A one-time survey of all Reese personnel commenced Monday with the delivery of questionnaires to first sergeants at a meeting held by Lt. Col. James E. Page Jr., director of personnel.

Colonel Page noted the importance of having every person employed at Reese complete a questionnaire, "Only by this means can we determine where we were at the beginning, which will enable us to measure the program's progress. If our progress is poor, we want to know about it so we can make adjustments that will better serve our members. Too, we want to inform all Reese personnel regarding their contribution to the conservation of energy," the colonel stated.

First sergeants have been requested to return the completed questionnaires by Monday. At that time, the complex job of matching potential car-pools will commence. "Each person indicating an interest in forming a carpool will hear from us as soon as we can match his residence, duty hours and work location with a reasonable number of other interested members. They can be assured we want to get the job done for them to the very best of our ability and as quickly as humanly possible," Colonel Page said.

Asked about goals, Colonel Page indicated a belief that Reese personnel were now averaging 1.3 to 1.6 persons per car, and that he felt this could be raised to 2.5 per car with "Reese-type support of the program." The colonel continued, "All of us want to help our country and there aren't many who will overlook this opportunity to do so, considering the real possibility of gas rationing this winter and the savings in both gas and money which accrue from carpooling," he concluded.

Air War, Staff Colleges earn accreditation from CASE

MAXWELL AFB, Ala. (AFNS) —Air University's Air War College and its Air Command and Staff College, both located here, have received undergraduate and graduate credit recommendations for their nonresident correspondence and seminar programs from the Commission on Accreditation of Service Experiences (CASE) of the American Council on Education.

This marks the first time Air Force extension courses have received credit recommendations from a national education agency, AU officials said.

At the request of the Defense Department and the invitation of the AU commander, CASE obtained the services of graduate school professors nominated by the Council of Graduate Schools in the United States.

Earlier this year, these consultants visited Air University where, working with AU officials, AWC, Extension Course Institute and ACSC, they studied and appraised the AWC and ACSC nonresident correspondence and seminar programs, faculty qualifications, examination program, and the AU facilities.

As a result of their evaluations, the commission made the following recommendations:

Graduate Level: AWC (both programs) and ACSC nonresident seminar program (for students rated outstanding or excellent): International Relations, four semester hours; Personnel Management, two seminar hours. ACSC correspondence program (for students rated satisfactory): International Relations, three semester hours.

Baccalaureate Level: AWC (both programs): 24 semester hours in the areas of political science, international relations and government, and personnel management. ACSC nonresident seminar program: 24 semester hours of upper-division credit in the areas of social science and personnel management; and ACSC correspondence program: 15 semester hours in the social sciences and personnel management.

AWC seminar and correspondence graduates and ACSC seminar graduates may contact the Registrar, 3825th Academic Services Group at Maxwell AFB, Ala., 36112, for forwarding transcripts to a specific college. ACSC correspondence graduates may receive transcripts by writing the Extension Course Institute, ECI/EDOR, Gunter AFS, Ala., 36118, or by calling AUTOVON 921-4331/4194.

Basic Training—

THEN...

STAFF OR OT?—In the early days of Air Force basic training, instructors wore square, striped epaulets called tiger bars, distinguishing them from the other groups.

Think back to Bo Diddley and the rock 'n roll era of the '50s—greased down hair and black leather jackets. Some of you were in the Air Force then and probably can remember Lackland AFB, Tex., back when:

- Basic military training ran 11 weeks instead of six; and where everyone sweated out KP, dorm details, and long, humid nights in rundown, unairconditioned buildings;

- The mashed potatoes and powdered eggs were always served in such a way that most wondered how something so innocent could so consistently be turned into something so disastrous; and

- Tent City was pitched in 1951 to accommodate the increased numbers of basic trainees streaming into the Basic Indoctrination Center in support of the Korean conflict.

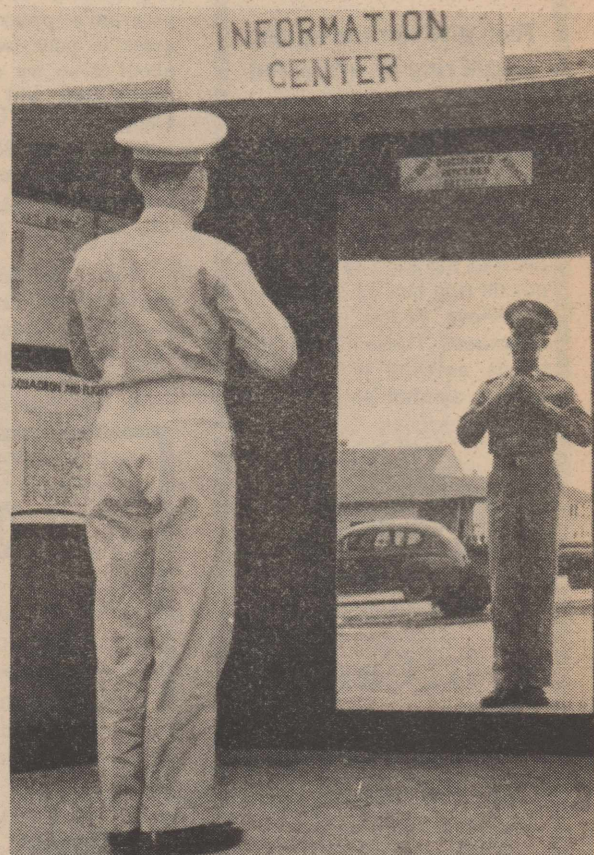

Of course, all that is now history.

One Remembers

However, one individual was around when that history was being written—MSgt. Windell Davis, training superintendent for the 3701st Basic Military Training Squadron, School of Military Sciences-Airman.

Since his enlistment in 1954, Sergeant Davis has spent 15 of 19 years working in some aspect of basic training.

Thinking back to when he went through, Sergeant Davis recalls that his training was more closely related to the philosophy of World War II and Korea.

A REFLECTION OF THE PAST—A trainee of years past, undergoing basic at the Air Force's indoctrination center, Lackland AFB, Tex., checks his tie and gig-line before moving on.

GAS TRAINING—In the 1950s, basic trainees undergoing training at the Lackland indoctrination center had a week of bivouac. A part of the training included a gas attack on a 12-mile night march.

“Back in '54, we spent a week in the boondocks on bivouac—that went out in '56,” he said.

Better Food

Most oldtimers didn't care much for the food served then. Sergeant David is quick to point out that the food now served trainees is excellent.

“I do have a hard time understanding the eating habits of some trainees, though,” he said. “I've seen them turn down steak for hamburger.”

Sergeant Davis has witnessed more improvements in basic training than just COOLING IT—When the weather in San Antonio and at Lackland got warm, it wasn't unusual to see the basic trainees in the days of Tent City taking off their shirts in order to survive the heat.

in those areas dealing with a trainee's diet—many improvements also have been made with what goes into a trainee's mind.

