Reese hosts special orientation

A special orientation about children and what goes into their "growing up" will be held at the Officers' Club April 25.

"Growing up" is the general topic for the human service conclave, a forum on the child. According to Planning Council director Kathryn Powell, the institute is an annual effort to bring together the social welfare and human resource personnel of the community for a learning experience on services, programs and issues current in the field.

This year's presentation concerns the child, the child's environments and the experience of growing up. It runs from 8 a.m. until 2 p.m. Major panel discussion will include "The Child and Self," "The Child and Parents," and "The Child and Society."

Registration for the annual institute is $4.50 and includes lunch. Sign-ups may be made at the United Way office, 2201 19th Street or by telephone at 747-2711. Reservations should be made before April 20.

Featured speaker for the 1979 Community Planning Council and Interagency Action Council sponsored agency orientation institute will be Jeannette Watson, director of the Early Childhood Development Division of the Texas Department of Community Affairs.

Prior to her current position, Jeannette Watson was the executive director of the Texas Council of Early Childhood Education. She is the author of "Handicapped Children are People, Too," "Pierre the Texas Pelican-Parents Say Thanks," "How Wonderfully God Made Me," and the book that will be the topic of her talk, "Still the Darker Side of Childhood," a thesis on prevention of social problems through intervention in early development.

The Institute is also the site for the distribution of the 1979 edition of the Community Planning Council's Health, Welfare and Recreation Resource Directory.

If 100 riders sign

CITIBUS service starts May 1

Only one thing stands between the success or failure of Reese's attempt to set up express bus service between the base and Lubbock — 100 paid in advance riders.

According to Capt. Gary R. Taylor, chairman of the volunteer working group that set up the program with CITIBUS, express service could become a reality here by May 1.

Here's the package being offered:

- Two 42 passenger buses

(maximum capacity) will circle Lubbock. One bus will run down fourth street and the other will head up Avenue Q to 50th Street, across town to the South Plains Mall and then wind its way to 19th Street and Reese. Each bus will make five major stops along the way.

• Both buses will reach the base by 7:50 a.m., dropping passengers off at the base Theater.

• Monthly passes for the express route, which are good on all regular CITIBUS routes as well, cost $20 (less than $1 per day).

"The entire operation depends on getting 100 reservations by April 25," pointed out Captain Taylor. "If we don't have at least $2,000 dollars by then the busses will not roll."

Captain Taylor also noted that there are several reasons why base personnel should look into the express service. In addition to the obvious savings over driving to work (gasoline prices keep rising), riding the bus will ease transportation problems for one-car families and will help promote the development of the transit system in and around Lubbock.

"It's a good way to show support for the President's fight to conserve energy too," added the captain.

Tickets for the express service are available at the Mathis Recreation Centers. Riders will be asked to designate which route they intend to ride. If the $2,000 needed to start the service isn't raised by April 25, all money will be refunded to pass holders.

Because the Recreation Center has no way of covering bad checks, only cash or money orders will be accepted for ticket sales.

Williams snares NCOLS awards

SSgt. James B. Williams, 64th Supply Squadron, captured top honors during last week's graduation ceremonies for NCO Leadership School Class 79-F.

Sergeant Williams received both the Honor Graduate Award and the Speech Award at the April 5 ceremony in the NCO Club.

A 26-year-old native of Moberly, Mo., Sergeant Williams is the assistant to the NCOIC of Supply's demand processing branch.

Other award winners are: SSgt. Brian D. Nickerson, Academic Award (Organizational Maintenance); SSgt. Norma B. Heath, Drill Award (Air Base Group); and Sgt. Randall L. Zoll, Commandant's Award (Hospital).

Other graduates of Class 79-F are: SSgt. Felix O. Herrington, Hospital; Ssgt. Kenneth J. Hyman, Sgt. Earl D. Davis, and Sgt. Larry A. Johnson, 1958th

Communication's Squadron; SSgt. Mark A. Lowe and Sgt. George E. Elder, OMS; SSgt. Walter J. Sparrow, Student Squadron; Sgt. Charles Atwell, Field Maintenance Squadron and Sgt. Joyce L. Downing, Air Base Group.

