Pitts, Mitchell Named To All-District Football Squad

Nell's Notes

"I heard the bells on Christmas Day,
Their old familiar carols play,
And wild and sweet
Their words repeat
Of peace on earth, good will toward men."

—o—
What does Christmas mean to you? Does it mean you will be receiving or does it mean you will be giving? Will you be giving of our time where time is needed, a word of encouragement to the discouraged, a word of praise to a child will you bring a smile to the face of an older person or visit someone that is lonely, could you bring a word of cheer to someone who is ill, or can you let an everyday chore be just a labor of love, can you forgive and forget bygone grievances and make amends for the hurt you might have caused someone, or peek out and find those who have so much less than you do, or to tell each of your parents how much you love them? A true gift of love comes from the heart and doesn't have to be wrapped in a fancy package or tied with a big red bow. By expressing our love for each other we show our love for our Savior, whose birthday we observe at Christmas time.

Homes to view these nights all glow with Christmas lights . . . Bugs Stewart, Velma Kennedy, T. N. Wooldridge, Cecil Kessler, Frank Pounds, and Nick Burch.

If you have been peeping into someone's window and you are not Santa Claus, you are somewhere you shouldn't be. There are a few "window peepers in Town, so it seems. You could catch cold or something else these cold nights, so it might be a good idea to stay at home and watch television.

THE BIG INCH

The ruled box above is a one-inch ad. It measures one column wide by one inch deep. It costs advertisers 60c

It looks kinda lonesome by itself.

But look at it this way.

What you get when you buy a one inch ad in the Newcastle Register is not just a single inch of space in the paper, but one inch multiplied by 500 copies.

So you are really buying 500 inches, which at 75 inches a page would be more than 6½ pages of printed newsprint.

That's a mighty big chunk of space for a cost of only 60c.

And that price includes delivery to the reader's mail box. Just imagine the cost of reaching all those Register families by postcard. It would amount to $20.00 just for the postage. But the Register does it for a mere 60c per insertion.

And . . . ask about our sliding scale? The more advertising you run, the less per inch it costs.

So you can see that a little one-inch ad is really a pretty BIG inch when it's advertising space in the Newcastle Register. And the figures show that it's the most effective and economical way possible to let people in this area, know that you have wares and services that they could use.

Call 4771 and let Janelle Moody show you how a little BIG inch can wake up sales for you.

■ NOWHERE IN TEXAS does the Christmas season blossom into more traditional bloom than in the annual Poinsettia Show at Mission.

This year marks the Silver Anniversary of this floral harbinger of the season to be jolly. It will be held from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m. December 9 in the homes of three Mission residents. Thus, it has for its 1966 theme: "Holiday Open House."

Visitors will see tasteful arrangements of red, pink, and white poinsettia arrangements aimed at catching the judges' fancy in the various horticultural and artistic classes.

For the horticultural classes, nothing but the poinsettia may be used to effect a floral arrangement. And although other flowers may be used with poinsettias for the artistic arrangements, the poinsettia must dominate.

