An Investment In Youth

Will you invest in the youth of Haskell? That is the challenge behind the campaign launched today to raise the minimum amount of $6,000 to complete a Youth Center on which work has been under way for several weeks.

Plans for the Center will make it one of the most attractive youth recreation centers to be found in this area and one of which the entire community can justly be proud.

The project will fill a long-felt need for an adequate recreation center for the young people of Haskell and neighboring communities. It will provide facilities for a varied program of wholesome entertainment for our youth, under competent supervision but with the young people themselves having a voice in governing the activities of the Center.

The project has the endorsement of civic groups, school patrons and citizens in all walks of life.

Sponsors are hopeful that all parents in Haskell will have a part in underwriting the Youth Center in whatever measure their means permit.

Take time, if you will, to drive down and inspect the buildings already in place at the Youth Center site adjacent to Rice Springs Park. Then be ready to make your investment in the community's greatest asset—the citizens of tomorrow.

Give what you can, and help all you can to make the Youth Center a reality.

Can Heartbreak Be Routine?

To the police officers, it was just another routine case. They get reports frequently of some man, crazed on cheap wine or whiskey, going on a rampage. Breaking furniture, dishes, frightening and threatening his family.

But to the wife and four children, the oldest not over 11, was it just a routine case? One in a series of never-ending experiences of fear and dread?

So the police make their investigation. "Better settle down," the man is told. "If we get another call we'll take you to jail." That's routine procedure—to give the man a chance to keep from being locked up.

But is it routine for children to be hungry? Without decent clothing? Is it routine for them to await in childish fear the homecoming of one they instinctively want to love?

What of the wife and mother? Is it routine that all her cherished plans for a home should be wrecked? That all hope for a decent future for her loved ones be slowly drained from the heart and soul of this woman? Can heartbreak ever be routine?

What is the answer? Frankly, we don't know. Neither do the police officers. They work diligently and conscientiously on the problem.

Perhaps the ultimate answer depends on you and me and all the other right-thinking men and women of Haskell. Because the answer could well be in the attitude we take toward eliminating the illicit traffic that contributes to these tragedies.

Just Who Are The "Spenders"?

(The Tulsa Herald)

Lyndon Johnson pulled the cork on efforts of the Republicans and the daily press to dub Democrats the party of "the spenders" when he cited statistics to show just what has happened during the past five years of Democratic Congresses and a Republican executive department.

Of course, it is well known that the budget originates in the President's office, then is presented to Congress where it is reviewed by committees, point by point. Each proposed expenditure is challenged. Some items are raised, others lowered, some eliminated altogether.

Democratic Congresses during the past five years have cut $10 billion from budgets submitted by Eisenhower. During the past two fiscal years alone, Democratic Congresses have pared $5,670,000,000 from Eisenhower budgets. That means in simple language, that the Democrats have refused to appropriate $5,670,000,000 that Eisenhower wanted spent.

This year Eisenhower is asking $825,000,000 more for foreign aid alone—just one item of the budget—than the Democratic Congress would appropriate last year.

PEOPLE, PLACES AND THINGS

By A. PATE

City Fireman Floyd (Satch) Lusk points out to the public at every opportunity the necessity for giving full information as to the location and nature of the blaze when turning in a fire alarm.

It is natural for persons to be excited when a fire occurs, he says. But taking time to give the location will enable firemen to get to the fire quickly and every minute counts.

"Satch" recalls the time a few years ago when he answered the fire department telephone and a woman excitedly said: "Hurry out here, our barn is on fire."

"Where do you live? Where is the fire?" he asked while reaching for his coat.

"At the barn right back of the house. Hurry and come on out here!" was the excited answer as she hung up the receiver.

Luckily, "Satch" was able to find out from the telephone operator where the call came from and firemen controlled the blaze before the house was damaged.

Had the occasion to travel the new F-M Road to Paint Creek recently. It's surprising how much nearer together it has brought Paint Creek to Haskell. Some of the residents in that section—Joan R. Watson for instance—recall that what is now a few minutes drive once was a half day's journey.

We never visit Paint Creek without recalling our good friend and former School Superintendent there, Dan McRae, who in our opinion is due a large share of credit for the high educational standard Paint Creek School enjoys today. And he has a worthy successor in Supt. Pat Morrison, who was principal under Supt. McRae.

