AFAF drive starts Wednesday

The Air Force Assistance Fund, the only campaign conducted solely for and by Air Force people, will kick off here Wednesday morning. Although the campaign won't

"officially" get underway here until Wednesday, local officials have been preparing for the Campaign meeting

Maj. Jon Wingo, center, Reese project officer for the Air Force Assistance Fund campaign, discusses plans for next week's drive opening with project officers representing the major organizations on base. The drive officially gets underway here on Wednesday.

Social Actions, Information earn 'best in ATC' awards

Proof that 1978 was a "very" good year for the 64th Flying Training Wing continues to come in as two wing staff agencies have been added to the roll of base units honored by Air Training Command.

Social Actions and the Information Office have been elected as best in ATC at the wing level for 1978. Earlier this year the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron was named as the best CE unit in the command.

Both Maj. Vincent P. Micucci, Social Actions chief, and Capt. Robert A. Brus, Information chief, agree on what made their perspective units stand out in 78.

"Strong support of our programs by base people and a folks gave the information staff top notch support all year," echoed Captain Brus.

Winning the best in command honors was especially gratifying for the two wing staff members. Both programs had fallen on hard times before Major Micucci stepped in at Social Actions and Captain Brus took over the helm of the Information Office.

In the recent ATC Inspector General visit, the two units were among the most highly praised on base.

Involvement kev

Stressing involvement, on base and in the local community, the Social Actions staff produced one of the most active programs in ATC last year. Social Actions personnel beefed up existing programs on of the house, Captain Brus base, added new ones such as the Personal Assistance Center and extended their efforts into several community programs. Major Micucci became an active member of many South Plains committee's and councils.

Members of the staff working in Social Actions include Major Micucci, TSgt. Clyde Mc-Donald, TSgt. Doug Stevens, SSgt. Bill Goodrich, Sgt. Catie Craw and Lyn King. First Lt. John Ebron and SSgt. Gilbert Gallow were members of the Social Actions team in '78, but, have left for new assignments. SSgt. Dave Davis also worked in the unit, but, cross-trained late last year. He was replaced in January by SSgt. Tommy Chmitlin.

drive for several weeks. Last week, Maj. Jon Wingo, AFAF project officer, met with his unit project officers to formulate plans for this year's campaign.

AFAF workers will be shooting for at least $7,663 before the campaign's conclusion on March 30. Last year Reese people donated more than $10,800 to the fund. In 1978, Reese helped stake the Air Training Command to a record setting $329,262 total. This year the command goal is $231,245. Air Force wide, AFAF officials hope to top the $2.8 million figure.

Working with Major Wingo as unit project officers are: Capt. Tim Finnegan, (3409) wing staff; Capt. David Fintel. Hospital Squadron (3186); Capt. Dennis Eflien, Operations (3851); 1st Lt. Karen Hagauer, Resource Management (3617); 2nd Lt. William Schurr III, Maintenance (3572); Capt. Kelly Cartron, 1958th Communications Squadron (3179) and 1st Lt. Cloretta Yates, Air Base Group (3420).

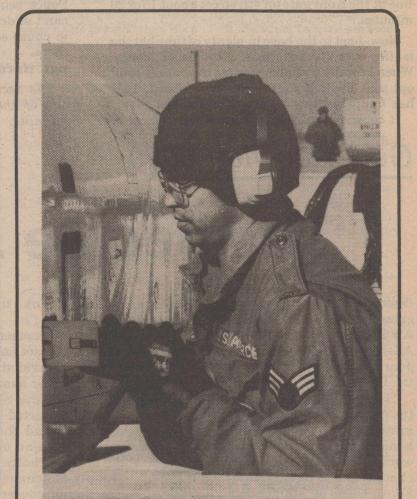

Anyone wishing to contribute to the drive but that doesn't hear from a key worker within the first few days of the campaign should contact the project officer in his or her organization.

Contributions to the AFAF support three agencies whose AFAF means we care!

I encourage support for the Air Force Assistance Fund campaign!

It is the Air Force's only fund raising campaign conducted solely for the benefit of its members and their dependents. This program is truly one of our most viable and positive means of "taking care of our own."

Just some of the ways the AFAF can be used to help smooth "troubled water" are:

• Air Force Aid Society loans or grants for emergencies and for dependents education.

