

A Red Feather...

an editorial...

A Red Feather . . . so light one breath would blow it away. Yet it is Strength and Health and Faith and Kindliness to millions of people. It's only a feather . . . but some people call it "the Badge of Compassion!"

It's sunlight peering through acres of trees to the wondering eyes of a slum child. It's the deft hand of a nurse bathing a sick old man. It's the little tune a blind man hums while he works. The Red Feather is ordinary things like a glass of milk, a ton of coal, or a clean, smooth sheet on a hospital bed. It's a little girl showing off a brand new second-hand dress . . . it's the telling again of family jokes that were all but forgotten in bitter quarrels . . . and new hope in the disillusioned eyes of a young girl. The Red Feather is the music of kids singing round a camp fire . . . it's a burst of laughter as a swim-class beginner takes a "belly-flop" and splashes gleefully around.

The Red Feather is Protestant, Catholic, and Jew working together with equal dignity. Jesus said what the Red Feather is . . . and Moses said it . . . Buddha and Confucius. It's the Golden Rule in operation day after day, year after year . . . for everybody.

But do you know what the Red Feather REALLY is? It's YOU! It's the sorrow you feel when you see someone in pain. The Red Feather is YOU . . . reaching into a dingy house to protect a child you have never seen . . . mending a broken home you have never entered . . . guiding a crippled hand you never touched. It's YOU . . . providing the baseball diamond, the equipment, and the incentive to play. It's YOU . . . teaching other to hold their heads high in affliction, as surely as though you were standing by their side.

The Red Feather is OUR sign to God and to man that under the mask of unconcern is one who loves his fellow men. It is a token of our humanity . . . a talisman that makes us better than we know. The Red Feather is OUR Badge of Compassion. Wear it and give gladly to your Community Chest canvasser.

SALUTED ON ARRIVAL AT REESE AFB—Lt. Gen. Charles T. Myers, dark uniform, commander of the Air Training Command, receives the salute of an honor guard on his arrival at the base Tuesday. Col. C. P. West, Reese commander, shown with Gen. Myers, and other Reese officials were on hand to greet the general's C-54 transport. Gen. Myers, accompanied by his staff officers and Maj. Gen. G. P. Disosway, commander of Flying Training Air Force, made an inspection tour of the base Tuesday, October 26. He departed from Reese at 8 a.m., Wednesday.

General Myers Inspects Reese

Cooperation Of All Personnel Commended By Colonel West

Lt. Gen. Charles T. Myers, newly-appointed commander of the Air Training Command, was well-pleased with conditions he found at Reese AFB, Col. C. P. West, base commander, announced today. The general, accompanied by members of his staff, spent most of Tuesday at Reese, remaining overnight to complete his first visit to this base.

Colonel West expressed his appreciation to all base personnel, military and civilian, for the excellent job accomplished in preparing for the general's visit. The base commander commented specifically on the cleanliness and orderly condition of the base and all activities visited. While at Reese, General Myers was briefed on base accomplishments, visited various base activities and was entertained informally at the Officers Club.

Earlier Graduation For Class 55-F Approved By FTAF

Class 55-F at Reese will receive a longer Christmas holiday under a new directive from FTAF.

Last week FTAF asked each training base if instruction for class 55-F could be completed in time for the December 18 graduation. Reese said "yes."

Class 55-F was scheduled to graduate Tuesday, December 21. This week FTAF directed that the date be moved to Saturday, December 18, "with the view of granting maximum Christmas leave."

The move means that pilot instructors and other personnel in the training program also will be able to start their holiday leave earlier.

The Hollywood redhead was applying for unemployment compensation. Asked the clerk, "Are you married, Miss?"

Came the reply, "Occasionally."

And then there was the fellow who kept his collection of colored and odd-shaped rocks in his bathroom. He had rocks in his head.

Chaplain's Chat . . .

By John J. Gerhard, S. J.

Leadership consists in the possession to a high degree of two basic qualities: intelligence and character. A man with intelligence but no character will never be a leader; neither will a man with character but no intelligence. A man possessed of both these qualities can lead.