Dan is now superintendent of Highland Independent School in Nolan County, near Sweetwater, and one of the largest rural schools in that section.

John Crawford tells the one about a contest in which a prize was to be given for the best biographical sketch about someone in the community.

Judges threw out one entry which read: "John Doe was born. He grew to manhood, married, and begat sons and daughters. He cursed taxes, bad roads, and government. He died."

The judges claimed the sketch was unfair competition. Said it covered everything that could be said of anyone.

Manners induced by too frequent sessions with the bottle resulted in five transients, three men and two women, spending a "cooling off" period in the county jail last week, after which they left some lettuce with the county in the form of fines.

Stopping at a local cafe with each member of the group under full steam, they finally managed to turn in orders. Then, one of the men produced a small Chihuahua puppy from somewhere and placed the animal on the table.

Disapproval was immediately voiced by one of the women whose choice of words would have commanded attention among a bunch of celebrating Seabees in a Chinese port. The vitriolic outburst cowed the other drunks and it was easy to see that even the tiny dog was frightened.

Appearance of the Law on the scene minutes later ended the festivities as the beary-eyed but loud-voiced group was piloted off to jail and booked for appearance before the J. P.

One of our most loyal subscribers is Virgil A. Brown, Haskell realtor and one of the county's best posted men on election laws.

Recently when Virgil renewed his subscription, he recalled that he had been reading The Free Press ever since coming to Haskell. Under questioning, he admitted it had been quite a spell, 43 years to be exact, since he came here from Wood County, deep in East Texas.

As to his knowledge of election laws, Virgil has helped hold the city, school, and county elections as far back as we can recall. That spans a good many years, too.

Another old-timer on our subscription list, a reader of The Free Press long before Virgil came to this area, is Wayne Perry of the Paint Creek section.

Wayne's grandfather was the first of the Perry clan to settle in this section back in the 80's and the Perrys have been here since. Wayne has firsthand knowledge concerning many of the items reprinted from the 50 issues of The Free Press 50 years ago. (And he could probably relate some happenings of that era that were never in print.)

As regular as the calendar each year, Wayne comes in leaves a sizeable check for not only his subscription, but for children and grandchildren as well.

Although the business of Jones & Son is pretty well specialized in their three major operations of a sheet metal manufacturing plant, blacksmith shop and service station, the establishment has become known as "The Place for Everything."

Heard one of our large farm operators, (H. K. Henry) talking the other day. He was telling of the difficulty he'd had in finding a needed part for his equipment. Thinking he'd probably have to go out of town for it, he took a long shot and inquired at Jones & Son, and found just what he needed. Another man in the group spoke up with the same experience. Then added his belief that almost any hard-to-find part for anything from a sewing machine to a self-propelled combine could likely be found there.

For our two-bits worth, we'll add that you can even find a neck-yoke for a team of oxen at the Jones & Son establishment, but not for sale.

Next time you're passing, take a look at the ancient yoke displayed over the entrance to the sheet metal shop.

Verna Moody, one of the efficient custodians at the court house, announced proudly the other day that he'd finally trapped that unwelcome skunk that had taken up residence under his house.

He added, meaningfully it seemed, that the memory of the little striped cuss would linger for a long time.

BUILT FOR PEOPLE! . . . Just one standard was used by Ford in designing its 1959 car — people! First, Ford made the door openings wider, so it's easier to get in and out. Next they made sure that six big people—not just four or five—could stretch out on seats that are padded their full width. Result? More room for everybody's legs, elbows, hips and hats . . . more solid comfort than ever before.

BUILT FOR SAVINGS! . . . Savings start the moment you buy a Ford. A price tag comparison with major competitive cars will prove it! And you go right on saving. Ford's standard engines that thrive on regular gas save you a dollar each tankful. Ford's Full-Flow Oil Filter means oil changes only each 4000 miles. Ford's aluminum mufflers last twice as long. It wasn't hard for a fashionable man to trip over his own feet during the Middle Ages. The World Book Encyclopedia says that one kind of a shoe had a pointed toe so long that a chain had to be used to hold it up so the wearer could walk.

Highway Dollars Economic Asset To Communities

AUSTIN, TEXAS.—"Highway dollars spent for construction and maintenance are a real economic asset to the counties and cities of Texas. People are again recognizing the importance of the highway dollar and being returned to their counties and cities."

