Paintings on torpedo depict historical events

By Alice Gilroy

A torpedo, donated by a retired Navy man, has taken on a new look at the Veteran's Memorial Park in Lockney.

Andy Stapp, of Lockney, is known for his air brush art work and seemed like the perfect choice to transform the torpedo into a memorial for the Veteran's Park.

The torpedo, which now sits at the base of the Memorial's flags, was donated to the Veteran's Park by a retired Navy man who now resides in Hobbs, N.M.

"The torpedo was given to this man when he retired," said Ed Marks, president of the Veteran's Association. "He put it in his front yard and the neighbors called and reported it. He told us he had ATF and Homeland Security asking questions so he figured he had better find a good home for it."

"We found out about the torpedo from the Chief at the Naval Reserve Unit, who suggested we put it at the park."

Stapp was eventually asked to paint the torpedo.

"The Veteran's Association was very patient with me," said Stapp. "The torpedo sat in the shop (Stapp's Paint and Body Shop) for two years. It was Chris Reece, who works with us, that finally got me motivated. He got tired of walking around it and asked me to stop working on other projects and get this one done."

Stapp said he worked on the torpedo on two Saturdays and he was done. The torpedo was tied up with big rubber bungee cords, lifted onto a fork lift from the Co-Op and then moved to the Park.

All the painting, including the detailed work, is done with an air brush. "An air brush can do lines as fine as an eyelash, or as large as a panel" said Stapp.

"I knew I wanted to represent all the military forces," said Stapp. "I felt like the D-Day beach assault (which is seen in the first segment of the painting), would be the best way to do that."

Stapp says the beach assault scene came strictly from his own mind, but the faces of Truman, Patton, and Eisenhower came from images he found on the internet.

"The picture of Eisenhower talking to a soldier was taken from a picture I found on the internet. It was originally a picture of him talking to about 25 men but I didn't have room for all of them."

"Eisenhower was known for his 'Direct-To' speeches. He was always a part of what was taking place. I've been told the original picture was of him talking to the 101st Airborne."

Staff said after he painted the beach assault scene he was half-way through with the project. The bombing of Japan, which brought about the end of the war, seemed like a natural progression to Stapp.

"I painted the bombing in black and white because that's the color of the photos you always see," said Stapp. "In 1995, while I was in the Marines, I visited the Atomic Dome in Hiroshima. I used one of my pictures as a model for this segment of my painting."

Stapp said he had looked forward to painting the torpedo because it was something he had never done.

"You don't get a chance to paint portraits on a car," said Stapp.

Besides custom painting cars, airplanes, and motorcycles, Stapp is also the airbrush artist for the Simpson Helmet Company out of New Braunsfels. And, after word spread of the custom artwork on the new Longhorn school bus, Stapp is getting inquiries for more custom painting of school busses.

Stapp says he had no background in painting or drawing, and did not take up the airbrush trade until after he got out of the Marines in 1997.

"I had never heard of air brushing until after I saw it at a car show. I came back from the show and started practicing on panels. I was horrible. It was very frustrating. I just kept practicing until I could do it. I am 100% self taught."

"We didn't tell Andy what we wanted," said Marks. "We just let him have the torpedo. Andy told us if we just let him do what he wanted to do that we wouldn't be disappointed--and we weren't."

THE STORY UNFOLDS section by section on the painted torpedo at the Veteran's Memorial Park in Lockney. The first picture shows the different branches of the military participating in D-Day and arriving on the beaches of France. It then moves into the dropping of the Atom Bomb.

UNITY CENTER LOT GETTING PAVED--Pavers were hard at work at the Unity Center on New Year's Eve. The parking lot should be striped by Wednesday or Thursday of this week, just in time for the crowds that are always in attendance at the Floyd County Junior Livestock Show. The show will be held this weekend, January 4 & 5. Staff Photo

Hollywood Film looking for local talent Casting call put out for rural boys ages 10-14

Francine Maisler Casting is conducting a statewide casting search for spirited, interesting, rural boys (ages 10 to 14) to be considered for leading roles in an upcoming major Hollywood family movie to be filmed in Texas. For story reasons, they are only looking for Caucasian boys at this time.

