Reagan submits $8.7 billion cut in defense budget

Reagan today proposed a $28 billion reduction in his defense buildup over three years, far less than needed to meet his goal of cutting overall federal deficits in half by Speakes said Reagan had decided to reduce planned spending for defense by $8.7 billion next year, a reduction "larger than those originally recommended" by many of the president's top aides. But Speakes acknowledged under questioning that the three-year reduction total was far less than what budget director David Stockman and many other senior budget aides had asked.

The three-year total also seemed likely to leave senior Republicans in Congress dissatified as they seek to build support for the larger spending cuts in domestic programs that Reagan has tentatively approved

For fiscal 1986, Speakes said the $8.7 billion reduction in defense spending is $700 million more than tockman and other budget advisers

But, over the three years, the defense spending slowdowns will total $28 1 billion Stockman had said Pentagon spending would have to come down $58 billion over three goal of a $100-billion overall deficit

Reagan has tentatively approved nearly $34 billion in domestic spending cuts for fiscal 1986.

Speakes insisted Reagan has not abandoned his deficit reduction goal, but gave no indication of how the president plans to reach it with the plan outlined today

Reagan has said he would raise spending cuts only as a last resort. but some aides have indicated a tax increase still could be in the offing

Reagan would not hesitate to appeal to voters if Congress opposes his plan. Speakes said Before today's announcement several congressional Republicans. including Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, said that sizable cuts in the defense buildup will be needed to win approval of the proposal on make a decision based on the national interest. He had indicated that all departments including the Department of Defense would take a share of budget reductions, and the Defense Department has reduced their request substantially over the three-year period from what they originally submitted, also substantially reduced from what Congress had authorized.

When compared to the size of the overall federal budget and the hoped-for spending reductions, "I don't think it's far off." Speakes

In announcing Reagan's decision, Speakes said. The decision is based on his determination that all agencies and departments, including the Department of Defense, will be involved in the plan to reduce the deficit

Consistent with this directive, the budget originally submitted by Secretary Weinberger for fiscal year 1986 will be reduced by $11 billion in budget authority and by $8.7 billion in outlays. These outlay reductions are larger than those originally recommended by the Office of Management and Budget and the budget core group of senior administration

With the changes proposed today, the Pentagon would have budget authority of $313.7 billion in fiscal 1986 and approved outlays of $277.5 billion Budget authority, the approval to obligate money planned to be spent in future years, for this fiscal year is projected at $292.9 bil-

Speakes said. "The president is also committed to a deficit reductaxes to make up for the shortfall in twon plan with the objective of shrinking the deficit at a percentage of gross national product from 4 percent in fiscal 86, to 3 percent in fiscal 87 and 2 percent in fiscal '88."

But he gave no indication how Reagan could achieve those goals in fiscal 1987 and fiscal 1988 with the domestic spending cuts already announced and the defense figures announced today

Bunton denies instructed verdict for FDIC

By ED TODD

Staff Writer

The $600,000 which The First National Bank of Midland put in escrow for Thomas J. Wageman to induce him to take over the presidency of the failing bank put him in a "better position" than the bank's depositors, creditors or stockholders, it was claimed here Monday.

Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC) attorney Jack Duncan of El Paso made those comments in asking U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton for an instructed verdict in favor of FDIC in the FDIC-Wageman civil trial. He said FNB had set aside the $600,000 "in contemplation of insolvency.

The judge, who had barred the press from the "very sensitive" nonjury trial, denied the FDIC request. He said he feared the evidence might involve things of a criminal nature, prove embarrassing to innocent individuals and financial institutions and suggested that some testimony, if publicized, might be disruptive.

FDIC is seeking possession of the $600,000 which FNB in mid-1983 had put in escrow for Wageman in Inter First Bank Dallas. FNB had set aside that amount in mid-July 1983 plus an additional $125,000 and agreed to pay Wageman, 50, $300,000 a year to leave the presidency of LaSalle National Bank in Chicago. He was to try and salvage and restore confidence in FNB, which had been Texas largest independent bank and ranked among the top 100 banks in the United States. At close of 1982, the bank had $1.8 billion in assets and $1.4 billion in deposits.

STATE

One death has been attributed to heavy rains that hit Central and North Texas last night and early today, sending rivers over their banks, making many roads impassable and stranding some residents in their homes.

During heavy rains in Waco, water reached car windows in parts of the city, and streets throughout town were reported under water, authorities

Portions of Interstate 35 near Waco were said to be under water. Farm Road 22 was reported underwater southwest of Hillsboro.

A flash flood warning was in effect overnight in Hunt, Hopkins, Franklin, Delta, Titus and Rains counties of North Texas. Heaviest rains were falling along the Sulphur River from Clarksville and Paris to Sulphur Springs, and on to Tyler, Corsicana and Teague.

Farm roads were reported underwater throughout that area.

In the Union Valley community, about 12 miles southwest of Greenville on Farm Road 1565, members of the Union Valley Fire Department rescued a man who drove his car into high water and was hanging onto a tree to keep from being swept away.

That was about 11:45 p.m. Monday. About an hour and a half later, Sgt. Gary Conway of the Hunt County sheriff's department waded about 50 yards in waist-high water to another car stranded in high water. He carried a woman and her child sto safety.

The Trinity River, which flows through Dallas, had risen to 28.7 feet by early today. At Crandall, the Trinity had risen to 12.9 feet and a further rise to near the flood stage of 18 feet was seen as likely

Sulphur Springs in Hopkins County reported three inches of rain in a three-hour period

Farther to the northeast, where the heavier rains hit, the Sulphur River was near 18 feet near Cooper, and a crest of near 20.5 feet is expected tonight. Bank-full stage is 16 feet.

The Sulphur River was at 22.3 feet early today at Talco and was expected to rise to near 23.5 feet by tonight. Bank-full stage is 20 feet. The White Oak Creek near Talco was 14.9 feet, with a sharp rise to between 17 and 18 feet expected by tonight. Bank-full stage is 18 feet. Low visibility was reported throughout West Texas and Southwest Texas because of fog.

Dense fog, caused by very shallow cold front, will continue to develop, the weather service office in San Antonio warned early today

Thunderstorms caused flooding in Texas and heavy snow hit the Rockies today while sub-zero temperatures chilled the northern Plains and the East had early-fall weather with winter only days away.

Slow-moving thunderstorms dumped heavy rain across central and northern Texas, prompting widespread flash flood warnings today and pushing water across some roads. Shower's and thunderstorms spread across the Ohio and lower Mississippi valleys, eastern sections of the southern Plains and the central Pacific Coast A low pressure system over northern Idaho sent snow into the northern Rockies. Travelers' advisories were posted for northwest Montana, northern Idaho, eastern Washington and eastern Oregon. Snowfall accumulations early this morning included 19 inches at Mullan. ldaho, 8 inches at Spokane, Wash., and 7 at Yakima, Wash., and Baker, Ore.

Bitter cold gripped the northern Plains, with below-zero temperatures in Minnesota, South Dakota, Wyoming and Montana. Mild weather prevailed across the middle and southern Atlantic Coast states, with early-morning temperatures in the 40s to 50s over the mid-

Atlantic and in the 60s across southern sections of the Ohio and Tennessee Today's forecast called for showers and thunderstorms from the Ohio and

Of the more than 16,000 electors picked in the last 192 years, only eight have broken their pledges, and there were no known defectors Monday.

Bush enjoyed the same landslide as Reagan, although he almost lost a vote in Springfield, Ill. On the first secret ballot, one of Illinois' 24 electors choose Rep. Geraldine Ferraro, Mondale's running mate. After several minutes of confusion, a second ballot went unanimously for Bush.

State GOP chairman Don Adams said it could have been a mistake because of the way the ballot was printed, or "it could have been a oke. No one admitted to doing it.' Mondale got his 13 votes from three electors in the solidly Democratic District of Columbia and 10 in his home state of Minnesota, which he carried by a whisker - 3.761 votes out of more than 2 million In St. Paul, elector Mary Ames, 77, of Marine on St. Croix, Minn., said, "I don't think we have a particularly thinking electorate. Some years ago, when Eisenhower was elected, I told my husband they could run Clark Gable for president and he'd get elected.

Minnesota's Democratic Gov. Rudy Perpich told the Mondale electors, "Two years from now, there will be many more states that wish they had done the same.

The written vote Monday in the staid state Senate chamber carried out the mandate of Texas voters on Nov. 6, which gave the Reagan-Bush ticket a 63.6 percent winning margin in the popular vote, 3,433,428 to 1,949,276.

Fred Gray of Pasadena, chairman of the Texas electors, put a gold seal on the envelope containing the 29 electoral votes and sent them to Washington as Texas' official vote in the presidential election

Part of the electors' time was given over to signing each other's programs as souvenirs and in filling out vouchers for travel pay.

"What you do here today is not a vain thing," Secretary of State Myra McDaniel, a Democrat, told the electors gathered in the state Senate chamber. "It is not an idle thing, for no act, however small, that fulfills the standards established by our constitution is either vain or idle.'

She noted that the electoral college system has been criticized, and said, "Thomas Jefferson and his colleagues devised the electoral college system because they wanted the president to be chosen by electors exercising independent judgment.

But subsequent political changes have transformed the electors into straight party representatives who simply register the electorate's decision," she said

But in every other capital, it was a Dalpiaz, the chairman of North Republican affair, and a time for cel-Carolina's 13 electors, said, "It's an important constitutional job. This is where it's done. If he's not elected In Raleigh, N.C., businessman J.A. here, he's not elected."

Robert McDaniel of Grand Forks, N.D., drove 270 miles through a snowstorm and subzero temperatures to carry out his duties as an elector in a five-minute ceremony in Gov. Allen I. Olson's office in Bismarck. "This is a heck of a lot easier than a campaign," he remarked.

He cautioned his colleagues not to entertain thoughts about voting for anyone but Reagan and Bush, saying that if anyone 'jumped the track" the Montana meeting would not adjourn until all four electors were in line.

IN HIS ARGUMENT for an FDIC award of the money, Duncan noted that "loss of confidence" in the bank and "liquidity problems" went uncorrected and caused the "bank to go under.

Further, he said FNB's proxy statement contained "information (that) was so hot that it would take the bank under." He said the escrow agreement was to Wageman's advantage, that it put him in a "better position" than the bank's depositors creditors and stockholders and made a reference to the time when the devil takes the hindmost.

FDIC co-counsel John McChristian of El Paso said evidence before the judge had offered "no showing that Wageman is entitled to any of the funds in the escrow account. The contract is void." McChristian noted that the money was placed in escrow "in contemplation of insolvency" and that Wageman's "concern was for the salary he was foregoing. It was an attempt to liquidate the damages.

WAGEMAN was named bank president after Charles D. Fraser, NB's president, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, resigned in April 1983. Fraser, a petroleum engineer who joined the bank in 1966, earlier this year was charged by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency with preparing misleading financial reports before the bank's collapse.

The fraud charges were leveled at Fraser in a civil complaint filed in federal court in Washington, D.C. Fraser was accused of overstating FNB's net income for the first three

He did not exclude the large-denomination certificates of deposit were having an adverse effect on the bank's liquidity.'

A week before the bank's collapse, board of directors was "stout" and could turn the bank around. He spoke of the directors' "quality, integrity and the strength," which enabled the bank to survive the economic turmoil.

The suit to determine the fate of the escrow money was set off about a year ago when InterFirst Bank filed suit against FDIC and Wageman in asking the court to decide to whom the money belonged.

Wageman claims the money is due

But FDIC says the money is due it, since FDIC became FNB's liquidator and receiver after the bank failed Oct. 14, 1983, and was declared insolvent by the U.S. Comptroller of the Currency. On the following Monday, Oct. 17, the bank opened as RepublicBank First National Midland. RepublicBank Corp. of Dallas purchased FNB's assets for $51 million.

FDIC CLAIMS that the FNB-Wageman employment agreement of July 15, 1983, is "null and void and ...terminated" after the bank's failure and cited an escrow-agreement clause which said InterFirst Bank "shall immediately deliver" the escrow fund to FNB when the agreement is ended. Since FDIC is FNB's receiver, the money is now owed to the federal agency, FDIC

Speakes shrugged off suggestions that Congress would insist on deeper defense cuts

Speakes said it "has not been determined yet whether Reagan will now go back to the domestic arena and seek even deeper cuts than the substantial reductions already decided upon.

The budget process continues. and it will continue this year, and it will continue in '87 and '88" he said. Reagan doesn't actually send his formal, detailed federal budget proposal to Congress until early next year, probably in late January or early February. And that plan will fiscal 1986, which begins next Oct. 1.

Speakes refused to disclose how the Pentagon savings would be achieved, saying that would be explained later by Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who was holding an afternoon news confer-

But the Pentagon budget increases have been trimmed in recent years due to reduced inflation rates and because some weapons programs were stretched out, meaning the same number of weapons will be bought over a longer time than originlly planned.

Weinberger had proposed a firstyear savings of $6 billion, a level senior Republican on the House

> The defense secretary's earlier plan included savings that other administration officials have criticized - a pay freeze in 1986 that would follow a supplemental raise in Such a plan would have assured military personnel of the money they expected while giving the defense chief credit for savings against the deficit.

That proposal also drew criticism from members of Congress, where Rep. William Dickinson of Alabama.

three-year savings of $19 billion would leave the president well short of that target, he encountered resistance from many other aides last week, according to several administration officials.

