

Male singers top talent lineup

With the final deadline for entering the base talent contest set for 5 p.m. today, the local show appears to be taking on a mostly male vocalist flavor.

Bob McFall, talent contest director, announced late Tuesday that 14 people had signed up for this year's show, but; that most of those would be competing in the male vocalist category. In fact, as of Tuesday there were only two other acts entered and no women singers had registered.

Three of the entrants will perform as a musical group called "Ice Performs." Derak Punter, one of three returnees from last year's competition, provides the only other change of pace as a modern dancer.

Orin Guthrie, the world-wide male vocalist champ in 1978 returns for another shot at the big time as does Air Training Command contestant Legene Brooks.

Entertainers wanting to sign up for the contest have three divisions to choose from this year. The first includes male vocalist unaccompanied, female vocalist unaccompanied, vocalist self-accompanied and vocal group.

The second division contains instrumental, instrumental solo and instrumental group (maximum of seven members). The final division includes classical, dramatics, comedy, dance, master of ceremonies and potpourri.

Rehearsals for the show start on Monday with the contest curtain set to go up at 7:30 p.m. Thursday.

Once again, Guthrie is expected to be the star of the show. The soft spoken singer received standing ovations at the base, command and world-wide contests last year as he played and sang a tune he wrote while in high school.

For more information about the contest call McFall at Ext. 3787.

LUBBOCK, TEXAS

Base sets Black Heritage observance

Gospel music will kickoff Reese's week-long observance saluting the many contributions black Americans have made in the development of America.

Three Lubbock based gospel choirs will perform here Sunday afternoon as the Black Heritage Week activities get underway. Participating in the 3 p.m. gospel performance in the base Chapel will be the Black Voices, Children of God and the Ford Memorial Choir.

The Black Voices is a 25-30 member group from Texas Tech, the Children of God is composed of youths from various churches in the Lubbock area and the Ford Memorial Choir represents the Ford Memorial Church of God in Christ. In addition, Reese's own gospel choir, born during last year's Black Heritage Week celebration, will perform under the guidance of Gladys Givens. Reverend (TSgt.) Oscar Givens will host the event.

On Monday, a combination fashion and talent show will be held in the NCO Club. Directed by Jean Braxton, the fashion show will feature models from Reese and the Lubbock community. The talent portion of the affair will include: dance, gospel singing, drama, classical presentations, pop music and instrumental music. The show starts at 7 p.m. and admission is free.

Billed as the "highlight" of the week's activities is the dinner-speaking engagement on Wednesday night at the NCO Club. Dr. Moses Turner, Dean of Student Life at Texas Tech will be the featured speaker.

Turner, who has served on the Lubbock Arts Council and Arts Festival Steering Committee, received his master's degree from Central Washington State College and his doctorate from Washington State University. He is currently involved in a number of activities concerning higher education both on the local scene and nationally. He was nominated to "Who's Who in Higher Education in the United States."

Scheduled to start at 6 p.m. with cocktails, the dinner menu will feature filet mignon. Tickets are on sale now for $6 per person.

Rounding out the Black Heritage observance schedule will be a special performance by "Styng" at the Mathis Recreation Center February 16. The show begins at 10 p.m. and will include a dance contest. There will be a $1 cover charge.

For more information about Black Heritage Week or tickets for the dinner activities here contact Fred Flewellan, Equal Employment Opportunity director, Ext. 3801, or 1st Lt. Cloretta Yates, Ext. 3744.

Top IP

Reese goes with 'winner' as IP of year nominee

by SSgt. R.D. Monson

By every definition of the word, Capt. John R. Hennigan is a winner.

Maybe that's why 64th Flying Training Wing officials have selected him to represent Reese in the Air Training Command 1978 Instructor Pilot of the Year competition.

From his high school days in California through his assignment as a class commander in the 64th Student Squadron, Captain Hennigan has gone beyond what was "required," always looking for ways to improve himself and the system.

Captain Hennigan was graduated with honors from nearly every educational institution he attended. It started back in 1965 when he was graduated from Oxnard High School and continued through completion of study at Ventura Junior College, quartermaster technical training school, Oklahoma University, Officer Training School and Undergraduate Pilot Training.

But perhaps more important than the individual awards he earned, was the way he has always been involved with programs concerning the people he worked with and for.

In junior college he was the president of his sophomore class and vice president of the associated student body, in UPT here he received the Class 76-07 Leadership Award and throughout his active duty career he has volunteered an unbelievable number of additional duty jobs. During the past year alone he has been the project officer for three wing programs, the squadron historian, career pilot training manager, awards and decorations officer, Unit Advisory Council representative and ground safety officer.

For the first four months of 1978 he pulled double duty as the chief of the Wing Information Office and as an IP in the 54th FTS. The fact that the Information Office has been named as best in ATC for 1978 illustrates his flexibility as an Air Force officer.

