Two Injured In Accident

An Olney woman and her daughter sustained serious injuries in a pickup-car accident about 4:30 Wednesday afternoon. Both are in the Hamilton hospital as a result of the collision.

Mrs. Ruby Pearl York, 32, is thought to have been the more seriously hurt with a head injury, lacerations and possible internal damage. Her daughter, Patricia, 15, suffered a broken leg and lacerations.

Mrs. York was reported to have been driving the pickup and attempted to pass an automobile driven by Julian C. Rogers of Jean, when the pickup went off the roadway and hit loose gravel causing Mrs. York to lose control.

According to Highway Patrolman Tom Mobley, who investigated the accident, the pickup then veered back onto the road striking the auto in the left front fender. The pickup veered toward the barrow ditch where it overturned two - a - half times before coming to rest on its top headed in a northly direction.

The auto also took a northly course after the collision, went through the barrow ditch and came to rest in a plowed field.

Mrs. York was thrown from the pickup while her daughter remained in the vehicle. The pickup was demolished in the accident.

The accident occurred 6.5 miles west of Olney on the Throckmorton Highway.

Fur Trapper Tells Of Beginning Of Travels

(Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of articles entitled "A Fur Trapper" and written by Mrs. Syd Davis. The articles are about Warren Angus Ferris, the grandfather of Mrs. Allie Ferris Pounds of Newcastle.)

By Mrs. Syd Davis

It was a practice of many of these mountain men to keep a diary or journal and record the events of their travels. W. A. Ferris was no exception, for he kept a detailed account of his more than five and a half years employment with the American Fur Co. in the Rocky Mountain area.

When the group left St. Louis it was composed of 30 men, and 15 more were added to the group on the way. The brigade was outfitted with guns, ammunition, knives, food, camping equipment, and at least 6 traps per man. Tobacco, bolts of bright colored cloth, blankets, rouge, beads, mirrors, and all sorts of trinkets, called "foofaraw," were carried to trade with the Indians. Mules were used as pack animals, for they were as important as the horses to ride.

The brigade was well organized and under strict discipline. When they camped at night a place at least 50 yards square was marked out, one side of which, if possible, was the brink of some stream. Four tents occupied the corners of this space, and the remaining four were placed in the middle of each side. The space in between was barricaded with all the baggage, saddles, etc. The horses and mules were kept within this area, tied to wooden pins that were driven into the ground. Six men were always on guard duty with the guard changing every 2 hours. At dawn 4 men were sent out to scan the area, and if nothing unusual was discovered, the horses were hobbled and turned loose to graze on the abundant grass. Breakfast was eaten, all gear packed ready for loading, the

PHILLIP NANTZ

Olney Youth Has Rare Disease

Phillip Nantz, son of Patricia Nantz of Olney and Bobby Nantz of Graham, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Nixon, was taken to the Masonic Crippled Children's Hospital last week, where his condition was diagnosed as Muscular Dystrophy.

Phillip is three and a half. "Blood samples were taken at the hospital," said Mrs. Nixon, "and when analysis is complete on those, the doctors will be able to determine how damage the disease has already done and how fast it will progress."

Muscular Dystrophy is a relatively rare disease which is characterized by wasting and enfeeblement of the muscles of the trunk and limbs.

Phillip's type is described as being progressive pseudohypertrophy MD.

The cause of MD remains unknown and there is no specific treatment for the disease, but corrective and remedial measures are helpful.

Mental function and senses remain normal and there is no important change in the nervous system. In the advanced stages of the disease, power of movement and even the tendon reflexes are abolished. Paralysis can be expected.

"We would like to thank everyone for their interest," Mrs. Nixon said. "About all we can do is ask you to say a prayer for Phillip. He is a happy little boy and will respond quickly to your smiles and words of encouragement."

Mrs. Nantz and the Mixons added that they wished to thank Dr. Fred Harrell and the local Masonic Lodge for their assistance in sending Phillip to the Masonic Hospital.

For the most part, small grain harvest for Young County and the surrounding area, is again history.

The samples of wheat, oats, barley and rye from the demonstration plots on the Woodrow Taack farm, the Raylon Kunkel farm and the Dwight Hamilton farm have been threshed. These were taken to the Texas Agriculture Experiment Station at Chillicothe last Tuesday. Yields will be determined and the results published at a later date.

Bagworms are doing considerable damage to many cedar and juniper like trees and shrubs. Left uncontrolled they can cause death of the tree or leave it in such condition that recovery will be very slow.