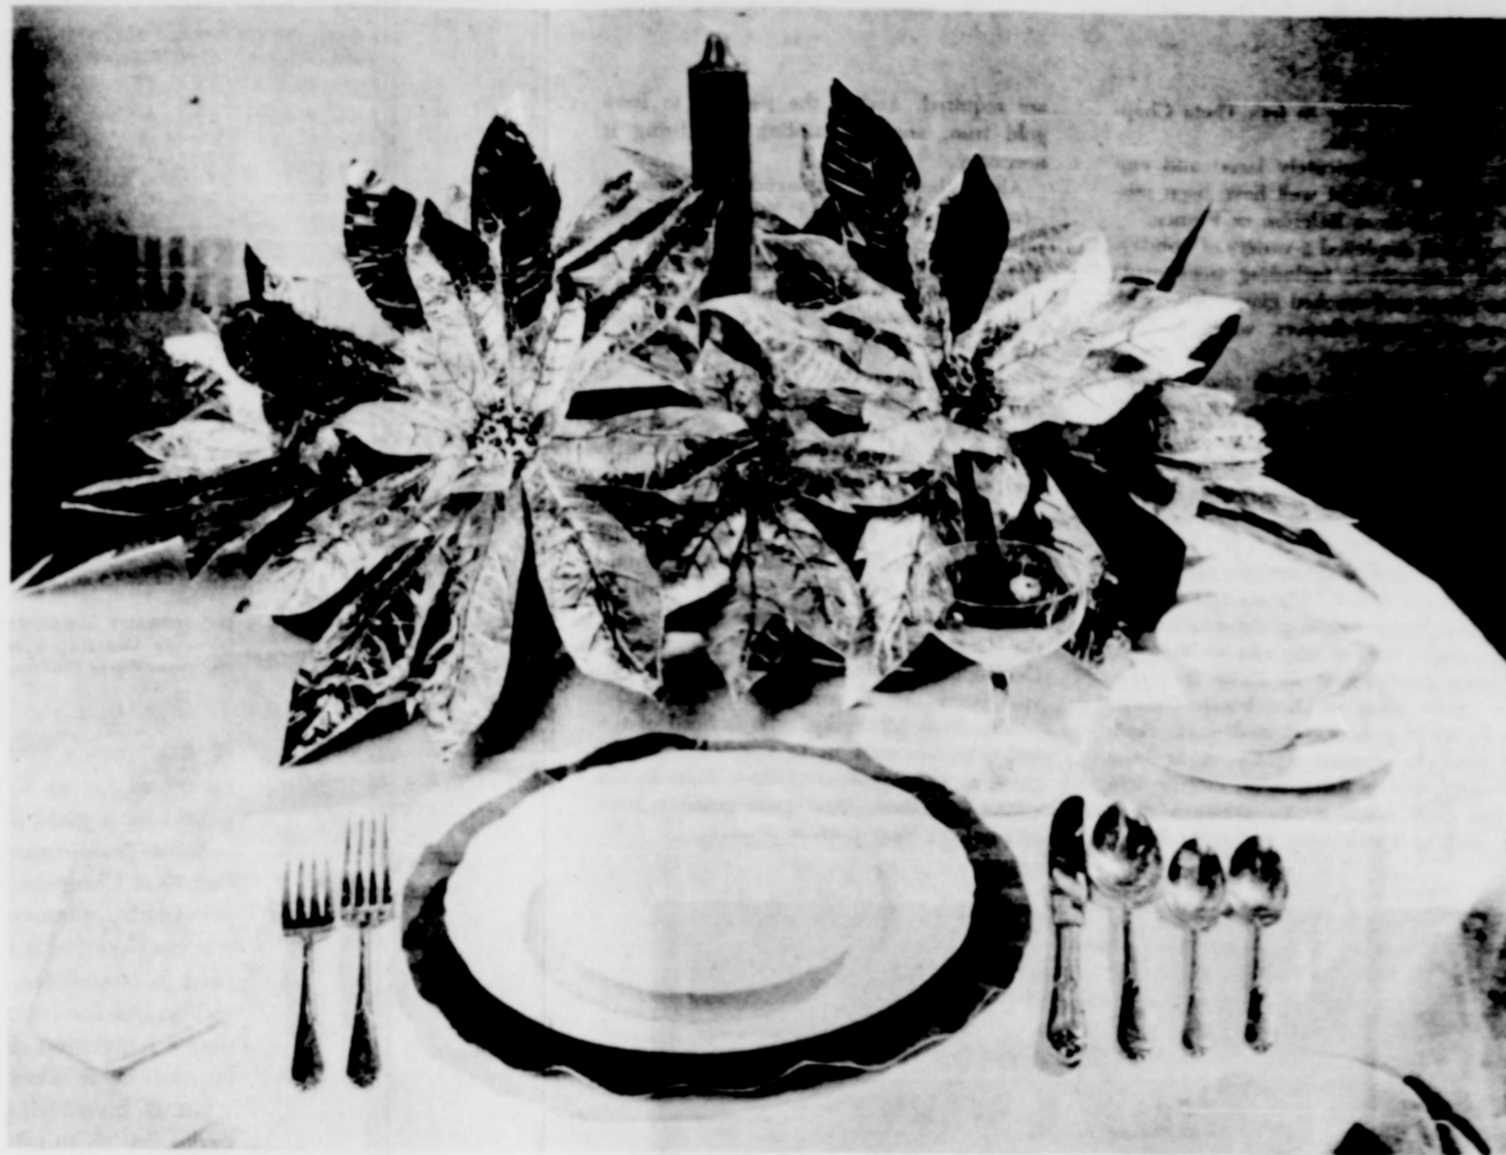

Every other year—and 1966 is one of them—some participants are asked to compete in the placement competition. This year, Mrs. R. E. Gaunt, a past president of the Mission Garden Club, which sponsors the show, will create a poinsettia arrangement to be placed on the buffet in one of the homes.

