Redistricting puts Floyd County in new state house district for 2022 elections Lockney to go to Arrington; county precinct hearing Nov. 9

KAY ELLINGTON | HESPERIAN-BEACON

Floyd County will experience a representation shift from the redistricting maps recently approved by Gov. Greg Abbott. These changes will take effect when new officeholders—whether reelected incumbents with shifting constituencies, or challengers—are sworn in on January 1, 2023.

JODEY ARRINGTON RONNY JACKSON CHARLES PERRY DAVID SPILLER DUSTIN BURROWS JAY JOHNSON

U.S. HOUSE DISTRICT 19

Both Lockney and Floydada will be located in U.S. House District 19, which is currently held by Jodey Arrington (R-Lubbock). Although the district boundaries changed as part of Texas picking up two additional house seats, those new districts were added to the Austin and Houston areas. House District 19 now includes more of the Texas Panhandle and does not extend as far east as it had.

Previously Lockney was represented by Ronny Jackson (R-Amarillo), U.S. House District 13.

TEXAS SENATE

Floyd County's Texas Senate representation remains the same. Constituents will continue to be in Texas Senate District 28, which is represented by Charles Perry (R-Lubbock).

Senate District 28 lost 17 counties and picked up seven counties. The biggest population shift is that Senate District 28 will now represent 100 percent of Taylor County and the newly added western portion of Wichita County.

The 17 counties that were lost are Borden, Coke, Crane, Dawson, Eastland, Irion, Kimble, Mitchell, Reagan, Schleicher, Scurry, Shackelford, Stephens, Sterling, Sutton, Upton and Ward.

The seven counties that were gained are Collingsworth, Donley, Gray, Mills, San Saba, Wheeler and Wichita.

TEXAS HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

In the Texas House of Representatives, Floyd County will no longer be in House District 68, currently represented by David Spiller, R-Jacksboro.

Instead, Floyd County will move to be part of Texas House District 83, which is currently held by Dustin Burrows (R-Lubbock). The district, which used to be shaped like a horseshoe south of Lubbock now extends east and northeast. In the 2022 election Floyd County voters will cast their ballots for candidates in House District 83. Spiller will continue to represent the two counties until January 1, 2023.

STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Floyd County also stays in District 15 in the State Board of Education, although the seat itself shifted to the west and south. District 15's delegate to the board is Jay Johnson (R-Pampa).

Redistricting occurs every 10 years after Census data is released, and can affect how boundaries are drawn for representation all the way to the local precinct level. Counties are just now beginning to address the shifts in commissioners' precincts. On the county level, according to the Texas Association of Counties, commissioners courts ultimately decide on precinct maps. Each precinct, ward or district should be as equal as geographically possible in population. Although it cannot be the controlling factor, race is a significant factor.

A handy tool for identifying the representation of any address in Texas can be accessed at <https://apps.texastribune.org/features/2021/texas-redistricting-map/>.

Floyd County has already announced new precinct boundaries being drawn in adherence to federal election law based upon population shifts.

Morales earns Herald's Stat Line of the Week

STAFF REPORTS

Senior Pablo Morales, Lockney's quarterback, was named the Plainview Herald's "Stat Line Player of the Week." The Longhorns picked up their seventh win last Friday, Oct. 22 beating the Hamlin Pied Pipers, 40-15 to move to 7-1 on the season and 2-0 in District 5-2A play. This win secured a playoff position for Lockney.

In the game against Hamlin, Morales accounted for four touchdowns. He was 6-of-9 on passing for 159 yards and two touchdowns. He also had two more touchdowns on the ground and had 45 rushing yards on eight attempts.

On asking Morales about his thoughts on being named to the Herald's "Stat Line Player of the Week" he commented, "I would like to thank my offensive line first. They did an awesome job giving me enough time in the pocket to make the throws. They also created holes for me to run when I needed them to. I also would like to thank the receiver and running backs for catching the ball and giving me blocks down field for big plays." Pablo added, "It's an honor to be named Stat Line of the Week. I really never care for my stats as long as we win as a team. I find more joy winning with my brothers than any other thing. Football is a team sport and everyone has an important role in a team's success."

Baseball's technological chess moves—and why Dusty Baker keeps cool for old school

Snyder, Texas, native Sue Jane Sullivan is a retired schoolteacher whose thought-provoking commentary appears in several West Texas newspapers, including The Texas Spur.

By the time readers see this column, the 2021 World Series championship will either have gone to the Atlanta Braves or the Houston Astros. As a lifelong fan of baseball and its history, I eagerly anticipate this sports event every October. (Now, with an added wild card qualifying game and a division series, the Series sometimes extends into November).

The World Series was a bit more elite in my childhood. You advanced only if you were the first-place team in the National League and the American League. Two teams from two leagues. Today, each league has three divisions: West, East, Central. The top team in each division advances to the playoffs, as does the victor of a one-game wild-card playoff. Driven by league owners who want to generate more revenue and fans who want to see more, October provides plenty of baseball excitement.

Traditionalists are struggling with recent changes on the playing field, those which do not stem from rules but from strategies. When the designated hitter rule was approved in 1973, most fans—especially in the American League—welcomed the chance to see power hitters take the place of pitchers batting. The new rule rested the pitcher between innings and had the potential to provide more offense.

