Reese IP Represents ATC At Convention

Several Reesites are scheduled to journey to Houston to attend conferences and conventions held there.

Management

Maintenance Crews Altered For Savings

Management action in the field of equipment maintenance has resulted in a projected savings for Reese AFB of $109,746 per fiscal year through FY '71 or a total of $329,100 over the next three fiscal years.

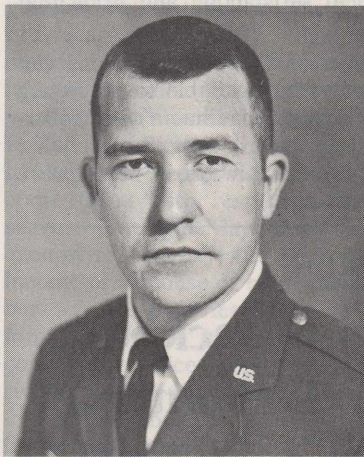

Under the old method, the T-37 flight line was organized into five maintenance flights with three shifts per flight. The pre-flight crew worked from 5:15 a.m. to 2 p.m., the day crew from 8 a.m. to 4:45 p.m. and the afternoon crew from 1:45 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. There was also a night crew which worked from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m.

The management action resulted in the number of flights in the T-37 flight line being reduced to four maintenance flights and the number of percentage of people on each shift being changed. Increased emphasis was placed on quality maintenance and training.

In brief, the shift of personnel allowed more maintenance work to be accomplished at night and a better distribution of the workload. The quality control section has increased the extent of its aircraft and engine inspections, thereby requiring more thorough and higher quality maintenance.

The Air Force Junior Officers' Conference and the American Fighter Pilots Association (AFPA) will meet in conjunction with the Air Force Association's (AFA) National Convention, March 18-21.

Capt. Vernon G. Ash, instructor pilot with the 3500th Pilot Training Squadron, will represent

Captain Ash

Air Training Command at the Junior Officers' Conference. The former Distinguished Junior Officer of the Year at Reese is expected to be a member of a group to discuss career status, considering such subjects as regular vs. reserve, appointments and opportunities. The council is one of eight established to advise the association's president.

The second annual meeting of the American Fighter Pilots Association is scheduled for the same week. Capt. Larry V. Rider, officer training instructor, is the local chapter president and will attend the convention as the chapter representative. The first AFPA chapter in the command, the Reese chapter is expected to be well represented with several personnel attending. Reservations for the AFPA convention may be made through Col. Howard J. Pierson, commander, 3501st Student Squadron.

The Air Force Association's 1969 National Convention will feature briefings and symposiums with high-level Air Force personnel, including a panel discussion with the crew of Apollo 8. Results of the convention will be presented in the form of recommendations to both the Air Force and the AFA for action.

Highlighting the convention will be symposium keynote speaker Gen. John P. McConnell, chief of staff. Also scheduled is a luncheon honoring Dr. Robert C. Seamans, Secretary of the Air Force.

Illini Cadets Visit Base March 13-14

A score of Air Force ROTC cadets from the University of Illinois along with their officer escorts will visit Reese AFB next week.

The 20 cadets are due to arrive at 11 a.m. Thursday. They will be welcomed at noon and then have lunch. Their schedule calls for them to visit physiological training at 1:30 p.m., T-37 link trainer at 3:30 p.m. and T-38 link trainer at 4:15 p.m.

On March 14, the group will visit the 3500th Pilot Training Squadron, see a static display of T-37 and T-38 aircraft, tour base operations, have lunch then leave at 1 p.m.

Contribution Deadline Nearing For Base Agencies Campaign

The National Health and International Services Agencies campaign moves toward completion this week, with only eight of 19 base organizations registering contributions by the end of February.

Designed to include many of the major national funds, the agencies campaign includes such international funds as CARE and Project HOPE as well as national funds such as the American Cancer Society, the March of Dimes, and the American Heart Association.

Three organizations have contributed 100 per cent to both the National Health Agencies and the International Service Agencies: 429S Field Training Detachment, Resident Auditor and Office of Special Investigation. The 3501st Pilot Training Squadron recorded 100 per cent contributions to the International Service Agencies and Management Engineering Detachment contributed 100 per cent to the National Health Agencies. Other organizations tallied for contributions include 3500th Supply, 3500th Pilot Training Squadron and Safety.

