Blount not guilty on sexual assault charges

By ROGER CLINE
 Staff Writer

“Not guilty.”

With those two words read from the jury’s verdict sheet, 118th District Judge Timothy Yeats thanked the jury for its service just before noon Wednesday morning and released Big Spring’s Jeremy Blount from custody.

Blount, who had been on trial accused of sexually assaulting his minor adopted daughter over a two year period from 2015 to 2017, left through the courtroom’s rear exit before Yeats released the rest of those present at the trial through the front door.

A decorated U.S. Army veteran, Blount was honored by the local VA in January, less than a week before he was arrested in connection with the alleged crime.

The trial proceedings began Monday with jury selection. Evidence was presented by 118th District Attorney Hardy Wilkerson and Blount’s defense attorney Jordan Magee of Abilene on Tuesday. Wednesday, both Wilkerson and Magee gave their closing statements and Judge Yeats gave the jury instructions before releasing them to deliberate about 10:30 a.m. By 11:45, the verdict was in.

“We put on all the evidence we had available,” Wilkerson said after the trial. “Clearly, it came down to a ‘he said/she said,’ and the jury must have wanted more.”

Wilkerson said he wasn’t surprised by the verdict.

“I don’t know how to answer that, quite frankly,” he said. “A jury of 12 individuals, you never know what they’re thinking, individually. You don’t know how they’ll react, and so as a consequence, if you’ve done things a long time, you’re not really surprised one way or another.”

On Monday, Wilkerson read Blount’s indictment before the jury, Judge Yeats, and the defendant and his attorney. Blount, left blind or nearly so by a 2017 suicide attempt, sported dark wrap-around sunglasses and had a service dog present in the courtroom throughout the trial.

The indictment Wilkerson read charged Blount with sexual assault of a child involving “...penetration of sexual organ ... against her will,” which is a felony of the second degree, punishable by 2 to 20 years in prison and a fine not more than $10,000.

Witnesses called by Wilkerson during the trial included the alleged victim’s mother and Blount’s ex-wife; former boyfriend of the alleged victim; an uncle; a longtime friend of Blount;

Brush fire, train collision reported Wednesday

Abandoned structure lost to fire; minor injuries resulted from collision

Left: A brush fire burned near Radio Tower Road on Wednesday afternoon. One structure was lost, but no injuries. The fire was contained quickly by BSPD. Right: A vehicle, train collision shut down a train for the afternoon, after a vehicle got struck while attempting to cross the railroad tracks. Only minor injuries were reported to the driver of the passenger vehicle.

By AMANDA DUFORAT
 Managing Editor

Emergency personnel were busy Wednesday afternoon between routine calls, a fire near Radio Tower Road and a train/vehicle collision on Corbell Road.

Around 2:30 p.m. Big Spring Fire Department was called out to fight a brush fire near Radio Tower Road. According to Fire Chief Craig Ferguson, the cause of the fire was unknown. Crews worked diligently and had the fire contained fairly quickly. While BSFD was able to get the fire under control in a timely manner, one abandoned structure was lost from the blaze. No other damages or injuries were reported to be associated with this fire.

A couple of hours later, a call was received reporting a collision between a passenger vehicle and a train near the intersection of FM 700 and Corbell Road.

According to Sheriff Stan Parker, a passenger vehicle attempted to cross the train tracks when it was struck by an approaching train. Local media outlets, along with HCSO, reported only minor injuries from the collision. The train operator was said to have not received any injuries. The train sat idle on the tracks while an investigation took place. In addition to HCSO, Highway Patrol Troopers were also on hand for the investigation.

County sets proposed tax rate for 2019-2020

Public hearings set for Sept. 9 and Sept. 13; tax vote scheduled Sept. 18

By ROGER CLINE
 Staff Writer

The Howard County Commissioners held a public hearing on their 2019-2020 budget at their meeting Wednesday afternoon, but no Howard County residents showed up to talk about the budget.

Meeting in the Howard County Courthouse's third-floor courtroom, the commissioners voted to table any action on the budget until their September 18 meeting.

Commissioners also set the proposed tax rate for the County at the rollback rate of 30.3165 cents per $100 valuation.

According to County Judge Kathryn Wiseman, the current year's tax rate is 32.8024 cents per $100 valuation, while the effective tax rate – that needed to maintain the same amount of tax revenue – is 28.3438 cents per $100.

The county will have two public hearings on the proposed tax rate – the first on Sept. 9 at 5:30 p.m., and the second on Sept. 13 at 10 a.m. – before voting to finalize the rate Sept. 18.

In other business, the commissioners:

- Approved the 9-1-1 District's budget.
- Approved bids for pharmaceutical supplies needed by the Howard County Detention Center and the Howard County Indigent/Welfare Health Care and County Juvenile Probation programs.

- Signed agreements with physicians for the Howard County Detention Center and the Howard County Indigent/Welfare Health Care and County Juvenile Probation programs.
- Approved County Sheriff's Department civil fee structure for 2019-2020.
- Granted permission to seek bids for bulk fuel.
- Accepted a $300 donation to the Howard County Extension Office from Prosperity Bank.
- Approved invoices, purchase

Bonnetta "Bonnie" Cox Bednar

Bonnetta "Bonnie" Cox Bednar, 85, of Abilene, formerly of Garden City, died Sunday, Aug. 18, 2019, at her residence. Funeral services will be 10 a.m., Saturday, Aug. 24, 2019, at the Nalley-Pickle & Welch Rosewood Chapel with Chris McCurley officiating.

The family will receive friends at 1 p.m., Saturday, Aug. 24, 2019 at the Senior Citizens' Center in Garden City.

Bonnie was the youngest girl born to Jim Will and Zemma Cox in Big Spring. She grew up on the family ranch just outside of Garden City and attended and graduated from Garden City High School in 1952. She married Wilburn Bednar Dec. 16, 1955, in Garden City. She worked in Midland while Wilburn was in Korea. They both resided on the family farm in St. Lawrence until moving to Abilene after Wilburn retired from farming and County Judge. Bonnie won the battle against breast cancer in 2006 and chose to be close to her grandchildren in Abilene.

She loved painting, quilting, holidays and getting together with her "Purple Hat" girls every month. Her greatest joy was cheering on her children and grandchildren in whatever they might be involved in. With her quiet, gentle spirit, she served others whenever there was a need. A woman of few words, she spoke volumes through her example.

Bonnie is survived by her husband, Wilburn Bednar; a brother, Ben Cox of Abilene; a son, Jimmy Bednar and wife, Sandy of San Angelo; two daughters, Tina Bednar of Abilene, and Debra Smith and husband, Tim of Abilene; six grandchildren, Aaron Li and husband, Yu of Midland, Brandon Bednar and wife, Magen of Norman, Oklahoma, Tyler Bednar of Austin, Marci Frias and husband, John of Edmond, Oklahoma, Tori Smith of Edmond, Oklahoma, and Ethan Smith attending Harding University in Searcy, Arkansas; and two great-grandchildren, Tate and Zaylin Li.