Guest speaker for the graduation was SMSgt. Gary C. Sutton, chief of Hospital Administrative Services.

Because of a renewed emphasis on selecting "quality" people to attend Phase III of Reese's professional military education program, only one more class will be held in Fiscal Year-79. Class 79-6 will begin study on July 9. In FY-80, only four NCO Leadership School classes will be scheduled. Base officials urge commanders select their "best" people to attend these classes.

For more information about the Phase III program changes contact the PME Center staff at Ext. 3635 or 3147.

(Editors note: All information provided to the CARE Line will be held in confidence. Callers are urged to give their name and duty number so that a personal reply may be made, however, neither are mandatory. Callers are urged to use their chain of command or the office of primary responsibility to air complaints or comments if possible. If not, call the CARE Line at Ext. 3273.)

Long CARE Lines

Why are the questions and answers in the CARE Line column so long, hard to read, boring and full of gobbledegook? I have seen other base papers that publish short, punchy comments. How about trying that kind of format here?

Dear Short and Punchy:

You're my type of person. Starting today, CARE Lines printed in the Roundup will be kept short and sweet.

Loud music

I work on the third floor of Bldg 800 and my office happens to be directly under one of the loudspeakers for the base PA system.

For about a week and a half, military style music has been blaring over the system from noon until 12:30 p.m. each day.

My problem is that the music is so loud that I have trouble concentrating on my work. It is very annoying and quite frankly not the sweetest sound I have ever heard.

I assume that the reason for playing the music is to help maintain some of the "traditions" of the service. I salute the intention. However, the noise is about to drive me up a tree.

How about limiting the military music to special occasions such as graduation day, Armed Forces Day, etc. It's getting so I dread the approach of the noon-hour.

Dear Up a Tree:

I appreciate your comments about the noon music being a little loud for those of you on the third floor of Bldg 800. In fact, I wondered about that very thing myself before we decided to go ahead with the idea.

As you know we have a new PA system on top of our building and we were not sure exactly where to set the volume level. Obviously prior to your call the volume was much too high, but I believe we now have it adjusted to where you and your fellow third floor residents will not get an "Excedrin" headache.

Oh, by the way, the music is not being played by the direction of the base commander. The decision to play the music at noon was made by Colonel Montgomery and myself because we believed the base personnel would enjoy it. From the feedback thus far I think we are right.

Bunnies, eggs are cute, but not heart of Easter

Roundup editorial

For Christians, Easter is the day of days. It's the day we celebrate the verification of our faith in Christ.

