony magazine and things of that nature were established because they couldn't join in any of the existing opportunities.

Ms. Mitchell also mentioned that she had been discriminated against because she couldn't get a minority scholarship. I would like to explain to her that there are thousands of scholarships out there she could have applied for. I am so sure that the minority scholarship that she missed out on did some serious damage to her college financial plans. My sympathy goes out to Ms. Mitchell.

There were comments she made that were incorrect, but I don't want to focus on them.

Instead, I would like to focus on the point of my original article. I think minorities — particularly colored minorities that can't hide the fact that they are not of European decent — do not have the same advantages as white people.

White people have a lot of advantages others don't.

Before people start getting upset, I would urge them to stop and think about how you would feel if you were not white.

How would you feel if almost none of your professors looked like people that came from your culture? Not only that, but they made culturally-insensitive comments.

Everybody needs a voice at Tech. Everyone needs to learn how to be empathic of each others needs. Diversity is a good thing. I am in no way against white people. I have tons of white friends. I just want everyone to equally enjoy their experiences at Tech.

Opportunities available through studying abroad

By Laura Hensley
Staff Writer

Texas Tech students wanting to skip the country for awhile can head to the Study Abroad Fair from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. today in the University Center Courtyard.

The International Cultural Center is having the fair and will offer information from numerous departments on campus about studying in other countries.

"The opportunities are really endless on what students can do," said Cindy McCurdy, overseas opportunities counselor. "There are programs for just about every major in almost every area of the world."

McCurdy said there are nine Tech departments, ranging from foreign language to business, architecture, education and human sciences, represented at the fair. There also will be guest available from the American Institute for Foreign Study who will discuss a variety of programs. Also the center is offering additional information on other programs available to students.

McCurdy said there are flexible programs and scholarships available through the center.

"We have programs available at all times of the year," McCurdy said. "We also have financial aid and scholarships."

Sandy Crosier, overseas opportunities counselor, said the cost of programs are not as high as some people think.

"We try to help with the cost and find a program just for you," she said. "Students should come by the center and see what we can do for them."

Crosier said the fair should provide students with enough information to start them in the right direction to finding an ideal international program.

"We normally put on the fair in the spring, but we think this is a more effective time of year," Crosier said. "Students really need to start thinking about what they want to do about one year before they go."

Crosier said the study abroad program offers numerous benefits to students and gives them an advantage after graduation.

"When students want a job after graduation, it will make them more competitive in the job market," Crosier said.

"This can help someone in almost every field get a job. This generation will interact with other cultures more than any before. It's the kind of education employers will be looking for."

Crosier said the experience of studying in other countries not only offers educational development, but it also gives a student a new sense of self.

"Going into another culture gives opportunities to explore who you are," Crosier said. "It allows you to redefine yourself and to grow personally."

She said the apparent differences are seen in students when they return from the programs.

"When a student leaves and comes back you can tell the difference in them," she said. "They are so much more self assured and have more self esteem."

Crosier said all of the information at the fair is available everyday at the International Cultural Center. For more information about study abroad counseling, call 742-3667.

"I could go on and on about the benefits of the study abroad program for students," Crosier said. "The bottom line is we want to send them away for awhile."

"The opportunities are really endless..."

Goodall educates Tech

Jane Goodall, famed anthropologist, will speak about her life with chimpanzees at 8 p.m. Oct. 1 in the University Center Allen Theatre.

During her 35 years of researching chimpanzees she has found many similarities between humans and chimps, as well as disproving the myth that chimps are like all other animals.

Goodall's fascination with animals began at an early age, when she read avidly about wild animals and dreamed about living like Tarzan and Dr. Doolittle. In 1960, she traveled to Lake Tanganyika in Tanzania, East Africa where she soon met famed anthropologist and paleontologist Louis Leakey.

Leakey chose Goodall to pioneer his study of chimpanzees in order to gain insight into the evolutionary past of humans. Throughout her years in Gombe National Park, Tanzania, she won the trust of many of the chimps through her daily contact with them. Her profound scientific discoveries have laid the foundation for all future primate studies.

Since 1960, scientists have studied chimpanzees to learn more about the evolutionary past and interactions of humans.

Studies of chimpanzee behavior have raised many questions. Scientists reported that chimpanzees show human-like behavior patterns such as hunting, using tools, using plants for medicine and social intelligence.

Through observation of the chimpanzees, she has found that they create tools to make their lives more simple. For instance, they carefully choose grass stems to use when "fishing" for insects.