• Air Force Enlisted Men's Widows Home at Fort Walton Beach, Fla., which has a primary purpose of caring for needy widows but also accepts retired enlisted persons and their spouse age 62 or older.

• Air Force Village in San Antonio, a home for widows of Air Force Officers, retired officers and their spouses. A key feature in the benefits is that no qualified applicant shall ever be refused admission because of an inability to pay.

You might ask, "Why should I contribute to one of the retirement villages — I will never live there." Few of us know what our personal situation will be 20 or 30 years from now. A realistic approach is to consider the retirement homes as insurance. They will be there should you ever need them. Further, should you die unexpectedly your widow and children may stay at the respective village for up to one year until your widow can make appropriate plans for the future.

Also, the Air Force Aid Society has liberalized its policies for emergency assistance loans and grants; changes include an increase in loan limit and a new loan category for automobile repairs and insurance.

Our wing goal this year is $7,663. We can contribute through payroll deductions, which is both painless and effective. At the same time, the benefits accruing from the AFAF may be those that ultimately provide security for you, your family, or for the many others in the Air Force.

Please, give generously when your key worker calls on you.

Gate closed

The reason I am calling is because of the traffic this morning (Jan. 31).

I was about 10 minutes late in getting to work, and the reason why is because I had to wait in line at the front gate on 4th street about 15 or 20 minutes.

Now, I get to the base in plenty of time but the traffic was stacked back a couple of blocks. When I finally was able to get to the base I found out that the golf course gate was closed. This has happened two or three times in the past.

It causes a real traffic hazard out in front of the base, simply because the people are anxious to get on the base and they cut through the Credit Union parking lot on 4th street and try to push each other out of the way. It is going to wind up with a bad wreck out there.

Apparently is was just due to the Security Police being late in opening up the gate and I can't understand how this happens. It is going to cause somebody to have a bad pile up out there.

Sgt. Harold Hughes

The Security Police received an alarm from one of the base fund facilities at 7:42 that morning. Established security procedures require that the gates to the base be closed until it is known whether the alarm is simply an equipment malfunction or an actual robbery. After responding to the alarm, the preliminary investigation by the Security Police showed there was no robbery and the gates were reopened for normal traffic at 7:56 a.m.

The Security Police fully recognize the effect that these emergency responses have upon traffic and they make every effort to reopen the gates as soon as possible. Please indulge the security procedures on base because they are worth your patience.

General Allen says

'The people . . . are the Air Force'

(Editor's Note: The following is excerpted from an interview with Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Lew Allen Jr. in the Armed Forces Journal. The interview appears in the February 1979 issue.)

"The people in the Air Force are the Air Force: their character, their integrity and the words of duty, honor, country — are really the words and values that don't change." Gen. Lew Allen Jr., Air Force chief of staff, said when asked what one thing he would like every airman and officer to remember. and I'm not sure they're the dominant ones.

"One of the phenomena that we face now, and did not face for some years, is the availability and anticipated greater availability of airline jobs for pilots. Some of our people are attracted by such considerations, and the surge in hiring gives them an opportunity to make another choice. of theoretical arguments about whether it was a good system or a bad system, but they're a little academic—the fact is that for whatever reasons, the system was not liked by the people it was applied to.

"Therefore, I decided to stop the controlled OER, and we'll work for a better approach in the future. But at least for the moment, we removed a source of annoyance. Asked what one thing he would like to accomplish as chief of staff, General Allen said, "My views have probably changed a little. I would have originally associated that question with some particular force characteristic of the Air Force—an MX, or a strategic system, for example."

His comment came during an interview with writers of the Armed Forces Journal.

Commenting on the reasons often given by pilots leaving the service, such as "Mickey Mouse" treatment and erosion of benefits, General Allen said, "Those, of course, are not the only reasons, Deeply concerned

"I am deeply concerned about the fact that we do lose a large number of pilots....We...have to work very hard to minimize those losses and to make the career as attractive as we possibly can."

Describing the initiatives he hopes to implement, General Allen said, "One is a revised OER system. The controlled OER was a very troublesome thing—a great concern in the middle captain and major age group.... There are a lot Mickey Mouse aspect . . .

"Another aspect—the 'Mickey Mouse' kind of thing—deals not just with pilots, but with people throughout the Air Force. Does one have an excessive amount of regulation, additional duties, burdensome and unnecessary training requirements, and other demands which are too time consuming for their contribution to the primary mission?" No doubt . . .