Today, however, technology has influenced strategies more than rules ever could.

Statistics generated immediately for everything are at a manager's fingertips: percentage of fast balls thrown on the second pitch in the third inning, number of times a batter steps out of the plate to adjust his batting gloves, a hitter's inability to hit opposite field. All of these lead to player and manager chess moves. If you've watched a major league game recently, you have seen infielders shift for some hitters. One side of the field is left wide open because statistics show the batter seldom if ever hits to that side. Shortstops and second basemen rotate over, placing themselves in mathematically/theoretically just the right place to make a play.

Also, the days of the starting pitcher going all nine innings have all but disappeared. In 1991, the Minnesota Twins' Jack Morris went ten innings through a 1-0 shutout win over the Braves in the seventh and deciding game of the World Series. Nolan Ryan, as real Texans can quote, threw two complete game no-hitters in his forties. Today, teams incorporate middle-inning relief pitchers and closers—and in some cases this year, starting pitchers have stepped in to throw to certain batters in a game, batters whom statistics show struggle with contacting certain pitches.

Some of these managerial decisions have always been a part of the game, which is why I enjoy watching it so much. The timing of decisions is crucial in baseball. Having immediate, accessible player information only adds to the drama that can unfold on the field. Still, such changes have lengthened the game: Tuesday's first matchup in Houston went over four hours.

I suspect a young coach has the managerial advantage, as for most of his life this new way of coaching has been the norm. The Astros' manager Dusty Baker, conversely, is 72. He was hired two years ago to clean up someone else's mess. I have to admire the fact that he has chosen to adapt to the changes in his sport. He remains old school, making gut decisions, and is smart enough to know when to tap into the stats.

Since my Yankees are not playing, I guess I have no dog in the hunt for the 2021 World Series title. However, I will be pulling for the guy who played back in the day when Atlanta Brave Hank Aaron was belting home runs, without batting gloves.

10-digit dialing mandatory in several new areas

TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN—The days of being able to just dial seven digits in seven Texas area codes are behind us. In July 2020 the Federal Communications Commission approved 988 as the abbreviated dialing code for the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline. Several Texas area codes (254, 361, 409, 806, 830, 915 and 940) have numbers with a 988 prefix, and had to transition to 10-digit local dialing after the FCC order.

The Texas Public Utility Commission announced effective Oct. 25 that all local calls dialed in those area codes with just seven digits will reach a recording that prompts the caller to redial using all 10 digits. The change does not affect price, coverage area or other rates and services, according to the PUC.

RARE HUMAN CASE OF RABIES UNDER INVESTIGATION. A Medina County child is being treated for rabies in a Texas hospital, the Department of State Health Services reported last week. It is the first case of rabies in a human reported in the state since 2009. The child was bitten by a bat, according to DSHS.

Public health officials have identified all the places where someone could have come into contact with either the bat or the child. Experts are assessing the risk to those people and whether they should receive post-exposure vaccinations to prevent them from contracting rabies.

The department noted that rabies is almost always fatal once contracted, but is preventable if the vaccine and immune globulin are administered before symptoms begin. In Texas, according to DSHS, skunks and bats account for most animal rabies cases. Nearly 600 animals in Texas tested positive for rabies last year, about half of them bats.

ANOTHER LOOK AT IMPACT OF WINTER STORM URI. More than eight months after an unprecedented snow and ice storm led to widespread power blackouts in Texas, the Texas Comptroller's office took an in-depth look at the state's response and the legislative actions that followed.

Texas is the only state in the continental United States with its own electric power grid, which serves 90% of its population. Parts of East Texas, the Panhandle and El Paso are outside the area managed by the Electric Reliability Council of Texas and didn't experience widespread outages.

Winter Storm Uri knocked out power and disrupted water utilities for nearly 70% of the state's residents for extended periods. Financial loss estimates range from $80 billion to $130 billion, according to Comptroller Glenn Hegar.

The comptroller's report explains the economic toll of the storm and the legislative changes to the electric market structure passed in the 87th Legislature. Critics have said the changes do not go far enough to make power companies weatherize their plants to insure against further outages due to extreme weather.

DROUGHT EXPANDS THROUGHOUT STATE. Texas is drying up.

Warmer and drier conditions are being reported throughout much of the state, reports the Texas Water Development Board. Approximately one-fifth of the state is now experiencing drought conditions, mainly in Northeast Texas, the Panhandle, Far West Texas and South Texas.

The National Weather Service expects drought to expand across the state through the end of January due to La Niña conditions that are expected to bring Texas a warmer and drier winter than normal.

COVID-19 VACCINES FOR KIDS COMING TO STATE. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration has authorized the emergency use of the Pfizer-BioNTech Covid-19 vaccine for children aged 5 to 11 years. In Texas that could mean nearly 3 million children are now eligible for the vaccine.

The FDA reported immune responses in children in that age range were comparable to those of persons 16 to 25 years old. The vaccine was found to be 90.7% effective in preventing the virus in children 5 through 11. The ongoing study of approximately 3,100 children found no serious side effects.