There was no word, as Reagan's decision was reported, whether he would seek additional domestic spending cuts to achieve his deficitreduction targets, abandon the targets or try to find another way of meeting them.

The president has already said he will accept a tax increase only as a "last resort" after all other approaches have been exhausted.

If it passes and we get the jail, I don't think they'll take any action,' Ahders said. But if the bond issue fails, "There's always the possibility that the courts will take action. And they would not be as concerned about the cost as this Commissioner's Court is."

Earlier, representatives of the group which sponsored the petition had presented the commissioners with a list of suggestions to improve the current jail instead of building a

"Our committee has tried to think of ways of solving the problem without moving the jail," spokesman Bill Williams told the commissioners. 'Let's be sure we've looked at everything before we let these agencies dictate what we have to do.

The suggestions included remodeling the current jail, using the northwest corner of the jail for exercise, enclosing a sunporch on the courthouse roof, starting a restitution center to reduce the jail population, and improving the administration of the jail.

But Commissioner Win Brown said these suggestions wouldn't satisfy the Jail Commissioners. "Almost all of these suggestions have been looked into," he said. "We're asking that you look into them again," said Williams. "Enlighten the taxpayer, and then

But the father, who had armed himself, apparently realized his son's intention and began firing at the youth, hitting him in the arm and causing him to panic, which "blew his plans," Halley said.

"They can't do that until the jail's built," replied Ahders. "They'ye given us a handshake on $40" per day for each prisoner.

After the commissioners set the date for the election, Williams expressed satisfaction in the petition's success. "I just wonder if our needs are as

In contemporary times, as in the past, it also has sparked some of the noblest politics, including the Confessing Church's Barman blast at Nazism, the heroic stand of the executed Dietrich Bonhoeffer and the massive interreligious drive for civil rights in this country in the 1960s, with 200 ministers jailed and the Rev. It is also heavily restricted in some totalitarian Third World countries and kept insulated and muzzled in the officially atheistic Communist lands of Eastern Europe and Asia. But it strongly persists, as it has in past difficulties, sometimes seeming stimulated by them, scholars say.

They also point out that whatever the obstacles, religion, for better or ill, always has affected political decisions. "They inevitably mix, like it or says Lutheran theologian Richard Neuhous.

A catalyst of it, Jesus, dealt not only with personal attitudes, but social issues, with marriage, divorce, judges, taxes, children, peace, hunger, labor and economics. He said that as people deal with the poor, the prisoners, the sick, and "the least of these, you do it unto me.'

It was a mandate of sweeping social implications and it has kept Christians in the political arena, weighing government policies and pressing reforms as well as establishing hospitals, schools, colleges and institutions for the abandoned and

THAT MISSION was rooted in the Jewish prophets who through the centuries had thundered against social corruption and abuses, against unjust kings and judges, against greed and militarism, against the gouging of the weak and the poor.

Fiercely challenging both to the state and religious establishments, the prophets saw God as actively involved in the world's affairs, interrelated with its acts and institutions. THEY WERE PROTESTERS, reformers, idealists, propounding lofty concepts of individual and social obligations, and sensed divine concern with public life, outraged at the cruelties, inequities and injuries

"The prophet's word is a scream in the night," writes the late great American Jewish philosopher Abraham Heschel. "While the world is at ease and asleep, the prophet feels the blast from heaven.

Like Jesus, many of them had it rough. They were often ridiculed, flogged, imprisoned and sometimes killed, pursued as fugitives, marked as traitors, a kind of ordeal faced by many religious activists through the

"O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, killing the prophets and stoning those who are sent to you," Jesus lamented as he gazed at the spires and palaces of the capital city.

Unlike the temple-confined pagan religions, the prophets felt God's presence in political decisions and the course of earthly history, and they hurled their exhortations at governments, kings and social

'You are the man!" the prophet Nathan accused the great King David, after leading him to sternly condemn a hypothetical "rich man" who had stolen a poor peasant's only - just as the much-married David had taken a soldier's only wife, Bathsheba.

ALTHOUGH THE RULERS sometimes had their own fawning circle of "court prophets," who served only to please their superiors and sanction official policy, the gen-uinely prophetic "truth-bearers" were ruggedly uncompromising.

"You troubler of Israel!" King Ahab barked at the prophet Elijah when that desert mystic appeared about 860 B.C. to denounce the national idol-worship promoted by

Queen Jezebel. Condemned, hiding near the end of his life in a cave, Elijah sorrowed that other prophets had been "slain by the sword, and I, even I only, am left, and they seek my life." But others would arise after he vanished in a whirlwind.

There was a long line of them, Habbakkuk, Zephaniah, Malachi, Hosea, Joel, Micah, Ezekiel, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Daniel and others. They were agitated, indignant men, pained by rampant greed and victimizing of the weak and poor, concerned for human welfare, the downtrodden, and peace among

THE ASSYRIAN WAR machine rolled over Egypt, conquering it, and razed 46 walled cities of Judah, taking 200,150 people into slavery.

Isaiah, considered the greatest of Jewish prophets, also had condemned an earlier military pact that led to destruction of Israel's northern kingdom, and he continually demanded governmental equity and compassion.

Your princes are...companions of thieves," he charged. They "acquit the guilty for a bribe, and deprive the innocent of his right." They write "iniquitous decrees...to turn aside the needy from justice and to rob the poor.

'Seek justice, correct oppression, defend the fatherless, plead for the widows," Isaiah urged in a ministry which Jesus later compared to his

In the midst of the institutional pretensions, deceit, militarism, and wealth overriding want, Isaiah saw glimmerings of a future hope that Christians later would regard as heralding Jesus' birth

The people who walked in darkness have seen a great light," Isaiah said. "For to us a Child is born, to us Son is given, and the government will be upon his shoulder, and his name will be called Wonderful. Counselor, Father, Prince of Peace.

JEREMIAH, ANOTHER bold prophet, repeatedly imprisoned, logged and threatened with death, also denounced war planning against the new colossus, Babylonia. He urged King Zedekiah to concentrate on peaceful social reforms.

Do justice...deliver from the hands of the oppressor him who has been robbed.

When Zedekiah proceeded with military mobilization, Jeremiah mourned. "They have healed the wound of my people lightly, saying peace, peace,' when there is no "Let this man be put to death for he is weakening the hands of the soldiers," demanded the king's counselors. He was imprisoned but when a rowal order to free Jerusalem's slaves went unenforced and ignored, Jeremiah issued a denunciation through his scribe:

Thus says the Lord: You have not obeyed me by proclaiming liberty." As a result, he said the country would be struck with sword, famine and the horror of Babylon's forces.

Accused of treason, he was thrown into an empty cistern to starve, but a black Ethiopian slave pulled him out. When Jerusalem fell in 587 B.C., with its people taken into captivity in Babylon for the next 50 years, Jeremiah was taken to prison in Egypt, where he died.

BUT EVEN IN THE TIMES of his warnings against the gathering clouds of destruction, he sensed such a strong divine attachment to humanity that eventual reconciliation would come.

"And no longer shall each man teach his neighbor...saying, 'Know the Lord,' for they shall all know me.... I will forgive their iniquity and I will remember their sins no more.

Shortly after Jesus' birth, a suspi cious, ruthless King Herod sought to have him killed in the slaughter of innocents in Bethlehem. But Joseph and Mary had fled with him into Egypt. Official threats rimmed his life and Caesar's deputy, Pilate, finally ordered him crucified.

"Behold, I make all things new, he said in that futuristic book of Revelation.

That vision of a "new heaven and a new earth" has animated his followers ever since, spurring them to pursue betterment on the earth now, pointing toward completion in the hereafter.

"We must obey God rather than men," his imprisoned apostles said in premonitory confrontation with political authorities who sought to silence his message of love, patience, mercy and help to the weak, disa-bled, rejected and the lost.

Hatred lives

This is the season of brotherly love, charity and caring about one's fellow man. It's the one time of the year when people are asked to rejoice about the good in every human being.

That's difficult to do in the small farming community of Geronimo, Okla. where residents are groping for an answer to the brutal killing of four people in a bank robbery last Friday - four people who apparently died for no reason other than the robber's thirst for blood.

Over the years as the Supreme Court has kicked around the controversial and soul-wrenching question of capital punishment, opponents have argued that taking the life of a murderer is, in effect, stooping to the murderer's level.

Probably every advocate of capital punishment at one time or another has experienced doubting periods during which his certainty has been shaken and he has asked: "Through capital punishment is society giving up in the search for that better side of mankind - that one great hope for all men? Are we executing individuals whose actions have made them undeserving of our forgivance or killing people who merely are misunderstood and can be saved for society?"

From the news reports of what took place in Geronimo's First Bank of Chattanooga last Friday, hatred obviously is still alive and well in the world. The could have robbed the bank and the grief of the people of Geronhave been caught, tried and sen- none of us is safer today than tenced to prison for a period of Geronimo families would be enjoying the holiday season now. It would be a Christmas they would remember for years as the one when the bank was

Had that been the case, four

That wasn't the case, though, and this Christmas will never be forgotten. This was the Christmas when the young desperado herded a group of people at the bank into a back room, made them lie on the floor and then shot them in the heads and backs, killing four and wounding three others.

Reports indicate the robber also would have killed an infant one of the women held had he not run out of ammunition. He put the gun up to the child and pulled the trigger but was out of ammunition, survivors said.

It wasn't the type of crime to make one feel compassion for the criminal. There's really no reason to ask why the killings took place. Hatred has no justification. It has no reason.

The Geronimo killings were not necessary; they simply were the manifestation of hatred in a society that likes to view itself as too civilized for hatred.

No answers will be forthcoming for the questions being asked in Geronimo. There are no answers for those good people who thought their little part of the world was somehow safe from all the craziness that engulfs the rest of the globe.

No, there are no answers in bank robber, a young man said this time of human caring, just to be only 19-20 years of age, compassion. Others can share lay hands on estates or invade and escaped. He probably would imo - in the knowledge that were the people who died in the bank at Geronimo last week.

case on the failure of socialism even under the most favorable conditions, he can find it in Francois Mitterrand's socialist France.

When socialist Mitterrand took office 31/2 years ago capitalism was a dirty word. He nationalized big industrial companies, created a great many new government jobs, stepped up welfare benefits, raised minimum wages and lowered the retirement age.

But a not so funny thing happened on the way to socialist utopia. The French economy stagnated and unemployment started rising and kept on going up. There were 1.5 million unemployed when Mitterrand took over in May 1981 but joblessness now exceeds 2.5 million, more than 10 percent of the work force, even though most of the f anyone wanted a textbook industrial world has been enjoying an economic recovery for the past year. Real economic growth has risen from only 0.2 percent in 1981 to 1.3 percent so far in 1984.

> Mitterrand and his finance minister, Pierre Beregovoy, took note of the dynamic growth that was taking place in the United States under President Reagan when they visited this country earlier this year. To their credit, they now have decided to try incentives and deregulation to spur the sagging French economy. Mitterrand also has cut the budget and reduced some welfare payments.

The French socialists call what ald Reagan. they are doing "Reaganism with a human face." Well, let them call it what they like. The point month to is that Reaganomics works and replace any socialism doesn't.

Congress stuck on spending

ASHINGTON — One of the irreversible currents I've noticed during 38 years of covering Washington is the ballooning of the federal budget almost beyond control or comprehension. The cost of

Prior to the bureaucratic age, when a government required operating funds, it had to forcibly loot another country. Now the Internal Revenue Service peaceably and effortlessly perpetrates the same atrocities. It quietly extracts $594 billion a year from us, largely through the mail, and all we complain about is the complication of the forms.

So gently and prosaically does the government pick our pockets that members of Congress have found taxation the easiest solution to the problems that confront them. To finance their assorted schemes medical care, old-age care, day care, prenatal care (or, if you are so disposed, unlimited free abortions) - they keep going back to the well. Congressmen are jittery, never-

If the four deficits forecast by the Congressional Budget Office for the second Reagan term occur as scheduled, the yearly interest payment will reach $250 billion and will then be on a self-propelling track. The debt will automatically jump tens of billions each year, multiplying on an inexorable schedule

Then the timetable set forth-by the Grace Commission - which projects for the year 2000 an annual deficit of $2 trillion and a public debt of $13 trillion — will become just a matter of simple arithmetic. Each taxpayer's share of this astronomical IOU will be $167,000. That's the inheritance we would leave our children only 15 years down the

The prevailing Washington wisdom is that taxes must be raised to reduce the deficit. My own experience has taught — call it Anderson's law - that the outlay will always expand to accommodate the income.

The first modern bureaucracy consisted of a handful of underpaid officials in the French court late in the 12th century. So feverishly did tury, according to the Duke de cate.

In contemporary America, there are more than 16 million public servants at all levels of government. As this bureaucratic force has multiplied, taxes have been increased to support it. But the new taxes invari-The interest alone on the debt is to spend the money on.