Marshall Formby, Highway Commission chairman, said that construction and maintenance jobs are a shot in the arm to the economy of a county and city.

"Times have been so good since World War II that people more or less forgot about the value of highway dollars," Formby said. "But during the past two or three years the business leaders have recognized anew the value of the money spent with them."

Formby stated that on a typical million dollar contract, at least $700,000 spent the people in the county where the work is being done and the other $300,000 spent in the area.

"People in all walks of life get some benefit out of this highway dollar," Formby said.

In breaking down the average and typical million dollar contract, Formby points out that an average 100 to 150 different parcels of land is purchased for right of way at an average cost of $140,000. This right of way money is paid to property owners for their land and for moving buildings, fences, title policies and other items. On an average, 30 local workers will be employed to move fences and buildings at a cost of $20,000. Where title policies are required, at least $14,000 will be spent for these.

On this average million dollar contract, about 100 local people will be employed on the construction project. Where bridges are built, about 75 percent of the labor is locally obtained.

The local lumber yards will sell 3,500 barrels of cement for $10,000 and 5,000 board feet of lumber for $1,000. About 2,000 tons of structural steel will be needed at a cost of from $12,000 to $15,000. The contractor will spend thousands of dollars with local oil distributors for gasoline, motor fuel and other petroleum products. Materials such as sand and gravel, caliche, and other base materials, are always purchased locally if available and will cost about $6,000. Some 30 trucks, most of them local, will be paid $30,000 to haul these materials to the job. These trucks would in turn purchase $5,000 worth of gasoline alone for the job.

The highway dollar will find its way eventually to the laborer, lumber yards, oil distributors, filling stations, garages, welding shops, apartment-house owners, hotels, motels, grocery stores, hardware stores, picture shows, utility companies, barber shops, cafes, department stores, etc. The money will find its way into the local tax coffers; some will be used to support churches, schools, and other worthwhile enterprises.

Formby says that a survey

Cattle Steady, Supply Light At Fort Worth

BY TED GOULDY

Most classes of cattle and calves cleared at steady prices at Fort Worth Monday. Trade on fed steers and yearlings was somewhat slow at the start but clearance was made before the noon hour as light supplies reported around the major marketing circle strengthened the salesman's arguments. Late sales of cows were inclined to be weak compared with earlier rounds when shipper activity was at its peak.

Good and choice slaughter steers and yearlings sold for $25.50 to $27.50, some 630-pound heifers sold at $27.50 and some around 800-pound steers drew $27.50. Mixed 810-pound steers and heifers sold at $26.50. Plain and medium sorts sold from $18 to $25.

Fat cows sold from $18.50 to $21 and canners and cutters cashed at $13 to $18.50. Bulls drew $18 to $23.75. Good and choice slaughter calves ranged from $25.50 to $29.50 and plain and medium sorts sold from $21 to $25, and culls sold at $17 to $20.

Medium to good stocker steer calves drew $28 to $33 and a few around 200-pound steer yearlings of medium grades sold from $22 to $25 and some better quality kinds sold up to $27.50.

Hogs were steady to 25 cents higher at Fort Worth as choice hogs sold from $16.50 to $17 and heaviers of 240 to 300 lbs. ranged from $15 to $16.25. A few pigs sold around $14. Sows cashed at $13 to $14.50.

Women Champs In Art of Talking Despite Filibustering Politicians

The expected Senate battle to restrict the filibuster may leave women the undisputed champs of the art of talking the opposition to death. The little woman has long been notorious for her backfence oratory. But she has had strong competition from senators who have recited from the Bible, read old newspapers and even disclosed their favorite recipes in an attempt to kill or amend legislation they opposed.

Research experts with The World Encyclopedia report that man believe Sen. Strom Thurmond holds the record of a one-man filibuster. The South Carolina Democrat spoke for 24 hours, 18 minutes, in 1957. He began the filibuster by reading the texts of the election laws of 48 states.

Thurmond got a breather, however, when another senator asked for the floor to make an insertion in the Congressional Record.

Some purists argue that Sen. Wayne Morse held the floor longer than any other member of the Senate. In 1953, the Oregon Independent talked for 22 hours, 26 minutes, without interruptions, in an effort to prevent the passage of the tidelands oil bill.

