Come one, come all.

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of sciatic or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the inflection is demonic enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by J. B. Baker.

The United States supreme court, through Chief Justice Fuller, gave its decision Monday in the Kentucky governorship case in favor of Gov. Beckham. Four of the justices dissented.

The court held in effect that it was strictly a state question and having been passed upon by the state authorities in the manner and form provided for such cases by the laws of Kentucky there was no appeal from their action to the U. S. court and said court had no jurisdiction in the premises.

GLORY OF THE GRAY

Confederate Veterans in Annual Convention at Fort Worth.

Fort Worth, Tex., May 23.—Music by the band filled the interval before the proceedings began, the first being a medley of the airs of old southern songs, which made the old-timers feel at home.

A BARBECUE AND ADDRESSES

Features of the First Day—In the Parade a Number of Grand Army of the Republic Men Participate.

Gen. Polley presided, and among those on the platform were Hon. John H. Reagan, Gov. Sayers, Hon. John Cochran, Col. R. M. Wynne, Col. J. P. Smith, Maj. W. R. Warner, Maj. C. C. Cummings, Capt. B. B. Paddock, grand marshal; Judge A. T. Watts, Gen. Waul and Mayor T. J. Powell.

When Gen. Polley called the assembly to order he introduced Mayor Powell, who welcomed the visitors to the city. Maj. Gen. Polley in responding said that the trials of time had refined Confederate sentiment until only the true essence of noble principles remained.

Grand Marshal Paddock announced that there was an abundance of barbecued meat for everybody on the grounds, but the veterans would be served first. The barbecue followed. Sixteen thousand pounds of roast beef, mutton and pork were disposed of with great enthusiasm and in a manner which left everybody completely satisfied.

Judge Reagan was introduced at the opening of the afternoon session. His appearance was greeted with applause. After Judge Reagan had concluded his address Gov. Sayers was introduced. In opening he said he had been surprised at being requested to speak this afternoon. He said he had been touched by the eloquent remarks of Col. Wynne and the historic review by one of the greatest statesmen of the south, alluding to Judge Reagan, whose name was again greeted with applause.

Wild enthusiasm followed the governor's remarks. The band played "Dixie," a Confederate flag was waved from the platform and handkerchiefs in the audience. Gen. Cabell was then introduced. He spoke of the pleasures of the reunion in the meeting of old friends and then of the sorrowful memories of the war and the thousands who had been left to lie in unmarked graves throughout the entire south.

S. A. Cunningham, editor of the Confederate Veteran at Nashville, exhibited a beautiful banner presented by the ladies of Franklin, Tenn., to the thirty-second Tennessee regiment, with the statement that it had been found in a pawnshop at Dayton, O. It was recognized by some of the veterans who were at Donaldville when it had been captured.

Fort Worth, Tex., May 23.—Fully 2000 people were fed at the barbecue Tuesday. Sixteen thousand pounds of beef, mutton and pork had been prepared in a manner which made it delicious. The envoys were received in the blue parlor, no one being present but themselves, the president and Secretary Cortelyou. At first the conversation touched upon a variety of subjects. The Boers talked about Washington; told how they admired the city, and the president escorted them to the porch at the rear of the executive mansion, where a splendid view is obtainable of the Washington monument and the Potomac river.

LABOR AND CAPITAL LAST SUNDAY'S SUBJECT.

There is a Christian Remedy for All Industrial Misunderstandings—Suggestions as to How the Irrepressible Conflict May Be Settled Forever.

[Copyright, 1900, by Louis Klopsch.] Texts, Galatians v. 15. "But if ye bite and devour one another take heed that ye be not consumed one of another," and Philippians ii. 4. "Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others."

About every six months there is a great labor agitation. There are violent questions now in discussion between employers and employees. The present "strikes" will go into the past. Of course, the damage done cannot immediately be repaired. Wages will not be so high as they were. Spasmodically they may be higher, but they will drop lower. Strikes, whether right or wrong, always injure laborers as well as capitalists.

The behavior of a multitude of laborers toward their employers during the last three months may have induced some employers to neglect the real Christian duties that they owe to those whom they employ. Therefore I want to say to you whom I confront face to face and those to whom these words may come, that all shopkeepers, all capitalists, all commercial firms, all master builders, all housewives, are bound to be interested in the entire welfare of their subordinates.

Neglect of Christian Duty. The behavior of a multitude of laborers toward their employers during the last three months may have induced some employers to neglect the real Christian duties that they owe to those whom they employ.

Hon. W. R. Dutsey, present city clerk of Little Rock, Ark., was elected mayor of all the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Mayor Woodson.

The local works of the United States Castiron Pipe works in Chattanooga, Tenn., one of the largest of the company's southern plants, have been closed down until August.

The mayor of Panama in view of disturbed conditions of the department has issued a decree that all establishments, public as well as private, must be closed at 10 o'clock at night.

The sharp shocks of an earthquake were experienced in the City of Mexico on the 16th. The duration of the first was forty seconds and the second twenty seconds. The shocks were also felt across Mexico.

The confession of Postmaster Thompson at Havana came as a complete surprise to the officials of the postoffice department. The postmaster general read the printed statement, but made no comment.

The Lafayette oil mill at Lafayette, Ala., was burned, entailing a loss of $15,000. The gins and ginhouse operated in connection with the mill were saved, as was also a tank of oil on the ear. The property was owned by L. L. & C. C. Torbert and was not insured.

William Lee, an aged inmate of the poor farm home near Lake Charles, La., fell off the front gallery and broke his neck. Merely fell a few feet, but his feeble condition caused him to fall, as he did, on his head.

The stewards of the Jockey club, London, investigated the charges of foul riding made against "Skeets" Martin, the American jockey, on May 11, and have decided to suspend him until June 9.

While the police were searching all Visagapatam, capital of the district of the same name, in the presidency of Madras, for the murderers of two constables, they were attacked by a mob. They fired upon their assailants, killing several and wounding sixteen others.

J. F. Fount of Sheffield, Ala., fell from a swiftly moving excursion train on the Southern railway near Madison and received fatal injuries. A general fight was in progress in the car at the time and three Patterson brothers of Cherokee have been arrested.

The executive committee of the Confederate reunion to be held at Louisville, Ky., has made arrangements to furnish free entertainment to the veterans who cannot defray their own expenses.

Synod hall, Edinburgh, which has a capacity of 6000, was crowded by an assembly gathered to hear Rev. Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage. After preaching there Dr. Talmage delivered a second discourse to a large assembly blockaded the approaches to the hall.

Fire broke out in the Farmers' marketplace at Fifth and Federal streets, Camden, N. J., destroyed that building, ten stores and about fifty small dwellings, causing a loss estimated at $125,000 and rendering homeless about 250 persons.

The one hour bicycle race between Harry Elkes, the American, and Edouard Taylore, the French champion, resulted in a victory for Elkes, who covered 55 kilometers and 450 meters, Taylore accomplishing 55 kilometers and 200 meters.

Again, I counsel all employers to look well after the physical health of their subordinates. Do not put on them any unnecessary fatigue. I never could understand why the drivers on our city cars must stand all day when they might just as well sit down and drive. It seems to me most unrighteous that so many of the female clerks in our stores should be compelled to stand all day and through those hours when there are but few or no customers. These people have aches and annoyances and weariness enough without putting upon them additional fatigue. Unless these female clerks must go up and down on the business of the store, let them sit down.

The Duty of Employers. But, above all, I charge you, O employers, that you look after the moral and spiritual welfare of your employes. First, know where they spend their evenings. That decides everything. You do not want around your money drawer a young man who went last night to see "Jack Sheppard." A man that comes into the store in the morning ghastrly with midnight revelry is not the man for your store. The young man who spends his evening in the society of refined women or in musical or artistic circles or in literary improvement is the young man for your store.

One of my earliest remembrances is of old Arthur Tappan. There were many differences of opinion about his politics, but no one who ever knew Arthur Tappan, and knew him well, doubted his being an earnest Christian. In his store in New York he had a room where every morning he called his employes together, and he prayed with them, read the Scriptures to them, sang with them, and then they entered on the duties of the day. On Monday morning the exercises differed, and he gathered the young men together and asked them where they had attended church, what had been their Sabbath experiences and what had been the sermon. Samuel Budget had the largest business in the west of England. He had in a room of his warehouse a comfortable parlour furnished with a table pleasantly furnished with "Family Devotions" and Wesleyan hymnbooks, and he gathered his employes together every morning and, having sung, they knelt down and prayed side by side—the employer and the employes. Do you wonder at that man's success and that, though 39 years before he had been a partner in a small retail shop in a small village, at his death he bequeathed many millions? God can trust such a man as that with plenty of money.

Present Surroundings. Sir Titus Salt had wealth which was beyond computation, and at Saltre, England, he had a church and a chapel built and supported by himself—the church for those who preferred the Episcopal service, and the chapel for those who preferred the Methodist service. At the opening of one of his factories he gave a great dinner, and there were 3,500 people present, and in his after dinner speech he said to these people gathered: "If cannot look around me and see this vast assemblage of friends and work people without being moved, I feel greatly honored by the presence of the nobleman at my side, and I am especially delighted at the presence of my work people. I hope to draw around me a population that will enjoy the beauties of this neighborhood—a population of well paid, contented, happy operatives. I have given instructions to my architect that nothing is to be spared to render the dwellings of the operatives a pattern to the country, and if my life is spared by divine Providence I hope to see contentment, satisfaction and happiness around me."

That is Christian character demonstrated. There are no others in this country and in other lands on a smaller scale doing their best for their employes. They have not forgotten their own early struggles. They remember how they were discouraged, how hungry they were and how cold and how tried they were, and though they may be 60 or 70 years of age, they know just how a boy feels between 10 and 20 and how a young man feels between 20 and 30. They have not forgotten it. Those wealthy employers were not originally let down out of heaven with palaces of silk in a wicker basket satin lined, fanned by cherubic wings. They started in roughest cradle, on whose rocker misfortune put her violent foot and tossed them into the cold world. Those old men are sympathetic with boys.

A Religious Life. Employers, urge upon your employes, above all, a religious life. So far from that, how is it, young men? Instead of being cheered on the road to heaven some of you are caricatured, and it is a hard thing for you to keep your Christian integrity in that store or factory where there are so many hostile to religion. Zietzen, a grave general under Frederick the Great, was a skeptic. One day Zietzen, the venerable, white haired general, asked to be excused from military duty that he might attend the holy sacrament. He was excused. A few days after Zietzen was dining with the king and with many notables of Prussia when Frederick the Great in a jocular way said, "Well, Zietzen, how did the sacrament of last Friday digest?" The venerable old warrior arose and said: "For your majesty I have risked my life many a time on the battlefield, and for your majesty I would be willing at any time to die; but you do wrong when you insult the Christian religion. You will forgive me if I, your old military servant, cannot bear in silence any insult to my Lord and my Savior." Frederick the Great leaped to his feet, and he put out his hand, and he said: "Happy Zietzen! Forgive me, forgive me!"

Oh, there are many being scoffed at for their religion, and I thank God there are many men as brave as Zietzen! Go to heaven yourself, O employer! Take all your people with you, soon you will be through buying and building, and God will ask you: "Where are all those people over whom you had so great influence? Are they here? Will they be here? O shipowners, into what harbor will your crew sail? O you merchant grocers, are those young men that under your care are providing food for the bodies and families of men to go starved forever? O you manufacturers, with so many wheels flying and so many hands pulling and so many new patterns turned out and so many goods shipped, are the appliers, are the carmen, are the draymen, are the sailmen, are the watchmen of your establishments working out everything but their own salvation? Can it be that, having those people under your care 5, 10, 20 years, you have made no everlasting impression for good on their immortal souls? God turn us all back from such selfishness and teach us to live for others and not for ourselves! Christ sets us the example of sacrifice, and so do many of his disciples.