There will be an open casting call held on Saturday, January 5th in Seminole, TX at: The Gaines County Civic Building, 405 NW 5th Street, Seminole, TX 79360 from 11:00 AM - 4:00 PM. For driving directions, lodging, and dining information, please call the Seminole Chamber of Commerce at 432-758-2352 or visit their website at <http://www.seminoletxchamber.org/>

The casting call will consist of a brief talk with a member of the casting team and possibly an interview on camera. All participants should bring a non-returnable photo. Interested parties may call the Information Line at (512) 637-9782 or email: PrimrosePictures@gmail.com, though no appointment is necessary.

While acting experience is not necessary, the production will provide compensation on the scale of professional actors. Filmmakers are specifically looking for children with old-fashioned qualities in small town environments.

As Bob Hudgins, the Director of the Texas Film Commission, has said, "This story is set in Texas, and the Primrose team is determined to cast this part in Texas. This could be a rare opportunity for a young Texan to land a lead role in a major film, and I appreciate Primrose's dedication to making that happen."

While details of the project are being kept confidential during the casting process, the filmmakers have been nominated for Academy Awards and have produced numerous films that are considered to be critically acclaimed around the world.

"The filmmakers are known to us and are well-respected both nationally and internationally," Hudgins said. "I assure you that this is a professional, legitimate film project, and one that I expect we'll all be proud of."

The role calls for a boy who is confident, lively and thoughtful. This statewide search has been taking place since September of 2006 and will be completed by February of 2008. Filming will commence in March.

Francine Maisler Casting has cast films such as "Spider-Man", "Miami Vice" and "As Good As It Gets."

Methodist group heading to Mission Field in Niger, Africa

By Jennifer Moore

On January 7, 2008 a group of missionaries from the First United Methodist Church in Floydada will set off on a trip half way around the world to Niger, Africa to share what they find most important--God's love.

Those going on the trip will be Reverend Les Hall, Lee Battey, Laura Farris, Jim Covington, Jerry Battey, and Elaine Magruder.

"This is a mission minded church," said Hall. "Each of us will have prayer partners," said Lee, "while we are abroad." All agreed that no one was afraid and felt it was their calling.

Niger is a Muslim country and they won't be able to freely evangelize there. One of the members of the group, Magruder, is a nurse, and former missionary to Vietnam. Through her and Lee's work as nurses they will have access to work with women and children. Access can only be granted through the "chief" of each village and the missionary organization, International Baptiste Missionary Meridionales.

There are many customs that will have to be followed. The women will have to wear skirts and cover their heads.

French is the official language of the people of Niger but each village speaks their own dialect. "With the help of interpreters, we will share the good news of Jesus Christ," said Hall, "and go make disciples of all nations. So far Silvia and Thomas Barrientos have been working with us as interpreters."

Farris said, "God just asks us to go plant seeds and we sure hope we change people. We feel very blessed and want to give back."

Covington's desire for the trip is just to "share Jesus, God's love."

Hall suggested, "the biggest change we'll see is probably in ourselves."

It has been two years since the whole planning process began, but six months seriously since it started.

Lee said much of the credit is due to Bill and JoLynn Dean who were the impetus of this trip but weren't able to bring it to fruition.

"We all prayed over it and decided it was what we needed to do," said Lee.

A view from

The Lamplighter

By: Ken Towery

email: chowdipper@austin.rr.com

We've just finished another round of the world's newspaper web pages, and, as usual, found the most interesting stuff, or the stuff that's likely to affect us here in this country, in the Israeli press.

