WTU's Paint Creek Plant Expansion Means Much to Haskell

Announcement by West Texas Utilities Company of an additional unit to be built at the company's Paint Creek Power Plant is an indication of industry's confidence in the continued growth and development of West Texas.

Through the investment of multiplied millions of dollars in the building and operation of the Paint Creek Plant, West Texas Utilities Company has been a very vital factor in the business life and prosperity of Haskell and this immediate vicinity. These benefits have included the bringing of new citizens into our community who have taken their places in our churches, our schools, and our civic endeavors.

From a strictly materialistic viewpoint, the Paint Creek Plant investment has resulted in West Texas Utilities Company becoming the county's largest taxpayer, contributing thousands of dollars annually to the support of county and city government and the operation and maintenance of our schools.

The addition of another unit at the Paint Creek Plant, which incidentally will be larger than either the initial or second unit built, means that Haskell has the opportunity to gain new citizens along with additional financial support for its schools and local government operations.

Since all of these benefits accrue to us without any effort or expense on our part, we believe that local civic organizations as well as city and county officials should investigate all possible avenues through which we might extend helpful cooperation to West Texas Utilities Company on its new project.

Cotton Crop Outlook Good

Haskell County's best cotton crop in several years is in the offing, barring unforeseen calamities of hail or excessively heavy insect damage. And, continued dry weather could curtail the yield in some parts of the county.

Although a normal cotton crop will not restore farm prosperity fully to this region, harvesting of a good crop will go a long way toward getting our farmers nearer to the economic level enjoyed by other industries.

Producers however, will not be the only ones to benefit. Gathering and marketing of a sizeable cotton crop spreads money into every channel of retail business, because of the large number of individuals involved—ranging from field workers to ginners and warehousemen.

In nowise predicting a "boom", we feel that Haskell businessmen are justified in anticipating the best fall business this year they have enjoyed in some time.

Special Session Likely

From all indications, it appears that Governor Daniel will call a special session of the Legislature for some time in the fall. It seems the Governor has three projects to place before this special session. These include further legislative measures toward conserving water in Texas, a strong Lobby Registration Law, and a Statewide Crime Commission.

There are a great many people in Texas who are against special sessions, and considerably more against this particular one. We believe there are a great many people who feel that this special session would be a futile one. We say this in view of the fact that all of the measures mentioned above, were before the members of the Regular 55th Session, and with the exception of the Water measure, no great interest was observed for the other two.

There is also a question of pay for the members for this proposed special session, and that question is still a matter of disagreement among some officials and legislators. It apparently is a question of wait and see.

Miss Ila Kenley of San Angelo was the guest of Miss Sula May Raliff several days last week.

Confessions of two Comanche County men apparently has cleared the 10-months mystery surrounding the slaying here last October of J. K. Beauchamp, Haskell nightwatchman. The two men, 20 and 26 years old, related details of the killing which appeared to be authentic, officers said. One of the men is being held in jail here and the other in Comanche County.

Miss Era Piland of Amherst, Texas, is spending the week in the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Piland and family.

The many friends of Mrs. Ben Bagwell will regret to learn that she has suffered a relapse and has been returned to the Stamford Sanitarium for treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Post of this city received a cablegram Friday from their son, Gaines, stating that he had arrived in France on that date, after a very enjoyable trip across the Atlantic. Mr. Post goes to France and other European countries to do research under the Sheldon Fellowship, awarded him by Harvard University.

50 Years Ago—Aug. 24, 1927

A prairie fire which swept over a portion of S. W. Scott's pasture in the southeast part of the county scorched the leaves on the mesquite timber and apparently killed it. Some of the larger trees may leaf out again.

The contract calls for the completion of the Haskell cotton oil mill by the first of November.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Lambert have returned from a visit of several weeks with relatives in Missouri. Mr. Lambert tells us that crops are short in that state.

City Marshal Warren Fitzgerald visited Munday the first of the week.

