A fire in a projection room which forced the partial evacuation of Midland High School Monday was apparently deliberately set, and Principal Jimmie Kelly said this morning he expected to identify the arsonist by later today

We have some possible suspects, he said. I do expect to have it solved very quickly

The fire in the projection room of the school audi torium at 906 W. Illinois Ave. was discovered about 230 p.m. by a teacher. Kelly said. According to Fire Department reports, the blaze was extinguished with about 450 gallons of water

There was quite a bit of damage to the projection room, and smoke damage to the entire auditorium. said Fire Inspector Lon Dominguez this morning It's still under investigation, but we can safely as sume it was set The auditorium was empty when the fire broke

Kelly estimated the damage at about $40,000, but

Alien count includes skilled workers

By LAURA TOLLEY

DALLAS (AP) - Illegal aliens wer caught at the Texas-Mexico border at the rate of more than 10,000 a week last year, and those currently entering the country are more apt than ever to displace American workers, immigration officials said aliens take only jobs U.S. citizens don't want, there is increasing evidence that more skilled laborers are entering the United States illegally. said Mario Ortiz. Immigration and Naturalization Service spokesman

During the past few years, many of those entering the United States have been seeking jobs in construction and service-related industries rather than traditional agricultural jobs. Ortiz said Monday They pose more of a threat to American workers," he said. Many illegal aliens also are making better wages than they have in the past, earning at or well above minimum wage, he said During 1985, at least 90 percent of the 561,054 illegal aliens apprehend ed along the Texas border last year were from Mexico, representing a 17.8 percent increase from 1984. Or■ Pamphlet helps illegal the approximately 1,500 in the five laborers adjust to life in

That's pretty significant," said Or-Although many believe illegal tiz, adding that "98 to 99 percent" of those caught at the border returned

Many citizens from Central American countries such as El Salvador Nicaragua and Guatemala also were stopped while attempting to cross the Texas border, he said The Texas border is the nation's largest with Mexico, stretching for about 1,000 miles

By far, the number one motive for making illegal entry into the U.S. is to find work," said INS Regional Commissioner Ed O'Connor "This country will continue to be invaded until laws are passed to make it unlawful to employ illegal aliens.

Border Patrol officials speculate that the increase in apprehensions is partially caused by deteriorating economic and social conditions in other countries The increase also can be attributed to an additional 370 agents added to Border Patrol sectors in Texas and to increased technology used to nab illegal aliens along the border, offi-

Immigration officials also have seen an increase in drug trafficking along the Texas-Mexico border. Ortiz

'We've seen a dramatic increase in the amount of drug activity and drug smuggling along the border," he said. "Because we often are checking for illegal aliens, we often see a lot of narcotics being smuggled and we stop them.

Ortiz said some of the increase in drug smuggling could be attributed to a boost in law enforcement efforts to curtail narcotics trafficking in south Florida.

In light of increasing terrorist acts throughout the world, immigration officials also are becoming more concerned about watching for potential terrorists attempting to enter the United States, Ortiz said. Border patrol officials meeting in San Antonio this week at an annual conference would be briefed on the increase in both anti-terrorist and drug surveillance operations along the border, he said.

Agencies warned to prepare for 5 percent cuts

By TOM RAUM AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON - U.S. agencies have been told by the White House to brace for automatic spending cuts of nearly 5 percent as new estimates of the 1986 budget deficit soared to a record $220 billion.

That's $48 billion above the $172 billion target for fiscal 1986 set by the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law. The cuts are triggered if the deficit exceeds the target by $20 billion or more.

The Congressional Budget Office and the White House Office of Management and Budget were to release their official deficit projections on Wednesday, along with details of the cuts that will be required.

However, White House spokesman Larry Speakes on Monday announced that the cuts would amount to 4.3 percent for most domestic programs and 4.9 percent for the Military programs are receiving a higher proportional reduction because the law exempts some weapons contracts from being cut and because of a presidential decision to shield all military personnel from the reductions. That shifted a larger burden of the cuts onto other military programs.

On Capitol Hill, Rep. Edward R. Roybal, D-Calif., chairman of the House Aging Committee, called for Congress to block automatic cuts in the Medicare program that would be triggered under the Gramm-Rudman formula.

The law calls for automatic cuts of 1 percent in Medicare payments to doctors and hospitals.