She is preceded in death by her parents; two sisters, Rusaline and Isabel; and two brothers, Kenneth and Fern.

The family requests memorial donations be sent to Manuelito Navajo Children's Home, 12 Theta St., Gallup, NM 87301, 505-863-5530, or Hospice of the Big Country, 4601 Hartford St., Abilene, TX 79605, 325-793-5450.

Arrangements under the direction of Nalley-Pickle & Welch Funeral Home & Crematory. Online condolences can be made at www.npwelch.com.

and the alleged victim herself. The only witness called by Magee was the defendant, Jeremy Blount. Throughout the testimony Tuesday, the story of the alleged assault emerged. Wilkerson elicited testimony about alleged molestation over a two-year period, and the eventual revelation of that alleged abuse and the fallout it caused.

According to testimony from Blount's ex-wife, the family began living together in 2001 when the alleged victim was about 10 months old, and married in 2002 in Fort Sill, Okla. Blount later adopted her when her natural father wanted to terminate his parental rights.

During testimony from the alleged victim, she told the jury that, during the time in question, she lived in Big Spring with her mother, father and brother. Wilkerson asked her to identify her father, and she pointed out Blount, saying she never knew her natural father. She said that, for most of her life, she had a "normal relationship" with her father, including affection and love. He treated her "...like a normal father would treat his daughter," she said.

She graduated from Big Spring High School earlier this year "with highest honors" including placing in the top 10 percent of her graduating class and being inducted into the National Honor Society. She also participated in band and color guard, speech and debate, and cross-country track.

During her testimony, the alleged victim testified that Blount began sexually molesting her when she was 15, in the summer of 2015. Similar sexual assaults continued through late September or early October, 2017, she claimed.

The alleged victim testified that the assaults occurred several times over the next two years. When she couldn't produce an exact number, Wilkerson prompted her "More than 10 times? Less than 10 times?" to which she responded "More than 10 times."

On Oct. 27, 2017, her then-boyfriend, noticing a change in her attitude, asked her repeatedly what was wrong, according to testimony. He encouraged her to tell her mother, which she did shortly after.

The next day, Oct. 28, Blount's ex-wife testified that she received a phone call from her nephew informing her "Something dramatic happened."

According to testimony, Jeremy Blount had attempted suicide, shooting himself in the head. The majority of the story of Blount's suicide attempt – which was the cause of his blindness – was revealed in the testimony.

Blount's friend revealed that Blount sent a text message Saturday at 7:31 p.m. to him and several other friends, thanking them for their friendship. He also included the words "I can't do it any longer" in the message.

In his opening statement, Wilkerson had mentioned the suicide attempt, saying that it "...shows evidence of a guilty mind."

In his closing statement, Magee would assert that Blount attempted suicide because he was under an extreme amount of stress, both financial and marital, not because he felt guilty.

The witness portion of the trial wrapped up after the defense rested on Tuesday afternoon, around 3:30 p.m. The jury returned the second day for deliberation and delivery of the verdict. With a non-guilty verdict delivered, Blount was cleared of the charges and released.

Mysteries in the storm

In a world where the wealthy are elevated above the poor, there is a distinct divide to maintain the separation. Those who can afford it, live in sky manors - homes that are held aloft by a magic whose truth is kept secret from all. Those unfortunate enough to be without a large fortune are forced to work on the surface in factories and other low-paying jobs. Storm Glass by Jeff Wheeler follows two young girls who are trying to navigate through the unfair expectations placed on them.

CINDY PINCH

Cettie Pratt is an orphan living in the slums of the surface. She has learned how to steal and lie her way into getting just enough food to help her, and the other children she lives with, stay alive. An admiral finds her and decides to take her in and attempt to adopt her. Once she arrives at his home, she realizes that living in the clouds is not all she's dreamed it would be. Although the sky manor is glitzy and glamorous, it is made very clear that she is not welcomed by all.

Sera Fitzempress is a princess, destined for greatness. Due to her secluded childhood, Sera longs for the companionship of other children. When her father gains political power, he becomes more strict with Sera's education and free-time than before. When her subtle acts of rebellion are brought to her father's attention, her life becomes even more restricted than before. At the crux of it all, Sera wants to meet Cettie - the orphan girl whose unusual story is on everyone's lips. But her father believes that Cettie is not worthy enough for Sera's attention and does everything in his power to prevent their meeting.

Storm Glass is an imaginative coming of age story where humans have restricted magic with laws and secrets. Amidst the politics that Cettie and Sera are growing up in, is a mysterious magic called the Mysteries. The Mysteries are divided into four distinct groups: Law, War, Thought, and Wind. And though there is much known in each branch of the Mysteries, there is still so much more that is unknown. Wealth and the ability to afford school determines who studies the Mysteries, which further increases the divide between the wealthy and the poor.

I would recommend Storm Glass for anyone who loves fantasy with a bit of industrialization sprinkled in. Storm Glass has a wide cast of characters that are relatable and interesting. Every once in awhile you read a book that captivates you, for me Storm Glass was it. I read it over the course of two days because I found that I could not put it down.

A quote that stuck with me was from Chapter 13, "No one truly belongs anywhere, Cettie. We each are given a life to live, and we live it as best we can."

The Postscript: Second Sunset

I spent the last couple weeks visiting my parents.

I've been lucky in the parent department. It's fashionable to recall some pivotal incident that occurred when we were eight and extrapolate how every difficulty experienced in our life since is a result. But I've never seen any truth to this in my own life.

I was really happy when I was eight—and I give my parents full credit.

My life is very different from my parents' life. Still, they have always been supportive and have always at least pretended to be interested in whatever I was doing as I careened from one career to the next.

When, in my fifties, I started to write, my parents were characteristically enthusiastic, with only the occasional exception (perhaps when I wrote in a column how my mother used to garden in her red bikini).

They have always lived a life they enjoy and are proud of, and have encouraged me to do the same.

Now in their eighties, my parents still inspire me. Most recently, it was at sunset.

My parents live in a cabin high on a hill overlooking the lake, so you have to climb a lot of steps to get from the cabin down to the shore. My father built the steps down to the lake. In the middle of the climb, there is a bench where (my dad insists) there is a good place to admire the view. (It happens to also be a good place to rest on the way up—but I'll let him stick to his story.)

Almost every evening, my parents find their way down to the water's edge. They take a seat on the dock and watch the sun set across the lake.