"There is just no doubt in my mind that the thing I would like to do—it'll be hard for anyone else to measure, so I will only have to know it myself when I leave, in my own assessment—is to contribute to continuing the character of the Air Force as an institution during the time I'm in it, not to destroy it, and to have established more firmly the characteristics that will preserve it into the future and improve it."

ATC commander stresses helping each other out

The first 21 Air Force Reservists accepted for return to active duty under the reactivated Voluntary Reserve Return Program (700 have applied so far) have given many reasons for their desire to return.

But according to an article in a recent issue of the Air Force News Service, one particular one has surfaced over and over again. It has to do with "family." Said one returnee, "My wife and I were filled with a sense of 'we're coming home again." Another: "I missed the closeness of being in the military family." Yet another: "The decision to come back was (based on) this feeling of belonging."

I mention this because it points up graphically one of the most attractive aspects of Air Force life, but one which — accustomed as we are to living with it day by day - we sometimes forget.

However, we are reminded of it each year when we are given the opportunity to contribute to the Air Force Assistance Fund to prove again that "the Air Force takes care of its own."

This year's drive will be conducted from Wednesday through March 30. Contributions, which are tax deductible and can be spread over the year through the payroll deduction plan, will provide financial support to the Air Force Aid Society, the Air Force Enlisted Men's Widows and Dependents Home, and the Air

When you are asked to give to the Air Force Assistance Fund, remember: It is our family Fund; the organizations it supports are our organizations. I urge you to give generously.

Widow's home offers security

Teresa Village, Fort Walton Beach, Fla., is the location of the Enlisted Widows Home. This is a non-profit charitable corporation operated exclusively for the benefit of enlisted Air Force members and their dependents.

The primary purpose of the home is to care for needy widows and widowers.

The young enlisted man's wife, whose husband dies suddenly is also eligible for residency, along with her dependent children, while they adjust to life without husband and father.

Another objective of the home is to provide a residence for widows and widowers, age 55 or older, and a limited number of retired enlisted members, age 62 or older, and their spouses, at a price they can afford.

Residents of Teresa Village are provided an apartment which includes free maintenance and an array of recreational and social features designed to provide a relaxing way of life.

Contributions to the Enlisted

Widows Home are used to assist those whose earnings are insufficient for them to pay rent and continue to meet their personal needs and obligations.

A small staff headed by a retired Air Force chief master sergeant carries out the administrative and support functions of the organization as directed by the Board of Directors. Managed for and by enlisted personnel, Teresa Village's staff is supplemented by local professionals, many of whom serve without payment or only token payment.

Counseling program ends successful run

by Maj. Vincent P. Micucci PAC Director

An extremely successful 14month experiment in "people helping people" came to a conclusion this month at Reese.

The Personal Assistance Center established back in December, 1977 has terminated operation. Authorized by Col. Charles Bishop, 64th Flying Training Wing Commander, to provide a counseling resource for assigned personnel, the PAC was staffed with volunteer counselors who donated their time and energy to assist others experiencing personal problems.

During the 14 months of operation, 72 cases involving 96 i ndividuals were worked by PAC counselors. The vast majority (86 per cent) of PAC clients completing an evaluation of the program expressed gratitude for a very positive and helpful counseling experience.

With the advent of a mental health facility in the Reese Hospital, counseling assistance will be available there in the near future. A report on the PAC experience has been submitted through Air Force channels recommending this option for bases without a mental health resource.

Take a close look at the Air Force's direct payroll deposit program. See your base accounting and finance office for details.

Wing agencies garner awards

(Continued on page 5) brought sound management techniques into the program. Through improved organization, the office was able to make impressive strides in areas such as community relations and public information while providing the base with its most comprehensive internal information program in several years.

Backed by BillTynan, 1st Lt. Stephen Headley, SSgt. Dave Galloway, SSgt. R.D. Monson, Dorothy Nixon and SrA Gary Dybvig (now a second lieutenant assigned at Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio), Captain Brus rebuilt the Information program here. It was the third wing level award for the Iowa native. Captain Brus had guided his shop to' best in command honors twice at Randolph AFB, Texas in earlier years.

But neither Major Micucci or Captain Brus was willing to say that their units had reached their peak.

