Last Call For Campaign '80

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter, vowing his hostage decisions will not be affected by politics, left the White House today for a final campaign swing while Ronald Reagan flew to the West Coast to end his campaign, confronted by the issue his advisers feared the most.

White House aides said developments in Iran would determine whether the president would keep to an election-eve schedule that included stops in Akron, Ohio; Granite City, Ill.; Springfield, Mo.; Burbank, Calif.; Portland, Ore., and Seattle, Wash. Carter then is to fly home to Plains, Ga., where he will vote on Tuesday.

Reagan's final day of the 1980 campaign included an outdoor rally in Peoria, Ill., and then stops in Portland, Ore., and San Diego, Calif., before returning to his Los Angeles home.

In an interview broadcast today on NBC, the Republican presidential candidate said he was optimistic about his election prospects. "I believe that we've done everything we can do," he said.

If he loses, Reagan said,

"This would not destroy me as a person. I would be deeply disappointed because I believe in the need for a change in the direction this country's been going in."

In a brief, nationally broadcast statement Sunday evening, Carter said the terms announced early that morning by the Iranian Parliament for release of the 52 American hostages "offer a positive basis" for ending the impasse.

Noting that the election was only two days away, Carter added: "Let me assure you that my decisions on this crucial matter will not be affected by the calendar."

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Carter was resuming campaigning today and, "if the situation permits," would make a coast-to-coast swing ending in

Scurry Voting Set In 13 Locations Tuesday

Scurry County voters will cast ballots in 13 polling places Tuesday in the general election.

Indications were that a good turnout could be expected as voters prepared to make their choices for offices ranging from President of the United States to precinct positions. Also, Texans have nine proposed amendments to their state constitution on the ballot.

Polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 7 p.m.

Absentee voting was relatively heavy here, with 600 absentee ballots cast at the county clerk's office. This includes 524 persons who voted in person at the courthouse prior to the deadline last Friday and 86 ballots returned in the mail. More than 80 other mailed ballots are still out, and those that reach the county clerk's office by Tuesday will be counted.

Voters going to the polls tomorrow will cast their ballots in the precinct polling place listed on their registration certificate.

Polling places and election judges in Scurry County, are as follows:

Precinct 1, Northeast Snyder, Mrs. Z.W. Davis, election judge, north side of Scurry County Coliseum.

Precinct 2, Loyd Mountain, Sam Cross, Northeast Community Center.

Council Faces Busy Session

The Snyder City Council has a busy session on tap for tonight.

The meeting is set for 6:30 p.m. at City Hall and will range from bid openings to appointments to boards and discussion of downtown parking and park development.

it to the council following a hearing during which opposition from property owners in the area was heard.

John Alford, director of Parks and Recreation for the City of Lubbock, and Walter Heard, Lubbock Parks Superintendent, are scheduled to make a presentation concerning development of Line Park here.

The ambulance rate schedule is due to be reviewed at tonight's session, and three members are due to be named to the board of electrical examiners. Bids are up for consideration on three police patrol cars, a fire chief's car, two sanitation truck chassis, two trash compaction bodies, 300 sanitation containers and for additional pits at the city's sanitation landfill.

Parking on Avenue R and on 26th St. adjacent to the courthouse square is up for discussion.

Also, the council is due to hear a request for a zone change which was rejected last week by the Planning and Zoning Commission. The request by Dr. Nelson Brice seeks a change from a single-family residence zone to a multi-family residence zone for five acres out of Block 3, H&G survey. The property is on the south side of 37th St. just west of the 37th St. Shopping Center and the change is being sought to clear the way for an apartment project. The Planning and Zoning Commission turned down the request and sent

Snyder Youth Dies In One-Car Mishap

A Snyder High School student was killed in a one-vehicle turnover reported early Sunday morning.

The accident claimed the life of Michael Dwaine Dennis, 16, of 501 28th St. Although reported at 7 a.m., police said the accident occurred sometime previously, but the exact time is not known.

Police said Dennis was driving a 1969 Chevrolet that went out of control in the 1600 block of 37th St. and overturned, end over end.

He was pronounced dead at the scene by Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway.

A native of Snyder, the youth was a sophomore at Snyder High School.

Funeral service has been set for 3 p.m. Tuesday in the chapel at First Baptist Church. The Rev. Jay Newsome of the Agape Christian Fellowship will officiate and burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

UNITED WAY WOES—Frances Wiman, seated, and Margaret Drum review the figures turned in Monday morning for the 1980-81 United Way Campaign. Snyder has only reached 81 percent of its goal with many divisions below their goal. The United Way board has extended the drive another week in hopes of attaining 100 percent of its goal. Persons wishing to contribute to the fund may contact the United Way at the Chamber of Commerce office.

Participation Lags...

United Way Campaign Here Short Of Goal

"United we stand, divided we fall" could very well be the theme of the community this year as figures for the local 1980-81 United Way Campaign show Snyder lacking more than $10,000 in meeting its goal.

Other communities across the state have concluded their campaigns with 100 percent or more of their goal reached, including Cross Plains, 103 percent; Mineola, 106 percent, and Fort Worth, 100 percent.

During the United Way board meeting this morning, division reports show serious deficits in several divisions as compared to last year's figures. Only a few divisions have reached their goals so far this year.

The board has strived this year to reach every employee and every citizen in Snyder, hoping for 100 percent participation in the campaign. One business in Snyder, Brown and Gray Motor Co., has had 100 percent employee contribution to the United Way.

Since only $46,245.74 of the $56,969 goal has been reached, the United Way drive has been extended an extra week. Division chairman will continue to work packets, while the board will be making a special appeal to Snyderites to contribute to the United Way.

Persons who have not been contacted but wish to contribute may contact the United Way at the Chamber of Commerce office, from 9:30 a.m. - 3 p.m. by calling 573-5508, or by calling 573-5385 after 6 p.m. Leave your name and address and someone from the United Way will pick up your contributions.

Persons having questions about the United Way may contact either of the co-chairman, Frances Wiman at 573-3960, or Margaret Drum at 573-3271.

Grand Jury In Session

A Scurry County grand jury was scheduled to convene this morning to consider approximately eight cases.

Named in two of the cases is Freddy Lee Harris, 1105 33rd St. Harris is charged with one count of rape and one count of burglary. The rape is alleged to have occurred Oct. 12. The burglary dates to Oct. 7 when he, along with Charles Arthur McClain, 1104 34th St., whose case is also going before the grand jury, is alleged to have broken into K-Bob's Steakhouse.