The income of a typical family has jumped from $3,187 in 1948 to $24,100 in 1983. But the family's federal taxes have shot up from $9 to $2,218 during the same span. Put another way, their income has risen 7.6 times, but their income taxes have increased 246.4 times

LETTERS Treaty dangerous

In January, the Congress of the United States will reconvene and face decisions on ratification of some of the most crucial issues of our time. My purpose in writing is to hopefully allow many unknowing Americans to become aware of one of these most important items - the Genocide Treaty

If passed, the treaty will ultimately destroy some of the most basic tenets of our Constitution and render them useless. The Supreme Court has accorded that treaties become law and supercede the Constitution. In this case, the treaty will make American citizens subject to international law regarding any "persecutions" against certain eth-nic, religious, political and other groups. Soviet persecutions of Jews, and religious and political prisoners, however, are exempt from the

Since everyone is a member of either a religious, political or ethnic group, any individual could claim persecution and subject the accused to a court of international law if the treaty is passed. Americans would be unprotected and left stripped of the rights guaranteed by the Consti-

Simply, any Americans making a negative statement about the Communist regime in Soviet Russia could conceivably be held in violation of the treaty while those same Soviets accusing him of the violation are exempt from the confines of the treaty! Any such treaty will be only another empty promise full of false hopes, as demonstrated by the Soviets' past record of keeping treaties (they've broken every one ve ever signed, without excep tion). Is it not sensible that genocide legislation, if addressed at all, should be on a federal rather than international level?

Unfortunately, President Reagan has announced his position in favor of the treaty. The obvious course of action at this, the eleventh hour, is to ask each citizen to protect his Constitutional rights by writing his Senators, Representatives, and President Reagan asking them to assure him that they will not support the treaty. A most dangerous condition exists already. It will become more so if not addressed immediately.

Former teacher will be missed

This letter is being written in regard to the recent "resignation" of a long-time employee of St. Ann's School. She will be desperately missed and the loss saddens not only the parents and faculty but also the students of St. Ann's School.

Betty Beumeler was not just a secretary or "clerk," no, she was much, much more. She was a "babysitter," a "nurse," a shoulder to lean on, someone to talk over a problem with and more. She was always there to comfort a terrified preschooler, pull that all important "first tooth." remove a splinter, bandage a scraped knee. She was a "mother" to us and a "grandmother" to all the students.

Parents of students felt secure and reassured knowing that Betty was always there whenever a child needed her.

There is no way this loving, caring person will ever be replaced. Betty had been with St. Ann's School for the past 21 years and had only four years left until retirement. She not only touched the lives of the present generation, but also the past. We will not soon forget all the love and understanding this person brought to so many.

Past and present students, I'm sure, regret the loss, and future students will never know what remarkable woman once worked at this fine

We do resent the circumstances under which Betty felt she must leave, but we stand behind her 100 percent.

Betty, we love you and our prayers are with you!

Reagan bows to Shultz at State

ASHINGTON — George Shultz returned from Europe to confront senior administration colleagues poised to counterattack his State Department purge out of fear that a policy takeover will follow the secretary's takeover of personnel.

The counterattack may be too late. Shultz has diligently cultivated Ron-He got the president's blessing last political appointee he chose with Foreign Service bureaucrats, few of whom share resignation, the president agreed. Reaganites high in the president's confidence doubt that he fully understood what he agreed to. Not until last week was Reagan made fully aware that the immense power he had awarded Shultz was being exercised with a vengeance at the State Department, purging Reaganite assistant secretaries and ambassadors in preparation for the second term. "George has overplayed his hand," a critical official told us.

But it may be too late to prevent Shultz from continuing to play that hand. The question is whether old Meese III, CIA Director William Casey and Interior Secretary William P. Clark - were scheduled to meet at the White House last Friday with one of the purged officials: Hugh Montgomery, director of intelligence and research.

Meese in private has used uncharacteristically strong language in describing Shultz's sweep. Clark and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger are also angry and have let their views be known to the president. Still, the hour is late and the

A focal point of the charge that Shultz is running away from Reagan's policy is the prospective firing of Richard McCormack, a former aide to Sen. Jesse Helms, as assistant secretary for economic affairs. Only last Aug. 8, the president sent McCormack a personal letter praising him as "one of those team players whose low-key efforts have contributed to the ... success of our policies.

The secretary's critics inside the administration privately blame two young Foreign Service officers on Shultz's secretariat - Charles Hill and Jock Covey — for playing a central purge role, partly by their control of the paper flow. The fact that Daniel Terra, a rich Reaganite who is the unpaid ambassador at large for cultural affairs, is on the purge list fuels suspicions that outsiders are no longer welcome at the State Department.

But this is not entirely a Foreign Service putsch. The esteemed John Negroponte, a tough F.S. officer, is being replaced as ambassasdor to Honduras, a key Central American post, by Deputy Assistant Secretary L. Craig Johnstone. Reaganites call Johnstone soft on the president's Reaganites will really fight. Three of home-state political reasons, Helms them - presidential counselor Edwin is eager to redeem his conservative credentials in the foreign policy area by blocking Shultz's new choices for top jobs. "The next diplomatic nominee able to win Senate confirmation may be a new secretary of state," an administration insider told us, only half in jest.

That all this may have less to do with policy - as of now - than the whims of George Shultz is suggested by his personal request to hard-line Under Secretary William Schneider to stay. But some critics suspect this as a temporary ploy to appease the conservative movement. Even some senior officials describe Shultz. whether he realizes it or not, as "re-Carterizing" the State Department particularly in Latin America. The eventual policy impact can only be dimly perceived. But with Shultz now in the close embrace of the Foreign Service, the president's diplomacy is likely to be turned away from his own strong ideological convictions on the world strug-Shultz is strong. He has ingra-tiated himself with Reagan and deputy chief of staff Michael K. Deaver, and neutralized national security assistant Robert McFarlane. At the first post-election Cabinet budget session, Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret Heckler and Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole complained about budget cuts. Shultz cut in quickly with a stump speech about the necessity of cutting the budget to back the president. Reagan ate it up.

Currying favor with the boss is hardly disreputable and surely not new. The issue is that the president has voluntarily reduced his foreign policy influence in favor of Shultz. That could be a harbinger of his actions across the board in his second term, explaining the belated effort to counterattack against the new "vicar" of foreign policy:

Court refuses to order release of jailed woman

AUSTIN (AP) — A state appeals decision and predicted, "She's not going to get relief in federal court." court has again declined to order the release of a Houston woman jailed three months ago for refusing to testify against her stepson, who is charged with slaying a female letter

After reviewing transcripts of a grand jury hearing, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals voted 6-3 on Monday against ordering the release of Odette Port, court spokesman Troy Bennett said. An opinion will be issued later, Bennett said.

Mrs. Port's attorney, Randy Schaffer, said he planned to appeal the ruling to a federal court in Hous-

Mrs. Port has been jailed since Sept. 12 for refusing to answer some questions about the slaying of Debora Sue Schatz, 23, who disappeared June 7 while delivering mail in the Ports' affluent neighborhood on Houston's west side.

Miss Schatz' body was found two days later in a remote, wooded area north of Houston. David Port, 17, was charged with her murder.

David Port, who remains free on $20,000 bond, will be tried in late February in New Braunfels, about 175 miles west of Houston. State District Judge I.D. McMaster agreed to move the trial from Houston, saying news coverage of the case has been

Shuttle camera able to aid in oil exploration

By PAUL RECER AP Aerospace Writer

SPACE CENTER, Houston -Earth-scanning instruments aboard the space shuttle Discovery snapped pictures clear enough to pick out streets, buildings and geologic for-mations that may help in the discovery of oil, scientists say.

Bernard Mollberg of the Johnson Space Center in Houston and harles Elachi of the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in California said their instruments on the spacecraft last October proved that orbiting cameras and radar can provide valuable mapping and geologic data much quicker than any other means. Mollberg, project director of the Large Format Camera experiment, said at a briefing Monday that highresolution film captured images of streets, buildings and even housing developments.

He said the camera "is a significant event" in producing maps and will provide geologic maps of areas in Africa, India and Asia that never before have been charted.

Elachi, project director for an instrument called the Shuttle Imaging Radar-B, said the instrument is able to produce stereoscopic images of major land features and even penetrate up to 15 feet below the

An earlier flight of the Radar Instrument discovered previously unsuspected riverbeds in Egypt. Elachi said it is expected that similar geologic features will be found when all of the data of the October flight is studied.

Mollberg said the shuttle astronauts attempted to photograph a site in the Soviet Union where a nuclear accident occurred in the 1950s, but clouds obscured the view.

Views that were taken by the camera clearly show irrigated fields in West Texas; streets, highways and the flight of jets over Boston; the crisscross of downtown buildings in Montreal; and Mount Everest in Nepal, Earth's highest peak.

The SIR-B instrument developed a stereoscopic view of Mount Shasta in California.

Elachi said signals from the radar were processed by a computer to develop a precise scale model of the Shasta area. Scientists expect these data to be extremely valuable in the search for oil and other minerals.

We have not examined all of the frames but already are finding things that should be of interest to petroleum companies," Mollberg

Eight face hearing in man's torture-murder

KERRVILLE (AP) - Three members of a Mountain Home family and five drifters accused in the March slaying of another transient are scheduled to face a preliminary hearing today on a change of venue motion.

The hearing also is to include a motion to suppress evidence seized at the Mountain Home ranch where the slaying occurred.

The eight defendants are charged with organized crime in the March 3 cattle prod tortureslaving of Anthony Warren Bates. Prosecutors say Bates was tortured to death with an electric cattle prod, doused with gasoline and burned.

Defense attorneys claim charred bone fragments seized when the ranch was raided April 6 were taken during an illegal search and seizure. They want to suppress such evidence as nine machetes, two switchblades, a cattle prod and several firearms.

They are challenging a search warrant issued by District Judge V. Murray Jordan, the judge assigned to the case. Jordan excused himself from hearing the suppression motion and all other pretrial motions.

District Judge Joe Kelly of Victoria was to preside at the prelimson's wife Joyce Ellebracht. The three are charged under the organized crime indictment along with drifters Marshal Van Scoyk Jr., Marty Miller, Paul Harvey Hicks, Carlton Robert Caldwell and Mark Hamilton.

Defense attorneys also will ask Kelly to suppress statements the Ellebrachts made while they were under arrest. They also want access to grand jury testimony by state witnesses.

Today's date is the fourth time a preliminary hearing has been scheduled in the case.

Conflicts by attorneys and the judge have forced several postponements.

'It's still go. Everyone's expected to be here tomorrow," District Attorney Ron Sutton said

A ninth defendant charged under the organized crime indictment, Joe Ortiz, has been declared incompetent to stand trial and has been sent to the Rusk State Hospital.

MHS holds off resilient Tigers

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Assistant Sports Editor

What started out to be a big, hearty belly laugh for the Midland High Bulldogs Monday night turned out to be a thin 92-90 victory over the Class 4A Snyder Tigers.

Snyder poured in 34 fourth quarter points to erase most of Midland High's 73-57 lead after three periods. At one point, MHS held a 23-point margin over the pesky Tigers, but they wouldn't die as the Bulldogs seemed to lose some intensity.

"It is easy to lose intensity when you get a big lead early. Shoot, I even lost my intensity," said Bulldog coach Jack Stephenson after the whisker cleaner. "If this had of been a district game, we would have done a lot of things differently, both offensively and defensively. We just let the kids play and can use this as a teaching tool for them. No one took control on the floor.

Darrell Davis, Midland High's monster of the hardwood, scored 21 of his 31 points in the first half, giving MHS a lead that looked to be safe into next week. He hit 10 of 13 first half shots, including a couple of slam-bam dunks and a couple of lefthanded darts to go with some assists that were just as amazing.

DAVIS HIT only two of nine from the field in the second half, but was a perfect six for six at the charity line. Snyder sophomore Chris Garnett and freshman Trey Tippens got the call to guard Davis and seemed to learn a few things in the process.

Our kids are very young and inexperienced," said Snyder coach Larry Scott. "It was worth the trip over here just to get those two youngsters up against Davis. We feel they will be like Davis when they get older, but they need to play against the likes of him. He's really something and I thought our two youngsters did a good job in the sec-

The Bulldogs jumped to a 26-12 first period lead, looking like an uncontrolled locomotive. Snyder came back with 28 second quarter points only to see MHS increase its lead to 57-40 at the half as the Bulldogs hit for 31 points. Davis had 10 in the first period and 11 in the sec-

MIAMI (AP) - Ron Fellows couldn't have felt any worse, and Mark Clayton couldn't have been

Fellows and his Dallas Cowboy teammates controlled the vaunted Miami passing attack for 57 minutes Monday night in the Orange Bowl. Then they - and Fellows in particular - watched as Dan Marino connected with Clayton on two longrange touchdowns to give the Dol phins a 28-21 victory and knock the Cowboys out of the National Football League playoffs for the first time since 1974.

Marino finished with impressive statistics - 23 of 40 for 340 yards and four touchdowns. But he picked up four of the completions, 110 of the yards and two of the touchdowns in the final three minutes.

First, Clayton snatched a pass away from a diving Fellows and scooted 39 yards to make it 21-14 with 2:31 to play.

I was trying to knock the ball down," Fellows recalled in a dreary Dallas locker room. "I got two fingers on it. I just wish my fingers were a little longer.'

Fellows said he was the happiest person in the Orange Bowl when the Cowboys tied the score 44 seconds later on a spectacular 66-yard touchdown catch by Tony Hill. He said his heart started fluttering when the ball, tipped by Dolphin defensive back Don McNeal, ended up in Hill's Clayton was the hero. The secondyear wide receiver, who also had snared a 41-yard touchdown in the second quarter, finished the season with 18 TD catches, breaking the NFL mark of 17 set by Don Hutson with the Green Bay Packers in 1942 and equalled by the Los Angeles Rams' Elroy Hirsch in 1951 and the Houston Oilers' Bill Groman in 1961.