More than a million doses targeting children in that age group are being sent to providers in nearly half of the state's counties, according to DSHS. As of Sunday, 15.44 million Texans have been fully vaccinated, which is right at 53% of the state's population.

COVID-19 CASES, DEATHS CONTINUE TO DROP. The number of new Covid-19 cases in Texas in the past week dropped to 28,840, and new deaths dipped to 937—the first time below 1,000 since summer, according to the Coronavirus Resource Center at Johns Hopkins University.

The total number of lab-confirmed Covid-19 hospitalizations continues to decrease, with 3,571 reported throughout the state, down nearly 19% from the previous week, according to DSHS.

Roast acorn squash with raddichio for a sweet-tart flavor

Fall side dishes tend to make me a little more creative in the kitchen. Fresh vegetables in early spring and summer can be fairly simple. They are so fresh, not much is needed to show off their best flavor. But when using root vegetables and heartier squash, they lend themselves to accenting with other warm flavors and seasonings.

For the holidays, I still like to make our traditional favorites, but I love to incorporate at least one different or new dish. While I enjoy working with sweet potatoes, pumpkin and butternut squash, I realized I had not shown the same love to acorn squash in a rather long time. Roasted, with a bit of salt and pepper and a drizzle of olive oil, acorn squash is perfectly delightful, and turns a bit sweet. But I paired it with mild shallots and the bitterness of radicchio for this recipe. Crunchy toasted walnuts and a sweet-tart dressing tie it all together.

The dressing has a tanginess from the vinegar and Dijon, plus a slightly sweet taste of maple syrup.

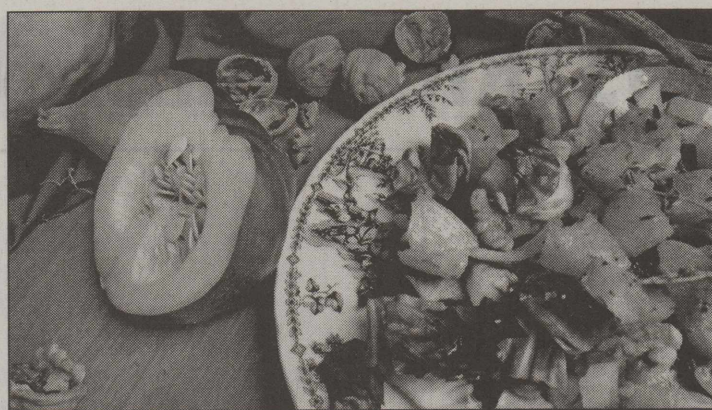

You may desire to use sweet potatoes, or other squash, and either will substitute well. If the bitterness of radicchio isn't something you like, the roasted vegetables with the shallots, topped with toasted walnuts, and the dressing, also makes a lovely side dish.

I want to pause to say thank you to my husband, a dedicated veteran. And he and I extend our gratitude to all our veterans on this upcoming day of appreciation. We are grateful for you 365 days of the year.

Enjoy food make fresh!

Roasted Acorn Squash with Radicchio

- 1/2 cup walnuts, roughly chopped
- 2 medium acorn squash
- 1 large shallot, peeled, cut in half and thinly sliced
- 1 small head radicchio
- 6 sprigs fresh thyme
- 4 tablespoons olive oil, divided
- 1 tablespoon balsamic vinegar

- 1 teaspoon maple syrup
- 1/2 teaspoon Dijon mustard
- 1 teaspoon salt, divided
- 1/2 teaspoon black pepper

Preheat oven to 375° F. Place walnuts on a small baking tray. Toast them for 8 to 9 minutes, watching closely, to ensure they do not over brown. Set aside.

Cut squash in half, then into quarters. Scoop out seeds and membranes. Carefully cut the tough skin from each wedge of squash with a paring knife. Cut the quarters into 1-inch, bite-size pieces.

Place the squash pieces and sliced shallots onto a baking sheet and toss with 1 tablespoon olive oil, 3/4 teaspoon salt, and black pepper. Scatter the thyme sprigs over the mixture. Bake for 25 minutes.

In the meantime, remove two outer layers of leaves from the head of radicchio. Cut into quarters and trim off the core. Cut the quarters into large chunks, leaving intact when possible. Toss with 1 tablespoon olive oil.

Remove roasted squash and shallots from oven; move them to one end of the baking sheet, discarding the thyme, (a small amount of thyme leaves will have fallen off and will be plenty for seasoning the squash). Add the radicchio and continue baking for 5 minutes. Remove from oven.

In a small bowl, whisk together remaining 2 tablespoons olive oil, vinegar, maple syrup, Dijon mustard, and remaining 1/4 teaspoon salt.

Gently toss the squash mixture with toasted walnuts. To serve, drizzle with dressing. Makes 8 servings.

How to recycle that baby bed

If you still have your baby bed, it's illegal. You can't put your grandbaby in it, you can't sell it, you can't give it away.

Safety concerns are always making baby beds obsolete. My 1940s model is a deathtrap. Maybe you're stuck with one too.

Might as well just put babies on the floor. Does anybody do that? RESEARCH.

Yes, floor sleeping is allowed. Electrical cords and curtains can be hazards. Also pillows and carpeting and blankets. And it's for sure you don't want to throw a stuffed teddy bear into the mix. Right?