Also scheduled for presentation to the grand jury were the burglary cases of Joe Ernest Flores and Ernesto Ontiveros, both of Big Spring. The men are alleged to have broken into a car Oct. 17 owned by Jerry Brock.

Two persons charged with driving while intoxicated were also scheduled to have their cases go before the grand jury. Named in those cases were Lauro Barboza, 503 16th St., and Marvin Lee Sipes, Box 124.

An eighth case involved a forgery charge against a suspect as yet unarrested.

Court OKs Refugee Transfer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court today cleared the way for the transfer of more than 650 Cuban and Haitian refugees from Florida to Puerto Rico.

The justices, without comment, turned down emergency requests by the Puerto Rican government and a group of the island's residents aimed at blocking the transfer.

At the same time, the court set aside a temporary postponement that had been granted by Justice William J. Brennan Jr. on Oct. 24.

Khomeini Okays Hostage Transfer

By the Associated Press
Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini today authorized the 52 American hostages transferred to the custody of the Iranian government, and his prime minister and Algeria's ambassador agreed Algeria will "take care" of the captives, the official Pars news agency reported.

Representatives of the Islamic militants who seized the American Embassy and its staff last Nov. 4 met for two hours today with Khomeini, the leader of the Iranian revolution, following the approved Sunday by the Majlis, Iran's parliament, of terms for the release of the Americans.

"We accept the decision of the nation," a spokesman for the militants told reporters in Tehran.

He reported that the militants "proposed transferring custody of the hostages to the government, and Khomeini agreed.

Protesting Taking Of Prisoners

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Iran, which has held 52 Americans hostage for a year, invoked "all international codes and regulations" today in demanding the release of its oil minister, who was captured by Iraqi forces on the Abadan battlefield.

But Iraq, which reported the capture of Mohammed Jawad Baqir Tunguyan and five aides Friday, said the captives were prisoners of war. The demand for their release was made by Iranian Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai, who also plans to take part in indirect negotiations on the American hostages.

LANCASTER, Pa. (NEA) - Whatever happened to George Bush?

Political aficionados recall that before he virtually disappeared from sight, Bush was selected to be Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan's vice-presidential running mate.

Bush is indeed alive and well. In fact, one important reason so little has been heard from him in recent months is that he is a superb campaigner who seldom makes the mistakes that invariably attract press and public attention.

In fact, Bush and his Democratic counterpart, Vice President Walter F. Mondale, have become the "class act" of the 1980 presidential campaign, offering distinction and integrity not always matched by the men at the top of their tickets.

It was Reagan - not Bush - who had to back away from the suggestion that trees are a source of more air pollution than auto exhausts. It was President Carter - not Mondale - who had to apologize for implying that his defeat would lead to war.

But moderation and common sense unfortunately aren't especially saleable qualities in political campaigns. "I'm not making news," says a wistful Bush. "I find it (his campaign) a rather relaxed atmosphere."

All but ignored by the national news media, Bush and Mondale solicit support at the retail level while the presidential candidates run a far more visible wholesale operation.

"In this role, the (news) coverage is really local and statewide more than it is national," says Bush. During a long day of campaigning, that can mean as many as a dozen "exclusive" interviews with local newspapers and television stations.

Bush's visit to this central Pennsylvania community was a typical stop in a political odyssey that has carried him to more than 150 cities and towns throughout the country since Labor Day.

After a brief tour of an arts-and-crafts exhibit, he addressed an outdoor rally, then proceeded back to the local airport less than 90 minutes after arriving here.

Before flying off, however, Bush went to an airport hangar where a corner of the dingy building had been temporarily disguised to look like a modern office, complete with drapes, executive chairs and a coffee table.

With that "set" as a backdrop, reporters and camera crews from three local television stations were mustered, one after another, for individual eight-minute interviews.

"There are no new questions," says Bush after fielding hundreds of such queries in those interviews. What is striking is the number of times he either is called upon to defend Reagan or believes it necessary to volunteer such a defense.

For example, the democrats' portrayal of Reagan as a trigger-happy politician, likely to involve the nation in unwanted military confrontations forces Bush to incessantly insist that his running mate would be "a president of peace."

On the other hand, the lack of controversy surrounding Bush means that there are almost no pointed questions about his own positions.

That means there is plenty of time for a tough, extended critique of the president's performance. "I don't believe Carter has run a classy campaign," he told one interviewer here. "He keeps gutting Reagan's character."

At the rally earlier, Bush charged that "Carter has offered us nothing but despair after four years of his presidency."

The two GOP candidates' campaigns differ in another important respect - the size of the communities they visit. While Reagan regularly campaigns in New York, Chicago, Los Angeles and other major cities, Bush's itinerary includes smaller communities such as Rutland, Vt.; Allentown, Pa.; Champaign-Urbana, Ill.; and Appleton, Wis. "This has been a hectic day," he told one audience after a string of such visits. "Don't ask me where we started."

Although the hours are long and the work often is unheralded, Bush pursues the task cheerfully and professionally. More than one observer has suggested that both major-party tickets would be stronger with Bush and Mondale in the top positions.

beating the censors

Barry Compton, candidate of the Citizens Party, has worked a cute publicity stunt by using a vulgar expletive to describe the Carter, Reagan and Anderson campaigns in his radio commercials. Because the commercials are for a bona fide political candidate, they are not subject to censorship either by public authorities or good taste. Compton (how appropriate that name seems now) has exploited the peculiarities that derive from government control of the airwaves to get a nifty publicity coup. It was well calculated. It will probably not lose him any voters who were planning to vote for him in the first place, and it will get him lots of free publicity.

The incident does serve to highlight some of the peculiarities that arise from the policy decision made in the 1920s to consider the airwaves public property and the broadcasting industry a steward of the public as defined, of course, by government regulation.