"It won't realize what I've accomplished until the morning." Clayton said. "This is something that means a lot to me. A gentleman came up to me on the sidelines and said he

A LOT was riding on the game the Cowboys, 9-7, had to win to earn the final NFC wild-card berth and the Dolphins, 14-2, needed a victory to gain the home-field advantage if they reach the AFC title game. Still, the only really thrilling plays before the final quarter came during Miami's second-quarter touchdown

During that eight-play, 80-yard march Marino smashed the NFL single-season passing yardage record, set by Dan Fouts in 1981, with a 22yard, third-down pass to Nat Moore.

Five plays and a pass interference penalty later, the Miami quarterback found Clayton on a crossing pattern that the speedy receiver turned into a 41-yard touchdown.

On their first possession of the sec ond half, the Dolphins made it 140 with a classic 11-play, 81-yard drive capped by a three-yard toss from Marino to Bruce Hardy.

The Cowboys finally got on the board late in the third quarter when a pass interference penalty on the Dolphins' Lyle Blackwood in the end zone set up a 1-yard dive by Timmy Newsome

Michael Downs intercepted a Marino pass early in the final period and returned it 25 yards to the Dolphin 21. Four plays later, Newsome rambled four yards to his second touchdown.

That tied the score at 14-14 with 7:28 left. But everything in the first 57 minutes was just a prelude to the wild finish.

WHEN THE dust settled, Marino had established NFL season records for most touchdown passes (48), most passes completed (362), most 300-yard passing games (nine) and most passing yardage (5,084).

What more can you say about Marino," said Dolphins Coach Don Shula, "and Clayton demonstrated what a clutch receiver he is.

"It was a heck of a win and it came at the right time. We've been struggling, but today when we had to have it, we made the big plays.

Shula was referring to both the offense and the defense, which held Dallas to 316 yards. In the losing locker room, not everyone was as down as Fellows.

We probably gave Marino as much trouble as anybody all year, but he was able to get off the big plays," said Cowboys Coach Tom Landry, whose team will sit home during the-playoffs for only the second time in 18 years. "We were hitting them as much as I've seen them hit. We didn't play as well as we can, but we played as hard as we can.'

"I'm disappointed and proud at the same time," said Dallas quarterback Danny White, who finished with 20 completions in 34 attempts for 246 yards. "We had a chance to win against one of the best teams in the league. You really can't ask for much more from this team."

It's elementary, Watson

Odessa Permian is doing nothing in the playoffs to ruin its Mojo mystique. The Panthers spill out fourth quarter magic like a pharmacist does pills.

Ring up the fourth quarter, give the ball to fullback Dal Watson and watch the sparks fly. It really isn't a pretty sight, but like metal against metal, it gets the job done.

As magic shows go, this is boring stuff. However, it is proving to be the Right Stuff in Texas high school football — Championship Stuff. Watson does his rabbit-out-of-thehat trick with the grace of a bull-dozer. He's a Mack truck turned loose in a school zone. He doesn't even get warmed up until he's carried that pig hide about 15 times and played a little defense along the way. Get him tired and you're beat.

PERMIAN HAS come from behind in back-to-back playoff victories over Midland Lee and Highland Park. Watson for six straight carries and a winning touchdown over Lee, covering 41 yards. Watson for eight carries, 33 yards and a win- some food poisoning. Young plays ning TD in a 57-yard drive against great when sick - just ask Lee. Highland Park. Permian coach John Wilkins had the nerve to throw in three carries by Rich Fletcher in that one.

The results are the same another win for Mojo and "Mr. Fourth Quarter.'

When the playoffs started, the darling of magical Mojo was quarterback Alton Holloway. Everything he did was pretty. He threw the ball for completions at a 67 percent rate. He threw for touchdowns - 31 times. Grace and poise worthy of Rem-

But now Mojo has gotten ugly as the going gets tough. Dal Watson up the middle behind guard Patrick Young. This isn't pretty stuff, folks. It's Conan and his barbarians. This is stuff right off the canvas of Hieronymus Bosch

If Young isn't Watson's best friend, he should be. Watson should put a leash on his guard this week. Don't let Young walk the Permian halls alone. And if that isn't enough, maybe Watson should try to deal out Park, Permian looked to be in

MEANWHILE, Mr. Rembrandt will turn and give the ball to Mr. Bosch. Who really cares if you win 'ugly" or win "pretty?" Beaumont French better drop the language of love and start boning up on gutter English because French is about to meet "Mr. TD" of Odessa Permian.

It's all pretty to Wilkins. After all, he loves Bosch paintings. He was born on Halloween. Watson is perfect for Wilkins. His fullback can scare the West Texas boots off the Ghost of Santa Rita No. 1."

Watson probably listens to Waylon Jennings over a pickup radio. If he doesn't, his image is ruined. When he isn't playing football, Waston should wear a hard hat and visit oil rigs. If his parents would allow him to roam the streets at night, crime would go down 50 percent. We're talking about tough, folks.

Dal Watson tough. Fourth quarter tough. Victory tough. At one point against Highland playing in the middle of a flower covered field. The vision lasted one play and he was back. Highland Park now has the visions If nothing else, that brief glimpse of Dal Watson walking off the field proved he was human. Watson is no West Texas robot. He really breathes real air. But Lee and Highland Park aren't so sure.

If H. Ross Perot could have his way, he would drop the eight-hour rule and ban Watson from playing in the fourth quarter to study math. Now there's a move to advance education in the state of Texas. It would also return "pretty" back to Permian. This "ugly" stuff is rough on those of us who are on the outside

Lady Rebs break Bronchos, 77-39

By BOB BRUNDAGE Sports Writer

The Midland Lee Rebels opened the 1984-85 girl's District 4-5A season Tuesday night the way they were hoping they would: With a victory, beating Odessa High by a one-sided 77-39 margin at Lee Gym.

The Bronchos managed to keep the game fairly close in the first quarter, 12-9, but that was as long as the contest lasted as Lee exploded to a 40-20 halftime lead and kept increasing the gap in each of the last two quarters.

"It was very, very nice," said Lee head coach Shirley Stephenson about the Rebel's 1-0 start in 4-5A play, 7-6 overall for the year. "Our shooting has improved some and we're getting a little bit of confidence in ourselves. Our press worked real well tonight."

At times, Odessa High had a'l it could do to get off a shot. The Rebel press, at one point in the third and fourth quarter, played five minutes of shutout defense while the offense kept piling on the points.

'We weren't sure how we were going to do," said Rebel Denise Hatch. "But, I think we did pretty good. We did a lot better than we have been. There's more in this game than scoring. There's also rebounding. We did better at rebounding tonight and that was one of our goals.

But, when she lost her shot, there were others on the court to pick up the slack. Megan Pace scored six quick points in the second quarter toward her team high 12 points to help Lee build a 20-15 edge and Diane White and Valencia Wallace were good for another 11 and 10 respectively. On the night, all but one Rebel managed to chip in

For Odessa High, Karen Smith was the only player to break into double figures as she led all scorers with 13 points. Melissa Tucker added another nine.

While the Rebels are 1-0, 7-6, Odessa High has been having a lot of trouble, winning only three of 14 games and are 0-1 in loop play.

In junior varsity action, the Rebels made it a two-for-two night by posting a 58-37 victory. Lee's LaVett Wallace led all scorers with 14 points.

The Rebels now have to face one of their most intense games of the year as they travel across town to take on Midland High at MHS Gym at 6:15 and 8 p.m. on Thursday.

Sweden's Mats Wilander raises his fist in exultation after leading his Davis Cup team to a win over the United States.

US Davis Cup team ousted by Swedes

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) -The cursed red clay proved to be the Americans' quicksand again and they lost the Davis Cup final

It's absurd to play on a court that's so badly put together, especially when you play a team as good as they are because it's got to be fair," said John McEnroe Monday night after he and Peter Fleming lost a Davis Cup doubles match for the first time.

Anders Jarryd and Stefan Edberg snapped the Americans' 14-match winning streak with a 7-5, 5-7, 6-2, 7-5 victory to give the young Swedish team an unbeatable 3-0 lead going into today's final two singles in the best-offive match series.

'There's a lot of things wrong with tennis," said McEnroe. "It's absurb to play the final the week before Christmas and on a lousy court like this one. It's unbeliev-

But the Swedes love the clay. French Open champion Bjorn Borg, was not around. But Borg's tremendous triumphs - including five straight Wimbledon titles, which is one of sports' greatest accomplishments - triggered the success of today's Swedish heroes.

Edberg, 18, who became the first man to win the junior Grand Slam last year, became one of the youngest Davis Cup champions since Harvard student Dwight F. Davis put up the trophy 84 years

One of the few Swedish serveand-volley players, Edberg was the only player not to drop his serve in the doubles match. Twice he was down love-40, but he never wilted.

"I had problems with his serve, but this court is unacceptable to play tennis on," said McEnroe. The ball was bouncing over my head and all over the place. When you've got a spin like his (Edberg) serve you need a good court. Such a bad court shouldn't be allowed. Fleming, who has won six Grand Slam doubles titles, including this year's Wimbledon, as well as six straight Masters crowns with McEnroe, served poorly. That was one of the keys in this match. The American double-faulted on many crucial points, including match point.

Tve served badly on many occasions, but not necessarily on an occasion as big as this," Fleming said. "It was disappointing."

Both Americans looked rusty at times. No wonder. McEnroe had not played for seven weeks and both Fleming and Jimmy Connors came into the final after five-week layoffs.

Mats Wilander, match-tough after defending his Australian Open title on grass, whipped Connors in three straight sets in the opener Sunday. Then, clay-court star Henrik Sundstrom took McEnroe in another straight-set-

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. (AP) — Many of those who played for him made no effort to hide their feelings when Les Steckel, the hardline rookie coach, was fired by the Minnesota Vikings.

"I sense a huge sigh of relief," said defensive end Doug Martin, after the National Football League club announced the ouster Monday.

- Lou Holtz, head coach of the University of the Minnesota.

Joe Kapp, former Viking quarterback and head coach at the University of California.

"He tried to run a professional team with a high school attitude,' linebacker Scott Studwell said of Steckel. "It just doesn't work that way. Les dug himself an awful big hole and couldn't climb out of it.

"He alienated a lot of people and it was getting pretty ugly around here," Studwell added. "He didn't listen to his players. He wanted everybody to conform to his way of thinking instead of building his program around the team.

Martin said Steckel's first big mistake was to purge the team of veteran players like Terry LeCount, Rickey Young, John Turner, Randy Holloway and Duck White.

Steckel should be commended for starting a program called "Game Plan II" in which players received financial, career and chemical dependency counseling.

Although some players criticized Steckel for letting his deep religious convictions interfere with football, Coleman denied that was a problem.

"I don't think he was trying to turn us into gurus or a Jim Jonestype thing," Coleman said. "He made no bones about it: He was a bornagain Christian, but his religion was

But while Coleman thought Steckel's philosophy had its good points, there was a consensus among players that he worked them too hard in practice.

Just like everybody else, I'm relieved," said nose tackle Charlie Johnson, who played at Colorado when Steckel was an aide there. "A lot of guys were talking about how they weren't going to come back with all the workload we had. He wanted everybody to become a workaholic just like he was. Some guys don't need to go through that to perform at a professional level and things just got out of hand.'

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Be aware of what is going on behind the scenes at work. You need all the information you can get to make a business deal that will mean greater family financial security

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Stay the course. A positive attitude is the key to winning a competition. If concentration is difficult, take an occasional brief break. Romance needs more time to grow. Be patient.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21):

You could find some real bargains while shopping today. Hurry up and finish off your gift list. Travel reservations should be reconfirmed. Remove a restriction that has caused a negative reaction. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Recognize that there are no shortcuts to success and you will be ahead of the game. A work problem is not nearly as serious as it seems. Entertain this evening.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Love shows itself in many wonderful forms. If widowed, seek advice on business matters from someone your spouse trusted. Loyal friends protect your privacy. Do not confide in strangers.

For the spectator at a bridge match who can see all the cards, the game is easy. For the players, it is a bit more difficult. This hand is from the Epson Swiss Teams Championship in Tokyo.

When Montreal's Eric Kokish declared after the auction shown, he received the lead of the jack of spades, won in hand with the queen. Washington decorated for round of Christmas festivities

New York Times News Service

WASHINGTON - The chimney on the traditional gingerbread house at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave. is made of jellybeans. At Meridian House, a home away from home for many of Washington's diplomats, the windows are festooned with Victorian Christmas wreaths and the 12-foot blue spruce in the solarium is decorated with handmade nosegays and golden bells.

Across town at the Corcoran Gallery, the twin lions that guard the entrance are decked with holiday wreaths, and the evergreen trees that line the grand staircase are laden with tiny white lights and gold medallions, replicas of the Apollo Mask that mark the Corcoran's current exhibition of The Sun King: Louis XIV and the New World.

It is Christmastime in Washington. Despite balmy temperatures and no hint of snow, the festivities began early this month and will continue through the New Year with a round of candlelight tours, White House parties and celebrations at the Smithsonian and Kennedy Center.

President and Mrs. Reagan began the first of a dozen White House parties with a punch-and-cookie party last Monday afternoon for 500 children of diplomats.

The presidential mansion, with its masses of poinsettias, has seen its East Room turned into a winter fairyland, with blue spruces adrift with simulated fallen snow and glowing with white lights and crystal icicles. Candlelight tours will be conducted during thr days after Christmas.