A True Physician. One summer in California a gentleman who had just removed from the Sandwich Islands told me this incident: "You know that one of the Sandwich Islands is devoted to leprosy. People getting sick of the leprosy on the other islands are sent to the island of leprosy. They never come off. They are in different stages of disease, but all who die on that island die of leprosy."

On one of the islands there was a physician who always wore his hand gloved, and it was often discussed why he always had a glove on that hand under all circumstances. One day he came to the authorities, and he withdrew his glove, and he said to the officers of the law: "You see on that hand a spot of the leprosy and that I am doomed to die. I might hide this for a little while and keep away from the sale of leprosy; but I am a physician, and I can go on that island and administer to the sufferings of those who are farther gone in the disease, and I should like to go now. It would be selfish in me to stay amid the luxurious surroundings when I might be of so much help to the wretched. Send me to the sale of the leprosy." They, seeing the spot of leprosy, of course took the man into custody. He bade farewell to his family and his friends. It was an agonizing farewell. He could never see them again. He was taken to the sale of the leprosy and there was there wrought among the sick until prostrated by his own death, which at last came. Oh, that was magnificent self denial, magnificent sacrifice, only surpassed by that of him who exiled himself from the health of heaven to this leprous island of a world that he might physician our wounds and weep our griefs and die our deaths, turning the sale of a leprosy world into a great, blooming, glorious garden! Whether employer or employe, let us catch that spirit!

Carved a Tomb. For Himself in Marble and Was Buried in It. Angel's Camp (Cal.) special San Francisco Call: A unique burial took place at Altaville cemetery yesterday. Allen Taylor, a pioneer, died at his home on Thursday, and his family at once consulted John Carley, an undertaker with whom the aged marble worker had made arrangements for four years ago in regard to his burial. A grave which the old man had prepared was opened and in it was found a marble box just large enough to receive a body without a casket of any kind. Taylor had some bitter disappointments in his family a few years ago, and since then life has had little interest for him. He conceived the idea of constructing his own grave, cut the marble and placed the box in a secure position. He then called the undertaker, and after showing him the grave was told that nothing is to be spared to render the dwellings of the operatives a pattern to the country, and if my life is spared by divine Providence I hope to see contentment, satisfaction and happiness around me."

The going was frightful; the road was a mixture of large bowlders and deep holes, but the yak was a wonderful equilibrist, and puffed and blew hard as, with his nose to the ground, he toiled steadily upward over a frozen watercourse without ever making a mistake. The men slipped about in all directions, but the yak's cloven feet gave him so firm a foothold that he never even stumbled. I clung on for dear life, digging my heels into the beast's hairy sides as he creased in the dark over rocks and ice, plentifully cut up by crevasses, and wondering whether, when he fell, I should have the luck to lie on the top.

There is nothing medieval about the pilgrimage to Rome in this year of jubilee. Within the Eternal City electric cars and horse cars to St. Peter's keep down the greed of cab drivers anxious to overcharge, and now the Tablet announces that the pilgrims from Padua will pedal their way to Rome on bicycles along the old Via Appia. Punctured tires will test the pilgrim's patience in place of the pebbles in his sandal shoon.

Exciting Fight of Bees Run. Cumberland county, had a fight Saturday with two black snakes, which came near getting the better of him. He saw them basking in the sun, and thought he would kill them. He claims each would measure five feet, and while tackling one the other rushed at him. In his fight he was well exhausted, when the reptiles gave up and took to the woods.—Newark (N. J.) News.

THE CAUSE OF THE BATTLING BOER

View of Montagu White, Representative of the South African Republic in the United States.

Mr. Montagu White is the able representative of the South African Republic in the United States, and although he takes an active part in the discussion of the situation relative to South Africa, he has done so in such a diplomatic manner as to give no offense to the United States government. To avoid such complications he has been obliged to exercise a great deal of discretion. Mr. White was consul-general of the Transvaal in London previous to the war. Since it began he has served his country in various capacities.

He would be taken for an Englishman almost anywhere, and his name indicates British rather than Dutch blood, but then there are many men of English blood who are working and fighting for the Boer cause.

Mr. White was asked for an interview concerning the military situation in South Africa. He replied by saying that, not being a military man in any way, he was not competent to discuss military affairs. Besides, it took about six weeks for communications from the Transvaal to reach him. Naturally such communications, bearing more particularly on diplomatic affairs, did not disclose military conditions or probable movements.

"The relief of Kimberley and Ladysmith," said Mr. White, "were not serious reverses for the Boers. It is because of the serious effect they have on the wavering more than anything else that they are to be regretted. I believe that there was a minority in the Free State opposed to the war, and there are always some who determine their position according to the successes of the cause. It was believed from the beginning that we must at one time or another fall back upon our strongholds in the Transvaal. Our resources are excellent. We had supplies of arms and provisions both for offense and defense. That set apart for the defensive has not been exhausted and the defensive stores had not yet been drawn upon. It is quite plain that the Boers can make a strong defensive campaign and extend the war for a long time.

"Time is of great importance to us. The longer we hold the British forces in check the greater opportunity there is for something to happen which will help us and embarrass the English. Who can tell what will happen in Afghanistan? Not long ago there was a little flurry on the Canadian border at Esquimaux. Possibly that did not amount to much, but it showed how many things may occur which might trouble Great Britain.

"While I do not know what is to be the plan of the campaign, I should think that there will be no resistance to the British advance before it reaches the neighborhood of Pretoria, although a sufficient force will be in the field at all times to make it impossible for the British to move forward with any speed. They will have to fight at every point where resistance can be made.

"I have been criticised for saying that Johannesburg would probably be destroyed as a preliminary to the defense of Pretoria. Of course, when war occurs there are certain laws to be observed, and there should not be a needless destruction of property. Johannesburg, on account of its proximity to Pretoria, will make an excellent base of attack for the British. It will furnish barracks and quarters, storehouses and a most favorable base of supplies. If left intact it would make the campaign most comfortable and charming for the British. The buildings would be used for the soldiers, thus avoiding tents and other camp accessories. If you are at war, you cannot provide cozy corners for your enemies. The burning of a city as a military necessity is not a rare occurrence. It has always been regarded as a legitimate means of defense. Everybody knows that Moscow was burned for that reason. It was a desperate, but heroic, undertaking, and accomplished the purpose. The burning of the American capitol by the British in 1814, on the other hand, was described by Historian Greene as a disgraceful and wanton act, and no doubt for no military advantage.

"I cannot see how the Boers can be expected to furnish the British with a very pleasant camp, with all the necessities for prosecuting a siege within a short distance from the capital where the main defense is to be made.

"The important matter for the Boers now is time. The longer they hold out the greater will become the sympathy with the Boers in all parts of the United States. The people of the United States naturally sympathize with the oppressed, and under prolonged oppression their sympathies will rise. Even now this feeling of sympathy is growing in strength. But I think there is nothing like a well-organized campaign in their behalf."

Mr. White's attention was called to the recent demonstrations in England on St. Patrick's day, when the English people outdid the Irish in the "wearing of the green."

"England will not succeed in capturing the Irish by the demonstration," he said, "but it will naturally entice the soldiers. The Irish members of parliament and the priests will not be caught by the shadow. They will not agitate for the substance.

"Whatever may be the outcome of the war," said Mr. White, "it will have a very far-reaching effect. It will tend to strengthen the military power of England. It will for a time consolidate the empire, but I think it is bound to have a disintegrating effect. It will give rise to problems that will be difficult to solve. The colonies, knowing their strength, will make demands that cannot be complied with by the home government. The inevitable tendency will be toward the independence of the colonies, and it will be difficult to check this.

"In England itself this war is bound to have unexpected results. Under the influence of yellow journals and Caesarism the character of the English seems to be undergoing a change, and that for the worse. There will be a rude awakening some day."

TURKISH BOYS IN SCHOOL.

Some Astonishing Yarns Taught the Young Students.

The beginning of a Mohammedan boy's school life is always made an occasion for a festival. It occurs on his seventh birthday. The entire school goes to the new scholar's home, leading a richly carpeted and flower bedecked donkey. The new pupil is placed on this little beast, and with his hodja, or teacher, leading the children form a double file and escort him to the schoolhouse, singing joyous hymns. To a stranger the common Turkish school presents a singular scene. The pupils are seated cross-legged on the bare marble pavement in the porch of the mosque, forming a semicircle about the hodja, who is, as a rule, an old fat man. He holds in his hand a stick long enough to reach every student. By means of this rod he is enabled not only to preserve order among the mischievous, but to urge on the boy whose recitation is not satisfactory. But as Christianity inspired by renaissance art, rent the veil of heathen tradition, and gave to the world its Madonnas, its Crucifixions, its Assumptions, Entombments, Last Suppers, and various studies of the Christ. Christian mythology, replacing the gods and heroes of Greek fable, brought forth a new school of interpreters in the place of those who had so long and so grandly translated in art the beauties and the teachings of Hellenic mythology.

Telegraphed Up One Flight.

That New York is a big city which the stranger seldom learns very well, was quite forcibly impressed upon a certain well known Californian a few days ago. He was charging about in the business district and suddenly remembered that he wanted to telegraph to a friend whose office was at 195 plunged into the sea, the Christian god followed him, the shock splashed the water out, and it fell to the earth in rain." The young Turks, believing the teachings of their hodja, grow up without further investigating the causes of rain, the true source of which is taught an American child in the kindergarten.

Long Delayed Letter Appears.

The long arm of coincidence and the delays of the postoffice are curiously illustrated by the following story. A family took a house one autumn at the seashore. The husband went down first of all to see that all was well. His wife wrote to him. That letter did not arrive. It never transpired why. Perhaps the missive hitched on to a ledge inside a wallbox, as has been known to occur, and remained there till the box was cleaned or itself was knocked off by other letters. The next year for the same family took the same house for the same time. Before they had been there a week the missing letter arrived. It bore the postmark of the day before, and there was no explanation.

Art and Religious Faith.

The art of a people, says Annetta Halliday Antona, in an article in Self-Culture, on "Easter-Tide Art and its Makers," is the outcome of its religious faith; the details of that art are the result of observation of surrounding scenery and objects. It is easy to recognize the superb physical vigor and beauty of the ancient Greeks in their sculptures, and in Hellenic frieze and bas-relief, to discover the mythological legends of their faith.

Willie, We Have Missed You.

(Old Favorite Series.)

Oh, Willie, is it you, dear,
Safe, safe at home!
They did not tell me true, dear,
They said you would not come,
I heard you at the gate,
And it made my heart rejoice;
For I knew that welcome footsteps
And that dear, familiar voice,
Making music on my ear
In the lonely midnight gloom;
Oh, Willie, we have missed you,
Welcome, welcome home.

Gift of Entertaining.