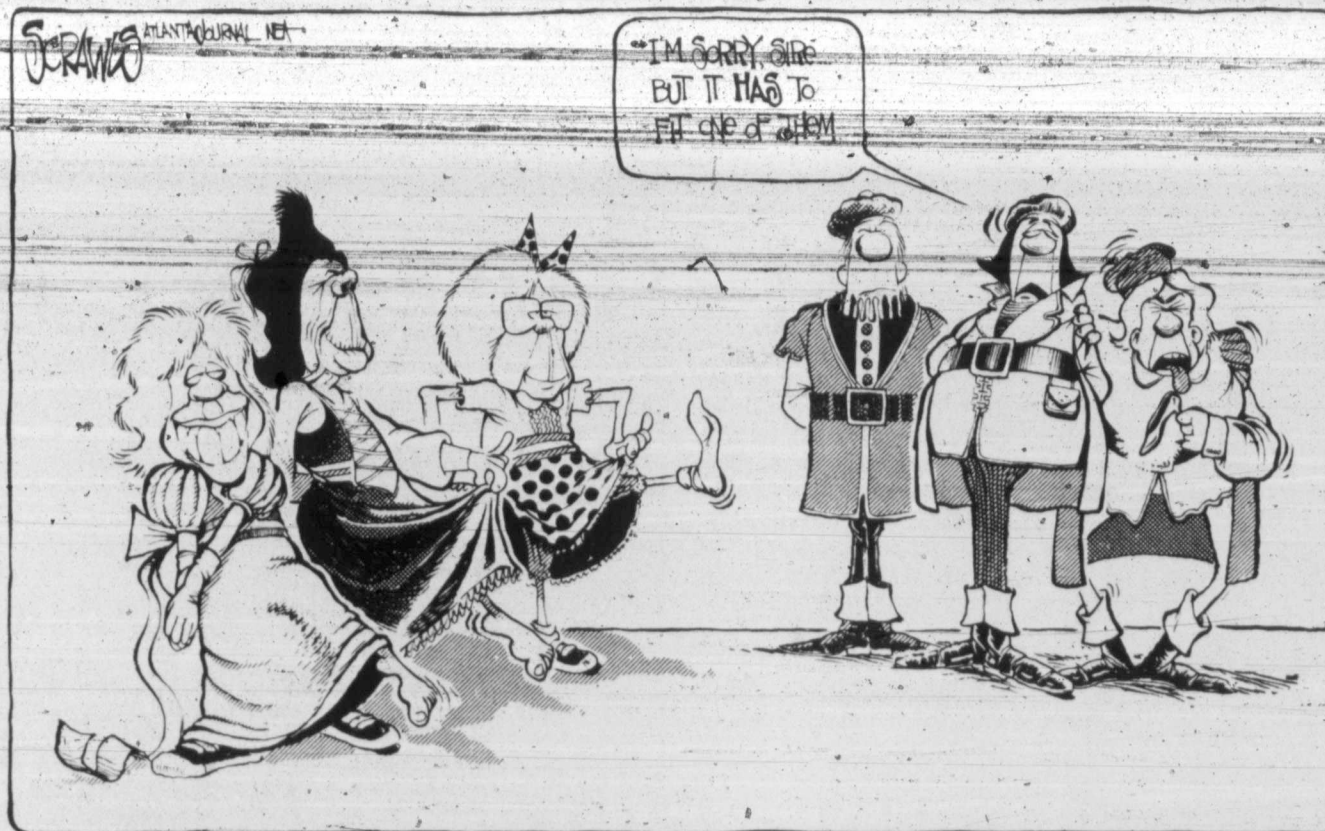

Under the eccentric theory now in effect, the airwaves (i.e., frequencies available for radio and video broadcasting) belong to the public, and the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) licenses certain companies to use the airwaves in the "public interest." In practice, the government owns the airwaves and the FCC grants licenses and writes reams of regulations for licensees. As is usually the case in regulated industries, there's an ebb and flow of protectionism and scolding. The FCC delayed the advent of pay-TV and cable for many years in part to protect existing broadcasters from competition.

Under FCC regulations vulgar and obscene words, including the one Compton chose, may not be broadcast on the air. But a Supreme Court decision (in a case brought by a mayoral candidate in Atlanta who made a vulgarly racist and demeaning statement that was rejected by local TV stations) say that a broadcaster cannot censor the commercials of any bona fide candidate for public office. So Barry Compton can say what would get Walter Cronkite, David Brinkley or a caller on a radio talk show beeped. And he's taken advantage of this dubious special privilege granted to politicians.

Contract this convoluted situation with printed media, which are not licensed by the government. Publishers are free to use their own taste and their judgment about what would be offensive to their readers in determining what to print and what advertising to accept. Readers may pick and choose according to their taste.

This does lead to a situation where some parents may want to exercise some supervision over what their children read, but those decisions are made by parents and publishers, not dictated by government bureaucrats.

In radio's infancy, when most people thought the number of available broadcast frequencies would be severely limited, there was some rationale for using government to allocate those frequencies (though we'd contend that the market could have done at least as efficient a job of allocation without government preemption.) As technology has advanced and more alternatives have become available, even that rationale has faded. We'd be serving better (though we'd have fewer amusing opportunities to chuckle over bureaucratic anomalies) if the airwaves were deregulated.

A Woman dancing backwards is like a dog dancing on his hind legs. He does it. But not well.

By last count there were only six women in this country who enjoyed dipping and swaying in reverse. They were all quite strange and listed among their other turn-ons: backing into a hot stove, flying in reverse and facing the rear of elevators.

The rest of the women enter a dance arena, raise their right arms like they're priming a pump and allow themselves to be shoved around like a broom.

Most of the dance floor accidents can be blamed on men who have no business leading without a license. Put a few drinks in some of them and the moment the music starts, they pull you out of your chair and throw you in reverse like a tractor with a bad clutch.

I personally have been blindly and without feeling shoved into the path of other dancers, orchestras, chairs, buffet tables, potted plants, bananas flambe, a cloakroom, a few dark corners, and once when a crazy man let go of me I found myself at the front of a line in a restroom, and barely got out with my life.

One theory men advance is that it's just another form of pain a woman must bear, such as giving birth and skiing with a handbag. I say to them God never meant for women to dance backwards.

But mostly in His infinite compassion, He would have installed automatic fork lifts in our legs as standard equipment so that we might not be able to see where we're going, but at least could see where we'd been.

I've discussed this many times with my husband who shrugs and says, "Look, it's a rotten job, but someone has to do it. I don't accept that. Furthermore, I would say to all men, do not judge us until you have danced backwards in our open-toed shoes."

To The Daily News:

During the last few weeks, much has been said about the political involvement of the conservative religious organization known as the "Moral Majority."