Don't neglect your roses if you want flower production throughout the summer and fall.

A disease and insect control program is a must. A preventative spray of folket every 7 to 19 days will prevent black-spot and help control mildew.

An application of a complete fertilizer scattered over the rose area every four weeks will insure continued growth and strong canes for late summer and fall flowers. One to two pounds of 13 - 13 - 13, 16 - 20 - 0, or 10 - 10 - 5 per 100 square feet of bed area should be used.

To conserve moisture and reduce soil temperature during the summer months, a mulch of leaves, cotton burrs or other organic materials should be used. As the mulch decomposes, it should be replaced.

Every 6 to 8 weeks, lawns should be top dressed with nitrogen fertilizer to maintain growth and color. Apply at the rate of 1 to 2 pounds of actual 6 per 1000 square feet of grass. This would be 3 to 6 pounds of ammonium Nitrate (33.5%N) or 5 to 10 pounds of ammonium Sulfate (21%N).

Avoid whenever possible, mowing grass when it is wet. Dry grass is easier to cut, does not build up and clog the mower and gives the lawn a neater and more finished appearance.

The second generation of Pecan Nut Casebearers is showing up at this time, especially on trees not sprayed earlier in the year. Walnut caterpillars are also doing some damage to leaves. These can be controlled with Sevin, DDT, Toxaphene or Malathion.

Aphids, honey dew secreting insects, are becoming rather thick on pecans as well as many other trees, shrubs, flowers and garden plants. Malathion, Nicotine sulphate, lindane, Cygon or Diazinon may be used for control.

In spite of heavy rains, an estimated 400 persons were on hand for the Texas Jr. Hereford Field Day last Friday. This was one of three scheduled events and was held on the Hull-Dobbs Hereford Ranch near Ft. Worth. Some excellent Hereford cattle were on hand for the group to see and to be used in judging contests.

Five Young County 4 - H members joined the association. These were Dan Steele, Mark Steele, Jim Burkett, Zack Burkett, Jr., and Ray Copeland. Membership is good until 21 years of age. Adults from the county attending the field day included Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bloodworth, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Steele, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Allen, Jr., Mr. Zack Burkett,

Blood Meeting Stresses Giving

By Blood Program Reporter
On June 15, representatives of the Red River Red Cross Regional Blood Center met at Uncle John's Pancake House in Wichita Falls for a workshop on "How to get more blood donors."

Benton Caldwell of Frederick, Okla., president of the regional blood program, welcomed the thirty - four persons representing thirteen counties of the eighteen covered by the center.

George Clevenger, director of the Blood Center, introduced Miss Beth Sprague, from St. Louis, Mo. who is the American Red Cross Blood Program Field representative for this area.

Miss Sprague gave the results of a survey made in Centers all over the country. Forty - two percent interviewed said they were giving to help some one, and of this one - half or twenty - one percent stated that they gave to help a friend or relative and the other half gave to help others.

She also stated that friends were much more successful in getting new donors than strangers. Persons that had received blood were very good since they knew first hand how blood can indeed save lives.

Clevenger then introduced Mrs. Charles Byers, Volunteer-Consultant - Blood who was asked to tell how one twon - Olney was able to double the number of donors they were getting and continue to meet their quota each time.

Mrs. Byers explained how people are constantly kept informed on the blood program by having weekly articles in the paper and the radio.

Glover Is Attending ROTC Summer Camp

Fort Sill, Okla. (AHTNC - - - Cadet William T. Glover, Jr., 21, whose parents live on Route 1, Jean, Tex., is attending Reserve Officer Training Corps summer camp at Fort Sill, Okla., which started June 15. He is a student at Midwestern University in Wichita Falls, Tex.

During the six - week encampment, he will receive advanced training in the military subjects he has been studying at school.

Cadets are trained in various subjects which will provide them with the skills necessary to command. On completion of the ROTC program, graduates may receive commissions as second lieutenants.

Glover is a 1963 graduate of Graham High School.

Mrs. Byers also told how the B&P.W. Club works constantly on typing cards for each visit and telephones donors the day of the visit; how the City Federation donates workers; how the Cub Scouts furnishes food.

After a break for lunch the group reconvened and each community represented gave their most successful way of recruiting donors.

Miss Sprague summerized the main points brought out in the workshop and stated how happy she was to see a good turnout.

After Miss Sprague, and Mrs. Byers had given their main talks both were asked questions by those present.

Both Clevenger and Caldwell thanked all present for coming and the group present decided to make the workshop an annual event.