When you consider that while handling all of those extra duties he managed to fly 215 student sorties, maintain responsibility for the 30-40 students in each of his classes and still complete Squadron Officer School by correspondence, . . . he's certainly been a very busy man.

Oh, and to top it all off. The students think so highly of him that two graduating classes have named him as the outstanding T-38 instructor.

During Captain Hennigan's last three standarization and evaluation flights he received an outstanding and two excellent.

"His professional approach to all facets of pilot training is an example for others to follow," says Col. Charles Bishop, 64th FTW commander. "He has provided an invaluable learning atmosphere for all students who work with him. . . . I have yet to find an IP who can equal his track record."

Support Black Heritage

This next week we officially observe Black Heritage Week at Reese.

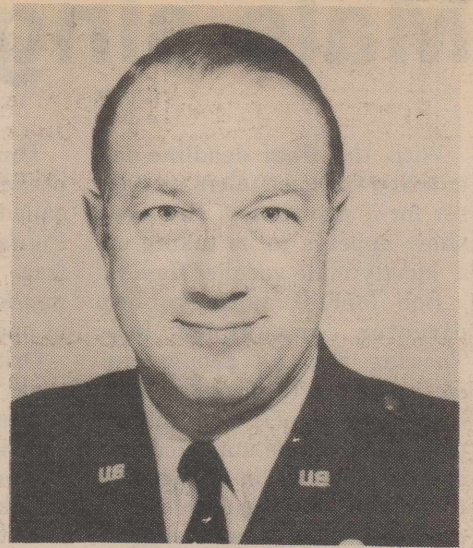

All of us should take the time and the opportunity to become more familiar with the numerous significant contributions made by black Americans to the history and progress of our nation.

Several on base programs have been planned throughout the week

(see story on page 1). I charge each of you to personally adjust your schedule so that you can attend some of these activities. Specifically, I request support for the dinner and program to be held at the NCO Club on Wednesday evening. It will be well worth your time to hear Dr. Moses Turner, Dean of Student Life at Texas Tech.

I wholeheartedly endorse the observance of Black Heritage and hope this year's activities will prove to be an educational experience in which we may all share and enjoy. We must realize that the real strength of our future lies in our ability to understand each other and in giving all Americans the opportunity to participate and contribute whatever they can toward the betterment of our country.

Col. Charles E. Bishop

CARE Line

(Editor's Note: All calls to the CARE Line MUST be accompanied by the caller's full name and duty phone so that answers may be provided personally, if space is not available in THE ROUNDUP. All information will be held in confidence and names will be withheld from print upon request. Names and numbers are required in order to give quick, personal responses to legitimate questions. Reese people are urged to use their chain of command or the office of primary responsibility to air complaints or comments, if possible. If not, call the CARE Line, (Ext. 3273).

Cold weather headgear

I work on the flight line. I would like to know why the fliers' helmet hat, the wallet hat with the nylon insert, is unauthorized on this base. These hats are worn Air Force-wide for flight line use and I was informed by T-37 branch supervisory personnel that they are unauthorized.

SSgt. Charles Baldwin

While the hat you refer to is an Air Force issued item and is authorized for wear by individuals in extremely cold areas, a requirement for its use and wear has not been authorized at Reese. A further check into your work area shows that this hat would interfere with the wearing of the ear (noise) muffs which are required.

Primarily though, our short winter weather conditions and the cost involved for individual issue do not warrant the authorization of this cold weather headgear. However, I have approved the wearing of the US Navy watch cap from Oct. 1 through March 31 with the utility uniform and special purpose clothing, provided an approved outer garment is worn.

No lights

There is a definite safety hazard for night students at building 820, since there are no lights on the outside of the building. I called on this subject last year and they were turned on for a few weeks and then went back off again. And now they are off again, and especially with the construction on the sidewalk out there, it does seem to be a safety hazard.

SrA Tracy McCuan

The lights behind building 820 were not turned on the night of Jan. 22. This was an oversight of the building custodian. These lights should have been on.

The lights for the parking area are controlled through an elaborate switching system. This system is presently inoperative and is being repaired. As an interim measure these lights are being operated manually. The lights are to be turned on at 6:30 p.m. If these lights are not on by 7 p.m., a call to Civil Engineers work order desk would be appreciated.

Proper records aid tax returns

It's tax time again and although it comes at the same time each year and federal law requires taxpayers to maintain records that will enable them to prepare accurate tax returns, there are always millions who aren't ready.

They are the ones who wait until the last possible minute, grab facts and figures out of the air, then pray that the Internal Revenue Service overlooks them again this year.