Republicans, too, have had their share in trying to stifle legislation by wearing down the opposition with talk. In 1908, Wisconsin's Sen. Robert LaFollette Sr., held the floor for 18 hours, 23 minutes, in a filibuster against the Aldrich-Vreeland currency bill, although he did not talk continuously.

Senators have filibustered against targets ranging from the Atomic Energy Act to a migratory bird bill. But despite these formidable male threats, the record for an unbroken monologue still belongs to a woman.

Last summer, a housewife from Tulsa, Okla., won a contest for the world's champion talker by jabbering away for 94 hours, 32 minutes, 5 seconds.

Sound Planning Called For In Scout Program

America faces a large increase in the number of boys eight to eighteen years of age during the next five years, says Dr. Arthur A. Schuck, Chief Scout Executive of the Boy Scouts of America. In a message to the nation's 536 local Boy Scout councils on the 49th anniversary of the organization to be observed during Boy Scout Week, Feb. 7 to 13, Dr. Schuck called for sound planning "predicated on an understanding and knowledge of the current situation as well as its past growth and development."

He said that today there are 3,617,000 boy members in the organization or 24.6 per cent of the 14,722,000 boys between the ages of eight and sixteen. In order to maintain the same ratio at the end of 1963, when there will be 16,963,000 boys of those ages, there should be 4,177,000 Cub Scouts and Explorers, Dr. Schuck said. To reach one-third would mean 5,648,000 boy members.

The Cub Scout program for boys eight, nine, and ten years old is now reaching one of every three boys of those ages. Boy Scouting for ages from eleven through seventeen attracts one in every four of those ages, while Exploring for those fourteen years old, and in the ninth grade and through seventeen reaches one of every nine.

Current total membership is above 4,780,000 boys and leaders. Since 1910, he added, more than 29,500,000 persons have been in the Boy Scouts of America.

"We must strive to make Scouting available to every boy in America," Dr. Schuck wrote.

"Looking ahead for the next 5 years," says the chief executive, "we must recognize that never has it been so important or imperative that the youth of our nation be trained to high idealism, acquired through unselfish service, by self-reliance, and cooperative effort."

"They must understand and practice the basic principles on which our nation was founded and recognize that security is the fruit of freedom and that without freedom, there can be no security."

Dr. Schuck entered Scouting as a volunteer leader in 1913 and has been a professional leader since 1917.

Scouting's ideals and objectives have remained constant since 1910 he said, "while the program organization methods, and operating techniques have changed as the result of study and understanding of changing conditions and as necessary to meet the needs of a rapidly growing organization."

He said the greatest influence in Scouting's growth "has been dedicated service of laymen willing to invest their time, their energy, and their money in the interest of training youth to do their duty to God and country and to preserve and strengthen our heritage and to develop a nation so that it may be spiritually, dynamically, and mentally strong and morally straight."

Calling camping the heart of the Scouting program, the chief executive points out that current and anticipated growth would require additional camp sites and facilities. He warned that good camp sites are getting scarcer.

Sen. Geo. Moffett Is Third Ranking Senate Member

State Senator George "Cotton" Moffett of Chillicothe, representing the 23rd Senatorial District, entered the 56th Legislature this week as the third-ranking member of the Senate in seniority, and the dean of the Legislature in terms of both House and Senate service.

He entered the Senate in 1937. Only Senators R. A. Weinert, who started in a special session in 1936, and A. M. Aikin Jr., who began in 1937, outrank him in Senate seniority.

Senator Moffett began service in the House in 1931, two years ahead of Senators Geo. Parkhouse and Aikin. Moffett, who is not a lawyer, is one of the most influential members of the Senate, and takes an active part in legislation dealing with legal as well as policy matters. He has served as chairman of the agriculture committee, as well as others. He is listed as a farmer.

His nickname of "Cotton" derives not from the fact that his hair is snowy white, but from his long and intense interest in the development of cotton for new uses, such as fireproofed fabrics and building materials. He has been an active champion of the state cotton research laboratory program.

Area Baptists Meeting In Anson Today

Baptists from eight associations in District 17, which includes the Haskell-Knox Association, are meeting at the First Baptist Church in Anson today, Feb. 26, in a Church Achievement Clinic.

