Howard College Board of Trustees met for a regular session Monday, with a public hearing over Tax Abatement Guidelines scheduled to open up the meeting. There was no public comment regarding this issue. After the invocation and recognition of guests, the Board of Trustees discussed the changes regarding the Tax Abatement Guidelines that were established in the past session, as well as the provisions from last year.

“We have worked with other taxing entities in the community and everyone is approaching it in different ways depending what their individual scenarios are like. One new requirement is whenever we do have tax abatement guidelines and criteria we are to post them on the website; that will allow companies looking at the possibility of coming into the area or outside the area to check it out prior to,” Dr. Cheryl Sparks President of Howard College, said. “This has been reviewed by an attorney. The Big Spring EDC has worked with everyone on this process and had an attorney who specializes in tax abatement guidelines review each of the different entities guidelines.”

The Board of Trustees read a resolution from the Dora Roberts Foundation regarding this year’s donation of $160,000. According to Dr. Sparks it will support the continued funding of the two nursing faculty chairs as well as student scholarships.

Howard County Sheriff candidates address community questions at Saturday’s forum

By AMANDA DUFORAT
 Managing Editor

Editor’s Note: This is the second article featuring the questions and answers from the Sheriff Forum held at Big Spring High School on Saturday. This article contains the second half of questions presented to the candidates, along with the questions submitted by each candidate to their opponent. To see the first part of the questions, see Monday’s edition of the Big Spring Herald.

What are the pros and cons of the joint law enforcement center?

Tad Ellis: “Being able to get rid of duplicated services is a pro and we could probably do a better job at getting rid of some duplicated services, but another pro is you are able to share information. Crime doesn’t stop at the county line or in the city limits. These criminals are going out and committing crimes in the county and in the city. It’s important that they are where they can share that information, talk, have those meetings and discuss those crimes ... shared resources under one roof, shared dispatch, shared evidence, those are all good things, but I think we could do a lot more.”

He continued, “Some of the cons of a joint law enforcement center is the tactical disadvantages. If a fire breaks out or a tornado comes through wipes out that building, you’ve completely crippled law enforcement for the county; terroristic attack, after the OKC bombing all the federal agencies used to be housed in federal courthouses but now everywhere you go those officers are separated. That’s really the only con I can think of. You think it may never happen but it could always happen.”

Stan Parker: “In 2010, Chief Lonnie Smith and I began talking about combining services; by combining services I think some people get that confused ... I do not have control over how the police department works, but at one time we were duplicating services that were costing taxpayers a lot of money ... now we have one jail, one communication center, one group of evidence techs, one group of mental health deputies.”

What equipment do you believe that the Howard County Sheriff’s Office needs, but does not have, and why is it needed?

Tad Ellis: “The most important piece of equipment the modern police patrol officer can have is the body-worn camera. These things hold everyone accountable, the police officer, the people they are dealing with, everybody tends to act differently when they know everything is being recorded. We hear complaints about prosecution, and if it's all on a recorded body cam every interaction that can't but help prosecution. It can help cut down on citizen's complaints. You might have the up front cost to get data storage and camera, but one false complaint could cost the county millions in frivolous complaint ... I think in today's society it's important officers be equipped with body worn cameras."

Stan Parker: "We have an old radio system that was built in the 1950s, an old analog system that we have steadily decreased in radio coverage. Currently we are in an agreement with the City to have a new radio system installed and built for the entire county. With that we have also included each school district ... in the case of an emergency event we will be linked with each school. Right now that's a missing component that we don't have because we have limited contact with each school district because of limited coverage ... it's something we have been working on and hopefully within the next year we will have that up."

When seeking solutions, what is the process or method you use?

Stan Parker: "I have surrounded myself with people probably more capable of doing my job than I am. I made sure I have people in place ... I use them to help with decision making because I feel if one person is trying to make that decision then it often comes up short. I feel like it's a team effort and a lot of times when we make decisions or find solutions that effect everyone in the department ... Depending on the situation, if it's an issue regarding a certain department I go to that department head or if it's an issue that will effect the entire agency we get the entire staff together."