Even if federal law did not require it, maintaining records is still a good idea. Files are beneficial to insure that only the proper amount of tax is paid and for support in event the IRS decides (heaven forbid) to audit "my" income tax rather than the other person's.

Records are helpful in many ways but they must be detailed and maintained for the proper length of time. Memoranda or sketchy records or haphazard personal recollections of an event or deduction are inadequate. Cash or property may

- Identify sources of income. Cash or property may be received from a number of sources, and unless records clearly identify the source, individuals may be unable to substantiate that some part of the income is nontaxable.

- Prevent omission of deductible expenses. An overlooked item of $25 could cost several dollars in tax.

- Take advantage of capital gain and loss privileges.

- Explain itemized reports on income tax returns. Sales slips, invoices, receipts, cancelled checks and other documents always support adequate records and are essential for explanations.

Once the records are accurately compiled, they should be retained as long as their contents may be material in the administration of any IRS law. As a rule:

- Records that support an item of income or a deduction should be kept until the statute of limitations expires for that return. Usually this is three years from the date the return was filed or due, or two years from the date the tax was paid, whichever occurs later.

- Some records, such as the purchase of a house, must be kept indefinitely. Records of transactions relating to the basis of property should be retained for as long as they are material in determining the basis of original or replacement property.

- Copies of all previous income tax returns should be kept in permanent files. They will aid in preparing future tax returns and in making computations if the taxpayer later files a claim for a refund or amends a tax return.

Remember, too, that besides collecting taxes, IRS is in business to help us. They provide many publications which may be obtained by using the order form in your tax package. Also, they will furnish required forms and assist by explaining difficult portions.

With the proper records, publications, forms and professional IRS advice, you're now on the way to alleviating if not completely eliminating the problems most people encounter around mid-April. If after reading all this, you still wait and again develop the April 15 panics, relax. Since that date falls on Sunday this year, you have an extra day.

Reese legal office staff offers valuable service

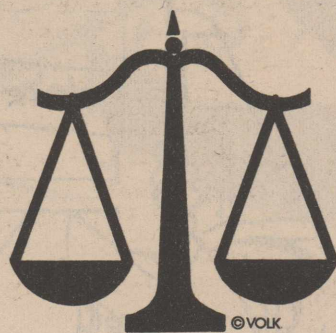

by Capt. Richard A. McDonald

In these days when the entitlements of military personnel are being reduced, it is good to know that service members and their dependents have free access to fully qualified Air Force lawyers.

As part of their duties, military attorneys are responsible for advising and counselling individuals on their legal problems. The purpose of this "legal assistance" program is to raise the level of morale and increase the effectiveness of Air Force members by helping them resolve their problems as easily as possible.

Cost-free legal service is available for the following groups and their dependents: (1) all active duty military members, (2) members of allied armed forces serving in the United States, (3) retired personnel and (4) certain dependent survivors of service personnel.

Basically, Air Force lawyers can provide consultation and advice on "personal civil legal problems." This means that even though he is not authorized to appear in court on your behalf, a military lawyer can help you with your legal problems other than criminal matters. (Legal personnel at Reese can give you advice on minor traffic violations, even though these are technically criminal actions.)

The Office of the Staff Judge Advocate, or legal office, at Reese is located in room 209 of bldg. 800 and is open from 8 a.m. to noon and from 1 to 4:45 p.m., Monday through Friday. To make an appointment for legal assistance call ext. 3505. Normally legal assistance is given on Tuesday and Thursday afternoons and on Monday evenings, but appointments can be made at other times if necessary. Any individual who feels that his situation is an emergency can receive immediate advice.

The staff of the legal office is available to help you with your problems at no cost to you; whereas contacting a civilian attorney may cost you $50 per hour (or more) for his time. Although it might ultimately be necessary for a military lawyer to refer you to the civilian bar to resolve your problem, it would normally be to your advantage to discuss any legal problem with the base legal office first.

Remember, legal problems are similar to medical problems in that if such problems are not taken care of at the time they first arise, they usually become more serious. Whether you come to the legal office to discuss a will, a power of attorney, a contract or anything else you think is a legal question, bring all the paperwork you have on the subject and discuss the problem freely with the attorney you see. He is your attorney and is required to keep everything you tell him confidential.

Chaplain's comment

by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Arnold G. Johnson

"This is the day the Lord has made. Let us rejoice and be glad in it." (Psalm 118:24)

The clock on the nightstand next to my bed sounds its incessant nasty alarm to awaken me out of a restful night's sleep. My dreams are ended. Dreams in which I have the capabilities to do superhuman things which my mere mortal body cannot do during my waking hours.

Yes, "this is the day which the Lord has made . . ." I'm reminded of my humanity and His Lordship.

I drive my old hard-to-start car toward the base after I've been forced to spend extra minutes scraping the windows clear so I can see where I'm driving. My patience is stretched a little thin because I'm behind schedule.