To help plan small church development in population areas of 2,500 or less, and for all Latin American Baptist churches and missions, the Baptist General Convention of Texas has established the Church Achievement Program. Through the program, a church and pastor discover the possibilities, schedule work and delegate responsibilities.

Mrs. W. E. Johnson Is Hostess For Valentine Party

Mrs. W. E. Johnson was hostess for a Valentine Party in her home for members of the Philathea Sunday School Class of the First Methodist Church.

As each guest arrived a decorated card bearing the words, "This is your party," was given them. As guests were registered they were directed to an adjoining room, where they placed love letters, valentines and gifts in a miniature post office which had "U. S. Post Office" lettered above the delivery window and a small U. S. flag flying from the top of the small structure.

Guests were directed to another room where they were given red and white miniature hearts to be worn during the party. Each guest wore a corsage they had made for the occasion, and each one made a Valentine which was judged for prizes. Mrs. O. E. Patterson and Mrs. Andrew Josselot were the judges, and they awarded first place to Mrs. Angie Mullino on her corsage and to Mrs. O. W. Tooley on her Valentine.

The meeting was opened with the group singing "Let Me Call You Sweetheart." Mrs. Jewel Turner gave a reading entitled "My First Sweetheart," and "The Origin of Valentine" was given by Mrs. Johnson. Some of the guests sang old-time love songs they sang in their girlhood days.

Human Bingo and other games were played in which prizes were awarded. Mrs. Owens guessed nearest to the number of candy hearts in the jar. Another popular feature was the Wishing Well, with each guest drawing a fortune from the well.

The post office was opened and Mrs. Turner handed out mail and packages, with each one present receiving love letters, Valentines and gifts. Mrs. O. W. Tooley and Mrs. Francis Bird were special guests, and they received red smoked pillows. Others present included Mrs. Johnson's daughter, Mrs. E. V. Riley of Brownfield, and Mrs. M. E. Betts, 96-year-old mother of Mrs. Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Blohm came during the evening and made colored pictures of three rooms.

NEWS OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Josselot H. D. Club Has Program On Sewing

A well made collar keeps your dress from having that "Home Made Look." Make the under collar slightly smaller keeping it from rolling out and the under side from showing. Use a light interfacing and quilt about an inch apart making the collar stand and have a soft appearance instead of a stiff look when using a heavier interfacing.

The program on Sewing was given to the Josselot Home Demonstration Club Feb. 24, when they met in the home of Mrs. C. A. Thomas Sr.

Mrs. Martin Rueffer, club president, presided over the meeting. Mrs. Paul Cochron gave a reading "Freckles."

Mrs. C. O. Holt Directs Magazine Club Program

Members of the Magazine Club found themselves "Dreaming of Spring" Friday, Feb. 20, when Mrs. C. O. Holt directed the program honoring members of the Haskell Garden Club as special guests.

When signs of spring begin to appear, many women find themselves dreaming of "That Spring Hat." Mrs. L. R. Burkett gave a brief history of hats. The first hat factory in the United States was established in 1780. Hats are worn for protection and decoration. The types of hats worn in different countries made an interesting study. Mrs. Burkett showed a lovely collection of hats from the Personality Shop.

The dream of a "Garden" is foremost in the mind of Mrs. James Crawford, president of the Haskell Garden Club. As guest speaker, Mrs. Crawford presented general information on gardening. She discussed watering, soil and fertilizer, stating that one should plant in the fall for early spring flowers. Some flowers that are hardy and do well in this climate were mentioned.

Some women may dream of "Spring Housecleaning" but to most it is a nightmare. Mrs. Bailey Toliver presented a delightful review in the first person from "The Complete Book of Absolutely Perfect Housekeeping" by Elinor Gauding Smith.

Preceding the program, the hostesses, Mrs. S. Hassen, Mrs. J. U. Fields, Mrs. L. R. Burkett and Mrs. C. V. Payne served tea and cherry tarts to twenty-five members and one guest.

Dr. E. B. Evans Praises Facilities Of New Elementary Colored School

A few excerpts from the talk of Dr. E. B. Evans in dedication of the new Elementary Colored School Building.

"I have had the opportunity to carefully inspect the new Colored Elementary School, and wish to commend the citizens of Haskell for their interest in the education of all the children to the extent they would erect a completely modern school for the colored children. I have seen much larger Elementary School buildings, but none better.

