By ANNA GUTIERREZ

Let Construction begin. CASA of West Texas will soon have a new location in Big Spring, serving Howard County.

CASA of West Texas held a groundbreaking ceremony Wednesday on the site where the new building will be located, at the corner of 19th St. and Scurry.

According to Patty Pisklak, CASA of West Texas Executive Director, there were 130 children in Howard County alone served by CASA, and this new building will support not only Howard County, but other counties as well.

Eviction notice served on animal sanctuary Gambrell forced to move after 20+ years

By AMANDA DUFORAT
 Managing Editor

For more than 20 years Melanie Gambrell has been offering a sanctuary for abandoned animals throughout Texas. In recent months that sanctuary has not only been shaken, but had to be relocated due to an eviction notice received by a local oil company.

"The land switched owners a long time ago, more than 17 years ago, after we had already been on the property and made it our home," Gambrell said. "However, after inquiring about buying the land outright instead of making rent payments, I was told it would be sold to me as soon as the sale was complete and full ownership was in the hands of the oil company. A simple handshake - which used to be a binding contract in West Texas - solidified my belief that the land would soon become ours."

From the day of that handshake, the oil company and Gambrell continued a renter - tenant type of relationship. Every month like clockwork, Gambrell submitted payment and poured heart, soul and finances into the property, treating it as her home.

"For I don't know how many years now, I haven't had water. I transported my own water to the farm. I made every repair that was needed on the property; not once did the oil company ever set foot on the property, make repairs, or act as a landlord. After all these years, and all the money poured in - an amount that has far exceeded the amount to purchase the land - I thought I was

Marlin Garth Hyder

Marlin Garth Hyder, 86, of Big Spring, Texas, passed away Saturday, Sept. 21, 2019. A memorial service will be held at 2 p.m., Saturday, Oct. 12, 2019, at First Nazarene Church, 1400 S. Lancaster, Big Spring, Texas.

Garth was born April 19, 1933, in Winters, Texas, to Clyde and Lorene Hyder.

He served in the military for three years. Then he began a 40-year career in Sweet Home, Oregon, driving a logging truck. Upon retirement, he moved to Big Spring and became part of First Nazarene Church. He was drawn by the welcoming love and fellowship of the pastor and all the members of the congregation. He loved Jesus, and he knew he had found his place. He became involved in helping prepare "burrito breakfast" each Sunday morning for the youth, worship and God filled messages, attending men's fellowship, Saturday evening bible study, the annual "Drive Through Nativity", and helping fill thousands of Easter eggs for the city-wide Easter Egg Hunt.

He was a highly skilled woodworker, creating unique pieces. This was his way of sharing his amazing God-given talent and love with family and friends.

He is survived by two sisters, Norvene Owen, of Plainview, Texas, and Rita Glasscock, of College Station, Texas; and a host of loving nieces, nephews, cousins, and lifetime friends.

Garth was preceded in death by his father, Clyde Hyder; his mother, Lorene Hyder; and his brother, Mel Hyder.

Our family would like to express our thanksgiving to the Lord Jesus Christ for directing Garth's steps to Big Spring 13 years ago and filling his life with joy and fulfillment.

In lieu of flowers, the family suggests donations to First Nazarene Church "Drive Through Nativity", 1400 S. Lancaster, Big Spring, TX 79720.

Arrangements are under the direction of Nalley-Pickle and Welch Funeral Home and Crematory. Online condolences may be made at www.npwelch.com.

home," Gambrell said.

Gambrell is the owner and operator of All Creatures Sanctuary and Rescue. What started out as Gambrell's passion for helping animals and her rescuing a possum - who lived in the trash can at work until she could get off shift to take him home - has turned into more than 50 animals residing with her currently, and hundreds more saved.

"After not hearing from the oil company after all these years, I received an eviction notice saying I had 30 days to get out," Gambrell said. "After several failed attempts of trying to speak with the oilfield company; the original field hand who had made the handshake with us about the property was no longer with the company and it looks like with him went the promise and agreement."

After receiving the eviction notice with the support of a close friend, Gambrell was able to get enough money to fight against the oil company with legal action. However, once again Gambrell was up against another barrier.