Suddenly I remember the passage again . . . "this is the day the Lord has made. Let us rejoice and be glad in it." I feel better . . . It's good to be alive!

It's a little after lunch as I glance at my watch. It's been one of those awful days . . .

. . . rushing from one place to another . . . trying to meet the demands of people who really don't realize how much they ask for at times. I'm tired . . . but there's still a long time to go before the day is over.

Then, I am reminded once again by the picture of the baby with the bowl of spaghetti spilled over his head . . . "This is the day the Lord has made. Let us rejoice and be glad in it." I'm reminded that no matter how difficult things may seem to be, no matter how tired I feel, or how dejected I may be . . . it's a day of the Lord . . . and I can be glad!

As I prepare for bed my mind reviews some of the activities of the day. No wonder my shoulders slump a little and the feet are a little sore. It has been a busy day. Many exciting things have happened and I now lay down to rest.

But not without saying "Thank You God!" "This was a day which You made. I have rejoiced and been glad in it!" My last conscious thought before sleep is a wish for another day like it tomorrow. "Thank You God!"

Self-help moves net cash

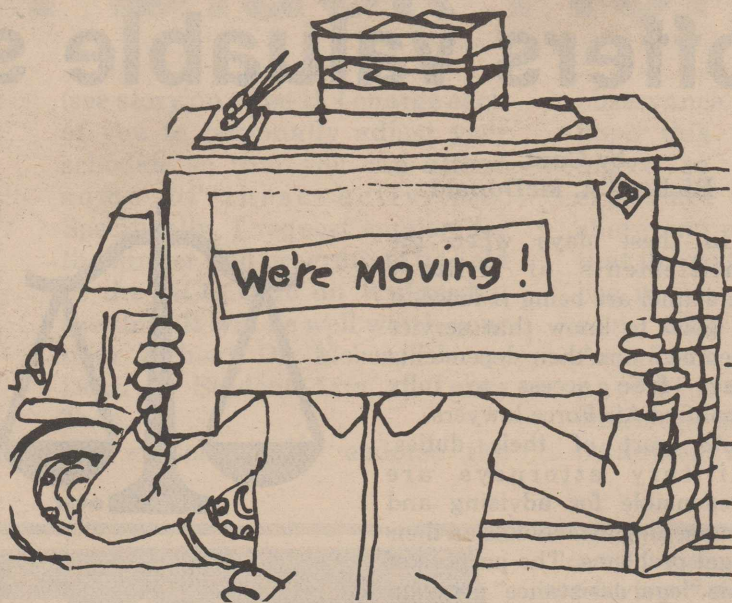

The "Do-it-yourself" moving program is offered the military member as an alternate means of moving personal property within the United States.

Under this program, members must go to the Traffic Management Officer, who will order the government-leased truck or trailer or approve the privately-owned truck or cargo trailer to move household goods instead of having the government ship them by commercial means. People moving will pick up the equipment, pack and load household goods, drive to their new home, unload the vehicle and turn it in to the dealer designated in the contract. It's that simple!

The government pays all rental charges and cost of packing material and moving aids. The TMO will assist movers in selecting the proper equipment and sufficient packing material to meet their needs.

If you are using a privately owned truck or trailer, it must be approved by the TMO. Automobiles, station wagons, motor homes, camper trailers, pickup trucks with camper built over the truck bed, or vehicles that have been changed to accommodate passengers cannot be used under the program.

Any member who is otherwise eligible for a movement of personal property at government expense is eligible to move under the do-it-yourself moving program.

This includes persons in receipt of permanent change of station orders, temporary duty, retirement, separation and to those persons moving locally from or to government quarters. An E-4 or below with less than two years service, and moving within the United States on a PCS move, is also authorized to use this program.

If this method of moving household goods is selected and has been authorized by the TMO, the mover is eligible to receive a monetary incentive. The incentive payment is based on costs the government would have actually paid had the household goods been moved by the normal commercial household goods movers. The mover receives 75 per cent of this cost less the charges paid to the rental company for the vehicle, packing and moving aids.

As an example, if it would cost the government $1,000.00 to move goods by commercial van, the mover receives 75 percent or $750.00 as an incentive payment less rental equipment cost. To be eligible to receive the incentive payment, one must obtain two certified weight tickets. One ticket must show the fare (empty) weight of the truck or trailer and the other the gross weight (loaded) of the truck or trailer. Both fare and gross weights may be shown on the same ticket. No certified weight tickets, no incentive payment!

Participation in the do-it-yourself moving program is strictly on a voluntary basis, and in no way is it intended to eliminate the right to choose one authorized mode over another.

Contact the TMO on any question pertaining to the do-it-yourself moving program.