"To the teachers, if you can't teach in this building, you can't teach. To the children, if you can't learn in this building, you can't learn.

"Situating as you are, in this thriving West Texas community which is now over a hundred years old, you have the opportunity to grow rapidly as your own ideals and capacity will allow. This dedication service in Haskell indicates progress throughout your community, and there will be more progress to come. The important thing is that you take advantage of this progress. I urge upon all parents to keep your children in school.

"We are gathered here to dedicate this magnificent school plant, its wonderful staff and its growing body of parents and supporting citizens.

"This plant with equipment at current prices is worth every penny of $50,000. But in uses and services to pupils and the community its value will be multiplied by all the lives it touches. Here they will learn to re-emphasize the Old Three R's. Here they will learn new R's, of Responsibilities and Relationship. To have a voice in the dedication of this plant to your principal, staff, pupils and parents for training and character building is one of the greatest privileges and pleasures of my life.

"I challenge you, and each of you, to 100 per cent attendance and 100 per cent of the facilities here for the total education of the whole child for wholesome living in the total community. I challenge you to 100 per cent upkeep and care of this plant. The way you keep it will express your appreciation for what the Haskell School Board and Superintendent have done for you.

"Steel, concrete, glass, brick, seats, desks, blackboards, laboratory, play equipment are essential to a school, but without an able administrator, prepared and progressive teachers and maintenance staff no real school is possible. What

Bass And Catfish Sometimes Dine On Cotton Rats

Certain fish have varied appetites, and will eat nearly anything at one time or another, according to the director of Inland Fisheries, Texas Game and Fish Commission.

This conclusion is based on samples taken from the stomachs of several fish. Such samples have included everything from rat skulls to peanuts, sack and all.

A skull taken from the stomach of a channel cat caught in Little River in Leon County was recently sent in for identification. It turned out to be that of a Sigmodon hispidus, or bristle-haired cotton rat. This not only indicates that the rat spends some of his time swimming, but also that cats, even of the fish species, live up to tradition. The skull was compared with many others that had been found in other fish in the State. It proved to be the same as the others.

A Wichita Falls biologist stated that he also had found skulls in bass and cats in that area, indicating that rats must constitute a part of the diets of these two fish. Samples from fish taken at Belton Reservoir, which covered pecan flats in certain areas, revealed that some of the fish there were pecan-eaters.

In the case of the peanuts, one fish not only contained samples of nuts but a portion of the sack with the trade name still readable. Others items found in the stomachs of fish include grapes, red-winged blackbirds, chicken bones, ducklings and cliff swallows.

One reason that fish have added cotton rats to their diet is because the rats are so plentiful.

Farm Bureau Backs Gov. Daniel's Proposal To Tax Natural Gas

Governor Daniel's proposal to tax natural gas as a means of raising needed revenue has been strongly endorsed by the Texas Farm Bureau.

At Waio, J. H. West, president of the state's largest farm organization, declared that the tax is fair and equitable because it does not place an undue burden on Texans, while at the same time, gives the people of Texas an opportunity to benefit from the "irreplaceable" natural resource now being shipped out of state.

The revenue-raising proposal, HB 43, has been introduced in the House of Representatives in Austin by Rep. George Hinson of Mineola. The proposed tax is a "severance beneficiary" tax on natural gas at the rate of 3 per cent of value which would raise $41 million over the next biennium. It would be paid by the producer only if there is no severance beneficiary to pay for it.

West lauded Gov. Daniel and Rep. Hinson for their efforts to secure needed state revenues from such a source. He contended that even with passage of the Governor's proposal, Texas would still be taxing natural gas at less than half the rate of some surrounding gas-producing states.

At present some 53 per cent of Texas' natural gas production is consumed out of state, with many of the consuming states deriving considerable revenue from taxing it. For example, the states of New York, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and Illinois collect from two to nine times as much tax per thousand cubic feet on Texas gas than Texas itself collects.

West said he agrees with Gov. Daniel that Texans who may end up paying part of this tax on the gas consumed in Texas will be glad to do so in order to see that those who are enjoying more than half of our production outside the state pay a just tax on this natural resource.

The Texas Farm Bureau, at its convention last November in Corpus Christi, re-affirmed its policy favoring an increase of natural resources tax when additional money was needed to run the state government.