"I believe that both our instructors and trainees are much better educated, and that our overall academic program is much better today than when I went through," he said.

New Emphasis

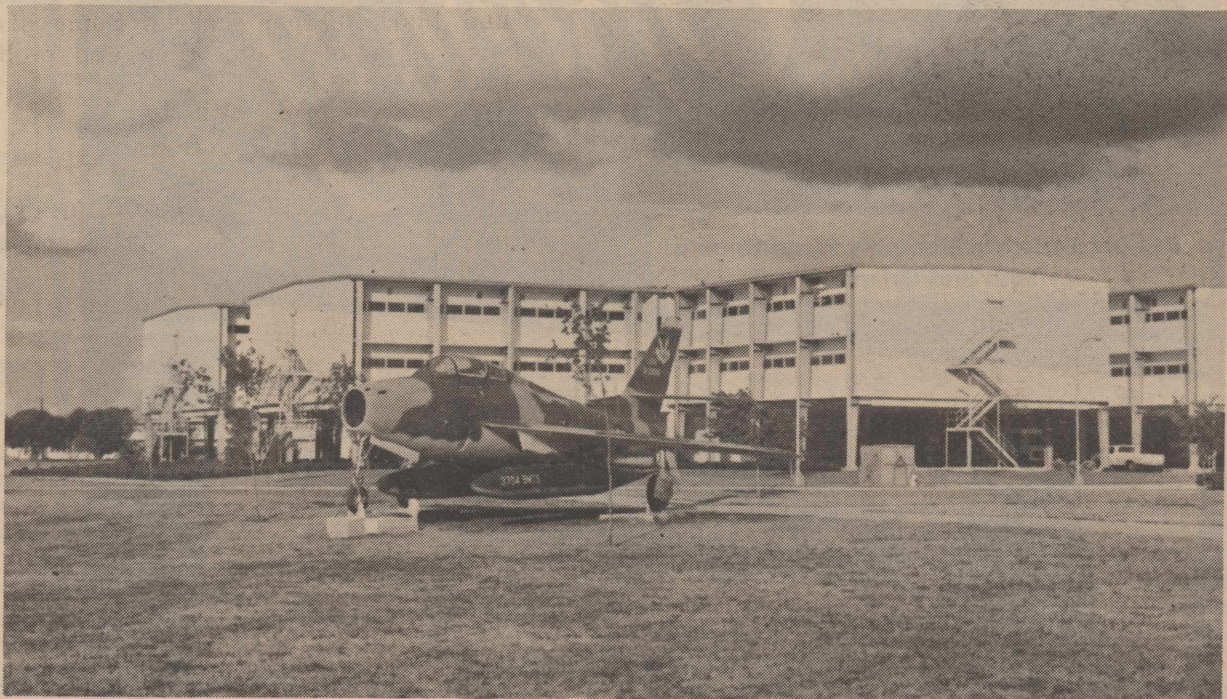

Sergeant Davis said that today human relations and drug abuse training are strongly emphasized. "I wouldn't like to see this cut," he said.

Although other improvements and changes in basic training could be cited, Sergeant Davis is particularly pleased with one—the increased emphasis on and utilization of the physical conditioning unit.

"If a guy comes in overweight, we now have the means to get it off. Through a combination of diet and exercise, I've seen a trainee lose as much as 12 inches of fat," he said.

Women basics also train at Lackland. Over the past 25 years, Lackland has seen more than 2.5 million men and women make the transition from civilian to military life.

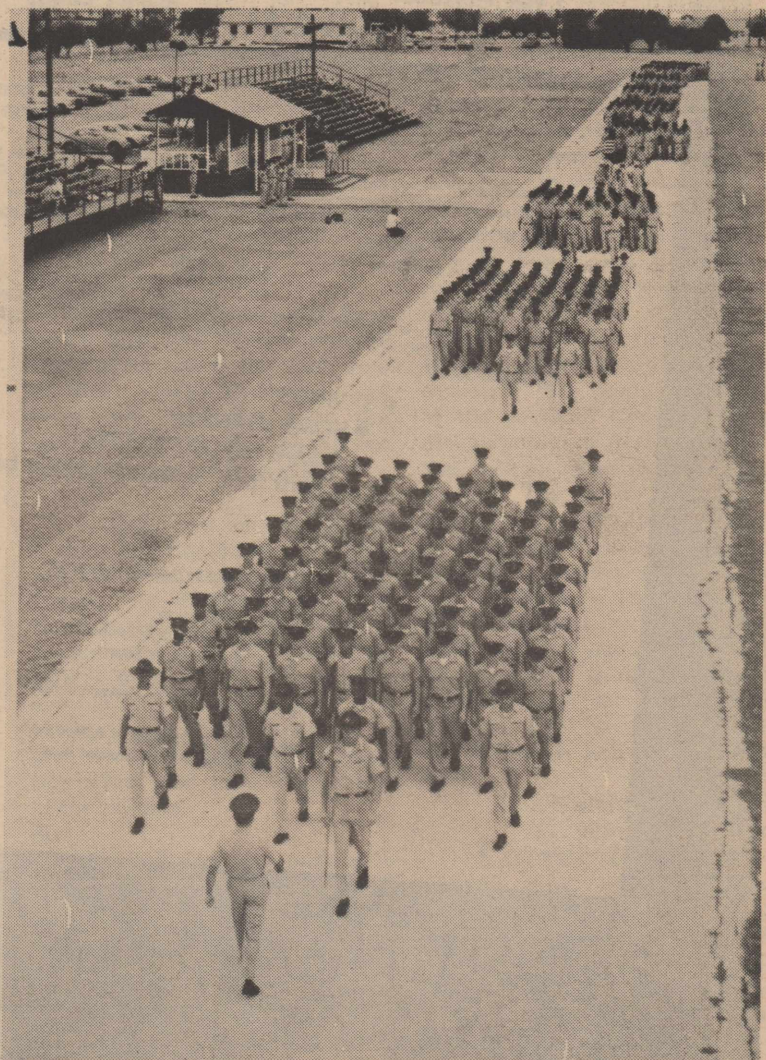

Even Bo Diddley should appreciate that record. (AFNS)

A STARK CONTRAST—Today, most of Lackland's incoming basics will be housed in one of these modern, air-conditioned dorms. On rainy days, there is enough area to drill the troops on the pad underneath. This means few rescheduled days due to bad weather.

FOOD'S A LOT BETTER—There is no comparison between the food of the '50s and the food served up today in a Lackland AFB, Tex., basic training dining hall. Fare includes sodas for lunch and a short-order line for variety.