"With the continued support of the base Reese can have an even better Information program in '79," predicts Captain Brus. "Helping people with their problems is what its all about in Social Actions," says Major Micucci. "And with the kind of help we've been getting from the base we will be able to do even more for the base and community this year."

Discuss awards Capt. Robert Brus, chief of Information; Maj. Vince Micucci, chief of Social Actions; and Col Charles Bishop, commander of the 64th FTW, talk about the awards recently given to two wing staff agencies. Both Social Actions and the Information Office have been tabbed as "best" in ATC for 1978.

Efficiency scoreboard seeks better way to get job done

by SrA A. R. Buksha

If you have a better, more economical way of getting the job done, submit your idea to the ATC Efficiency Scorecard Program.

The Air Force, like everything else, has fallen victim to inflation. The past has proven that with manpower reductions and decreasing budgets, we can "do more with less".

The Scorecard Program differs from every other efficiency attempt in that the Air Force is looking for primarily one thing: reducing costs without reducing quality. These ideas come from those who are actually on the job.

The results of any accepted Scorecard Action is that of savings: Hard Savings or Soft Savings.

Hard Savings are a savings of actual operations and maintenance dollars allocated to the base (these are controllable funds). These savings are used to satisfy local spending requirements not previously programmed in your budget.

Respecting retirees

Reese and Air Training Command officials remind command personnel that retirees are due the same respect and courtesy of that of active duty members.

Several reports of discourtesy have reached ATC headquarters from command units. The Retiree Involvement Program (outlined in AFR 211-13) clearly relates Air Force policy toward the treatment of retirees.

In other words, treat everyone the same. People who have served America in the past deserve the same respect as you want as an active duty member wuay.

Traffic signs change

A spokesman for the Traffic Coordinating Committee said Monday that three traffic sign changes will be made here next month.

The stop sign at the intersection of "4th" and "B" Streets will be removed as will the yield sign directing southbound traffic through the intersection of War Highway and Mitchell Boulevard. At the intersection of "K" and "8th" Streets, the stop sign will be replaced by a yield sign.

These changes will probably with provably

be made in mid-March.

SURE-PAY lacking here

The military side of the house at Reese ranks dead last among Air Training Command bases in participation in the SURE-PAY program. Approximately 75 per cent of military here are members of the program. The civilian personnel here rank fourth on the command ladder with a 77.5 membership rate.

SURE-PAY provides members with the security of having checks sent directly to financial institutions, saving people the hassles of having to deal with paychecks.

Air Training Command and Reese officials have voiced concern over the increase in commercial telephone toll costs during the past few months. In order to remain within budget limitations for FY-1979 increased emphasis must be put

Big Brothers, Big Sisters

Being a friend to a child that needs one is the objective of more than 150 Big Brothers and Big Sisters in the Lubbock area.

Sunday through Feb. 24 has been proclaimed Big Brother/ Big Sister Week in Lubbock by Mayor Dirk West.

Jim Douglass, Executive Director of the Lubbock agency, says Big Brothers and Big Sisters involves matching adult volunteers - on a one to one basis — with single parent children, ranging in age from 6-16. This matching process is based on mutual interests and compatibility so that both parties will get the most out of the relationship.

Anyone interested in finding out more about the program should telephone the local agency office at 763-5618.

ceremonies this morning, there will be a special luncheon at the Officers' Club honoring the fledgling Air Force pilots. A dinner-dance is scheduled to start at 6:30 tonight in the Officers' Club. Several awards from local civic groups will be added to those presented graduates at ceremonies earlier today.

Five captains, one first lieutenant and 28 second lieutenants make up the graduating class. Class commanders for 78-03 have been Capt. Lowell C. Gossell (T-38) and Capt. James Panter (T-37). Section leaders for the students were Capt. James W. Donley (A-Flight) and Capt. Luther W. Hugh (E-Flight).

Three of the grads earned their Air Force commissions through the Air Force Academy, 25 were commissioned through the Reserve Officer Training Corps, three are Officer Training School graduates while the remainder are members of the Air National Guard or Air Force Reserves.

People over 35 years old must walk for fitness test

Reese military personnel 35years-old and older now have to "walk" through their physical fitness test, according to recent change made by Air Force officials.

Now, Air Force Physical Fitness Program will increase emphasis on regular conditioning and use a three-mile walk as the annual test for members 35 years of age and over.