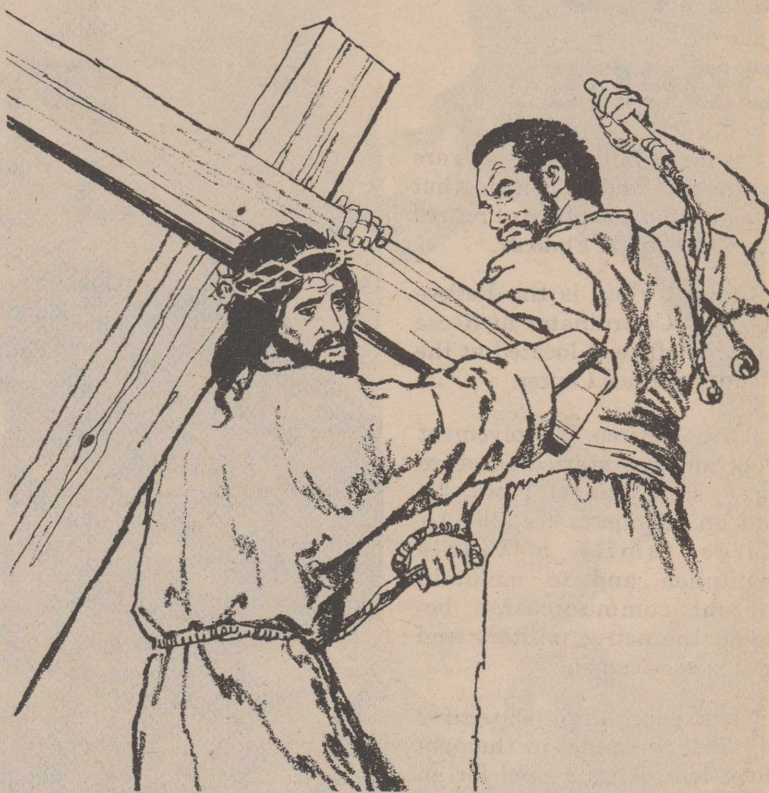

When Jesus returned from the dead on that first Easter, his life, ministry, and sacrificial death took on a special significance for all mankind. To his followers it proved what they had believed all along.

To us today, the celebration of that occurrence reminds us that Jesus was not just a carpenter's son with a gift for preaching. He is indeed the Son of God over whom not even death has any authority.

Bunnies and painted eggs are nice, but the resurrection of Christ must be the center of our Easter celebration if we are to capture its true meaning.

Until the coming of Christ, countless generations of human beings had been saying "no" to God. They had decided that their will for their lives was more important than his.

Sin and rebellion were the hallmarks of the human race. So steeped in rebellion was man, that when Jesus came and taught of God's will, most could not accept it. Man had wandered so far from God that he could not comprehend the simple message of loving obedience to a concerned and loving Father.

Throughout his ministry Christ served as a living example for this message of obedience, but nowhere more strikingly than in the Garden of Gethsemane just prior to his arrest and crucifixion. Even when faced with pain and death His prayer was still "Not my will, but Thine be done".

God's response was that Christ was raised from the dead; robbing evil of its most powerful weapon, death.

All that Jesus did and taught was confirmed by the resurrection. Until that moment, human faith was held in suspense. But, when he appeared to his disciples on that first Easter all doubt was dispelled.

You and I are Easter people because our faith has been verified. We are confident because he in whom our faith rests has been vindicated by God, his father and ours.

MAST needs you You need MAST

Are you and your spouse interested in getting to know other airmen at Reese, having social activities at low cost to look forward to and making friends and acquaintances who can help and advise you in a crisis?

Do you have children that require a babysitter whenever you want to go have some adult fun?

Do you enjoy visiting exciting places?

Then you need MAST, and we need you!

Married Airmen Sharing Together is a new group forming at Reese. The concept has been employed successfully at bases across the country. We have lots of exciting ideas for activities, and the best thing is, since we're forming our own organization, the sky's the limit. Get in on the ground floor, and help us make MAST an organization to look up to. We can make it as big as we like.

Our next meeting is April 20 at 7 p.m. in the Base Chapel. It will be a potluck supper, all the meat supplied, so bring a side-dish or dessert, and your own ideas.

For more information, call Kim Anderson at 793-1070 or David Anderson at Ext. 3501 and leave a message.

For Jews

Passover begins

On Wednesday night, Reese's Jewish personnel joined Jews throughout the world in celebrating the first night of Passover.

The festival runs for eight days and will end at sundown on Thursday.

The holiday is known as Passover, Pesach in Hebrew, because the Bible tells that God "passed over the houses of the children in Egypt" when He struck the blow which liberated the Hebrew people who were held captive.

Freedom is the great message of Passover summed up in God's words to Pharaoh: "Let my people go!" Though the exodus of Israel from Egypt took place over three thousand years ago, the 13th century BCE, no event in Jewish history is impressed more deeply on Jewish minds than the story retold each year during the Passover Seder.

As in the past years the Lubbock Jewish Community graciously offered home hospitality to Jewish personnel at Reese who did not have a Seder to attend. Several people from Reese joined local Jewish families to celebrate this festival of freedom.

Retiree affairs office opens

As far as military retirees are concerned, finding it out is what it's about at the office of retired Lt. Col. Carl T. Floto Jr.

Colonel Floto is the Retiree Activity Co-ordinator at Reese and his office is located at the Family Service Center.