DRILL AND CEREMONIES—About the only thing different about drill and ceremonies today versus the '50s is that there isn't as much—today a basic trainee gets only about 20 hours. Most training instructors think drill is still one of the best ways to teach Air Force enlistees discipline and esprit de corps.

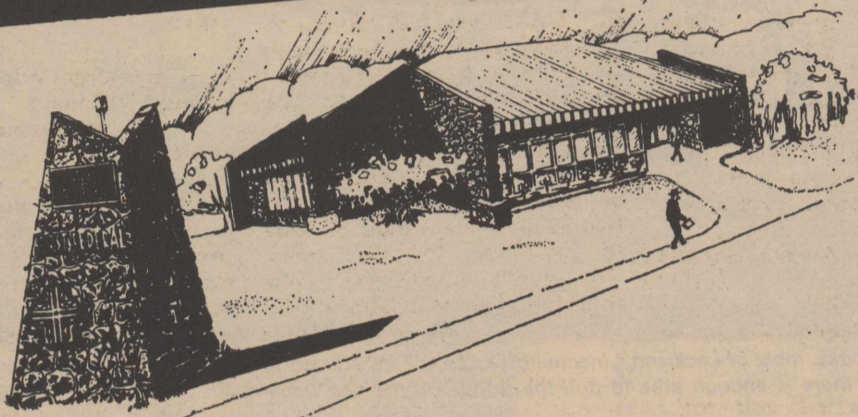

THE ALAMO—Base liberty is not authorized until after the tenth day. After the 25th day, one off-base pass is authorized. A favorite visiting site is the famous Alamo in downtown San Antonio.

The group has also planned a number of fund raising events to collect more for the program which is designed to provide money to needy families on base to purchase food at the commissary.

This year's Reese Youth Activities Christmas party will feature Admiral Foghorn, Tricks by Trixie and of course, Santa Claus. The free party is set for 8:30 to 10 a.m., Dec. 15 at the base theater. A free drawing will also be held for an early Christmas gift. All youngsters attending will receive a stocking filled with candy. More information is available from the Youth Center at ext. 2584.

One of the strangest bombing missions in the history of the Air Force Reserve is happening over Puerto Rico as C-7 Caribou aircraft are making daily "bomb runs" to wipe out a pasky little enemy, the screw-worm fly.

The NCO Wives Club has announced plans for their formal dinner-dance to be held at 7 p.m., tomorrow in the NCO Open Mess. The club's monthly business meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m., Tuesday at the home of the club's president, Mrs. Fred Schulz. Members are reminded of the gift exchange planned for the meeting.

A roast-turkey-with-trimmings will grace the serving line at the wing dining hall and other installations' facilities Christmas Day around the world.

Reese Lanes has announced their Christmas Turkey Shoot for Dec. 15 through 24. Interested persons should contact the bowling lanes for more information.

The Interior Department, at the request of the Defense Department, has issued directives to 22 U.S. companies to supply 19.7 million barrels of petroleum during the months of November and December.

Congratulations to 2nd Lt. Christopher Reider of the 64th Student Squadron and Sgt. Alliene Harriston of the Reese USAF Hospital for having their seatbelts fastened when they were stopped recently during a spot check. They were awarded dinners for two at their respective messes.

The Air Force Logistics Command demonstrated flexibility and an ability to respond quickly during the nation's military supply effort to restore the balance of power in the Middle East. From the Tactical Air Command point of view, the central fact of U.S. response to the Middle East crisis was the great speed with which the United States was able to help a friend defend itself and achieve a military balance that would bring an end to the fighting.

How about an old-fashioned quilting bee, ladies? This could be a good chance to make friends, have fun and make warm quilts to use instead of turning up your home thermostat at night. Think about it.

The Hurlwood, Tex., Post Office (79328) will be open tomorrow and Dec. 15 to accommodate the Christmas mailing rush. It will be open from 8 a.m. until noon each day.

Sir:
This is Airman Jemiolo at Supply. Recently I lost my ID Card and one of the personnel at the Fire Department found it. They work in shifts and I didn't know when the guy worked. I went down there and they spent almost three hours helping me find my ID Card and trying to track down the guy who had it. I want to commend the Fire Department for helping me out and taking all that time and trouble.

Airman Jemiolo
Airman Jemiolo:
Good work—it's always nice to hear about a neighbor doing a good turn. Thanks for taking time to call.

Sir:
I have one question about the car pool. What happens if somebody has an accident and they are not insured for the people they are driving with and they get sued? Maybe that is one reason they don't want a car pool. Thank you very much.

Airman Gatzert
CBPO
Airman Gatzert:
I referred your question to the Legal Office, and they advised that car pool members may not sue the driver of the car pool for injuries received in an accident unless caused either by gross negligence or intentional misconduct by the driver. Provided the members and the driver of the car pool do no more than share equally the expenses of gas and oil, the Texas law which prevents guests riding in the car from suing the driver would apply.

Colonel Baxter:
Several of the wives of Class 74-04 were talking and we are afraid that since the energy crisis has come up and gas stations are closed on Sunday, there are quite a few people in the class that wanted to go home for Christmas. Our homes are far enough away that we would not be able to make it before Christmas without being stuck on the road on Sunday without any gas. We are wondering if there is any way that graduation could be moved up even a day or two so that we would be able to get home for Christmas. We would appreciate your thinking about this. Thank you.

A Class 74-04 Wife
I realize the energy crisis has created hardships. All of our operations, including the graduation of Class 74-04, have been reviewed to minimize the impact of the fuel shortage. I realize some people will be inconvenienced but many families who have made plans to attend the ceremonies would not be able to arrive earlier in the week or change their plans at this late date. I wish we could, but we can't please everybody. Class 74-04 will have to graduate as scheduled.

Sir:
I am an airman in Barracks 220 and I live on the third floor, and the last two or three weeks there has not been one morning that the temperature in the bathroom has been over 40 degrees.

No name
Although you may not realize it the Civil Engineers have been and are continuing to work in balancing the heating system in Bartlett Hall. It's a top priority project with them and will be until it is finished. You can help by keeping your windows and the outside doors closed so as not to give the thermostat bad information about the true temperature of the building.

Sir:
I would like to comment on Reese's effort in the Energy Crisis. This Saturday I was visiting a house on George St. in Reese Village. At approximately 10 p.m. I noticed a porch light on. At 10:20 two Security Police cars drove by and as far as I could tell did absolutely nothing, because when I left at 12:45 the same porch light was on. Sir, I believe there is a lack of effort at Reese or on someone's part here. Thank you.

Name indiscernible
It is very apparent that most members of the Reese community are interested in conserving energy, but this is a new program and some errors are inherent. Your complaint was investigated, and an oversight on the part of the residents resulted in outside lights being left on when they were not at home. At approximately 7 p.m. daily the Security Police, sometimes accompanied by local Boy Scouts, remind residents to turn off unnecessary outside lighting.