In the Columbia Historical Society's Heurich House, built in the late 19th century, everything from teddy bears taking tea to Viennese chandeliers and marble busts was decorated with a red bow.

Meridian House, which currently has on view an exhibition of 19thcentury British watercolors, ushered in the holiday season with an English tea and concert of 19th-century music. Lady Wright, an actress by avocation whose husband, Sir Oliver Wright, is the British ambassador to the United States, will read from Victorian Christmas stories.

Each member of the audience to Lady Wright's Christmas Eve reading was asked to bring 10 pounds of non-perishable food, to be given to the Capital Area Community Food

That same evening the sights, scents and sounds of an early 19thcentury Christmas holiday will be re-created with an early Twelfth Night celebration at the Octagon House, the historic house and museum of the Federal Period owned by the American Institute of Architects. The period rooms will be decorated with topiary and white pine ropings.

Dec. 26 marks the beginning of a seven-day holiday celebration at the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History. More than 70 musical groups, dramatic performers, artisans and cooks will demonstrate the customs of 22 countries and cultures now practiced in Christmas, Hanukkah or New Year's festivities veritable feast of music and dance with the American Ballet Theater in residence; the National Symphony's presentation of Handel's "Messiah," and the Washington Opera's produc-tions of "La Sonnambula," as well as "The Medium" and "The Tele-phone." Among the offerings: choral groups, young people's concerts, medieval and Renaissance music, and a celebration of Hanukkah with the Shir Chadash Chorale.

Miss Field, 38, was divorced from her first husband, high school sweetheart Steve Craig, in 1973 after five years of marriage. They had two sons, Peter, 14, and Elijah, 12, who live with her. It was the first marriage for Greisman, 37.

Miss Field won an Academy Award for best actress in 1979 for her performance as a tough textile mill union organizer in "Norma Rae."

BOSTON (AP) - The voice of U.S. House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill Jr. rang out in a different setting when he read "A Visit from St. Nicholas" at a benefit Boston Pops concert. O'Neill's appearance Monday surprised some of the 2,300 in the audience, which welcomed him with oohs, applause and whistles when he was introduced by Pops conductor John Williams. It took five minutes for the 72-year-old Massachusetts represen. Thomas O'Neill tative to read the 56-line classic that begins, "Twas the night before Christmas ..." He was accompanied by Christmas music played by the 100-member Pops

O'Neill's performance was warmly applauded at the end and interrupted once by applause when Williams paused and looked at the speaker as he read lines describing Santa Claus: He was chubby and plump, a right jolly old elf, LAUSANNE, Switzerland (AP) - A doctor said octogenarian Belgian author Georges Simenon recovered so well after removal of a growth from one of his sinuses that he planned "to have a bottle of champagne when he got home.' Simenon, 81, best known for his 80 books featur-ing the detective Inspector Maigret, was released

Monday from Lausanne University hospital, said Dr. Nicolas de Tribolet. The author, who underwent surgery Dec. 7, to Simenon stopped writing novels in 1972 for health reasons. Later, he wrote his memoirs, which were published in 1981. Simenon, who lives in Lausanne, said at the time that the book would be his "last book to be published."

NEWCASTLE, England (AP) - Singer Mike Nolan of the British rock group Bucks Fizz, thrown through the windshield of the group's bus in an accident last week, remains seriously ill and is being kept sedated, a hospital spokesman said. He is out of the coma, although the hospital is still sedating him now and again so he does not use up too much energy trying to move and react," said the group's press agent, Dan Higson. "It is good news today, but anything can happen."

The accident occurred Dec. 11 near this northeast

British Foreign Secretary Geoffrey Howe, right, meets Mikhail Gorbachev, the Kremlin's second man, for a luncheon at Hampton Court near London.

Gorbachev: U.S.S.R. prepared to take radical measures leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev said today the Soviet Union is prepared to take the "most radical measures" in upcoming arms talks with the United States in order to limit and eventually eliminate nuclear weap-

"It is now up to the United States to make a move, to take this time a realistic stand which would make for effective negotiations," he told British members of Parliament during a visit to the House of Commons. His speech followed a morning of sightseeing during which Gorbachev, a member of the Soviet Politburo and a possible successor to President Konstantin U. Chernenko, paid a visit to London's historic Westminster Abbey

In a generally conciliatory speech to the lawmakers, Gorbachev stressed as he has before during his visit here the "key importance" of preventing an arms race in space.

Referring to a preliminary of arms talks in Geneva Jan. 7-8 between the United States and the Soviet Union, Gorbachev said they would "embrace the question of non-militarization of space and the questions of reducing nuclear arms, both strategic and medium-range' should be "considered and resolved in their interconnection.

He said the Soviet Union "is prepared to seek and work out the most radical measures on all these issues, measures which would help advance towards complete prohibition and eventual elimination of nuclear

The 53-year-old Gorbachev arrived at Westminster Abbey in a black Rolls Royce flying the Soviet hammer-and-sickle flag and was conducted around the church's precints by its dean, the Very Rev. Edward

During the half-hour tour, Gorbachev and his wife Raisa admired the abbey's Gothic architecture and 15th-century stained glass windows and viewed graves and memorial stones honoring Britains most famous artists, musicians, poets and politicians.

The visit to the abbey was part of Britain's effort to show Gorbachev the life and history of the country. On Monday, Gorbachev, who rose to become the youngest man in the Politburo after taking charge of Russian agriculture, toured an experimental farm west of London.

Some Western officials had hoped Gorbachev's string of meetings with British leaders might reveal Moscow's stance next month when the U.S. secretary of state, George P. Shultz, meets the Soviet foreign minister, Andrei A. Gromyko, for resumption of discussions on arms

But British sources said after Gorbachev's meeting Monday with Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe that he basically restated Kremlin positions and did not reveal Moscow's tack toward the upcoming superpower talks.

During his toast at a formal luncheon with Howe, Gorbachev said on Monday: "I would like to stress that in present circumstances it is especially important to avert the transfer of the arms race to outer space. If it is not done, then it would be unreal to hope to stop the nuclear

He appeared to make settlement of the question on space weapons a condition for success in arms negotiations that could follow the meeting by Shultz and Gromyko in Gen-

Soviet leaders have stressed the need to avoid an arms race in space for the past six months, but Gorbachev's words on Monday appeared

In an interview with the British Broadcasting Corp., Britain's prime minister, Margaret Thatcher, did not match Gorbachev's call for a ban on space weapons but did say that "one does not want to go into a higher and higher level of armaments. Next weekend, Mrs. Thatcher will be in the United States, where she will brief President Reagan on her talks with Gorbachev

Tolle has his way, Hong Kong will move lock, stock and barrel to Texas

Copy Craft offers professional service along with discount prices

Pat of Tipperary Corporation checks new supplies delivered by Chuck Sonnenberg (left) and Ken Craft, the experts at Copy Craft. Pat points out that Copy Craft will even keep an inventory record for customers.

"Wanted: polite receptionist with nice phone voice. Ability to lift up to 60 lbs. a must."

Strange job requirement? Not really. How do you think the copier and computer paper, diskettes, toner, ribbons and other supplies get to the stock room after the delivery boy scurries off to the next delivery. Someone in the office has to do the heavy work. Unless you call Copy Craft!

Ken and Letty Craft, Chuck Sonnenberg, and Karen Neatherlin of Copy Craft understand that you don't have time to stop what you're doing to put up new sup-plies. That's why Copy Craft, a division of Ken Craft, Inc., is a FULL SERVICE company which offers a wide selection at discount prices. Leaving things at the front door just isn't their style. In fact, Ken Craft explains that they will even be glad to keep an inventory list of your supplies. Depending on your needs, Copy Craft can set up weekly, biweekly, or monthly inventory service. So, whether you need diskettes, copy paper, printer ribbons, toner and deveoper, or computer stock forms and labels this company is ready to serve you in Midland or Odessa. All it takes is a phone

Because Copy Craft's new location on Highway 80 is equipped with a 7500 square foot warehouse they are able to offer the widest selection in the Permian Basin at discount prices. Some of the most popular brands which Copy Craft keeps in stock are Nashua Corporation products, Avery, Ko-rec-type, Star forms, and 3M products. Here's a check list of just a few of the things you can get with Copy Craft's out-standing service:

Nashua Corporation products: Xerographic copy paper diskettes 5¼" and 8" (with 5 year guarantee)

toners/developers for Xerox, IBM, Royal, Savin, Minolta, and Mita copiers

Avery Labels including a full line of com puter stock tab labels (all sizes)

Ko-Rec-Type full line of computer printer ribbons for IBM, Xerox, Deckwriter, TI, Anadex, Lanier, Wang, and NEC full line of typewriter ribbons lift off tapes

Star Forms full line of computer stock (45 different sizes in inventory)

3M Products magnetic tapes, diskettes, head cleaning kits, static mats, and mag cards

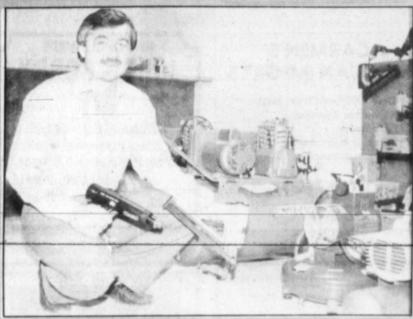

Well log paper

Now that's selection and it's only the beginning. Because the selection is so wide, Copy Craft can boast of customers such as accounting firms, banks, schools, and large industrial firms. Their benefits of working with a local firm. For instance, on the occasion when a customer gets a defective diskette, Copy Craft's customer doesn't face shipping charges and a long delay in getting a replacement. All it takes is a quick call to Copy Craft at 561-9118 and a replacement will be delivered.

One of the most incredible things about Copy Craft is their discount pricing. In most businesses you have to make a choice between service and discount prices. At Copy Craft SERVICE AND DISCOUNT PRICES go hand in hand. Copy Craft says "no" to freight charges, "no" to the quota game and "yes" to customer needs

"Wanted: Customers who appreciate COMPLETE SER-VICE, WIDE SELECTION, and DISCOUNT PRICES on computer, copier, and typewriter supplies. Just call Copy Craft at 561-9118, we'll come to you!" Now, doesn't that sound better?

Rick Shumake of West Texas Tool Products, formerly Senco, explains that they have expanded their line. They still offer the high quality Senco fasteners, along with their new Speed Air and Thomas Compressor lines. Go by their new location in the Midkiff Business Center, 1308 S. Midkiff, No.

Judge to decide if 'gory' photos can be evidence

By HALLYE JORDAN Staff Writer

A recess was called Monday in the opening day of a southside Midland businessman's murder trial while 238th State District Court Judge Vann Culp decided whether or not to allow "gory, bloody and messy" photographs of the victim's body to be entered as evidence.

Maximo Cuellar, 40, of 204 E. Wolcott and owner of Cuellar Contracting Co., is on trial for the May 20 slaying of 40-year-old Fidel A. Ruiz.

Ruiz's body was found lying in the front seat of his silver four-door Ford, parked in front of the La Oficina bar on South Rankin Highway about 7:15 p.m. He had been shot four times, according to sheriff's office reports.

Defense attorney Bill Smith, of Midland, argued the 10 photographs taken by Midland County Sheriff's Office Sgt. Keith Turner were "gory, bloody and messy." He also contended they were "repetitious" and highly inflammatory

The law pertaining to gory, bloody and messy pictures is this: When the word description by an eyewitness cannot adequately describe what the eye sees, then the court can allow gory pictures to come in if it aids an eyewitness, such as Turner or (Sgt. Charles W.) Cupp to describe what was there," Smith said after the six-man, six-woman jury was dismissed until 9 a.m. today. "They haven't even attempted to describe what is here." First Assistant District Attorney David Rosado argued the two officers "testified that they (the photos) are fair and accurate descriptions of the scene.

"Well, I'm not sure that the officers testified efficiently enough to admit these but I'd be inclined to admit" at least four of the series of photos, Culp said.

Rosado and Assistant District Attorney Jack Connors said they planned to bring the officers back to the stand this morning.

After jury selection Monday morning, the state's first witness testified he was sitting at a table in the southside bar when he saw the shooting through an open door.

fied he saw the victim pull up to the bar and Cuellar pull up behind him, blocking Ruiz's car. Cuellar got out of his vehicle, walked to Ruiz's window and shot into the car, Sapian said. The defendant then walked around to the other side and shot into the passenger window, the witness testified.

Another patron of the bar, Frank Hernandez, said he had just started on his first beer and was going to play pool when "I heard a big ol', well, I thought it was a blow-out."

He testified he went to the door of the bar because he "was curious" and saw a man who "had a gun in his hand." He gestured at the defen-

'I went back inside real quick," he said. "I was scared."

Hernandez, who said he did not know Cuellar at the time of the incident, identified the man he saw as the defendant.

Another witness, Samuel Hernandez, said he was driving back into Midland with his brother and a friend when he heard shots and, looking over at the bar, "I seen this guy standing there and he looked like he was talking.

'I seen a truck parked close behind a car that was parked toward the bar," he testified "I seen this guy standing there like he was talking to the person...He had his hand on the door and he was looking to the side o see if anyone was looking at him He was trying to be cool, to look cool like nobody knows what's going on." Hernandez said he and his brother and a friend were driving about 45 mph when they passed the bar and heard "about three shots." They traveled north about a block before turning around and returning to the parking lot, he said.

