*"... our jobs at Reese are critical: any let down
... could very well contribute to weakness ..."*

By Col. Walter H. Baxter
Wing Commander

It is a natural reaction when a peace is obtained in such a long and costly war as Vietnam to let down the guard—to take it easy—relax. Before we do that, let's take a look at history:

World War I, the war to end all wars, was followed by mass demobilization and subsequent cutbacks in U.S. armed services which virtually invited the attack at Pearl Harbor triggering U.S. involvement in World War II.

The same cry for demobilization followed World War II. The take-it-easy attitude undoubtedly contributed to the uneasiness of the ensuing Cold War and to the start of the much hotter war in Korea. The events surrounding U.S. involvement in Vietnam are recent enough to forego recounting them, but it is safe to say that weakness and complacency have significantly contributed to U.S. involvement in the wars of this century.

With these brief historical facts to guide us, it makes sense for us to be vigilant and strong in order to discourage future acts which might lead to war.

The signing of the peace treaty in Paris, Jan. 27, signals peace in Southeast Asia. We welcome it for many reasons but mainly because the United States Air Force has contributed so much to bringing about the peace. Peace is our goal—our mission is to fly and fight to attain and maintain peace.

Our primary job at Reese will not change. It is still to efficiently train the best pilots in the world. It is this steady production of pilots, along with a dedicated supporting force, which will keep our country strong—strong enough to keep the peace by meeting future challenges.

In this respect, our jobs at Reese are critical: any let down, either in attitude or action, could very well contribute to weakness, and that we cannot accept. If anything, we should try even harder now to maintain our vigilance and strength. Strength is our best guarantee.

Let us all make a pledge to continue to put forth 100 per cent at our jobs to help maintain a strong America and a peaceful world.

Wing Commander

Box 64 continues to receive anonymous letters despite assurances that no reprisals will be taken against senders. I would like to reiterate that reason for asking for your identity is to establish TWO-WAY communications, to solve problems and dissolve rumors and misunderstandings. In many cases these problems can be solved through personal contact rather than by printing the letter and answer in the Roundup, which sorely needs space.

The following letter is a good example of how misunderstandings might have been explained to the writer personally.

Sir:

Could you please explain the recent retraining program for blacks only? Since so much emphasis is placed upon equality, why are the whites, Mexican-Americans, American Indians, Orientals and other minority groups left out from a special retraining program?

(ANSWER: They are not left out. The retraining program is, and always has been, available to all eligible and qualified Air Force members. Any member desiring to determine eligibility and qualifications for retraining into a specific occupational specialty may do so by dialing "C-B-P-O" (2276) on base or by visiting the Formal Training Unit at the CBPO. It is true that this program has been emphasized for our minority members through special counseling at CBPO. Equality in treatment under the program requires evaluation of each applying member's qualifications and potential. Waivers are recommended when a member has demonstrated potential for success in a more technical field, but has not had an opportunity to obtain all required qualifications. It is for this reason that the special counseling was offered our minority airmen. I hasten to add that this counseling is available to ALL through CBPO.)

National Children's Dental Health Week to be observed here

By Capt. Ross H. Johnson
Preventive Dentistry Officer

The first full week of February each year is designated National Children's Dental Health Week.

Accordingly, we would like all parents to review what you have done to improve the dental health of your children during the last year. Have you taken advantage of the Preventive Dentistry Program for children at the Reese Dental Clinic?

All of your children can receive a dental examination, cleaning of the teeth, topical application of fluoride solution to help prevent decay, an oral hygiene lecture and demonstration and the issuance of a preventive dentistry kit.

In return we ask that you attend a short presentation at the base theater or other designated place at 5:30 p.m. on the last Thursday of the month prior to the sponsor's birth month. At this meeting the necessary forms will be filled out and appointments for all the children in the family will be made for the coming month.

If there is a reason you cannot attend the appropriate meeting, attend at the next closest possible time. We request that adult member of the children's family attend the meeting. If a dependent is away at school during the appropriate month, an appointment will be rescheduled during the summer break.

Any questions concerning scheduling appointments or other points of the program should be directed to us at ext. 2711.

New pay increases may be expensive

Randolph AFB, Tex. (ATCPS)—Odd as it might seem, your paycheck for January may be less than the one for December 1972 even though you received a pay raise.

The leave and earnings statement (LES) for January will show the increase in basic pay and separate rations ($1.46 to $1.56) effective January 1, 1973 and will also show an increase in Federal Insurance Contributions Act (FICA) deductions from 5.2 per cent to 5.85 per cent. The top take will be 5.85 per cent of $10,800 or ($631.80) compared to 5.2 per cent of $9,000 or ($468.00) in 1972.