Sir:
Several people and myself would like to know why only one kind of music is being played at the Wing Dining Hall. We'd like to know if you know anything about this and, if possible, you could tell us why.

A1C Wilkins
Security Police Squadron
Airman Wilkins:
Soft background music creates a better dining atmosphere and is preferred by most people who eat in the Wing Dining Hall. Only three people have requested KLBK, a hard rock station, in the past year.

Sir:
Our dorm is burning up at night! How in the world can you conserve energy... we have our windows completely opened and it must have been 80-something degrees in there. That's Barracks 420, Alexander Hall.

Anonymous
The problem with the heating systems in Alexander and Bartlett Halls as well as BOQ 1030 is a combination of two factors—engineering deficiencies and the personnel factor. The heating systems consist of four zones, each controlled by sensors on the second floor. These zones are vertical, so that each includes a portion of the first, second and third floors. Different heating demands on each floor constitute the engineering part of the problem. Civil Engineers are planning to modify the system with a series of valves and sensors. The other part of the problem involves the occupants of the rooms that have the sensors. If a window is opened in one of these rooms, it causes the thermostat to send more heat into that heating zone, and all the rooms in that zone will get hot. Help us minimize the problem until a permanent fix can be made, and please be patient.

Col. Walter H. Baxter III
Wing Commander
Correction...
The first answer in last week's Commander's CARE Line column, on the subject of the "acute care pediatric clinic" indicated the facility was open from 8:15 to 9:30 p.m. It should have read, "... from 8:15 to 9:30 a.m."

There is a better way for Christmas shopping

By Lighthouse

Only seventeen more shopping days till Christmas and the annual rush to buy presents and Christmas trees is on.

Fighting the crowds, watching your hard money slip through your fingers and the anxious anticipation of waiting for the after Christmas bills, has caused many a good man to get ulcers and have nervous breakdowns.

All, that is, except me. I have finally devised a way to do my Christmas shopping without ever leaving the comfort of my easy chair: I use the television. Last year as I struggled back home under an armload of packages and wrapping paper, my empty checkbook in hand, the television presented me with the solution to the Christmas shopping blues problem.

About the end of November, advertisements start showing up on the screen for handy dandy food choppers, gizmos that staple buttons to your shirt, combination egg graters and can openers, and oldie but goldie records. For the price of a postage stamp, you can send away for these labor saving devices, and have them sent directly to your home or the home of a friend.

No crowds to fight, no hassle with wrapping paper and ribbon, and no need to get up from the comfort of your own living room. This year I got my wife a machine that will chop carrots, open a bottle, shred lettuce and put the cat out at night. That might sound a little impersonal, but after all, where you can you buy a bottle of perfume or an expensive winter coat that can chop carrots?

You are what you eat. Dr. Alice Chase, author of "Nutrition For Health" and several other works on proper dietary habits, recently died of malnutrition at her London residence.

So what? Dorsey Evans, a lawyer from Detroit, recently accepted an offer to appear in a floor show in Las Vegas. Although Mr. Evans has no special talents, the management of the hotel thought that the patrons would be interested in seeing the two halves of Mr. Evans zipper on his trousers that were welded together when he was struck by lightning.

Review: The Rolling Stones have done it again. "Goats Head Soup," is the latest production extravaganza of Mick Jagger and company, and the best thing about the album is the poster that you get with each purchase. Although you might like it if you are a Stones fan, it has the same kind of material that has been on the past two Stones albums.

There is still the same overall good quality, but none of the freshness and innovation that keeps the super groups on top. If you want to get into this album, you'll have to pretend that you've never heard the Rolling Stones before.

It must be the sign of the times and the quick changing temperament of the public, but there are many past super stars who are no longer performing like they used to. Grand Funk Railroad has gone into stagnation worrying about the 34 law suits against them brought by their former manager, Bette Midler is in the death throes of a "flash-in-the-pan" career, and Paul McCartney is showing a lot of flash but no talent with his latest album.

FOOD DRIVE—SSgt. Johnny W. Abney, NCOIC of the 54th Flying Training Squadron Administration Section, is shown here donating canned goods to C/SSgt. LouAnn Sebolt, executive officer of Silver Wings Division of Texas Tech University's AFROTC Angel Flight. Sergeant Abney donated the food as part of the Salvation Army Canned Food Drive which began Wednesday. Reese is cooperating in the effort to provide food for the Christmas season to local families who would otherwise not be able to afford it, as well as the Toys for Tots program. 1st Lt. Stephen W. Dunn, project officer for both programs, said, "It is hoped that all Reese personnel do what little they can to enable everyone to share in the spirit of the upcoming holidays." Star's absence lets guest ace ink story

By The Red Baron

Since Pete is off in Hollywood making movies, he asked this Flying Ace to fill in for this article.

In case you didn't get his autographed picture before he left for stardom in California, Pete said he would still give his friends a special discount after he becomes famous. We're looking forward to the "Air Force Now" films, and hopefully a special showing on the ABC Sunday Night Movie.

Not much is doing in the squadron, except that some people are already planning their holidays. In case you haven't made plans to attend the squadron party at the club Nov. 14, contact your flight commander or Sprout to let him know you're going. This party is going to be the highlight of the year and fun for everybody.

The squadron has imported a famous choral group to entertain everyone. The dinner should be outstanding and I wouldn't be surprised if a little gaiety were intermixed with the food. Start the holiday season on the right foot by bringing your favorite girl to the club and catching her under the mistletoe next Friday.

Our neighbors from Hollo-man paid us another visit last week and really tied up the phones in Dawg Flight. Our friendly rivalry could continue for some time as many of our squadron members will be going that way for ski trips this winter, and just may stop off at their base. I would imagine it is a little more difficult to justify their trip in return when our only highlight is Prairie Dog Town.

A new member to the Dawgs is Terry Bagwell's new wife, Jeannette. Terry's only comment about married life is that those Flexomatics really do shave close!

The quote of the week goes to Capt. James Nuber. When Reload queried Jim why he was terminating his mission early, he said "... because my EGT (Exhaust Gas Temperature) is fluctuating 100 psi."

Mayor announces 'Homesafe' period

(Editor's note: The following is a special proclamation made by nearby Lubbock's Mayor Morris W. Turner Tuesday, honoring Lubbock's and Reese's HOMESAFE WITH CARE program.)

Proclamation

WHEREAS: The Christmas and New Year holiday season often is marred by the needless tragedy of traffic collisions; and

WHEREAS: Governor Dolph Briscoe has declared a state of traffic safety emergency in the State of Texas during this holiday season; and

WHEREAS: It is the responsibility of each citizen of Texas to exercise control to avoid needless loss of life, pain and sorrow; and

WHEREAS: Our own Citizens' Traffic Commission and Reese Air Force Base are spearheading the drive to eliminate both the sorrow of death and economic loss to our residents; and

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Morris W. Turner, Mayor of the City of Lubbock, Texas, do hereby proclaim the period of Dec. 4, 1973 through Jan. 2, 1974, as HOMESAFE WITH CARE in Lubbock and I urge all citizens of the City of Lubbock to join me in observing this holiday by redoubling our efforts to make this a truly safe driving season which will enable all families to enjoy a safe and happy holiday.