Research also shows chimpanzees are susceptible to the same parasites that affect humans. Scientists found that chimps use plants as antibiotics by swallowing a whole leaf or by chewing the bitter pith.

The pith is the sponge-like substance at the center of branches and stems. Pith chewing is how chimpanzees carefully remove the leaves and outer bark from shoots and chew on the exposed pith, sucking out the bitter juice. Chimpanzees demonstrate a social behavior that suggests a strong responsibility to family. Studies show there are stronger relationships between unrelated males than unrelated females. The females tend to stay closer to their families.

Goodall believes, "to understand the chimpanzees, you must first realize that human beings are not the only creatures capable of rationalizing or subject to the emotions of joy and pain."

In 1965, she earned her doctorate in ethnology from Cambridge University and returned to Tanzania to continue her research and establish the Gombe Stream Research Centre.

In 1977, she founded the Jane Goodall Institute for Wildlife Research, Education and Conservation (JGI). The JGI mission is to conserve primate habitats and to foster positive relationships among people, the environment and other animals both in the wild and in captivity.

Goodall is well-known and highly respected in both the scientific communities as well as the general community. She has received numerous awards (1996 Caring Awards, Sigma XI's William Proctor Prize for Scientific Achievement, 1995 National Geographic Hubbard Medal, etc.), honorary doctorates from 11 universities and written many books and articles.

Today, Jane Goodall has fulfilled her lifelong dream and is working to better the lives of chimpanzees worldwide. She spends most of her time lecturing and sharing her message of hope for the future and encouraging young people to make a difference in the world.

This event is a part of the 1998-1999 NightLife series. The NightLife series is an annual series of performing arts and lecture programming. For tickets or more information about the lecture or any NightLife event, call the UC Activities Office at 742-3610.

Lunches give advice to advisers

This year Student Organizations Services and Leadership Tech are sponsoring a series of brown bag lunch discussions for advisers of the more than 300 registered student organizations at Texas Tech.

Advisers of student organizations play numerous roles while working with student organizations and their officers.

To assist advisers in better understanding, being more comfortable and confident and becoming more successful in their role, all advisers, new and experienced, are encouraged to take advantage of these discussions for their own benefit as well as their organization's.

Discussion topics are centered around the thought that the role of a student organization adviser is more than monitoring the organization's events, policies and procedures.

The first student organization adviser brown bag lunch will be from noon to 1 p.m. Thursday in the UC Senate Room.

The presenter for the first discussion will be Dr. Will Keim, a nationally known speaker from the University of Oregon.

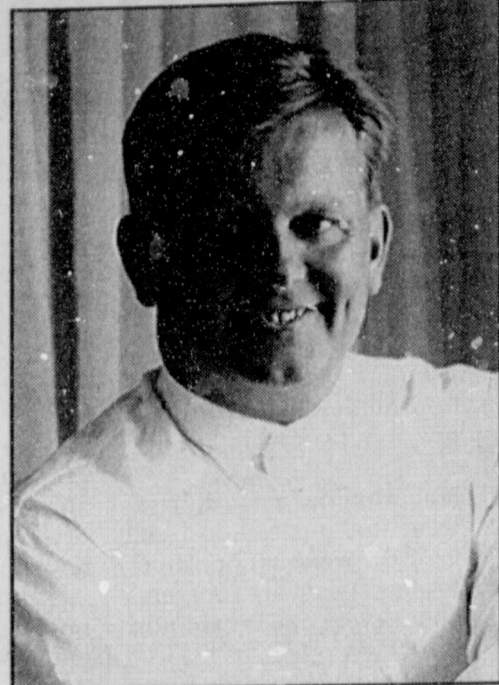

Dr. Keim has lectured to more than 2 million students from more than 1,000 campuses in several countries.

He has direct experience working with and advising college students from his experiences as an educator, residence hall director, educational program coordinator, Delta Upsilon fraternity member and campus minister.

He understands students and the major issues facing them.

The topic of Dr. Keim's presentation is "Fostering Student Development and Leadership Development."

Advisers of registered student organizations are encouraged to attend this beneficial program, bring their lunch, learn

UC briefly

Tutors change lives

Get involved in changing the life of a child. Applications still are available for the Tech Tutors and Mentors program.

This program matches Tech volunteers with kindergarten through 12th grade students who are in need of friendship and academic assistance. Tech volunteers are needed to assist children with homework and serve as a role model.