We have found out, for instance, that, for the first time in our memory, that there is a public difference between the views of the American intelligence establishment, finally, and the Israeli intelligence establishment. While Bush hates to admit it (and while he dances around the issue lest he irritate the Israelis and Pat Robertson), the American Intelligence Estimate says Iran stopped work on nuclear weapons several years ago. They have continued work on nuclear technology, however, and Bush says as long as they are acquiring the knowledge, they continue to be dangerous. In this, he is in total agreement with the Israelis. And, who knows, they may be right, despite what American intelligence gathering experts say. After all, American intelligence, relying on Israeli intelligence for the most part, gave us weapons of mass destruction in Iraq.

We found out something else we had not known concerning the workings of the American government. We found out that the new Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of staff, plus the current head of America's Intelligence, plus the current head of the Defense Department (a guy named Gates who replaced Donald Rumsfeld as head of America's defense establishment) are all part of what the Israelis call the "anti-war-with-Iran" crowd. I suppose, logically, that means there is a "war-with-Iran" crowd alive and well in the United States. Three guesses, and a couple of old Lamplighter columns, will inform you just who makes up that "war-with-Iran" crowd.

(If you don't have time to scrounge through past newspapers in search of some old Lamplighters, we'll tell you now: the group that advertised themselves as "neo-cons," or "neo-conservatives", thereby differentiating themselves from the rest of us who called ourselves just plain "conservatives." The "neo-cons" were embarrassed to be seen as part of the "conservative" establishment, since conservatism had a reputation of opposition to most welfare programs, but they wanted to be associated with the generally hawkish mood of most conservatives. So they called themselves "neo-conservatives", (or, new-conservatives) and many conservative political types trailed along, happy to get any recognition or support at all from generally Jewish intellectuals.

A few other items we found out by reading the Israeli press (specifically, the Jerusalem Post, whose owner, Conrad Black, a citizen of Canada, recently went to prison for bilking fellow directors out of millions of dollars in the U.S., when he sold the Chicago Sun-Times and the London Daily Telegraph, which he had also owned): American Jews, in a recent poll by that newspaper group and the American Jewish Congress, are in favor of Hillary Clinton for President over Rudy Giuliani by 53 to 41 percent. Even so, Rudy gets more Jewish votes than normal, since only 15 percent of American Jews consider themselves Republican, as opposed to 58 percent who consider themselves Democrats.

Continuing to roam the world, we note that the new President of Taiwan now says things that some Chinese think means no war with the mainland for the time being, which means that maybe some farm boy from here won't have to go fight and die in Asia...that down in Argentina, they have sworn in a new President, a woman who is the wife of a former President...that things are still "normal" in Singapore (they didn't say so, but they mean the British are gone and the country is being run by indigenous people, and that a new apartment is being built every few minutes, and hippies are probably still being met at the airport by a barber under government orders to closely examine all visitors for hair length)...the same is true in Hong Kong, where Chinese have taken over, and despite what a lot of us thought, government services are still being met...that everything is up to date in Moscow, where Putin's people have just won, surprisingly, a resounding victory at the polls and Putin has installed a pliant clone as the next leader...in Beijing (formerly Peking) everything is normal, according to the government, except that once in a while there are coal mine disasters hither and yon, and once in a while corruption rears its ugly head (which is unheard of in this country)...and that in England, the big news is that Rupert Murdoch is taking over the Wall Street Journal. That's pretty big news even in this country. Murdoch, a former citizen of Australia, also owns the New York Daily News and the Fox network and has endorsed Hilary Clinton for President, while Pat Robertson and Rick Perry have endorsed Giuliani. Jerry Patterson has endorsed Fred Thompson, and we are still sitting on our hands. Happy Holidays, and Merry Christmas.