In official recognition whereof, I hereby affix my signature this 4th day of December, 1973.

Reese Girl Scouts ask for support, volunteers

By Mrs. Sharon Zoller

For years Girl Scouting at Reese has been a successful endeavor. Although planning, council meetings and money sure have helped, the success of Scouting at Reese depends on strong troop leadership to tie together the Scouting organization and the individual Girl Scout.

Right now six of our 7th and 8th grade scouts are in need of a troop leader. One woman is acting as the troop assistant, but she cannot continue without a leader. Some time is involved (a one-hour weekly meeting, and a monthly skating trip), but what the girls need most of all is a dependable friend who cares about them.

The past success of Girl Scouting at Reese was due to women who have taken the responsibility. Continued success could depend on you. If you would like to help, please call Mrs. Sharon Zoller at 885-2205.

Thrift Shop offers quality used items

By A1C Buddy Lerch

At one time or another every person and every family at Reese finds some things around their house that are in good working or wearing condition, but which they just don't need or want anymore.

Other people on the base might have a need for these items. Whether they be clothes, toasters, lawn mowers, cameras, or any number of different items, people just don't know who has one they want to sell.

Important Role

That's where the Reese Thrift Shop comes in. The facility, located in Bldg. 246, is where Reese military and civilian employees and military dependents can sell their unwanted second-hand possessions.

The Thrift Shop, sponsored by the Officers Wives Club, handles most of its sales through consignment, according to Linda McGuire, Thrift Shop manager. The customer brings in the items they want to sell, decides on the selling price, and the shop's volunteer workers draw up a contract for the sale. The Thrift Shop then displays the items, and when they are sold takes 10 percent of the selling price for the service. Profits from sales go to the OWC Charity Fund, which is used to donate funds to needy local agencies.

Mrs. McGuire said, "A lot of people don't realize that we also take unwanted things on donation much like Goodwill Stores in the civilian community."

Good Shape

Items brought in for resale must be clean and in good condition, according to Mrs. McGuire. "A lot of people bring in new merchandise—sometimes they get presents they don't really want, and the Thrift Shop provides an outlet for these items. The shop cannot sell certain items, such as firearms, shoes, lingerie, or anything with a flammable substance in it. This includes power mowers with gasoline in them, full Coleman lanterns and stoves, and the like.

"Presently the Thrift Shop has a lot of bikes and new mess dress uniforms, furniture, tires, toys and end tables," said Mrs. McGuire. But she added, "We need more merchandise, volunteers, and of course buyers. Volunteer workers get free nursery care for their young children while working and first chance at all the merchandise brought for resale."

The Thrift Shop is open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesdays and Fridays. Consignments are accepted until 1 p.m., giving the volunteers time to finish tagging the items and get them on the sales floor.

Legal Office reports month's punishment

A Reese sergeant charged with assault was reduced to airman basic and given a reprimand during a November court martial, according to Capt. Carl J. Kretzinger, staff Judge Advocate. The former sergeant had one prior Article 15.

Four airmen first class were reprimanded and given seven days extra duty for failure to go to duty during the month in other punitive action. None of these airmen had any prior action taken against them.

Another airman was reduced to airman basic for failure to go to duty. The airman had a prior Article 15.

An airman first class was reprimanded and given 14 days extra duty for signing a false document. A sergeant received a vacation of suspension for being 5 days AWOL.

A staff sergeant here also received a vacation of suspension for breaking restraint.

ATC develops new program for F-15 Eagle flight training

Randolph AFB, Tex. (ATCPS) —Air Training Command (ATC) has begun organizing training programs in support of the Air Force's new F-15 fighter aircraft.

Responsibilities assigned to ATC include the development of training courses and required training equipment and facilities.

Instructor personnel to conduct these courses have already begun their training by observing maintenance operations at Edwards AFB, Calif., where the F-15 is presently in its final stages of contractor development test and evaluation.

Initially, technical training on F-15 systems will be accomplished at Luke AFB, Ariz., and Lowry AFB, Colo. A Mobile Training Set has also been developed to support on-site training at Luke and other future operating locations.

Two officers assigned to ATC's technical training directorate and representatives of three other major commands will comprise the F-15 Site Activation Task Force.

The objective of the task force is to insure effective management of all resources involved in getting the F-15 operational.

SL reports attendance

Randolph AFB, Tex. (ATCPS) —Air Training Command officials have recorded participation by more than 103,000 personnel in the command's Social Actions Programs.

The total includes participation in the Defense Race Relations Institute (DRRI) course, the Drug/Alcohol Education Program, and Community Service Program (formerly Domestic Actions Program).

Some 33,000 personnel have taken the 18-hour DRRI course which was initiated in ATC Feb. 1, 1973. Within 27 days after the course's beginning all commanders and key staff personnel had attended. All other key personnel had participated by May 1, 1973; the balance of ATC officers and airmen are scheduled to complete this training by March 1, 1974.

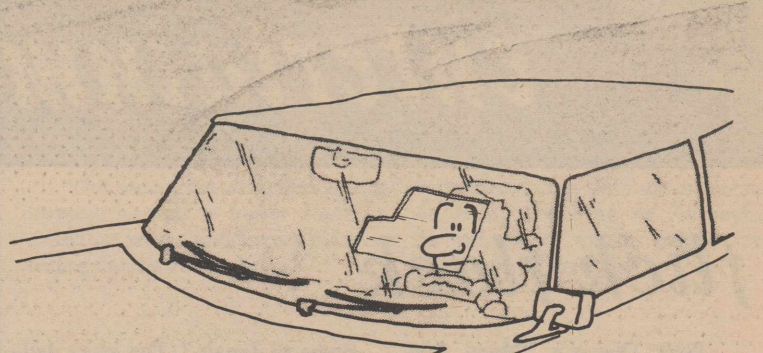

Additionally, more than 49,000 ATC military and civilian employees have attended Drug/Alcohol Education briefings created to increase the awareness of the effects of drugs and alcohol in our society today.

The two-hour presentation is normally presented to groups of 50 or less personnel.

More than 21,000 ATC people volunteered 780,000 hours of personal time to the Community Service Program through voluntary undertakings to help the needy and improve general community life in our military environment.

Col. Robert D. Haley, ATC Assistant for Social Actions, stated, "These records reflect the outstanding participation in and the tremendous support for the Social Actions Programs by ATC personnel."