Tad Ellis: "To a degree we both agree on that; it's a good thing to surround yourself with competent folks whose opinion you value. Also, I look at ... for the past 12 years I've worked in the corporate world as a police consultant ... As part of one of the training we were sent to, it included Six Sigma, and one of the things it taught was DMAIC - Define, Measure, Analyze, Improve, Control - at first I thought it was a bunch of mumbo jumbo but once you start putting these into play it really does help make efficient decisions ...

When making decisions, what is your guiding principle?

Stan Parker: "I always ask myself, is it legal ... is it ethical ... will it benefit the community overall."

Tad Ellis: First of all I fall back to my Christian faith. What's right and what's wrong. Also, I look at the big picture. If my decision is going to effect a lot of people I want to step back and make sure I understand exactly what that decision is going to do and how it's going to effect us. I may consult with people around me and make sure I'm on the right track and I'm thinking the right way. Overall I follow my conscience.

What is your law enforcement background?

Tad Ellis: 1990 with Potter County Sheriff's Office, worked at Randall County Sheriff's Office and eventually got hired on at the Slaton Police Department and advanced through the ranks fairly quickly. Spent time on the task force for the United States Marshall's Fugitive Task Force, which was a lot of fun. Most of my experience has been in police supervision, but I also was a heck of an investigator back in my day... I specialized in search and seizure, I can write search warrants, I investigated violence against women and children, put a lot of people in jail, had a lot of successful prosecutions and different things like that. Retired from the police department in 2008 and was hired by a Fortune 500 company as a public safety consultant. I travel, train police administrators and departments on anything from mandatory state and federal reporting, racial profile reporting ... anything an officer does clerical and reporting... I am at a different police department every week, I see different styles, I see what works and what doesn't. I will bring those to the Howard County Sheriff's Department.

Stan Parker: I started my career in 1985 with the Big Spring Police Department, served time in patrol, was a school resource officer, also worked in investigations, promoted to Sergeant and put in as the school resource officer. Percol Sgt for a long while and then promoted to Lieutenant. That was my first step into law enforcement administration. I had the patrol division first and that included dealing with personnel, budget and everything else. I spent seven years doing that. I have been Sheriff starting on my 12th year now. All in all I have 30 years law enforcement experience, with 19 of that in law enforcement management. I knew at an early point in my career I wanted to do more than just work the streets and I began trying to advance my career. I went to Howard College and in 2008 graduated the law enforcement management institute I have always tried to further my career and get a little better at what I do and learn new things."

standing gifting from the Dora Roberts Foundation and this year they have given the college some funds yet again," Dr. Sparks said. "They have been doing this for many years; while each year it may be a little different what they give we are very fortunate that they blessed us with this."

Another resolution was read regarding an opportunity at the Lamesa Howard College campus allowing expansion of the Business Learning platform.

"We were blessed with an opportunity for our Lamesa campus at the Texas Workforce Commission. The Permian Basin Workforce Board worked to get us a grant that will enable Howard College to enhance the business learning opportunities," Dr. Sparks said. "This particular grant is one that the State awarded for rural communities." The San Angelo Health Foundation also offered support through the donation of $270, 160 to benefit the health science profession and the expansion of the program.

The Board of Trustees was also provided with an update regarding the SWCD (SouthWest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf) bus. When the project was proposed the estimated cost for upgrades was set at a little more than $48,000, but according to the report provided came in at $45,733.

"The bus is receiving the final touches currently and should be delivered soon. One of the things we were able to do is place a new wrap on the bus," Dr. Sparks said. "This new wrap gave us an opportunity to put the new name, our mascot and it also states that we are the only college for the hard of hearing in the state."

According to Dr. Sparks the wrap also provided an opportunity to display all of the Howard College campuses - Big Spring, San Angelo, Lamesa and SWCD - which is one of the initiatives that is currently being pushed. Recognitions included AEL which was recently asked to assist in a presentation regarding how Howard College keeps up with data collection.