Generally, the remarks in radio news and the major news media tend to be negative, even from some religious leaders. This can be expected, I think, from the major news media, because the humanist influence is quite strong in the highest levels of power at the CBS, NBC and ABC networks. This influences all of our major news reports.

However, I am disturbed greatly that some religious leaders make negative remarks about the leaders of the Moral Majority and their intentions and purpose. The conviction of the MM is that if true Christians and citizens who are disturbed about the moral decay in America don't wake up and speak up in every aspect of daily living, then this nation is going to fall. The following are just a few of the reasons the MM has become active in this year's election:

Some day we could seek homosexuality taught in our public schools as an "alternate life-style," as the gay rights activists call it.

If the Equal Rights Amendment is accepted, homosexuals considered "legally married" could legally adopt children to raise in a homosexual involvement.

Abortion, which is nothing more than murder of unborn human beings, in many cases is being funded by tax dollars. Over one million abortions are performed in this country in one year. Statistics show that 85 percent are the result of unwanted pregnancy; 12 percent to protect the life of the mother, and only three percent because of rape. Anyone can see that abortion is usually an end result of adultery and fornication.

Because of the humanist influence in government, our Supreme Court says prayer in public schools is unconstitutional because it discriminates against the atheists. Our president won't take a stand in favor of prayer in public schools because he feels it discriminates against atheist school children.

It appears to me that our leaders in government are not very concerned about the moral direction our nation is headed. When the majority political party and its most powerful leaders favor gay rights activists in government, abortion on demand, and refuse to accept prayer back into our schools, it looks like the Moral Majority has reason for purpose.

To The Snyder Daily News: Amendment 3 has nothing to do with taxation and more especially TAXATION WITHOUT REPRESENTATION as stated in two different political advertisements in Sunday's Snyder Daily News.

Whether this amendment passes or not, property throughout the state is to be appraised at 100 percent of market value beginning no later than January 1, 1982. Your elected officials set the tax rate based on that valuation. This is the only factor which affects your taxes. It was erroneously stated in one of the ads that "Senate Bill 621 provides for an appointed Central Appraisal District to determine tax rates and assessments." Again, your elected officials determine tax rates; the appraisal district has nothing whatsoever to do with the amount of taxes you pay.

If the concept of single appraisal district, Amendment 3, is so bad, why did your County Commissioners Court volunteer to participate in 1980? If this idea is so expensive, how does the County explain it saved $76,965 in 1980 for the appraisal and collection function compared with its 1979 cost?

If this concept is so un-Texasan, why did over 200 counties of the 254 in the State volunteer to participate? As a person who oversees the spending of part of your tax money (a reduction in most cases in 1980 compared with 1979), I urge you to vote FOR Amendment 3 and control your taxes through your elected officials rather than blame an innocent governmental entity striving for efficiency in tax administration.

him that you could have a void in clubs when you bid three notrump. He was trying to talk you out of the club finesse. Did you take it?"

Alan: "It took me quite a while. I didn't want to lose to that singleton king in the East hand, but somehow I knew it wasn't there. After I made five clubs, East made several disparaging remarks about West's lack of intelligence. However, when I took the club finesse, I also insulted West's intelligence. More subtly, of course."

Oswald: "You must have had some good luck in winning the Spingold this summer."

Alan: "Yes, we did. Over the seven days the event lasted we had some lucky hands and some that were quite unlucky. Here is a lucky one."

Oswald: "Obviously, you and your partner, Peter Weichsel, were playing a strong club system."

Alan: "Yes. We open all unbalanced hands of 16 points or more with one club. That's how I became declarer in five clubs with a void in the suit."

Oswald: "When did this hand take place?"

Alan: "It came up in one of our earlier matches. After I opened one club West doubled to show the major suits. This is one of the most popular defenses to the artificial club systems. Double over a strong club shows both major suits and one notrump shows the minors."

Oswald: "Although you have 17 points and Peter has 10 and an excellent eight-card suit, no game contract is makeable."

Alan: "That's right Ozzie, but after Peter's positive three-club response it was systematically impossible to stay out of game."

Oswald: "I thought this was a lucky hand, not an unlucky one."

Alan: "It is. After Peter jumped to five clubs, ending the auction, West led his ace of spades. At trick two he took his ace of hearts and then he made an error. At trick three he led the club six."

Oswald: "I see what he was trying to do. It didn't occur to Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Amount of salt a habit

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am a 25-year-old male, 260 pounds and 5 feet 10 inches tall. Besides having a voracious appetite, I have an intense craving for salt. I oversalt my food without thinking. It's become a normal part of my diet.

My doctor says I am in good health, and for my weight my blood pressure is about normal. He doesn't seem to be too worried about my salt intake. He did suggest that I cut down but offered no insight on my cravings. I worry about the long range effects on my body and why I feel it's so necessary to use so much salt.

Also I try to lose weight on various diets and I'm not too successful at it. I wonder if my salt problem may be thwarting my attempts. Please help shed some light on my problem.

DEAR READER — The amount of salt most people use is a matter of habit. You have acquired a taste for salt. I would suggest that you stop all salt entirely to get your taste habit back to normal. Try using other spices such as vinegar, curry powder and others. You could develop a hobby of trying different spices with different foods to spice up your food without consuming astronomical amounts of salt.

You will get enough salt from your natural foods. Milk, for example, contains quite a bit of sodium salt. Meat also contains sodium. Eventually you may be able to use Morton's Lite Salt to help cut down on sodium but I'd rather you cut down first by using spices and eliminating salt entirely.

The foods that are high in sodium are listed in The Health Letter number 10-12, Your Vital Sodium and Potassium Balance, that I'm sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I'm concerned by your statement that your blood pressure was all right for your weight. The higher your blood pressure the more damaging it is. And the best thing to do for moderately elevated blood pressure if a person is overweight is to get rid of the excess pounds.

The salt is not causing you to be fat. If your body retains sodium, you will retain water also but salt contains no calories and does not affect the metabolic process in any way to cause you to deposit fat.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Can you get hemorrhoids if you walk around in your stocking feet on cement floors with rugs on them?

DEAR READER — Don't blame the cement floors. Our upright position does contribute to the problem. The upright column of blood from the heart to the rectum increases the pressure inside the veins. It is a lot like the water tower creating pressure from its height. Four-footed animals with the rectum above the heart because of their posture are less likely to have hemorrhoids.