"The Retiree Involvement Program was started 14 years ago," said Colonel Floto. "It was an attempt to keep the Air Force family a viable institution and to maintain mutual communication between the active military and retired servicemen."

"With more than 600 retired military personnel in the area there is a definite need for an organization that keeps them advised of all the services, facilities, and entitlements available to them at Reese. I would like my office to serve as a single point of contact for all ex-servicemen who need this type information."

For more facts Colonel Floto can be reached at the Family Services Center, Ext. 3305 or 3306.

Spring clean-up set

Roundup editorial

April 23-27 is spring clean-up week, a time to upgrade the overall appearance of the base, our working areas, and our living quarters.

It is the responsibility of each organizational commander to provide the driving force for this campaign and everybody should participate in some way.

Supervisors are expected to actively plan, promote, publicize, and support the base clean up campaign. Building custodians must place emphasis on identification and correction of fire safety hazards and improvement of building appearance. Building custodians should also identify cleaning and maintenance tasks within the facility and within 75 feet of the outside.

Base housing occupants should check carports, yards, and homes for safety hazards and for ways of improving their appearance. If you can do it yourself, please do so on a self-help basis, but check the housing brochure to insure that it is proper and permissible.

BOQ and BEQ occupants should inspect their rooms and facilities to identify similar projects. Again, do what you can on a self-help basis to clean things up or fix things. What you can't do yourself, identify to your first sergeant or the appropriate person in order that Civil Engineers can be scheduled to fix it.

Col. Richard A. Ingram encourages all of you to fully support this program so that we can keep Reese a desirable place to work and live, and a show place that we can proudly exhibit to visitors.

Do you know

How smoke alarms work

Smoke detectors have been installed, or will be installed, in all units in Reese Village.

One for all two, three and four-bedroom houses and two in all five-bedroom units.

The detectors being installed are photoelectric type detectors, which are activated by smoke in the air. It takes about three percent of the air to be filled with smoke to activate the system.

Once activated, the detector will sound an alarm until the smoke clears or the detectors power is shut-off. The detector is active at all times. It runs off 120 volt current and is directly connected to the house circuit breaker panel. As long as the detectors indicator light is on, the detector will work.

"If you hear the detector execute your "exit drill in the home" plan," warns 1st Lt. Michael Norrie, "get out of the house! After your out, call the Fire Department (ext. 3458), but get out first!"

Chef spices base kitchens

There are some "extra" good things coming from the kitchens of the NCO and Officers Clubs here, thanks to an "externship" program with the Culinary Institute of America.