"We are considered one of the top in the state and we are proud of what they are doing," Dr. Sparks said during her report.

Before the meeting concluded the board received a report on the landscaping and outdoor visibility at the Big Spring campus. Through a donation received in 2019 from the Dorothy Garrett Foundation, Howard College is able to upgrade the LED signage at the local campus.

"The changes to the exterior signage is currently taking place, with the upgrades to the LED lights," she said. "The lower sign panels are also being refreshed. You are about to see a fresh Dorothy Garrett sign."

In addition to the new signage, a heavy focus has been taking place on the 83 pine trees and 91 live oak and red oaks on the Big Spring campus. According to information provided during the

After community questions had concluded, the candidates had an opportunity to ask each other a series of questions. Those questions are as follows:

Mr. Ellis asked of Mr. Parker: What if any plans do you have to combat the ever growing narcotics industry taking root within the country?

"That's a hard one to fight because we have been fighting the war on drugs I guess since the 80s. We have narcotics enforcement because that's one of the shared things we do. We have two in the academy right now and the Chief and I are in talks when one of them gets out about adding another position to narcotics to address that end of it; also what we are doing to combat is until you stop the demand you won't stop the sale. That's why we have started the program in the jail in helping some of these people overcome addiction. I am very passionate about that. We have started slowly, we've involved the DA's office, the County Attorney's office, probation offices and we have seen some great success so far."

Mr. Parker asked of Mr. Ellis: You stated you were chief of police at a city in Oklahoma. What city was it where you were chief, for how long and how many officers did you supervise.?

"I was Chief of Police in a little town of Tupla, Oklahoma. We had about seven officers, some full-time and some reserves. There were a lot of grant funded positions I obtained while I was chief of police there. I was Chief of Police a little over a year and a half before the local sheriff there offered me a position as an under sheriff."

Mr. Ellis asked of Mr. Parker: What do you see as the most important duty of the Howard County Sheriff?

"We provide a service to the community, but we also provide a service to the people who work for us. The Sheriff's office handles a 6 million dollar budget and that's one of the most important jobs is to manage that budget because it doesn't have a lot of play room in it; about 75 percent of that budget is for personnel. As far as serving the needs, we have the jail that's volatile at times to expenses, to maintain good relationship with everyone we work with, the schools, the city, the county and the college, it's a juggling act."

Mr. Parker asked of Mr. Ellis: The Sheriff is not only a law enforcement officer, but a manager. The Sheriff must be able to manage people, a budget and the overall department. Please explain your management background and training.

"I was a full-time law enforcement officer for about 18 years before retiring to work in the private sector as a safety consultant. During that time I quickly promoted to management. When I left the Slaton Police Dept., I was number three man on the totem pole, was involved in different budgeting decisions and things like that. As stated earlier I was Chief of Police in Oklahoma, I was also in charge of budgeting although not on a $6 million budgeting scale. In Oklahoma I was involved in budgeting again on a very shoe-string budget; Oklahoma is one of the poorest states in the country. We ran 18 deputies on about half the budget we are talking about here. I have taken some law enforcement management courses over the years. Graduated from Panhandle Regional Law Enforcement Academy in 1992. I don't have as many continuing training hours as Mr. Parker, but again I had been retired since 2008 and stopped taking those courses with no intention of returning to law enforcement until I actually got here and saw what was going on. I have since renewed my license and switched to active status and prepared to do what we need to do for the citizens of Howard County ..."

Mr. Ellis asked of Mr. Parker: What do you believe has been your greatest accomplishment during your tenure as Sheriff of Howard County.

"When Chief Lonnie Smith and I sat down, we both saw the need and we both put aside our personal feelings and started working toward a combined law enforcement facility and quit duplicating services. When you work divided you don't work as strong and when you work as one you are a lot better. It does give us the ability to have our patrols brief together, our investigators work together, we are chasing the same people. Not only did the joint law enforcement save you a lot of money I feel like it has potential to give you better law enforcement over-all as we have a very good working relationship with the police department and we don't duplicate those services ..."