"The lawyer we found ended up taking the money we gave him and never did any work, never responded to the oil company, and in the final days of our window of opportunity, he told me it was time to find a new place."

Through the heartbreak and the uncertainty, Gambrell and her roommate - Ted Morally - gathered together a few close friends and loaded up 50 animals, and within a few short weeks, moved more than 20 years of history to a new home.

"While we were lucky enough to have a new place to go because my roommate could see the writing on the wall, which I couldn't or chose not to I guess, and purchased land, there was so much that had to be left behind," Gambrell said. "So many of my animals - who were my family - are buried on that 160 acres. Not only did I have to leave them behind, I had to leave so much of what had made our home, home."

While all 50 animals have been relocated to the new sanctuary location, the stress amongst the animals and Gambrell is far from over. With winter right around the corner and cooler temperatures popping up in the forecast, the need for warm housing is becoming immediate. According to Gambrell, she is in need of six more Pet Taxis, which will be used as housing for the animals throughout the winter months.

"I am still hoping that in the end, the land we called home will be ours again, but at the same time I think our new location is going to be the new Sanctuary," she said. "I have been in this community for so many years and over those years have formed connections, built trust in the community and saved so many animals. I just don't understand how anyone could do this, just take someone's home."

For those who want to support Gambrell in her mission, donations can be made at the GoFundMe account - search Melanie Gambrell - and it can also be found on Facebook. If more information is needed, messages can also be sent to Gambrell via Messenger, just search Melanie Carr Gambrell.

DAILY PRAYER

Dear Lord, Your word is the beacon of light shining down on our path of life.

Amen

Cindy's Bookshelf

My bare feet slip on the mud as I run. Heavy footfalls echo around me, but I don't dare turn around.

Branches whip against my arms and face as I try to quicken my pace. The trees begin to thin and I see the glimmer of lights. Thunder rolls overhead and a torrential rain cascades down.

I see the gates and movement along the top. Never in my life have I been so relieved to see the royal guardsmen.

"Open the gates."

I shout as I burst through the trees.

I hear the men shouting and the comforting sound of the gate swinging on its hinges. A roar of anger shatters my sense of security.

Just a few more feet between me and the gate. Branches snap and the ground shakes with the tremor of a monstrous footfall. I slip on the wet ground and sprawl forward. Above me, I hear a voice bark a command and the gate begins to close.

No.

They can't leave me out here. Pushing myself up, I try to rise to my feet. Mud sucks me back to the earth. As if with a sigh, hot breath shoots across my back. Frozen with terror, my breath catches in my throat. I clench my eyes shut. The gate stops creaking. It's closed then. The city is safe, and I will die.

Images of my mother and sister flash through my mind. Guilt stabs my heart. It was stupid to sneak out of the city, even though I did it for them. The clop of hooves echoes around me and a battle cry rings out.

Opening my eyes, I see a stampede of knights rushing out of the open gate. I rise to my feet as they form a circle around me. I realize that they think I am the danger.

Hidden

"Hands up, where I can see them." One of them shouts.

His armor is different from the rest. Shiny where the others' is dull. A plume of navy puffs out of his helmet.

The prince.

Without hesitation, I shoot my hands to the sky. I'm not about to be killed by my rescuers.

"Not you, him."

Whirling around, I find myself face to face with the boy from the market. My heart freezes in my chest. I saw him die. His dirty hair falls over his forehead and his eyes are as deep as the night sky.

A grimace is plastered to his face and I notice a slight trepidation as he raises his hands for the prince. He doesn't meet my gaze even though I stare openly, my jaw hanging open. He notices my stare and the corner of his mouth quirks up.

He winks at me as a soldier grabs my arm. He asks me a question I don't hear. The boy smiles, revealing razor sharp teeth.

He raises a finger to his lips as the screams begin.

The Postscript: Slow Travelers

Peter and I are packing for our annual trip again.

My husband, Peter, is retired and I write, so we are able to travel now. Getting married late in life, this might have posed some problems because Peter is exactly the opposite sort of traveler I used to be.