Today, among rational people who appreciate the fact that the best gift they can confer upon a woman is the knowledge of her own powers, the whole scheme of things is altered. The girl of the cultured classes, even when wealth is to be her portion, is early taught to take her part in domestic councils, writes Mrs. Burton Harrison in the Bazaar. The business of welcoming and looking after guests, a task peculiarly fitted for the exercise of her gracious powers, is largely allotted to her. She helps her mother to reduce the burden of notes, letters, applications for help and money that every day's mail brings pouring in to one's breakfast table. She writes and answers these invitations, gives hints as to the disposition of the daily menu for meals, remembers what dishes "mamma" likes and "the boys" have called for, and receives claimants upon her mother's time and patience. Her youth, her buoyancy, throw off, when she is acting in her mother's stead, a hundred trifling annoyances of the household that through years of irritation have begun to weigh heavily upon the housekeeper. If there are younger children she establishes with them the loveliest of ties—that of vicegerent carrying out the mandates of the maternal sovereign, and at the same time making herself a comrade of nursery and schoolroom fun. To her father and grown brothers a girl rightly trained for the position may be a veritable blessing. To her they will carry worries and confidences they do not deem it expedient to convey to the generally overburdened mistress of the house. Her sympathy and camaraderie may well create a green spot in their lives of workaday.

Why Americans Win.

One of the many reasons why American manufacturers are so successful competing in foreign markets is to be found in the following episode, which occurred recently: An American manufacturer of steam specialties was visiting an English firm which made similar goods. A certain article which both firms made was under discussion. "What is your price on this thing?" asked the American. "Well, in your country, about $19," replied the Englishman. "What does it cost you?" "I'll deliver at your door all you want at $7 apiece," said the American. "How in the world do you do it?" "Well, I'll illustrate," answered the American. "Look out of that window and across the street. See that man painting a sign?" "Yes." "He's on a ladder, isn't he?" "Yes." "See that other man sitting on the sidewalk holding the foot of the ladder?" "Yes." "Now, in America we have ladders that stand up by themselves—don't need a man to hold 'em. So, you see, in this instance, we divide your cost of labor exactly by two." "I see," remarked the Englishman.—Electrical Review.

Hindoo Philosophy.

The six great systems of Hindoo philosophy contain all that the western world has yet learned of philosophy and metaphysics, together with an inexhaustible fund of knowledge whence may be dug many a mental and spiritual treasure. Thus it is written that Brahman is concealed in the Upanishads (the heart of the Vedas), as the Upanishads are concealed in the Vedas. The oldest religion of the Aryan (5th) race is Brahmanism. According to ancient traditions this race had its rise in the northern part of India, or according to some authorities, about the region now called the Desert of Gobi, in Thibet. The lawgiver of this ancient faith is called the Manu and in the books of Manu we find the foundations for the morality and ethics peculiar to the Hindoos.

Catholic Priest on Cuba.

The Rev. Charles Warren Currier has an interesting article on the history of the church in Cuba in the Conservative Review. He speaks about the appointment of Mgr. Sbarretti, and has little sympathy for those who wanted a Cuban-born bishop. He holds that Bishop Sbarretti's appointment was a wise one, and that he will be absolutely impartial, and should therefore prove a link to bind together the Cuban and Spanish priests. He is tactful and prudent, and his administration will undoubtedly promote harmony.

On Schedule Time.

"Put hit down dar," said the colored citizen to the obituary writer, "dat she arrived in heaven at 12 o'clock sharp." "I wouldn't put that in if I were you. How do you know anything about when she got there?" "Why—goodness gracious, Marce Tom, she left beach at 10 minutes after 11."—Atlanta Constitution.

BEAUTIFUL ROUGH STRAW.

The harmonies most favored in spring hats are of violet, gray, pastel blue, primrose and bluish pink and a very beautiful shade of olive green. There is also a yellowish shade of red that is very charming. Pastel blue is very daintily employed in the accompanying illustration, which shows a hat of rough straw, with a tall crown, trimmed with narrow bands of velvet. A roll of satin ribbon in pastel blue and black is lightly laid around the brim and finished in an effective bow at the left side, the loops forming a picturesque background for two enormous white roses, with pale, yellow centers and deep-green leaves. A bandeau of the same flowers supports the brim at the back.

add to the face, for the eyes gain depth and earnestness, the nose becomes determined, and the shapeless lips and jaws grow powerful. Expression to be really beautiful must correspond with and enhance the individuality already expressed. Violent temper renders the eyes dry and staring, making them devoid of that clear serenity which is so charming. Concentrated thought and pessimism, jealousy or discontent, deprive the mouth of its mobility and compress the lips to a thin line in time. Cynicism has a lasting effect on the corners of the mouth. No matter how ugly a face is it may come to possess rugged grandeur and homely sweetness, but neither of these is to be obtained by those who frivol, vacillate or have no appreciation for the higher things of life and the larger emotions. A petty expression, a poor mind, and a shallow heart cannot aid to the expression of a face.

A Waist Trimming.

White mull is made up this season in many pretty ways. The small belongings of dress are made almost exclusively of it and it is utilized for stocks, girdles and for the many pretty things that are twisted around the neck and yoke.

Baby's Willow Bassinet.

Where baby shall sleep from the very first day of his appearance is a subject upon which far too little thought is usually expended. The mother usually either lays him on the bed next to her or else upon a pillow which rests upon two chairs beside the mother's bed.

Both of these places for baby's sleep are objectionable. In the first place, no baby should lie under the same covers as the mother. Not only is she apt to turn upon him, and thus injure him unawares, but if he be a nursing baby he will soon acquire the habit of demanding food at frequent intervals the night through. The pillow is as bad. It is altogether too soft to support the weak little back, and it does not admit of baby's being tucked in as snugly as desirable when he first appears. Some mothers lay their child in the carriage. This would do at a pinch for awhile, if it contained a mattress laid upon a pillow, in order to raise it high enough to give the baby air, but he should not be put in the bottom of the carriage or upon a pillow alone. Some mothers use the crib right from the beginning. This, of course, is all right, but it is not so desirable at the outset, as it is a trifle too large to allow of the close tucking spoken of, and as it gives no sort of support to the weak frame.

Nothing can be found that is better for all round purposes than the willow bassinet. This comes in several sizes, is very light, and rests upon a small stand, from which it can be lifted at will. It has the advantage that it is light and portable, and therefore convenient to carry the baby about in without disturbing him.

For the mother who feels that she cannot afford to pay $5 or $7 for a bassinet, the clothesbasket is recommended as an excellent substitute. But care should be had in selecting it to get one with sides not too high, and, if possible, with sides of very open weaving. If this is not practicable, the mattress can be raised high in the basket, resting upon a pillow which lifts it almost to the top.—Philadelphia Record.

For the Beauty-Seeker.

Many of the most fascinating women of history have been without a single beauty of feature. Therefore, their attraction must have depended on expression, either inborn or acquired. Its subtleties depend as much on temperament as on education. A perfectly irregular face is sometimes magnetic by reason of its animation and earnestness. Irregularity of that kind is preferable to a beautiful and immobile countenance that smiles perpetually like an everlasting blue sky. There is only a hairline between repose and stagnation and one is as pleasing as the other is dull. It is the quality, rather than the quantity of the mind that affects expression. Excessive brain work is detrimental—it strains and contracts the features, tightens the lips, wrinkles the forehead and dulls the eye, but on the other hand where beauty is absent a certain amount of brain work will

Col. Baden-Powell, have never dreamed of. Wooden vessels of various objects, such as a bicycle, for instance, are placed in their hive, and the bees build their honeycomb upon them in the exact shape required. At the present time they are busy building a wax model of the colonel's bombproof quarters at Mafeking.

Gift for Working Girls.

Thanks to the generosity of the Marquis of Bute, the interest of £1,000 ($5,000) is placed at the disposal of any working girl in Cardiff, who, on her approaching marriage, cares to apply for this little dowry. One would have supposed that such a bait would have brought a rush of applicants. But this year there is positively not one candidate for the money. What does this signify? Is it that maidens are growing too independent to ask for pecuniary help when matrimonially intent? Or is it that Englishmen, who are becoming scarcer and scarcer, have been positively rendered precious owing to the war?

Shoulder of Veal.—This may be roasted, like the leg, but is better for having the bone removed and the cavity thus left filled with a forcemeat made of bread crumbs and chopped ham, seasoned to taste.

Veal Cutlets.—Wipe the cutlets with a damp cloth, dip them, first in beaten egg, then roll in cracker dust and set in a cold place for an hour. Fry in dripping to a rich brown. Cook slowly that they may be thoroughly done. Lay for a moment on brown paper to drain free of grease, and put on a hot platter. Serve with tomato salad.

Lettuce and tomato salad.—Tomatoes are greatly improved by a delicate seasoning of onion. Rub the bowl well with onion and line it with crisp lettuce leaves. Select tomatoes of the same size, peel and place them on ice until ready to use, quarter them and place on each piece a generous tablespoonful of Mayonnaise. French dressing can be substituted for the Mayonnaise if preferred. Cheese balls can be made of most any kind of cheese. Roquefort mixed with enough butter to moisten it and seasoned with a dash of cayenne is delicious. Roll a tablespoonful into a ball and arrange on lettuce leaves. Toast the crackers and serve very hot.

Outlander.

The tramp entered the private office of a South Water street cheese merchant.

"Boss," began the knight of the tin-can tribe, "I've a Boer an' I want you to help me to land in South Africa."

"I'll help you to land on the outside!" blurted the busy cheese merchant.

"Den, boss, I'll be an outlander."

And the tourist vanished before the bombardment of ripe cheese.

Drawing the Line.

"Deah boy, we've got to draw the line on the Pwince, don't you know?"

"How so, old chappie?"

"Why, he weally cawn't expect that we'll carry our devotion so far as to go around the country with tinamths shooting at us, don't you know?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Of Course They Are.

Mrs. Diggs—I wouldn't keep those peacocks if I were you. They are apt to cause trouble.

Mrs. Diggs—Why, how can they?

Mrs. Diggs—Well, they are always spreading tails, you know.

Dibbs—A man ought to know when he's got enough.

Jibbs—Well, I know when I've got enough work, but I never know when I've got enough recreation.—Chicago Record.

Catholic Priest on Cuba.

The Rev. Charles Warren Currier has an interesting article on the history of the church in Cuba in the Conservative Review. He speaks about the appointment of Mgr. Sbarretti, and has little sympathy for those who wanted a Cuban-born bishop. He holds that Bishop Sbarretti's appointment was a wise one, and that he will be absolutely impartial, and should therefore prove a link to bind together the Cuban and Spanish priests. He is tactful and prudent, and his administration will undoubtedly promote harmony.