Mr. Parker asked of Mr. Ellis: You claim to have 30 years of law enforcement experience, however according to an open records request of Texas Commission on Law Enforcement you only have 18 years of experience. How are you claiming time the state licensing agency does not recognize as law enforcement time?

"If you look at any literature or any claims I've made ... I've told you I have 30 years of law enforcement and public safety domain that is true. I worked 18 years as a cop on the street, supervisor, administrator, management. I retired in 2008 and hired as a public safety consultant. My job now has me in a different police department every week, every couple of weeks consulting with them on current state laws, policies, procedures, state mandates, reporting. As far as the State of Texas is concerned I was a police officer for 18 years, but for the past 12 years I have been working as a public safety consultant actually training police officers and administrators."

For those who did not get to attend the forum, a video of the forum is posted on the KBest Media page, as well as the Big Spring High School website and YouTube channel.

meeting, there are about 18 trees that are needing attention.

"We really try to present the college as clean, welcoming and inviting and the landscaping is a very important part of that presentation," Dr. Sparks said. "The current landscape was part of a project that took place in the 70s, and we are getting to the point where we are seeing the fruit of that labor."

She continued, "We are at a point we have a lot of trees that are growing and starting to impact structures, and there are those that are dying or are dead. The project has evolved from just looking at pruning to us doing an RFT to access an overall plan on how to properly address the issue."

According to Dr. Sparks more information should be available for presentation at the upcoming Feb. 24 meeting.

Personnel changes were also discussed by the Board of Trustees; with the retirement of Terry Hansen, a transition has been taking place regarding the Athletic Director position, since Fall 2019. Mike Yeater has been serving as acting Athletic Director, with the addition of an Associate Rodeo Coach and an Assistant Rodeo Coach.

"With the addition of these positions it has helped in the transition with Mr. Yeater and allows him to be more flexible when it comes to rodeo competitions and other sporting events taking place at the same time," she said.

Other items addressed by the Board of Trustees:

- Order of election; the election is set for May 2 with early voting taking place April 27 and 28.

- Calendar of events - An upcoming theater production is set for Feb. 20 and 21, along with several athletic events and an AEL graduation in San Angelo. Information was delivered on the Board of Trustees Institute on March 23-25

- Legislative and general updates
- Handbook changes regarding service animals and housing accommodations in order to keep them up to date with regulations

- Update on Audit - currently being finalized
- Bus Barn enclosure update - upon completion all four of the buses will be able to be housed at the same location. Doors are currently on order and should be delivered soon. The total budget came out to be more than the presented estimate, but will fall under the max budget amount, according to Dr. Sparks.

The next scheduled Board of Trustees meeting is set for Feb. 24 at Howard College in the Tumbleweed Room.

Hawks defeat New Mexico Military 66-59

By SHAWN MORAN
Herald Sportswriter

The Howard Hawks (13-9, 3-5) came out on top of their home conference matchup with a 66-59 victory over the New Mexico Military Colts (11-9, 3-5).

"If you want to remain in the race, which I feel that we are, then home games carry a lot of importance," Hawks Coach Scott Raines said.

Monday night's first half was filled with inconsistency from both offenses in a matchup between two Top-35 scoring defenses in the nation. Both teams failed to put the ball in the basket on a routine basis and the game was neck-and-neck all the way through.

Howard was led in scoring by forward Jevon Burton, who scored 10 points in the first half and also grabbed a team-leading five rebounds in the first 20 minutes. He would finish the contest with 16 points and the Hawks probably lost this game if Burton did not have his big first half.

"I'm just happy that our coaches and players helped put us in the right position for us to succeed," Burton said.

On the other side, the Colts were led by the dynamic scoring duo of starting guards Jermaine Carter and Jeremiah Barr. The pair accounted for 17 of their team's 26 first half points and both also kicked in as menaces on the defensive end. The guard combo of Barr and Carter were locked down in the second half and combined for only 10 points after halftime.