Income tax deductions will be larger for the majority of military personnel due to the increase in taxable income. However, there is no change in the rate of income tax deductions.

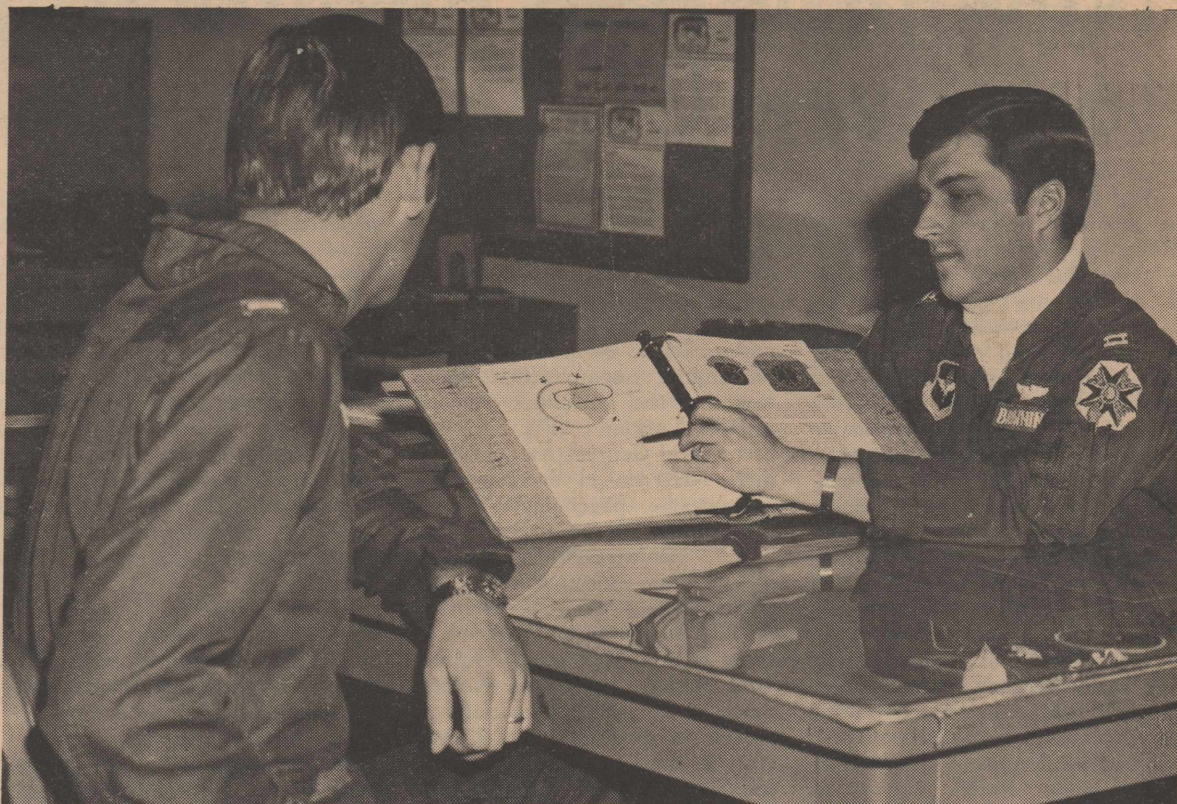

Since FICA deductions start again this month, military families might take home fewer dollars than they did in December 1972. This could occur because the maximum FICA deduction was reached in October 1972 and no deduction was necessary until the start of the new year.

The following example illustrates this phenomenon and compares the pay of a captain over six years active duty service with two tax exemptions.

	December 1972	January 1973
Basic pay	$ 971.40	$1,036.50
BAS	47.88	47.88
BAQ	+ 195.60	+ 195.00
		$1,279.98
FICA	-0-	60.64
Income tax	- 130.42	- 144.06
	$1,084.46	$1,075.28

An unexpected case of the shorts? The captain will receive $9.18 less in January. Most officers and top NCO's will experience this situation.

Before you should the alarm at the Accounting and Finance Office, look for the answer in your LES. Compare December 1972 with January 1973 and you will undoubtedly see why your take home pay was less even though there was a pay raise.

Captain Browning named Instructor Pilot of Month

The 35th Flying Training Squadron has named Capt. John R. Browning as the Instructor Pilot of the Month for January.

Captain Browning, associate Standardization and Evaluation officer for D Flight, is responsible for assuring that all instructors are familiar with all established directives and procedures essential to the safe accomplishment of the pilot training mission. The captain also supervises the buddy IP and the continuation training programs.