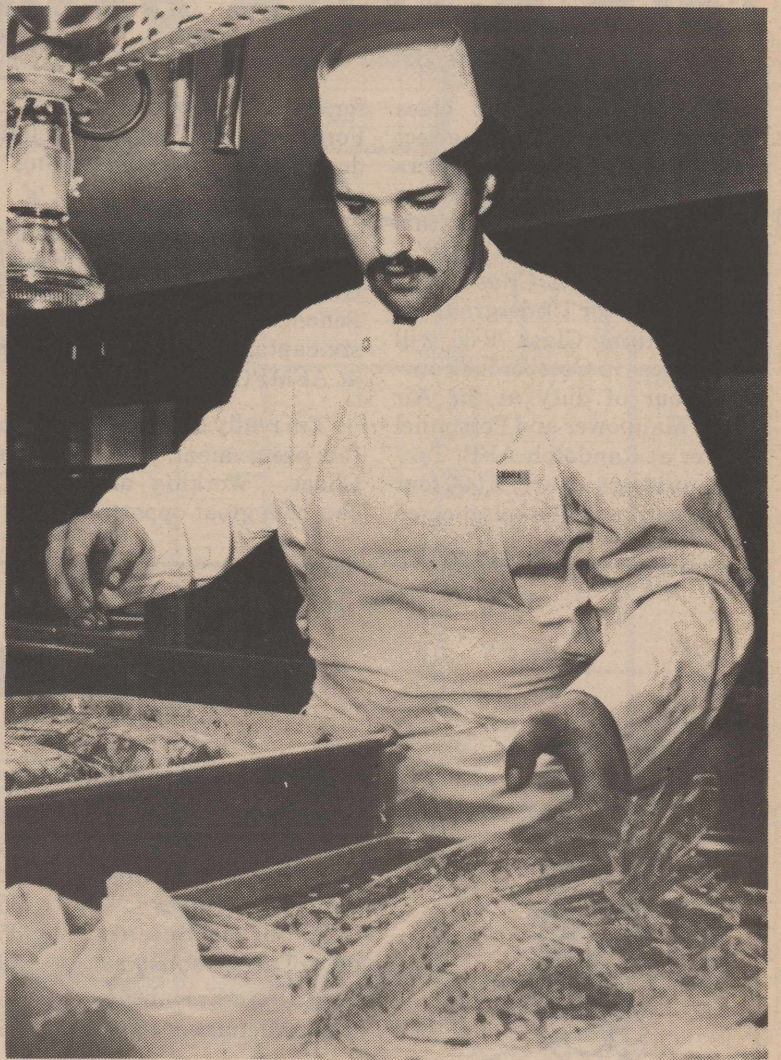

John Smigielski, a 21-year-old second year student at New York's famed Culinary Institute, is whipping up some special treats for patrons of both clubs. During his 15-week stay here, the Fairlawn, N.J., native will divide his time between the two facilities.

"It's a real change of pace for me," said Smigielski shortly after his arrival on the South Plains. "I'm a city boy and this is the first time I've been in the wide open spaces."

Smigielski, the son of the head chief of a major catering company in New York, has been working in the kitchen for as long as he can remember.

"Dad has had me helping him since I was a little boy," he recalled. "I think cooking is great. Being single, it doesn't hurt to be able to invite a girl over for some authentic French cuisine."

Smigielski, as with other externs working at 11 other Air Training Command bases, has been trained by some of the leading chefs in the United States. Each extern has received at least 600 hours of advanced training American and European food preparation, plus considerable experience in wine and liquor operations.

Class commander draws rare ASTRA assignment

One of Reese's T-38 class commanders is among a select group of 70 Air Force officers picked for an Air Staff Training program assignment later this year.

Capt. Michael L. Chase, class commander for Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 79-05, will leave Reese in October for a one-year tour of duty at the Air Force Manpower and Personnel Center at Randolph AFB, Tex.

Months ago, nearly 2,000 four to six-year captains volunteered for an ASTRA assignment. Air Force officials boiled that list down to 70 "up and coming" officers.

A 1974 Air Force Academy grad and recent Distinguished Graduate of Squadron Officer's School, Captain Chase is one of six captains selected for a tour at AFMPC.

"I'm really looking forward to this assignment," said Captain Chase. "Working at AFMPC can be a great opportunity."

ASTRA exposes top flight junior officers to high level management and serves as a career broadening training program.

It will be the first permanent change of station assignment outside Reese for Captain Chase since he was graduated from the Academy. He was a 1975 graduate of UPT Class 76-02 and has served as an instructor pilot here for more than three years.

Midnight phone calls don't bother Studlers

by Ted Houghton

It is the middle of the night. An accident occurs on the icy roads near Wolfforth. People are injured and emergency medical attention is desperately needed.

An emergency beeper goes off in the home of MSgt. Charles Studler. Aroused from their sleep, Sergeant Studler and his wife, Mary Jane, dress hurriedly and rush to the Wolfforth Emergency Medical Service-Fire Station a few blocks from their home to answer the call.

The Studlers are Emergency Medical Service volunteers. "Whenever they call, you go," said Sergeant Studler. "Sometimes you hate to get out of bed and run in the middle of the night, but that's part of the commitment."

Operating the EMS ambulance is not the only service the Studlers perform for their community. They are both members of the Wolfforth Fire Department.

In volunteer fire work since he was 18, he has helped organize volunteer fire departments in several rural communities. One was near Biloxie, Mississippi. "We started with nothing," he said, "When I left, there was a department with two fire engines and 30 volunteers. It was just a matter of getting people interested and involved."