They listen to the loons call to one another across the water and watch the clouds turn pink as the sun disappears in the evening sky.

Then they do it all over again. Because the cabin sits so far above the shore, when they climb back up the hill, the sun is no longer below the horizon but just beginning to set again—a second sunset.

So, my parents take a seat outside their cabin and watch the whole thing all over again—from a different perspective. I tell my parents I admire the life they have created for themselves. They have this great cabin, fun friends and neighbors, they bike all summer, ski all winter and, at the end of every day, they get an extra sunset.

I'd like an extra sunset. By middle age, I thought I could already see the sun going down. I figured I knew, more or less, how the story ended. It turns out I was wrong.

Today, I am doing things I never dreamt of doing fifteen years ago, things I never imagined I could do. But now, as I scramble up the hill in the end-of-the-day light, I realize how much there is to do in the late afternoon, how much is left to see.

I'd feel a lot sillier if I were the only one panting up the hill, but I have a lot of company. All around me I see folks looking for that second sunset: picking up paintbrushes and pens and college degrees, trying on new haircuts and new beliefs.

Sometimes it's a little embarrassing—but we don't really care.

Like my parents, we're just grateful to get this extra sunset. We're so glad the sun hasn't gone down after all. We just needed a different perspective. We just needed to get to higher ground.

Texas executes man in 1998 slaying of college student

By JUAN A. LOZANO and MICHAEL GRACZYK

Associated Press

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A Texas death row inmate who argued that his conviction was based on junk science was executed Wednesday for the abduction, rape and killing of a suburban Houston community college student more than 20 years ago.

Larry Swearingen, 48, received a lethal injection at the state penitentiary in Huntsville for the December 1998 killing of 19-year-old Melissa Trotter. She was last seen leaving her community college in Conroe, and her body was found nearly a month later in a forest near Huntsville, about 70 miles (110 kilometers) north of Houston.

Swearingen, who had always maintained his innocence in Trotter's death, was the 12th inmate put to death this year in the U.S. and the fourth in Texas, the nation's busiest capital punishment state. Eleven more executions are scheduled in Texas this year.

"Lord, forgive them," Swearingen said after the warden asked if he had a final statement. "They don't know what they're doing."

Then as the lethal dose of pentobarbital began, he said he could "hear it" going into a vein in his arm, then that he could taste it.

"It's actually burning in my right arm. I don't feel anything in the left arm," he said.

Almost immediately, he took a short breath, then started to snore quietly. He stopped moving.

He never opened his eyes and never looked at the witnesses who were there on his victim's behalf, including her parents, who watched through a window just a few feet from him.

At 6:47 p.m. CDT — 12 minutes after the lethal dose started — Swearingen was pronounced dead.

"Today, justice was served for Melissa," her family said in a statement provided to the Texas Department of Criminal Justice. "This process has been overwhelming. We want to praise God for getting us through this horrific ordeal. We feel we now can move forward and start the healing process.

"We want Melissa to be remembered as a happy, loving, kind spirit with a beautiful smile. We always knew justice would prevail for Melissa."

Prosecutors said they stood behind the "mountain of evidence" used to convict Swearingen in 2000. They described him as a sociopath with a criminal history of violence against women and said he even tried to get a fellow death row inmate to take the blame for his crime.

Swearingen had long tried to cast doubt on the evidence used to convict him, particularly claims by prosecution experts that Trotter's body had been in the woods for 25 days. His long-time appellate attorney, James Rytting, said at least five defense experts concluded her body was there for no more than 14 days, and because Swearingen had been arrested by then on outstanding traffic violations, he couldn't have left her body there.

Swearingen, who was also represented by the Innocence Project, had previously received five stays of execution. He was put to death after the U.S. Supreme Court rejected his final appeal, which focused on allegations prosecutors used "false and misleading testimony" related to blood evidence and a piece of pantyhose used to strangle Trotter.

Kelly Blackburn, the trial bureau chief for the Montgomery County District Attorney's Office, which prosecuted Swearingen, said Swearingen's efforts to discredit the evidence were unsuccessful because his experts' opinions didn't "hold water."

"I have absolutely zero doubt that anybody but Larry Swearingen killed ... Melissa Trotter," he said.

Blackburn said Swearingen killed Trotter because he was angry that she had stood him up for a date. At the time of Trotter's killing, Swearingen was under indictment for kidnapping a former fiancée.

During a 2011 interview, Swearingen told The Associated Press that he was tired of being "demonized" for a crime he didn't commit.

"We'd all like to know who done it," he said.

In addition to questioning the date of Trotter's death, Rytting maintained a piece of pantyhose used to strangle Trotter was not a match to a piece found in Swearingen's trailer. He also disputed prosecution experts' claims dismissing blood found in Trotter's fingernail shavings that was determined to not be Swearingen's. He said that evidence supported the defense theory that someone else killed her.

In letters sent to Swearingen's attorneys in July and August, the Texas Department of Public Safety said its technicians should not have been as definitive in their testimony about the blood found in the fingernails and the pantyhose match.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last week turned down Swearingen's challenge to the blood evidence and pantyhose match, citing the "mountain of evidence" that "seals Swearingen's guilt for Trotter's murder." The appeals court disagreed with defense allegations that the testimony about the blood evidence and pantyhose match was false and misleading.

Blackburn said Swearingen tried to get people to lie to give himself an alibi. After his arrest, Swearingen got another inmate to write a letter Swearingen composed in Spanish that professed to be from the real killer and had it sent to his attorney. In 2017, Swearingen and another inmate, Anthony Shore, concocted a plan to get Shore to take responsibility for Trotter's killing. Shore, who was on death row for another crime, was executed last year.

Rytting said Swearingen was guilty of doing "some very stupid things," but prosecutors didn't have proof he killed Trotter.

State News Briefs

Crude oil to be sold from Strategic Petroleum Reserve

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Federal regulators plan to draw down and sell crude oil from Strategic Petroleum Reserve sites in Texas and Louisiana.

The U.S. Department of Energy's Office of Fossil Energy on Wednesday announced a Notice of Sale from sites in Bryan Mound and Big Hill, Texas, and West Hackberry, Louisiana.

Department officials say the Bipartisan Budget Act of 2015 directs the energy secretary to sell 5 million barrels in fiscal year 2020. Last year's Consolidated Appropriations Act directs the secretary to sell 10 million barrels in 2020 and 2021.

Up to 10 million barrels will be sold from Bryan Mound and up to 5 million from Big Hill and West Hackberry.

Bids are due Aug. 27. Companies registered in the SPR's Crude Oil Sales Offer Program are eligible. Others can register online.