Financial council seeks counselors

Reese's Personal Financial Management Program Council is looking for volunteers to serve as financial counselors.

According to council chairman Maj. Roy Markle, the group wants to strengthen its counseling program by drawing qualified people into the PFMP.

"Volunteers need only meet two qualifications," explained Major Markle. "Prospective volunteers must possess skilled techniques in personal financial planning and management (through personal experience or formal education) and a desire to help others by sharing their knowledge."

Major Markle added that a refresher course in counseling techniques, financial services available locally and basic financial management techniques will be provided volunteers. The course will run approximately eight hours.

The base financial counseling program operates as follows:

- Major Markle, the base comptroller, serves as the contact for counseling services.

- Personnel seeking assistance are teamed with a volunteer counselor who provides the guidance, instruction and encouragement necessary to resolve the immediate problem and to help the client develop a long range personal financial plan. The counselor is not expected to assume responsibility for solving the client's financial problems. Instead, the counselor assists the client in searching for solutions.

"For those interested in helping others, serving as a financial counselor can be a rewarding experience," notes Major Markle.

To obtain more information, contact a member of the PFMP Council: Major Markle, Wing Comptroller, 3518; Lt. Col. Edward Prist, Director of Personnel, 3444; Major David F. Sullivan, Staff Judge Advocate, 3505; and CMSgt. A1 Chock, Senior Airman Advisor, 3416.

Members who desire financial counseling can enter the program by calling Major Markle.

saving by spending

Realizing that sometimes it's necessary to spend money to save money, the Air Force has set aside a $3 million-plus fund to do just that.

According to Jeanne Yarbrough, chief of the Management Engineering Team here, the fund supports the Fast Payback Capital Investment Program. FASCAP was created in fiscal year 1977 to increase productivity through investment in labor saving equipment while reducing operating and support costs.

More than $3.6 million has been committed to FASCAP for FY-79. Equipment purchased under the program must save the Air Force money within two years.

The basic requirements for using FASCAP funds to buy equipment are:

- The equipment must save money through operations and maintenance budget reductions or reduced manpower authorizations and the savings must at least equal the investment within 24 months.

- Items to be purchased must be immediately available for procurement.

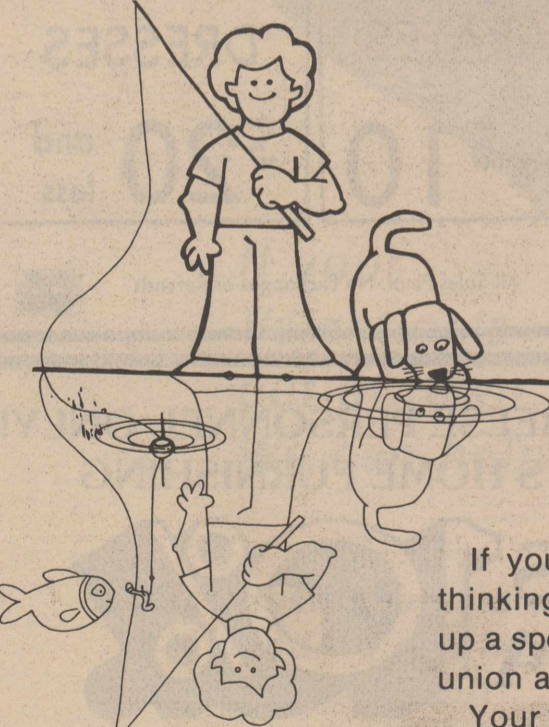

- Investment costs include transportation, site preparation, installation and maintenance as well as the purchase price.

- Savings must be traceable and subject to government accounting office review.

Mrs. Yarbrough added that FASCAP funds are not available for projects under $1,000 or more than $40,000; repair parts, or spares.

FASCAP is handled locally by the MET. For more information about the program call Mrs. Yarbrough at Ext. 3149 or 3555.

HELP YOUR CHILDREN SAVE!

If you've got children at home, start thinking about their financial future; set up a special share account at your credit union and let them watch it grow.

Your young one can salt away a sizable sum by saving the money that Grandpa sends for Christmas; income from babysitting or a paper route can be remarkably effective for building the share account balance.

By the time they're ready to leave home, they'll have an appreciable amount saved, and, more important, they'll have the savings habit. Start them saving today!

Project officers map out plans for AFAF campaign

The Air Force Assistance Fund campaign is only days away, so Reese personnel can expect visits soon by campaign key workers.

Maj. Jon Wingo, AFAF project officer here, met with his organizational project officers Wednesday morning to map out plans for this year's drive.

Reese will be shooting at a target of $7,663, but; local officials expect contributions to go well beyond that. Last year Reese shattered the base goal by collecting more than $10,800.

The command goal for 1979 is $231,245. Air Force wide, officials are eyeing a figure close to $2.8 million.