MORE RESEARCH.

The more I read about floor sleeping, the more it sounds like the best place to wake up to. If a child awakes in a baby bed (for whatever reason the standard term now is "crib") and is old enough to pull up to the rail and scream for you, said child can't do it without a rail. Babies that wake up on the floor just go wherever they want according to their levels of mobility and wanderlust. No screaming. Nice.

And what about that bear?

Per current rules, a child should be a year or two old before they get to sleep with a stuffed effigy of any creature. Ah, safety.

Back to the initial problem. What to do with old baby beds? (I refuse to say "crib." I suspect it's a Yankee word imposed on all of us by means of television and all the other ways American culture is constantly being standardized. Baby bed, baby bed, baby bed. So there.)

I've already started taking mine apart. The vintage circus theme decals are too charming not to get recycled somehow.

A popular game these days is cornhole. Unless you're reading this is prison (and maybe even if you are) you know about cornhole. A party isn't a party without players tossing little bean bags into holes in somewhat distant slanted boards.

The good news:

You can turn each end of a baby bed into a cornhole board — just not regulation size. I opted for exactly half-size.

The bad news:

It's a lot of work. That's the reason I made just one game board.

Little Haley and Emily will be the only kids on their block in trendy Dallas this Christmas with half of a half-size cornhole set.

Alas. Even if you recycle both ends of a vintage baby bed, you're still left with the mattress (toss it), springs, siderails and perhaps casters. The Etsy website offers siderail ideas. Keep the casters to customize a walker.

As for the springs, they can be strung with red, white and blue twinkle lights to create an American flag. Has anyone done that? RESEARCH.

Looks like I get to be first.

Guess who was on deck when #44 Hammerin' Hank hit number 715 to break Babe Ruth's record?

#12, Dusty Baker.

That was 1974. Here Baker is, 47 years later, coaching against the team who signed him as a 17-year-old out of Sacramento, California. Guess who called to reassure Baker's mom about her teenage son signing with the Braves organization, telling her he would look after her kid straight out of high school?

#44, Hank Aaron.

The game of baseball may be undergoing trendy changes, but the legends and lore attached to its history remain locked in time, forever ours to enjoy.

NEW LEGISLATIVE DISTRICT MAPS COURTESY OF THE TEXAS TRIBUNE

Burrows comments on expanded HD83

Upon learning that one of the Texas House districts that would see the most change affects our readership area, The Hesperian-Beacon reached out to current representative Dustin Burrows (R-Lubbock), who might end up serving our counties by 2013.

FLOYD COUNTY HESPERIAN-BEACON: Thank you for taking time to respond to our questions. If you were to run for reelection, what goals would you be seeking to accomplish in an expanded district?

REP. DUSTIN BURROWS: First and foremost, I am a conservative Republican and will make sure that Texas remains a conservative State for the next generation. This includes making sure that we protect life, our second amendment rights, we have a secure border and that our public school systems are not used by the radical left to teach Marxist ideology like 'critical race theory.' Second, I have been a strong voice for property rights (including groundwater) and our agriculture community. I will continue to advance issues and policies that supports both. Third, I will make sure that our public schools are fully funded from the State, and our teachers are allowed to teach, not just administer tests.

What would be your plans and timetable to meet prospective new constituents in the counties now in District 83?

I am planning a series of townhalls in early December in each of the counties in District 83. The details will be announced in this newspaper. Additionally, I have already been reaching out to the local party officials, county judges and other county, city and school officials. Finally, if you have any issues you would like to discuss, or events you would like me to attend, please call the district office at (806) 795-0635.

Rural West Texas faces particular challenges after redistricting; populations are declining and infrastructure is eroding in every small West Texas town. What can Austin and our local state representative do to help?

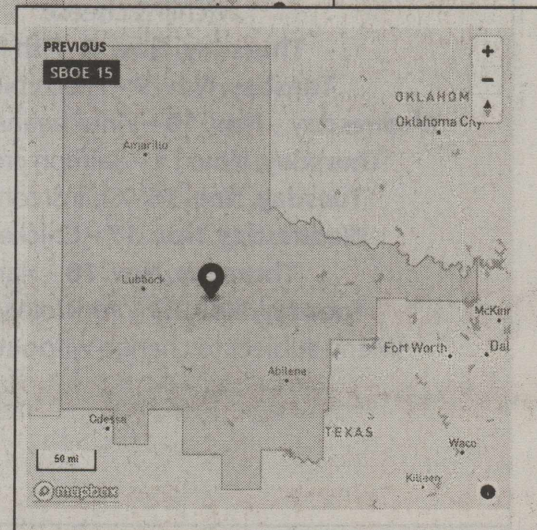

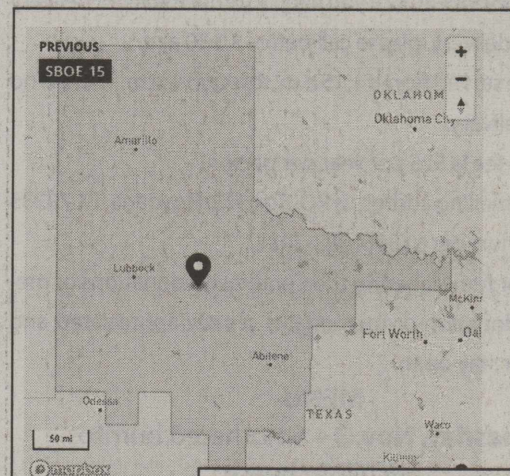

First, we must make sure our needs are known to the rest of the State. For example, I have helped our rural hospitals obtain much needed additional funding (over $200M for 2021). Also, I have helped secure $500M in building out rural broadband so that we can be better connected and utilize technology.