Child sex assault suspect kills self at sheriff's office

CLEBURNE, Texas (AP) — Investigators say a man sought on charges that he sexually assaulted two children younger than age 6 shot and killed himself outside the North Texas offices of the sheriff who was seeking him.

A statement from the Johnson County Sheriff's Office says 35-year-old Michael Patrick McGovern took his own life with a handgun shortly after noon Wednesday in the parking lot outside the sheriff's office in Cleburne (KLEE'burn), about 27 miles (43 kilometers) south of Fort Worth.

Sheriff's deputies and FBI agents had searched McGovern's house near Mansfield on Monday after authorities said they found that he was distributing child pornography on the internet.

A warrant charging McGovern with super-aggravated sexual assault of a child and indecency with a child was issued on Tuesday and a wanted poster was placed on social media Wednesday morning.

Gulf of Mexico oil, gas lease bidding down from last 2 sales

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Oil and gas companies made $159.4 million in high bids Wednesday for federal leases in the Gulf of Mexico, down from sales in March and a year ago.

The Bureau of Ocean Energy Management says 29 companies bid on 144 tracts. That's about 1% of the tracts offered.

The March sale drew $244.3 million in high bids on 227 tracts, and the one in August 2018 brought $178.1 million in bids on 144 tracts.

A news release said this year's total high bids are the highest since 2015.

Agency statistics indicate totals of $419.2 million this year and $561.5 million in 2015. Totals were $174.5 million in 2016, $395.9 million in 2017 and $302.8 million last year.

In the decade preceding 2015, Gulf lease sales averaged $1.6 billion a year.

Union Pacific worker dies in Texas, pinned between 2 tankers

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — Investigators say a Union Pacific worker has died after being pinned between two railway tanker cars in Southeast Texas.

The Jefferson County Sheriff's Office says 39-year-old Travis Andrepont of Louisiana was killed before dawn Tuesday in Beaumont. Officials didn't immediately provide a hometown for Andrepont. He died at the scene.

Sheriff's Capt. Crystal Holmes says the accident happened near a chemical plant. Further details on the investigation weren't immediately released.

Union Pacific spokeswoman Kristen South says Andrepont had worked for the Omaha, Nebraska-based company for 16 years and was part of its Gulf Coast service unit.

Man arrested after Dallas woman's body found in burning SUV

DALLAS (AP) — Police in Dallas say a 49-year-old man has been arrested and charged with capital murder in the death of a woman whose body was found this week in her burning SUV.

Authorities say Glen Richter was arrested and booked early Thursday into the Dallas County jail in the death of 22-year-old Sara Hudson, who worked in Dallas after graduating recently from the University of Arkansas.

Investigators say firefighters responded Monday evening to a report of a vehicle fire and Hudson's body was found inside after the flames were extinguished. Authorities say she died of "homicidal violence."

Her family says she was intending to meet with friends to celebrate her birthday.

Police have not revealed a motive in the killing.

Online jail records don't indicate whether Richter has an attorney to answer the charges.

An HSU Legacy: Four Generations of HSU Graduates

ABILENE -- With four generations of Hardin-Simmons graduates in her family, Mandy Cunningham has many HSU stories to share. From dorm shenanigans to love stories, HSU holds many memories for her and her family.

Cunningham's great-grandmother, grandparents, and parents attended HSU, but that was not the reason she made her way to the 40 acres. "I didn't want to be that kid," she said. "But I came to campus and fell in love with it."

Cunningham earned her Bachelor of Behavioral Sciences in Interdisciplinary Strategies in 1998. Today, she is the merchandise and booking coordinator and social media manager for Super Summer, a Christian discipleship camp.

"Hardin-Simmons prepared me really well," she said. "Even though I took classes to become a teacher, I learned to communicate with people no matter what the age. I've used things that I've learned in class in my job as a coordinator of an event. My professors did a good job of teaching us things we would use throughout our life, not just creating busywork."

During her time at HSU, Cunningham attended and worked at University Baptist Church, which was located across the street from campus. She was the children's minister at UBC and worked the youth for two years. At HSU, Cunningham did Freshman SING and worked in the Spanish lab. She remembers the tradition where freshmen students stood in the reflection pond to sing the freshman song.

"I loved being at Hardin-Simmons and connecting with people," she said. "I made friends the first day that I'm still friends with today. It was almost like going to church camp for four and a half years."

Cunningham fondly remembers one cafeteria worker named Linda. "She would always say hello and ask how we are," Cunningham said. "The staff knew who you were and took the time to learn your name. Even though my parents lived far away, I felt like I was somewhere where people cared about me."

Because HSU hosts Super Summer camps, Cunningham has the opportunity to return to campus often. "I love seeing the new changes on campus and how it's growing," she said. "Regardless of how much time has passed, there is always someone welcoming you back to campus. It's a sweet feeling that makes me want to keep coming back."

Cunningham's mother, Teresa Jean (Vinson) Meeker, who goes by Jeanne, graduated from HSU in 1974. She met her husband, Jack Meeker during her sophomore year. The two were one of the first married couples to serve as Residence Directors for a dorm. Meeker remembers pranks the boys would pull on her and her husband. Once they heated a bowling ball on a hot plate and rolled it down the stairs. Another time they brought a car Eddy into the dorm lobby. They even bricked in the couple's doorway.

The pranks were all in good fun, however. The Meeker's residents often came to their door when they were feeling homesick. "We would counsel and encourage them and pray for them," Meeker said. "We would ask, 'What does God have for you here?' 'Why did you come in the first place?'" The couple would also invite international students to their home to share in holiday festivities.

The Meekers both worked on campus: Teresa in the Business Office and Jack as the night manager for the student center. They were involved with the rodeo team, the Six White Horses, the drama department, intramural sports, and choir.

When Meeker was considering her options for college, a hurricane damaged her hometown of Harlingen, Texas. Students from HSU came to help with clean-up and restoration during Spring Break. "I got close to the students," she said. "That tipped the scales for me in choosing HSU. It was all meant to be."

Meeker also went on mission trips with HSU. She traveled to El Paso to do mission work across the border and went on trips with a revival team to Indiana. "It was great to go somewhere out of your comfort zone," she said. "We continued that in our lives serving in ministries in children's homes and boys ranches."

Meeker's parents (Cunningham's grandparents) attended HSU as well. Peggy Vinson '51 was going on a date to the Paramount with someone when she saw Lester Vinson '51 walking. She asked her date to pick up Lester, and the two sat together in the back of the car and at the movies. The two were later married.

Cunningham's great-grandmother, Dorothy Thomas Warren, attended HSU when it was still called Simmons College. She received a signed certificate from then-President Lanny Hall when she turned 100.

Cunningham's aunt, Wanda Lynette Meeker also graduated from HSU, and her uncles Edward Vinson and Daniel Meeker attended.