"I'm packing two separate bags—one for Spain and one for on the way there," Peter informs me. "This will mean some duplication, but it will simplify things when it's time to fly!" Peter is obviously pleased with himself.

I used to take pride in traveling light. I fit all my clothes and everything I needed in a small backpack or a carry-on suitcase and hit the road with little idea of where I was going.

This was a lot of fun and I had some fine adventures. Then I met Peter.

"Should we bring the paella pan?" Peter asks. We bought the pan in Spain. We are going to Spain.

"I think they'll probably have one," I say, knowing that (if they do not) Peter will insist on adding a paella pan to the list of things we bring overseas every year.

In addition to sharp knives

(which, I concede, every traveler needs) Peter packs spices and utensils. He brings clothes for every contingency. He brings coffee and something to make it in. Peter has first aid supplies for every illness, repair kits for every emergency, maps and receipts for every misunderstanding. Traveling with Peter means having everything you could possibly need tucked away in some bag or another—and extra bags, just in case.

"Don't forget Ziplocs!" Peter cautions me. In the list of things that are hard to find outside the U.S., resealable bags are near the top of the list. Don't travel without them—that's our motto.

It is surprising, actually, how little push-back I've given Peter on his packing style. Rather than fight it, I've embraced it wholeheartedly.

I wistfully remember the days I travelled with two pair of shoes (one on my feet) as I tuck another pair into my bag. "So much room!" I think. "Why not bring my black suede boots?" There really is no going back.

But, now that I've adjusted my packing style, Peter and I are surprisingly compatible travelers. We are both slow travelers.

Like me, Peter does not like to dash around from place to place when we are somewhere new.

We like to hunker down, usually in an inexpensive Airbnb (with all our sharp knives and spices and emergency equipment) and take our time. Avoiding the cost of tickets and transport and tips, getting to know where the inexpensive markets and restaurants are, finding a great discount on lodging for a longer stay—all these things make traveling less expensive. But, for us, it is also more fun.

We loiter in the market long enough to acquire a favorite kind of olive or cheese and try some vegetable we have trouble identifying.

"That is the ugliest, tastiest tomato ever," I tell Peter.

"Let's buy more tomorrow," Peter says.

We find the local parks and hiking trails. We learn the best time to buy bread and pastries. We watch the same woman walk her dog, the same man talking to himself, the same young couple as they fall in and out of love. Traveling slowly allows us to feel a part of a place, to imagine it is our home for a while, to wonder what it would be like to live a different life entirely.

Except that we have Ziplocs. And really sharp knives.

*Till next time,
Carrie*

3-D printing, which uses thin layers of plastic or other materials to build a 3-D model of an object described by a computer program, is now part of the educational mix at Big Spring High School.

By COLONEL ALLEN "M" MORRIS

Communications Director Big Spring High

New technologies are nothing new, but it just feels new and frustrating when another new one comes along --all progress is change, but not all change is progress.

It must have been frustrating for others when the printing press was invented almost 600 years ago and scribes started to see that they would soon be out of a job. It's that way at Big Spring High too: change happens and so does progress.

In the early days, school was under a buffalo-hide tent beside the Big Spring and then someone got the idea to build a building, to put in plumbing and then electricity and then...

There was a time too when the first copy machine entered the school and if you are the right age, you will remember the smell of that blue ink. Perhaps you were one of the ones selected to turn the crank to make the copies, but those copies and the subsequent ones to come were just flat ink on a page. You can think of them as being two-dimensional or having no real thickness.

And then the day came when when copies could be printed in three dimensions. That day was last Monday at Big Spring High when the first 3D printer arrived.

It used to be Science Fiction that a person should walk up to a machine and ask for a cup of tea; then the machine would make a cup of tea. We can make the cup now, but are still a ways out from making some Earl Gray tea from elements.

Over the coming weeks and months, BSHS students will have the opportunity to think of something, learn how to draw it in 3D in Cyber Space and then print it in Real-Space.