In statements given to sheriff's By LANA CUNNINGHAM office investigators, Hernandez described the man as a "white or Mexican male, 6-feet, 4-inches tall and weighing about 200 pounds." When questioned by Smith, who was assisted by Midland attorney Jeff Hinkley, Hernandez said, "Well maybe it was lesser than that. 4 didn't pay much attention to

Hance may return to politics in 1986

Assistant City Editor

The Democratic Party has become too liberal for the general populace and may not be able to pull together for the 1986 elections, said U.S. Rep. Kent Hance, D-Lubbock, in his final news conference here as a congressman from the 19th District.

Speaking to reporters at Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission Monday morning, Hance looked at the changing Democratic Party and predicted he would be back on the political scene in 1986. He also criticized the tax plan proposed by Treasury Secretary Donald Regan. charging it would cripple the oil industry in the Permian Basin.

He gave up his congressional seat to seek the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate seat vacated by retiring Republican Sen. John Tower. Hance was forced into a Democratic runoff against State Sen. Lloyd Doggett, who then lost the general election to Republican media in his first term as a member of the conservative Boll Weevils, Hance said, "The Democratic Party no doubt has become too liberal and a lot of people have realized this."

The challenge by Congressman Charles Stenholm, D-Stamford, to Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill, D-Massachusetts, was a gamble but it forced some concessions by O'Neill, according to Hance. Looking at the support Stenholm gathered from his cohorts. Hance said there might be more of a realization among Democratic congressmen that the party needs to change.

"They've got to stop having all these little caucuses. They try to please so many special interest groups and they can't win a general election. Doggett and Walter Mondale were selling high top shoes. People aren't buying high top shoes anymore." The national party is still in disarray, he said, citing as an example the party's inability to select a national chairman. To Doggett's criticism after the Hance actively campaigned for him, the congressman said, "If I could have delivered every vote in West Texas for Doggett, he still would have lost. When I lost I tried to handle it in a positive way. If you're big enough to run, you have to be big enough to accept the loss.

The big fight in Congress this year will be over the federal deficit, military spending and a new tax plan, he said retary Regan's would triple unemployment here in the Permian Basin. It does away with intangible drilling costs," he said. "You'll dry up capital formation for drilling.

If the bill passes with that section included, he said, he hopes it will be done on a phased-in basis. "Otherwise, there will be real problems in the energy industry

Pointing out that he is prodefense. Hance said the military budget should have the same scrutiny as other departments. "The president will have to give on defense spending.

Hance looked back on his six years in Congress and the previous four as a state senator to pick out his accomplishments. On the national level, the top two he cited were the Conable-Hance tax cut bill of 1981, which resulted in the three-year, 25percent tax reduction, and his work as a leader of the coalition to defeat the Simpson-Mazzoli immigration

On the local level, he cited his teaching hospital in Lubbock and an exemption he gained for El Paso Products last year.

Hance will be returning to Lubbock where he will be working for a Dallas-based law firm, specializing in tax law. But next summer and fall, he will evaluate his chances for one of the top three state slots: governor, lieutenant governor or attorney general, he said

Although he lost the bid for U.S. senator, Hance noted he had built a statewide base of support from that election which he would use for

'Love' costs ex-teller four years in prison

From Staff Reports

A 24-year-old ex-bank teller who embezzled funds to "buy love" from her boyfriend and mother was sentenced Monday to four years in prison by U.S. District Judge Lucius D. Bunton.

"I've known all along I've done wrong," said the woman, Joanne Alice Gibson of Odessa. She had pleaded guilty on Dec. 4 to embezzling $16,000 from United Bank of Midland in 1984. "It was a big mistake...I am very sorry," she said. "For the last couple of months, that's all I've thought

Her defense attorney, Howard Lemmons of Odessa, said Ms. Gibthe four weeks he has known her. 'She is aware of the wrong she has committed. Lemmons said Ms. Gibson was 'going to make every effort" to make restitution.

Bunton recognized that the woman had cooperated with authorities "since you were caught...I also recognize you took a rather large sum of money.

"You attempted to buy love from a person, your boyfriend, and from your mother at the same time," the judge said. "You got caught in a trap and continued to go downhill all the time." He noted that the woman had "violated a trust.

The war was over, Watergate was winding down, and suddenly there just didn't seem to be all that much to get upset about. Saving the world was still a laudable goal, but in prosperous, suburban New Rochelle, N.Y., the Class of '74 was more concerned about doing well on the

The concept of school spirit was still regarded with suspicion, but for the first time in years, all the prom-tickets were sold — I remember renting a hideous electric-blue tux with an orange ruffled shirt, and slow-dancing with my girlfriend to "Color My World."

But for everyday wear, I was a bit more casual. Jeans, flannel shirts and tennis shoes comprised my entire wardrobe, and ten years later, they still account for about half the items in my closet. My hair isn't as long and I don't wear glasses anymore, but I don't think I've changed all that much, at least not to look at. Imagine my surprise, then, when I walked into my 10th-year reunion last month and nobody recognized

Well, OK, there were a couple of people who knew me, but they were friends I've kept up with through the years. Among those who hadn't seen me since 1974, I kept having to explain who I was.

"Hi. Mark Lewis."

"Uh, hi."

"I sat next to you in 10th-grade biology, remember? We dissected a frog together.

'Oh yeah, Mark Lewis. How've you been?'

We reminisced for awhile about the frog we'd disembowled, and agreed it was a shame that life after high school offered so few opportunities to slice up defenseless amphibious creatures. Then I moved

"Hi. Mark Lewis."
"Hi. I'm Melayne Syracuse."

'Oh - do I know you?" Melayne Syracuse had been the apple girl of my dreams. I used to stare at her from across the room in European History, fascinated by her land, Texas, and what are you doing long hair, her lissome body and her perpetually ethereal expression. She always wore jeans and peasant blouses, and she wore them very

Now here she was, dressed for success in a power suit, handing me a card which said she was an assistant vice president for Bankers Trust. She still had no idea who I was, but at least she didn't associate me with a gutted frog. I pocketed the card and moved on.

"Hey, Andy, how ya doing? I'm Mark Lewis.' 'You're kidding."

I showed him my driver's license "I guess you really are Mark Lewis," he admitted, scrutinizing the card. "But where the hell is Midthere? I told him about my thrilling life as a West Texas journalist. He looked skeptical. How much do you make?"

I mentioned a sum much too embarrassing to repeat here. He gave me a knowing look, like he'd always known I would come to no good. Turns out he'd been to Harvard Law School and was now raking in the big bucks as a corporate

"But Andy, you always wanted to be a forest ranger."

"I got over it." But there was a crack in his smug establishment facade, and I proceeded to exploit it. By the standards of 1974, he had sold out, and he knew it. So had everybody else, of course, but we were probably the last class of graduating seniors who felt at all guilty about materialistic

"So, Andy. What have you done for mankind lately?" He cringed. Mercilessly, I twisted "Weren't you going to join the Peace Corps or something? What happened to the ideals of our youth, Andy?"

He thought about it for a moment. "I guess we couldn't afford them." I nodded sagely, and moved on.

Jurors award Odessa man $790,000

MONAHANS - Jurors in a Ward County district court awarded a 56year-old Odessa man $790,000 in damages Friday for injuries he sustained in a 1983 oil field accident.

Odessa attorney Ruff Ahders said Monday that his client, Edward Goodnight, 56, of Odessa, was awarded $790,000 by jurors in the 143rd District Court in Monahans. District Judge Larry Fuller said this was the largest amount awarded in a personal injury suit in county his-Goodnight's shoulder was fractured and his collarbone was crushed when he was struck by elevators on a drilling rig eight miles west of Monahans on June 20, 1983. He was hospitalized a total of seven days, according to Ahders.

Doctors have said Goodnight will not work again as his collarbone has never healed, said Ahders. The suit alleged Gulf was negligent for providing Poole Co. with the wrong equipment and Poole was negligent for operating the rig too fast.

Ahders said Gulf and the Poole Co. were both claiming the other was at fault. Goodnight, as an employee of Cox Tong Rentals, was called to the location to run casing into a hole. He was in the derrick when the elevators struck him.

Evening wear for holidays shows glamourous styles

By GWEN JONES Hearst News Service

The return to elegance in fashion couldn't have happened at a better time: the start of the holiday party season. The growth of the eveningwear industry this year has provided women with a new range of options for Christmas '84.

Retailers point out that in good economic times people tend to entertain and dress themselves more lavishly. In addition, evening wear has been influenced in part by such 'Paper Dolls," "Dallas" and "Cover

Nolan Miller designs the extravagant finery for "Dynasty," as well as the retail fashion collection, which includes sumptuous evening gowns.

'For so long, clothes seen on television were almost anti-fashion," he says. "Jeans were the most stylish look. But designers sensed that the public was ready for a change. You can't imagine the thousands of letters we received inquiring about the clothes on the show. That wouldn't have happened if Alexis wore

The popularity of "Dynasty" regalia also has translated into increased sales for other pricey designer labels. Gianni Versace's slim, spaghetti-strapped dresses go for $3,500. Bill Blass' black silk charmeuse and rhinestone gowns go for $2,065, while Oscar de la Renta's lace and satin ball gowns run $2,000.

But it's not necessary to spend thousands to look chic. Elektra Cassedei's dropped-waist dresses in sequined chiffon, lace and velvet the season's most stylish fabric are more reasonably priced in the $150 to $200 bracket.

The flourishing evening wear business has spawned a number of guides to building a practical p.m. wardrobe. In "Hot Tips" (Perigee Books), Frances Patiky Stein recommends the following:

- Jackets: Stick to a cardigan shape in black or navy for evening. for day. Possible fabrics are velvet, satin, wool crepe or silk crepe. An extra jacket should be a vibrant jewel color.

Pants: Simple straight-legged, creaseless pants can be worn with a variety of tops. Colors might include navy or a pale shade such as cream, beige, taupe, peach or pearl gray.

Blouses: Look for interesting necklines or collarless styles in vivid colors like cobalt blue, crimson and Evening dresses: For that One Big Evening gown, look for a silhouette that's soft, easy-fitting and darktoned. Timeless fabrics include black georgette, silk satin and jer-

"For a successful evening wardrobe," Stein also points out, "choose pieces in late-day fabrics such as silk, crepe de chine, silk jersey, silk crepe, velvet and satin. These fabrics can also be worn for day.

HIGH POINT, N.C. - The '80s have seen a heightened reaction against look-alike housing and a rising interest in the creation of personalized living spaces. A chief means of giving an interior space a unique personality is the use of accessory furnishings: lamps, mirrors, vases, clocks, bric-a-brac, wall art, floral arrangements and other small decorative pieces.

The demand for one-of-a-kind, customized or limited-edition accessory items, many of them hand-crafted and signed by their creators, was apparent in accessory showrooms here at the recent Southern Furni-

received heavy play and should be in stores shortly are sculptured ceramic vases, oversize urns, huge hand-blown glass bowls and small tables, sleek lynx and impala statuary, hand-thrown stoneware, mirrors incorporating stained-glass art and large glass seashells and pillows. "Accessories have been in vogue for a long time, but as an industry we have become much more sophisticated," said Jules Fogel, president of Jaru, one of the stylish accessory design and manufacturing groups at the market. "We now are a home fashion industry charged with dressing a home and not just an arm of the furniture business.

We take accessories more seriously. Good taste has no price tags or geographical boundaries and more and more customers who want their homes to be unique and individualistic are becoming aware of Jaru featured vases, floral arrangements, urns, mirrors, pedestals and animal and human figure sculptures - some with 18-karat gold finishes and others in muted, light earthy surface colors of salmon and peach. The influences of the design motifs ranged from Egypt to the Orient to Babylon.

It is, said Fogel, essentially a neoclassical look, "or, cleaned-up classical. There is a contemporary transitional look that is very much in vogue now, strongly influenced by classicism, but with cleaner, more modern, lines. But it has subtle detailing and is definitely not out of the '80s and not Babylon in the '80s.'

HENRY JAMPOL, president of Botteccino, another leading accessory company showing at High Point, reported keen buyer interest in an 8-foot fiberglass reproduction of a Corinthian column; the piece sells for $525 and is available in several finishes including granite and terra-cotta.

"It's crazy, but everybody seems to want one of these," said Jampol. 'Architects want to put them in houses. Decorators make four-poster beds out of them. Post-modernism has brought back the Greeks.'

Botteccino's accessory lines also reflect the strong influence of Art Deco in mottled, hand-blown glass tables and large bowls imported from Italy, in lacquered apothecary jars, also Italian imports, and in long-stem black-and-white glass flowers created for display alone or in bouquets.

Ethnic Aesthetics, a cultural crafts company, filled a showroom with striking oversize, unfinished wooden heads carved in the Philippines: heads of Zeus, Athena, Kronos, Bac-

"We believe classical ruins are next move in the interior design business," said Jack Carlson, Ethnic showroom superintendent. "Appala-chian and cottage crafts have gone their cycle. These new carvings, simply because of the scale, can become one-art accessory statements in a lot of town houses.