AFers in Germany halt Sunday driving

RAMSTEIN AB, Germany (AFNS)—U.S. Air Force people in Germany joined their German neighbors in observing reduced speed limits and the first Sunday driving ban in Central Europe.

Sgt. John Hoyt at Tempelhof Airport in Berlin observed that "most families either stayed at home or took in some of the city's sights. The public transportation system here in Berlin is great and you could get to practically any point by train or bus."

SSgt. Sam Ashford was one of the few persons who drove to work with a special permit. "There wasn't another car on the road," said the Bitburg AB dining hall supervisor. "It was a real experience—kind of spooky. It was like the world stood still and I was the only one moving."

U.S. Air Forces in Europe officials here estimate that less than three percent of its military people in Germany were issued special driving exemptions. The operating hours of most U.S. facilities, normally open on Sunday, were either curtailed or modified because of the Sunday driving ban.

"Sunday without a car was a welcome change," according to TSgt. Harry Belcher of Wiesbaden AB. "I was able to relax at home, read and take a long walk."

Terminating the current energy crisis a "long term" problem, Gen. David C. Jones, USAFE commander in chief, has pledged his command to a far-reaching fuel conservation program. However, General Jones emphasized that no action has been taken or will be taken which will impair the command's operational readiness or ability to fulfill its North Atlantic Treaty Organization commitments.

General Jones has announced the establishment of a special $25,000 fund to reward members making constructive fuel conservation suggestions. Also, he has advised members to abide by all host country conservation restrictions and to go beyond the restrictions with voluntary actions. The general, who has parked his staff car and walks to work, has encouraged others to follow his example.

75-01 II edges by 74-07 II for title

Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 75-01 II squeaked by Class 74-07 II in overtime play to win the Section II A League championship Nov. 28.

Class 74-05 II defeated 74-07 II by a six-inch margin, also in penetration overtime play, to capture the Section II B League title.

The 75-01 vs. 74-07 game saw a seesaw battle of interceptions, with neither team able to get through the other's defense, for a 0-0 score in regulation play. This resulted in a penetration overtime period being called by officials.

The 74-07 team was awarded the first set of four overtime plays. Taking advantage of the first chance, they scored a 40-yard touchdown on third down and then gained nine more yards on fourth down for a total of 49 yards penetration.

Class 74-01 didn't lose heart and managed to throw for a 40-year TD on their first overtime play. 74-07 held the '01 defense during the next two downs. On their last chance for the win an '01 pass completion ran their total penetration yardage to 53 yards for a narrow last-minute victory and championship.

Both winners now await the winners of the 74-07 I vs. 74-06 I A and B League results to compete for the student football championships, scheduled for tomorrow, weather permitting.

AFN 50 highlights precious resource

This month's issue of "Air Force Now," a mandatory film at all Commanders' Calls during December, highlights the Air Force's most precious resource—their people.

CMSAF (retired) Richard Kising introduces his successor as Chief Master Sergeant of the Air Force, CMSAF Thomas Barnes at the 1973 Outstanding Airmen's Banquet sponsored by the Air Force Association.

Also during the film three members of the lead B-52 aircraft in Linebacker II remember what it was like getting their orders to participate in one of the largest and most successful air operations in history. The tail gunner, navigator and pilot of the "Buff" describe their important roles in the operation, as well as their feelings upon sustaining serious battle damage from a surface-to-air missile.

The 303rd Aerospace Rescue and Recovery Squadron of the Air Force Reserve competes against Canadian teams in that country's annual pararescue team competition. The organization won the right to compete against the Canadians by placing first in the Air Force pararescue competition at Hill AFB, Utah.

Also shown in the 18-minute flick are scenes from Coronet Roundup, the code name for assistance rendered Puerto Rico cattle ranchers in their desperate fight against the screw worm fly. The Air Force joined the U.S. Department of Agriculture and other organizations against the insect. Since the start of the program the worm population has been reduced significantly.

Station observes President's outline

The Reese Service Station, in response to the energy conservation program outlined by President Richard M. Nixon Nov. 25, has ceased dispensing of its gasoline between the hours of 9 p.m. Saturday and midnight Sunday.

Also, during normal operating hours gasoline will be sold for replenishment of tanks which are an integral part of the vehicle being served. Bulk sales will be limited to small portable gas containers normally approved for outboard motors, lawn mowers or other garden equipment.

Exchange service stations throughout the country will continue to curtail operating hours or to ration individual sales as authorized in previous Army and Air Force Exchange Service (AAFES) directives and with the concurrence of installation commanders.

Maj. Gen. C.W. Hospelhorn, AAFES commander, directed the measures to CONUS exchange stations Nov. 26, the day after President Nixon broadcast the energy conservation program to the nation.

"The full impact on exchanges of the presidential dictum on the reduced supply of gasoline cannot yet be evaluated," General Hospelhorn stated. "As soon as supplying oil companies determine their position, exchanges will be notified of future availability of products," he added.

Scouts gain awards at month's meeting

Awards were presented to members of Cub Scout Pack 548 Nov. 28 during the pack's monthly meeting.

Den 4 performed the opening ceremony with a showing of some of the flags that have been used in the United States in the past 200 years, giving a brief history of each.

Den 1 staged a skit with a Thanksgiving theme, and each of the scouts gave their own version of something that they were thankful for, according to Mrs. A.B. Reasner.

Ricky Piper and Neal Matthews were awarded their Wolf during the ceremony. The Recruiter badge went to Carl Williams, Gary Piper and Matt Reasner. The 1-Year Pin was presented to David Mitchell.

Fred Farley and Ricky Piper were made Denners, with Bobby Schulz, Robby Bridges and David Hart named as assistant Denners.

Dennis Carrol received the Silver Arrow and Don Wetter and William Carson graduated from the pack to Boy Scout Troop 548. The closing ceremony was performed by Den 2.

The pack announces that its cubmaster, SSgt. Marty Johnson, will be leaving Reese in January and a request has gone out for anyone interested in serving as the pack's cubmaster to call Bill Richey, 885-2303. Several other positions are also available. "The Scouts are always willing to volunteer—how about you parents?" said Mrs. Reasner.

The next pack meeting has been scheduled for 6:45 p.m., Dec. 19 at the Reese Elementary School.

Lend closet needs items

The Reese Family Services Division recently conducted an inventory of their stock followed by a revamping of loaning facilities.

Several used items have been replaced but there is an ever present need for donations of new items. Members of the organization have purchased 15 new port-a-crib mattresses, four new canvas cots and many kitchen utensils.

Items that are in special need of replacement include plastic glasses and dishes, aluminum dishes and cookware and cots and cribs.

The lending closet, perhaps the most used outlet of the Family Services effort, loaned out 4,679 items serving 345 families during the last fiscal quarter. Items may be checked out of the closet by Reese personnel for up to three weeks. The only requirement for loaning is the showing of an identification card. Punch bowls and sets may also be checked out on a 24-hour basis.