Why the late-August heat beats the deadly alternatives America has seen

Special to the Herald

Much of the United States is experiencing either high temperatures, uncomfortable humidity – or both. But the end of August has brought much worse to the country over the last 15 years.

Hurricanes Katrina (Aug. 25, 2005), Isaac (Aug. 28, 2012) and Harvey (Aug. 25, 2017) all reached landfall at the end of August, costing American lives and billions in damages.

The forecast for late August 2019 is much more benign. AccuWeather meteorologists say there are no organized tropical features across the Atlantic basin that are a threat to land through at least Monday of next week, even though it is the most favorable time of the year for tropical development in the area.

Heat, however, is having an impact as a significant number of U.S. cities have experienced above-normal temperatures this summer. Consequently, estimated costs for cooling from May 1 through Aug. 20 compared to normal cooling costs are higher in those places, according to an AccuWeather analysis.

Boston (33.7% higher), Norfolk, Virginia (30.7%), Atlanta (27.5%) and Washington, D.C. (25.9%), have experienced substantially higher estimated cooling costs compared to normal.

Atlanta, as AccuWeather predicted before summer, is having an above-normal year, with temperatures hitting at least 90 degrees 58 times as of August 20, which is well above its 15-year average of 41 for the entire year. (AccuWeather predicted 60 such days.) Washington, D.C., has had 49 days of temperatures of at least 90 degrees, with its 15-year average being 41 for the year.

Others with higher-than-normal temperatures and the resulting elevated estimated costs for cooling include Philadelphia (22%), Cincinnati (21.5%), Gainesville, Florida (20.6%), Birmingham, Alabama (18.3%), and Indianapolis (18.1%).

The West can expect more heat next week, as temperatures are expected to soar west of the Rockies all the way to the West Coast, according to AccuWeather meteorologists. Temperatures in the West are expected to average anywhere from 6 to 16 degrees above late-August normal through next week.

There are some locations around the country not enduring such a hot summer. The Dallas-Fort Worth area has had 69 days of temperatures at 90 degrees or higher, though, the area has averaged 113 over the last 15 years. The area's estimated cooling costs are 21% lower than 2018.

Other places with temperatures lower than normal – and therefore lower estimated cooling costs – include Oklahoma City (11% below normal) and Little Rock, Arkansas (6% below normal and 14.9% lower than 2018).

And in St. Louis, there has yet to be a 100-degree day; this would be the first year since 2009 without such a day and just the fourth time in 20 years. There were seven 100-degree days in 2017 and 21 in 2012.

The cooling season, which typically begins May 1, can last until late in the year in many U.S. cities. The costs of cooling, including electricity, vary from year to year and from place to place, so the percentage change in your bill may vary from these percentages.

Bulldogettes split double header

Special to the Herald

STERLING CITY — The Coahoma Bulldogettes split their dual match on Tuesday winning their game against the Sterling City Lady Eagles — 25-23, 18-26, 25-22, 17-25, 15-5 — in five sets and losing in three sets to the Crane Ladybirds — 12-25, 18-25, 27-29.

In the first game, Crane dominated the first two sets against Coahoma, but the Bulldogettes charged back in the third nearly forcing a fourth set, and the Ladybirds had to go to 29 points for the win.

Shaking off the loss, the Coahoma girls entered their second match of the evening energized against Sterling City. Coahoma won the first and third set before salting away the match with a 15-5 win in set five.

The JV Red Bulldogettes also played in Sterling City on Tuesday. The Red team won both games: vs. Sterling City JV — 23-25, 25-6, 25-20 and vs. Olfen JV — 25-6, 25-14.

Next: Coahoma travels to Bronte for a varsity tournament on Friday. Game times are 11 a.m., 3 p.m., and

Pence 3 RBIs for Texas, another last-AB win against Angels

By STEPHEN HAWKINS

AP Baseball Writer

ARLINGTON, Texas — The old guys for the Texas Rangers got the big hits late for another win in their last at-bat. Another hard-throwing rookie reliever got his first big league victory.

Hunter Pence drove in three runs, including a game-ending single in the ninth to score Elvis Andrus for an 8-7 victory over the Los Angeles Angels on Wednesday night.

"We've got these young guys bringing a spark," said Pence, the 36-year-old hometown outfielder. "It's impressive to watch, and these young pitchers as well."

The Rangers won three times in the four-game series. All of the wins came in their final at-bat, including 11-inning wins in the series opener Monday and the second game of a doubleheader Tuesday.

Jonathan Hernández (1-0) worked the final 2 1/3 scoreless innings to win in his major league debut.

"It couldn't be a more difficult situation, especially with the way the game was kind of going," manager Chris Woodward said. "It's really cool to be a part of guys living out their dream. ... It's pretty special, especially on a nightly basis, I feel like it's happening every night."

It was the second night in a row for a Ranger to get his first big league win — 21-year-old Emmanuel Clase pitched the final two innings Tuesday night in his eighth appearance since his MLB debut earlier this month. Clase won the game started by Brock Burke, who threw six scoreless innings in his big league debut.

Elvis Andrus, the 31-year-old shortstop and the longest-tenured Ranger in his 11th season, led off the ninth with a single up the middle off Trevor Cahill (3-8). After two wild pitches got Andrus to third, Pence grounded a single through the left side of the infield.

Pence, who struck out his first three at-bats, had a two-out double in the seventh. Texas tied the game in the eighth on an RBI single by Shin-

Soo Choo, a 37-year-old outfielder.

"There's a ton of energy in that clubhouse," Woodward said. "I don't care how young you are. I don't care how old you are for that matter. We want to win."

Willie Calhoun, a 24-year-old outfielder, hit his 13th homer in the Texas second. Rookie Nick Solak had two doubles, scoring three times and drove in a run in his third big league game.

The Angels used seven pitchers, and the last four relievers combined to give up four runs over two innings. There were only two walks, but they were leadoff walks that both scored.

"Probably just ebbs and flows. You're not going to be great every single month," manager Brad Ausmus said about the bullpen struggles. "I wouldn't really attribute it to anything in particular, I think just a down month."

Texas, which twice earlier in the game blew two-run leads, was down 7-4 after a three-run Angels sixth that included two runs coming home on the same play that Justin Upton had a sacrifice fly.

With the bases loaded with one out, after an intentional walk to Mike Trout, Upton hit his sac fly. Left fielder Calhoun's throw home was well off target before catcher Jeff Mathis tried to pick off Trout, but first baseman Danny Santana misplayed the ball for an error that allowed a second run to score.

That ended the night for All-Star lefty Mike Minor, whose ERA rose from 2.94 to 3.17 after he allowed seven runs and 10 hits — both season highs. He struck out seven and walked two.