Grass is good around Tulla. Brown & Scroggins passed through Tulla with 2200 head of cattle. The OV ranch shipped seventeen cars of cattle to Kansas City. T. Montgomery passed through Tulla with 4000 head of cattle. Moore county has a largely increased corn acreage this year. D. Cullum of Minerat Wells shipped a carload of mules to Houston. Quite a number of cattle deals have recently been made at Marble Falls. At San Angelo B. F. Byrd sold to John Perry 200 Angora goats at $2. Moore county has a far better grade of calves this season than ever before. Bonham claims to be one of the largest shipping points in the state for eggs. Capt Smith of the British army has purchased 30,000 mules, 15,000 of them in Texas. H. K. Handcock of Falls county shipped to San Angelo 465 steer yearlings. Dush & Tillar shipped two cars of big steers from Iatan to Missouri a few days ago. Sleighton Bros. of Castro county have sold all their cattle at $27, calves not counted. T. C. Newton of San Angelo bought from E. E. Crosson 1000 head of shorn sheep at $2.75. The indications are that Kansas will have the heaviest fruit crop this year in her history. Shreveport, La., expects to ship over 200 cars of potatoes, tomatoes and cabbage this season. A. M. Miller has shipped fifty carloads of cattle from Balingier to the Indian Territory. A train consisting of fourteen cars loaded with horses was sent north from Texas last week. Corn is in excellent condition in Johnson county and the farmers are well up with their work. The peach crop in Van Zandt county will this year excel anything in that line for the past ten years. Several parties at Trinity Mills, Dallas county, sold 9000 pounds of wool, getting 20 cents a pound, a total of $1800. J. S. Casey & Bro. bought 800 2-year-old steers and 1700 yearling steers in Coleman county and 500 1-year-old steers in Coke. Richardson & Albaugh of San Angelo have shipped five cars of sheep to Kansas City and the same number to St. Louis. Strawberries are ripe and plentiful in the Mesilla valley, and the peach crop promises to be larger this year than usual. Much rain has fallen recently in Fisher county and as a result the range is extra good. That county has escaped hailstorms so far this year. E. C. Good at San Angelo sold to Murph March 500 steer yearlings at $15. L. B. White sold at San Angelo 1500 head of sheep at private terms. Horses have quit dying in Moore and are rapidly gaining flesh, and as grass is better than for years, cattle will be put on the market at an earlier date than usual. Messrs. French & Bond of Santo sold to J. P. Daggett of Fort Worth eighty-eight head of steer yearlings at $14 per head, which Mr. Daggett is shipping to Fort Worth. T. J. Noland reports everything flourishing on his Armstrong county ranch. The calf crop from 400 cows will approximate 250 head, of which 150 are already in. Steer cattle are in fine shape. The town of Brunswick, Me., owns about 1000 acres of commons, which have long since been devoted to huckleberries. At a recent town meeting it was voted to improve this land by planting it to white pine. The large vineyards at Laredo which have annually shipped such large amounts of grapes, have proven a total failure this year owing to the excessive rains during the spring, causing the grapes to rot and fall from the vines. Several years ago Frank Smeltzer of Van Buren, Ark., planted 110 pear trees of different varieties. Nearly all the trees have been killed by blight with the exception of the Kieffer and Garber. He says only these two varieties should be planted in that section. The opinion among the grain men gathered at the state convention at Fort Worth was that the coming wheat crop of Texas will be between 12,000,000 and 14,000,000 bushels and that it will be of fine quality. The directors of the Van Buren, Arkansas, Horticultural association have contracted with a Kansas City commission merchant to deliver their cantaloupe crop at 50 cents per crate on the track and a division of all profits over that sum. Around Rhome wheat is taller and heavier than it was ever known to be before. It will take three pounds of twine to the acre. Some of the grain has begun to turn yellow and will soon be ready to receive the reaper.

BECKHAM WINNER.

The Supreme Court of the United States Upholds KENTUCKY COURT OF APPEALS And Dismisses Writ of Error, Saying, by Opinion Handed by Chief Justice, It Has No Jurisdiction. Washington, May 22.—The United States supreme court Monday finally decided the Kentucky governorship case in favor of Gov. Beckham, dismissing the writ of error from the Kentucky court of appeals. The opinion is handed down by Chief Justice Fuller and a vigorous dissenting opinion was delivered by Justice Harlan. Justices Brewer, Brown and McKenna also dissented from portions of the opinion. The case was dismissed for want of jurisdiction. The chief justice said the court should be the last to overstep the bounds limiting its own jurisdiction, and that the determination of cases of this character, contests for state offices, must necessarily be settled by the political branch of the government. The branch had acted in the Kentucky case when the general assembly took jurisdiction. There was no appeal from the assembly's decision, which was favorable to Goebel and Beckham, except to the tribunal of the people, which tribunal, the chief justice said, was always in session. He said the case was purely a state case; that Kentucky was in the full possession of its faculties as a member of the Union, and that there was no emergency at this time calling for interference. After reviewing the facts in the case, Chief Justice Fuller said: "It is obviously essential to the independence of the states and to their peace and tranquility and their power to prescribe the qualifications of their officers, the tenure of their offices, the manner of their election and the grounds on which the tribunals before which and the mode in which such shall be contested, should be exclusive and free from external interference, except so far as plainly provided by the constitution of the United States, and where controversies over the election of state officers have reached the state courts in the manner provided and have been determined in accordance with state constitutions and laws, the case must necessarily be rare in which the interference of these courts cannot be properly invoked." The chief justice then reviewed the cases of Boyd vs. Thayer, Wilson vs. North Carolina, Kenny vs. Louisiana, and Foster vs. Kansas, and continued: "The grounds on which our jurisdiction is sought to be maintained in the present case are set forth in the errors assigned to the effect in substance: "1. That the action of the general assembly in the matter of these contests deprives plaintiff in error of their offices without due process of law. "2. That the action of the general assembly deprives the people of Kentucky the right to choose their own representatives, secured by the guarantee of the Federal constitution of a republican form of government to every state, and deprive them of their political liberty without due process of law. Justices McKenna, Brown and Harlan read dissenting opinions. Southern Presbyterians. Atlanta, Ga., May 22.—In the Southern Presbyterian general assembly Monday two overtures were offered. One was from M. C. Taylor of Hico, Tex., regarding divorces and another from Robert C. Osborne of Petersburg, Va., asking a change in the book of church. All overtures were removed. In Davis' Memory. Louisville, Ky., May 22.—In the chief city of the state which gave him birth, the Confederates of the United States will, on Sunday, June 3, honor the memory of their first and only president, Jefferson Davis. The celebration of the ninety-second anniversary of that birth will be the closing event of the reunion. It is expected to be a grand and inspiring occasion wherein the battle-scarred veterans will pay tribute to their executive. Labor Bills. Washington, May 22.—The house, under suspension of the rules, passed two important bills reported by the committee on labor—one to extend the eight-hour law to all laborers employed under contract on government work, and the other to prohibit the interstate traffic in prison-made goods by bringing them under the jurisdiction of the police powers of the state. The former bill is designed to carry the law of 1892 to its logical conclusion. Saw Hay. Washington, May 22.—The Transvaal commissioners called on Secretary Hay. The secretary gave them a cordial greeting. The interview was secret, but it is said this government was asked to intervene, and Mr. Hay replied that all offices of mediation had been exhausted and strict neutrality would have to be maintained. Sterling Price, Dallas' new chief of police, has been sworn in.

TAYLOR TALKS.

The Republican Governor Says Decision Did Not Surprise Him. Indianapolis, Ind., May 22.—Gov. Taylor of Kentucky was handed the statement of Gov. Beckham, and after reading it he said to a Journal reporter: "I have no criticisms to make of the supreme court. That court does not go into the merits of the controversy. It does not adjudge that Mr. Goebel got a majority of the votes, and no lower court or tribunal will ever so declare. Mr. Beckham knows he did not get a majority of the votes and so does every other honest man who understands it. The supreme court simply holds that it can not take jurisdiction. "The arbitrary action of the general assembly was the greatest crime ever committed against civil liberty. The Republicans and liberty-loving Democrats have been long suffering and submitted to the foulest usurpation ever perpetrated. The fact that this wrong has been under the 'forms of the law' makes it none the less a crime. The success of the Democrats in Kentucky is a triumph of force and fraud over the liberty of Kentuckians. If Mr. Beckham desires to rejoice because he and his associates robbed me of an office and overturned the will of Kentuckians by brute force I shall not envy him in his delight." Senators Named. New Orleans, La., May 22.—The Democratic legislative caucus of Louisiana, which is synonymous to the legislature, nominated as United States senator, Senator S. D. McEnery to succeed himself, his term to begin in 1903, and Gov. Murphy J. Foster, to succeed Senator Caffery, his term to begin in 1901. Gov. Foster confessed to the caucus that he was not sound on the 16 to 1 proposition, but declared that he would obey the wishes of the Democracy on that point. Mr. McEnery made a similar confession on the tariff, but insisted that the tariff had been made and could not be made a test of Democracy. Senator McEnery also declared in favor of the popular election of senators. Boer Meeting. Washington, May 22.—An audience remarkable for its size, sympathy and enthusiasm, greeted the Boer envoys at the reception given in their honor Sunday night at the Grand opera house under the auspices of the congressional and citizens' committee. Long before the time for the meeting to open the house was crowded to suffocation and many were turned away, unable to gain admittance. The interior was appropriately decorated with the national colors of both the United States and the Transvaal. While official Washington was not represented in any manner, there were probably thirty members of the senate and house occupying seats in the auditorium and on the stage. Congressman Sulzer presided and made an impassioned appeal for the Boers. Girl Killed. St. Louis, Mo., May 22.—One boy was killed and three men and a girl were wounded Monday as a result of the strike. The dead: Martin Kika, 18 years of age, struck in left breast by a bullet fired from a street car. Conductor Farley and Motorman Joseph Drake were placed under arrest. The wounded: Clarence E. Mullen, motorman, shot in upper portion of left arm; Minnie Krueger, aged 10 years, struck in left thigh by a glancing bullet. Two rioters were seen to fall at the fight at Thirteenth and Herbert streets between a mob of 250 and the police. They were carried away by their friends, and names were not learned. Is Denied. London, May 22.—There is no truth in the rumor that President Kruger has sued for peace, and no communication from him on the subject is expected in the immediate future. Document Published. Paris, Tex., May 22.—The Eclair publishes a document in fac simile endeavoring to prove its contention that the whole Waldeck-Rousseau ministry wished to reopen the Dreyfus affair. The document, which is in German, states that the writer was approached by one Tomps, a well-known police agent in the employ of the government, in order to gain from him information invalidating the evidence of Gefruschki an important witness at the Rennes trial. Mashed Between Cars. Laredo, Tex., May 22.—A frightful accident, in which W. H. Slater, a Switchman, was crushed to death while coupling cars, occurred in the Meican National yards in Nuevo Laredo Sunday night. The accident, it is said, was caused by one drawhead being higher than the other, slipping over and crushing the man between the ends of the cars. Slater was 43 years of age and leaves a wife and four children. Missionary Matters. Chattanooga, Tenn., May 22.—Pending the reports of the standing committees the sessions of the Cumberland Presbyterian general assembly were devoted Monday to the discussion of the foreign and home missionary work of the church. A report was made from the Indian Territory which indicates that there was great need in that section for systematic work. The condition of the Choctaw Indians was reported to be most pitiful. "Boxers" around Peking, China, are reported as dangerous.

GRANT GLORIFIED.