By donating only one or two hours a week, you can make a difference in a child's life. To get involved, simply stop by the UC Activities Office in the UC room 228 and pick up an application or call 742-3621.

Officer Training Develops Leaders

The second annual Leadership Tech Officer Training conference will be Saturday in the University Center. Officer training is a one-day leadership conference for registered student organization officers and advisers.

"As a student organization leader or adviser, it is important to continually develop and update your skills and level of information to remain current with the benefits and procedures affecting registered student organizations," said Kim Lovelace, Activities Adviser in Student Organizations Services.

"Participation in officer training is the most effective way to discover new information affecting student organizations as well as to prepare for the upcoming year."

By participating in educational sessions and hearing from keynote speakers, attendees will learn skills to enhance their effectiveness as a student organization leader and build a foundation of leadership for the upcoming year.

Will Keim is scheduled to present the opening keynote address. Keim has lectured to thousands of students across the country by challenging audience members, making them think and offering them a chance to laugh and reflect.

LaQueta Jenkins, assistant dean of student life at Southern Methodist University, will present the luncheon keynote address. Her address will focus on the challenges leaders will be facing in the new millennium, particularly in dealing with a more complex and diverse society.

Participants will be able to select and attend educational sessions that will be of use to them in their roles as student organization leaders. Participants can attend sessions on facilitating effective meetings, fundraising, avoiding burnout, communication skills and more.

More than 15 educational sessions will be offered throughout the day.

There is no cost to participate in officer training, and a representative from each registered student organization is encouraged to attend.

Registration forms will be accepted through Friday in Student Organizations Services University Center room 210. For additional information call 742-3621.

Homecoming festivities

The time of year has come when the Tech community has the chance to be "fearless champions" by participating in the Homecoming Blood Drive. The drive is from noon to 9 p.m. Oct. 6 to Oct. 7 in the Student Recreation Center.

T-shirts and prizes will be given to donors and walk-ins are welcome. An appointment can be scheduled by calling 742-3351 or 742-3621.

Homecoming queen candidates "show" their stuff

Homecoming queen applications are due Friday in the University Center room 210.

Candidates for homecoming queen are sponsored by registered student organizations and participate in a variety of activities, including a style show, a campus-wide election and an interview. Homecoming queen candidates will have the opportunity to be in Homecoming Queen Style show at 8 p.m. Oct. 5 in the UC Ballroom.

For additional information on any homecoming event or to receive a homecoming queen application, call 742-3621 or visit UC room 210.

Pool legend returns

Once again Jack White is returning to the Texas Tech campus. Jack brings with him his quick wit, charm and impressive pool-playing ability.

Jack White has been touring college campuses and military installations for more than 30 years and once again he will grace our campus with his talent. Jack began playing pool at the age of eight and at 67 he is still going strong. He was taught to play by his father who is in the billiard supply business and his uncle who was a World Billiard Champion. The closest Jack has ever come to holding a "real" job he says "is leafing through the want ads or watching a construction job."

Professionally, Jack is known as an internationally famous pocket billiards and trick shot artist. Jack is once again returning to Tech to dazzle students. He begins the week with four clinics, at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. Monday and Tuesday.

A tournament draw will be at 1 p.m. Tuesday. If you are unable to be present at the draw, you will be allowed to pre-sign up for the tournament the week prior. When the tournament draw is complete the tournament will begin until everyone has been eliminated Thursday. Friday, in the UC Courtyard, Jack will play the men and women's bracket winners from the tournament. Afterwards, he will perform his trick shot exhibition.

Tech volleyball goes 2-1 in Utah tourney

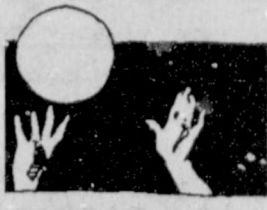

PROVO, Utah (Special) — The Texas Tech volleyball squad went 2-1 in the BYU Mizuno Classic, running the Red Raiders' overall record to 10-2 on the season.

The Red Raiders lost to the host BYU Cougars in straight games Friday night 15-6, 15-9 and 15-7.

Senior setter Lisa Hilgers led Tech with 34 assists in the match, while junior middle blocker Lori Garber led in kills with eight.

BYU had 13 blocks in the match while Tech had seven.

The match with the Cougars took

15-1 to get their first win of the tournament Saturday.