At its session last week the Commissioners Court created the office of county superintendent of public instruction, and appointed Prof. T. G. Williams as the new superintendent. The law provides a salary of $1200 per year for this position, and the court appropriated $10 per month for incidental expenses.

M. J. Montgomery and daughter, Miss Lizbie, of McGregor are visiting the family of Wm. Oglesby and went out yesterday with a shag party.

R. B. Spencer of Dublin was here several days this week, looking after his lumber business.

J. D. Roberts of the Vontress neighborhood was in town yesterday and told our reporter that J. A. Price was putting up a fine gin plant; and was having an iron bridge built over Miller Creek and would present the bridge to the county.

There are now under construction in Haskell three two-story brick business houses and several residences, and there is talk of more to follow.

A good many Haskell people attended the big reunion and barbecue at Stamford Thursday and Friday. The largest crowd was Thursday, when Senator Joe Bailey spoke.

People, Places, and Things

By A. PATE

The recent showing of the "Haskell County Story" has resulted in many requests that the film be shown again at an early date.

Probably now is that it will be screened for several performances during the Annual Homecoming Oct. 25-26, C. of C. Manager Rex Felker has stated. And further, Felker said that several additional scenes would be added to the film. These will include shots of one of the county's first ranchhouses, cattle drives, and one or two other historic points. These additions are not to attract attendance of those who attended the first showing, but to make the film a more authentic record of county history, Felker explained.

Major credit for making the film possible is due Felker, who originated the idea and worked many "overtime" hours to complete the project, and to Charles Swinson, who filmed the entire production and was out considerable expense in addition to his time, all without cost to the Chamber of Commerce, which sponsored the film. Also, Swinson was responsible for making it possible for the show to be presented with all proceeds going to the C. of C.

An intriguing yarn and hint of a mystery which has never been solved comes from Ching Middleton, retired Government trapper and member of an early-day ranch family.

About 40 years ago, Middleton, who lived in southeast Haskell County near the Clear Fork of the Brazos, was helping several neighbors dig a grave for a cowboy who had passed on. It was customary in those days to select a burial site somewhere in the vicinity, since established cemeteries frequently were miles away.

Site for this particular grave was chosen at a level spot near a grove of pecan trees, Middleton related. Following custom, the grave was dug lengthwise east and west. When the men had reached a depth of about six feet, they uncovered a number of pecan logs side by side. Further examination revealed a previous grave in which the crude wooden casket had been covered with logs. Curiously, the first grave was laid out lengthwise in a north and south direction.

Filling in the excavation, another grave was dug for the cowboy a few feet away.

Middleton said there was no indication that the early-day grave existed. None of the old-timers in that section could recall anyone being buried mere, and Middleton says it could not possibly have been the grave of an Indian.

In the unanimous opinion of the people of Paint Creek two of Haskell's "Good Will Ambassadors" are Brax Gilmore and Carl Anderson.

Gilmore, tractor and farm implement dealer, and Anderson, oil field contractor, recently "pitched in" and gave invaluable help when Paint Creek School was installing its new water system, according to Supt. Dan McRae of the Paint Creek School. The project included a pipeline to Lake Stamford, and Anderson's experience in this field was a big help. Gilmore was instrumental in the school saving a substantial sum on material purchases. All this was in addition to the time and work the two men gave to the project, McRae emphasized.

"We're confident we saved several thousand dollars on the job as a result of the help of Mr. Anderson and Mr. Gilmore," McRae said.

The following letter comes from R. E. Paulhamus, who with his family was involved in a fatal two-car wreck south of town early in June which claimed the life of his baby son and four members of another family.

"Dear Mr. Pate: I just want to drop you a line to thank you for all your help during our accident. I am now able to go over all the correspondence that we received while at the hospital and see where you did an awful lot, including contacting El Paso, etc. I certainly do want to thank you.

"Mr. Jordan, my supervisor at El Paso, was also very high in his praise for you.