Second, we must make sure that economic development dollars and State programs go to rural Texas. My office works closely with the Governor and Department of Agriculture's office to request grants and available funding for key projects in the District, and will continue to do so throughout all of District 83.

Third and finally, we must make sure that the State budget invests in rural Texas. For instance, making sure that public education, health and transportation expenditures make are distributed equitably when considering not just the population, but also the amount of land and industry we provide for the rest of the State of Texas.

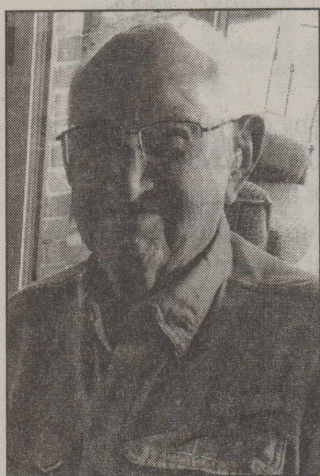

Everyone we talk to is tired of the constant bickering between Republicans and Democrats. We'd like to help create a more civil dialogue in public affairs. Are you known for reaching across the aisle and working with representatives of both parties? If so, what kind of legislation are you particularly proud of, that showed a bipartisan focus?

Unfortunately, the Democratic party has a vision for the future of Texas and this Country that I do not agree with and will continue to fight against. However, I have reached across the aisle on a variety of issues to pass significant legislation including: Property tax reform, lowering healthcare costs by making pricing transparent; ensuring injured first responders can get the healthcare they deserve; lien protections for our farmers, equitable higher education funding; and, many more.

Daylight Saving Time 'falls back' Nov. 7

STAFF REPORTS

Daylight saving time is coming to a close, meaning we'll get to turn back the clocks an hour and catch up on sleep.

This year's time change happens on Sunday, Nov. 7 at 2 a.m. Most people change their clocks before going to bed on Saturday night.

The pro is that there are more zzz's to be had. The con is that now it will get darker earlier in the day. Daylight will shorten each day until the winter solstice on Dec. 21. Daylight saving time begins again March 13, 2022, when clocks "spring forward" again.

The Department of Transportation oversees daylight saving time, a federal mandate under the Uniform Time Act of 1966. The agency cites many reasons for daylight saving time, including energy reduction and reduced crime.

Not every state follows daylight saving time, however. Hawaii and most of Arizona opt out.

Indiana did not observe DST until 2006. Because the state had two time zones, some of its counties changed their clocks in the fall and in the spring and some didn't; because time zones were difficult to keep track of, a bill was passed in 2005 to unify the practice throughout the state. But the law was controversial, and it made the governor at the time, Mitch Daniels, unpopular.

Often erroneously called daylight savings time, the tradition evolves from both unusual and practical sources. There exists a common misconception that Benjamin Franklin is to credit, or blame, for the back-and-forth time shifts. However, according to The Franklin Institute website, despite Franklin's prolific inventions, daylight saving time was not one of them.

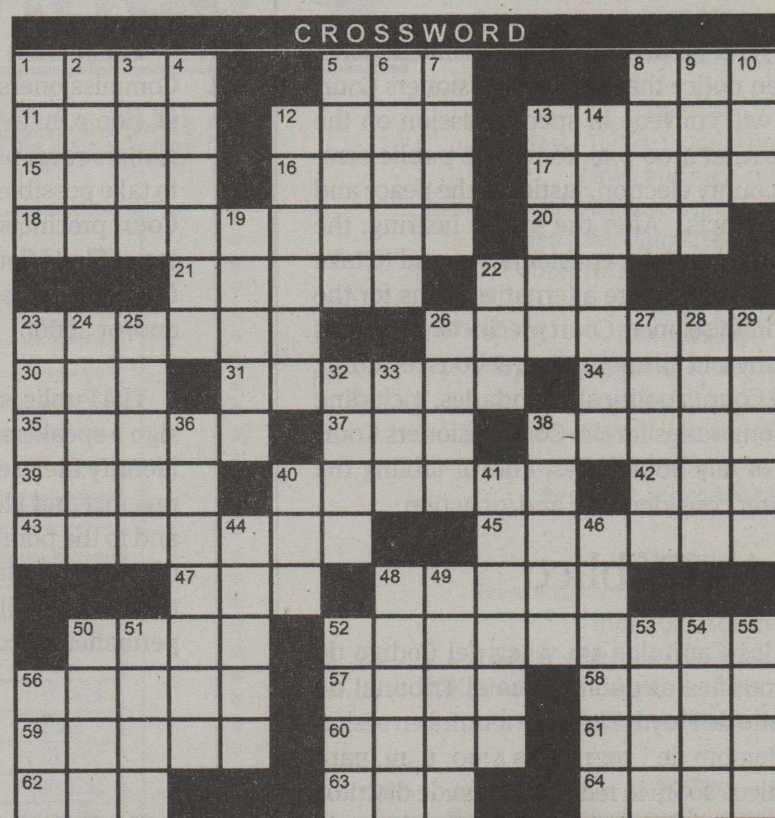

"Daylight saving time is one thing that Franklin did not invent. He merely suggested Parisians change their sleep schedules to save money on candles and lamp oil."