According to Maj. Charles C. Gaylord, project officer, the campaign is scheduled to be concluded by March 15 and organizations are urged to get in contributions as soon as possible.

NCOA To Meet 5 P.M. Monday

The Kuykendall Chapter of the Noncommissioned Officers of America (NCOA) will meet Monday at 5 p.m. at the Reese NCO Open Mess. All members are asked to attend.

The new board has changed the meeting time from 7:30 to 5 p.m. in hopes of increasing attendance at the meetings. Under a new system of conducting pre-business sessions, the board will limit—when ever possible—its meeting to one hour.

There will be three special added attractions at the Monday meeting. James McConoghy, a member of the NCOA international board of directors, will speak to the members present. Secondly, a special door prize will be offered to a lucky member, and third, free refreshments will be served.

The Air Force Association's national headquarters has urged all of its members to affiliate themselves with the local chapter nearest them.

Those AFA members at Reese who have not yet transferred their memberships to the Lubbock chapter may do so by contacting the chapter president, Tom Ireland, chief, Civilian Personnel Division, or by dropping by the Information Office for the necessary forms.

Five different kinds of cookies are being offered, each at 50 cents a box. If you are not contacted during the sale and desire the cookies, please call Mrs. Marvin Shackelford at 885-2259.

FOR THE COMMANDER

Vietnam Experience Exhibits Its Value

Col. Clyde J. Morganti
Wing Commander

By Col. Clyde M. Livingston
Deputy Commander for Operations

During discussions of the situation in Vietnam with our young officers, I don't know how many times I've chuckled at the old quip, "It's not much of a war but it's the only one we have." Whether the remark comes from one of the young tigers recently returned or one just itching to go, I like the impression it leaves because most of the time I think it springs from recognition of the valuable professional lessons to be learned there.

During the past year I've watched the number of SEA returnees assigned to Reese AFB increase steadily until now almost 30 per cent of our IP force is combat experienced. At the same time I've watched the effectiveness of our operation improve, and I'm convinced there is a direct correlation between the two. Members of recent high level selection boards apparently agree, judging from the weight they attach to Vietnam experience.

Since the very start of the Vietnam War, leaders at the highest level have urged both career officers and enlisted members to volunteer for assignment to SEA and the wisdom of this important policy becomes more apparent every day. The operating environment that exists in the war zone simply cannot be duplicated anywhere else in the Air Force. The will to produce to the maximum, even at great personal sacrifice, becomes almost instinctive in each individual and is a source of great personal satisfaction and pride that will linger for years to come.

Almost every aspect of Department of Defense operations can be observed there and the learning potential available to the young professional is virtually unlimited. The experience has a very sobering, very maturing effect and leaves no doubt that no matter what the assignment the underlying purpose must always be to improve the ability of the Air Force to fly and fight.

Time For Straight Thinking

Teenager, Parental Backbone One Answer For Delinquency

By Chaplain (Lieutenant Colonel) Isaac M. Copeland, Jr.
Base Chaplain

The problem of juvenile delinquency is one that receives much attention these days with varying degrees of success. Everyone is interested in seeing our youth given an opportunity to become productive, well-adjusted citizens of our society. How to accomplish this taxes every bit of our ingenuity, patience and endurance.

Here is a suggestion of merit that was printed as an editorial of the Church News in a Denver newspaper:

"An Open Letter to A Teenager: 'Always we hear the plaintive cry of the teenagers: What can we do? Where can we go? The answer is: Go Home! Hang the storm windows, paint the woodwork. Rake the leaves. Shovel the walk. Wash the car. Learn to cook. Scrub some floors. Repair the sink. Build a boat. Get a job.

'Help the church. Visit the sick. Assist the poor. Study your lessons. And then when you are through—and not too tired—read a book.

'Your parents do not owe you entertainment. Your town does not owe you recreation facilities. The world does not owe you a living. You owe the world something. You owe it your time and energy and your talents so that no one will be at war or in poverty, or sick, or lonely again.

'In plain simple words: GROW UP: quit being a cry-baby; get out of your dream world; develop a backbone not a wishbone; and start acting like a man or a lady.

'I'm a parent. I'm tired of nursing, protecting, helping, appealing, begging, excusing, tolerating, denying myself needed comforts for every whim and fancy, just because your selfish ego instead of common sense dominates your personality, and thinking, and requests."