Hilgers led once again in assists

one hour and two minutes to complete.

The Red Raiders defeated Central Michigan in straight games 15-4, 15-0 and 15-1 to get their first win of the tournament Saturday.

Hilgers led once again in assists with 27, while senior outside hitter Natalie Rives led Tech in kills with 11 in the game.

Tech had four blocks in the match against the Central Michigan's one block.

Tech faced the Huskies of Northern Illinois in their final match of the tournament Saturday.

The Red Raiders disposed of the Huskies in straight games winning 15-3, 16-14, and 15-4.

The match lasted 37 minutes. Garber led Tech with 19 kills and Hilgers once again led in assists with 31 for the Red Raiders.

The match took only 57 minutes to complete.

Both Garber and Hilgers were selected to the All-Tournament team, as Korie Rogers of BYU was selected as the tournament MVP.

The Red Raiders will start Big 12 play this season when they return home to face Texas A&M at 7 p.m. Friday in the Lubbock Municipal Coliseum.

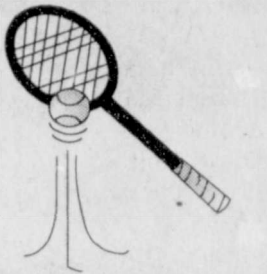

Conference action continues for Tech as the team battles Texas at 7 p.m. Saturday.

Raider tennis players continuing winning ways

FORT WORTH (Special) — Junior Amanda Earhart and sophomore Alena Ovin made it to the finals in the singles bracket of the TCU tournament this weekend for the Texas Tech tennis team.

Ovin reached the finals by defeating Jessica Kjellgren of TCU in straight sets 7-5, 6-2.

Earhart made it to the finals by disposing of Daria Zoldakova, also of coach's discretion.

In men's tennis action, Tech

TCU in straight sets 6-3, 6-2.

The final match between Ovin and Earhart was not played at the coach's discretion.

In men's tennis action, Tech

sophomore Borut Martincevic picked up the victory in his first pre-qualifier match for the National Clay Court Championships in Baltimore.

Martincevic defeated Alex Howard of Richmond in straight sets 6-2, 6-3.

He will have to play two more pre-qualifier matches to make it to the qualifying rounds of the tournament.

The Tech women will hit the court for competition Oct. 9 in Houston for the Cougar Classic.

The men will also be competing Oct. 9, as the Red Raiders travel to Austin for the ITA All-American Tournament.

Both team's fall seasons will end with the ITA-Rolex Regionals.

The men's regional will be in Fort Worth while the women's will be in Austin.

Raiders winless in tourney

INDIANAPOLIS (Special) — Coming in with a two-game winning streak, the Texas Tech soccer team could not pick up a victory this weekend at the Butler Tournament. The Red Raiders lost to Butler Friday, while tying Evansville Sunday.

Sunday, even after two overtimes, Tech (2-2-1 overall) could not pull off the victory against Evansville.

Shelean Royce started off the game's scoring for Evansville when she scored in the 41st minute to put Evansville up 1-0.

But less than two minutes later, Red Raider forward Kristy Frantz tied the score with a goal in the 43rd minute.

It took until the 71st minute of the contest to break the tie when Tech forward Amy Rutstein scored to put the Red Raiders up 2-1.

Freshman Krista McKendree hopelessly knotted the game when she scored in the 87th minute to make it 2-2.

Friday, the Red Raiders' two-game winning streak was broken by Butler, 2-0.

Despite being outscored, the Red Raiders took 11 shots on goal compared to Butler's nine. Tech forward Kristy Frantz took five shots in the loss.

Shipley leads Tech out of doghouse

By Jason Bernstein
Assistant Sports Editor

After opening the first half of Saturday's football game against Fresno State with a 72-yard scamper from sophomore running back Ricky Williams, the Red Raiders were thought to be well on their way to their third victory of the season.

But the Tech march towards victory almost came to a screeching halt before Kyle Shipley and the Red Raiders pulled out a 34-28 victory over Fresno State at Jones Stadium.

On the opening play from scrimmage, Williams took the pitch from quarterback Matt Tittle and ran for a career-long 72-yards to the Fresno State 8-yard line. The drive stalled, however, and the Red Raiders settled for a 21-yard field goal from sophomore placekicker Chris Birkholz.

"I feel pretty good about the game," Williams said of his performance. "I thank the Lord that we won, but there's still things we need to work on."