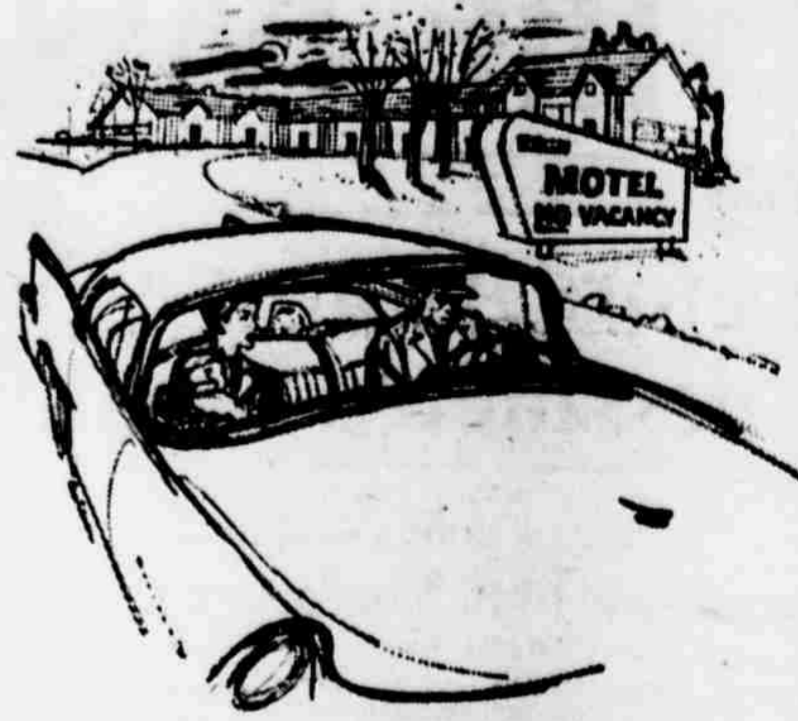

"We are doing very well at present. My wife is able to be up and about and my little daughter is now learning to walk again. As for myself, I am still confined to a wheel chair but hope to walk before too long.

"Mr. Pate, I want to echo my family's praise for your hospital, nurses, fine doctors, and last but surely not least, the people of your community. Everyone just took us in and made us feel right at home. The NIBS at the hospital are worth more than words can say. Everyone was just fine. We certainly will never forget Haskell.

"Thank you again for everything. Sincerely, Richard E. Paulhamus and family."

WTU Transmission Lines Extend Across Texas

From Twitty to Presidio it's a long, long line. Just how long the line is the folks at West Texas Utilities Company can best tell, for they maintain the 2,652 miles of high voltage transmission lines connecting the two towns.

WTU serves a long, narrow segment extending across Texas from Twitty, in Wheeler County near the Oklahoma border north of Shamrock, Texas, down through Abilene and San Angelo on out to Alpine and to Presidio on the banks of the Rio Grande.

By highway this route is 628 miles long or just a little farther than from Chicago to Washington, D. C.

Actually the area WTU serves doesn't end at the Rio Grande. While the highline actually ends at a two pole structure on the banks of the Rio Grande, power from WTU system is fed across the Rio Grande to the Compania de Luz y Fuerza de Ojinaga, S. A. The Mexican electric company serves the town of Ojinaga, population about 5,000.

While the area the company serves is larger than the aggregate area of seven eastern states, WTU officials point out that the company is a relatively small operating company.

On the basis of the number of customers served and electric sales, WTU is the fourth smallest of the twelve major privately-owned utility companies operating in Texas.