The changes follow study group findings that regular exercise and conditioning develop and maintain the stamina needed to deal with stresses of military life.

Officials said the positive aspects of the program — look good, feel good — must be emphasized and each member be motivated to participate voluntarily.

The change to a three-mile walk as the only test for persons 35 and over is based on evidence they are more prone to heart problems. This is especially true for those who may not have fully prepared themselves for the test. Persons under the age of 35 will continue to have the option of testing by the 1½-mile run, three-mile walk or timed running in place.

The annual physical fitness test is designed to insure that

Air Force members meet and maintain minimum standards. Preconditioning, in the form of a steady, progressive, personalized exercise program is the best way to prepare for the annual test, officials said.

Instructions on how to begin and maintain a regular exercise program in a variety of sporting activities are contained in Air Force Pamphlets 50-56 (male) and 35-57, Volume 1 (female). Officials cautioned that a sharp increase in physical activity without prior conditioning is unwise and possibly harmful. The best method of prevention, they said, is progressive training and gradual adjustment to an increased level of physical activity. Officials said that the three-mile walk in the prescribed time (43½ minutes for a 35-year old male) is a strenuous test of physical stamina and requires preconditioning.

Officials said it is the individual's responsibility to attain the needed level of physical conditioning in preparation for the annual test. Commanders may authorize participation in physical fitness conditioning during duty hours when mission requirements permit. Program officials explained, however, that the Air Force does not have the luxury of authorizing full, on-duty time for a mandatory, organized conditioning program.

When administering the yearly test, program managers will identify those who have not fully conditioned themselves to physical activity, those who do not feel prepared to test, or those who have a known or suspected cardiac condition. The first two categories should be entered into a training program, while those with a known or suspected heart condition should be referred to a medical facility.

Officials recruit women for missile assignment

The Air Force is continuing its program to assign women to Titan II missile launch duty positions at McConnell AFB, Kan., Davis-Monthan AFB, Ariz., and Little Rock AFB, Ark.

The program is open to retrainees. Officer and enlisted women may apply.

Women captains and majors are needed. Officers seeking crew duty should have at least three years on station before entering technical training. Criteria for selection of officers is contained in AFR 36-1 and AFM 50-5.

Applicants must complete an AF form 90 in accordance with AFR 36-23, and process through normal personnel channels.

Lubbock

Officer applicants may also mail a copy of the form to Headquarters Air Force Manpower and Personnel Center (AFMPC/MPCROS7A), Randolph AFB, Texas 78148.

Criteria for selection of enlisted women is contained in AFR 39-1 and AFM 50-5. Specialties 316XOF and 541XOE are used on Titan launch crews. Training quotas will be programmed throughout 1979.

Questions that cannot be answered at the Reese personnel office should be referred to Palace Missile, autovon 487-5491/6355 for officers, or CMSgt. Hunter, autovon 487-3047/4224 for enlisted women.

Hollis helps Lackland

Willie Hollis, Reese's superstar guard, helped the Lackland Warhawks nail down the Air Training Command basketball championship.

Hollis, who enjoyed his best season as a milktary cager averaging more than 27 points per game, was picked up by the Warhawks after the regionals at Laughlin AFB, Texas Jan. 30 and 31. Hollis scored 118 points in the four Rattler games at the regionals, including 43 points against defending ATC champ Randolph.

Famed for his long range accuracy, the star guard averaged about 25 minutes of playing time for the Warhawks in the command meet. He scored 16 points as a reserve in the 112-105 title win over Lowry AFB, Colo., and came off the bench to score a dozen in the semi-final 96-80 victory over the Lobos.

Although nominated for a post on the all Air Force squad, Hollis will not attend the tryouts for the team because of his upcoming assignment to Korea.

Disc jockeys meet Stuffers; Proceeds go to AFAF drive

The Reese Air Force Assistance Fund drive gets opening day help Wednesday at 7 p.m. as the Junior Officers' Committee sponsors a benefit basketball game in the base gym between the "Pink Raiders" of KSEL AM/FM radio and the Reese "Senior Stuffers."