Even though this is far less than the 4.3 percent cut in most other domestic programs, Roybal said it still posed "a major threat to the elderly's access to quality health care." He said the payments should be boosted

1 percent this year, not reduced. Medicare and other health programs are in a separate category under Gramm-Rudman. They can be cut automatically, but not more than 1 percent in fiscal 1986 and 2 percent in subsequent years.
Social Security benefits, including the annual cost-of-living increases, are exempted entirely from the

Despite the $48 billion shortfall in meeting the deficit target this year, Congress limited the first round of Gramm-Rudman cuts on March 1 to a total of $11.7 billion.

The Gramm-Rudman act, named for sponsors Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, and Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., requires a series of successive-ly lower annual deficits until the federal budget is balanced in 1991. If Congress cannot enact the required cuts, then automatic acrossthe-board spending reductions are triggered. This year, the cuts are to be triggered on March 1. In later years, they will come on Oct. 1 - the beginning of each new fiscal year. Under the Gramm-Rudman law, both budget offices will submit their findings to the General Accounting Office, a congressional auditing and watchdog agency, which will come up with a final list of specific cuts later this month.

The GAO could change the cut percentages, although congressional and administration officials say they do not expect that will happen this

The actual cuts will then be passed along to President Reagan, who is required to issue an order on Feb. 1 detailing them.

The $11.7 billion limit only applies to 1986. In later years, the magnitude of the automatic cuts triggered under Gramm-Rudman will be equal to the difference between the law's deficit-reduction target and the deficit projection. Officials have not yet made public the deficit projections for fiscal 1986, which began last Oct. 1. But a CBO official, who spoke on the condition that he not be named, said the congressional forecast would top $220

WASHINGTON (AP) - The $1.2 billion in U.S. economic assistance to Israel this year will be untouched by federal budget-balancing laws because it was handed over to the Israelis months ago.

However, the cuts are likely to hit most other countries, and some nations are wondering if reductions in their assistance levels for the 1986 fiscal year ending Sept. 30 will be larger than anticipated. That's because Israel's slice appears to be exempt from the first set of budget

The Israeli exemption to cuts ordered by the Gramm-Rudman deficit-reduction law was created by a quirk in a previous law, not by feel about the situation in general, an official said, "Anger might be too strong a word to describe it. They just have a lot of questions. If I was another country and my aid was about to be cut, I'd be very concerned." He said the State Department, after consulting with the White House and Congress, is nearing a decision on how to engineer the cuts without violating the law and without hurting U.S. foreign interests.

Under the Gramm-Rudman law, the administration expects to "se quester" $11.7 billion in payments for the 1986 fiscal year. Among the programs expected to be subject to such withholding is foreign aid, including the $3.7 billion economic support fund.

For a number of years, Israel, unlike other nations, has received its entire economic support payment within the first 30 days of the fiscal year, which began Oct. 1, so no more economic assistance remains to withhold from that country.

Haughton was the point man during the crisis in Houston last fall involving Fabian Bridges, an AIDS victim and male prostitute who refused to curtail his business. Acting on warnings from Bridges' doctors in Cleveland and Houston, Houghton used what he thought was authority under the Texas Communicable Disease Prevention and Control Act to order Bridges to refrain from further sexual activities.

When Health Department lawyers told him the act does not cover AIDS, Haughton said, he turned to the state Mental Health Code. Bridges voluntarily entered a Houston hospital but left 48 hours later when a staff psychiatrist wouldn't buy Haughton's argument that "anyone who would take action to spread a fatal disease was indeed a danger to oth-

With vice officers on his tail, Bridges then holed himself up in a telephone booth, said Sue Lovell, president of the Houston Gay Political Caucus. "At no time did anybody reach out to this gentlemen," Lovell said.

'Covered in lesions from his neck to his waste, ...if he had wanted to give (sex) away he could not have."

Bridges died two weeks later in the care of members of the city's gay community. Looking to the future. Haughton asked the Department of Health for a tool to deal with tomorrow's Fabian Bridgeses.

ing. Maybe there are some senior citizens who are hard up, but that's true anywhere," said Jim Ithurralde, assessor of Eureka County, Nev., tagged by the researchers as the nation's hungriest.