According to Lt. Col. John D. Herbert, 35th FTS commander, Captain Browning's "dedication, integrity and professional knowledge make him an extremely valuable instructor pilot. Students who are having difficulties are frequently assigned to him so that they may take advantage of his teaching skills. He is always willing to spend extra hours with students so that he can more completely understand their problems and therefore provide them with better instruction."

Commending the IP, Colonel Herbert cited a case concerning "his handling of a foreign student with a severe language handicap. Captain Browning was able to take him through the difficult pre-solo phase and the student is now progressing at a normal rate."

Captain Browning is currently upgrading to Runway Supervisory Unit senior controller which, according to Colonel Herbert, is "one of the most demanding jobs in the wing."

In closing, the captain was cited as an instructor who "exceptional integrity and military bearing set him above his contemporaries and mark him as an outstanding young officer."

Captain Browning is married to the former Miss Jan L. Downing, and they currently make their home at 3619-B 54th St. in Lubbock.

New program designed to reduce UPT attrition

Randolph AFB, Tex. (ATCPS) —The Air Force is emphasizing a group of interrelated studies designed to reduce the present undergraduate pilot attrition rate in Air Training Command.

If, as anticipated, the combined approaches and research being employed result in a totally ground-based selection process by FY 77, it will make possible the early identification of aspiring pilots who are able and willing of carrying out the Air Force flying mission. This will contribute significantly to the ultimate objective of reducing costs while improving training.

One Conclusion

One of the conclusions drawn by an Undergraduate Pilot Training (UPT) Mission Analysis Group established by Headquarters USAF is that an improved pilot screening-selection system is needed.

Following through on the suggestion, Air Training Command recommended that T-41 flight screening be consolidated at one location. The proposal was accepted by USAF, and the new concept will become operational in May 1973 at Hondo, Tex.

ATC also requested that the Air Force Human Resources Laboratory (HRL) be used to conduct far-ranging research. One result was that the Personnel Division of HRL, Lackland AFB, Tex., will use several General Aviation Trainers (GAT-1s) to develop ways to measure psychomotor skills necessary to pilot proficiency.

Related Study

A related study is underway at the Flying Training Division of HRL at Williams AFB, Ariz., using a T-40 instrument trainer. This produces an added benefit. Since T-40 instrumentation is similar to that of the T-37 aircraft in which student pilots are trained, they will be learning T-37 instrument skills while undergoing screening.

In addition, a new division—the Flying Training Candidate Selection Division (FTCSD), organized under the School of Military Sciences, Officer at Lackland—has been formed.

FTCSD (in conjunction with HRL) will explore the role altitude chamber training plays in pinpointing physiological-psychological causes of pilot attrition.

The new division will also experiment with improved use of the Officer Qualification Test for pilot screening, improve medical screening, and determine the value of preliminary psychiatric evaluation.

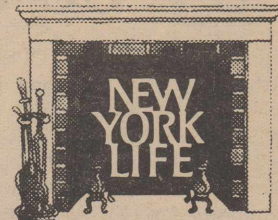

FTCSD's goal is to identify—during the selection process—candidates likely to eliminate themselves from training later on because of a lack of motivation.

Finally, the new pilot indoctrination program will give the applicant an insight into the real day-by-day world of the pilot, as opposed to an idyllic white-scarf fantasy.

35th bowls over competition, maintains 12-game advantage

By Capt. Charles M. Thrash

The sporting scene in the squadron has been on the upswing lately. Our bowling team, according to Capt. Skip Franklin, has practically made a runaway with their league.

They have a 12 game lead over their nearest competition. According to Skip, this lead should get larger.

Playoff Berth

The basketball team, even though we have had a couple of setbacks, has made it into the playoffs. We would have been in first place in our league if the students of Class 74-01 hadn't beat us on a couple of lucky shots.

I'm sure they won't beat us again. Next time we're supposed to play them . . . they'll all be scheduled for night flying.

Baby Explosion

The continuing saga of the baby explosion completed another chapter when 2nd Lt. Bob McCrary's wife, Sharon, gave birth to a girl, Laura. Bob says she's already the smartest girl around and to make sure all these facts made it into the paper he gave me two cigars.

Have you bought your ticket for the Air Force Association (AFA) banquet yet? First Lt. Dennis Williams' newest con game has us all showing the 14th for a big meal and some wise words from Lt. Gen. William V. McBride, Air Training Command (ATC) commander. So, if you don't have your ticket yet, see Denny. He needs the money for another one of his business deals.