The initial concept of daylight saving time actually emerged in 1895 by George Hudson, an entomologist from New Zealand. Though the mechanics of his two-hour time shift in the summer differs from the current model in use in the United States, Hudson sought extra daylight hours after work for bug hunting, according to an article by National Geographic published online in 2019.

Daylight saving time during World Wars I and II were used by Allies and foes alike to conserve fuel for the war effort. Afterward, the practice in the U.S. remained inconsistent but popular enough with people that President Lyndon Johnson signed the Uniform Time Act of 1966 (15 U.S. Code Section 260a) into law on April 22, 1966, thus creating what we now observe.

THE FLOYD COUNTY HISTORICAL MUSEUM MEMORIES 1979 • JOURDAN CHILDRESS

Jourdan (J.D.) Childress was born in Titus County, Texas in 1859. He was the son of Obidiah (O.B.D.) Childress (1929-1909) and his wife Cynthia Ann (1833-1925). Jourdan was reared on a farm where his first recollections were of his father coming home on furlough during the Civil War. Jourdan's father was a veteran of three wars, The United States and Mexican War, The Civil War, and the Spanish-American War. Obidiah was a strong believer in the confederacy and was more than willing to fight again if necessary. Jourdan remained on the farm until he was 18 years old, then he ventured out on his own. His travels first took him to Wilson co. in 1877 where he got a job splitting rails at $1.25 per hundred. He then traveled south to San Antonio where he was hired to herd cattle. By 1879 times were getting hard especially in the South where the Northern Reconstruction was underway as a result of the Civil War. Jourdan then went to Stevens Co. where he chopped and sold mesquite post in order to get by. He then found a small piece of land and started a crop. After planting his crop, he went to Callihan Co. and worked off the Texas and Pacific Railroad which was laying track from FT. Worth to El Paso. Jourdan then went back and gathered his crop which consisted of 10 bales of cotton which helped him get a good start in life. In 1881 Jourdan married Mary Alice Bales of Stevens Co. Mary Alice was born in Scott Co., Missouri to the Swope Family, a strong-willed Irish Clan. Jourdan and Mary Alice began their first crop in 1891 which turned out to be a complete failure. Jourdan then began to haul buffalo bones which were all over the county because people savagely pilfered the buffalo hides during this time. He gathered bones and hauled them to Albany, Texas, where they were shipped east on the Texas Pacific Railroad. For the next several years Jourdan and Mary Alice continued to live in Stevens Co., where they farmed and hauled bones. In 1896, Jourdan and Mary Alice took their four children, what household goods they had and about 30 horses and moved to the Plains of Texas. Their journey lasted 6 days by covered wagon. They settled in northeast Floyd County about 20 miles N. E. of Lockney just on top of the Caprock. They were one of the first settlers in northeast Floyd Co. For money in those days Jourdan cut fence posts down in the breaks, hauled them out and sold them in Lockney, for $10.00 a wagon load. Jourdan did most of his trading with Baker Mercantile Company in Lockney which was established in 1884. Jourdan and Mary Alice's home at this time consisted of a dug-out which was not uncommon during this era. After the Homestead Act of 1897, Jourdan picked himself a section of land for $1.00 per acre. Jourdan then worked out a deal with Mr. Baker of the Mercantile and a group of men from Plainview to trade post for building materials for a new home. By 1899 Jourdan had himself a windmill, piping, rods and a two-room house with a porch all paid for with post he cut from the breaks. Jourdan and Mary Alice and family had the last house before going down into the caprock and was the first place to get water after they got to the top. This meant that the Childresses was a popular place for friends. Jourdan ran the Curlew Post Office for seven years. The mail came from Plainview three times a week. The Post office paid about $10.00 to $14.00 a month. Jourdan and Mary Alice remained in the county for the rest of their lives. They witnessed the buying of the land in this area and saw it fill in mile by mile. Jourdan and Mary Alice reared six children. They were Maggie Loring Hunt (deceased), Ralph Childress (dec.), Minnie Orman (dec.), Roy Childress (dec.), Stella Leach Campbell (dec.), and Ruth Pauline Smitherman now living in Floydada. Ruth recalls just how very proud her father was of the home he had made on the plains and his love of the plains country. He always said the people of this area were the nicest and friendliest one could imagine. Ruth fondly remembers him saying that if he ever knew of a country any better than this one, he would surely go there. Jourdan and Mary Alice were truly great pioneers of a golden era which saw the birth of a new breed of the high plains of the Texas Panhandle. It was certainly the deep pride and outstanding character of the Childress family which gave the county such a warm and proud tradition.