The Angels tied the game 4-all with two outs in the fifth when Albert Pujols had a tying two-run single that ricocheted off the top of the eight-foot wall in right. Pujols thought he had his 20th homer, but the ball was ruled in play when it bounced back onto the field, and that stood after a crew chief replay review.

WALK IT OFF

The Rangers have consecutive walk-off wins for the first time since May 2017 against San Diego. The last time they had three walk-off wins in the same series was in July 2013 against the Angels, with game-ending homers three games in a row.

SHORT HOPS

Hernández became the 13th pitcher to make his MLB debut with the Rangers this season. The previous club record had been 10 debuts in 14. ... The Angels finished 109-117 overall at the Rangers' ballpark in its 26th season. They will be the first visitor when Texas plays its 2020 regular season home opener in a new stadium across the street.

TRAINER'S ROOM

Angels: RHP Griffin Canning (elbow inflammation) returned to California and will be placed on the injured list for the second time this month.

UP NEXT

Angels: After a day off Thursday, the Angels open a three-game weekend series at AL West-leading Houston, where they have lost seven of their last eight games.

Rangers: Texas starts a four-game road series against the Chicago White Sox on Thursday night.

Opening lead — three of spades.

This hand was played in a rubber-bridge game many years ago by Camillo Pabis Ticci, well-known Italian star. The bidding was rather sporting, to say the least — especially East's double of six hearts.

At first or even second glance, it looks as if declarer must lose two spade tricks and go down one. But Pabis Ticci managed the play exceptionally well and made the slam.

West led the three of spades, which Pabis Ticci read as a probable singleton. After winning the spade with dummy's ace, he played the king of trump and then ruffed the six of clubs. Next he cashed the diamond ace and trumped a diamond in dummy, then ruffed dummy's jack of clubs and trumped his last diamond in dummy. The stage was now set for the elimination play he had planned from the outset.

Pabis Ticci led the king of clubs from dummy, but instead of ruffing it, he discarded the eight of spades. West won the trick with the ace but had to return a diamond or a club, allowing declarer to ruff in dummy while discarding the nine of spades from his hand. As a result, Pabis Ticci made six hearts redoubled to score 2,200 points instead of going down one for a loss of 400.

The loser-on-loser play, planned from the start, worked to perfection. In effect, Pabis Ticci exchanged a club trick he didn't have to lose for two spade tricks he seemed certain to lose — a profitable trade by any measure.

Tomorrow: Bidding quiz.

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

ARIES (March 21-April 19). If you're in the mood for a challenge, run from an active fear. It will surely take chase. And if you're not in the mood for a challenge and you simply want to start fresh, back away slowly.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). It's easier to be disciplined in front of other people. That's why going to the public gym will make you work harder than you would in a home gym, and why the atmosphere of an office brings out things that working from home couldn't.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). There's no need to self-scrutinize every move you make -- maybe just the repeated ones. Repeated behaviors have interesting stories to tell that are deep enough for you to interpret and reinterpret for years to come.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). As arbitrary as the initial move may be, it becomes an anchor for every move after. Remember this before you give something a name, decide on a price or introduce yourself.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). You'll work harder for some-

Friendship Fears

Dear Annie: I'm heading to college next year and am scared of making new friends. While I have don't have trouble talking to new people or getting along with most of them, I feel like none of them will understand my weirdness the same way my high school friends do.

My parents and I moved here from a different country, and my current group feels like my family because they are the ones who taught me American mannerisms and accept me for my neuroticism and other quirks. I even talked about the fact that it took me a week to learn what "knock on wood" meant in my college essays! While I know that we will still remain friends after we are spread out across the country, it obviously won't be the same, and I know it is unhealthy to latch onto old friendships and hold them in the same regard as they were before.

How do I find a comparable group of people in college? I don't want to go through the same thing I did in the beginning of high school, where I bounced around groups for a year before I found my "people." -- Freshman Once Again

Dear Freshman Once Again: Your concerns are understandable. Just like you found your "people" in high school, I have no doubt that you will find them once again. Now that you know what you are looking for, and because you are older and wiser, you will be able to find new friends faster.

One of the best ways to predict future behavior is to look at past behavior, and your past looks pretty good. While you had a bit of a rough start, you were able to make great friends. Focus on your success and know that you will have more in college. Your neuroticism and quirks are what make you uniquely you! And anyone who is fortunate enough to be your friend will love that about you. If we were all the same, this world would be a very boring place.

As for your high school friends, some will be your friends for life and others will go their separate ways.

Dear Annie: This is in response to the woman whose husband would not go on walks with her. My husband walks every day, just like this woman. It has helped him to stay healthy in many ways. For years, he wanted me to go walking with him. Once he even said to me, "I don't understand why you won't go walking with me!" I was just as adamant that I was not going walking. I hate walking and find it boring.

Like her husband, I had joint pain and weight to lose. I found my own way to exercise. I bought a bike and have been an avid cyclist ever since. My joints are less painful when I ride. My mental health issues have improved, and I have lost weight. I encourage this woman to back off the walking issue. He needs to figure out what exercise works for him. If it isn't on his terms, he won't do it. She might want to encourage him to find the best exercise for him and then support that decision.

My husband is very supportive of my cycling. He has rescued me from many downpours and flat tires. I appreciate his support greatly, and we both bolster each other in our quest to be healthy. -- Feeling Healthy

Dear Healthy: Thank you for sharing your story, and congratulations on your newfound healthy habit. The best exercise is the one that you do, and it sounds like you found a great one! Keep cycling.

Today is Thursday, Aug. 22, the 234th day of 2019. There are 131 days left in the year.
 Today's Highlight in History:
 On August 22, 1851, the schooner America outraced more than a dozen British vessels off the English coast to win a trophy that came to be known as the America's Cup.
 On this date:
 In 1787, inventor John Fitch demonstrated his steamboat on the Delaware River to delegates from the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia.
 In 1910, Japan annexed Korea, which remained under Japanese control until the end of World War II.
 In 1932, the British Broadcasting Corp. conducted its first experimental television broadcast, using a 30-line mechanical system.
 In 1956, President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Vice President Richard Nixon were nominated for second terms in office by the Republican National Convention in San Francisco.
 In 1972, President Richard Nixon was nominated for a second term of office by the Republican National Convention in Miami Beach.
 In 1978, President Jomo Kenyatta, a leading figure in Kenya's struggle for independence, died; Vice President Daniel arap Moi was sworn in as acting president.
 In 1986, Kerr-McGee Corp. agreed to pay the estate of the late Karen Silkwood $1.38 million, settling a 10-year-old nuclear contamination lawsuit. The Rob Reiner coming-of-age film "Stand By Me" was put into wide release by Columbia Pictures.
 In 1989, Black Panthers co-founder Huey P. Newton was shot to death in Oakland, California. (Gunman Tyrone Robinson was later sentenced to 32 years to life in prison.)
 In 1992, on the second day of the Ruby Ridge siege in Idaho, an FBI sharpshooter killed Vicki Weaver, the wife of white separatist Randy Weaver (the sharpshooter later said he was targeting the couple's friend Kevin Harris, and didn't see Vicki Weaver).
 In 1996, President Bill Clinton signed welfare legislation ending guaranteed cash payments to the poor and demanding work from recipients.
 In 2003, Alabama's chief justice, Roy Moore, was suspended for his refusal to obey a federal court order to remove his Ten Commandments monument from the rotunda of his courthouse. Texas Gov. Rick Perry pardoned 35 people arrested in the 1999 Tulia drug busts and convicted on the testimony of a lone undercover agent. (The agent, Tom Coleman, was later found guilty of aggravated perjury and sentenced to 10 years' probation.)