THE JUVENILE COURT
Denver, Colorado

This seems to me to be some good, straight thinking that could pay big dividends in our future citizens . . . that is if parents have the backbone to adopt such a program.

Opportunities Beckon

(An AFPS Editorial)

Due to an initial shortage of policemen and the ever increasing growth, in size and population, of our major cities there is still a critical need for law enforcement personnel throughout the country.

In an effort to help relieve this shortage the Department of Defense has instituted a continuing program of assisting civilian police agencies in bringing their forces up to strength. Under it, servicemen who receive a firm employment or training offer from a legally constituted city, county, state, or Federal Government law enforcement agency can be released up to 90 days earlier than their scheduled separation dates.

Under this program officials of police agencies may interview and examine prospective candidates at military installations, but servicemen also are encouraged to make direct arrangements with any qualified police agency of their choice.

The program is open only to those assigned in the continental United States. However, anyone who is assigned overseas and is interested in becoming a police officer can contact any police agency for employment details but he cannot apply for early release until he has completed his obligated overseas tour.

If you are interested in serving on a particular agency such as the one in your hometown, you should write to the police agency where you are seeking employment, requesting additional information. Those interested in working for a Federal law enforcement agency should contact their educational officer for additional information.

If you apply for employment as a police officer you can expect to be asked to complete a detailed application form, take a written examination, undergo a physical examination, and participate in a personal interview with police officials.

Your service will assist in this processing by providing physical examination and written test facilities.

Once you have received a firm offer of employment or notice of training, you should contact your personnel officer who will assist you in applying for early separation. However, you cannot apply earlier than 180 days before your scheduled date of separation.

Remember, you must make application for early release. And in order to do so you must have a firm offer of employment from an authorized police agency.

Quick, Correct Actions Stop Grease Fires

By Hayes Hefner
Chief, Technical Services

One of the most frequent causes of fire in the housing area results from over-heated grease on the stove bursting into flame.

This is an easily prevented type of fire. Do not leave grease heating on your stove unattended. You may forget it, and fire will result.

However, in the event you have a grease fire, despite your precautions, the following steps will help prevent further damage:

- a. Turn off heat immediately.
- b. Attempt to smother flame by covering fire with a pan lid. Watch out for yourself and your clothing while approaching the fire holding lid like a shield.
- c. If no cover or lid is handy, throw baking soda onto the fire—do not use baking powder or flour.
- d. Wet towels and place (do not throw) them over the flame.
- e. Never risk carrying a burning pan outside or to a sink; hot grease may splatter on you or your clothing or hair may catch fire. Never put water on a grease fire—it will splatter and spread the fire.

Quote Of Note

(An AFNS Feature)

"Each time I return from a combat mission or lose a close friend in combat, a little more is taken from me, but no matter what I must endure, I . . . take immense pride in being able to cast my ballot which signifies that we truly do have a free country." (Capt. James O. Adams, Nha Trang AB, Vietnam, excerpt from winning entry in 1968 Valley Forge Patriots Award.)

Management Engineering Needs To Know Manning Problems!

By 1st Lt. Francis J. Karlin
Management Engineering

During a recent visit to the Management Engineering Detachment (MED) here at Reese, Col. George Prochoroff, Air Training Command Director of Manpower and Organization, emphasized the significance of management consultant studies as a management tool for Air Force executives and supervisors. He stated that ATC Headquarters personnel are learning the value of these services and are accepting them with increasing regularity.

The manpower shortage in ATC and the subsequent undermanning of most work centers has made these services not only an aid to managers, but also a necessity if work requirements are to be met with available manpower. He encourages base level supervisors to use management consultants services to help them meet their mission requirement with existing manpower. This point is most significant in view of the recent and severe civilian hiring restrictions.

Management engineering personnel are prepared to help you accomplish your assigned responsibilities when managing conditions are critical. By attempting to maximize the contribution of assigned power, a significant portion, if not all, of the assigned workload may be accomplished within assigned manpower. You not only owe it to yourself, but to your people to at least attempt to make the present burden easier to bear.

The MED may not be equally successful in all their attempts to maximize efficiency, but in the end result, the study will have made the MED more cognizant of your manning problems and act accordingly. Furthermore, if a particular method does not prove to be successful—vacant manpower spaces regardless of whether they are military or civilian, will not be automatically deleted from the manning document. Manpower deletion as a result of a method study will be initiated by the functional manager.