Caprock Blues

Every now and then we get to feeling low about being on the caprock. But then something happens to make us realize there are other places that have it worse than we do. The latest confirmation of this theory came from a group of our instructor pilots who got stuck at Dyess AFB, Tex., a couple of weeks ago.

As they were trying to kill time by watching television at the Dyess open mess, a group of IPs from Webb AFB, Tex., came in and really began to celebrate. To them, a chance to spend an evening in Abilene was a real holiday. So when you get to feeling low, cheer up! Things could always be worse.

Gee-Whiz Award

The Gee-Whiz Award this week goes to one of our IPs who started taxiing to the wrong runway. When he realized his mistake he called ground control and asked permission—you guessed it—if he could make a 360 on the taxiway. The quote of the week is, "Keeping your tips up!"

Insurance check urged

A recent Armed Forces Radio and Television Service newsletter warned GIs to double check their insurance policies.

The Veterans Administration urges all GI insurance policyholders to take a second look at the type of policy pay-off they have selected for their next of kin.

Widows of many GI policyholders are penalized after their husbands' deaths by being limited to small monthly payments over a 36-month period. In some cases, VA officials noted veterans chose smaller payments for life more than 25 years ago and never updated their policies.

GI policyholders who wish now to switch to lump sum payments should request Form 20-336 and select option #1. This will allow widows to select monthly payments should they deem it necessary.

henko, CE, earned a certificate for standardizing chart sizes.

Robert B. Davis of Maintenance Division received a $100 award for a suggestion concerning the T-37 seat ejection system. William Turner suggested painting hose connections on test stands, and was awarded $125. W. L. Lutz was awarded $75 for some new procedures.

Mrs. Norma Davault and Mrs. Sherry Underwood, both of Civilian Personnel, earned certificates for their suggestions concerning shop procedures. Mrs. Glenda Moore of Military Personnel also received a certificate for her suggestion pertaining to the director at CBPO.

Newcomers welcomed to 54th

By Capt. Roger Carter

The 54th gained more reinforcements this week in our battle up the time line. Maj. Robert W. Smith comes to us from a tour with the Canadian Armed Forces, where he commanded their Instrument Check Pilot

School and flew the T-33. Major Smith is temporarily assigned with Barracuda Flight.

Goat Flight gained the talents of Maj. James P. Erickson. He formerly commanded the T-41 detachment at the Air Force Academy. Two new Hawg Flight instructors are 2nd Lt. Robert Petterman and 2nd Lt. David Shontz. They come back to us after successfully completing PIT at Randolph AFB, Tex.

Speaking of the flight line, the 54th has been getting outstanding support from the crew chiefs lately. In appreciation, let's remember to vote for Crew Chief of the Month. Include name, grade and aircraft tail number on the ballot. The ballot box is located on the desk with the oxygen test set in the chute room.

This week's coveted "but sir I tried" award goes to 1st Lt. Bob White, an instructor in Goat Flight. Lieutenant White, in full mess dress, showed up for the graduation ball last week exactly on time . . . one day early.

Young roundballers court lopsided victories in play

The Reese Youth Basketball League showed for three more lopsided victories in the Sunday afternoon play in the base gymnasium.

The first game saw the Rockets clobber the Pacers by a healthy 33-6. Leading scorers for that game were Degagal Brown with 16 and Kevin Jones with seven. The scoring for the Pacers was accounted for by Don Cunningham, Philip Tinman and Keny Clark with two each.

Knicks vs. Royals

The second game of the day featured the Knicks and the Royals of the 11-13-year old league.

The Knicks ran away with it, 26-6. Ricky Williams was the only man in double figures with 11; Tony Beauboeuf totalled six, and David Beauboeuf followed up with five. Kenny Ward and Ted Clark accounted for two each. Keith Ward hit for four points for the Pacers and Mark McCandless scored two.

Lakers Win

The final game of the day was also in the 11-13-year old league. The Lakers blew by the Celtics by a 20-14 final tally.

Elda Roberts hit for eight points for the Lakers and Rick Gueraro scored seven. Two points went up next to Jim Duesterhaus' name and two more for Kevin Ward. Jim Lambrecht followed up with one point.

Scoring Leaders

Mike Benson led the scoring for the Celtics with eight and Beau McKenzie, Dennis Pusser and Dennis Parret accounted for two each.

This weekend's action will see the Sunday afternoon opener losing the Cougars against the Pacers at 4 p.m. The second game will see the Knicks matching talents with the Celtics, and the nightcap will host the Lakers and the Royals of the 11-13-year old league.