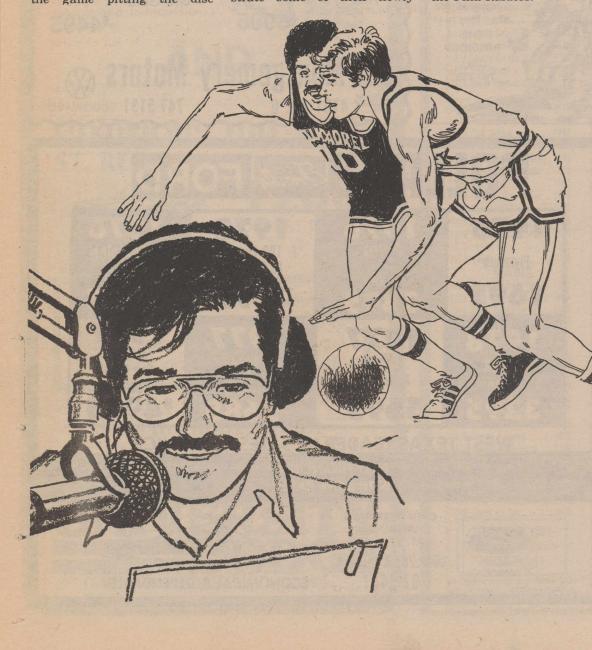

All Reese personnel and families are invited to attend the game pitting the disc jockeys against a Reese team comprised of senior officers and enlisted personnel from many organizations on base, and led by "Coach Charlie Bishop."

Pre-game festivities will feature a precision marching exhibition by Sabre Flight from Texas Tech's Air Force ROTC. During half-time, the Reese Youth Judo Club, led by MSgt. Arnold Matthews will demonstrate some of their newly learned techniques. Also, the Angel Flight from Texas Tech will perform an intricate marching drill.

All proceeds from the game will be donated to the AFAF. Donations will be accepted at the door.

The gym will open at 6:30 p.m., so come early for a good seat . . . support the "Senior Stuffers" as they "shoot down" the Pink Raiders.

Four teams stay alive in IM tourney action

The battle for the Intramural basketball crown was down to just four teams heading into this week's play-off action, with only one surprise team in the final four.

Undefeated and still getting the nod by local fans as the team to beat, the 54th FTS heads the championship field. Air Base Group, ranked second coming into to playoffs, suffered a 51-50 second round loss to Resource Management, but advanced to the final four by ousting Organizational Maintenance from the double elimination tourney, 56-47.

RM beat the Medics, 43-41, in an opening round game. The 54th struggled against the surprising 64th Student Squadron, but still managed to pull out a 31-24 win.

Sturon came back to eliminate the Medics, 45-26 to stay with Group, RM and the 54th in the title chase. The Sturon cagers barely made it in to the playoffs at all, having to beat the Youth Center and squadron rival Sturon-2 in a special mini-tourney to qualify for the sixth and last slot in the post-season tournament.

Magic touch

Alex McClanahan glides across the baseline for a short jumper during Resource Management's win over Air Base Group last week. The RM player scored 18 points and ignited the crowd with some "magic" moves in the 51-50 upset.

Golf tourney

The Reese golf club will launch the 1979 season with an "Ecology" tournament tomorrow.

According to base officials, the special tournament will begin at 8:30 a.m. with two hours of sprucing up the golf course. After the clean-up is complete, participants will form teams for a round "four-man scramble" golf.

For more information on the ecology scramble tournament contact the golf course staff at extension 3819.

Women's sports

The basketball and volleyball court in the base gym has been reserved for women only on Monday nights from 6 to 9 and from 10 a.m. until noon on Saturdays.

Women are needed to play varsity volleyball. Anyone interested should call Cloretta Yates at Ext. 3339.

Coaches and umpires are needed for the women's softball league on base. Contact the gym staff at Ext. 3207 if interested.

Sorry, all courts are taken!

How many times have you heard that after calling for a racquetball or handball court reservation at the base gym?

Well the reason you've probably heard it a lot is because the gym has only 20 slots available each day and on an average day, 80 to 90 people call in requesting a court.

The Morale, Welfare and Recreation Division is looking into the problem. One of the possible solutions would be to build several new courts. But that takes money . . . lots of it.

In order to defray the cost of new courts, base officials are kicking around the idea of charging an hourly rental for the courts. Anyone who would be willing to participate in a rental program should complete the form below and drop it off at the base gym.

Would you be willing to pay a rental fee for using the base courts? yes . . . no . . .

Sorry—no courts

If so, how much would you be willing to pay? $2...$3 ...$4...

Would you be interested in a semi-annual membership program? yes ... no ...