The AFAF drive officially begins on Feb. 21 and runs through March 30.

Contributions to the AFAF support three agencies whose functions are to assist Air Force members and their families — Air Force Aid Society, Air Force Enlisted Men's Widows Home and the Air Force Village.

The AFAF is the only fund drive organized solely to help needy Air Force members, their dependents, widows, widowers and retired couples.

Consumer advice

Shop with care

(Editor's note: The Lubbock Better Business Bureau's Mal Cleland has provided the Roundup with some tips on consumer shopping for grocery items.)

When it comes to buying food, a penny here and a penny there soon may amount to many dollars. The Better Business Bureau has some tips that may help keep more dollars in the pocket and stretch those that slip away so easily in the supermarket.

Psychologists, statisticians and market researchers have studied consumer buying habits to discover what products sell and why. This information is used by advertisers, packagers and retailers in various ways to influence a shopper to buy one product over another, or to buy a product that originally was not needed.

A store may be arranged so that it is necessary to walk around its perimeter to find necessary items, such as milk, bread or meat, thus exposing the consumer to the end-of-aisle displays. A store may have many rows of a product to keep it in the shopper's view and thus increase sales. Rational decisions become difficult because the shopper has too much information to consider and may become impatient and buy impulsively. To avoid making unwise buying decisions, plan ahead.

Time is money

To save money in food stores, time and care must be invested in the selection of foods to ensure nutritious meals at the best possible price. Make a shopping list. Look at the list and consider the food choices. Could other less expensive foods replace an item, such as eggs, beans, liver or peanut butter in place of a more expensive choice? Scan newspaper grocery ads for specials, particularly those on meats.

Clip coupons and use them, but only if the brand offered is really a good buy. It may be wise to build the weekly menus around the week's specials in the meat market, or to stock up on good bargains if the storage space is available. Avoid impulse-buying but be flexible enough to snap up a bargain.

The value of information

Read labels. Look for information on number and size of servings, nutrition, freshness and net weight or volume. Compare prices per unit by looking at the unit price on the shelf. This will tell whether a 12 ounce jar of applesauce at 69 cents is cheaper than a 16 ounce jar at 81 cents. Large containers often cost less but not always. Unit pricing will aid in determining this.

Make price comparisons by comparing cost per serving.

AFOSI agents, airman bust Korean theft ring

A Korean-American robbery ring responsible for the theft of more than $30,000 worth of construction materials has been uncovered by Air Force Office of Special Investigations agents in Osan, Korea.

AFOSI officials said some $18,000 worth of the material, aluminum matting used in runway construction, has been recovered. It had been secretly removed from Osan AB through a theft and diversion operation. At least 13 Korean nationals and two Osan airmen are believed to be involved, officials said.

The set-up was exposed when an airman noticed Korean nationals loading matting onto a truck.

Office of Special Investigations agents said the ring leader acted as site manager while leading the massive theft operation. "Thanks to help from the 51st Security Police Squadron and the Korean National Police," the agent said, "nine of the Koreans were caught and their airmen accomplices are now awaiting possible disciplinary action."

An OSI agent at Osan cited the bust as an example of the invaluable role Air Force members play in the fight against crime. "AFOSI and security police can't be in all places at once, so we have to rely on help from other parties."

"A similar operation could be going on right now and we might not even know it. Because of that it makes it crucial for people to be constantly alert and help us control such illegal activity."

Law enforcement investigators here issue a similar plea: "If you notice anything suspicious, call Crime Stop at 3400 or get in touch with the AFOSI at 3666."

Pool champ

Randy Love lines up a shot during the championship round of the base pool tournament here last week. Love successfully defended his 1978 title by working his way back through the loser's bracket to defeat the Hospital's Jim Johnson twice. Larry Lewis, FMS, and Ray Thomas, CE, finished third and fourth respectively. The 1958th Communication's Squadron worker and Johnson will represent Reese at the ATC championships this weekend at Laughlin. (U.S. Air Force photo)

And how does the IP of the Year nominee view himself? Just like you'd figure he would. He thinks he's just doing his job like everyone else.

"I'm really flattered that the wing picked me, but; there are about 257 other IPs here that are doing the same things," points out the Durant, Okla., native. "Maybe the two years I spent in the enlisted ranks before going to Oklahoma under the A.E.C.P. program gives me a little different outlook than some of the other guys, but; basically we are all just trying to do the best we can."

One thing is for sure, when that board at ATC is trying to pick the best IP in the command, all of Reese will be joining John and Cheri Hennigan's daughters Julianna and Jennifer as they root for their daddy to win again!