Everyone felt that the day would aid them to help their community meet and go over its quota.

Many Participate In Olney Summer Reading Program

About 50 Olney youngsters have enrolled in the Olney Public Library's Summer Reading Program, and a number of new books have been placed to the shelves as added enticement.

Young people 12 years and up will enjoy "Championship Quarterback," by Tex Maule. The hero, Brad Thomas, must decide between his loyalty to his team and his loyalty to his best friend. His decision makes entertaining reading for the sports-minded.

Robert Heinlein is one of America's foremost science-fiction writers, and in his new book, "Have Space Suit . . . Will Travel," his hero, Kip tries to help a 10 year old genius named Peewee and ends up involved in a cold war of interspatial dimensions.

Children aged nine to twelve will be amused at Homer, in "Homer Price," by Robert McCloskey, who has to cope with robbers, thieves, and Superman.

Girls 12 years old and older will enjoy the story of a vivacious girl's career as a nurse in "Sue Barton, Senior Nurse," by Helen Dore Boylston.

"Mr. Popper's Penguins," written by Richard T. and Florence H. Atwater, is the humorous story of a house painter and his sprightly pet penguin, children five years old to nine years old will find it amusing summer reading.

Children from three to nine will be fascinated with whether or not there really is a dragon in the clock box in M. Jean Cragg's tale, "The Dragon in the Clock Box."

An imaginative and colorful introduction to the alphabet may be found in "Bruno Munari's A B C," for children from two to seven.

The whole family will love "The Cherry Tree," compiled by Geoffrey Grigson. A collection of over 500 poems which are dear to the hearts of adults and soon are beloved by children, the book is illustrated with rare woodcuts.

Spiders are usually considered "creepy," but Charlotte is different. A beautiful and intelligent spider, she rescues a loveable pig named Wilbur from a cruel fate, in "Charlotte's Webb," by E. B. White. For children nine to twelve.

A favorite age-old song about a hero named Mr. Fox is transferred to a new setting in "The Fox Went Out on a Chilly Night," by Peter Spier. Four color illustrations capture all the pursuit of Mr. Fox. Children four to ten will be rooting for the hero.

"Too Far to Walk," by John Hersey has been placed on the shelves of the adult library. It is the story of a college youth and his rebellion.

Any Olney school child interested in doing some reading this summer may enroll in the library's Summer Reading Program. Those who finish the program will be awarded a pin in recognition.

Fur Trapper . . .

horses caught and loaded, and the brigade was again on its way.

The first party of Indians they met caused much consternation as they outnumbered the trappers 2 to 1, but they were friendly and wanted to trade, but after parting it was discovered that they had stolen everything they could lay their hands on without being discovered.

Many days passed before they met another group, several hundred, all mounted on fine horses, carrying 4 American flags. Some of them wore painted buffalo robes, and some wore long red coats, trimmed with gold and silver lace, which they had acquired by some means. Each group had to be presented with gifts in order that the brigade be permitted to pass through their territory.

It was summer by the time the expedition reached the trapping area, and most of the summer months were spent looking for the other trapping companies. It was intended to follow the Rock Mountain Fur Co., the Hudson Bay Co., and other more experienced trappers in order to discover the best trapping areas. When none of them could be found, the brigade was divided into 3 groups, each being sent in different directions to hunt during the winter. Ferris said he was unfortunate enough to be assigned to the area northeast of the Great Salt Lake.

That winter of 1830-1831 was the worst that Ferris experienced.

At the outset of the expedition he had complained of a diet of bacon and cornbread, but before the winter was over he would have thought it food for a king. The snow was unusually heavy, and there was little vegetation for the horses which in time made them grow weak. Game was scarce, and what was found was so poor that it was not fit to eat. The men's gums became so sore from eating tough buffalo meat that they were forced to cut it in small pieces and swallow it with out chewing. Their plight became so desperate that they ate a wolf, some ravens, and magpies. Realizing that they must get out of the area, if they were to live, they began their trek through the deep snow. As the horses were so weakened from starvation it was necessary for the men to walk much of the way. A crust frozen on the snow cut the legs of the horses as they crushed through it, leaving a trail of blood behind them. Finally, the men had to beat a trail Indian fashion in order to get the horses through. After trying them, they marched for a number of miles on snow shoes, one after another, ploughing their way through snow. Then they retraced their steps back to the horses and led them out. After a time they met members of another trapping party, were given food, and managed to get to an area where there was vegetation for the horses.