Williams rushed for 107 yards in the first quarter on 10 carries and finished with 244 yards rushing on 42 carries, an average of 5.8 yards-per-carry for the nation's No. 2 rusher going into weekend action.

But despite Williams' first half heroics, the Red Raiders gave up 22 second-half points behind the strong Fresno State defense that scored two touchdowns to help the Bulldogs back into the contest.

"We were fortunate to win the game," Tech coach Spike Dykes said after the victory. "I think Fresno State is a very good team and they're well coached. Obviously, we have some things that need to be corrected."

The Bulldogs cut the Red Raider lead in half on a Jaime Kimbrough 1-yard touchdown run in the third quarter.

Six minutes later, however, Fresno State defensive lineman Frank Battle recovered a Matt Tittle fumble in the end zone, to further cut into the Tech lead, 24-19.

"Offensively, we probably played our best half of football this season in the first half," Tittle said. "I think we let down a bit in the second half. We were playing hard, but we just weren't getting things done. I made a turnover that almost cost us the game. I had a real up-and-down performance tonight."

Tittle finished with 109 yards on 8-of-17 passing with a touchdown and an interception.

After trading field goals, Justin Johnson returned the Tittle interception 33 yards for a touchdown, giving the Bulldogs their first lead of the contest with 4:00 remaining.

"They played hard the whole game," Tittle said of Fresno State. "The turnovers hurt us and you just hope you can get one more shot at it at the end."

On the ensuing kickoff, sophomore kick returner John Norman took the kickoff 86 yards before he was tripped up deep in Fresno State territory.

"I was just thinking we needed a big play," Norman said of his thoughts before the run back. "We needed a big play and that's what we did. I was actually thinking about getting into the end zone, but unfortunately, we didn't get there."

Norman finished with 137 return yards on the night after returning two kickoffs and a punt.

But despite the field position, the Red Raiders failed to put the ball in the end zone after Norman's return.

Williams ran for what appeared to be the go-ahead score, but fumbled as he crossed the plane of the goal line.

"The fumble still bothers me," Williams said.

"But the defense picked it up for us."

The Tech defense, which allowed its first touchdown of the season in the third quarter, held the Bulldog running attack to nine yards on the ground.

"I think the defense stepped up when we had to at the end," Norman said. "It's always important for us to come out strong and improve every week."

The Red Raider defense was working for a safety to take the lead and the game from the Bulldogs with under a minute remaining.

"We wanted to strip the ball or push them back for a safety," said junior defensive end Taurus Rucker. "We were very happy with the outcome."

On the third play from their own 1-yard line, Kimbrough fumbled the ball into the arms of junior linebacker Kyle Shipley who gladly returned the favor of restoring the lead back in Tech's favor.

"We knew they (Fresno State) were going to run something quick up the middle and our goal was to hold them and make them punt from their goal line," Shipley said. "All you can ask for is a chance to win. And that's what happened, and I feel fortunate for that."

Shipley finished with seven tackles in helping the Red Raiders to their first 3-0 start since 1989.

Lost in the commotion of the goal line finish was the defensive effort, conducted once again by senior defensive end Montae Reagor.

Reagor not only broke Tech's all-time career sack record in the win, but he recorded 11 tackles, two sacks and six tackles for a loss.

"The win was great but we're not satisfied," Reagor said. "Our ultimate goal is to win them all, one week at a time."

Reagor and the defense gave up

358 total yards to Fresno State, but forced the fumble when the game was in doubt.

"Fresno State is a team that has a bunch of guys that work hard and play 60 minutes," Reagor said. "If you don't play 60 minutes, anything can happen. We didn't put it to them, but you've got to give them a lot of credit. We have got to learn how to put teams away when we have the opportunity."

TAKE TECHNOLOGY TO THE NTH POWER.

When something is too extreme for words, it's to the Nth degree. And that's the level of technology you'll experience at Raytheon.

Raytheon has formed a new technological superpower—Raytheon Systems Company, composed of four major technological giants: Raytheon Electronic Systems, Raytheon E-Systems, Raytheon TI Systems and Hughes Aircraft. The new Raytheon Systems Company is driving technology to the limit. And we're looking for engineers who want to push the envelope. Break new ground. Make their mark.

At Raytheon, you'll take technology—and your career—to the highest possible level. You'll take it to the Nth.

We have a lot to tell you about the new Raytheon Systems Company and the exciting opportunities we have available. Plan on visiting our booth at your college career fair.