The Veterans' Statue to His Memory Unveiled By MISS SARTORIS, A GRANDCHILD. A Number of Distinguished Men From Both Sides of Mason and Dixon's Line Eulogize the General. Washington, May 21.—The statue of Gen. Grant presented by the Grand Army of the Republic to the nation was unveiled in the great rotunda of the capital Saturday and elaborate ceremonies commemorative of the event were held in the hall of representatives. In the presence of a vast concourse of people were included the widow, daughter and descendants of the hero of Appomattox, hundreds of his comrades in arms and committee of the G. A. R. and many persons distinguished in military, political and social circles. The statue of the pre-eminent chief of the Union forces in the civil war represents the contributions of thousands of his comrades of the G. A. R., none of whom was allowed to subscribe more than 15 cents, and is the result of a movement started after Gen. Grant's death at Mount McGregor in July, 1885. It is the work of Franklin Simons, an American sculptor. It is of heroic size and stands on a pedestal emblazoned with the bronze seal of the G. A. R., representing the grim old hero in the full uniform of a general equipped for the field with top boots and gauntlets, his cloak over his left arm and his right hand resting on the hilt of his sword. The unveiling took place shortly before noon in the presence of Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Sartoris, Miss Sartoris, the officers of the G. A. R., Speaker Henderson and Senator Frye, president pro tem of the senate. Miss Sartoris did the unveiling. Quarantined Against. Austin, Tex., May 21.—State Health Officer Blunt, having been advised that bubonic plague exists in San Francisco, telegraphed Surgeon General Wymann of the marine hospital service at Washington for confirmation of the report, which was promptly forwarded in the following telegram: Washington, May 19.—Dr. W. F. Blunt, state health officer, Austin, Tex.: Inspectors are stationed at railroad crossing in southern California. Six cases altogether, and one now existing among Chinese. Other steps taken to prevent exodus. WYMAN. Immediately after the receipt of the telegram Dr. Blunt ordered inspectors on at El Paso and Tuxtepec, and notified the Southern Pacific and Texas and Pacific and Fort Worth and Denver railroads that an absolute quarantine is now on against San Francisco, prohibiting both freight and passengers from entering the state. Meeting With Favor. Austin, Tex., May 21.—The recent circular of Adjt. Gen. Scurry, suggesting the holding of brigade and regimental encampments, is meeting with much favor, and indications point to several encampments of regiments this summer, as it will be impossible to hold a state encampment. The railroads while not favorable to hauling troops from every section of the state, are said to be kindly disposed to regimental encampments. Strikers Enjoyed. St. Louis, Mo., May 21.—For one week at least striking employes of the St. Louis Transit company will be face to face with federal authority, which, speaking Saturday through Judge Elmer E. Adams of the United States court in the form of an injunction, has commanded them to abstain from interference in any manner with the running of mail cars on the various street car lines of the city owned by the Transit company. Laid on the Table. Washington, May 21.—After a spirited debate the senate Saturday by the decisive vote of 32 to 16 laid on the table the whole proposition relating to the transportation of mail by the pneumatic tube system. An effort was made to secure the adoption of an amendment to appropriate $325,000 to carry out existing contract for the service in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, but no action was taken upon it, special orders superseding the appropriation bill. Five New Bishops. Columbus, O., May 21.—The general conference of the A. M. E. Church Thursday elected five new bishops, as follows: M. M. Moore, Washington; Evans Tyree, Nashville, Tenn.; C. S. Smith, Nashville; C. T. Shaffer, Philadelphia, and K. L. J. Koppen, Philadelphia. But one ballot was taken. With the election of five additional bishops the council now contains fourteen. For a Cruiser. New York, May 21.—Rear Admiral Ahmed Pasha, who arrived at this port Friday night on board the steamship Auguste Victoria, said Saturday night that his mission to this country had no connection with any work of diplomacy. Instead, the purpose of his mission, he said, was to inspect American warships and methods of naval and ordnance construction, with a possible view of purchasing a cruiser for the Turkish government. "Boxers" around Peking, China, are reported as dangerous.

The indication are that Kansas City will be crowded during the Democratic national convention. Mrs. George Sweatt, wife of Sheriff Sweatt of Ellis county, Texas, died at Waxahatchie. An ex-Confederate camp has been organized at Whitney, Tex., with fifty charter members. One hundred and fifty men left New Orleans to take the place of the striking street car men at St. Louis. Blair, Benton, Grant. Washington, May 21.—The closing hours of the senate were occupied in accepting from the state of Missouri statues of Benton and Blair, located in statutory hall of the capitol, and from the Grand Army of the Republic the statue of Gen. U. S. Grant, located in the capitol rotunda. A series of addresses was made, beginning with one by Mr. Vest, who spoke eulogistically and eloquently of both Benton and Blair. Mr. Vest was followed by Mr. Hoar and Mr. Cockrell. The senate Saturday proceeded to the consideration of the resolution accepting from the G. A. R. the statue of Gen. Grant. By special order of the senate two of the galleries had been reserved for members of the G. A. R., while by further special order the national officers of the G. A. R. were admitted to the floor. Mr. Hansbrough presented a concurrent resolution similar to one offered in the house by Mr. McCleary and it was adopted. A soldier's tribute to a great soldier was the brief speech of Senator Hawley of Connecticut, and after a handsome eulogy by Mr. Harris of Kansas, an ex-Confederate, Mr. Turley delivered a notable address from the view point of a private soldier in the ranks of the Confederate army. He said that the sentiments of the people of the south had in recent years changed toward Grant, and gradually had become those of cordiality and esteem. He never could reach, he said, the inner chamber of the southern people's hearts. That was occupied by the "Immortal Lee," whom the people of the Southland loved, because he was the very incarnation of their cause as a commander or as president so much so as he thought of him as the gallant soldier, the friend of Lee, and the protector of the private soldier of the Confederate army, and as such a soldier he paid tribute to the memory of Grant. Mrs. McKenna, wife of a Memphis, Tenn., restaurant keeper, killed Edward Whittington and fatally wounded Dennis Brogan, who badly beat her in the establishment. H. C. London, May 21.—Alfred Austin, the poet laureate, writes of the relief of Mafeking as follows: Long as the waves shall roll, Long as fame guards her scroll, And men through heart and soul Thrill to true glory Their tale from age to age Shall voice and verse engage, Swelling the splendid page Of England's story. Face Rumors. London, May 21.—Displayed in the most conspicuous style in the Daily Express is the dominant war news of the morning: "We have the best reason for stating that in the last twenty-four hours a telegram has been received at the foreign office, addressed personally to the prime minister, from President Kruger, proposing terms of peace. Over 4000 people witnessed the Passion play at Oberammergau. Daring Deed. Kansas City, Mo., May 21.—A lone highwayman entered the corridor of the Coates hotel, one of the leading hostleries here, at 11:30 o'clock Sunday night, and forcing the strong box of the cigar stand, escaped. The box contained diamonds and silver, and checks to the amount of $100. He held the night clerk and another employe of the hotel off at the point of a revolver, and escaped on a horse that he had tied to the curbing. Running Fight. Guthrie, Ok., May 21.—Six horses were stolen in the vicinity of McLoud Friday night. Saturday morning twenty members of the Anti-Horse Thief association got on the trail of the thieves and followed them. After riding nineteen miles, a fierce fight ensued, in which over fifty shots were fired. It is reported one man was killed and one wounded. SIEGE OF MAFEKING

Is Raised, According to Advice From Pretoria, AND THE BRITISHERS REJOICE. For Two Hundred and Fourteen Days the Little Band of Besieged Britons Waited for Relief. London, May 19.—London's millions spent half the night in the street, and even at 4 o'clock in the morning troops of young men were promenading, singing and cheering, and there were crowds in front of the Mansion house, Marlborough house, the clubs on Pall Mall and the war office and in Parliament square, waving flags and joining in the national airs. Stout women in bronchings waved union jacks out of the windows. Conventional family parties stopped at street corners to take part in singing "God Save the Queen" and "Soldiers of the Queen." Everywhere was abandon, good feeling and astonishing roars of human voices. It was all brought about by a twenty-word telegram from Pretoria that Mafeking had been relieved. Although the government has not a word, and although nothing confirmatory has been received from any African source except Pretoria, nobody apparently questions the news. Mr. Arthur J. Balfour, government leader in the house of commons, speaking from the government bench, said: "The only news I have is through the courtesy of the press. We have no information at the war office. Nor would we have it as soon as it would arrive through other channels. Therefore, the fact that we have not received it neither confirms nor disproves the accuracy of the information. I need hardly say that we all trust and we have good reason to think that it is probably true." (Cheers.) In unrestrained jubilation the provinces were not behind the metropolis. Although London had the start by a few minutes, the great industrial surrounding towns soon burst into patriotic demonstrations. Bells clashed in their steeples; village bands turned out and people gathered in the squares to chant fervidly "God Save the Queen." From all parts of the empire came the same story. Bombay, Hong Kong, Colombia, and the Australian cities are rejoicing. Continental cities, as the press telegrams abundantly testify, received the news sadly. Under the head of "How the News Was Received," the Daily Chronicle says: "The telegram to the Associated Press from Pretoria, the historic date is, as usual, filled with interesting matter. NINETY-THREE, STILL DANCES AND PLAYS GAMES.

(New Rochelle, Pa., Letter.)
Mrs. Ann Bartholomew of New Rochelle, N. Y., although 93 years of age, is one of the best dancers in this town. In spite of her heavy weight of years Mrs. Bartholomew still trips the light fantastic and waltzes as gracefully as any young miss. She frequently attends informal dances, and only last week at a dance in a private house waltzed three times during the evening. Mrs. Bartholomew is the daughter of the late Samuel Sisson, a sea captain, of Norfolk, Va., and was born in New Haven in June, 1808. During her childhood she accompanied her father on many of his voyages. She entered society early, and became famed for her dancing and other accomplishments. Upon her marriage she came to Derby, living here until the death of her husband, twenty years ago. Since then she has lived with a son in New Rochelle.

"I suppose I should have relegated the dreamy waits to oblivion long ago," said Mrs. Bartholomew, laying aside her embroidery, "but, to tell the truth, I cannot resist its spell, even though age has set its seal on my locks and limbs. I can look on unmoved at a two-step and the other new dances, but the strain of a waltz makes me a girl again, and I find its mazes as easy as ever. I'm afraid I need a chaperon more now than I did when I was a lass. You must not think because I am frivolous enough to dance and go out sailing, and ride the flying horses and swings, which I did at Glen Island not long ago, that I do nothing useful. I have stitched about thirty silk bed quilts, and I

SMALL BOY WAS CAREFUL.

Did Not Want to Violate the Law by Smashing the Truck.
The narrow strip of asphalt which the city laid in Michigan avenue from Randolph to River streets for the benefit of cyclists is a constant bone of contention. All of the traffic in the district is of the heaviest kind, the great trucks of the wholesale houses constantly passing and repassing, and most of the drivers showing a decided preference for running the wheels on one side of their trucks on the asphalt strip. A battered tandem on which two small boys were mounted wound its sinuous way among the trucks the other day, in momentary danger of being wiped off the map by a three-horse team. The lads tried to stick to the asphalt track as long as possible, but a heavily loaded truck held the right of way in front of them. "Hey, there," yelled the steersman of the tandem. The driver turned slowly around and looked over the heavy load to see what was the matter. "Pull out, will you?" yelled the lad in a shrill treble. The driver smiled and turned to his three horses again. "Say, pull out of there," demanded the lad. "I don't want to run into you and get pinched."—Chicago Chronicle.

Better Times for Drug Clerks.
Governor Roosevelt has signed the Henry bill, which provides that no drug clerk in New York shall be allowed to work more than seventy hours a week; that they shall be allowed one hour for each meal and have one full day off in every two weeks. Another clause of the bill provides that clerks must not sleep in any store or apartment which does not comply with the sanitary inspection of the health board. The passage of this bill will mean a general overhauling of drug stores throughout the city.—Exchange.

Senator Pettus' Slouch Hat.
Senator Pettus' big black slouch hat is a curiosity. It is his traveling desk. When he starts out in the morning Senator Pettus fills his hat with letters and papers. When he reaches the senate he lays it upon his desk and carefully extracts his budget from its generous lining. When he has searched the hat and is satisfied that its valuable contents have been extracted he

BOHEMIAN STUDIO PARTIES.