We live in fantastic times and if you are interested in learning more about 3D printing reach out to me, Allen Morris, and let's chat. Efforts are afoot to start a "Technical Group" for adults whereby we explore new technologies, take field trips, share ideas and basically continue our own education. You can reach me at Colonel.Allen.M.Morris@gmail.com secondary education, the workplace, and in society. The month of September was devoted to learning how to (1) manage files, (2) create and edit a Word document with a picture, (3) format text, and (4) format paragraphs.

Real-world projects and assignments have ranged from the creation of advertisement flyers to creating documents with mathematic equations and symbols to creating invitations and menu lists.

Students will continue to enhance their word processing skills before beginning Microsoft's spreadsheet program, Excel. The goal is to prepare students to take a certification exam in Microsoft Office and Excel by the end of the school year. This means that the students who successfully pass these exams will be certified users and operators of the Microsoft Office programs, Word and Excel. These are used in all types of career fields and industries. #skillsforlife

Academic Star Student of the Week

Ransom Colette, Big Spring High School Class of 2021

This week's Star Student from Big Spring High is Ransom Colette. He's in the class of 2021 and is the son of Lee and Loryne Colette.

He says, "There are a lot of things that are important to me. First, there's family. My family supports me in everything I do and they're there for me any time I need them. Second, there are my friends. My friends support me and keep me sane through the tough parts of life. Next, there is effort. Effort is everything. Effort is the only way someone can improve and achieve goals. Lastly, there is knowledge. The pursuit of knowledge is what keeps us humans from being animals. The pursuit of knowledge is what defines us as a species, and it's what drives me to learn as much as I can."

A quick review of those who know Ransom show that his reputation is golden. According to Big Spring High School Principal Mike Ritchey, "Ransom Colette is a snapshot of what all BSHS students should aspire to become. He exemplifies every attribute that we as a staff seek for all of our BSHS students. Ransom is involved with multiple extra-curricular activities along with challenging himself with the most rigorous course offerings that BSHS has to offer. Our main mantra at BSHS is 'Better is good but Excellence is our goal' and Ransom is really close to excellence."

It is clear that Ransom can see the future and his part in it. About his future he says, "I want to accomplish many things in my life. After high school, I will go to college and get a degree in mathematics. I also plan to minor in music. I want to get a well-paying job as a mathematician and perform as a musician for fun and a little bit of extra money."

Regarding his favorite quote, "My favorite one is 'And in the end, the love you take is equal to the love you make.' - The Beatles."

Ransom has always been a good student but what makes him exceptional is his drive. He is driven to be first in his class. He challenges himself with advanced classes and keeps up with it all by his organization. He has a folder for everything. He is driven to excel in tennis. He almost never misses a practice and they practice all year long. He started on Varsity as a freshman and has moved his way up to second in Boy's Doubles and fourth in Boy's Singles. He is driven in UIL Academics. He competes in Number Sense, Calculator, Math and Science. He started this in Sixth grade. He has practice two hours, twice a week. He made it to Regional's last year in Math, Number Sense and Calculator. He is driven in Band. He plays the oboe and the tuba. He has made All-Region band since seventh grade, last year he was first chair and made All-Area. He is drum major and devotes many, many hours to help make The Pride Drive band the best.

Another top thing about Ransom is even with all his hard work and dedication, he still makes time for family, friends and fun. In fact, he brings his sense of fun to all his activities.

Dr. Mo Seghier, a man of few but important words says about Ransom, "His work ethic: off the chart. His dedication to purpose: off the chart. His character: stellar. His conduct: exemplary."

Madam Mullins, the lady at the high school who helps students learn to communicate in French says about Ransom, "If a teacher is lucky, the teacher gets to teach great students. I have been truly blessed by quite a few great students. Ransom is at the top of even that list. This is the third year I have had the honor of helping Ransom improve his French. He is funny, cooperative, hard-working, self-motivated, bright, charming, easy-going, fair-minded, and ..."

Congratulations, Ransom!