Childbirth and straining at the stool with poor bowel habits also contribute to hemorrhoids. Anything that can increase pressure and prevent the emptying of the rectal veins can be a factor.

And anyone who has rectal bleeding should see a doctor rather than assuming it is just a hemorrhoid. The bleeding may be serious or hemorrhoids can pop out because there is a tumor causing pressure above the hemorrhoids in the rectum.

Will Hostage Situation Work Again For Carter?

WASHINGTON (AP)—As it began, so it ends: a presidential campaign clouded by the mass kidnapping and captivity of Americans whose government could neither protect them nor free them. It was a campaign marked at crucial moments by decisions made half a world away, in the councils of a hostile regime.

The story of the American hostages seized in Tehran one year ago this election eve is a central chapter in the story of the 1980 campaign.

In the crisis of their capture, President Carter began the comeback that restored him to the Democratic nomination. Because of it, he avoided a Democratic campaign debate and did his campaigning for nearly six months in the shelter of the White House.

Carter said his decisions on the hostages, and terms for their release, would not be affected by the election now hours away. Reagan's aides and his running mate, George Bush, said they did not suspect that the administration was trying to manipulate the situation for political advantage.

Indeed, it did not seem Carter could have done so even had he tried; the episode has been one of U.S. frustration and powerlessness, not of control. With 52 U.S. citizens in the hands of unpredictable captors in a volatile, revolutionary nation, the administration could only react to events it could not shape.

That had been the case all along. The election eve signals of a possible break in the stalemate did not stem from American initiative but came from an alien parliament, which affirmed demands first posted six weeks ago by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Carter said Sunday night that "they appear to offer a positive basis" for action to release the hostages. He gave no definite answer to the Iranian demands, and he said he doesn't know when the hostages will be freed.

Reagan opted for silence on the subject, saying it was too delicate to be discussed in campaign forums.

Hostages' Families Pessimistic

By The Associated Press

For the families of America's hostages, the past year has been one of agonizing anxiety and gut-wrenching disappointments. And despite optimistic developments in Tehran that hint at the release of the 52 captives, their families in the Texas area say they refuse to be optimistic.

"I've been on that yo-yo string before," said Johnny McKeel of Hatch Springs, just southeast of Dallas. His son is Marine Sgt. Johnny McKeel Jr. Then he said, "The only people we listen to are the Marines. The state department tells the Marines and the Marines tell us."

The Iranian Parliament voted Sunday to free the 52 hostages if the United States meets four conditions set down by Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and a parliamentary committee. President Carter said later the action "appears to offer a positive basis" for the release, but he could not predict when that release might come.

"We have had no official word from anybody other than what we've seen on the television," McKeel said.

"I think the television and the media has screwed up. They've been wrong 98 percent of the time," he said. "I think they have made statements, and it hasn't come true, so it shows they didn't know what they were talking about."

David Engelmann says he idolizes his captive brother, Navy Lt. Commander Robert Engelmann of Hurst, but is "skeptical of all this talk about an imminent hostage release."

Small Baby Holding On To Her Life

AMARILLO, Texas (AP)—A prematurely born 13-ounce baby girl continued to defy odds for her survival and was "holding her own" late Sunday, a hospital nursing supervisor said.

The girl, born at 9:10 a.m. Friday at Northwest Texas Hospital here, was so small doctors said her chances for survival were zero. She is normal physically and mentally, however, and can breathe without a respirator.

Doctors estimate the child was born 28 weeks after conception.

Expensive Campaigns End; Now Its Up To The Voters

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer
AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—Texas voters put an end Tuesday to one of the longest, hardest and most expensive presidential campaign seasons.

The final polls have been taken, the debates are over and now it's up to the voters. Secretary of State George Strake estimates 4.25 million Texas voters will show up at the polls, although 6.3 million out of the 9.6 million voting-age population are registered.

In 1976, the last presidential election, a little over 4 million voted out of the 6.25 million registered.

Jimmy Carter carried Texas in 1976 with a 129,000-vote margin over President Gerald Ford.

Political surveys and polls indicate Texas is more of a toss-up this year. Some predict the winner will be decided by an edge of as few as 10,000 votes.

But when did it all start? There was plenty of presidential talk before 1980 but for Texans the official filing date was Feb. 4. That was the deadline for political candidates in Texas to declare themselves in or out of the primary.

Former-California Gov. Ronald Reagan, former Texas Gov. John Connally, former United Nations Ambassador George Bush, and Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., became the official candidates for the Texas GOP presidential primary. The winners in the May 3 primary would divide Texas delegates to the national convention for the presidential nomination.

Texas Democrats, who held a one-time presidential primary in 1976, decided to elect national convention delegates at a state convention. Later, the party chose to have a straw poll or "beauty contest" in its May 3 primary that would not affect selection of delegates by the convention. Carter, Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and California Gov. Jerry Brown were selected for the ballot.

By May 3, Connally and Baker were out of the GOP presidential race, with Reagan and Bush making determined bids for the Texas votes.

PREPARING FOR PLAY—Elementary students at Hermleigh are preparing for a play, "From Peanuts to Hollywood" or Election Day 1980. The play, to be performed at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday, was written and will be presented by sixth graders. Characters include the Statue of Liberty, Uncle

Sam, the four major candidates and their wives, and the Issues. A mock election will also be held Tuesday and results will be compared to the national election. (SDN Staff Photo)

Candidates Agree Voter Turnout Crucial

By The Associated Press
Workers in the Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan political camps here finally agree on one thing: voter turnout in Tuesday's election is crucial to both candidates.

But, predictably, that's where the agreement ends. Reagan workers are hoping for a large, but not record-breaking turnout and Carter workers say they more people at the polls the better.

Texas has been the target of some of the heaviest campaigning in the state's history as Carter and Reagan forces try to tip the delicate balance that would drop 26 electoral votes in their column.

"Most would agree a large turnout is favorable to the Democrats and a smaller turnout benefits the Republicans," said Rick Shelby, state campaign director for the Reagan-George Bush ticket. "That is what I am most interested in monitoring on election day."

"We hope it turnout would not go above 4.25 million...if by noon on election day it is obvious we are going to have a record turnout, I'm going to be very concerned."

But a record is just what Carter-Walter Mondale state field director Tom Henderson is hoping for.

"Turnout is the key in this state, the absolute key...anything less than 65 percent of registered voters, we have problems," he said. "Anything over 65 percent is a good sign for us."