The Delightful Combination of Fun and Formality.
It is just as true, said the Observant Girl, that proper environment counts quite as much in the battle of successful entertaining as the proper placing of an army does in actual warfare. When the surroundings are charming, a host of even very moderate tact and ability can persuade people into believing that they have passed a most delightful evening. Perhaps this is why studio parties are always placed among the things to be desired. Certainly a studio generally means a thronging place of many old and rare things, all valuable in reminiscences and compelling starting points of conversation, for if these trifles have been picked up abroad, they either awaken memories in the minds of those who have been there or raise the hopes of the people who mean to go some day, and thus prove a splendid stimulus to a general talk.—Exchange.

Lucky Tailor.

Samuel Kanner, a tailor, was anxious as he ran up the stairs to his flat on the second floor of No. 368 East Houston street. He had just come from work.
"It's a boy," said the nurse, who met him at the door.
"And I also wish to congratulate you," said a stranger, "for you have won $1,000 in a lottery. You guessed the lucky numbers."
"It wasn't me who guessed," shouted the happy tailor. "It was my wife. A baby and $1,000 in one day! What a lucky day it was for me when I married Betsy Herzfeld!"—New York World.

Washington, May 18.—Mr. Wharton Barker, the nominee for president of the Cincinnati convention of the middle-of-the-road Populists, called on President McKinley Thursday to pay his respects. These gentlemen have known each other ever since the latter entered political life. Later on Mr. Barker said that his nomination at Cincinnati makes the election of Mr. Bryan by the Democrats impossible.

REPUBLICANS MEET

In State Convention at Kentucky's Leading City and

DENOUNCE AND DEMAND REPEAL

Of the Goebel Law—Ex-Gov. Bradley is endorsed for Second Place Upon the National Ticket.

Louisville, Ky., May 17.—The convention was called to order by chairman Barnett of the state central committee. The auditorium was decorated with the usual flags and bunting, while pictures of President McKinley, ex-Gov. Bradley and Gov. Taylor adorned the stage. Capt. H. S. Irwin, Republican candidate for congress from the Louisville district, was elected without opposition temporary chairman of the convention, he having been nominated by the state central committee. Chairman Irwin talked at considerable length in accepting the nomination, confining his remarks to state and national affairs. Members of the various committees were then named, Hon. John Yerkes of Danville, national committeeman for Kentucky, being appointed chairman of the committee on resolutions. While the committee were preparing their reports, there were loud calls for Taylor, Bradley and other party leaders. The chair appointed a committee to escort the contesting candidate for governor to the platform. His presence invoked the greatest enthusiasm. Gov. Taylor referred to the condition of affairs in the state, and urged that the fight for liberty should be continued unceasingly until Kentucky should be wrested from the state of disorder and disregard of the people's rights to which the Democratic party had precipitated it. His speech evoked the greatest enthusiasm. Ex-Gov. Bradley followed with a speech, in which he referred forcibly to the state affairs, invoking a restoration of civil liberty, which, he said, had been so long disregarded in the state. He denounced in unmeasured terms the assassin who shot down Senator Goebel, and said he hoped the guilty party would be punished, but not the innocent.

While the ex-governor was speaking Gov. Taylor sat behind him, with his little daughter on his knee, and as Bradley referred pathetically to the criticisms made of Taylor, the latter buried his face in his hands and wept bitterly.

The unusual spectacle of Democrats addressing a Republican convention then followed when John Young and Richard Knott, editor of the Evening Post of Louisville, life-long democrats and supporters of ex-Gov. Brown, were called for and spoke.

Attempted Holdup.

Marshall, Tex., May 18.—As Texas and Pacific passenger train No. 4, Engineer H. C. Jacquish, Fireman Ben Dobbs and Conductor James Johnson, was taking water at Gladewater tank at 11:30 o'clock Wednesday night, the fireman, who was standing on the tank, was hailed by three train robbers and ordered to get off the engine, which request was complied with. The engineer, suspecting that it was a holdup, pulled the throttle of his engine wide open. Three shots from Winchester rifles were fired at the engineer, who had dropped to the floor of his cab. The shots penetrated the side of the cab, but did not strike the engineer. The fireman, who got off on the opposite side from the robbers, caught the blind baggage and rode into Longview.

Rumor has it that a large amount of money was being carried in the express car.

The Texas and Pacific railway has offered a reward of $150 for the apprehension and conviction of each of the men concerned in the attempted train robbery.

SERIOUS RIOT

In Which Quite a Number Sustained Serious Injuries.

AT CHATTANOOGA

The Southern Industrial Convention Down to Business,

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 17.—In a collision between a party of drunken negroes and some white merchants in the little town of Four Oaks Tuesday night, Policeman Sanderline was badly hurt and eighteen or twenty people altogether sustained injuries. Eighteen drunken negro railroad hands and timber cutters, all armed, went to the little village, threatening to kill every white man there. The negroes commenced cursing everybody and raised a disturbance. The town policeman, John Sanderline, attempted to arrest a negro for disorderly conduct, whereupon the negroes mobbed him, beating him into insensibility. A number of white men came to the policeman's aid, but were knocked down or shot at. Much mischief would have been done by the negroes but for the action of the white merchants and railroad employes of the town, who fought the blacks successfully. Several negroes were wounded, but none fatally, and several white men were injured. The negroes sent word that they intended to visit the town again and kill the policeman. At least fifteen or twenty people on the two sides were injured.

Special Guest.

London, May 17.—Joseph H. Choate, the United States ambassador, was the special guest at dinner Wednesday evening of the Ancient Company of Fishmongers. The assemblage, which was very distinguished, included the Chinese, Swiss and Servian ministers, Sir Thomas Henry Sanderson, permanent under secretary of state for foreign affairs, and other foreign officers. Early in his speech Mr. Choate remarked:

"Forget your wars and internal contentions and look quietly in the faces of the diplomatic representatives of the world, who are bringing you only messages of peace."

The applause which greeted this apparent commonplace remark could only be appreciated by those who know that the principal topic of conversation has been the cordial reception of the Boer delegates in New York.

Ogden, Utah, May 18.—Gov. Robt. G. Smith of Montana arrived in Ogden Wednesday en route from the coast to Helena. Relative to the appointment of Senator Clark to the United States senate by Lieut. Gov. Spriggs he spoke in very vigorous terms of what he termed "contemptible trickery." He said:

"It is a disgrace, shame and humiliation upon the people of Montana, and the senate should not act upon the resolutions and show Clark that they don't want him there, as he can take the hint in no other way."

Gov. Smith left for the north.

Chicago, Ill., May 17.—The annual meeting of the Associated Press was largely attended. After considerable discussion a motion of Mr. John Schroers of the St. Louis Westliche Post to reject the amendment was agreed to, there being but two votes in the negative.

Fort Worth, Tex., May 17.—The grain wen adjourned Wednesday afternoon. Dallas gets the next meeting. The city at the head of the Trinity river navigation was agreed on unanimously. In fact a Fort Worth man placed the sister city in nomination and the selection was agreed on with enthusiasm.

THIS HOUSE FOR RENT

"Just the thing!" ejaculated David Gregory.

He stood looking at the little Queen Anne cottage on Jackson boulevard with eyes of critical commendation.

"Style — neighborhood — apparent size — all satisfactory," he murmured. "Now I'll hunt up the key and take a look at it. Let me see!" He moved nearer — went up a few steps. There was penciling in one corner of the notice. "Key at cottage directly opposite," he read. As fate would have it the door of the cottage across the street opened just then. An old man appeared. The sight of a stranger scrutinizing the placard in the domicile to which he possessed the key straightway interested him. He hobbled over in an energetic manner.

"Beg pardon, sir. Looking for a house? Like to go through this one?" The stranger, who looked prosperous and businesslike, turned at once.

"Yes, I fancy it is about what I require. I will see it now if you have the key."

"No time like the present, sir," returned the old chap cheerfully. He made a dive into his pocket and brought up a bunch of string, half a dozen matches, some silver change and a coriander rubber doll. "This here's my grandchild's," he explained, "but I don't know how it got into my pocket." A second swoop brought to light the fugitive key. "Now, if you'll go right in, sir, I'll wait here a spell. I judge folks can make up their minds better when they ain't hampered by company. I'll wait here."

So Gregory took the extended key, opened the door, and inspected from cellar to roof the romantic abode.

"Good!" he said to himself. "Electric light — wood grates — stationary refrigerator — gas range. All is quite as it should be. I'll take it."

This he repeated to the patient individual perched on the steps without.

"You're the owner, I suppose?"

"Yes, sir. To speak rightly it's in the old lady's name, but what's hers is mine, you know." His senile old laugh cackled out on the blue air. "Fifty dollars a month — that's it. A deposit? Well, it's customary. Thank you, sir. And this is your card — and office address. I'll bring the contract around one of these days."

"You'll see that the placard is taken down?"

"I'll attend to that — yes, sir. And — what's that?"

"That was a piercing yell from the cottage across the street."

"Pat!" it wailed. "O, pa! She's swallowed a thimble or someth'ing. O, pa!"

The old man limped down the steps in trembling haste.

"It's my grandchild!" the explanatory wall drifted back to Gregory. "I'm coming, ma — I'm coming."

The frantic female on the threshold sent him running for a physician. By the time the doctor had come and removed the obstruction in the child's throat the minor matter of having rented the residence across the way had quite escaped the memory of old Isaac Harvey. "Now you get good and ready," his wife advised, "and take this child straight out to Parkside to Sarah. Tell her we'd like to keep Armadora with us right along, but that, what with her scalding herself the day before yesterday trying to give the cat a bath, and getting out on the roof to fire down the chimney bricks — that was yesterday — and swallowing all kinds of things today, that to keep her longer here will give me nervous prostration. Tell our daughter that. And tell her, too, that Armadora ain't much different from what she was at the same age. Now you go, pa!"

Whereas pa obediently went.

And what was his amiable but much-tried spouse's rented the house that was her particular property to one Mr. William Hazleton.

"There were two keys hanging here," she remarked in bewilderment. "I suppose he's got one in his pocket. Pa's memory ain't what it used to be. Yes — $50. And a deposit down, sir, if it suits you."

"It suits," he decided twenty minutes later. He handed her in the key. "I can have possession, I suppose, before the 1st of May?"

"Any time, sir. Ten? That's all right, thank you. Yes, I'll take the placard down."

Which she soon after did.

Now, Isaac Harvey, while engaged in transferring his audacious small grandchild to the home of her parents, was foolish enough to fling his overcoat back and stand enjoying the lake breeze on the platform of the car as the Illinois central train rushed southward. In the meantime Miss Armadora flattened her nose against the window pane, which looked out upon the pulsing blue-green waters, just freeing themselves from winter bondage. This rashness on the part of Mr. Harvey was promptly paid for by his going to bed with a chill on his arrival at Parkside. Pneumonia supervened before he could return home. It is really unnecessary to say more of Mr. Harvey.

But during his enforced absence from home fate was playing tricks behind his back. Who would have supposed that the mother of David Gregory would be called east on business and the three interesting cherubs of William Hazleton's sister succumb to mumps on the same day?

"Don't worry," David advised his mother, as he saw her on board the Pennsylvania limited. "I'll get the furniture into the new place if you're not back in time. One can pay competent packers to attend to that sort of thing nowadays. It will be all right." And away went the train.

"Mumps!" echoed William Hazleton when he called at his sister's. "And Rodney away? And the moving to be done? All three of them down — phew! Well, I'll get the first load in and the carpets down. I'm on duty now until the afternoon. You look after the babies. I'll see to the rest."