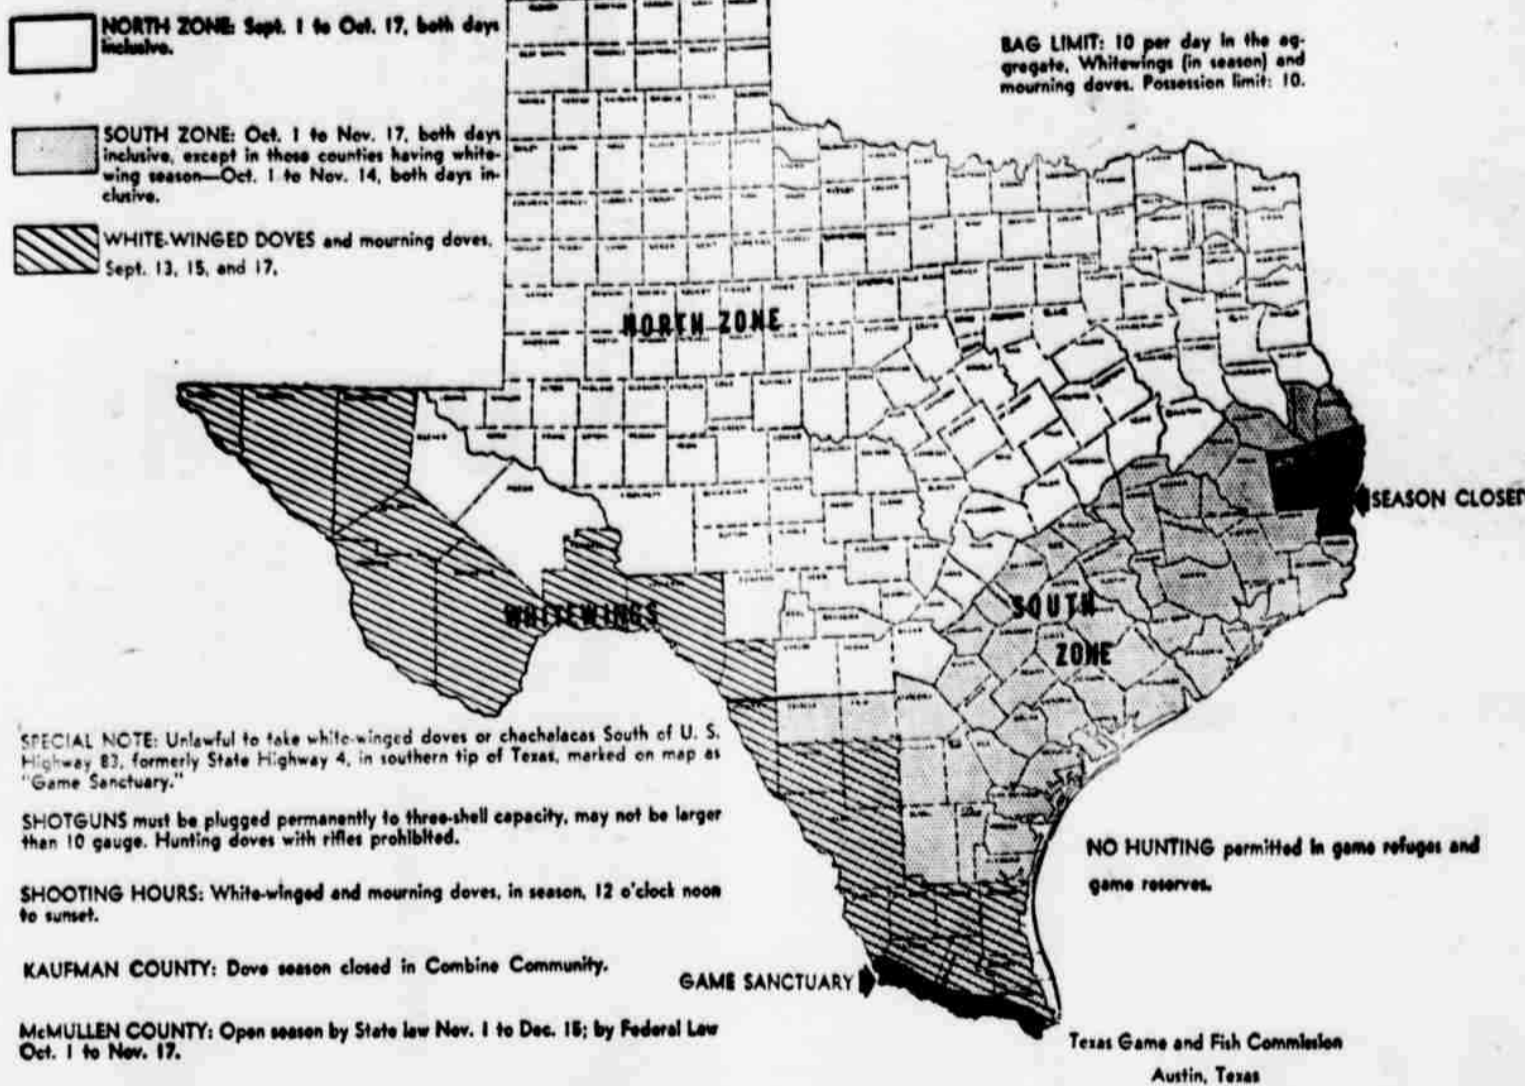

There are more electric customers in the city of Fort Worth than the entire WTU service area.

Currently, the company is serving 104,000 customers in the 166 towns and communities and rural areas in West Texas, or about two customers per square mile.

Commenting on the size of the company, Cal Young, WTU president, said, "Ours is a growing company serving a growing land. West Texas is a land of tremendous natural resources and the people of the area are its finest asset."

"We believe that the area we serve 'The Center of the Great Southwest' is one of the modern industrial frontiers. Where flourishing communities with the enthusiastic and progressive spirit of the people who settled the land and built the towns and cities will continue to develop. It is our intention to grow with the area."

WTCC Directors Approve Program For Coming Year

The program of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce for the coming year has been approved in its entirety, according to Haskell's new WTCC director H. C. King, manager of West Texas Utilities Company in Haskell.

He said the program was approved in a meeting of all WTCC directors in that district which was recently held in Wichita Falls.

The district meeting was one of the ten throughout West Texas held during the latter part of July, he said.

In the meetings, the organization's president, B. E. Godfrey of Fort Worth, presided. Fred H. Husbands, executive vice president of the WTCC, gave the report on planned activities.

The program of work was planned by committees who met in the organization's headquarters in Abilene in early July.

The report by Husbands covered each of the phases of endeavor carried on by the regional chamber including agriculture and livestock, state and national affairs, community services, industrial development, public information, water resources and member relations.