Shelby said Reagan will need a 100,000-vote margin over Carter in Dallas and Harris Counties to offset Carter's expected good showing in the Democratic areas of East Texas, including the heavily unionized Orange-Port Arthur-Beaumont triangle, South Texas and the Lower Rio Grande Valley.

Henderson, however, said Reagan will need a 200,000-vote margin over Carter in Dallas and Houston to offset Carter strength in Democratic strongholds of South Texas and East Texas.

But he also said if Reagan's margin in Dallas County is more than 75,000, "that will be a concern for us."

Henderson said if the traditionally Democratic wedge between Wichita Falls Abilene-Fort Worth goes for Carter "that is a good sign we have won."

Shelby noted that registration is up significantly in suburban Dallas, Houston and North San Antonio, all of which are counted upon by Republicans.

But Hispanic registration, which would favor the Democrats, is also up from an estimated 460,000 in 1976 to 760,000 this year.

Shelby was optimistic, however, that Reagan would receive more Mexican-American votes than President Ford did in 1976.

Houston pollster Lance Tarrance, who conducted the poll for the Republicans in 1978 and correctly predicted Gov. Bill Clements' upset victory, says he's expecting a three-to-four point minimum win for Reagan in Texas.

Tarrance, who did not conduct a poll in Texas this year, says the three best keys to watch election night are Dallas, Harris and Bexar Counties.

Man Shot At Traffic Jam

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas (AP)—A 31-year-old man was shot to death after an altercation with a driver in snarled traffic leaving the Wurstfest weekend activities, police said.

The victim was identified as Timothy Joe Nelson, of Austin. The Travis County medical examiner ruled Nelson was shot to death shortly after 1 a.m. Sunday.

New Braunfels police Lt. F. Roque said Nelson and several friends in a van apparently tried to ease into a steady flow of traffic following the Saturday night festival. Witnesses told police a man got out of the van and began to bang on cars and shout obscenities at drivers, Roque said. After arguing with the driver of one car, the man punched the car's windshield, shattering the glass, Roque said.

Moments later, a shot was fired, and Nelson was struck in the left side of the chest, Roque said.

The vehicle then backed up, jumped an island of grass and fled; witnesses told authorities.

Sugar Prices Take New Leap

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
Sugar prices took another leap last month, rising to their highest level in almost six years, according to an Associated Press marketbasket survey which found that a five-pound sack of sugar cost twice as much today as it did at the start of the year.

The rise in sugar helped boost the average price of a random marketbasket of grocery items by almost half a percent last month. If it had not been for the increase in sugar prices, the AP found, supermarket bills would have dropped by more than 1 percent during October.

The AP survey is based on a list of 14 commonly purchased food and non-food items, selected at random. Prices were first checked at one supermarket in each of 13 cities on March 1, 1973 and have been rechecked on or about the start of each succeeding month. The latest survey indicated that the marketbasket total increased at the check list store in six cities during October, rising an average of 2 percent, the bill decreased in seven cities, down an average of nine tenths of a percent. On an overall basis, the average bill at the start of November was four-tenths of a percent higher than it was a month earlier. During September, in contrast, the mar-ketbasket bill was unchanged. When sugar was removed from the list, the picture changed. The AP price check found the marketbasket bill without sugar increased in five cities and decreased in eight, for an overall drop of 1.1 percent.

Dear Abby

Female Cops Get Green Light from Readers

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: A policeman's wife, signed JEALOUS, recently wrote that her husband was on squad car duty from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. with a "cute, single, bright, funny partner." She was upset that the two of them were riding around together all night, frequently "bored," so she asked her husband to request a male partner. When he refused, she sought my advice.

I told her to quit nagging her husband; that she had nothing to worry about.

Well, my mail has been running 100 to 1 against my advice. A few sample letters in agreement with me:

DEAR ABBY: Applause, applause! Your answer to JEALOUS was right on! I've been married to a policeman for 12 years, so I know what I'm talking about. He's worked the graveyard shift with female partners, but I wasn't jealous.

Wouldn't the two of them be rather conspicuous snuggling in a parking lot in a patrol car? Or checking into a motel for a few hours in uniform? And how would they handle answering the car radio and making calls in the middle of a romantic encounter?

I am far more worried about the prospect of my husband being taken from me by a strung-out dope addict, a trigger-happy robber or some belligerent drunks in a domestic squabble than by a "cute, single, bright, funny policeman."

NOT JEALOUS IN DENVER

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad you told JEALOUS not to get worked up because her husband worked nights with a woman partner. Nowadays nearly every job involves contact with the opposite sex. Women are fighting fires, flying airplanes, working on oil rigs and marching alongside men in the military, too.

If JEALOUS thinks she will eliminate temptation by demanding that her policeman husband work with men only, she's dreaming. A man in uniform is like a magnet to most women. If he's going to cheat, he's not about to risk doing it on the job. He'll meet her off the job when they're both out of uniform.

REALIST IN JERSEY

DEAR ABBY: One good piece of advice you gave JEALOUS was to ride along one night to observe her husband and his partner on the job.

I happen to be a female flight instructor and have at times sensed a jealous wife, although I am a happily married woman.

I encourage my married-male students to invite their wives to ride in the back seat on long cross-country flights. This cures them. When they see me at work and get to know me, they realize I'm all business and the jealousy disappears.

Many men have told me they didn't like the idea of having a female flight instructor, but after they get into the plane with me and find out that I am an excellent instructor, they forget that I am a woman.

Once a policeman's wife sees her husband doing his job, she will realize he doesn't have the time to fool around.

ON CLOUD 9 IN FLORIDA

Tomorrow I'll print letters from readers who hold the opposite view.

Plan For House Swapping Vacation

By LOUISE COOK
Thousands of Americans have found a way to take rent-free vacations by swapping their houses with families in far-away places. But a successful trade takes careful planning, well in advance. The idea is simple. Find a family in a city you'd like to visit and exchange houses or apartments. You move into their home; they move into yours.

The advantages are plain. You have no hotel bills. Food costs are flexible, since you can do your own cooking as often or as seldom as you want. You have more space than you would in a hotel. And you learn what life is really like in the area you are visiting.

The disadvantages are a little less obvious. You usually won't get the kind of fringe benefits you would at a hotel. Most homes don't come with maid service, for example. You will have to trust your home and possessions to a stranger—just as the stranger is trusting his or hers to you. There is no guarantee of satisfaction.