"You're the dearest boy, Will!"

"That's all right. You're lucky. I picked up the place for you. If you were to wait until Rodney got home everything desirable would be bobbed up. This little nest will suit you and your blessed trinity down to the ground — see if it doesn't!"

So it happened on one inspiring spring morning, when the lake was blue and the sky bluer and the air rosy golden, that a furniture van pulled up before the Queen Anne cottage.

"This house, driver!" called David Gregory.

The van backed up to the sidewalk just as a furniture van crawled lazily from the opposite direction.

A slim young man came striding along the sidewalk and passed on the sidewalk before the canary yellow cottage. He twisted his cane watching the advancing wagon. It came creeping nearer after the manner of conveyances hired by the hour.

"Hi, driver — here!" called Hazleton, and pointed with his cane. That other van there! Some one else was moving in the same block. He turned, drawing a key from his pocket. He went up the steps — and met David Gregory coming down.

"Mr. Hazleton!" ejaculated Gregory. "Mr. Gregory!" exclaimed Hazleton. "May I ask what brings you here?" demanded Gregory magnificently.

From his point of vantage on the higher step he looked down on the intruder.

"Certainly, sir. I have rented this house, sir."

"Rented? nothing! I have made a payment on the rent of this house, sir."

"On what date, may I ask?" The tone was icily polite.

"You are at liberty to ask." The other was consulting his notebook. He held an open page extended. "This is the date, sir," he said.

"Ah! The very day upon which I decided the house would suit me. I keep no notebooks, but I have a memory, thank goodness."

"I also." There was a significant glare in the eyes of the speaker. "I reserve my memory, however, to recall personal deceit, sir — the deceit of one formerly esteemed a friend."

The blue sky deepened in tint. The rose sunshine grew warmer.

"You refer to me, I presume?"

"I refer to you."

Then were fierce glances exchanged and angry looks banded. Then was

He produced a key from which a paper tag dangled. Seeing the door open, he put it back in his pocket. His pretty wife had reached the topmost step and was looking down upon the waiting vans and the impatient drivers.

"To whom do all these things belong, George?"

"Not to you nor I love. We have the pleasant task of selection still before us. Come in and see your new-found kingdom. Then, 'Welcome home!'" he said, and the two without heard distinctly the sound of a long klaxon. They looked blankly at one another.

"She told me there was a thought man," whispered Gregory. "I thought she meant you."

"She told me the same," groaned Hazleton. "I never dreamed of any one but you!"

"Will!"

"Dave!" Their hands met.

"What a pair of fools we've been!" commented Gregory. "I rented the house for my mother."

"And I for my sister."

"All we can do now is to have the furniture carted back."

"And hunt up other residences."

"And have the old duck refund our deposits — if he will."

"O, never mind about that! Let's send those fellows off."

"And then go and dine at the club together."

"I'm with you, old boy!"

They were gazing at the departing vans, when from the house came a silvery peal of laughter. The men looked at each other.

"If she be not fair for me," began Hazleton.

"What care I how fair she be," concluded Gregory.

There was a rustle of a silk-lined skirt in the vestibule. Two pairs of feet clattered down the steps. Two manly forms strode off side by side.

"We were sold!" declared Gregory.

"At a fire sale!" agreed Hazleton. — Chicago Tribune.

PROJECTED CANAL

Connecting Tennessee and Warrior Rivers.

Birmingham (Ala.) correspondence Cincinnati Enquirer: A movement has been set on foot looking to the construction of a canal to connect the Tennessee and Warrior rivers in this state. The connection to be made from a point near Guntersville, in the northeastern part of Alabama, by the way of Birmingham and in conjunction with the proposed Van Hoose canal from this city to a point on the Warrior about 30 miles north of Tuscaloosa. The federal government will be asked to undertake this work at the proper time. Some years ago a preliminary survey of the proposed waterway was made by Major C. D. Fitzhugh, a prominent civil engineer of this state, and he reported the project entirely feasible. He has recently investigated the matter further, and is more than ever convinced of the practicability and importance of the canal.

Mr. Underwood writes from Washington that just as soon as he secures an appropriation for the Van Hoose canal, and gets it on a continuing contract basis, he will urge the appropriation for the Tennessee river canal. The proposed Van Hoose canal is to extend from North Lake, two miles north of Birmingham, to the Warrior river, a distance of about 40 miles. First, it is proposed to build it from Meadory, near Bessemer, to the Warrior by canalizing Valley creek. The government has already surveyed the route and Chief Engineer Rossell, of the government works at Mobile, strongly urged the construction of the canal. He pointed out that with an all-water route from the Birmingham district to the Gulf coast and iron and other products could be moved from this section to deep water for from 300 to 500 per cent less cost than at present.

Not at 4:30 Precisely.

A commissioner representing the American art section of a certain exhibition is to arrive in Paris awhile ago to arrange with the American painters and sculptors resident there for their contributions. Wishing to be brisk and businesslike he wrote ahead to several artists stating that he would be in Paris on a certain day, and at a certain hotel, and naming an hour at which he hoped each man would call upon him. On his schedule for the day was the name of MacNeill Whistler and the hour "4:30 precisely." The note he received is worthy of the author of "The Gentle Art of Making Enemies." "Dear Sir: I have received your letter announcing that you will arrive in Paris on the — I congratulate you. I have never been able, and never shall be able, to be anywhere at 4:30 precisely. Yours most faithfully, J. MacN. Whistler."

New Bishop of Columbia.

The Rt. Rev. Henry Moeller, the newly appointed Catholic bishop of Columbia, has been chancellor of the archdiocese of Cincinnati for over twenty years. He was born in Cincinnati in 1846, and was one of the first students in the American College at Rome. In 1879 he left his pastoral duties at Bellefontaine, Ohio, to become secretary to Bishop Chatard. Since 1889 he has been with Archbishop Elder of Cincinnati.

Spins Nearly an Hour.

A Providence (R. I.) man has invented a top which will spin 48 minutes, is of steel, three inches across, and the inventor has made nearly 100 tops trying to form one which would spin a full hour. An ordinary twirl with the fingers is sufficient to spin a top ten or fifteen minutes. But its best work is done when the affair is wound with twine three feet or so.

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

Conserving Manure. In common with other things that are under control of trusts there has been a sharp advance in the price of chemicals that the farmers use for the manufacture of commercial fertilizers or that the manufacturers use in the making up of commercial grades. This is said to be especially true of the materials that contain nitrogen. It therefore behooves the farmer to look after the fertilizers he has on the farm. By the ordinary manner of handling is lost, one-half of the value of the excrement from our cattle and other stock is in the liquids, which on many farms are not saved at all. Nitrogen especially abounds in the liquids, as is evidenced by the ammonia they throw off. We want again to urge that every farmer take measures to save these valuable products. The farmers that have manure piles that are exposed to all weathers and that have no arrangement to save the liquids should at once stop the waste. It means hundreds of dollars to the pocket of the farmer. Remember that the manure pile is not only soiled by the rain but by the air, and the latter helps to deprive it of its ammonia—a form of nitrogen. It is not enough to prevent manure from leaching and washing, it must be kept from drying out and thus losing its ammonia, or a large part of it.

Horticultural Observations.

A well cultivated orchard on deep rich soil should send down its roots much deeper than an orchard not cultivated. Consequently it should be able to stand cold better than trees in uncultivated orchards. It is true the frost may go deeper, but the root should outstrip the frost.

Mr. John McDonald of Michigan says: "I learned last year that fruit trees standing in grass winter better than those well cultivated. A great many apple and pear trees died last summer owing to the hard preceding winter." The general conclusion that Mr. McDonald draws from that experience is not well founded. If all our winters were like the one of 1898-9 we would have to stop cultivating our orchards, and we could then state as a general proposition that cultivated trees are liable to be frozen out because the frost can strike in deeper and stay longer. But that winter was one of exceptional severity, and it is doubtful if we will have another like it for 50 years to come. The ground was bare and froze deeply. Probably in some sections the roots of the trees did not thaw out till after the buds and leaves had appeared. But we must figure on ordinary and not on extraordinary years. An orchard planted now may grow to maturity and fall with old age and be succeeded by another orchard that will likewise disappear from old age before we have another winter of conditions identical with the one named. Cultivation is desirable, and we will have to take our chances on the unusual winter.

S. T. Wilkinson of Branch County, Michigan, sends the following to the State Board of Agriculture: All apple orchards in this vicinity that had been both cultivated and sprayed bore a full crop of fine apples. Most orchards sprayed and not cultivated had a partial crop of fairly good fruit, while but few orchards not sprayed had more than 10 per cent of a crop. With peaches I have experimented some for three years with some varieties in same plot and set at the same time. The first crop in 1898 from the cultivated portion bore 50 per cent of a full crop of fine, large, well formed fruit, while the uncultivated trees bore 20 per cent full crop of second class fruit. Cultivated trees killed by last winter's freezing, 60 per cent; uncultivated killed, 2 per cent. Have reseeded cultivated portions and planted whole plot. All have made good growth and look fine. I think that it pays to cultivate judiciously all peach orchards and sow rye or some other cover crop about August 1. Heel in with dirt all trees under bearing age at least one foot high, as our winters are very likely to be bare of snow, and would both cultivate and spray all apple orchards.

Potash and Starch Experiments.

The Connecticut Experiment Station made experiments to compare the effect of muriate with that of sulphate of potash on the starch content and yield of tubers. The potatoes were grown on very poor soil which was dressed with 400 pounds nitrate soda, 415 pounds acid phosphate and 120 pounds of muriate or sulphate of potash. The yield was increased from 43 to 228 bushels of salable tubers per acre. Doubling the potash, applying 240 pounds per acre, increased the yield only twelve bushels per acre over what was produced when 120 pounds were applied. Muriate produced a somewhat greater yield than sulphate, but the tubers contained slightly more water and less starch than when sulphate was used. The evidence is regarded to the effect of sulphate and muriate of potash on potatoes is somewhat conflicting. Most of the experiments made in this country and Europe show that sulphate produces better tubers with less water and a slightly higher starch content, but the difference is slight. Some German experimenters, Pfeiffer and others, have recently published results of experiments showing that pure muriate has no injurious effect on the tubers, but impurities, noticeably chloride of magnesium, are influential in depressing the proportion of starch.

Treat Oats for Smut.

The sowing of oats without first treating the seed for smut is a cause of great loss to farmers. This loss is far greater than one would suppose without investigation. Investigations in Illinois show that the annual loss in the oat crop in that state is from 5 to 47 per cent, with an average of about ten per cent. This means about 1,500,000 bushels per year. One reason why the loss to the oat crop from smut is underestimated is that many of the smut heads are whipped off by the wind and so are unnoticed, but at harvest time the stalk that is cut is bare. Then again the stalks affected by smut are frequently dwarfed and do not show among the other heads, even in the sheaves. Then, too, smut sometimes exists without being recognized, it being set down as blight. This loss can be entirely prevented by treating the oats with hot water, dipping the seed oats in water for five minutes at a temperature of 130 to 137 degrees. For this work a kettle is needed as well as two barrels and a thermometer. One barrel should contain warm water and another cold water. The oats should be sacked in quantities of one to one and a half bushels. The kettle should be large enough to hold one bag at a time. After the bag of oats has remained for the specified time in the kettle of hot water it should be lifted out and dipped at once into the barrel of cool water. The barrel of warm water is used to take off the chill from the oats before dipping in the water at 132 degrees. If the day be warm this precaution will not be necessary. The oats can be sown at once by hand without drying.