Not because she is publicity chairman but because she loves these flowers, Mrs. Gaunt is an enthusiastic booster for the Poinsettia Show.

The American Poinsettia Society that the Mission Garden Club formed in the early 1950's is the only special plant society organized in Texas, she says proudly.

Her pride leaps across continents as she indicates the worldwide knowledge about the Poinsettia Show. Flower lovers in India, France, and England have inquired about the show. And visitors from France, Mexico, and Canada—as well as all 50 states—have come to see for themselves.

Over the years, the Poinsettia Show has been held in a variety of public buildings; churches, lodge halls, hotels, schools, banks, vacant buildings, and, as in 1966, private homes.

WHETHER YOU GROW THEM OR MAKE THEM . . .

As a matter of fact, it was in a private home that the first show was held. Not that it was planned that way.

"The first time we held the show," Mrs. Gaunt recalls, "it was just a Christmas program. All of the garden club members were asked to bring a poinsettia. It was supposed to be held in the yard of a member for a Christmas party. But when it rained, we moved inside. And that was the first Poinsettia Show."

At each annual show, the judges give the traditional blue, red, yellow, and white ribbons for the first-, second-, and third-place winners and the honorable mention winners, respectively.

The top award is a certificate given to the Best-in-Show Poinsettia. It is so judged by a scale of points that is also used to determine other winners.

One of the most unusual blue ribbon winners three years ago went to a contestant who entered an Ecke Flaming Sphere. This eye-catcher had hearts (the outermost leaves of a poinsettia) that curled in like the petals of a chrysanthemum.

"It looked more like a football mum," Mrs. Gaunt says.

Mrs. Gaunt offers a free tip to assure the longest life of a poinsettia after the stem is cut for a holiday arrangement.

"When you cut the stem of poinsettia," she explains, "it bleeds, and this can cause it to wilt. Instead of boiling water or flame, you can condition the poinsettia after it's cut by putting it in about two inches of rubbing alcohol for no more than five minutes. Then soak it in cool, deep water for a while."

And we have a poinsettia tip, too, for our readers. It's how to make the attractive poinsettia centerpiece pictured on this page.

Give it a try. You might even be able to fool the judges of the real thing. It's easy to do, and most of the materials you need are around the house. So:

(1) Using patterns cut in shape of poinsettia leaf, trace and cut desired number of petals from light weight cardboard. Each flower should consist of about 18 petals, six each of three sizes.

Tear off a strip of aluminum foil about twice the width of the petal. Lay cardboard petal in center of foil on back of petal with transparent tape. Repeat until all petals are covered.

Lay petals out on flat surface, right side up. With tube of red glitter glue, draw veins of petals. Allow to dry thoroughly before handling.

(2) To make center of flower, crumple a 12-inch square of foil into a ball about 1 1/2 inches in diameter and flatten on one side. Insert stem of heavy wire through ball, keeping flat side up. Bend wire to form hook and push back into ball to secure. Wrap stem completely in foil.

To give center raised effect, form small balls the size of a pea from scraps of foil. Place a sequin on top of each ball and pin into the flat surface of the center of the flower with a straight pin. Cover completely with sequins.

(3) To assemble flower, start with smaller petals and arrange around the center. Use two straight pins to secure petals to base of the center. Continue with next petal and finish with the larger petals. Be careful not to pin too near the end of the petal. Allow about 1/4 inch. Secure base of flower with tape and cover with foil.

(4) To make leaves, trace pattern and cut leaves from lightweight cardboard. Cut a piece of wire 3 inches longer than leaf and tape it down center of cardboard. Cover completely with foil as you did the petals and spray lightly with green paint.

DON'T WAIT until your guests have feasted on your Christmas dinner to bring out the toothpicks.