Tidbits

UNC registration set
The last registration date for the University of Northern Colorado course "Seminar in Administrative Theory" (UBUS 650) is Monday. Located in the Education Office, the UNC coordinator's hours are 9:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

CHAMPUS extends coverage
Retirees with service-connected injuries and illnesses will continue to be covered by the Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services through 1979.

The current CHAMPUS regulation excludes such care because it is provided by the Veterans Administration. However, pending congress-sional action on bills that could affect the exclusion, officials do not plan to implement it until Jan. 1, 1980.

Cake classes

It's still not too late to take advantage of the cake decorating classes at the Family Services Center.

Although the five-week course officially started yesterday, students can catch up by coming 15 minutes early to next Thursday's class. The course is being taught by Marie Carmean for $22.50 (all supplies included) on Thursday evenings from 7 to 9. For more information call Mrs. Carmean at 885-4619.

Cultural club meets

The Black American Cultural Club will hold a reorganizational meeting on Feb. 21 at 7 p.m. in Building 820. According to a club spokesman, the meeting is being held in the hopes of regenerating interest in cultural activities here. For more information call Sgt. Willie Rogers at Ext. 3701.

Boot, shoe repair

Military personnel at Reese can get their shoes and boots repaired at a discount, thanks to actions taken by the Base Advisory Council. Acting on a suggestion brought up at a BAC meeting, representatives were able to arrange for military people to get a 15 per cent discount on repairs at The City Boot and Shoe Repair Shop located in the South Plains Mall.

Commissary closes

The Commissary will be closed Feb. 17 in observance of Washington's birthday. The store will reopen for business on Feb. 20.

Help wanted

The Disaster Preparedness Office has a May opening for an E-4 or E-5 in the 242X0 career field. Requirements include an AQE score of 70 in the general category, normal color vision, capability to speak clearly and a minimum physical profile of 222221. For more information call Ext. 3702.

Military travel guide

Planning a trip? Military families can save money by using military facilities. The Military Travel Guide, which includes information on all major installations and more than 15,000 civilian motels and hotels offering military discounts, is available for $1.95.

In its 12th edition, the guide may be purchased by sending $1.95 (third class) and $2.95 (first class) to: MTG, P.O. Box 9654, Washington D.C., 20016.

Golf course memberships

Recreation officials on base are reminding local duffers that golf weather isn't that far away. Year-long memberships are available now for $85 per authorized sponsor, $25 for the first dependent and $15 for each additional dependent. No more than $150 will be charged any one family. For more information contact Dick Davis at Ext. 3819.

Last GI leaves Craig

The last military man at Craig AFB, Ala., has packed his bags and moved on. CMSgt. George T. Stocks, retired Dec. 29 making the closure of Craig complete.

Recruits get base of choice

A new base of choice enlistment option is available to young men and women interested in joining the Air Force in one of 20 specialties. Some 1,000 guaranteed assignments in more than 30 states are on the recruiting Service February listing. If you know people who might be interested, have them fill out an Air Force recruiter referral card available through unit orderly rooms.

Did you know?

Thirty-four percent of all residential fires start in the living room, den or family room during the waking hours, but kills most of the occupants at night during the sleeping hours. And, did you know, toxic gases produced by these fires are a primary cause of death. If you need more information on protection contact the Technical Services Section of the Base Fire Department at Ext. 3686.

Senior NCO testing

Testing for the Air Force Supervisory Examination has been changed from September beginning with the fiscal year 1981 test cycle.

OWC coffee

The Officers Wives Club will hold a special coffee Thursday, honoring Pat Bishop and women from several civic organizations in Lubbock.

The coffee is slated to begin at 9:30 a.m. in the Officers Open Mess.

Academy opening

If you are a 70270B in grades E-6 or E-7 with at least 30 months on station, you may be eligible for a special duty assignment at the Air Force Academy.

For more information contact SSgt. Walt Sidler at the Customer Service Center, extension 3276.

AF officials announce training camp schedule

The Air Force is looking for athletes to fill berths in a variety of sports activities this year.

Men's and women's basketball, wrestling and boxing are the first sports listed on the just-released 1979 schedule. Training camps for each sport are scheduled prior to the interservice competition date.

Nominations for these events must be completed at base level as far in advance of the training camps as possible to be processed by the Air Force Manpower and Personnel Center. Men's and women's basketball has already begun, though officials said some very well qualified applicants might still be considered.

New training camps offered in this year's sports schedule are golf, tennis and bowling.

Other events in this year's schedule include shooting, men's women's volleyball, track and field, and men's and women's softball.

A survey is being conducted for the selection of training camp sites with results to be announced shortly.

Some of the events require interested individuals to meet set standards, while other events will be filled through base and major command competition.

Those interested in competing should contact a member of the Reese gym staff for complete application procedures and requirements.

Athletes planning to apply for any of the training camps should begin individualized training well in advance of the start date, sports officials say. The duration of the training camps is not enough for an athlete to reach maximum fitness.