Branch Ivy.

This is called also hemlock, calf kill, leucotox, dog laurel. It is a poisonous shrub evergreen, two to four feet high, with thick, tapering, sharply saw-edged leaves and numerous clusters of small, white, tubular, ill-smell-

In flowers, which appear in April or May. It grows abundantly, often forming dense thickets along the stream banks in the Alleghany mountains from West Virginia to northern Georgia.

Utilizing Windmills.

In parts of Kansas and Nebraska the farmers are utilizing their windmills to irrigate small patches of ground near their homes for garden purposes. In some cases indeed these patches include not less than ten or twelve acres of ground. There are numerous windmills scattered through the middle west that should be more fully utilized than at present. At some of our experiment stations irrigation has been tried on strawberries and vegetables with very good effect. Even a quarter of acre brought under irrigation should give good results. This will be found to be easily accomplished where the soil is sufficiently clayey to puddle well. The cost should be small, as the water used is surplus water that would otherwise remain unused. In the states near the Great Lakes the effort should prove effective for the reason that the rainfall is usually quite good and the supply of moisture in the ground practically inexhaustible. The soil water is within a few feet of the surface, while in the regions west of the Missouri the soil water is frequently 25 or more feet below the surface, and the problem of lifting becomes great.

Forestry Exhibits in Paris.

The exhibit of the division of forestry for the Paris Exposition is now complete and on the way to Paris. It will be one of the most novel of the government exhibits and will be wholly distinct from the commercial features of lumbering to be shown in another department. The display will be in the form of a hall or pagoda, the walls of which consist of large transparencies illustrating American forest conditions. These walls will be double and illuminated by interior electric lights. The pictures range in size from 3 by 5 feet to 4 by 6 feet. There will be two transparencies 6 by 10 feet, portraying groves of red fir and California big trees, two of the most impressive American trees. A point will be made of the relation of forestry to agriculture, and such subjects as protective forests, the use of trees in preserving water supply, the management of woodlands, etc., are fully illustrated. The extent of the timber resources of the United States will be shown by pictures from all important lumber regions. The distribution of forests will be represented by sections of trees.

Old-fashioned Molasses Candy.

Pour into a kettle holding a gallon, one quart of molasses. Boil for half an hour over a slow fire, stirring constantly and do not let it burn. Test by dropping a little in cold water. When it hardens quickly and is brittle add half a teaspoonful of bicarbonate of soda or baking soda, free from lumps. Mix quickly and pour when cool enough to handle, rub the hands lightly with butter or dust them with flour to prevent sticking and pull over hook till the desired shade is reached.

Vegetable Coloring.

The green coloring used for ice cream, frosting candies, etc., is called pistachio, but is made from spinach and is perfectly harmless. A red coloring matter is made from beets, and a yellow one from carrots. A few drops of the red will give a delicate shade of pink.

Wants a New Calendar.

Russian government commission is considering a plan for the reform of the calendar in Russia, which, as is well known, still follows the old style abandoned by other European countries in the last century. It proposes to drop out fourteen days from the present reckoning, and calls for years those divisible by four, but also by 125. The representatives of the Greek Orthodox church have been asked to consider this proposition, and to suggest a corresponding change in the method of determining Easter.

A Danger in Schoolrooms and How to Prevent It. Owing to the gathering of so many different classes of persons therein, the interior walls of churches, school-houses, hospitals, etc., are apt to become repositories of disease germs unless preventive measures are taken. These walls should always be coated with a clean and pure cement, such as Albastine, which is disinfectant in its nature and more convenient to renew and retint than any other wall coating. The first coat is no greater than for interior work, while renewals are more easily and cheaply made.

LANGUID

How are the children this spring? Complaining a good deal of headache, can't study as well as usual, easily fall asleep, and are tired all the time? And how is it with yourself? Is your strength slipping away? Do you tremble easily, are your nerves all unstrung, do you feel dull and sleepy, and have you lost all ambition?

That's Spring Poisoning

Nearly every one needs a good spring medicine; a medicine that will remove impurities from the system, strengthen the digestion, and bring back the old force and vigor to the nerves. A perfect Sarsaparilla is just such a medicine; a Sarsaparilla that contains the choicest and most valuable ingredients; a Sarsaparilla accurately and carefully made, and one that experience has shown is perfect in every way.

That's AYER'S

"The only Sarsaparilla made under the personal supervision of three graduates: a graduate in pharmacy, a graduate in chemistry, and a graduate in medicine."

"I am perfectly confident that Ayer's Sarsaparilla and Pills have saved my life by taking them every fall and spring. I have kept them in the house for the past twenty years."—EVA N. HART, Buffalo, N. Y., March 29, 1900.

WINTER BILE

Causes bilious head-ache, back-ache and all kinds of body aches. Spring is here and you want to get this bile poison out of your system, easily, naturally and gently. CASCARETS are just what you want; they never grip or gripe, but will work gently while you sleep. Some people think the more violent the griping the better the cure. Be careful—take care of your bowels—salts and pill poisons leave them weak, and even less able to keep up regular movements than before. The only safe, gentle inside Spring cleaner for the bowels are sweet, fragrant CASCARETS. They don't force out the foecal matter with violence, but act as a tonic on the whole 30 feet of bowel wall, strengthen the muscles and restore healthy, natural action—buy them and try them. You will find in an entirely natural way your bowels will be promptly and permanently put in good order for the Spring and Summer work.

Not Responsible.
On returning from the barn early one morning, the old man found his wife in tears.
"What's the cryin' about, Melissa?" he inquired.
"Nothin'—one of your darters—was stole las' night," she sobbed.
"The red-headed 'un?" he asked, iconically.
"Yes—poor Mag—she was the best gal—"
"Bob Scuttles?"
"Of course; hasn't been no other feller waitin' on her, 'nigh' you goin' to pursue after 'em arrest 'im?"
"Of course not," he replied, sternly. "I'm not under obligations to help Bob Scuttles out of no difficulty. Let him go ahead and work out his sentence, same's I've been a-doin' for the las' forty years."

Who Are Rich and Poor.
Senator Clark of Montana, as generally known, is reputed to be the richest man in the senate, being credited with an income of $30,000 a day. There are eleven millionaires in the senate. Senator Keen of New Jersey follows Senator Clark in rank of wealth, and is estimated to be worth $10,000,000, which yields him daily about $2000. Next follows Senator McMillan of Michigan, who is considered to be worth $5,000,000; Senator Elkins of West Virginia worth certainly $3,000,000, and constantly increasing; Senator Hanna of Ohio with $3,000,000; and Senator Depew of New York is credited with more than $1,000,000. Rhode Island's senators, Mr. Aldrich and Mr. Wetmore, are both millionaires, and the list is completed with Senators Fairbanks of Indiana, Scott of West Virginia and Hale of Maine.

Senator Jones of Nevada has at times a claim to a position upon this list, but as a speculator in mining stock the estimate of his wealth will vary from one day when he is unquestionably a millionaire to another day when he is not to be counted as having above moderate wealth.
In contrast to these senatorial croesures are the poor men in the senate who have little more than the salary allotted to their position, a petty sum of $5000 per annum. In this category are Senators Allen, Nebraska; Bate, Tennessee; Berry, Arkansas; Beveridge, Indiana; Burrows, Michigan; Butler, North Carolina; Chilton, Texas; Clay, Geo.; Cockrell, Missouri; Culom, Illinois; Deboe, Kentucky; Helfferich, Idaho; Jones, Kansas; Kenyon, Delaware; Kyle, South Dakota; Lindsay, Kentucky; Vest, Missouri; Tillman, South Carolina; Shoup, Idaho; Pritchard, North Carolina; Mason, Illinois; Morgan, Alabama; Mallory, Florida; McCumber, North Dakota; and McBride, Oregon.

CARTER MEDICINE CO. WINS.
Obtains Injunction in Case Involving Simulation of Labels.
Brent Good, president of the Carter Medicine Company, yesterday received a telegram from his lawyers in Chicago, Messrs. Lowden, Estabrook & Davis, informing him that a final injunction, with costs, had been granted against the Chicago Label and Box Company. This company makes a specialty of manufacturing labels, boxes, etc., for druggists. The Carter Company has been following them through the courts for two years and the complaint that the label company was making simulations of the labels of Carter's Little Liver Pills. They have now obtained a final injunction with costs, and the costs are very large, as the case has been submitted to a Master in Chancery for a final accounting.
The Carter Medicine Company has been the first and only one to prosecute printers or engravers who have prepared such labels and wrappers. It marks a new departure in infringement cases, and their victory is one of great importance to the whole proprietary trade, and also of interest to retail druggists.—NEW YORK PRESS, MAY 3, 1900.

Compliment With a Sting.
Talk about delightfully put compliments, I heard a girl at a supper deliver herself of a perfect jewel the other night. She leaned across the table—the table next to me—to say it, and she meant well.
"Oh, Miss Dum Dum," she said, cordially, "I've got a trade at last for you."
"A swap?" asked Miss Dum Dum, beaming with anticipatory delight.
"Uhuh," answered the other, "Lieutenant Bulbul said it."
"Oh, do tell it!" pleaded Miss Dum Dum eagerly.
"It was an awfully nice one," said the first girl, "and Lieutenant Bulbul meant it, too. He said you waited divinely." He said he was awfully surprised, too, to find it out, so I knew he meant it. He said he wouldn't have thought from seeing you walk that you could dance at all."

A Frog-Leg Lunch.
Dwellers in the effects case who may imagine that "hog and hominy" constitutes the principal sustenance of rural Missourians should glance over the following from an up-to-date paper: "At the dance 400 pairs of frog legs were fried, and 100 pounds of fish. Five candidates went down from St. Joe and made speeches between dances. The lunch was free to everybody."

The Salvation Army.

THE LIFE OF THESE SELF-SACRIFICING WORKERS OFTEN ONE OF HARDSHIP.

While on duty Capt. Ben. Bryan was Stricken with a Supposed Incurable Disease and Forced to Relinquish the Work—He has Now Recovered His Health.
From the News, Alexandria, Ont.
The life of a Salvation Army worker is very far from being a sinecure. The duties are not only arduous but the workers are called upon by the regulations of the army to conduct outdoor meetings at all seasons and in all kinds of weather. This being the case, it is little wonder that the health of these self-sacrificing workers frequently gives way.
Capt. Ben. Bryan, of Maxville, Ont., was attacked by a so-called incurable disease, but was restored to health through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

Capt. Bryan and Wife.
The story of his illness and subsequent cure reads like a miracle, and is given in his own words as follows:
"While stationed at Deseronto, in July, 1897, I was attacked with what the doctors called 'Chronic Spinal Meningitis.' The symptoms were somewhat similar to those preceding a pleuritic attack, but were accompanied by spasms which, when the pain became too severe, rendered me unconscious. The length of these unconscious spells increased as the disease advanced.
"After spending four months in the Kingston General Hospital, and the Salvation Army, Toronto, regained some of my former strength and returned to my work. The second attack occurred when I was stationed at Schenectady, N. Y., in October, 1899, and was more severe than the first and I was compelled to resign my position and to return to my home at Maxville. While there a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I began using them in March, 1899. I have used only a dozen boxes and am once more enjoying perfect health. I feel that I am perfectly well and can cheerfully say that I attribute my present state of health to the effects produced by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.
"Mrs. Bryan has also used the pills and has been benefited very much thereby."
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.