Jaycee Caudle, a junior at Floydada Collegiate High School, is the daughter of Tara Price.

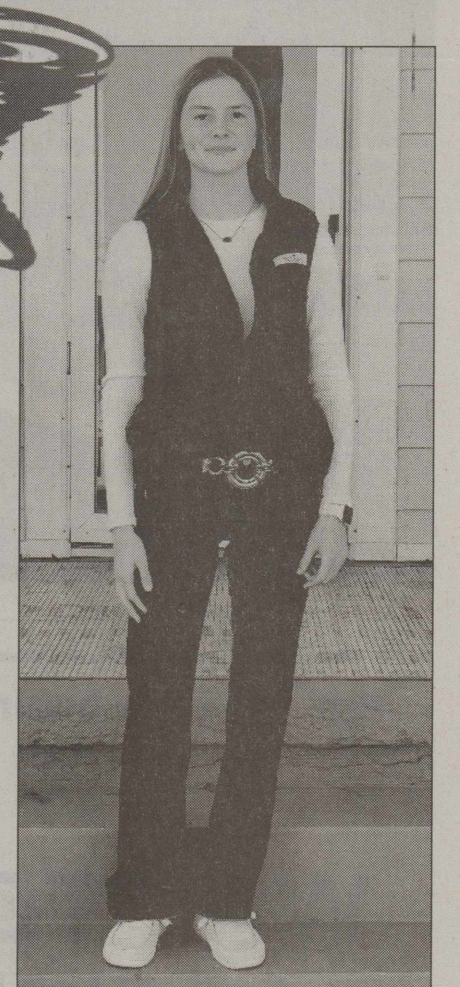

She has been a part of the Floydada FFA for three years.

"What I like most about being in FFA is you get to meet new people and experience new opportunities. You can get so many scholarships through FFA," said Caudle. "I stepped out of my comfort zone and have learned so many new ways of agriculture."

Jaycee said that being involved in FFA taught her to see difference ways of communicating with people. She has heard so many stories from officers that has inspired her to do better and work harder.

She added, "It also taught me that being in FFA isn't just about showing animals, it's about the effort and dedication you put into what you want to do to make a difference."

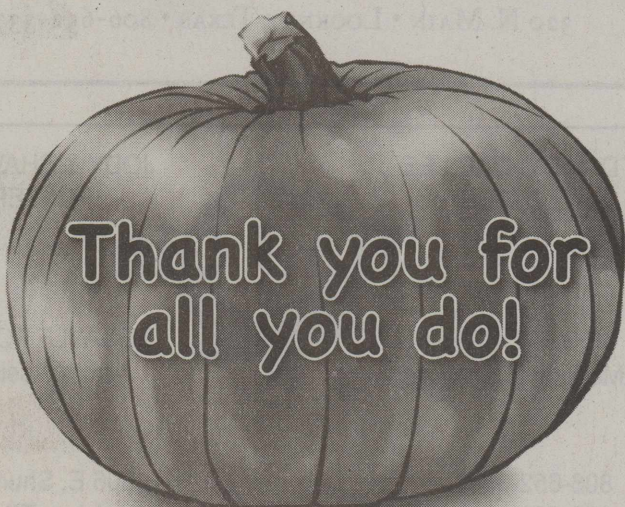

Caudle commented, "What I like most about FFA is participating in the Senior Quiz for LDEs and Livestock Judging for CDEs. I am also looking forward to these events because I get to learn more about the differences between a healthy or sick animal, or even if it's eating right too." She added, "Both of these events are kinda alike because they are about all the animals and where they come from, about their breed and shape."

Lockney Longhorns

Lockney holds senior night, loses game to the Plowboys

FRED CERVANTES | HESPERIAN-BEACON CORRESPONDENT

Friday night in Lockney culminated the Class of 2022's football experience. A total of 19 football players, band members, and cheerleaders received recognition before kickoff. After the festivities, it was time for the two 2A Division 2 leaders to decide who would end up leading District 5, both squads with matching 7-1 records.

Lockney won the coin toss to start things off. It appeared a promising start with a 20-yard return on the kick by Elias Alvarez. Unfortunately, the Roscoe Plowboys had other intentions. In the first half, the Longhorns were denied the endzone.

As the game progressed the Lockney defense began to come alive. Injuries sustained in Hamlin hurt the Longhorns, and it took a bit of the game clock for the remaining team members to adjust to new roles. Nathan Ceniceros and Jesus Gonzales made the best of the situation by supporting their teammates.

Midway through the 4th quarter, the Longhorns made it into the endzone via a 57-yard run by Austin Rodriguez. The point-after attempt was no good.

It was not the ideal start that the Longhorns had planned on, but they definitely adjusted and had a better second half. The Longhorns will conclude their season at Ralls on November 5th. The Jackrabbits are coming off of a win on the road against the Crosbyton Chiefs. It appears the winner of this match-up will decide the 2 and 3 seed for the play-offs.

Continuing burn education course launches online

SUSAN HIMES, TEXAS AGRILIFE EXTENSION SERVICE

A course designed for licensed Texas Department of Agriculture, TDA, certified and insured burn managers is now online and available from the Texas A&M AgriLife Extension Service.