The board is composed of business leaders representing approximately 150 cities and communities throughout the 122 county region served by WTCC.

WTCC directors, chosen for one year terms by members of the regional chamber in the director's city, serve as the policy-making board of the organization. They also serve as liaison personnel between the regional chamber and local chamber.

EGG BUYERS and Sellers to Be Licensed

The Texas Egg Law, which becomes effective August 23, provides that no person can buy or sell eggs within this state for subsequent resale without first obtaining a license from the Commissioner of Agriculture, County Agent F. W. Martin explains.

The exception to this says Martin, are those who sell from their own flock and claim no grade; hatcheries which buy eggs for hatching; public eating places where all eggs purchased are served by the establishment; food manufacturers purchasing eggs to be used only in their products; agents employed and carried on the payroll on a salary basis by persons licensed under this act; and by any retailer, as defined by law—that is, any person selling or offering for sale, eggs to consumers in this state.

In order to create a fund for the enforcement of the provisions of this act, each licensee shall pay a license fee. The annual fee for dealers, wholesalers, and processors shall be determined according to the average weekly volume of the month in which license fees handled the most eggs in the preceding 12 months ending on May 31. The proceeds of such license fees shall be paid into the State Treasury by the Commissioner of Agriculture in a fund known as the Egg Law Enforcement Fund.

The deadline for obtaining licenses is Oct. 20. Actual enforcement of the law will start February 17, 1958.

Water Levels Drop During July In State Reservoirs

The Board of Water Engineers at Austin, in its monthly report, said that Texas' 35 major reservoirs were 90 per cent full of available water.