Remember: Hitch Horse Sense To Horsepower

(An ATCPS Editorial from ATC Safety Directorate)

Single car accidents are often called "mystery crashes" because occupants do not survive to tell the story.

Here, however, is an example of a single car accident which wasn't much of a mystery as the occupants luckily lived to tell the story:

The airman was on a normal weekend break from base duties. He and a friend had been out with their girl friends earlier in the evening, and afterwards, had joined friends at a sandwich shop. Later, they drove around, stopping occasionally for beer. The airman was traveling on a city street at a high rate of speed. As he approached an intersection he noticed both a stop and a dead-end warning sign and hit his brakes hard. The vehicle skid-ded across the intersection and into an empty lot, struck a guy wire, spun completely around and rolled over on its top. The driver's body was trapped under the vehicle which had to be raised in order to free him.

He was rushed to the hospital for treatment. The city police charged him with DWI (driving while intoxicated), speeding and failure to stop at a stop sign.

The moral of this case is easily understood. If you drink, don't drive. If you have seat belts, use them. Remember to hitch horse sense to horsepower.

Don't Forget Those

State Income Taxes

By Capt. Wayne C. Benesch
(This article is designed to inform personnel of their responsibilities regarding payment of state income taxes. The information set forth below is taken from the All States Income Tax Guide, Office of the Judge Advocate General, Legal Assistance Office, Hq. USAF, Washington, D.C. 20330.)

A great many questions have arisen concerning the status of military personnel with regard to state income taxes. The following material provides a general discussion of the problem and includes some examples. A follow-up article in next week's Roundup will take a closer look at the requirements of specific states.

Paragraph 11 of Air Force Regulation 30-30 dated June 28, 1966, provides in part: "Air Force personnel shall pay each just financial obligation in a proper and timely manner, especially one imposed by law, such as Federal, state or local taxes."

In the past many persons were able to avoid payment of taxes due to the states because the courts of one state refused to entertain suits for the collection of taxes due to another state. However, statutes have now been enacted in most states requiring their courts to recognize and enforce, on a reciprocal basis, the liability for taxes imposed by another state. Under these statutes, any state or political subdivision has the right to sue in the courts of another state to recover any tax which may be owing to it when a like right is accorded by the state bringing suit to the one whose courts are used.

Hard Pressed For Funds

As the states have become increasingly hard pressed for funds, so have they become increasingly aggressive in the collection of taxes owed. Military personnel should be cautioned against relying either on widespread exemption from state tax liability permitted during periods of wartime or on the absence of prior attempts by the states to collect taxes due.

Personnel of the armed services should be aware of the requirements of Bureau of the Budget Circular A-38. Under paragraph six of that document as implemented by the Department of Defense each member was required to execute a new W-4. Though this form was designed to show the number of exemptions claimed of legal residence of each and every service member. Presently a statement of earnings (Form W-2) is sent by the service to the state indicated by the member on the Form W-4. In the event no W-4 indicating a legal residence appears in a member's record the statement of earnings is required to be sent to the state wherein the wages are earned.

Further, such devices as comparing automobile registrations and voter's rolls with tax returns received are used to discover delinquent taxpayers. Collections of accumulated tax liability may cause substantial hardship, that regular prompt periodic payment may avoid. And present voluntary remittance of current taxes will often induce state tax authorities, on a case by case basis, to waive penalties, interest or even the taxes themselves, on unpaid accounts from prior years.

As a general rule, the states that impose income taxes do so on two classes of persons: (a) those persons "resident" or "domiciled" in the state at relevant times during the tax year, regardless of the sources of their income, and (b) persons not resident in the state, but deriving income from sources within the state.