NOT TO BE OVERLOOKED at High Point were George Kovacs' Memphis-inspired wall clocks and a group of small reproduction lamps that Kovacs debuted through his New York-based company of George Kovacs Lighting Inc. The lamps all classically modern and reproduced in solid brass or nickel-plated chrome — were from original groups designed by Josef Hoffmann, Kolo Moser, Otto Wagner and other well-known Austrian architects of the early 20th century

The American Craft Showroom at High Point featured work by 30 craftsmen from around the country. Today's craftsmen — professionals rather than hobbyists - are increasingly selling through wholesalers and reaching a larger market, said Crafts' showroom coordinator

Beauty book by 'ageless' Swedish actress

Hearst Feature Service

Britt Ekland is no stranger to the camera. As she sat in front of her makeup mirror, hastily redoing her face - 30 seconds' worth of fluffbrushing on blusher and relining of eyes in kohl and aquamarine - she talked nonstop. A TV cameraman was insinuating his lens over her houlder the entire time

The ageless Swedish starlet knows her best angles and is quite bossy about them. "Please," she said, very firmly, "don't take any pictures of me while I'm talking. You see, it's a technical thing. I really don't think I look my best with my mouth wide

She is determined that the people who see her on TV and read about her in the paper will see her always looking "my best." That means maybe four changes of outfit per day and a constant glimpse in the months. I weighed 90 pounds.") mirror to retouch the unretouchable. Nature gave her great bones; the cosmetic geniuses of Chanel, Clinique, Lancome and Borghese only gild the lily.

FROM A DISTANCE, she may look like a dew-swept starlet with Swedish-blond looks, apple cheeks and a sleek 5-feet-5, size-4 frame green lamb suede. But she leaves nothing to chance.

At 42, Ekland — ex-wife of Peter Sellers and ex-lover of rock producer Lou Adler and rock superstar Rod Stewart - has, in her own words, been around. It certainly doesn't show on her face or her body. Spend the $12.95 that her large-format beauty book costs, and you can see she's in fine shape in the sauna, in numerous silken teddies or in what she calls a "suspender belt."

But being Britt is a full-time occupation. She's on the road with her book, "Sensual Beauty and How to Achieve It," and is actively seeking as much publicity as she can. A comeback, certainly, for the lady Stewart. ("I didn't eat for six "beautiful breasts."

THE BOOK, a collaboration with writer Sue Russell, is a compilation of health and nutrition tips, makeup and exercise advice, how to use perfume and clothing to their best advantage, skin care, travel advice and a few sexually inspired toss-offs. She'll tell you how to do your face neatly swathed from neck to toe in for making love (no blusher, she says: "If all goes according to plan, your cheeks will be naturally rouged up anyway!"); what kind of light to use for best effect; how to keep on your shoes until last; and what to do after. (A clue to sensual lovemaking: You should be impeccably clean. It's a turnoff to spend the day running around sweating and then leap straight into bed.")

If anyone should know about sensuality and beauty, it's Ekland, who has made a habit of putting her love life in front of her career. Her marriage to Sellers, who was 20 years her senior, found her living in hotels and dressing in mink and Chanel, trying her damnedest to "look sophisticated and older." Her love who went into an anorectic frenzy affair with Adler produced a child, after her very public breakup with Nicholai, now 11 - and, she says,

These days, the market is flooded with the beauty books of night-time soap stars, exercise gurus, bona fide superstars and not-so-sparklers. Raquel Welch has one. Victoria Principal has two. Linda Evans has entered the fray. And now, ta-da: Britt Ekland.

The title, "Sensual Beauty and How To Achieve It," is deliberately provocative. Sensuosity, Ekland says, is not predicated on beauty - it's more of an attitude. "Being sensual is an awareness and a security." Simple.

There are some rules for being sensuous, mostly having to do with body functions. Don't, for instance, eat such things as green pepper and radishes, which have a habit of "coming back on you." Coffee is out - it may give you bad breath.

She has words on everything from how to camouflage a coldreddened nose ("a permanent suntan" or a darker shade of foundation) to cleaning out your ears with a "cotton bud

On a practical level, Britt has advice for busy women, especially in the energy department. She prescribes a capsule of powdered ginger for indigestion: "Empty out a headache or vitamin capsule, throw away the contents. Fill the capsule with powdered ginger from your kitchen shaker. Give it a few minutes to travel through your miles of inner tubing, and nine times out of ten, the indigestion will disap-

Of Dr. Bieler's Miracle Antibloat Broth, she writes, "If I do ever find myself with that puffy a combination of four vegetables that make the perfect mineral-potassium blend." It's a good liver-kidney cleanser, she claims, especially after a period of self-indulgence.

To make the broth, chop up zucchini, green beans, celery and parsley into four equal-sized piles. Cook the harder ones first in a pint of water, then add the rest and simmer the whole lot for 20 minutes. Let the broth cool a bit and then "whoosh it up in your blender. It might look disgusting, but in my opinion, it's lelicious." Try eating the stuff for three days (which Ekland admits may be a chore). Drink plenty of water or herb tea with no sugar or sweetener. Have a bowl of broth, hot or cold (seasoned with herbs but no salt), and

American designers' spring fashions look alike

New York Times, News Service

NEW YORK -- What was most striking about the American spring collections was the similarity of the clothes on the runways. If the designers have their way, it seems that women next spring will be wearing little rnore than long black skirts and white shirts.

Many of the clothes seemed varia-

Japanese designs called 'amusing'

New York Times News Service

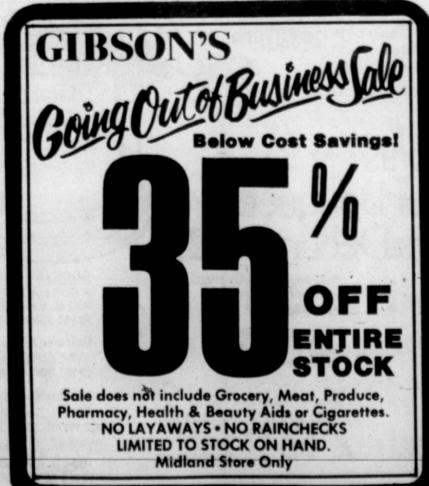

Mitsuhiro Matsuda, one of the leading Japanese designers, who has a shop on Madison Avenue at 70th Street, recently gave a show filled with amusing clothes, most of which seem to demand that one wear circular, wire-rimmed glasses. Matsuda is the master of a look best described as prewar country club. The men in his show, for example, wore those little glasses and pale stretch stirrup pants, while the women wore black silk camp shirts with a scattered paisley pattern, pale gray jackets with a marbleized pattern and multilayered black net skirts.

Julio Espada staged a small show of his spring collection, entirely of matte jersey, and managed to make it look fresh. The newest idea? His clingy, black matte jersey crisscrossback dresses, in mini or "rhumba" length, as Espada describes his calflength skirt, worn over black lace body stockings. To top it off, a broad-shouldered black coat.

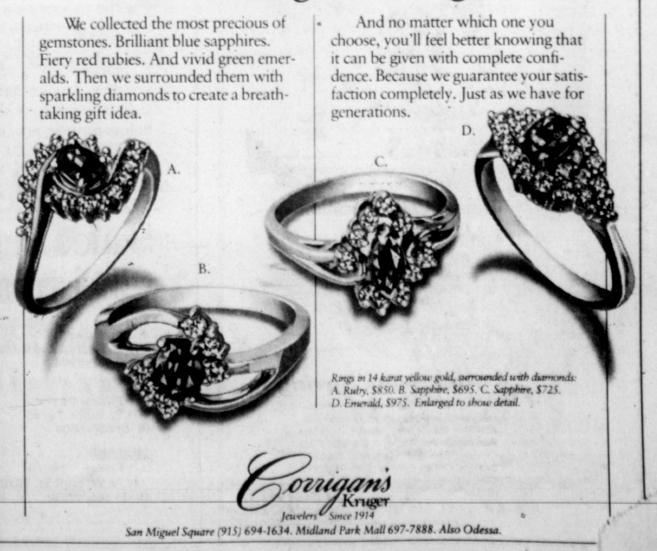

His coats succeeded at a look that other designers only strived to achieve: the combination of straight, solid shoulders with a fluid body.

Calvin Klein, whose shows were the outstanding ones of the season. Lauren and Klein appear to be on the same wavelength. Their white shirts seemed identical - beautifully cut with full sleeves that narrowed to the neatest cuffs. The only difference: Lauren made his shirts in cotton, Klein in linen. As for the rest, one had to search tions on those of Ralph Lauren and long for anything new. Sarong skirts showed up in the collections of Oscar de la Renta, Anne Klein and Geoffrey Beene, who showed a red Charmeuse sarong with a red linen T-shirt. Somewhere along the way though, the designers seemed to have forgotten that sarongs work best when they are tied into place by the wearer and not sewn into place by the designer.

"I'll take red, blue or green. As long as it's surrounded by diamonds from Corrigan's-Kruger."

DEAR ABBY

Important part of giving is receiving written thanks

mgry!
Why don't my grandchildren (who live in another city) thank me for the birthday and Christmas presents I send them? They range from age 7 to 19. I have sent self-addressed, stamped envelopes and boxes of thank-you notes, hoping they will get the hint. I have not had a written thank-you from any of them, and I feel hurt, neglected and unappreciated. When they see me, as an afterthought they mention how much they appreciated the gifts and checks, then offer a weak apology, You know how busy I am, Gram.

Don't tell me it's their parents' fault for not teaching them better manners. Their parents know better because I taught them since they were old enough to print that they must send thank-you notes.

Should I conveniently "forget" their birthdays and Christmas? I select their gifts with loving care and send generous checks, too, but not one word do I hear. I love them very much and it hurts to know they care so little for me or my feelings. Should I tell them? Or should I tell their parents? - HURT GRAND-

DEAR ABBY: Yesterday, the cashier at the checkout counter did not know the price of an avocado I was purchasing, so to save time I told her what I honestly thought to be the price - 39 cents.

While in line at my next stop (the bakery department), the young woman directly behind me said (in a stage whisper), "By the way, the avocado was 50 cont." cado was 59 cents.

Had she spoken up when she heard me tell the cashier the avocado was 39 cents, I would have thanked her and apologized to the cashier for having given her the wrong information.

Abby, I am a senior citizen who has no need to con a supermarket out of 20 cents. Furthermore, since the young woman knew the avocado was 59 cents, was she not, by her silence, aiding and abetting who she thought was a criminal at the checkout counter? - SOUTHFIELD.

DEAR SOUTHFIELD: Yes. The whisperer may have hesitated to correct you at the time because she probably didn't want to risk embarrassing you for a mere 20 cents. However, the size of the sum does not alter the principle.

Walking has always been the illegitimate child of the physical fitness movement. In spite of the fact that 99 million Americans list walking as their No. 1 mode of exercise, it just isn't making it as a major sport. As an early morning stroller, I've done a lot of thinking about this.

Maybe we need a super brat like tennis has to make obscene gestures to cars that run us off the road. Or perhaps a few celebrities like Dinah Shore and Glen Campbell to entertain us as we walk like they do in golf. The ambiance of bowling might help where we all drink beer and shout encouragement to one another. On the other hand, the long-distance runners have a great gimmick. T-bill yields fall sharply WASHINGTON (AP) - Yields on short-term Treasury securities fell sharply, with rates on threemonth bills hitting their lowest level in 22 months.

The government sold $6.8 billion in three-month bills in Monday's auctions at an average discount rate of 7.97 percent, down from last week's 8.38 percent, and the lowest rate since 7.94 percent on Feb. 22, 1983.

Another $6.8 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 8.15 percent, down from 8.57 percent last week and the lowest rate since 8.14 percent on May 16, 1983. Rates have fallen virtually every week since their high points in early September of 10.63 percent on three-month bills and 10.75 percent on six-month bills.

LONDON (AP) - The British pound flirted with an all-time low in early European trading today and the price of gold plummeted to a 30-month low in selloffs blamed on a slump in the oil mar-

The dollar dipped following a day of interest rate cuts.

The pound, a petrocurrency by virtue of Britain's vast North Sea reserves, slipped to $1.1845 in morning trading before recovering to stand at $1.1855. Both were below the all-time closing low of $1.1880 on Oct. 18 and just above the all-time trading low of $1.1830 set the same day.

The selloff in gold began in the Far East, where the metal lost more than $10 an ounce. It closed at $307.85 a troy ounce in Hong Kong, down $10.94 from Monday.

When trading opened in London, the price hit $306.50, its lowest since June 28, 1982, before rebounding to about $308. The city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $308.25 at mid-morning.

In Zurich, Europe's largest bullion market, gold was quoted at noon at $308, compared with $315 late Monday.

Silver also was sharply lower. It was bid in London at $6.29 a troy ounce, compared with late Monday's $6.496.

Bank cuts prime rate to 16-month low

NEW YORK (AP) — If recent drops in money-market rates continue, other major banks likely will follow Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., which announced it would reduce its prime lending rate to the lowest level in 16 months, analysts said.

The half-point reduction to 10.75 percent, announced Monday by the nation's fourth-largest bank and effective today, was the first time a big bank's prime rate was below 11 percent since early August 1983, when it was 10.5 percent.

The move by Manufacturers Hanover in New York came as moneymarket rates fell in the credit markets. Rates in the open market determine how much banks must pay to obtain funds for lending, and hence what they charge for loans. Declines in money-market rates earlier this year, which came in tandem with the slowing economy and a less-restrictive monetary stance by the Federal Reserve Board, have helped lower the prime from 13 percent in September.

Most banks adopted an 11.25 percent prime rate on Nov. 28, although No. 2 Citibank of New York has maintained an 11.5 percent rate. Whether the new prime-rate cut spreads industrywide "will depend-on whether money-market rates remain relatively low," said Maury

N. Harris, vice president and credit analyst at Paine Webber Inc. "If the recent decline in money-market rates is sustained, then the other banks will follow through," he said.