 In 2004, as shocked spectators watched, armed thieves stole one of four versions of the Edward Munch masterpiece "The Scream" and a second Munch painting, "Madonna," from the Munch museum in Oslo, Norway. (The paintings, visibly damaged, were recovered in Aug. 2006; three men were convicted in connection with the theft and sentenced to prison.)
 Ten years ago: Dozens of wildfires broke out across Greece, torching olive groves, cutting off villages and sending residents fleeing as one of the largest blazes swept perilously close to the capital's northern suburbs.
 Five years ago: Tensions between Russia and Ukraine escalated sharply as Moscow sent more than 130 trucks rolling across the border in what it said was a mission to deliver humanitarian aid. The United Nations reported the death toll from three years of Syria's civil war had risen to more than 191,000 people. Gunmen attacked a Sunni mosque in Iraq during Friday prayers and killed at least 64 people.
 One year ago: The bull market in U.S. stocks became the longest one on record; it had been 3,453 days since the S&P 500 index had seen a drop of 20 percent or more. Ohio State suspended football coach Urban Meyer for three games; investigators found that Meyer had protected an assistant coach for years through domestic violence allegations, a drug problem and poor job performance. President Donald Trump accused his former lawyer, Michael Cohen, of making up stories in order to get a deal from federal prosecutors. A Democratic Party official said an assistant coach for years through domestic violence allegations, a drug problem and poor job performance. Verlander allows 2 HRs in 2-hitter, loses 2-1 to Tigers

By KRISTIE RIEKEN

AP Sports Writer

HOUSTON — Justin Verlander was splendid against the Detroit Tigers, pitching a two-hitter and fanning 11 in another dominant performance for the Astros.

Houston's offense wasn't nearly as sharp on Wednesday night, and it led to an unusual, tough-luck 2-1 loss.

"Just an incredible performance," manager A.J. Hinch said. "Just not one that we could help him with. We wasted a really good start by our starting pitcher."

John Hicks and Ronny Rodriguez homered off Verlander — the only two baserunners he allowed.

"The two times I gave in and gave them a fast-ball, they hit a homer on it," said Verlander, who has been critical of Major League Baseball for what he believes are intentional changes to the ball that have led to more home runs. "Baseball in 2019. I didn't go out of the stretch at all the entire game, and we lost. I don't know what else to say."

With Verlander on the mound at home against the worst team in the majors, the Astros were more than a 5-1 favorite, one of the biggest favorites in an MLB game that Las Vegas oddsmakers could remember.

Hicks led off the ninth with a tiebreaking blast to left-center field off Verlander (15-5), who leads the majors in strikeouts with 239 but ranks second in homers allowed with 33.

Hicks has a long history with Verlander. His brother Daniel went to high school with him and was in his wedding to supermodel Kate Upton in 2017.

"It's surreal for sure," Hicks said. "I remember being 10 years old watching him and my brother play in high school and watching him dominate."

Verlander retired the first 14 batters, with six strikeouts, before Rodriguez homered to the seats in right with two outs in the fifth. The veteran right-hander sat down another 10 straight before Hicks connected.

"That's the biggest win for us in a long, long time, especially against a premium team like that, a World Series contender and Verlander on the mound," Detroit manager Ron Gardenhire said. "In Detroit we got him last year at the All-Star break and we got him again, but we really didn't get him very much tonight."

Verlander, who spent 13 seasons with the Tigers, didn't fault the offense.

"I don't blame anybody but myself," he said. "I could have done a better job executing pitches there in the ninth inning."

He threw 99 pitches and extended his franchise record of games with 10 or more strikeouts to seven as he lost for the first time since June 18.

Robinson Chirinos belted his 14th homer to left-center on Tyler Alexander's first pitch of the seventh to tie it at 1. Chirinos finished with four hits. Needing a triple for the cycle, he doubled with two outs in the ninth but was thrown out trying to reach third to end the game.

"When you make a mistake like that, you don't deserve to win the game," Chirinos said.

Opener Daniel Norris allowed two hits in three innings for Detroit. Alexander worked four innings, Buck Farmer (5-4) walked one in a scoreless eighth and Joe Jimenez finished the Tigers' six-hitter for his fourth save.

Jose Altuve walked with one out in the eighth, but was erased when he tried to go first to third on an infield grounder by Alex Bregman to end the inning.

TRAINER'S ROOM

Astros: RHP Josh James (shoulder soreness) will begin a rehabilitation assignment with Triple-A Round Rock on Thursday night. Hinch said James, who has been out since July 23, likely won't rejoin the team until September. ... INF Aledmys Diaz took batting practice on Wednesday and could come off the injured list early next week. Diaz was hospitalized Aug. 17 after experiencing dizziness on the team bus in Oakland.

NATURE BOY CALLS

Houston outfielder Josh Reddick, who has used WWE star Ric Flair's signature yell of "Woooo!" for years instead of walk-up music, hosted the flamboyant Flair at the game on Wednesday night. Reddick, who had a day off on Wednesday, donned a wrestling robe and championship belt when he came on the field during batting practice to greet the 70-year-old. Flair was decked out in gold jewelry, including necklaces, a bracelet and a blinged-out watch, and wore a white Astros jersey with his nickname, "Nature Boy," printed on the back.

Reddick called Flair his hero and the wrestler was asked to describe the ballplayer.

"He's married now, but before he was married ... Josh Reddick would have been a kiss-stealing, wheeling-dealing, limousine-riding, jet-flying, home run-hitting Houston Astro," Flair said.

Flair bounced the ceremonial first pitch to Reddick, who was crouched behind the plate.

UP NEXT

Tigers: RHP Jordan Zimmermann (1-8, 6.66 ERA) is scheduled to start for Detroit when the series wraps up on Thursday night. Zimmermann allowed just one hit in five scoreless innings in his last start against Tampa Bay, but did not factor in the decision.