Of the two qualities we have more control over our possession of character than we have over our possession of intelligence. God endows us with more or less intelligence. We have what he gives us and no more. Our character, however, can grow strong if we nourish it with good reading, prayer, and a deliberate effort to put good habits into our lives.

Perhaps the chief of all the good habits required for a strong character is the habit of approaching decisions with indifference to considerations of personal prestige, emolument, pleasure or convenience -- indifference even to these factors as they effect those we love.

We are not born with this type of indifference. We do not acquire it through the mere process of growing to physical maturity. In fact, a man is an adult precisely in so far as he is capable of making decisions with indifference.

This indifference does not mean cold heartedness towards others or listlessness and apathy towards our own personal concerns. It presupposes a strong love of ourselves and of those who are close to us. It combines with these loves a love of right and truth which is stronger than any personal consideration whatsoever.

To get this indifference we must pray for it, we must put some practices of self-denial in our lives, above all, we must keep before our minds the example of Christ who gave us in His struggle in the Garden of Olives the classic example of indifference.

BOOKS

SKYROCKETING INTO THE UNKNOWN by Charles Coombs

This book is both important and timely. The 141 magnificent photographs between its covers form an unrivaled collection. Together with the accurate text they tell the amazing story of significant rocket and jet plane development in the United States and their bearing on the possibility of space travel in our lifetime.

First we see through the test pilot's own eyes how he meets and escapes a flyer's worst enemy -- fire! Later we are taken on a typical experimental flight in a rocket-powered research plane. We share the pilot's tension before making his drop from the mother ship and finally his relief when the powerless rocket plane glides safely back to the field.

Other chapters present facts and the principles behind them. A detailed account of the latest types of rocket and jet planes is given, also a description of the equipment devised to protect the life of the high-altitude pilot. A clear statement of the operating principles of jet and rocket engines explains their differences and why rockets may be capable of space travel, although jet engines are not.

Here is the whole story of the feat of the penetration of the sonic barrier.

This book should be of interest to everyone interested in the field of aviation.

AF Offers Travel And Security

2 Reese AFB Sergeants Re-enlist For Six Years

Two S/Sgts. re-enlisted here at Reese last week. One man continued work without missing a day. The other spent six weeks and $1,300 as a civilian.

S/Sgt. Charles S. Jackson, 3500th Food Service Squadron, "re-upped" for a six-year term and received $952 bonus. He has almost nine years service, having been stationed at Reese since August, 1954. He spent a three-year tour of duty in England prior to coming to Reese.

Jackson, 26, of Huntsville, Ala., says he intends to retire after 20 years in service. When asked his reason for continuing his Air Force career, he said, "The Air Force offers me a good, steady job and I like the travel. I intend to volunteer for overseas again as soon as I can."

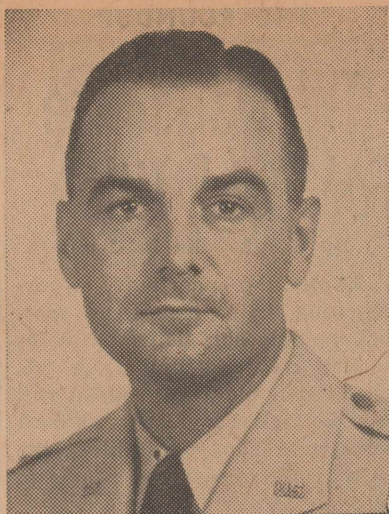

S/Sgt. James M. Moon, Jr., 3500th Installations Group, was discharged from the Air Force on Sept. 4, 1954. He re-enlisted some six weeks later after having spent, by his own estimation, approximately $900. In addition, he estimates that he lost about $400 in pay and allowances for the time he spent as a civilian.

Moon has served on only two Air Force bases during his four years service. The 25-year-old re-enlistee, whose home is Chipley, Ga., came to Reese directly from basic training. He has been working as a water and sanitation technician, having passed the test for his "70" level only a month before accepting discharge. Said Moon, "My OJT has been good. In four years I've gone from '010' to '70' in my career field."