There are several ways to arrange a swap. Check the classified ads in local newspapers and magazines in the places you want to visit. Many of them include exchange offers.

If you want a more formal arrangement, consider an exchange service. These services will, for a fee, put potential swappers in touch with each other.

The exchange services publish directories of would-be traders. You pay a fee to list your house. In exchange, you get the directory. In some cases, you can subscribe to the directory alone, without listing your house. Many of the services include houses overseas as well as in the United States. Some also offer rentals for families who prefer not to swap, but still want an alternative to a hotel.

The Vacation Exchange Club Inc. of New York City, which is celebrating its 20th anniversary this year, is one of the oldest services and its operation is typical.

The club publishes two directories—one in February, the other in April. The deadline for listing in the February directory is Dec.

17; the deadline for the April edition is Feb. 15. It costs $18 to list your house; a subscription to the directories alone is $12.

Most of the exchange services do not actually arrange swaps. Once you have the directory you are on your own.

There are several things you can do to avoid trouble and increase your chances of a successful swap. Among them:

- Be as specific as possible in your initial negotiations. Are you willing to let someone else use your car? Are there plants to be watered? Animals which have to be fed? Do you want a non-smoker?
- Agree ahead of time who will pay for what.
- Describe yourself and your neighborhood. Leave names of people to call in emergencies.
- Check your insurance policy to see if you need extra coverage.

The address of the Vacation Exchange Club is 350 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10013.

Dusters, Westerners Host Cisco Tonight...

WTC Pockets Win

Western Texas fought off a streak of determination in the early going - jumped out to a 12-point halftime lead - then rolled through the final 20 minutes to slap McMurry College JV 108-94 here Saturday night, winning its 1980-81 season opener.

The westerners, under the direction of Coach Larry Dunaway, face a predicted tougher trial tonight as they welcome the Cisco Bulldogs to Snyder High School Gym at 8. Coach Joe Cushing's Dusters, also 1-0, open the twin-bill at 6.

"Tonight will be a real test for us," relayed Dunaway this morning. "This one will probably go right down to the wire. We'll need all the fan support we can get."

With the victory, WTC extends its winning streak to 38 straight.

It was a determined McMurry College group that took the floor Saturday, and they hung on well until late in the first half. The teams exchanged leads numerous times until WTC's Chuck North found four straight points to give the hosts a 53-39 lead. The Westerners led at halftime, 55-43.

Dunaway's troops played exactly as one would expect a young ballclub to perform in the season opener. The team had its problems converting turnovers into points early, and at times seemed to force shots. But the group settled down in the late first half and began operating more smoothly.

Quick hands aided the home team in the second period as the Westerners ripped off several steals in a row and converted them into points. The defense also gained ground, and suddenly WTC was ahead by 16 points, 63-47.

From that point on, the outcome was never in question. WTC would have momentary letdowns, but showed strong potential with its quickness and ability to get the ball to the open man.

"I was pleased with the effort the kids put out, out there," noted the coach. "I've been watching basketball...on every level, and I don't think I've ever seen a college team play harder than these kids. That's one thing we are trying to instill in them, that they are going to have to play that hard every game. We're going to have a chance every game, I think, once we learn to execute and do the things that are necessary to win, if we play hard."

"The other thing I require is to always find the open man. We had 33 assists Saturday and that's very good for a first game. The first half we had opening jitters and that type thing and we weren't always taking the good shot. We were forcing it sometimes. We shot over 65 percent in the second half and did a much better job of shot selection. That's the type discipline we are going to have to have to win," he added.

"I thought our press looked pretty good by and large. We still haven't gotten to the point that when someone breaks our press we prevent them from scoring. We've got to get better there."

The score wavered from a 12-to-16 point lead through the first 10 minutes of the second half, but WTC put the lid on with 7:50 to go as North and Keith Denis began teaming up to drill the opponent offensively. The Westerner lead advanced to as much as 24 points on a couple of occasions, before officials' whistles sent six players - three from each team - to the benches with a fifth foul.

Every Westerner scored points as Dunaway frequently rested his players. North added 25. Brent Smith put up 15 and Troy Stevenson and Clarence Cephas added 11 each.

Don Warren led in the rebounding department with 13 as WTC out-boarded the opponent 45-28. North also added 8 rebounds and had 7 assists. Stevenson led in that category with 9 assists.

McMurry's Terry Bebo led for the game with 33 points. Earnest Merritt, showing good outside range, had 22.

Cowboys Rally Past Stubborn Cards, 27-24

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Coach Tom Landry called the play "amazing." Wide receiver Drew Pearson said "It's better to be lucky than good." And Tony Hill, the hero himself, didn't even know it was fourth down.

With just 45 seconds left, Hill leaped in front of cornerback Roger Wehrli to corral a Danny White pass and cap a 69-yard drive. The 28-yard scoring strike allowed the Dallas Cowboys to escape Sunday with a 27-24 win over St. Louis in a game which saw the lead change hands five times.

"Tony just made a great catch," said White. "I felt some pressure and I let the ball go earlier than I wanted to. Tony hadn't made his move yet."

Hill also said he was planning to make a cut when the ball was thrown.

"I just jumped up and caught it," the wide receiver said. "I didn't know where Wehrli was. My concentration was on the ball."

"I didn't even know it was fourth down," Landry said the Cowboys were "fortunate to win" the battle with arch-rival St. Louis.

"It was amazing he caught it," Landry said. "The ball just fluttered and he just outjumped him."

WTC plans to send two teams to the tournament which will be funded entirely by local sponsors.

Baylor Falls; Texas Too

By The Associated Press
The Baylor Bears went from "I Believe" to "Can You Believe?" and the Cotton Bowl went from a possible national championship game to a potential pabulum production.

San Jose State ambushed the 10th ranked Bears 31-22 in Waco Stadium Saturday and the Bears dreams of an unbeaten season were shattered.

Texas Tech's 24-20 upset of Texas may have helped Coach Rex Dockery secure his job.

Kirkpatrick Garners Second Place At Meet

FORT WORTH - Eldon Kirkpatrick, in "Mama's Mink," confiscated second place in the 10,500 Modified class at the Greater South Finals Truck and Tractor Pull held in the Tarrant County Convention Center over the weekend here.