The prime rate is the base upon which banks compute interest charges on short-term business loans. Their most creditworthy clients often pay below the prime rate, while smaller businesses typically pay one or two percentage points above the prime.

While the prime rate does not directly affect most consumer loans, changes in the prime are strong indications of interest-rate trends

Whether the recent drop in money-market rates is sustained could well depend on the Federal Reserve's policy-making arm, which on Monday began what analysts called a critical two-day, private meeting to plot overall monetary strategy for the next few weeks.

Some analysts say the central bank should vote to further relax its grip on credit, and push interest rates lower, to avoid an economic recession. Others counter that earlier credit-easing moves by the Fed, as evidenced by the falling prime rate, have already triggered an economic rebound. To ease further, these analysts argue, would serve

Southwest brings in new jetliner with style

By JOHN PAUL PITTS Business-Oil Editor

One thing Southwest Airlines has never been accused of is a lack of class. And when the highly successful airline saluted its new generation of aircraft this week in Dallas, it did it with first class style.

Over 600 guests from throughout Texas were flown by Southwest to Dallas Sunday, boarded for the night at the luxurious Anatole Hotel and treated to a gala dinner, where the evenings entertainment consisted of an address by featured speaker Chuck Yeager, the pioneer test pilot who first surpassed the speed of sound and a professionally produced Broadway-style musical covering the history of the Texas airline from June 18, 1971, to present.

Surprise guest and featured entertainment was Bob Hope, who kept the gathering laughing and applauding for over an hour. "I don't know how I got here," said Hope. "I was on my way to El Paso, and the next thing I knew.

The theme of the event and the name of the first 737-300 delivered to Southwest was "The Spirit of Kitty Hawk," and the theme was carried out to the letter, as 90 quest waited in the misty, wintery morning at Dallas' Love Field to board a 737-300 which would take them on a threelegged journey from Dallas to Houston to San Antonio and back to Dallas to duplicate Southwest's origioperation in June of 1971 with only three aircraft. The inaugural flight, complete with flight attendants dressed in tuxedos, took off at 10:35 a.m., at exactly the same time, on the same day, the Wright brothers made their inaugural flight 81 years ago on Dec. 17, 1903.

Unique forward installation of the engines and relocation of engine accessories to the side rather than bottom gives them a flat bottom appearance and maintains ground clearance.

With the new engines, the 737-300 takes off more quietly than any twinjet in its class, with a noise level well below the stringent new requirements set forth by U.S. Fed-second attempt to halt prices GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) - An

OPEC prepares

OPEC committee recommended today that the cartel continue production cutbacks adopted seven weeks ago in an attempt to shore up oil prices and that OPEC call for an end to cheating on its quotas.

The renewed call for restraint came as analysts were expressing skepticism about OPEC's ability to successfully defend its official price of $29 a barrel for Arabian Light crude oil, its benchmark blend.

The 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries meets Wednesday in Geneva to assess the emergency measures it took in late October.

Stephen Smith, an energy analyst at Data Resources Inc., a private consulting firm, said Monday that even if the OPEC managed to get through the winter with its benchmark price intact, the price most likely would fall in the spring.

"The only question in my mind is, is it going to be more than $1 or $2,"

A drop of $1 a barrel is the equivalent of a reduction of approximately 21/2 cents a gallon on refined products, such as gasoline and heating oil, if the entire cut is passed on to consumers.

Meanwhile, analysts in bullion and currency markets attributed a sharp drop in the price of gold this week and a dip in the British pound to near its all-time low to traders' expectations that OPEC would fail to stop oil prices from falling fur-

At a meeting today, OPEC's watchdog market monitoring committee cited continued oil market sluggishness and recommended that the cartel continue to hold its production at 16 million barrels a day compared with the 17.5 million level that had prevailed prior to the emer-gency meeting in October.

Mana Saeed Oteiba, the oil minis-ter of the United Arab Emirates and chairman of the committee, also said the panel recommended that OPEC call for strict observance of the quotas. OPEC's production is estimated as high as 17 million barrels a day, and a private survey earlier this month identified the major cheaters as the United Arab Emirates, Venezuela and Nigeria.

In a warning to price-cutters outside the cartel, especially the North Sea producers Britain and Norway, Oteiba said that "if OPEC fails to hold the market, the non-OPEC producers will lose first. If we are forced into a price war, we are in a stronger position.'

Iran and Algeria, both members of OPEC, urged colleagues Monday to resist any price war, saying it would be a mistake to lower oil prices.

Saudi Arabia's oil minister, Sheik Ahmed Zaki Yamani, warned last week that any North Sea price cuts would open the door to a price war and also cause other producers to suffer great losses.

Confusion also continued about the cartel's response to one of the most divisive issues facing OPEC, a proposed realignment of the prices of its various grades of crude oil.

Earlier this month, Yamani announced an agreement on the question of price differentials. But Oteiba said Monday that-there was no such agreement yet.

Dillard Spriggs, president of Petroleum Analysis Ltd., a consulting firm, said he doubted OPEC ministers could agree on further steps to defend prices. "They'll talk, go home and hope the spot market improves," he said.

BUSINESS MIRROR Trade restraints carry own costs

By JOHN CUNNIFF AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK - Since their nature is to continue growing, economies are never free from challenges, and one of the most persistent challenges is what to do about protecting important industries.

It is a persistent challenge because it is almost never met. Instead, compromises are reached that probably avoid the real issues or disguise them or maybe even worsen them.

Examples might be the compromises reached on steel and automobiles, two of the most basic and important of American industries.

In each instance federal authorities declined to impose quotas on imports of Japanese products; instead, they won agreements from the Japanese that they would voluntarily limit their shipments to the United States.

In doing so, studies show, the immediate pains of the domestic industries might be eased, but nobody has assurance that in the long run the United States will be any better off. Jobs might be saved, but other jobs might be lost.

A government report cited by Professor Arthur Denzau of the Center for the Study of American Business at Washington University explains how

The International Trade Commission, Denzau relates, recommended that the Reagan administration pursue mandatory 15 percent import quotas on steel as a means of preserving the American industry and its jobs. Such a quota, the government analysis suggests, would indeed help the steel industry, but at an enormous cost, since it would raise steel prices to U.S. consumers by 8.9 percent - $5 billion a According to Denzau's calculations, a 15 percent quota could mean 92,000 fewer jobs in steelusing sectors such as metal fabrication, machinery and transportation equipment. "Thus, he states in a study, "Facing Up To The Problems Besetting Big Steel," even taking into account the 26,000 steelworker jobs that would be saved, "the imposition of an import quota would result in a net loss of 66,000 jobs in the American workforce.

The administration didn't accept the trade commission's recommendation and instead reached a compromise with the Japanese in which they agreed to limit their steel exports to the United States to 6 percent or less of the mar-

The decision was hailed as Solomon-like, and both free traders and the steel industry hailed it as a victory. But Denzau suggests "in the long run it will likely prove to be neither," because all that changed were percentages.

The domestic automobile industry enjoys similar limitations on exports to the U.S. market from Japan, and the consequences could be similar. The auto industry, however, has been using the time that is gained to rapidly improve its production facilities. While domestic carmakers still cannot make a small car for the same price Japan, General Motors vows to solve the problem

The situation is less clear in steel, and Denzau suggests that restraints in any form merely treat symptoms rather than the malaise.

In his analysis, steel's basic problem is a low rate of productivity growth, aggravated among other things by a period of steadily rising labor

In 1970, he points out, steel workers already were receiving wages one-fourth higher than the average U.S. manufacturing worker. By 1982 with the domestic industry declining, the wage premium had grown to nearly two-thirds. What is needed much more than quotas or restraints, he says, is for steel producers to raise quality and productivity while chipping away at costs. And, he says, they must invest in new capacity and improve labor-management rela-

It's a tough order, especially with the American economy tending more toward services than manufacturing. And it needs tough decisions, one of which Denzau suggests in these words:

"Rather than preserve an industrial museum, we should allow the retrenchment of the integrated steel sector into the products and locations in which it can effectively compete.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE CD can provide additional income

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My husband and I will retire in two months and will need about $300 more a month to live on than we will receive from Social Security and pensions. We have $40,000 to invest but don't know what we should do to achieve the necessary increase in income.

We thought about certificates of deposit, but we are in the dark as to which CDs will pay us the amount we will need. Should we get longterm or short-term CDs?

A. Even though interest rates have come down lately you should have no trouble getting the income you'll need from a CD. You're looking for $300 a month — $3,600 a year. On a $40,000 CD, that's 9 percent. That kind of interest is still available. Shop around at banks and savings and loan associations to get the highest interest. The longer the term of the CD, the higher the interest.

However, I would caution against going too "long." If you put your $40,000 into, say, a 10-year CD and interest rates head up again, your money would be locked in. My advice is to buy a CD with a maturity no longer than five years.

Arrange with the bank or S&L to have your CD interest credited each month to a money market deposit account or a super NOW checking account, where it will earn interest lower than the CD but higher than a regular 5.5 percent savings account.

As of Jan. 1, 1985, the minimum balance on money market deposit accounts and super NOW accounts required by federal regulation drops from $2,500 to $1,000. In your shopping around, make sure the bank or S&L you pick goes along with that new minimum balance requirement.

Vienna's Jewish population seeking new identity

By ROLAND PRINZ Associated Press Writer

VIENNA, Austria — Nine thousand Jews live in Vienna now up from the 1,400 that were left at the end of the Nazi occupation in World War II, but still nowhere near the 185,000 who lived here before the war, helping make Vienna a capital of science, culture and the arts.

They included such innovators as Sigmund Freud, the founder of psychoanalysis, and the composers Gustav Mahler and Arnold Schoenberg.

Now, 40 years after stepping out of the shadow of Nazi terror, Vienna's Jews are trying to revive their rich cultural heritage and striving to overcome lingering anti-Semitism in Austria.

The latest signs of Jewish revival were a series of well-publicized events, among them the scheduled meeting here in January of the World Jewish Congress, the first for Vienna since the prewar years.

Leaders of the small Jewish Com-munity and outside observers agree that the resignation of Bruno Kreisky as Austria's chancellor, or Kreisky, who was born a Jew but professes no religious beliefs, was known for his strident criticism of Israel and for his pro-Arab stands, including support of the Palestinian cause and endorsement of Libya's Moammar Khadafy.

Jews and non-Jews say the current series of Jewish cultural programs — the biggest in postwar Vienna - would never have taken place during the Kreisky's term in office; nor would the forthcoming congress, nor the visit in November of Edward I. Koch, the Jewish mayor of New York City.

We have pushed the door open, and we are trying to keep it wide open," said Leon Zelman, 58-year-old executive director of the Jewish Welcome Service. "We realize there is a third generation eager to learn and ready to be motivated.

However, Zelman and others credited Kreisky with warning young people to beware of fascist tendencies reappearing in Austria and elsewhere in Europe

An authoritative study published this year showed one-fourth of Ausfears and suspicions among resident and another 25 percent revealed at least traces of anti-Semitism.

Zelman said his group is still waging "a battle between us and Adolf Hitler, who really wanted to wipe out all Jewry," explaining that one of his tasks was to tell young Austrians what happened to the Jews in Kreisky, who still enjoys considerable prestige and influence, recently voiced sharp criticism of officials who warmly received Mayor Koch on his four-day visit to Vienna.

The former chancellor lashed out in newspaper interviews after Koch said Kreisky had "put his arm around terrorism" by receiving Yasser Arafat, chief of the Palestine Liberation Organization, and Libyan leader Khadafy.

Official attitudes are clearly changing.

In November, the Austrian president, Rudolf Kirchschlager, inaugurated a Jewish educational center the first postwar Jewish high school, a kindergarten and an elementary school.

The center is in a renovated building that housed a Jewish secondary school before the Nazi takeover in used the premises to assemble Jews to be sent to death camps.

Zelman said that at the end of the war, only 1,400 Jews were left in Vienna. The others had fled or were deported and killed by the Nazis.

"Whenever a camp was freed in 1945 east of Vienna," Zelman recalled, "the first station was Vienna.

Most Austrian Jews live in Vienna, as they always have. Zelman and his aides organized a scientific symposium on the history of Austrian Jewry, a two-week Jewish film retrospective and a photo show depiciting Jewish life mainly in prewar Poland and Vienna.

By the end of November, the onemonth photo exhibit had been visited by about 30,000 people, a figure cheered by organizers.

The symposium was held at City Hall with prominent Jewish historians, scholars and psychiatrists from Austria and abroad presenting

The string of events, placed under the motto "Sunken World Of Eastern Jewry," were visited or addressed by Austrian leaders, including President Kirchschlaeger, Mayor Helmut Zilk of Vienna. In separate interviews with The Associated Press, both Zelman and

Chief Rabbi Paul Chaim Eisenberg praised the new Austrian leader-

Zelman explained the misgivings about Kreisky: "The whole commu-nity lived in the shadows of the holocaust here," he said. "It was terrible, Kreisky did not realize that here was an awfully sensitive community."

Eisenberg agreed. "There has been a shift in accent, that's for sure. ... His (Kreisky's anti-Israel) comments were not pleasant. We don't hear them any more."

'A million survivors passed through here in search of new homes farther west. But some of the old people were sick and remained here because they didn't get a passport to go to the United States or elsewhere.

"Today a new generation has grown up here," said Zelman. "We have again some 200 Jewish doctors, 17 lawyers, as well as engineers and university professors."
He said the Jewish Welcome Ser-