Air Force assistance to members who excel in sports is not limited to those events limited. Help is also available in most of the Olympic sports.

Murphy's shot at buzzer lifts Sturon-1 into playoffs

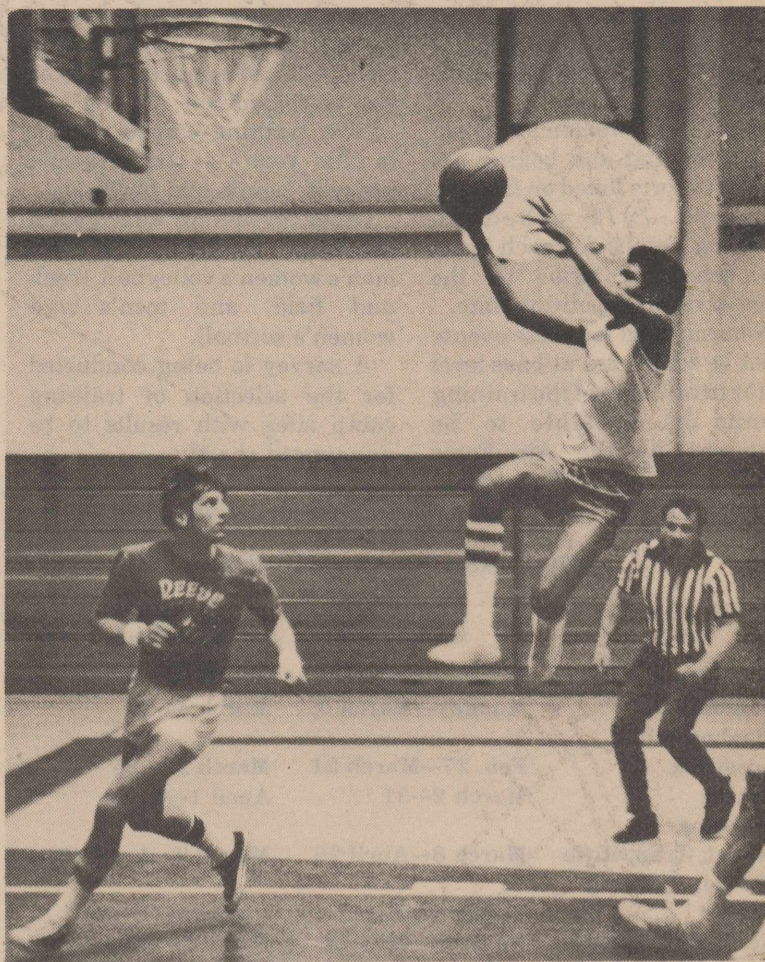

Byran Murphy's shot at the buzzer capped a 12-point rally by Student Squadron — 1 Tuesday night, propelling the intramural cagers over the Youth Center and into the league playoffs.

The winning bucket gave Sturon-1 its only-lead in the game, 40-38. Murphy led all scorers with 12 points.

It was the second win of the night for Sturon-1, earlier they knocked off squadron rival Sturon-2, 48-45. The three teams squared off Tuesday night to determine which of the squads (all tied at the end of regular season play with 6-6 records) would capture the final spot in the intramural playoffs.

Sturon-1 joins the unbeaten 54th FTS, second ranked Air Base Group, Resource Management, Organizational Maintenance and the Hospital as the six teams in post-season play.

The tournament was scheduled to begin Wednesday night with the top two teams, the 54th and Group, getting the night off. The finals are scheduled for late next week.

'Ecology' tourney set

The Reese golf club will launch the 1979 season with an "Ecology" tournament Feb. 17.

According to base officials, the special tournament will begin at 8:30 a.m. with two hours of sprucing up the golf course. After the clean-up is complete, participants will form teams for a round "four-man scramble" golf.

Anyone helping with the clean-up will play in the tournament for free. A no-cost spread of good things to eat and drink will be provided workers after the tournament.

For more information on the ecology scramble tournament contact the goft course staff at extension 3819.

Fast-pitch softball

Any active duty military softball players interested in playing in the varsity fast-pitch team should contact a member of the gym staff at Ext. 3207. Team tryouts will be held at the gym tomorrow at 11 a.m.

Women's sports

The basketball and volleyball court in the base gym has been reserved for women only on Monday nights from 6 to 9 and from 10 a.m. until noon on Saturdays.

Women are needed to play varsity volleyball. Anyone interested should call Cloretta Yates at Ext. 3339.

Coaches and umpires are needed for the women's softball league on base. Contact the gym staff at Ext. 3207 if interested.

And the gym is trying to get a woman assigned to the staff. Anyone interested in a 89-day temporary duty assignment should contact a member of the staff at Ext. 3875.