"I didn't want to live on a $40-dollar-a-week job back home," explained Moon. "No jobs with a future. And my wife and I both like the security of the service."

Sgt. and Mrs. Moon and their five-month-old daughter, Cynthia Anne, now live at 1914 Ave. M, Lubbock.

PILOT TRAINING GROUP COMMANDER. — Col. James F. Mears, newly-appointed commander of PTC, arrived at Reese recently to take charge of his new post. The colonel reported here from duty on the continent. He replaces Lt. Col. William K. Pfingst, who will resume command of the 3501st Pilot Training Squadron.

Salk Inoculations Set For Children

Inoculation of every first grade child in America with the new Salk vaccine is one of the aims of the 1955 March of Dimes drive, Capt. John H. Lloyd, base project officer for the March, announced today.

"Dr. Salk, who developed the vaccine, inoculated 1,000 children with it two years ago, and of those 1,000, not one has developed a crippling case of polio," Captain Lloyd said. "During 1954 the National Foundation for Polio gave the injections to over 500,000 children, but not enough time has lapsed to determine the results of this larger, more conclusive test. By April, 1955, we will know whether or not the Salk vaccine is effective in all cases."

Expectant Mothers Get Shots

"In addition to all first grade children, each expectant mother will receive an injection of the Salk vaccine, if the tests show it to

TOY DRIVE

Repairing used toys is one of the latest activities adopted by the Reese AFB Youth Center. Chaplain Robert Quigg, one of the directors of the Youth Center, requests anyone with old or surplus toys which are still serviceable to bring them to the Base Chapel.

The toys collected and repaired by the Youth Center teen-agers will be distributed to needy youngsters during the Thanksgiving and Christmas holidays. If you are unable to bring the toys by the chapel, Chaplain Quigg suggests that you telephone the chapel, extension 211, and ask that your toy contribution be picked up at your home.

How About It?

. . . An Editorial

Are you undecided about re-enlistment? Don't wait until your discharge is staring you in the face to make up your mind.

Elsewhere in this paper you'll find an article about two airmen who recently re-enlisted. Both are staff sergeants. Both wanted the same thing--security. There the similarity ends.

One was sure he had security in the Air Force, so he re-enlisted right away. The other one wasn't so sure. He decided to look around awhile in civilian life. He delayed his re-enlistment 45 days, spent $900, and lost $400 in pay benefits. After his look around, he decided the Air Force offered the best security for himself and his family. He may have had a good time with that $900, but it was still an expensive look.

Air Force-wide during the past three months, 6,312 airmen who took discharges with no intention of returning to the service nevertheless again enlisted. Three times as many as in the same period for 1953!

Apparently, discharged airmen are not finding conditions in civilian life as good as expected. Or else, efforts of the Air Force to make careers more attractive for the airman and his family are beginning to pay off.

If you ARE undecided, don't wait until it's too late. Contact the recruiting office--it's located in the post office building. They have information on opportunities in civilian life, and the advantages of an Air Force career. Talk to some of the older airmen. Get their ideas on the advantages of service life for them and their families. Think it over now! Don't risk losing pay and re-up benefits while you look around. Do YOUR looking on Air Force time!

REESE ON SPORTS ON REESE

By A/2C JIM REESE

Major shake-ups on the football fronts . . . The teams that are supposed to win, according to record, don't seem to do it anymore. That holds true at base and national level. Here on the base, the teams that finished on top in straight-away league play aren't faring too well in the round-robin playoffs. The teams from 3502nd Maintenance, Installations, and PTW were leading the double elimination playoff, but that's all changed now. The final victor should emerge Monday night if all goes according to schedule.

Nationally, Oklahoma has lost the stranglehold it had on the top spot in the national rankings. Not because the Sooners lost a game--they just relaxed and won by only 21 points. Ohio State, with an impressive victory over Wisconsin, and point-a-minute UCLA are sharing the national spotlight. A surprising Arkansas team that does everything wrong is number four. The Razorbacks don't even have the consideration to lose seven or eight games like the experts said they would.