The division is also planning a special Christmas coffee to be held at 10 a.m., Monday in the meeting room of the division, located in Bldg. 5100, just outside the main entrance to Reese. Mrs. Tim Raines and Mrs. Donald Orindorff will serve as hostesses. Entertainment will be provided by the "Skylarks."

Vacant slot considers Plummer

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—President Nixon has announced his intention to nominate James W. Plummer of Los Altos, Calif. to be Under Secretary of the Air Force. He will succeed John L. McLucas who became Secretary of the Air Force on July 19.

Since 1969, Mr. Plummer has been vice president of Lockheed Aircraft Corp. and Lockheed Missiles and Space Co., and general manager, Space Systems Division.

Mr. Plummer, born in January 1920, in Idaho Springs, Colo., received his B.S. degree from the University of California at Berkeley in 1942 and his M.S. degree from the University of Maryland in 1953.

From 1942 to 1946 he was an officer in the U.S. Navy. He is a Fellow of the American Astronautical Society.

CE officials give home energy saving tips

By Sgt. Jeff King

Since energy conservation emphasis began from the Commander-in-Chief on down to the lowest echelon, Air Force officials have been researching to come up with the most practical energy-saving measures.

Until now, most emphasis has been placed on steps to reduce power use while on the job at Reese and at installations around the world. A report now indicates how the conservation effort can be taken into the home. Air Force Civil Engineering officials have some ideas.

Getting Colder

Winter seems to be taking a hold on the South Plains. During cold weather, draw blinds and drapes after the sun goes down. This will retain heat, keep out some cold air and reduce the need to turn up the thermostat. Do not block radiators or air registers with furniture or drapes. Blocking restricts circulation and requires more heat.

When not in use, keep fireplace dampers closed. If there are unused rooms, keep air registers and doors closed. Furnace filters should be kept clean and checked once each month. Phantom dust storms around Lubbock can lodge enough dust in a filter to cause a substantial extra power-gulping effort to keep a house warm.

Set thermostats at 68 degrees. Officials indicate that this is actually a comfortable setting. At night—lower the setting a few degrees and snuggle up under your favorite quilt.

Keep Out Cold

If you open a bedroom window at night, close the bedroom door to keep cold air from hitting the thermostat. If the thermostat is in the bedroom, lower the setting.

If the garage, basement, storm shelter and attic are not heated, the doors leading to these areas should be kept closed to avoid wasting heat.

Next to heating and cooling homes, the next biggest energy user is the household water heater. First of all, if cool or cold water will do—use it.

Use cold water detergents to operate washers whenever possible and wait until you have a full load before operating clothes washers and dishwashers. Do not run hot water when washing dishes. Dripping faucets should be promptly repaired. Don't make a steam room out of the shower.

Necessary Use?

Refrigerators and freezers? Don't use them more than necessary. The temperature of the refrigerator should be maintained between 34 and 40 degrees—check the setting with a thermometer. To keep the temperature fairly constant, don't put warm items in the refrigerator. Keep freezer settings at zero degrees. Also, a full freezer will retain cold longer and allow less air to escape when opening the door.

On the stove, use pots and pans that are the same size as the burner unit. This will avoid waste and reduce the heating time. Use pans with flat bottoms for even heat distribution. Make sure the pans' lids fit.

When boiling water, use only the amount of water needed—reduce flame or lower setting once water begins to boil. Turn off electric stoves a few minutes before food is completely cooked—the stored heat will continue to cook the food.

When possible, cook food in double or triple amounts and store for future use. It takes less energy to reheat food than to cook from scratch. Small countertop appliances such as skillets are more efficient and use less energy than stoves. For foods that require long cooking time—use the oven. It requires less energy than the top burners.

Don't be impatient. Give oven-cooked foods a chance, as oven-peeping causes a tremendous heat loss and the time will have to be increased. Do not preheat oven when roasting large items—it is unnecessary and wastes several cooking minutes.

Turn off unused lights. A 100-watt bulb burning for a month costs about two dollars. Use a lower watt bulb at the proper voltage when possible. Turn off radios and televisions when no one is listening or watching.

Can You Help?

What does this mean to you right here on Reese AFB? How can one person working on the flightline make any difference to a massive nationwide problem? It means a lot to all of us. When everyone begins working together to solve the energy crisis . . . it will end that much sooner.

Another way to look at it . . . energy saving tips will not only save our resources on a nationwide basis, it will substantially reduce our electricity and heating bills. Also, you may have seen something mentioned that might be a good gift idea for Christmas.

It's all of a positive nature, if we can all have a positive attitude and get down to doing something about it.

TOYS FOR TOTS—First Lt. Stephen W. Dunn, left, project officer for the annual Toys for Tots campaign, and 2nd Lt. Philip G. Daspi of UPT Class 74-05, Section II, examine some of the toys already received during the drive. The program's aim is to collect new toys or money to buy them to give to children in Lubbock who would otherwise be forced to do without during the upcoming Christmas season. In conjunction with the drive is the Salvation Army Canned Food Drive; both campaigns will end Dec. 14. The toys and money donated will be turned over to Marine Reserve Company A, 4th Mobile Battalion for distribution in Lubbock. (U.S. Air Force Photo by A1C Willie Shirley)

Chapel issues request to be 'parents for day'

Reese people are once again getting a chance to be "parents for a day" to one of 140 youngsters in the base chapel's annual Christmas party for children.

The children will be from the Buckner Baptist Home, Great Plains Boys Ranch and Coronado Home. Sponsors are needed for the party, to be held in the chapel center Dec. 16.

"Single or married, officers or airmen, all are invited to participate in this worthwhile venture," according to Chaplain (Col.) William W. Campbell, senior installation chaplain. Persons interested are asked to call the chapel office at ext. 2237 to give their preference concerning boy or girl and their preferred ages.

Participants will be contacted and given all necessary information about their children. This will enable the "parents" to buy a small gift for the child. Chaplain Campbell suggests that the gift not exceed $5 in value.

The "parents" will first meet the children at the chapel at 1:45 p.m., Dec. 16. There will be a short tour of Reese, followed by a film and caroling at the chapel. After this, the gifts will be distributed.

"Have you ever wondered how you might make your holiday a little more special this year?" Chaplain Campbell continued, "Why not sponsor an underprivileged child and experience firsthand, the real joy of Christmas."

Commander announces dates for Holiday break

As in the past, Reese will terminate its flying training activities during the Christmas Holidays.

During the period from Dec. 22 to Jan. 1, there will be no scheduled student training. This provides student pilots their only opportunity for leave during their year of flying school.

For permanent party personnel, the Wing Commander has directed commanders and division chiefs to institute a liberal leave policy during the break. Col. Walter H. Baxter emphasized however, "This does not mean that everyone can stop working. There is still a mission to perform.