Fire Prevention Week

Courtesy photo

In honor of Fire Prevention Week, Mrs. Barclay's first grade class welcomed a special guest, Lieutenant Jordan Barron from Station 4. Lt. Barron did a phenomenal job explaining the responsibilities of a fireman and some of the tools they use during emergency situations. He even put on all of his gear for the class and students saw first-hand just how much equipment is required to safely put out fires. The class was thankful that Lt. Barron took the time to educate them about fire safety and hopefully he inspired some future firefighters along the way.

Annie's Mailbox

No Need to Be Friends

Dear Annie: My boyfriend broke up with me pretty suddenly and over the phone right after spring semester ended. We haven't talked over the summer, and now that school started this fall, it's been pretty awkward. I still have feelings for him and a lot of questions. Since we haven't talked to each other for about four months, I don't know how to start talking to him again. I don't even know if talking to him is a good idea.

After he broke up with me, he said he still wanted to be good friends, and I told him that I honestly didn't think I could be friends with him. I don't know what to do. What do you think I should do? -- Uneasy at University

Dear Uneasy at University: I think you ought to listen to your heart, which seems to be saying that it needs more time to heal. So, be cordial when you run into your ex-boyfriend -- wish him all the best -- but put your energy into nourishing friendships, interests and your sense of self. One day you might be able to be friends with this ex, but that day is not today. And that is 100% OK.

Dear Annie: I was shocked to read that "Fearing the Future" is so pessimistic at 67. I am

91 and recently wrote the following poem:

"The Optimist"

"Why live to one hundred?" asked my friend.
"Isn't ninety enough to make a good end?"
"I think of the things I would miss," I replied,
"If, at ninety, I stopped and simply died."
Thousands of mornings to see the sun rise
In a glorious blaze in the eastern skies.
Moons to wax and wane anew,
Trillions of stars in the midnight blue.
Ten springs to see the lilacs bloom
As their fragrance drifts across my room.
To see new leaves on the maple tree
As the birds return and sing to me.
Ten summers to feel the ocean breeze
As whales cavort in blue-green seas,
To watch the hawks on the thermals rise
Into the blue of summer skies.
Ten more harvests to celebrate
Of apple and peach and pear and date.
To anticipate the vintner's wines
From fresh new grapes on ancient vines.
Ten more autumns in which to see
The change of color on every tree, Russets and golds and

reds ablaze
To brighten the ever-shortening days.
Ten winters of freshly fallen snow
On mountains above and valleys below.
Of cherry-cheeked children on skis and sleds,
Of blazing hearths and soft warm beds.
Ten Christmas seasons of church bells rung,
Of mince pies eaten and carols sung.
Of families gathered to celebrate
The wonder of that age-old date.
Ten more New Years to welcome in,
To wonder what the year will bring.
Will there be a new baby for me to see?
A great-grandchild on my family tree?
I strive for another decade of living,
Of hoping and praying and loving and giving.
And, if I reach one hundred, what then?
Why, I'd plan to live to one hundred and ten!
-- Beryl in Keizer, Oregon

Dear Beryl: Thank you for lighting the way with optimism. Your poem made my day a little brighter, and I'm sure it will do the same for many readers.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Libra Sun Check-in