Howard dominated the turnover battle as the Colts gave the ball away a whopping 26 times throughout the game. In a game where every possession mattered, the Hawks were able to take advantage of their opponent's miscues to close out the game strongly.

After a lackluster first half, Howard guard Klay Brown turned up the heat following halftime as the two-way guard collected 10 points, eight rebounds, and four steals in the final 20 minutes. Brown would finish the game with 13 points and an all-around defensive effort that helped his team close-out the win.

"We were playing ugly in the first half and in the second half I told my guys 'We're playing ugly but we're only down two at half,'" Brown said. "We just wanted to go in and keep playing."

After entering Monday night as one of the bottom two teams in Region V, the Hawks jumped up the standings leader board in their uber-competitive conference and into fifth place.

The Hawks will be facing a rematch against conference foe South Plains this Thursday, who Howard lost the first matchup to 74-50. Currently riding a two-game winning streak, Howard will need to take up their positive momentum and team play to take another step forward in the conference.

"We just need to keep competing and keep playing aggressive," Burton said.

"We have to come playing harder each and every game."

UP NEXT: The Hawks will host another home game against the South Plains Texans on Thursday night at 7:30 p.m.

Wrestling, of course, is topic at offbeat NFL media night

By The Associated Press

MIAMI (AP) — Roman Reigns went from the Royal Rumble to the Super Bowl.

The WWE star was in Marlins Park on opening night festivities at Marlins Park a night after wrestling in the Royal Rumble match in Houston, where he was the last competitor eliminated by eventual winner Drew McIntyre.

"What's up?" San Francisco tight end George Kittle asked Reigns. "You sore at all?"

Reigns also earlier Sunday night defeated King Corbin in a falls-count-anywhere match.

"A little," Reigns said. "Not too bad."

Kittle is a huge wrestling fan, and uses a gesture to celebrate first downs that he borrowed from Pentagón Jr., a Mexican wrestler. Kittle makes a circle with his thumb and forefinger to form a "0" and then flicks his wrist so his other fingers form an "M" for Pentagón Jr.'s catch phrase: "Cero miedo" — or, "zero fear."

Kittle caught some of the Royal Rumble action on TV after the 49ers got into Miami on Sunday night as they begin to prepare to face the Kansas City Chiefs.

"I loved it when you all just beat the crap out of Seth (Rollins)," Kittle told Reigns with a huge smile. "That was awesome. That was fun."

Reigns then asked Kittle who on the 49ers would win a Royal Rumble among teammates. The wrestler told the tight end most of the 49ers said Kittle would take home the belt.

"Yeah," Kittle said without hesitation.

So, who would go out first?

"I think we'd throw Jimmy (Garoppolo) out first," Kittle said. "He gets too much attention. Just get him out of the ring, throw him out of the ring and let the attention be on us for once."

Garoppolo was also asked, and he went a different direction: rookie defensive end Nick Bosa.

"First time I heard Bosa," Reigns said. "Everybody's saying Kittle."

That surprised the 49ers quarterback.

"George?" Garoppolo said. "Who said that?"

Reigns told him "everybody," and then asked who'd be tossed out of the ring first.

"Deebo Samuel, probably," a grinning Garoppolo said of his wide receiver.

TELL ME, TOM

Chiefs wide receiver Tyreek Hill doesn't have any advice for Tom Brady with the six-time Super Bowl champ seemingly set to test free agency in March for the first time in his long career.

Hill says if he ever got a chance to talk with Brady, he'd ask to train together so he could learn from him. Why? Hill says Brady has played with Randy Moss, Donte Stallworth and Joey Galloway.

"He played with all kind of GOATs, man, at receiver," Hill said. "He got a chance to throw at those guys and for me to pick his brain a little, I wouldn't mind. I'd do it all day."

SHUT UP AND DANCE WITH ME

Patrick Mahomes can throw as well as anyone and even showed off his skills as a runner in the AFC title game for the Kansas City Chiefs.

There are some things he's not quite as skilled at.