'In fact, the sheriff's office put out baskets of food at Christmas and they could only find 15 people who wanted them," said Ithurralde, whose county covers 4,175 square miles and has only about 1,500 residents. "I'm going hungry right now but it's because I'm on a diet."

In a report released today, the Physicians Task Force on Hunger at the Harvard School of Public Health found 150 "hunger counties," where more than 20 percent of the residents live below the federal poverty level - now $10,609 for a family of four - and fewer than one-third of eligible residents actually receive

But officials in some of those states and counties said they weren't sure the conclusions were warranted and the researchers admitted the study was based on statistics in government reports and said nobody had actually been there.

"We begin extensive field work in February. We may well start in Nevada," Judy dePontbriand, a spokeswoman for the task force, said in Boston. She said the report was "a blueprint for ongoing research."

Local officials said one reason why Eureka County might show up as so poor is because there is no food stamp office in Eureka, the county seat, and that many people who might qualify don't bother to make the 77-mile drive to the nearest of-tention. And we don't operate in a vacuum. Ms. dePontbriand said, "Even if it is very sparsely populated - even that county, what percentage are legally eligible and what number are actually receiving food stamps - if it is one-third or less, we want to know why.' In Madison County, Idaho, rated fifth-hungriest in the nation, officials said the figures probably were influenced by the fact that about 93 percent of its residents are Mormons, whose leaders counsel members to seek assistance from church, rather than government, agencies. In Brazos County, rated worst in Texas, County Judge Dick Holmgreen noted that the 30,000 students at Texas A&M University make up a third of the population.

"I think their statistics are as screwed up as they can be," said Holmgreen, who administers the county, which often posts the nation's lowest unemployment rate. "I don't deny the fact we've got some low-income areas, but if there are people actually hungry, I'm not aware of it."

The physicians' report showed Texas with the most "hunger counties," with 29. South Dakota followed

Quarantining only people with AIDS ... will miss ... those healthy infected people who are responsible for the vast majority of transmission to others," she said. Krim also criticized the medical tests which the rule would use to define persons with AIDS, calling the proposal "biologically unsound

Bernstein responded that his staff based its definition on suggestions from the national Centers for Disease Control.

Gay rights activists and AIDS counselors from around Texas said public misinterpretation of the quarantine rule would drive AIDS victims underground and discourage them from seeking medical treatment. They called on the state to use its resources for an intensive "safe sex" public education campaign.

'The word 'quarantine' is laden with strong historical images of leprosy camps and the posting of public notices by health officials on the doors of persons with communicable diseases," said Emily Untermeyer of the Austin AIDS Project.

Bernstein agreed that "the way to go is through education." However he accused the opponents of "fanning the fires of emotion" and not understanding that his proposal would apply only in very special cir-

"I don't understand how the average AIDS patient or a gay would have a fear of this provision unless they plan on a certain mode of behavior." Bernstein said. "A traditional quarantine means locking up the house and boarding up the house and posting notices and there's no intent to do that. We want to keep them isolated until they're no longer

He acknowledged that such isolation "could be" under lock and key. Lawyers charged that quarantining AIDS victims without holding some sort of a hearing or trial would violate their constitutional rights to due process. "It is difficult to imagine that, in this day and age, an agen cy can still feel empowered to enact a rule which will indeterminately deprive a person of freedom and liberty without so much as a gesture toward due process," said James Harrington, legal director of the Texas Civil Liberties Union. Proving that AIDS victims are not abiding by warnings to stop spreading the disease, argued gay Austin lawyer Tom Doval, "would involve extensive public spying on the conduct of American citizens." He complained that the rule spells out neither which practices would trigger the quarantine nor exactly how health officials would enforce an isolation order. Pointing to a Health Department accountant's estimate that a quarantine would cost from $340 to $540 per patient per day, Austin resident Glen Maxey questioned who would pick up the tab. "I want to be there when you propose to a group of county commissioners that you want them to pay for the upkeep and medical expenses of a person with AIDS for the rest of their life," Maxey said.

Associated Press

Texas topped the list of a Harvard study on the hungry counties of America, but some of those named don't consider themselves so poor, $10,609 for a family of four — and much less hungry.

"I think their statistics are as screwed up as they can be," said County Judge Dick Holmgreen of Brazos County, which was No. 46 on the Harvard list of the 150 hungriest counties and topped the list in Texas.