Now that there's a new "color-fast" round pick on the market, use it to catch your guests' attention . . . in a beautiful hanging decoration such as the one in the picture.

To make this one, assemble these materials:

- Round color-fast toothpicks
- 1 ball of Styrofoam, 3 inches in diameter
- 7 pieces of 1/2-inch green foil
- 1 cork, 1 1/2 inches in diameter
- 1 wire coat hanger
- 1 small eye screw
- Cellophane tape, scissors, small steak knife, picture hanging wire

Let the children separate the picks into four piles, red, green, yellow, and blue. You can turn this initial step into a fun game like "Pick Up the Sticks."

Draw a star 2 1/2 inches in diameter on a piece of paper. Cut out with scissors, paste the paper star securely on the Styrofoam ball. With a pencil, make a circle on the ball around the star, about 1/4 of an inch from the star points.

Cover the entire surface of the star with yellow picks, working from each point of the star toward the center. Make sure the picks are pushed in so that the star has a straight outline.

Next, use the blue picks, filling in the area between the penciled circle and the border of the star. Then cover the next 1/4 inch of the ball with yellow picks to create a halo-like effect around the blue.

If you want the decoration hung so that both sides will be seen, repeat the same pick design on the other side of the Styrofoam ball.

To make the peacock hanger to hold the star ball, cut tapered 1/4-inch slices in six of the seven 1/2-inch pieces of green foil (cutting down the 12-inch length), leaving a 1-inch uncut top border.

Now take the seventh piece of foil and cut across the 6-inch width. Make 1/4-inch slices, leaving a 1-inch uncut border at the top. Place this piece on top of the other six and match the top borders. Staple all seven pieces together at the border.

Straighten the coat hanger and cut off a 14-inch length. (Here's where dad can get in on the act.) Bend one end into a small hook, and insert the other end into the bottom of the cork.

Holding the cork with the hanger pointing down, wrap the border of the seven stapled sheets of sliced foil around the cork. (Note: The sliced foil should also point down.) Then affix border to cork with cellophane tape.

Now insert the small eye screw into the top of the cork. Reverse the cork so the hanger is at the top, and the sliced foil will arch downward in peacock splendor.

Using a 2-inch piece of straightened coat hanger, make a small hook at one end and push the other end into the Styrofoam ball star ornament at the top. Wrap one end of a short length of thin picture-hanging wire through the eyelet of the cork, and fasten.

EMBROIDERED plastic and glass bottles, covered with foil, can be transformed into gay Christmas figures with a few scraps of materials from the sewing basket or with some pieces of ribbon and a bunch of artificial flowers.

First, cover bottles with regular weight, super-strength foil, but not too tightly. Work gently with the foil.

For the head, hollow out a portion of a plastic foam ball and mount it on the spot of the bottle.

To complete the face, use brightly-colored yarn for hair, striped ribbon tied in a bow on the hair, a one-two-three row of shiny black or red buttons for eyes, nose, and mouth, a bunch of artificial flowers and cotton for other decorative treatment.

Most white glues work best with foil. Fabric, construction paper, and other pieces of foil will hold with glue. They also dry clear and are practically invisible.

For a child-like appearance of the faces, place eyes and nose low—usually at the midpoint of the face or just below.

The best materials are the ones at hand. Gold-colored metal scouring pads make wonderful "hair." Old jewelry can be used as well as single stones. Fabric ornaments provide for extra decorative treatment.

Be on the alert for interesting shapes: a wooden spoon, a cereal dish, cottage cheese containers, salad dressing bottles, cosmetic jars, and, of course, plastic bottles.

As a matter of fact, it was in a private home that the first show was held. Not that it was planned that way.

"The first time we held the show," Mrs. Gaunt recalls, "it was just a Christmas program. All of the garden club members were asked to bring a poinsettia. It was supposed to be held in the yard of a member for a Christmas party. But when it rained, we moved inside. And that was the first Poinsettia Show."

At each annual show, the judges give the traditional blue, red, yellow, and white ribbons for the first-, second-, and third-place winners and the honorable mention winners, respectively.

The top award is a certificate given to the Best-in-Show Poinsettia. It is so judged by a scale of points that is also used to determine other winners.