"The week between the two holidays is an excellent time to complete those projects you have been too busy to complete until now. I expect every office and work area to be manned during normal duty hours; except on designated legal holidays.

"If you don't plan to come to work, you should take leave," Colonel Baxter concluded.

Within these guidelines, most officers are organizing their own schedules. Some organizations must provide service to the remaining portion of Reese personnel even on Christmas and New Year's Days.

"These folks working in the dining facilities and the Security Police, Fire Department, telephone switchboard, hospital, Command Post, on the flight line and in other vital areas deserve our special thanks," the colonel added.

New stripes go to 32 in December increment

Orders naming 32 enlisted men at Reese for promotions were released this week for the Dec. 1 increment.

Jack A. Lenett of the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron (OMS) sewed on his sixth stripe Dec. 1 to top off the list. Two men were named for promotion to E-6, six men to staff sergeant and the remaining 23 were named non-commissioned officers.

Arnold L. Perdue was promoted to the rank of technical sergeant. Perdue is assigned to the Reese USAF Hospital. Roy L. Smitherman of the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron (FMS) also pinned on his fifth stripe.

Named for promotion to E-5 in the 64th OMS were Billy J. Cox, Curtis O. Duke and Timothy Wocho-murka. There are also three new staff sergeants in the 64th ABGP. They are Billy F. Claud, Saint M. Owens III and Ronald T. Solomon.

In the Reese USAF Hospital, Bruce

M. Bradway sewed on his third stripe as did Jose R. Gamez.

The status of non-commissioned officer also tapped 10 in the 64th FMS. They are Phillip L. Bush, Frank E. Devenney, Sidney J. Ellis, Robert E. Giller, Daniel N. Jemiolo, Kenneth L. Matthews II, Phillip E. Toney, Allen E. Williams, Thomas L. Willis and Clifford Black.

Four men were promoted to sergeant in the 64th ABGP. They are Richard A. Hammons, Jeffrey W. King, David L. Rumfelt and Tommy M. Sellers. Jose A. Taguba was promoted to E-4 in the 64th OMS.

In the 64th Student Squadron, Ronald L. Arthurs was named for promotion to sergeant as were John W. Blankenship and Gary S. Vey. In the 64th Supply Squadron, Karen A. Jemiolo and Doyle W. Patrick were upgraded to sergeant.

One man was also promoted to E-4 in Detachment 11, 24th Weather Squadron. He is George B. Hepburn.

Is energy facing extinction?

America's first settler, the American Indian, found the buffalo to be tailor-made to solve his food and energy problems. He discreetly used the bountiful beast for food, shelter, and clothing and used its waste products, buffalo chips, to cook and heat his tepee.

European settlers also found the buffalo to be in demand, especially for his hide. But, with unrestrained slaughtering of buffalo herds, the beast was almost extinct by the end of the 19th century. The Federal government belatedly passed legislation to keep the buffalo from being completely wiped out.

Today, our government is taking mandatory steps and pleading for voluntary actions to help solve an energy problem. Although energy sources are not on the verge of becoming as depleted as the near-extinct buffalo, the demand for more energy in industry and private sectors has increased to more than available sources. For example, a two-car family is commonplace today. Nearly everyone has his home and automobile air conditioned . . .

The technology for producing energy from nuclear, solar or thermal sources is years away from a breakthrough. You can help ease the energy crisis by using public transportation, when possible, or by joining car pools. Use common sense around the home, like turning off appliances and lights when not needed. Let's all do our share and look for ways to do more than our share. (AFNS)

"The energy crisis could pose a very real threat to our national security"

By Lieutenant General William V. McBride Commander, Air Training Command

Every individual in this country—and many throughout the world—will soon feel the personalized impact of the energy crisis in his daily life.

The energy crisis is not just a political issue, nor is it just a technological problem. The energy crisis could pose a very real threat to our national security. Because of this fact alone, we in uniform have a special mandate to take extraordinary measures to contribute to the national conservation effort.

It is going to take imagination, ingenuity, skillful management and personal determination to achieve our goals, both in our official duties and personal life styles. It is going to demand self-sacrifice that we as a people have not experienced in a national sense since the days of World War II.

It is difficult for a people who have become accustomed to affluence and the expectation of unlimited resources to suddenly have to tighten the belt by several notches and introduce dramatic changes in their consumer habits. However, it appears at this point that governmental regulation and controls alone may not bring immediate relief to the problems at hand. There has to be a personal commitment by every American to pitch in and make America's energy policy work at the individual consumer level—at the family level.

It seems that nearly every generation of Americans has a new and unique crisis or challenge of major proportions which rises to test the national resolve and threatens our unity in matters that affect our very survival.

The solution lies largely in your hands, and in your individual response to the challenge.

Mexicans trace ancestry back to ancient Aztecs

(Editor's note: This article was prepared by the Far West Laboratory for Education Research and Development, a public, nonprofit organization which is partially supported as an educational laboratory through funds made available under contract with the Office of Education, U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare. The opinions expressed do not necessarily reflect those of the Air Force.)

Prior to 1821, when the modern Mexican nation won its independence from Spain, a Mexican was usually a person who spoke the Mexican or Aztec language (Nahuatl). In fact, the early Spaniards almost always referred to the Aztec people as Mexicans. This practice has continued in modern Mexico where the Nahuatl language is called Mexicano by the common people and where writers usually speak of the Mexican Empire rather than the Aztec Empire.

The modern people of Mexico, who said by scholars to be about 80 percent native Indian in their ancestry, are proud of their descent from the ancient Mexicans and trace the history of their people back to the builders of the magnificent cities of Teotihuacan, Monte Alban, and Chichen Itza.

The Mexican heritage of the United States commenced long before the time of Christ. About the year 4000 B.C., Indians living in southern New Mexico learned how to raise corn (maize) as a result of contacts with Mexico, where that remarkable plant was first domesticated after what must have been a long and tedious process. Other crops, including squash and beans, were subsequently borrowed and still later, about 500 A.D., Southwestern Indians began to develop the Pueblo Indian civilization. This advanced way of life, which still flourishes in Arizona and New Mexico, was largely based upon Mexican influences in architecture, pottery-making, clothing, religion and government.

In about 1000 A.D., according to some scholars, a people known as the Hohokam moved from northern Mexico into what is now southern Arizona. They brought many advanced traits with them, including the construction of monumental irrigation systems, stone etching techniques, and, very possibly, new political concepts. The Hohokams constructed a large center at Snaketown, Arizona, and spread their influence widely, apparently establishing a colony at Flagstaff and trading their pottery as far as the San Fernando Valley in California. During the same general period, Mexican influences seem to have reached the Mississippi Valley and advanced cultures developed there. (AFNS)