This reflected a 3 per cent drop as of July 31, as compared to June's 93 per cent capacity holdings. A total of 9,110,850 acre feet of water were in the reservoirs. Lake Stamford on Paint Creek held 49,100 acre feet at the end of July, 82 per cent of capacity. This was a decline from 51,000 acre feet reported in June.

Red Bluff Lake near Orla remained the driest with only 5.2 per cent, or 15,970 acre feet of water of the vast 307,000 acre foot reservoir full.

Medina Lake near San Antonio also was below the average. It held 91,660 acre feet of water, 37 per cent of capacity.

The board said stream flow showed a return "to somewhat normal conditions after the extremely high flood stages of the past few months."

July rainfall in Texas was generally light, with the heaviest falling in the area west of the Pecos River.

"Higher than usual flows were maintained in the Trinity, Brazos and Colorado rivers due to the releases of stored flood water from upstream reservoirs," the board said.

Flood control pools were emptied to about 2,500,000 acre feet of water, or 58 per cent of capacity.

Water levels in observation wells rose in El Paso and Travis counties, while declines of 4 to 14.9 feet were recorded in Atascosa, Bexar and Harris counties and in the Winter Garden area near La Pryor. No change was recorded in Uvalde.

Cotton Problem - -

(Continued from page 1) said, are these: cotton's surplus is up, acreage has been cut, costs have risen, and profits are trending downward. Competition has increased a total of 21 million cotton bale equivalents since World War II. Synthetic fibers, domestic and foreign, have risen by some 8 million bales, paper by a million, and foreign cotton production has gone up 12 million bales. All these things make it urgent that cotton get competitive on a three-way basis of price, promotion, and research, the speakers said.

year spent by the raw cotton industry. In this connection, the speakers noted that cotton's present and future sales promotion opportunities are unlimited. Using slides and other visual aids, they demonstrated how cotton can be effectively sold in those markets where personal preference and opinion are major sales influences. At the same time, they stressed the urgent need for bigger sales budgets in such markets as men's wear, work clothes, children's clothes, domestics, and rugs.

A grave disparity exists on the research front too, the speakers reported. Recognizing quality deficiency as their basic weakness, the synthetics have been pouring $60 million a year (compared to cotton's $14 million) into research. This effort has resulted in the development of man-made fibers superior to cotton from the standpoint of strength, abrasion resistance, and color fastness, and fibers equal to cotton in absorbency, heat resistance, and water repellency.

Despite these disquieting factors, however, cotton has made giant strides and great opportunities exist for cotton to forge further ahead. For example, despite limited funds, the program of the National Cotton Council—the organization that represents the entire raw cotton industry—has paid off dramatically, the speakers said. Since the Council was founded, far greater consumer demand has been generated, and domestic consumption has risen by 50 per cent or 3 million bales annually. The Council's program has helped stimulate increased efficiency of production and processing. It has improved quality through research, and has spurred sales through hard-hitting advertising and promotion campaigns. With more production efficiency, more research, and more promotion, cotton can hold and steadily expand its markets, the speakers emphasized.

In fact, they said, if cotton can merely hold on to its present share of the domestic and foreign market, the present trend can be reversed and a market for 15 million bales can be built in four or five years. And this can keep pointing upward to 17 million bales by 1965. This will come as demand for fiber products grows across the world, and under conditions of continued population growth and improved standards of living.

On the other hand, if consumption of cotton can be increased by but one per cent at home and by 20 per cent of the expected foreign textile consumption rise, then cotton can balloon its total market to over 17 million bales by 1960, and well over 20 million bales a year by 1965.

But in projecting these possibilities, the speakers again warned that cotton must at least partially overcome present disparities in promotion and research. If the powerful trend now working against cotton and for its competitors is not halted, domestic and foreign consumption will go down to 8 million bales a year by 1960 and will sink further to 7 million bales by 1965, they predicted.