FLAGS TELL THE HISTORY--Flags flying temporarily down the Veteran's Memorial Walkway in Lockney, tell the history of the United States. "Ten flags show the history of the United States," said Ed Marks, president of the Veteran's Association. "The first flag is St. George-- the pilgrim flag; then the King's Colors--Great Britain; and the Red Ensign is the British flag; then the Continental flag, the Gadsden flag, which was the Revolutionary Flag ("Don't Tread on Me"); the Grand Union, then the Betsy Ross flag, the 1776, the Star Spangled Banner, and Old Glory. We've also put up flags representing conflicts and wars--WWII, Korea, Vietnam, Iraqi Freedom, and the Service Star flag. The firefighters flag is also flying as well as a Texas flag and of course the American flags. We put the flags up to fly over the holidays so visitors could enjoy them.

Lockney Senior Citizen News

By Vera Jo Bybee

I am writing this article Monday morning, New Year's eve. Donnie and I never celebrated the New Year coming in so this year will be no different.

The Center has received several gifts over the holidays. Herschel and Wanda Harston gave the Center a new sweeper. Sunny and Larry Hammit gave us a new coffee urn. Dale Ross presented us with two turkeys.

Thank all of you for your generous gifts. They are so appreciated. Jo Webb and all her children celebrated Christmas at her son Randy and wife Denise's home in Plainview on Christmas Eve. Those present were Arlene Anderson, of Littlefield; Jimmy and Ruby Wardlow, of Seymour; and Lynda Holley, of Lockney. Other guests were grandson John Webb, and granddaughter Maelyn and Alan Sistrunk and their two sons. Also Alan's mother Bertha Sistrunk.

The Vernon family, who were all raised here in Lockney, had their annual mini family reunion in Lubbock over the holidays. Attending were Alvin Vernon and wife Maxine; Jerry Vernon and wife Kathy; Norma Jean Vernon Chalupa and husband Frank; and Nina Vernon White. Other guests were Sue Daniels, Mary Cope Carter, and Ethelynn Vernon Garnett and daughters.

They call this their mini reunion cause they have a big one in June.

Edith Cooper's son, Wayne and wife Cheryl, of Jacksonville came to visit her Dec. 24 and gave her a big party for her 90th birthday which was Dec 25. Also present were granddaughter Robin Daniels and husband Dane and son Matthew all of Arkansas. A grandson, Tony Cooper was home from Iraq so he was present too. Also a lot of her Lockney friends and relatives helped her celebrate her birthday.

On their way to Santa Fe Christmas day Wayne and Cheryl took her to Amarillo to visit her niece Barbara Blackwell and she had another birthday party.

Now that 2008 is here I wonder what in the world does the coming year have in store for all of us. I believe it will be full of things we can control and things we cannot. We will succeed sometimes and sometimes we will fail. It is hard to look at a whole year when all we really have is right now. Let us think about what God has blessed us with and what we are doing each day to promote ourselves mentally, physically, emotionally, as well as spiritually. Life is too short to let it pass you by.

We only have one shot at this and then it is gone. My wish for all of us in the year 2008 is that we live moment by precious moment and these moments add up to a very Happy New Year!

Texas A&M University Crop and Ag Report Local Conditions

COLLEGE STATION--The cotton crop in the West Central district is one of the best ever, said a Texas Cooperative Extension cotton expert.

Dr. Billy Warrick, Extension agronomist at San Angelo, said the cotton harvest over the past two months has been excellent.

"The lint quality from the first million bales ginned this season is white, long and strong which is what the cotton buyers want," Warrick said. "The biggest complaints have been having to harvest too slow, no module covers available, and the gin won't get to my cotton until February. That all relates to a lot of cotton for the region."

Warrick said the same bumper-crop claim can't be made for the region, small grains crops at this time.

"Due to the lack of rainfall in October and November, the small grains crops (wheat, oats, barley, rye) have not had the opportunity to get started," he said. "Some fields have been planted over 60 days. On Nov. 25, some areas had rain and snow that resulted in three-quarters to 2 inches of moisture, and by Dec. 7 you could see the small grains emerging."

Warrick said more rain is needed for the plants to develop and thrive.