One of the most unusual blue ribbon winners three years ago went to a contestant who entered an Ecke Flaming Sphere. This eye-catcher had bracts (the outermost leaves of a poinsettia) that curled in like the petals of a chrysanthemum.

"It looked more like a football mum," Mrs. Gaunt says.

Mrs. Gaunt offers a free tip to assure the longest life of a poinsettia after the stem is cut for a holiday arrangement.

"When you cut the stem of poinsettia," she explains, "it bleeds, and this can cause it to wilt. Instead of boiling water or flame, you can condition the poinsettia after it's cut by putting it in about two inches of rubbing alcohol for no more than five minutes. Then soak it in cool, deep water for a while."

And we have a poinsettia tip, too, for our readers. It's how to make the attractive poinsettia centerpiece pictured on this page.

Give it a try. You might even be able to fool the judges of the real thing. It's easy to do, and most of the materials you need are around the house. So:

(1) Using patterns cut in shape of poinsettia leaf, trace and cut desired number of petals from light weight cardboard. Each flower should consist of about 18 petals, six each of three sizes.

Tear off a strip of aluminum foil about twice the width of the petal. Lay cardboard petal in center of foil on back of petal with transparent tape. Repeat until all petals are covered.

Lay petals out on flat surface, right side up. With tube of red glitter glue, draw veins of petals. Allow to dry thoroughly before handling.

(2) To make center of flower, crumple a 12-inch square of foil into a ball about 1½ inches in diameter and flatten on one side. Insert stem of heavy wire through ball, keeping flat side up. Bend wire to form hook and push back into ball to secure. Wrap stem completely in foil.

To give center raised effect, form small balls the size of a pea from scraps of foil. Place a sequin on top of each ball and pin into the flat surface of the center of the flower with a straight pin. Cover completely with sequins.

(3) To assemble flower, start with smaller petals and arrange around the center. Use two straight pins to secure petal to base of the center. Continue with next petal and finish with the larger petals. Be careful not to pin too near the end of the petal. Allow about ¼ inch. Secure base of flower with tape and cover with foil.

(4) To make leaves, trace pattern and cut leaves from lightweight cardboard. Cut a piece of wire 3 inches longer than leaf and tape it down center of cardboard. Cover completely with foil as you did the petal and spray lightly with green paint.

DON'T WAIT until your guests have feasted on your Christmas dinner to bring out the toothpicks.

Now that there's a new "color-fast" round pick on the market, use it to catch your guests' attention . . . in a beautiful hanging decoration such as the one in the picture.

To make this one, assemble these materials:

- Round color-fast toothpicks
- 1 ball of Styrofoam, 3 inches in diameter
- 7 pieces of 6x12-inch green foil
- 1 cork, 1½ inches in diameter
- 1 wire coat hanger
- 1 small eye screw
- Cellophane tape, scissors, small steak knife, picture hanging wire

Let the children separate the picks into four piles: red, green, yellow, and blue. You can turn this initial step into a fun game like "Pick Up the Sticks."

Draw a star 2½ inches in diameter on a piece of paper. Cut out with scissors, paste the paper star securely on the Styrofoam ball. With a pencil, make a circle on the ball around the star, about ¼ of an inch from the star points.

Cover the entire surface of the star with yellow picks, working from each point of the star toward the center. Make sure the picks are pushed in so that the star has a straight outline.

Next, use the blue picks, filling in the area between the penciled circle and the border of the star. Then cover the next ½ inch of the ball with yellow picks to create a halo-like effect around the blue.

If you want the decoration hung so that both sides will be seen, repeat the same pick design on the other side of the Styrofoam ball.

To make the peacock hanger to hold the star ball, cut tapered ¼-inch slices in six of the seven 6x12-inch pieces of green foil (cutting down the 12-inch length), leaving a 1-inch uncut top border.

Now take the seventh piece of foil and cut across the 6-inch width. Make ½-inch slices, leaving a 1-inch uncut border at the top. Place this piece on top of the other six and match the top borders. Staple all seven pieces together at the border.

Straighten the coat hanger and cut off a 14-inch length. (Here's where dad can get in on the act!) Bend one end into a small hook, and insert the other end into the bottom of the cork.