Ohio State, currently number one, plays Northwestern tomorrow at Evanston, Ill. The Wildcats will be pointing for this one and the chances are that the Buckeyes will find a lot rougher sledding than they expect. Oklahoma meets Colorado, generally thought to be the only team left on the Sooner schedule capable of beating the Big Red.

ULCA meets California in what should be a wing-ding on the coast. The Uclan's stand little chance of maintaining their point-a-minute production schedule. Arkansas plays Texas A&M in a Southwest Conference affair which figures, on paper, to be all Arkansas. Don't depend on the paper and pencil to figure who's going to win when the Aggies play at College Station.

Once-beaten, 5th-ranking Army takes on Virginia in the east. And another one-time loser, Notre Dame, goes against Navy. Watch this one, it should be quite a ball game. The West Virginia Mountaineers will be out to capture more national prestige when they take on the in-an-out (currently in) Pitt Panthers.

Wisconsin, which lost convincingly to Ohio State last Saturday, has a chance to come back against Iowa. Ninth-ranked Purdue will play hapless Illinois. The Illini, picked one of the top teams in the nation in pre-season polls, have shown all the brilliance of a bag full of lukewarm jello up to now. Miami, a new-comer to national prominence following the 9-7 victory over Maryland last week, tangles with Fordham.

The men who schedule the games for the University of Texas and Texas Tech did themselves proud for next year. They have the Longhorns and the Red Raiders playing each other. One of them is bound to win a game unless . . . don't suppose they could tie that one, do you?

PTW Darkhorse For Grid Title

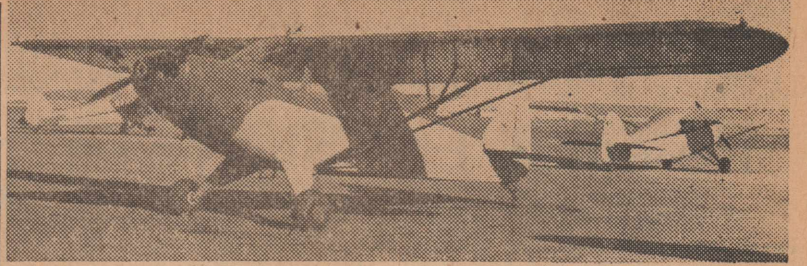

By S/Sgt. John M. Lang

Granted the opportunity of participating in the base touch football championship playoffs, the Hq Sq Sec PTW football team has been displaying a determined will to win. Picked by many as a dark horse with slim possibilities, the team so far appears to be one to beat for the title.

The playoffs opened Monday night with the PTW team upsetting a fine Hq Sq M&S team by a score of 18-12. Play was close all the way and both ball clubs played a good brand of ball.

Coming back Tuesday night against an Air Police team that had previously rolled over ABG by 30 to 0, the PTW team opened scoring early the first time they had possession of the ball and went on to win 18-6.

Coached by their First Sergeant, M/Sgt. Albert J. Bouler. The team definitely has the spirit and determination to go all the way. The offensive line-up consists of Kagawa, Kidd, Chandler, Nield, Hardin, Huddleston and Fox. The defensive unit has White, Loth, Sheldon, Vitale, Paul, Faulkner, Donaldson and Allison.

AIRCRAFT FOR AIR-MINDED AIRMEN.—A Piper PA-12 three-passenger Super Cruiser, fully equipped with a two-way radio, navigation lights and basic flying instruments, is the newest addition to the Planesmen Flying Club. The aircraft is powered by a Lycoming O-235 engine which develops 100 horsepower and gives the ship a cruising speed of 105 mph and a range of 600 miles. The aircraft is suitable for meeting CAA requirements for private, commercial, instructor and instrument ratings.

RAFB Men In Flying Club

Organized for the benefit of all base personnel, the Reese AFB Planesmen Flying Club was started in January, 1954.

The club serves the purpose of providing low cost civilian flying experience and an opportunity to qualify for CAA ratings for those interested in learning to fly or to maintain their proficiency ratings presently held.