Sergeant Studler works in Instrument Flight Simulator Maintenance at Reese as a technical advisor. He became involved with the Wolfforth Fire Department while he, his wife, and three children were still living in base housing. The only way he could respond to a fire call was by having other members call him by phone. Finally, the Studlers found a house in Wolfforth.

Wolfforth's fire department may respond to as many as 100 calls in a year and the EMS unit averages 3-4 calls per month. EMS volunteers are divided into three crews which alternate weekly call duty. Although the Studlers are responsible for being on call only every third week (7 p.m. - 7 a.m. weekdays and noon Saturday until 7 a.m. Monday), they feel it is their duty to respond to a call anytime they can.

Sergeant Studler feels that people in small towns have more of a chance to participate in civic services than those in larger communities.

"We don't have any big government hiring people to fight fires for us," he continued. "We have to do it ourselves."

Helping others is something Sergeant Studler believes in — that's why he doesn't mind those middle of the night phone calls.

AFAS raises certain loans

The Air Force Aid Society has set aside $300,000 for interest-free loans and outright grants to help offset the costs of CHAMPUS (The Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services) and Medicare.

The action is designed to help close the gap between actual medical costs and the amount reimbursed by CHAMPUS and Medicare.

Air Force people will benefit in three ways. First, the Aid Society will help with the patient's share of qualifying medical costs.

Second, those who receive care from nonparticipating physicians will be provided financial assistance pending CHAMPUS or Medicare reimbursement.

Third, the Aid Society also will assist when expenses exceed the amount allowable under CHAMPUS and Medicare guidelines.

In announcing the new policy, retired Air Force Gen. Louis T. Seith, director of the Aid Society, said it is one of several improvements planned for the near future.

"Today's Air Force families are faced with so many expenses, they are simply unable to save for unusual situations," General Seith said.

"The Aid Society was originally chartered to help people through unforeseen emergencies. We will do everything possible to fulfill that charter."

General Seith also stated, "A very similar policy has been adopted for dependent dental care, even though there is almost no CHAMPUS program available for it."

Six intramural teams capture playoff berths

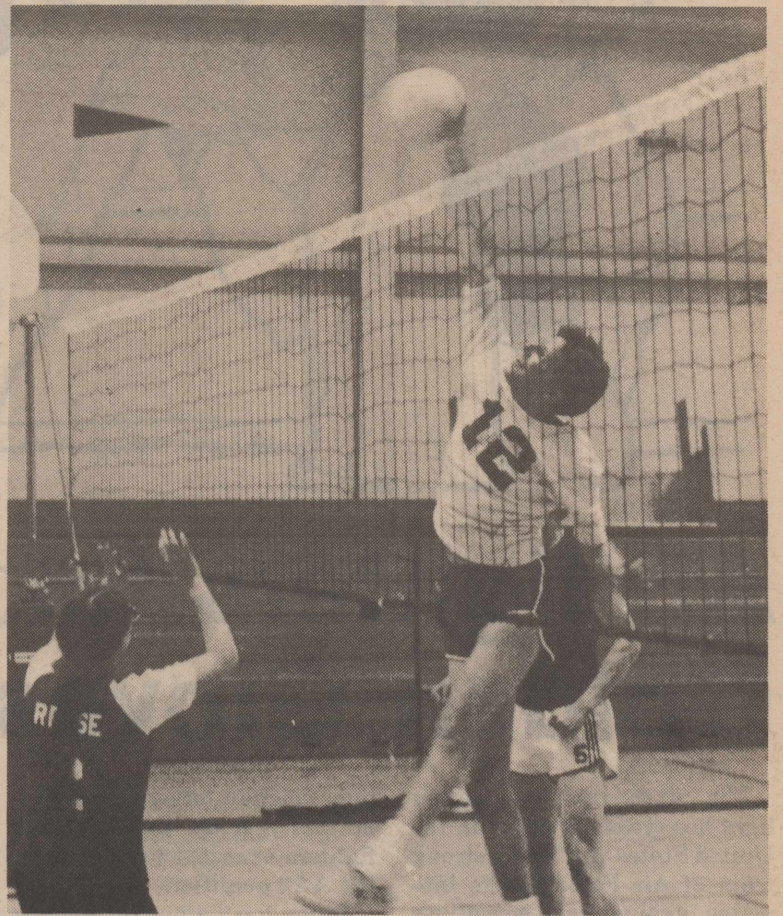

No matter what happens during the final three days of regular season action, the top six teams in Monday's volleyball standings will be in the playoffs.