Astros: RHP Gerrit Cole (14-5, 2.87) will start on Thursday after being scratched from his last start on Aug. 15 because of discomfort in his right hamstring. Cole, who ranks second in the majors with 226 strikeouts, has won his last 10 decisions.

Cowboys, LB Smith agree on extension amid Elliott holdout

By SCHUYLER DIXON

AP Pro Football Writer

FRISCO, Texas — When the Dallas Cowboys announced a contract extension for Jaylon Smith, it was first a celebration of the linebacker's journey from a career-threatening knee injury in college to one of the NFL's richest contracts at his position.

Of course, it didn't take long for the focus to turn to holdout running back Ezekiel Elliott, or the question of deals for quarterback Dak Prescott and receiver Amari Cooper with each entering the final year of his rookie contract.

"There is less pie left," owner Jerry Jones said Tuesday. "Make no bones about it. There is less pie."

Smith and the Cowboys agreed on a $64 million, five-year extension with $33.5 million guaranteed for the 2016 second-round pick. The average annual value of $12.8 million on the extension is among the top five for inside linebackers.

The 24-year-old essentially lost a year on his rookie contract because Smith spent his rookie season on the non-football injury list after the devastating left knee injury in his final game at Notre Dame, where was an All-American in 2015.

Both sides said the deal came together in a matter of days amid continuing talk of the missing Elliott, the two-time rushing champion who wants a new contract while having two years left on the current one. Elliott's holdout has lasted almost a month.

"For me it's about being a Dallas Cowboy for life," Smith said. "Really, technically, with the tender year, the Cowboys have my rights for two more years. For us to get an extension like this, is just a testament to how much we love one another and we believe in one another as well."

Smith started all 16 games for the Cowboys last season, when he was second on the team in tackles (150) and tackles for loss (five). He played in all 16 games, with six starts, when he made his NFL debut in 2017.

Before nerve damage associated with tearing a ligament in his knee during Notre Dame's 44-28 loss to Ohio State in the Orange Bowl on New Year's Day 2016, Smith was considered a top prospect. While plenty of teams wondered if he could play again, the Cowboys took him with the 34th overall pick.

"He has never complained," Jones said while fighting his emotions. "He has never wavered. Never missed a workout. And he's never quit. Not one time. His story is one that I would have done anything to be sure that it could be sure that it could be a Dallas Cowboys story."

Smith struggled in his first season, in part because the Cowboys had to rely on him more than planned because of injuries to Sean Lee. The progress was dramatic last year as the defense helped keep Dallas in contention while the offense struggled.

The Cowboys won the NFC East, beat Seattle in a wild-card game and lost to the Los Angeles Rams in the divisional round.

"I couldn't lift my foot for a year and two months," Smith said of the time after the injury. "They were able to show their true belief in me. It's just the beginning. I received my new contract after only 22 starts. So I've got a bunch of starts left."

Rejuvenated Brown savors return to coaching with Tar Heels

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Mack Brown has accomplished nearly everything a college coach could want, from winning a national championship to being inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame.

Yet the 67-year-old Brown is choosing to stand in the heat and thick humidity on the North Carolina practice fields, typing out notes on his smartphone while watching drills for the program he's charged with turning around once again.

Brown is back in college coaching for the first time since the 2013 season. His return comes at the same program he built into top-10 national status more than two decades earlier. It's familiar surroundings for Brown to reconnect with the profession he missed while working in broadcasting since last coaching at Texas.

"Every day that I coach," Brown said, "reinforces the fact that I love this stuff and I should be doing it."

The Tar Heels are hoping Brown's veteran touch, polished with shining success at every stop, and his familiarity with the program he once coached for a decade has made him the perfect choice to stop the freefall that ended Larry Fedora's seven-year coaching tenure.

They won 11 games, cracked the top 10 in the Top 25 poll and played in the Atlantic Coast Conference championship game as recently as 2015. But UNC has lost 21 of 27 games dating to November 2016, including a league-worst 2-14 ACC record through 2017 and 2018. Along the way, the Tar Heels had multiple losses in which they kept finding ways to hand over fourth-quarter leads, struggled in recruiting and saw plenty of empty seats in their Kenan Stadium home.

That didn't deter Brown, who returns as the winningest active coach in the Bowl Subdivision ranks (244 wins) ahead of Alabama's Nick Saban (232) and Notre Dame's Brian Kelly (231). He led Texas to nine 10-win seasons during a 16-year run there, including an unbeaten 2005 season that ended with Vince Young and the Longhorns edging USC in a Rose Bowl classic.

Before that, he coached the Tar Heels from 1988-97, surviving two 1-10 seasons to start his tenure and pushing the Tar Heels to a 20-3 mark in his final two years.

Brown has talked about how he likes "to fix things" since returning to Chapel Hill, then spent the spring pushing players for more with his familiar affable demeanor.

"That's why I sit with different sets of young guys at lunch every day and dinner at night, so I can ask questions and talk to them," Brown said. "So between trying to mentor the young people and pick them up, trying to help our coaches with the knowledge that I've had in coaching . trying to help a team that has no confidence get some confidence and how do you win fourth-quarter games — we constantly talk about that. And I love all that stuff."

UNC opens against South Carolina in Charlotte on Aug. 31, though there have already been off-field gains. The school sold out its season tickets for the first time in at least a decade. The Tar Heels have also taken a jump in recruiting — something Brown thrived in both in his first stint at UNC and later at Texas — to 17th nationally in 247sports.com's rankings for next year's class.

"I think he has an unbelievable ability to make people feel like they can do more than they believe they can do," athletic director Bubba Cunningham said in June. "I think he inspires people. I think he draws people to him and to his program."

Brown said the first step was building trust with the players he inherited, noting last month they had gone through losing, a coaching change and then "here comes this new guy in that's been out of coaching for five years."

Tight end Jake Bargas said Brown sold the players by telling them: "You work for me and I'll work for you."

"I think once you're a coach, you're always a coach," Bargas said. "You could tell his heart's in this. It doesn't matter, I think age is just a number. He's out here and he wants to be here, you can tell. He's passionate about it and we're passionate about it. You put those two things together, you're going to succeed."

Brown talks with the same enthusiasm. He turns 68 four days before the opener and has six grandchildren, yet said he has more energy and excitement now than at the end of his Longhorns tenure.

He figures he's won here before — and can do it again.

"I've got that edge back," Brown said. "I've got that excitement back. I can't wait until the (coaches) meeting. I can't wait to see kids at lunch and tell them, 'That's better, that was better, that's what I'm talking about.' That's really fun for me."