"The only thing he can't do is maybe dancing," teammate Sammy Watkins said. "He can do everything, every sport, any game, any board game, whatever."

Well, Mahomes tap-danced quite nicely down the sideline on his go-ahead TD against Tennessee.

NO HISTORY MAJOR

Chris Jones probably isn't the best guy to have on your team for a Super Bowl trivia night.

He only started watching the game about three years ago.

You see, the Chiefs defensive tackle didn't even start playing football for the 11th grade, and even then he played for only a half-season. But the 6-foot-6, 310-pounder with the agility of a ballerina and the mean streak of a saltwater crocodile turned out to be pretty good at it, and quickly became a five-star prospect before committing to Mississippi State.

He played three seasons there before entering the NFL draft, when the Chiefs picked him in the second round, and it finally dawned on him that he might want to watch the game everyone was trying to reach at the end of the season.

Better than watching it? Playing in it. That's what he'll be doing against San Francisco on Sunday night.

ROCK 'EM SOCK 'EM

Another sport made its way onto the Florida Marlins' field at media night. No, not baseball. Boxing — sort of.

A representative of DAZN, the streaming service, carried a mini Rock'em Sock'em Robots game and challenged just about anyone to give it a try.

One Kansas City Chief, safety Jordan Lucas, was willing, but his robot didn't fare too well. Lucas can only hope he and his team stand up better against the 49ers on Sunday.

Annie's Mailbox

Finding Support

Dear Readers: Many of you were touched by the husband "Anonymous," who wrote a letter about the loss of his wife to the disease of alcoholism. She is still alive, but the woman he married was a different person than the one who is an alcoholic. Most recommended Al-Anon, a spin-off from Alcoholics Anonymous that focuses on helping people who are suffering because of a loved one's drinking problem. Here is just a sampling of letters in support of Al-Anon, which I heartily support:

Dear Annie: My heart went out to the suffering husband, "Anonymous," for the despair that he felt because of his wife's alcoholism. I am a widow and was married for 44 years to an alcoholic. I would highly recommend that "Anonymous" attend Al-Anon meetings. Al-Anon is a highly effective recovery program for anyone who has a problem with someone else's drinking. Al-Anon offered me a lifeline of sanity and serenity that had eroded through years of living with an alcoholic. Even though I no longer have alcoholics in my life, I happily continue to practice this program in all my affairs. -- Been There

Dear Annie: I just finished reading the letter in today's paper concerning the husband whose wife is in the downward spiral of alcoholism. I, too, was in the downward spiral of alcoholism. I wanted to control or quit my drinking, but the addiction was too strong. I just about destroyed my family.

My wonderful wife talked to some Al-Anon members concerning my drinking and behavior. Because she loves me, she followed their advice, and, because she did, I took my last drink on the evening of Feb. 20, 1985. Al-Anon members take no prisoners. Because my wife decided to go to Al-Anon, I am alive today. We have been married for 55 years, and I have no desire to drink. My suggestion is for the husband to get involved with the Al-Anon program. -- One Day at a Time

Dear Readers: Thank you again for recommending Al-Anon and telling your stories. There was one reader with a different perspective, and her letter follows:

Dear Annie: It was apparent to me that this letter by "Anonymous" is only about the writer and his supposed problems. There was no real mention of the alcoholic, her name, her feelings, her circumstances or even her supposed crimes or attempts at healing, just judgment, blame, self-pity and latent sexism.

Who could live with that pathetic, emotional mess, cold sober, all those Hank Williams men with broken hearts? Why is his letter about his changed world, when she is the one at medical risk?

My father was an alcoholic, and my mother hated him for it; she set up unrealistic white-knuckle abstention goals and denied the medical care and the true emotional understanding involved in treating an alcoholic. Her denial drove him to unattainable perfection: to work and make more money and be sober. Nothing was ever enough. Once the love dried up, there was not much comfort for him but that booze.

My mother was "obviously" in the right because she did not drink. Her righteousness was unassailable. But hers was the cold heart, and he died from it. She is now happily alive on the enormous fortune he left her from his hard work, which he was able to execute with his drinking.