Membership in the Planesmen is open to all Reese personnel. Recent reduction in entrance fee requirements places membership within the reach of many who previously could not afford it. Anyone interested in joining or wishing information concerning membership may contact Lt. Andrew L. Watt at base extensions 337 or 410, S/Sgt. Hugh F. Whaley at 4-1943, Lubbock, A/2C Jerry Greenwood at 576 on base or 3-6209 downtown, or A/2C Herb Crawford at 207 or barracks 425.

Club aircraft are housed in the Dagley hangar at Lubbock Municipal Airport, and are available for inspection at any time.

Staff of Student Officers Appointed in Class 55-F

By 1st Lt. Billy E. Shannon

On October 13 1st Lt. Ronald George was assigned as Student Officer Group Commander. Other positions filled from Class 55-F include, Group Executive Officer, 2nd Lt. Robert LaPenta; Group Adjutant, 2nd Lt. Clarence Paradis; Group Training and Operations Officer, 1st Lt. William F. Kline; Group PIO, 1st Lt. Billy E. Shannon. Under the present organization these officers will be responsible for the military training and discipline of the Student Officer Group reporting to the commander of the 3500th Student Squadron through an assigned tactical officer, Capt. George Esser.

Lieutenant George was a navigator prior to entering pilot training, having received his commission through cadets. Lieutenant Kline and Lieutenant Shannon are ROTC graduates and came into pilot training from administrative assignments. Lieutenants Paradis and LaPenta are OCS graduates and have previous service in the Navy and Air Force as enlisted men.

The Student Group Command was established by the 3500th Student Squadron to provide training for the officers as well as providing additional incentive. The policy now being used is for the two ranking officers in each class, one from each section, to be assigned as class advisors for the duration training for a number of years. Shortly before World War II he was assistant chief of staff of the Flying Division at Randolph Field, and later became chief of the plans and training section of Central Flying Training Command. In December of 1943 General Myers assumed command of the 77th Flying Training Wing at Foster Field, Victoria, Tex., and a year later he was assigned to the 12th Air Force in Italy where he served as chief of staff and later as commanding general of the Theatre Air Force.

Subsequent to World War II General Myers served as commanding general of the 33rd Flying Training Wing at Randolph Field, and deputy commander of Flying Training Command, later designated as the Flying Division of Air Training Command. In March, 1947, he assumed additional duties as chief of staff of the Flying Division. He was later assigned as chief of staff, Far East Air Material Command at Fuchu, Japan, and in October of 1947, he assumed command of the 316th Bombardment Wing, Kadena AFB, Okinawa. The following summer he was appointed commanding general, 1st Air Division, Far East Air Forces. When the 13th Air Force replaced the 1st Air Division, General Myers remained as commander of the 13th. Returning to the United States, General Myers was named vice commander, Continental Air Command, Mitchel AFB, New York.

In the early part of 1951, General Myers was appointed vice commander of the Air Defense Command at Ent AFB, Colorado Springs, Colorado. In February, 1952, he was named commander-in-chief of the United States Northeast Command, with station at Pepperell AFB, Newfoundland.

General Myers has been awarded the Legion of Merit with one oak leaf cluster, Bronze Star Medal, Air Medal, and the French Legion of Merit. He holds aeronautical ratings as command pilot, combat observer, and aircraft observer.

of their assignment at Reese. The duties of these officers are to voice the feelings of the student body in matters of policy and to serve as observers of and give assistance to the Student Officer Group Staff. From the remaining officers a flight commander and section leader are selected each month. The first class (now D Class) duties are limited to those of flight level because of extra activities prior to graduation while the second class (now F Class) are assigned duties on group level. The third class (now H Class) is assigned duties of squadron level, having a commander, adjutant and athletic officer for each of the two squadrons in the group. The fourth and fifth classes (now J and L Classes) have only flight level assignments.