USDA Lists 31 Undesirable Wheat Varieties

By F. W. MARTIN On July 17, U. S. Department of Agriculture named 31 wheat varieties which are undesirable because of inferior milling and baking qualities and which will be discounted 20 cents per bushel in price support rates on the 1968 wheat crop. Eight new varieties have been added to the list of 23 designated as undesirable for the 1967 wheat price support program. This will be the third year discounts on undesirable wheat varieties have been included in the price support program.

Hard Red Winter—Blue Jacket, Chiefkan, Cimarron, Early black-hull, Kanking, New Chief, Pawnee Sel. 33, Purkof, Red Chief, Red Hull, Red Jacket and Stafford.

Soft Red Winter—Kan Queen, Kawvale, Nured, and Seabreeze.

Hard Red Spring—Gasser, Henry (except in Wisconsin and Washington), Kinney, Premier, Progress, Spinocota, Sturgeon.

Durum—Golden Ball, Peliss and Pentad.

White—Fifty Fold, Florence, Greeson, Rex and Sonora.

Additions to the list of undesirable varieties include Fifty Fold, Florence, Gasser, Greeson, Kan Queen, Kinney, Nured and Seabreeze.

The undesirable varieties are designated nationally except for Henry which is named as undesirable in all but the states of Wisconsin and Washington.

These designated varieties were found to be undesirable for commercial food use. The discount was adopted in the support operation to discourage their production and lessen the possibility of U. S. wheat of inferior quality finding its way into domestic and export channels. Representatives of crop improvement associations have strongly urged the action to help improve the quality of over-all U. S. wheat production.

Application of the discount of 20 cents per bushel to producer support rates will be the same as under the 1967 operation. The price support regulations for the 1968 program will provide for producer certification regarding undesirable varieties similar to the certifications made by producers that they produced the wheat and produced it in the current crop year. Because these varieties are difficult to determine from threshed samples of wheat, the identification of the variety going under price support will be the producer's responsibility based on his knowledge of the varieties he seeded and harvested. Even though some of the undesirable varieties might have protein content high enough for a premium, no protein premiums will apply to any of the undesirable varieties in determining the loan rate. Similarly, no amber or hard amber premiums will apply.

Texas' population in 1955 was estimated 67.3 per cent urban and 32.7 rural.

Guest Speaker at Rotary Club

A working community is not only a progressive community, it is a happy community, Wallace H. Cox, Jr., Haskell businessman told members of the Rotary Club Thursday at their noon luncheon and meeting. Cox, guest speaker, talked on "Community Service."

Other guests of the club were three visiting Rotarians, George Wilmo; of Wagner, Okla., T. E. Loveless of Stamford, and Arnold Norred of Lubbock, and John Stone, high school senior who was club pianist.

Club president Robt. R. King read letters from Rotary Clubs in St. Johns, New Brunswick, and San Francisco, Calif., expressing best wishes to the new Haskell club. King also urged all Rotarians to report for work in the Cemetery Clean-Up project Aug. 20.

In his talk, Cox, former president of the Chamber of Commerce outlined the various fields of service in which citizens could serve actively in building a better community.

"In working to build your community and to help others, you will find that you benefit yourself," he said.

The speaker cited the various civic organizations as providing many avenues of service. Other opportunities for service lie in the fields of city government and school bodies, where citizens are called upon to serve in various capacities, he pointed out.

He also mentioned numerous community projects and special drives as worthwhile endeavors in which the support and active participation of the citizenship was needed.

"If we truly want to build our community we should find some avenue of service and work in it, setting an example for others," the speaker declared in closing.

Mr. and Mrs. Charley Stodghill and daughter Charlene of Fort Worth visited during the week end in the home of Mrs. J. L. Dilbeck and Mrs. C. F. Graham. Mrs. Stodghill is a niece of Mrs. Graham and Mrs. Dilbeck. The Fort Worth couple was accompanied by Mrs. J. W. Graham, sister-in-law of the Haskell women, who also spent the weekend here.