Starving Quail Trapped, Moved

Limited trapping of starving quail in North Texas, so that they can be transplanted into other areas, has been attempted in several places, according to the executive secretary of the Game and Fish Commission.

"We don't think this is a solution of the problem, but we are interested in seeing what can be done for the birds," he said. "We had a very unusual situation during the past season. There was an abundance of quail and an abundance of rats in the area. The food was insufficient and as a result many quail have died of starvation."

The secretary said that where quail are moved it has been done with the understanding that the birds would be provided with food in their new range.

"What this will mean we are not in position to say," he pointed out. "There is some danger that the unhealthy birds may infect other birds. For that reason we hesitate to trap and move many of the starving birds. We are doing so, however, on a very limited experimental basis."

In some counties in North Texas the birds were so poor by mid-December hunters refused to shoot them. As a result thousands of birds have died from starvation. At the same time rats also are dying off.

Geat Plains Program On Three Farm-Ranch Tracts Given Approval by SCS

Great Plains Conservation Program contracts have been approved by the Soil Conservation Service on the farms and ranches of W. L. Holt, Brooke Early and Allen Davis, according to J. C. Yearly, local SCS Work Unit Conservationist.

W. L. Holt, whose farm is situated 8 miles northeast of Haskell, contracted 808 acres in two tracts of land. His plans are to develop a waterway of 7 acres to dispose of excess water, cross fence pasture for better management of grazing land, range pit 145 acres of range and control mesquite on 170 acres, construct 2 new ponds and enlarge one pond, and re-seed 283 acres of range-land. His plans call for a conservation cropping system suitable to meet the needs of his cropland with stubble mulching of all crop residue to retard and control wind erosion. Holt plans to complete his contract by December, 1964, at which time his farm will be in top-notch condition, Yearly said.

Brooke Early, whose ranch is located 15 miles southeast of Haskell contracted 6395 acres late in December of 1958 and plans to aerial spray 1293 acres of mesquite and cross fence one large pasture. In addition to these practices, Early plans to practice deferred grazing and proper range use to bring about an improvement in his ranges.

Allen Davis has the latest contract in Haskell County. It has just been approved this week and is on his ranch located approximately 6 miles southwest of Rule. The ranch consists of 890 acres and is under a four year contract. Davis plans to terrace and farm his crop land with the terraces.

instituting a conservation cropping system in keeping with the needs of the land, and to practice stubble mulching and crop residue management for both wind and water erosion control. Also, 378 acres of mesquite will be controlled by root plowing and 112 acres of prickly pear will be controlled by hand grubbing and piling. A fence will be constructed to better manage grazing land. Davis will re-seed approximately 320 acres of native rangeland. Proper range use and deferred grazing will be practices for range improvement. A diversion terrace will be constructed to increase the drainage area of one of his farm ponds and making it more efficient for furnishing livestock water.

Yearly stated that other farmers and ranchers were working on Great Plains Conservation Program contracts that would be finished and approved in the new future. Interest in the program is building up, said Yearly, and will probably increase as time goes on and more farms and ranches come under contract with the program.

Further information concerning the Great Plains Conservation Program can be obtained from your local Soil Conservation Service Technicians.

The world's population took hundreds of thousands of years to reach the 2.5 billion mark in 1950. But it will take less than 40 years for the second 2.5 billion people to be added, bringing the world's population to 5 billion around the year 1990.

The names of the Certificate of Merit winners are being sent to over 1,500 colleges, universities and other scholarship-granting agencies for consideration for thousands of other privately-financed scholarships offered outside of the Merit Scholarship program.

Previous experience indicates that the Finalists will be offered some $2.5 million worth of freshman-year scholarship assistance from these sources, in addition to the awards made to those selected as Merit Scholars.

"The Certificate of Merit winners number 10,000 this year, an increase of 2,500 from previous years," declared John M. Stalaker, president of National Merit Scholarship Corporation, the non-profit organization that conducts the annual competition.

"Each year we try to focus the attention of the nation's scholarship donors upon a limited group of high school graduates with the highest demonstrated potential to benefit from college training. These are the Certificate of Merit winners, the top performers in our national testing. We provide as many of them with direct assistance as our funds permit, and encourage a great variety of independent donors to do the same."