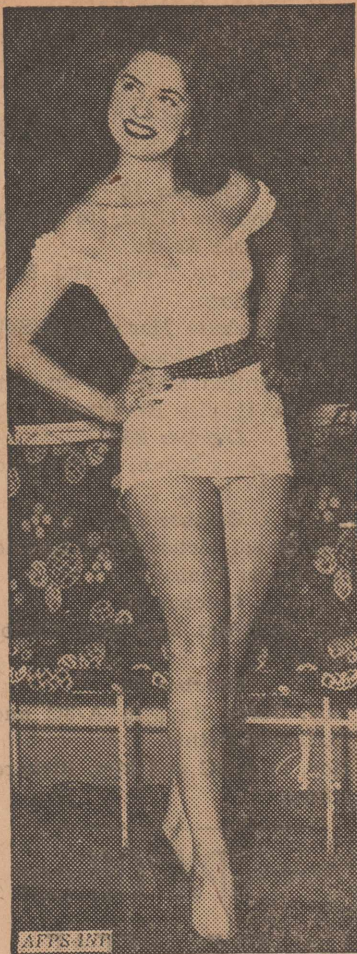

Instructor Ruling Revamped By FTAF

Instructors in supervisory capacity are no longer affected by AFR 36-64, Capt. Richard W. Davis, chief of Officer Personnel Section, announced today. This change removes 30 Reese flight instructors of supervisory level from a three year controlled tour.

Flight commanders, section commanders and standardization board instructors will not have to serve a controlled tour under 36-64, but will be on the same status as behind the line personnel. They will now be eligible for schools, screening and change of duty assignment without special consideration.

Regular instructors have not been affected by these changes in the regulation. These include all flight, academic, military training and instrument instructors. They must serve a 36-month tour as instructors, but may apply for service schools after completing 32 months of the tour.

Captain Davis said the main reason for this change was to enable higher headquarters to keep a more accurate check on the number of effective instructors in the command and to simplify reporting procedures.

The order came down from FTAF and became effective October 20.

be an effective weapon against polio.

"Even if the Salk vaccine does prove effective, we still need to support the March of Dimes," Captain Lloyd pointed out, "since there are so many presently afflicted patients who must have care. We must carry on further research to stamp out polio as we have stamped out typhoid fever and smallpox."

Goal Down $11,000,000

The March of Dimes goal for 1955 is $11,000,000 less than this year's total, the captain said. Sixty-four million dollars will be needed for next year.

This includes $29,900,000 for care of presently afflicted patients, $9,000,000 for the Salk vaccine, and a $6,000,000 debt incurred with Gamma Globulin, which has not proved to be the answer as a weapon against polio.

Many Passing Up Opportunity

High School Diplomas Offered

By S/Sgt. J. A. Sunderland
Since the 1st of July, 25 men from Reese have applied for and received their high school diploma or certificate of equivalency after successfully completing the high school GED Test. Many more men stationed at Reese are passing up this "opportunity of a lifetime."
Each state has its own requirements with regard to awarding a diploma or equivalency certificate. In nearly every state one requirement is passing the GED Test. The Education Office continually publicizes this benefit only because it is such a tremendous opportunity for any man who hasn't finished high school.
Remember that when a person makes a conscious effort to further his education he is greatly helping himself as well as his family.

Installations And ABG Hq Win Monthly Safety Award

Monthly Ground Safety awards have been presented to the 3500th Installations Group and Headquarters Squadron Section, Air Base Group. Installations Group has won the award for the second consecutive month.

cost is based on a three month period. This insures that the winning organizations are consistently safety-minded. The cost-per-capita for the past three month period is listed at 11 cents for Installations Group and six cents for Hq Sq Sec ABG.

This recognition is made on the basis of accident-cost-per-capita in two categories. One award goes to organizations classified as "industrial," the other award is presented to the low accident organization in the "administrative" field. Joe Lopez, Ground Safety Director, said that the accident

Col. Murray W. Crowder, wing executive officer, presented the Ground Safety flag to the winning commanders.

In presenting the award to Maj. Albert L. Stokes, commander of 3500th Installations Group, Colonel Crowder said, "I congratulate you on your excellent record. You have shown that safety can work through close cooperation between the group commander and his supervisors. The high accident potential in your organization makes this record even more commendable."

Colonel Crowder, in making the presentation to Maj. Francis J. Kranz, commander of Hq Sq Sec ABG, said, "Your efforts and those of your men have helped Reese attain the FlyTAF Safety Award for the fifth consecutive month. You are certainly to be congratulated."