Kirkpatrick, who faced a breakdown while running in the 9,500 Modified class on Friday, returned Saturday to claim the prize against competition from Texas, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa and New Mexico. Trucks were also represented from Arkansas, Oklahoma and Kentucky.

The event was presented by Agri-Shows, Inc. Kirkpatrick is a member of the West Texas Tractor Pullers Association.

Vote for Greater Banking Convenience

Passage of Proposition 1 on the November 4th ballot will open the door to even greater banking convenience. This simple change in the law will allow Texas banks to place unmanned teller machines at convenient locations for faster service, night or day. These teller machines are becoming a convenient option for handling routine banking business.

"Round-the-clock banking at unmanned tellers is convenient, safe and a positive step toward avoiding unnecessary credit card use. Moreover, it is an energy saver - instead of traveling across town to a bank, an unmanned teller can be built in your neighborhood."
— San Angelo Standard-Times

Proposition 1 "will make life easier for bank customers... (it) will eliminate many, if not all, of the tortuous lines seen clogging drive-in bank lanes."
— Houston Chronicle

Proposition 1 "has gained widespread support as the amendment faces voters Nov. 4."
— Orange Leader

"Off-premises unmanned teller machines should be approved by Texas voters."
— San Antonio Light

People in forty other states already have this convenient banking choice. It's time Texans did, too.

Vote for Proposition 1 November 4th.

The Times Have Changed For Peoria's Prostitutes

By WAYNE SLATER
Associated Press Writer
PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — They were wrong about Alyce Broshe, alias Karen Connally, the last of the Peoria madams. She did not get shot or stabbed and die in the streets somewhere. She did not grow old and obese and pass away quietly one morning in bed. Somehow, she has survived. And surely the Alyce Broshe of today would have startled her old cronies in that storied redlight district called the Merry-Go-Round.

"I was the best at what I did," says Miss Broshe, who at 45 doesn't do it any more. Times have changed.

The city this summer leveled the last of the old houses in the Merry-Go-Round to make room for urban renewal. The old madams are all dead and gone. The hookers have taken to freelancing in the street.

"There is no professionalism in it anymore. They're amateurs, really. It's no longer a job or a business or a profession," she says. "It's a crime."

Once, Peoria's verfront district was legendary. It was a lusty, brawling, wide-open place with gambling, dancing, raw liquor and willing ladies. It was an island of vice in the land the settlers built, and everybody in the Midwest knew it.

In 1913, the Illinois Senate decided to put a stop to it. The Senate's Committee on vice held hearings in Peoria to investigate what one lawmaker called "the sporting women" and to determine "what makes a good girl go to the bad."

After long hearings, the committee made a number of recommendations aimed at ending prostitution.

Nonetheless, by the late 1920s, Peoria's red-light district was flourishing. And at the helm was a huge woman with flared nostrils named Diamond Lil.

Diamond Lil had a stable of white and black girls in a big Victorian sporting house that operated not far from the Empire, the leading gambling spot in town.

There was a string of bootleg joints serving bathtub gin, and up on Main Street a dance hall called the Ingle Terra where a long rope was stretched down the center of the floor to separate the raucous Charleston from the more sedate dances.

Payoffs were common. Every Monday, a messenger dispatched by local hoodlums arrived at City Hall, carrying a sealed envelope filled with cash.

The amount was always dutifully recorded in the city treasurer's report — $60,000 in 1937 under the title "Special Miscellaneous: Madison Novelty Co."

Clerks nowadays will drag out these dusty old figures and explain how the mythical company got its name from the location of City Hall on Madison Avenue.

"In high school our dates used to drive us on a dare through the red-light district."

Two Houston Officers Shot

HOUSTON (AP)—A policeman was killed and a sheriff's deputy seriously wounded in separate shootings Sunday.

Officer Michael W. Rivers, 32, of suburban Hedwig Village was shot to death early Sunday as he and other officers sought to question two men on a shopping center parking lot. Investigators said both men escaped.

Police said Deputy David Kaup, 27, was shot Sunday night when he stopped two men carrying a television set out a side entrance at an apartment complex where he lives.

In the exchange of gunfire, a 32-year-old man was wounded and Kaup, despite left and right side wounds, held the second man until other officers arrived.

The eight locks of the Welland Canal overcome the 326-foot drop of Niagara Falls and rapids to make the Niagara River navigable between Lake Erie and Lake Ontario.

says feminist author Betty Friedan, a Peoria native. "I can still remember those women standing in the doorways."

There was a brief flurry of reform after World War II. Police padlocked the houses. Officials prosecuted the girls.

But the only thing that changed was the location of the redlight district. A new ground a few blocks south bounded by a triangle of streets which men drove their cars around and around. Thus the name the Merry-Go-Round.

Alyce Broshe was 15 when she started working in the Merry-Go-Round, a runaway from Terre Haute, Ind., by way of Chicago, where she had run errands for pimps and strippers.

She called herself Karen Connally for no particular reason and served her apprenticeship under a reclusive, politically well-connected madam named Pam Miller.

"Pam ran the town, police, politicians, everything," she recalls. "I voted when I was 15. Pam piled us into a station wagon and took us all down to vote. Those were the payoff days."

One day in 1950, after a lot of whisky and cocaine, Karen told her pimp, Blackie Jennings, she didn't want to work that night. Blackie pulled out a .45-caliber pistol and shot her in the head.

She survived, and the feud lasted until 1963, when she walked into Blackie's house and shot him twice in the back. He survived, and she was on her own.

A couple of weeks before Christmas 1963, she walked into a liquor store with a .32-caliber pistol and walked out with a handful of cash. The owner shot her twice in the stomach before she'd gone a block.

She survived. Upon her conviction for robbery, for which she was sent to prison for 11 months, prosecutor Morton Goldfine declared: "This is the last of the madams in Peoria. All the rest have been sentenced or put out of business and this puts an end to the Merry-Go-Round."

But he was wrong. Baby Doll Cowan was still in town.

Baby Doll was a grinning, good-hearted woman who says she started selling her services at age 19 after being jilted in a love affair. She had been arrested for prostitution 51 times in Peoria, the last time for soliciting an undercover cop.

That was five days before she died. She was 73 years old. Baby Doll's place is gone now, leveled by the wrecking ball. So is Diamond Lil's old place and Pam Miller's. And so is Karen Connally's. Gone.

There is a pile of rubble now where the Merry-Go-Round used to be.