Holding the cork with the hanger pointing down, wrap the border of the seven stapled sheets of sliced foil around the cork. (Note: the sliced foil should also point down.) Then affix border to cork with cellophane tape.

Now insert the small eye screw into the top of the cork. Reverse the cork so the hanger is at the top, and the sliced foil will arch downward in peacock splendor.

Using a 2-inch piece of straightened coat hanger, make a small hook at one end and push the other end into the Styrofoam ball star ornament at the top. Wrap one end of a short length of thin picture-hanging wire through the eyelet of the cork, and fasten.

EMPTY PLASTIC and glass bottles, covered with foil, can be transformed into gay Christmas figures with a few scraps of materials from the sewing basket or with some pieces of ribbon and a bunch of artificial flowers.

First, cover bottles with regular weight, super-strength foil, but not too tightly. Work gently with the foil.

For the head, hollow out a portion of a plastic foam ball and mount it on the spout of the bottle.

To complete the face, use bright-colored yarn for hair, striped ribbon tied in a bow on the hair, a one-two-three row of shiny black or red buttons for eyes, nose, and mouth, a bunch of artificial flowers and cottons for other decorative treatment.

Most white glues work best with foil. Fabrics, construction paper, and other pieces of foil will hold with glue. They also dry clear and are practically invisible.

For a child-like appearance of the faces, place eyes and nose low—usually at the midpoint of the face or just below.

The best materials are the ones at hand. Gold-colored metal scouring pads make wonderful "hair." Old jewelry can be used as well as single stones. Fabric remnants provide for extra decorative treatment.

Be on the alert for interesting shapes: a wooden spoon, a cereal dish, cottage cheese containers, salad dressing bottles, cosmetic jars, and, of course, plastic bottles.

Altruistic Club Studies Automobile Safety

Automobile Safety was the topic for the day when the Altruistic Club met Friday, Dec. 2, in the home of Mrs. E. A. Speer.

Mrs. George Goree, program leader for the day, introduced Mrs. Joe Campbell and Mrs. L. C. Boyd, who spoke on the subject of safety.

Christmas gifts for the patients at Wichita Falls State Hospital and gift wrappings, were donated by the club members and have been delivered to the hospital.

Speaking on "What Can Be Done to Improve Safety of our Automobiles," Mrs. Campbell stressed the primary importance of safe driving habits.

She added, however that safety measures now being considered by the automobile industry and by Congress, might contribute measurably to auto safety.

Governor Connally's Auto Safety Program, to be presented to the Legislature in January, was explained to the group, and Mrs. Campbell pointed out that it would provide for periodic examination of drivers and for a meaningful safety inspection.

On "How to Save Money," taken from the "Dallas Morning News," Mrs. Boyd related her subject to automobile safety by explaining the new auto

Christmas Decoration Is Amity Program

Mrs. L. C. Young of Graham spoke on Christmas decorations and illustrated her talk with hand - made decorator items when the Amity Club met Thursday, Dec. 1, in the home of Mrs. William F. Bockhoff.

Mrs. Reese Hayes introduced Mrs. Young to the group, pointing out a few of her activities and talents.

Mrs. Young told the group that Christmas is a season of joy that should be reflected in every room of the home. "With the many new products available on the market," she said, "it is no longer necessary to use a theme of red and green."

Mrs. Young stated that an overall theme of Christmas should be used, with a predominate color scheme. "However, do use a different set of colors in a room that has its own very definite color scheme."

Beginning with the front door Mrs. Young showed the group various traditional door decorations. She included small and large Della Robbia wreaths, which she had made of plastic fruit and greenery, and completed with natural items, such as nuts, pine cones, sweet gum balls and cotton seed pods.

She also demonstrated artificial Christmas trees, made of plastic greenery, polyethylene bags, tin cans lids and wicker frames.

A striking table candelabra was made of a Christmas trees stand, and a topiary tree of polyethylene was decorated with red and green all - day suckers.

Following her talk, Mrs. Young chatted with members and answered questions, as they examined her many decorator items.

Mrs. Fisher Palmer, president, presided over a short business meeting before the program, and members presented gifts to be given to patients at the Wichita Falls State Hospital.

Following the program, Mrs.

Bockhoff served fruit salad, cake and coffee to the club members.