The "hunger counties," identified in a report by the Physicians Task Force on Hunger at the Harvard School of Public Health, were ranked based on the highest rates of poverty and lowest rates of participation in the food stamp program. Texas was listed as having 29 "hunger counties," where more than 20 percent of the residents live below the federal poverty level - now fewer than one-third of eligible residents actually receive food

But Brazos has repeatedly posted among the lowest unemployment rates in the nation. Not only that, the county is the home of Texas A&M University, whose more than 30,000 students comprise a third of the population. "I don't deny the fact we've got some low-income areas, but if there are people aware of actually hungry, I'm not aware of it," Holmgreen told The Dallas Morning News.

In Gaines County, County Judge Max Townsend said, "We just don't have that many poor here. Of course, with this farming situation, that may change, too.'

Harvard researchers admitted the ernment reports and said nobody had actually been there. "We begin extensive field work in February. We may well start in Nevada," Judy dePontbriand, a spokeswoman for the task force, said in Boston. She said the report was "a blueprint for ongoing research.' Meanwhile, Collingsworth County Judge Zook Thomas acknowledged that his county did have a low per-capita income: "We've got a railroad spike plant, a bolt plant and a wrecking yard. Other than that, we're strictly agriculture." But the judge said he knew most of the county's 4,600 residents and knew none who were hungry. Most of the 29 counties identified in Texas are in West Texas and the High Plains area of the state.

Other "hunger counties" in Texas identified by the study were Motley, Wilbarger, Mason, Glasscock, Parmer, Hays, San Saba, McCulloch, Briscoe, Haskell, Brewster, Dickens, Jeff Davis, Caldwell, Concho, Menard, Limestone, Mitchell, Real, Leon. Knox, Swisher, Red River, Walker, Milam and Sabine

LULAC and the Black Advisory Council claim the existing "at-large scheme of electing" trustees is discriminatory, violates their civil rights by diluting their votes and that the political processes leading to the nomination or election of trustees "are not equally open" to Mexican-American or black citizens "in that they have less opportunity than other members of the electorate to elect representative(s) of their LULAC President Edia Hernandez said the 7-0 plan would provide minorities with "better representation the City Council as a minority candi-

for the entire city. This would give us a better voice.

LULAC and the Black Advisory Coucil filed their suit against MISD a year ago this month after they won a federal court battle against the Midland City Council, which traditional ly elected its five Council members and the mayor in at-large elections. The litigation resulted in the Council agreeing to add a member and to change the election method. Four of the seven positions are elected from single-member districts and three of the positions, including the mayor, are elected at large. Last April, Oralia "Lillie" Corrales was elected to date from a single-member district.

Ms. Corrales, who originally supported MISD's 4-1-1-1 plan, testified Tuesday on behalf of the plaintiffs, saying the election of candidates by way of single-member districts "is more feasible financially (for minorities) as opposed to an at-large race."

She added that it is "important that we represent the entire community. However, we are creatures of habit in those areas in which we live and those areas in which we do business.

"If we have a person who lives in an area representing the people of that area, the school system will be better off and the city will be better off," she said.

Rolando Rios, the San Antonio attorney who is representing LULAC and the Black Advisory Council, said state law provides for a 7-0 plan, which has been implemented by the San Antonio Independent School District and by the City of Houston.

MISD's 4-1-1-1 plan contains "features that will continue to perpetuate discriminatory acts," he said. His clients plan, however, would "remedy the effects of what they believe are discriminatory.'

"This is the only recourse they have to get minority representatives on the Midland Independent School District," Rios said.

U.S. Army personnel sift through the dirt in a makeshift shelter in Gander, Newfoundland, Monday, looking for clues to help identify the more than 130 U.S. soldiers stil not identified after the Dec. 12th plane crash.

Search of Gander crash site may take months

GANDER, Newfoundland (AP) — U.S. Army experts are likely to take two months or more to complete a painstaking search of the rocky hill-side where a chartered troop carrier crashed last month, killing 248 soldiers and eight crew members, officials said.

Working on hands and knees in temporary plastic shelters, personnel from the Army's graves registration service picked with trowels, rakes and gloved hands Monday at the damp stony earth, looking for clues to identify more than half of the bodies from the Dec. 12 crash.