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Ideas inspire but until you implement the knowledge you really don't know anything. As part of your body, your brain needs to feel the entire system in action in order to assimilate things right.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). If only you could order up the people you want to meet, picking them out of a menu as you would a chicken salad. Wait, you actually can do this, either digitally online, or spiritually. The spiritual way works better.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Could you do it alone? Yes. Should you? No. It won't be as fun. You won't remember it as well. It will be harder to motivate yourself to the finish line. Use the accountability built into groups.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). Things are only complicated until you understand how they work. Even the knottiest situation comes unraveled when you know which string to cut, or, in today's situation, where the power button is located.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Is your strategy working? Right now, it's hard to tell through the dim fog of complication. Don't let it stop you. Assume all is well and inch your way forward. Better to hang on a moment longer than to quit when you're almost there!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). What you give to others is an easy smile, a warmth, a receptiveness that lets them know they are being seen, heard and appreciated in the best possible light. This gift is worth more than gold.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Repeating your stories to others may be a social faux pas, but repeating them to yourself is personal development. Why not write it down? Give yourself the chance to frame things, if possible, in a way that's joyful.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Once you lost a cellphone in your own house, proving that things can get tricky in familiar environments where you're moving quickly and unconsciously. You need others to call you so you'll remember where you've been.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). People learn better when various senses are utilized including touch. A simple, reassuring pat on the shoulder will actually help comprehension. Whether you're the student or teacher, you can use the principle.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). Among the specific qualities you're looking for in a companion, a good sense of humor will top the list. Also, laughter has a way of eliminating your need for some of the other qualities, rendering them null and void.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). The fun part of your day will include research and gathering data. Not everyone who agrees to help you will come through, but don't stress. The ones who do show up will be just the ones you need.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). One reason you're afraid to relax is that you don't entirely trust what's going on around you. Will it be OK to let down your guard? Is your vigilance necessary to keep this world spinning? There's only one way to find out.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Oct. 10). The intensity gets turned up in the first three weeks when you're required to learn quickly and advance to the next level of an organization or social strata. Your life will adjust every month in some small way to support the person you're becoming. Here comes better health and a general outlook of optimism. Gemini and Virgo adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 7, 20, 1, 44 and 38.

Opening lead — king of hearts.
An accomplished declarer continually seeks ways of improving his chances, even when he may already be a strong favorite to make his contract.

For example, consider this deal where a grand slam in spades appears a virtual laydown. The only possible threat is an unfriendly division of the missing diamonds, with West holding the length. Declarer can overcome the J-x-x-x(-x) of diamonds in the East hand via a finesse.
However, if South had relied solely on a favorable diamond break in the actual deal, he would have finished a very unhappy individual.

Thus, had he simply won the opening heart lead, drawn trump and then cashed two top diamonds, there would have been no way for him to avoid losing a trick to the jack of diamonds.

But South was by nature a careful and pessimistic soul, and a good bridge player to boot, so he decided to give himself an extra chance just in case. After winning the opening heart lead, he cashed the A-K of spades and, when everyone followed, then led a spade to the jack.

Next came what might seem to be an entirely unnecessary play — he ruffed a heart in his hand. This was followed by the A-K of diamonds, and when East showed out, South now had another string to his bow.

He led a club to the queen and ruffed a second heart, felling West's queen. Dummy was then re-entered with a club, after which the J-7 of hearts furnished discards for the 10-8 of diamonds, and the contract was home.

In landing the grand slam, South did nothing very special. He merely added a slight extra chance — that West had started with the K-Q-x of hearts — to his already excellent prospects, and his cautiousness paid off in the form of 2,210 points on his side of the score pad.

Tomorrow: Bidding quiz.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Steers take on Dumas for Friday Night matchup Recovering from last week's shut out 62-0

By AMANDA DUFORAT

Managing Editor

This has been a season of struggle for the Big Spring Steers, but amidst their defeats - two back to back shutouts - the team isn't giving up just yet.

The Steers fell to the Canyon Eagles last week, 62-0, after traveling the longest trip this season. From the moment the two teams stepped out on the field, the Eagles not only circled the Steers, but they went in for the attack.

The Eagles offered up a strong, well-constructed defense that the Steers just couldn't seem to break. The Steer offense and the defense showed struggle throughout the game.

This Steers spent the last week recovering from the defeat and are preparing to head back out on

Bulldogs rested, ready to take on Idalou

By LYNDEL MOODY

Herald Contributor

The Coahoma Bulldogs open 2-3A district action this Friday with a big game against a solid Idalou Wildcats team at the Bill Easterling Memorial Stadium.

"We are looking forward to this matchup," said Bulldogs head football coach Chris Joslin. "We've been building up to our district games for a long time."

Coming into the game, Coahoma brings a 4-1 preseason record built with a team consisting of 18 seniors against the Wildcats, who have three wins and two losses this season.

"We feel like we are at a good spot right now, but all that means nothing if we don't come out ready to play the next five ball games," Joslin noted. "Yesterday (Monday), the kids had one of the best practices we've had all year, so they are focused."