YOUTH BASKETBALL—Tony Beauboeuf of the Knicks drives for an easy layup unmolested as Mark McCandless of the Pacers follows just one step too late. Chaplains urged to help resolve people problems

Gen. John D. Ryan, Air Force Chief of Staff, recently told chaplains of their responsibility to assist commanders in solving problems involving people.

Much of what the Chief of Staff said applies to commanders and supervisors at every level. Excerpts:

"Last year (1971) I had occasion to sign out to the field an Air Force regulation which formally established many long-accepted standards of behavior (AFR 30-1). One standard addresses racial discrimination. In language deliberately stern, unmistakably clear, this regulation states that 'discrimination by act or inference will not be tolerated.' Commanders are expected to enforce that standard. I expect that violations of that standard as well as any other standard will result in appropriate action . . .

"Assumption of command is a heavy responsibility. Today, command may well mean exposure to serious racial problems and the requirement for fast, dynamic solutions. Many times, a considerable amount of personal courage is required . . .

"Perhaps the most significant consequence of all this is that we are making progress in eliminating many of the old scapegoats for individual dissatisfaction and despair. In many cases, an element of hope for the individual has been placed in situations and circumstances where there was none before.

"The direction an individual's life takes in the Air Force is becoming more and more the responsibility of that individual. In decreasingly fewer cases can lack of satisfaction or success be reasonably blamed on the 'system.' It never could reasonably be blamed on technology or automation.

"This makes your job more difficult. It is possible to eventually correct any wrong done to a victim of a 'system' or resulting from circumstances beyond the individual's control . . ."

The role played by communication in dealing with problems involving Air Force people and "the system" is evident in the first section of AFR 30-1. In this section commanders are directed to conduct Commanders Call monthly and to establish and chair advisory councils for junior officers, noncommissioned officers and airmen. The regulation directs commanders to personally counsel Air Force members about their careers.

It should be noted that AFR 30-1 is addressed not only to commanders, but to supervisors. As General Ryan says in the introduction: "Commanders are responsible for their people—as are supervisors—and their people are responsible as well." (AFNS)

Changes in pilot force reviewed on cassette

This week's review of the palace flicks program available in bldg. T-815 centers around the sound-on-film cassette "Young Pilot Force".

This five-minute cassette, aimed at all young pilots, reviews the career outlook for today's young pilot. It explains that after the Korean War, it was found that there were enough pilots to do the job. Thus pilot production was cut.

During the mid-sixties requirements and production increased as a result of the Vietnam conflict, creating an imbalance within the pilot force. Because of this, young pilots must now perform at a level at which more senior officers would function in a better balanced force.

Income tax rules scanned

Federal income tax returns should be filed with an Internal Revenue Service Center as indicated on the back cover of the 1040 Instructions.

The Internal Revenue Service exchanges information with state tax officials concerning returns filed in the various states. This makes it important that a ser-viceman's return show his legal residence in addition to his local mailing address, if different.

Members should also include duty station, rank or rating, branch of service, and social security number or preclude any inference that he is a resident, for state income tax purposes, of any other state. (AFNS)

EM with degrees urged to apply for commission

Randolph AFB, Tex. (ATCPS)—Air Force Recruiting Service officials have a continuing need for qualified applicants to enter the School of Military Sciences, Officer (SMSO) for subsequent commissioning and entry into flying training.

Applicants for pilot, navigator and helicopter pilot training programs must possess a four-year college degree, obtain a qualifying score on the Air Force Officers Qualifying Test, and successfully complete a flying physical examination. They must be able to be commissioned and enter flying training before attaining the age of 27½ years.

Waivers for age up to 28½ years and for eye refraction standards will be considered for navigator training, if applicants are otherwise exceptionally well qualified.

Interested airmen should contact the formal training branch of their local Consolidated Base Personnel Office (CBPO) for application procedures.

Wives seek new players

Lady general due hike

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—Defense Department officials said that Brig. Gen. Jeanne M. Holm, Director of Women in the Air Force, will be nominated by President Nixon for promotion to the temporary grade of major general.

General Holm, the first Air Force women general officer, donned her first star in Aug. 1971. She is the first woman in the armed forces who will be nominated for Senate confirmation to become a two-star officer. The other Air Force woman general officer is Brig. Gen. Ethel A.

Hoefly, chief of the Air Force Nurse Corps.

Defense Secretary Melvin Laird said that as he made a preliminary visit through the Arnold Corridor, which was dedicated Jan. 22, he noticed that there weren't many pictures depicting the work of Air Force women.

Noting that the number of Air Force women had greatly increased recently, Secretary Laird said he was pleased with the progress made to increase women participation. He also said the importance of women participation should be recognized.