The following condition reports are from Extension officials:

CENTRAL: Conditions remain dry which has allowed the pecan harvest to continue in full swing with high yields prevailing. Most of the region's wheat and oats are planted but some have yet to sprout. Ranchers are feeding hay as range and pasture conditions deteriorate due to the lack of rain and cooler temperatures.

COASTAL BEND: Dry fronts accompanied by winds continue to rob soil moisture. This and the cooler temperatures are depleting vegetation on pastures and rangeland. High fertilizer costs have many producers planning applications much closer to planting and adjusting the rate if moisture remains short. Rain is needed for winter forages and fallow crop land. Some hay feeding has started, but cattle remain in generally good condition.

EAST: The region experienced unseasonably high temperatures. This and recent rains have helped forage crops. The rain also enabled many producers to plant winter pastures. Winter livestock feeding is in full swing with cattle prices remaining strong. Lower quality calves are still hard to market, and their cheaper prices reflect that trend.

NORTH: Soil moisture ranges from adequate to short. The weather was unseasonably warm with morning dew and some light showers. Winter pastures are showing some signs of life after a Thanksgiving weekend rain. Small grains need a good rain. Many producers are starting to feed their cattle. Livestock are in good condition. Hay stocks are good and winter pastures are good in most areas. Cotton and sorghum have been harvested, and the pecan harvest is nearing completion. Winter wheat is 90 percent planted and about 90 percent emerged. Oats are about 95 percent planted.

PANHANDLE: The region experienced dry weather again last week. Cotton and milo are still being harvested. Wheat ranges from very poor to excellent with most areas reporting fair to poor. The crop would benefit from a good rain or snow. Range conditions are rated mostly fair. Fire danger is high. Cattle are in good condition, and supplemental feeding continues.

ROLLING PLAINS: Cotton strippers were running around the clock trying to get the cotton crop out before the rain and sleet hit Sunday. Producers were planting wheat in hopes of receiving moisture. Pasture forage is decreasing and supplemental feeding is increasing. Cattle prices are somewhat lower, and fall cattle work is winding down.

SOUTH: Conditions in the middle parts of the region were mild with no precipitation. Fall grain is being damaged by birds feeding. Vegetables, citrus and sugarcane are still being harvested. In the western parts of the region, drizzle fell over the area but did little to add soil moisture that is badly needed by wheat and oat fields. Cabbage and tomato harvesting continued last week. Livestock producers continued supplemental feeding.

SOUTH PLAINS: The weather was unseasonably warm with temperatures in the mid-60s F to lower 70s F for the highs and 30s F for the lows. Cotton harvest is almost complete, however most gins will be operating well into the new year. Sorghum harvest is complete with excellent yields being reported. Winter wheat is in poor to fair condition. With the crop complete, moisture is no longer a priority for cotton growers, but wheat producers badly need significant rain to boost the crop. Pastures and ranges are in mostly fair condition with rainfall needed.

SOUTHEAST: Dry conditions persisted, forcing producers to feed livestock heavily even though severe weather conditions have not occurred.

SOUTHWEST: Only a trace of rain fell, leaving the region very dry. Only about seven-tenths inch of rain has been received in almost three months. Record high temperatures aggravated the dry spell. Subsoil moisture is low. Fields are ready for early spring planting, but will need rain over the winter to enable planting of non-irrigated crops. Winter grasses have been slow to emerge as a result of the dry weather. Farmers are irrigating heavily. Land is being prepared for potato planting. The peanut harvest is complete, but the cabbage and spinach harvest continues. Hunting continues to dominate ranching activities, especially during weekends.

WEST CENTRAL: Many counties remain under burn bans. The cotton harvest is in full swing. Some field preparations and late wheat planting continues. Small grains and pastures are showing slight improvement after recent rains. Supplemental feeding of livestock is increasing. Livestock remain in fair to good condition going into the winter months. Livestock prices are good. The pecan harvest continues. There are still a lot of pecans in the hull that have not fallen, but recent frost should help. Some cleanup of pecan and peach orchards is under way.