So far, only 120 bodies have been identified and returned to their families for burial. The rest are at the Dover Air Force Base in Delaware.

Heavy rains Monday night on top of a four-inch snow blanket promised to make the work even tougher, especially since much colder weather is predicted later this week.

"The primary job here is to recover remains and parts of the plane," said David Owen, the Canadian Aviation Safety Board's deputy investigator-in-charge for the crash probe.

A U.S. Army contingent of 43 people led by Maj. Gen. John S. Crosby arrived in Gander last week to prepare for the search. About 30 Canadian police officials are assisting.

Janu

Workmen have erected about a dozen 33-foot-square wooden frames covered with plastic sheeting, which are warmed with propane heaters to melt the snow before the search of each section begins.

When one square has been scoured, the workmen pull down the shelter and set it up again in a new spot. They are hoping to find watches, wallets, rings, clothes, body parts or anything else that might help fit names to the still-unidentified bodies.

Any items that are found are to be sent to Dover. Elaine Henry, an Army spokeswoman in Washington, said the first shipment from Newfoundland included "a small amount of partial remains, personal effects and several sets of dental records that had been covered by the snow."

Owen said he expected it would take at least two months for the searchers to cover the entire hillside where the Arrow Air DC-8 crashed, exploded and burned.

The 248 soldiers on board were members of the 101st Airborne Division, returning to Fort Campbell, Ky., from peacekeeping duty in Egypt's Sinai peninsula. The plane refueled in Frankfurt, West Germany, and again at the Gander International Airport.

Charters to undergo tough probe

New inspection program established in wake of Gander crash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The deaths of 248 soldiers in the crash of a chartered jet in Newfoundland last month has spurred the government to begin tough new inspections of Pentagon-hired charter companies, a federal aviation official says.

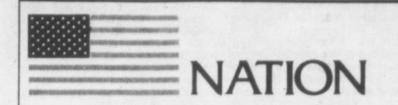

The program, to be announced by Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole today, will involve detailed inspections of two dozen companies that ferry military personnel and cargo, Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Bob Buckhorn said.

Among the companies targeted to be probed is Miami-based Arrow Air, whose DC-8 jet crashed on takeoff at Gander, Newfoundland, on Dec. 12. The cause of the crash has not been determined.

"The (Gander) crash has prompted the FAA to give priority to scheduled inspections of airlines under military contract," Buckhorn said in a telephone interview Monday night.

Under the inspection program, which was reported by ABC News
Monday and is to begin next week,
FAA inspectors will thoroughly check all activities of military aircraft charters, he said.

"What we're talking about is a very, very close look at their operations," he said. "These inspections are going to be very detailed, covering equipment, crew qualifications, management — a wide range of Buckhorn said 11 smaller charter companies will be subject to a "special-focus" investigation beginning Jan. 21. The larger companies will be inspected as scheduled, he said, but the FAA checks will be more intense than in the past.

The new charter inspection program is part of an overall FAA inspection plan under which all airlines and major repair facilities will be inspected more frequently, the FAA spokesman said.

The Pentagon may be involved in the charter inspections. Buckhorn

"We've discussed Department of Defense participation. We're working on it," he said. "There's already been a great deal of contact between the FAA and the Pentagon's air charter survey teams."

A Pentagon spokesman, Lt. Col. Keith Schneider, said Monday night he had no information about a military role in the new inspections.

Following the Gander crash, a senior Air Force official told reporters the Pentagon, in a strict technical sense, had not been responsible for the disaster.

The Pentagon conducts inspections of chartered planes to ensure that the airline is living up to its contract — for example, that the planes are clean and that the company is adhering to flight schedules but relies on the FAA to certify that the planes are airworthy, said the official, speaking on condition that he not be identified.

"The purpose is to make sure that the airlines — including the charters — continue to operate at the highest level of safety," Buckhorn said.

Following the Gander crash, the FAA announced that inspectors would fly aboard virtually all Arrow Air flights until early January. The airline, which has a $13 million annual contract with the Pentagon to ferry military personnel and cargo, has continued its government flights as well as other charter service and regularly scheduled flights between Puerto Rico and several mainland U.S. and Canadian cities.