Poor Mr. Anonymous has a whole lot of AA meetings to attend before he is in the position to change his circumstances. -- She Needs a Voice

Dear She Needs a Voice: Thank you for sharing your perspective. Clearly, your resentment of your mother's treatment of your father is eating away at you. Please read the letters that preceded yours and check out Al-Anon. You are likely to find love and support in the meetings.

Mars and Neptune
Commitment Challenge

BY HOLIDAY MATHIS (CAPRICORN
Dec. 22-Jan. 19).

ARIES (March 21-April 19). The bottom line is important, but it's rarely what a situation is really about. To know what really matters to people, study interactions. Inside the smallest gestures will be the gift of everything.

Knowing what you need is not so easy. Most of the time, people just guess at it, get it wrong, and try again. A person who can accurately assess your needs is an invaluable gift and should be cherished as such.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). You've decided to get good at something. It doesn't matter how far off you are from the mark right now. Figure out what small part of it you can learn. You only need to get 1% better at a time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Tolerance needs a better public relations campaign. It's not regarded as particularly glamorous, and yet tolerance is the value most closely linked to "cool." No one can be cool without allowing a wide range of life to happen.

you could be going faster, more efficiently and doing it in better form. But that's not the point. The point is movement. Forget what it's supposed to look like, just make it count.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). You don't like to start a thing unless you think you can finish it. The rookie move is to put together the puzzle before you notice how many pieces will be involved.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). In every moment, you have choices. Being too aware of that fact is paralyzing, and not being aware enough of it is worse. People get stuck when they mistake sliding doors for walls.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). What do you have to do to make your heart a zone of peace? And can you do it alone? No. That's as impossible as harmonizing with yourself in real time.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Something interdimensional is occurring within. For this reason, you'll make as much of an imprint on the world by observing passersby as you will by interacting with them or staying home.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). A ring of fire is an enduring symbol. Johnny Cash sang about it, circus cats jump through it and, recently, it was found illustrated on an ancient Egyptian map. In some way, you'll be jumping through such a burning loop today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Early judgment is inefficient. Then comes opinions and disappointment. Then comes arguing with reality -- what a waste. Before you judge, let reality show you what it is. Then accept that, and go from there.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Sure, maybe

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You're never really on a straight road. Even the most linear, endless unchanging line of pavement is subtly wrapping around the curvature of a spherical planet. Dips and climbs are inevitable.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Jan. 28). Even though the early weeks pop with excitement, the real surprise will be the thrill that comes from being needed. The more you do for others, the better you feel. And as you execute your plans, you'll notice who you inspire. Your past and your professional life merge in helpful and lucrative ways. Scorpio and Pisces adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 9, 2, 18, 44 and 6.

Opening lead — queen of clubs.
Counting out a hand is often thought of as a complex and laborious process, but it is not really that difficult if you put your mind to it. Take this case where South is in seven hearts, and his only possible loser is a spade. The grand slam could be made very easily if declarer knew which opponent had the spade queen, since he could then take the spade finesse in the right direction. But since he is not privy to that information, declarer should try to assemble all the information he can to assist him in resolving the two-way guess. Accordingly, declarer wins the club lead with the ace, draws trump, then cashes the ace of diamonds and ruffs a diamond. A club to the king is followed by another diamond ruff, a club ruff (on which East shows out) and a third diamond ruff, to which both opponents follow suit. The primary purpose of all these plays is to force the defenders to reveal their distribution. In the actual case, South learns that West started with precisely one heart, four diamonds and six clubs. This in turn means that West was dealt exactly two spades and East five. The logical conclusion is that East is much more likely to have the queen of spades than West. So South next leads the jack of spades to the king and finesses the ten on the way back. As it happens, the finesse succeeds, and the grand slam is made. Of course, declarer cannot be certain the finesse will win — heavy favorites sometimes lose — but, as is nearly always the case, there is no reason not to follow the percentages.

Tomorrow: Old habits die hard.

Fun By The Numbers
Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