Cotton Market Weekly

A service provided by Plains Cotton Cooperative Association

Thursday, cotton futures on the New York Board of Trade settled at their highest level since early 2004 on sustained all-around buying as expected lower U.S. cotton plantings next year stoked a rally in the market.

"Expectations that U.S. cotton plantings in 2008 will fall sharply due to market rallies that have lifted grains like corn and wheat, among others, to multi-year highs has provided robust support for cotton futures recently," an analyst said.

U.S. 2007 cotton plantings stood at 10.847 million acres. Earlier this month, private forecasts pegged the 2008 crop at 9.185 million acres, which would be the lowest planted to cotton since 1983, according to USDA data. Analysts also said the appetite to buy cotton may have been tied to end of the month, end of the quarter, or end of the year buying which should persist until Jan. 1.

USDA's export sales report did little to sway the market in either direction. The department reported net export sales of U.S. cotton totaled 134,200 bales in the week ended Dec. 20. The figure was equal to sales made the previous week, but 44 percent less than the four-week average. Major buyers were Indonesia, China, Mexico, Thailand, and Colombia.

Export shipments of 172,800 bales were 15 percent more than the week earlier, but 14 percent lower than the four-week average. Primary destinations were Turkey, China, Indonesia, and Thailand.

On the spot cotton scene, online trading by producers in Texas, Oklahoma, and Kansas totaled 65,747 bales in the holiday-shortened week ended Dec. 27 compared to 82,882 bales the previous week. Average prices received by producers ranged from 60.65 to 60.94 cents per pound versus 58.77 to 60.05 cents per pound one week earlier.

Meanwhile, crisp, cool weather prevailed across most of the Cotton Belt over the four-day Christmas holiday weekend. A mixture of light rain and snow fell on the Texas High and Rolling Plains early in the weekend, but accumulations were light. Below-average temperatures followed, with daytime highs ranging from the mid 30s to upper 40 degrees. More seasonable conditions returned later in the week and snow flurries were reported in some locations. A vast majority of the fields on the Texas Plains already have been harvested. Modules still line the fields, and most large gins expect to gin cotton into February and later.

Elsewhere in the state, open, dry conditions ruled in the Coastal Bend and Rio Grande Valley. Abnormally warm temperatures prevailed with daytime highs in the upper 70s. Thus, soil moisture evaporation rates were increasing.

Beneficial precipitation fell in parts of the Southeast over the holiday weekend, and light rain was received in the Carolinas this week as showers slowly moved across the South. According to USDA's drought monitor data, an exceptional drought continues in key cotton growing areas of Alabama and Georgia. Picking is virtually complete in Georgia, and ginning is nearing an end. Rainy weather there this week was welcome to help ease dry conditions.

DON'T LEAVE YOUR DOG OUT IN THE COLD

Dogs, like humans, are vulnerable to harsh weather conditions during winter months. While some breeds are more susceptible to extreme temperatures frostbite or hypothermia can occur in any dog left outside for long periods of time without proper shelter and care, no matter how thick his coat is.

I AM THANKFUL

For the wife who says it's hot dogs tonight, because she is home with me, and not out with someone else.
For the husband who is on the sofa being a couch potato, because he is home with me and not out at the bars. For the teenager who is complaining about doing dishes because that means she is at home, not on the streets.
For the taxes that I pay because it means that I am employed.
For the mess to clean after a party because it means that I have been surrounded by friends.
For the clothes that fit a little too snug because it means I have enough to eat.
For my shadow that watches me work because it means I am out in the sunshine.
For a lawn that needs mowing, windows that need cleaning and gutters that need fixing because it means I have a home.
For all the complaining I hear about the government because it means that we have freedom of speech.
For the parking spot I find at the far end of the parking lot because it means I am capable of walking and that I have been blessed with transportation.
For my huge heating bill because it means I am warm.