If that general rule were literally applied, a person in the armed forces could be liable for income tax to two or more states—first, to the state of which he is a "resident," and second, to the state in which he is stationed and is thus "deriving" his income. Many persons maintaining a residence in one state but working in another are subject to this double taxation. However, with respect to service pay from the armed forces, the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act provides service personnel with relief from this possible double taxation. The Act provides, substantially, that a member of the armed forces who is legally resident in one state but is living in another solely by reason of military orders, is not liable to the second state for income taxes with respect to his service pay. This law does not exempt retired pay, the separate income of a spouse or other member of the service member's family, nor does it cover the income of service personnel derived from off-duty employment.

a. A member of the armed forces legally resident or domiciled in Ohio was ordered to duty in, and moved with his family to, New York. He has no income other than his active-service pay. Since Ohio has no state income tax laws, he is not required to pay income tax to the state of Ohio, and because of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act he is not liable for New York state income tax either.

b. Another member, whose domicile is in Virginia, and to which state he must pay income taxes, is on active duty in California, and buys a house there, not for the purpose of changing his legal domicile, but only for the purpose of providing a place of shelter for himself and his family while on duty in California. It is his intention to maintain his domicile in Virginia, and to return there upon release from active duty. He will be required to continue filing his state return to Virginia, and, under the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act, California will not be permitted to impose an income tax on his service pay even though he owns real property in that state. If, however, he is transferred from California and rents the house he owns, in that state, thus receiving income from his California property, he may find himself required to file a California return to report the rental income, in addition to his liability for filing a Virginia return on his service pay as well as his rental income. If, in this example, the service-member decided to change his domicile to California, he would thereby confer upon California jurisdiction to impose an income tax upon his income from all sources, and, likewise, deprive Virginia of its taxing jurisdiction over him.

Suppose the member, whose case is being considered, continued his Virginia domicile, but while stationed in California took a part-time job during his off-duty hours. The pay derived from the employment is not covered by the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act. With respect to such pay, he would be required to file a California state income tax return, and he is required to report that income on his Virginia return as well. Although the income would be reported to two states, it would probably be taxed only once. In this particular example, the income would be taxed in Virginia, and that tax credited against California tax liability on the off-duty income.

SCHOOL GUARD—Mrs. Dorothy D. Norris, school crossing guard at the Reese Elementary School for the past two years, beams as she halts traffic so one of her charges may cross the dangerous intersection across Fourth Street leading from the housing area to the school. See story below. (USAF PHOTO BY A1C OWEN McWHORTER)

Housewife Doubles As School Crossing Guard

For nearly two years now Mrs. Dorothy D. Norris, wife of MSgt. William H. Norris, has devoted countless hours to a thankless task—that of safeguarding the lives of children attending the Reese Elementary School.

Mrs. Norris is school crossing guard, and four times a day she trudges the two blocks from her home at 307 Arnold Drive to the treacherous school crossing on Fourth Street and ferries the tots across. This includes once in the morning, at noon for lunch and twice in the afternoon.

In the two years she has been crossing guard, she has never missed a day, and is the only guard, working day after day without relief. The job is voluntary and without pay.

Mrs. Norris feels this an area in public service within the framework of the school in which she can best serve. She is a member of the Reese Elementary School PTA, and according to the rest of the membership, one of the most valuable the organization has.

Speeders provide Mrs. Norris with most of her headaches. As she puts it, "I can control the children, but I can't control the speeders." She relates several tales of vehicles running through the zone at excessive speeds, endangering the lives of her tiny charges. In one instance, last year, a driver lost control of her car while driving east on Fourth Street and struck a culvert smashing it. Only seconds before a group of children stood in the same spot. Whenever a reportable violation occurs, Mrs. Norris reports the driver by his license number. "Better for this driver to receive a warning or even a ticket than to endanger the lives of our little ones," says Mrs. Norris.

The Norris' have three children of their own. Judy Beth, 13, and Carson, 12, are now out of Reese Elementary School, but one child remains, Pamela, 11. Even when Pamela joins the other two children at Wolforth, Mrs. Norris will probably still be making her four trips a day to the school crossing.

Volvos have always been pretty sensible.

Now Volvos are sensible and pretty.

The new Volvo 144 does everything that Volvos are famous for doing—except look like a Volvo.

What Volvos are famous for doing is lasting an average of eleven years in Sweden, where it's tough being a car.

Of course, we don't guarantee that the 144 will last eleven years in America.

But we do know it's a Volvo. And 9 out of every 10 Volvos registered here in the last eleven years are still on the road.

So if styling is all that's been keeping you out of a car that lasts long enough to get you out from under car payments, you no longer have an excuse.

Although only a mere two months old, the new Reese AFB Golf Council has probably accomplished more since its organization some 60 days ago than many councils of the past during its entire tenure in office.