Unbeaten through 11 games, the 54th Flying Training squadron tops the list of intramural squads that have clinched berths in next week's trophy yielding tourney.

Sturon-1 (9-1), Sturon-2 (10-1), the 35th FTS (8-3) completed a flying squadron sweep of the top four rungs on the ladder. Field Maintenance (7-3) and Resource Management (7-3) round out the tournament field.

Back-to-back losses to Sturon-1 and Resource Management dropped the 1958th Communications Squadron out of the playoff picture. The Civil Engineers (4-5) have the best mark of the second division squads. CE was in the running for a tourney berth up until a couple of weeks ago when they stumbled into a four game losing streak.

The playoffs will open Monday at 6 p.m. The top two teams in the standings after Thursday night's action was completed, will advance straight into the second round of action.

Hard spike

Second kegler nears 300

Inconclusive tests by Reese personnel may prove that high Bowling scores are indeed catching.

reported Sam Mele's amazing 299 tally, bowled at Reese Lanes. The kegler he rolled against in that high point game was TSgt. Roy Rodgers, 64th Field Maintenance Squadron.

Last Friday, Sergeant Rodgers almost duplicated the feat by rolling a 298. Bowlers who meet either of these two persons should make an effort to stand close. It might rub off.

AF fighters take on Golden Gloves stars

The sixth ranked amateur light-heavyweight boxer in the United States will lead a strong team of Air Force boxers into action against representatives of the West Texas Golden Gloves Association here April 28.

Wade Walker, a thundering 178 pounder from Columbus AFB, Miss., is one of at least three fighters that Air Force boxing coach Al Alinize feels have good shots at making the 1980 Olympic team.

Tony Huggins (119 pounds) and Franklin Burchess, the lightweight interservice runner-up last year are the other two fighters expected to do well in the AAU qualifiers.

Other top names on the Air Force team include Richard Wood, the 1978 middleweight Golden Gloves champ in New York state; Kevin Wages, 1978 Interservice light welterweight runner-up; and Lonnie Rogers, 1979 welterweight interservice runner-up.

Angel Toro, flyweight; John Ellis, light middleweight; and heavyweight Stan Butler a knockout winner at the Air Force qualifiers, are also boxers to keep an eye on.

Rounding out the Air force team will be Sammy Posada, Richard Johnson and Alvin Dixon.

The smoker will be held in Hanger 82. The opening bout is set for 7 p.m.

Tickets are on sale now at the Officers Club, NCO Club, Golf Course and Mathis Recreation Center. Ticket prices are $3 for adults and $1 for children under 12. Military personnel will receive a $1 discount off the adult admission.

Sports in brief

Racquetball

Reese's reputation for "quality" racquetball players got a facelift last week when Jack Hood captured two second place trophies in the United States Racquetball Association regionals in Dallas.

Golf tourney tees-off

A four-man best ball golf tournament is scheduled for April 21 on the Reese links.

The handicapped tourney is open to the first 16 teams that register at the golf course clubhouse. Entry fees for each team are $8 plus green fees.

Prizes will be awarded top finishers. The tourney tees off at 8 a.m. For more information contact Dick Davis at Ext. 3819.

F.C.A. forms here

F.C.A. means Fellowship of Christian Athletes. Plans are being completed for an organizational meeting for a "huddle" for Reese.

Ed Mooney, a former NFL linebacker with the Detroit Lions, and the Lubbock Chapter advisor will be here 7 p.m. April 26 to help form a Reese "huddle" if there is enough interest from base personnel.