The program costs $100 and offers two TDA certified fire training units. Register at <https://tx.ag/ContinuingFireTraining>.

"This course covers updated regulations, gives an overview of brush pile burning procedures, and describes several tools used to effectively manage smoke from a burn," said course instructor Morgan Treadwell, Ph.D., AgriLife Extension rangeland specialist, San Angelo.

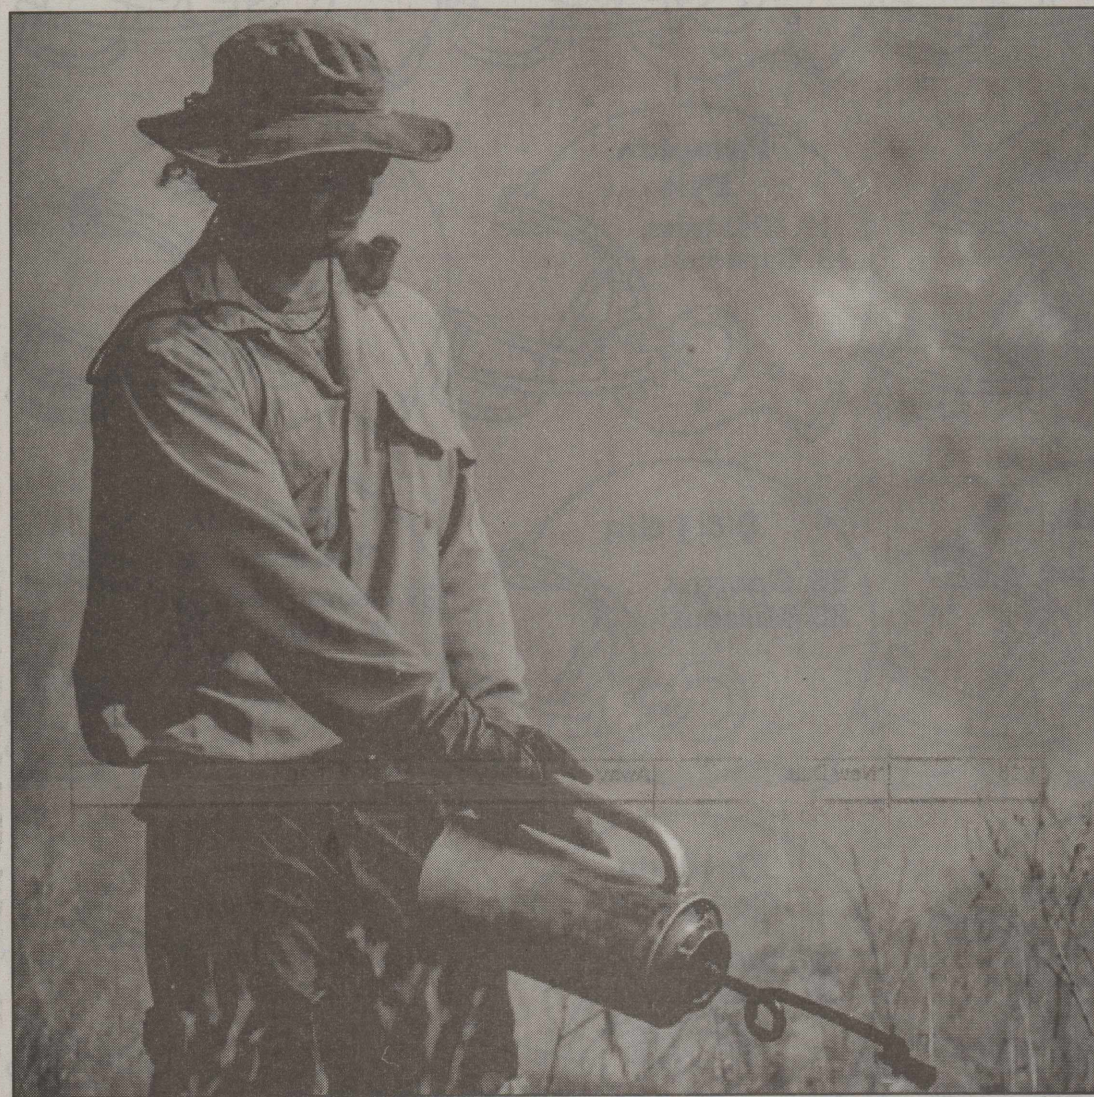

The course will also explain how to use the Texas A&M Forest Service Smoke Management Plan.

Updates, education for burn managers

Upon completion of the course, burn managers will be able to:

- Identify the best management practices to support safe and effective prescribed burns.
- Describe the safety measures and identify the new tools to help manage smoke.
- Recognize the ecological role prescribed fire plays on Texas landscapes.
- Identify the proper brush pile burning method to determine an area's attainment status.
- Describe Texas Commission on Environmental Quality, TCEQ, burning regulations and exceptions.
- Recognize TCEQ fire laws and burning rules.

"This online course is something I've been passionate about creating for a long time," Treadwell said. "To offer the opportunity for burn managers statewide to continue their education and for us to be able to deliver the latest information in this format is something enormously important to prescribed burn and rangeland management, which ultimately has an impact on all Texans."