Headed by Col. William W. Hosler Jr., chairman of the group, the council has already approved a golf driving-range for the course (see last week's issue) which will be ready (hopefully) sometime next month. In addition, it has sent the course greenskeeper to at least two area golf courses (Webb AFB and Clarendon, Texas) to study methods used there in the care of golf course greens. He is also attending a turf course being conducted at South Plains College at Levelland and will further augment this with another course at Texas A&M College.

In addition, the council has posted signs for electric cart paths, and others stating the rules of the course, both of which will be a big help.

A Big Change Tomorrow

Tomorrow comes still another innovation. The two-cup system will go into effect. This is a system whereby two cups and one flagstick are used on each green. It is the rule rather than the exception on nine-hole courses, and is used quite extensively on 18-hole courses, viz: Meadowbrook.

The system is expected to help the greens tremendously. But no system is better than the people using it. Each group playing through the green should have someone attend the flagstick until it is time to remove it. At that point, rather than throwing or dropping the flagstick to the green, it should be carried to the alternate hole and placed there in the cup. It is this cup that the next group will shoot for during their play. This will give each hole a rest of one group between use and allow the grass to spring back and eliminate (hopefully) half of the cleat marks around the hole. The flagstick is moved back and forth between the alternate holes as the group plays through. Should the alternate hole come within the line of the golfer putting out, he will be allowed to move his ball away from the line without penalty.

The system will work, and to the benefit of all golfers on the base.

JA Warns Against Use Of Chain Letters

The base judge advocate's office has issued a reminder to Reese AFB personnel that participation in the sending of chain letters through the U. S. mails is in violation of the postal lottery and fraud laws.

Chain letter activity involving money or other items of value is prohibited on base as a violation of AFR 30-30, regardless of whether or not circulated by mail.

ATC Airmen Share In VRB

HQ. ATC (ATCPS)—Figures recently released by the Air Training Command Personnel directorate show 482 command airmen sharing more than $2 million in Variable Reenlistment Bonus money during 1968.

The money, officials said, will be paid to the individuals over a four-year span.

The VRB program was initiated three years ago in a Department of Defense effort to retain enlisted personnel in "high training cost areas which have inadequate career force manning."

Under the program, eligible airmen identified by their Air Force Specialty Codes (AFSCs) may receive from one to four times the amount of their normal reenlistment bonus. Another feature is that many prior-service personnel are eligible to receive the extra money. Officials here explained that these people never received a reenlistment bonus and are therefore considered eligible.

There are 146 AFSCs on the VRB eligibility list. Of these, 9 are in the Multiple I category, 30 in Multiple II, 53 in Multiple III and 54 in Multiple IV.

OTS Graduates 688

LACKLAND AFB, Tex. (AFNS)—Officer Training School Class 69-04 graduated 688 students. Among those commissioned as second lieutenants were 673 who entered active duty. Seven were members of the Air Force Reserve and eight from Air National Guard units. Graduates included 70 former airmen who reached OTS through the Airmen Educational and Commissioning Program and 29 who entered through the Bootstrap Commissioning Program. There were 32 WAF in the class.

Year-end totals show 23 ATC airmen reenlisting under Multiple I, collecting $23,043; 168 under Multiple II, $342,140; 145 under Multiple III, $746,146, and 146 under Multiple IV, $981,876 for a grand total of $2,093,475.

Airmen interested in the VRB program are urged to contact their local base Personnel office for detailed information.

Awards Go To ATC Bases

HQ. ATC (ATCPS) — Randolph and Lackland AFBs, both in Texas, have been selected to receive the Air Training Command William H. Bordner Award in recognition of outstanding management and operation of heating and power generation plants during Fiscal Year 1968.

Randolph was the first place winner in Category I of the heating plant competition for units producing 3½ to 14 million British Thermal Units (BTUs) per hour. Lackland was chosen for outstanding plant operation in Category II for plants producing more than 14 million BTUs per hour.

The annual awards are named in honor of Lt. Col. William H. Bordner, the first U.S. Air Force civil engineer killed by the enemy in Vietnam while performing civil engineering duties.

Career Girls Set March Luncheon

The Career Girls, a group of women civilian workers at Reese, will meet March 20 at the NCO Open Mess for a special luncheon program.

Maj. Harry J. Hennigar Jr., 3051st Student Squadron, will address the group, relating his experiences in Southeast Asia.

Reservations for the luncheon must be in to civilian personnel section by noon, March 18.