"It's a big ball game, but it's not a have-to-win ball game," he added. "We want to win it. We want to play our best, but if something happens, we still have four more games to play and compete in. Our kids are going to be ready to play."

The Bulldogs face a tough challenge against the Wildcats, which ended the 2018 season with an 8-4 record and an area playoff appearance. The last time these two teams met Idalou shutout Coahoma 35-0.

Buffaloes looking to refocus during off week

By AMANDA DUFORAT

Managing Editor

The Forsan Buffaloes endured a loss last week, against Wink. While the loss was not what the Buffaloes were hoping for or expecting, it was an opportunity for the Buffaloes to readjust their focus.

The Buffaloes are now sitting at 3-3 for the season. Despite a rough start this football season, the team has been improving week over week, as they take on strong opponents.

Each week has brought a new lesson for the Buffaloes and provided an opportunity for

The Forsan Buffaloes took on Wink last Friday, on Wink's home turf. The Buffaloes weren't able to bring home a win, but battled until the end and played with heart.

the field, as they are set to take on Dumas.

Currently, Dumas is sitting on a winning streak with six wins this season and no losses under their belt. Last week, Dumas took the win over Borger, with a final score of 28-0.

The Steers will need to hold tight on their defense and push a little harder this week, as they prepare for battle with the Dumas Demons.

Steer Nation is encouraged to head out to Memorial Stadium and cheer on the Steers. The teams will head out onto the field and kick off is set for 7 p.m. this week, due to the distance being traveled.

Well wishes to the Steer team as they head out to take on the undefeated Dumas team.

"Idalou is a very well coached team and a very well balanced team," Joslin said. "They do play well on both sides of the ball. They run the ball real well and have a long history of playing good football. Defensively, they have two guys upfront who are probably as good as we've seen all year.

"We want to see where we are at and see if we match up against them," he continued. "I feel like we have a great shot going up against them in the game, especially if we continue to prepare all week."

The Bulldogs return to the gridiron after a bye-week and a four-day rest refreshed and refocused and ready to take on two of their toughest opponents to date, Joslin said.

"It's not a secret," he explained. "Everybody in the state talks about Idalou and Abernathy in this district. For us to get up into that conversation, we have to do something against one of those teams. Our kids are ready to try and prove they belong in that conversation."

refresher courses, shined light on areas of opportunity and provided a boost of confidence with a few wins sprinkled in.

While Wink was able to walk away with a win, on their home turf, the Buffaloes put up a good fight and make Wink work for the win.

The Forsan offense and defense are holding strong, but as with any team, can use a little more practice.

While Forsan may not be going head to head with an opponent this week, the team is by no means off. The Buffaloes will use this week to reset, look at improvement that can be made and get ready to head back onto the field next week, as they take on Ozona in the first district game of the season.

After Forsan and Wink went head to head on the football field, both teams came together in unity and prayer before leaving the field.

Several area times were on a off week which left some of the Division not receiving a weekly update. There are also going to be several on off week this week as well, including Forsan. Next week, Big Spring will be on an off week.

As always we wish all area teams good luck in the upcoming match ups. Safe travels for those having to travel to Friday Night Games. As always, feel free to send in photos from the area games to be featured in the Big Spring Herald. Email editor@bigspringherald.com.

The Coahoma Bulldogs had an off week, allowing the entire team to refocus and adjust their strategy as needed. This week they are gearing up to take on Idalou. The game will be held in Coahoma and the community is invited to attend and cheer on the Bulldogs. Next week Coahoma will be back with an Offensive and Defensive Player of the Week.

Players of the Week

Jonathan Gabehart

Forsan Buffalo Jonathan Gabehart once again played well across the board. He supported his team mates and did some major blocking throughout the game, against Wink. The team was not able to obtain a consecutive win last week, but the team, including Gabehart played well. Jonathan's actions on the field earned him Defensive Player of the Week.

Cayden Morgan

Forsan Buffalo Cayden Morgan made several attempts to move the ball down the field, and near the endzone against Wink. His continued outstanding performance in Friday night games and practice, have earned him a spotlight for this week. He was an all around team player and positive impact during the game, gaining him the title of Offensive Player of the Week.