Besides Arrow Air, the charter companies to be inspected under the program are Airlift International; Aloha Airlines, American; American Trans Air; Continental; Delta; Eastern; Evergreen International; Federal Express; Flying Tiger; Hawaiian Airlines; Jet Charter Service; National Airlines; Pan American World Airways; Southern Air Transport; Reeve Aleutian; Rich International Airways; Power Air; Trans America Airlines; Trans World Airlines; United; and World Airways.

Congressional delegation en route to Vietnam

HONOLULU (AP) — The leader of a congressional delegation en route to Vietnam said he will brief that country's leaders about a planned U.S. Senate hearing on the possibility that Americans are still alive in Indochina.

Sen. Frank Murkowski, chairman of the Senate Veterans Affairs committee, heads a 26-member entourage that includes another senator and two congressmen traveling to Vietnam and Laos seeking further details on the fate of Americans—living or dead—in Southeast Asia.

living or dead — in Southeast Asia. Murkowski, who said his committee will hold hearings Jan. 29-30, said he does not rule out the possibility that Americans may still be alive in Vietnam or Laos nearly 13 years after the end of the war.

During the hearings, the Alaska Republican said "anybody who has something substantive pertaining to live sightings will make their statements, and then we will ask the (Reagan) administration to respond.

"We would like them to respond on an individual, case-by-case basis, so perhaps we can narrow down the number of unexplained live sightings," said Murkowski. "I intend to let all the people with information, and who want to be heard, testify." Murkowski said he would thank the Vietnamese for their apparent willingness to follow up on such reports, and also tell them of his upcoming hearings on the issue.

On Monday, a top Pentagon official said the Vietnamese government has pledged to investigate nearly 100 "live sighting reports" of missing Americans, which remain under scrutiny by the United States.

Richard L. Armitage, U.S. assistant defense secretary for international security affairs, said in Washington that hundreds of live sighting reports have been dismissed in the past decade by the Pentagon as fabrications or because men allegedly involved already were accounted for

But he said, however, that 95 reports "are under continuing investigation in an attempt to confirm the information."

Also on the fact-finding tour, which will take the delegation to the Philippines, Thailand and Laos are Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz, Rep. Bob McEwen, R-Ohio, and Rep. Michael Bilirakis, R-Fla. McEwen and Bilirakis serve on the House Veterans Affairs Committee, and DeConcini is on the same committee in the

Astronauts can't fix camera for shooting comet

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Like many shutterbugs whose cameras give out at a critical moment, Columbia's astronauts tried and failed today to fix a photo device that could provide clear shots of Halley's comet.

Space agency officials, meanwhile, were considering ending the shuttle mission a day early.

"I just finished working with the image intensifier again, and there is no amplification at all," crewman George Nelson reported after he had attempted for several hours to fix the instrument following instructions radioed from Mission Control. Controllers said they would try to work out an alternate solution.

The light image intensifier failed Monday when Nelson photographed the comet. He took the device off the camera and instead shot a series of 30-second exposures, but officials on the ground said they may be no better than those taken from Earth by amateurs.

Flight director Jay Greene said

Monday he expected shuttle managers to consider shortening the much-delayed mission from five days to four. This would help the National Aeronautics and Space Administration keep on its tight schedule of 15 shuttle launches this year.

If the flight is shortened, the crew would land here Thursday. Greene said it is important to get Columbia back to this spaceport to start preparing it for its next flight, an astronomy mission set for liftoff March 6.

"We're tight on the next two flights," Greene said. Challenger is scheduled for launching Jan. 24 with schoolteacher Christa McAuliffe aboard.

The seven-man crew spent much of its first full day in orbit Monday setting up experiments and fixing minor mechanical malfunctions. Astronaut Steve Hawley planned

Legislation by Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., and Rep. Fortney Stark, D-Calif., would deny the tobacco industry a tax deduction for expenses of advertising cigarettes, snuff and other tobacco products. That would include the cost of promoting races,

Those advertising expenses totaled $2.7 billion in 1983, Stark said. Other businesses would continue to be allowed to write off their promotion costs. The difference, contend Stark and Bradley, is that tobacco products are dangerous; they cited esti-mates that tobacco use adds $21 billion a year to the nation's spending for medical care.

Airline employees are battling to get back a favorite fringe benefit: tax-free passes for their parents. Employees still get those passes for their spouses and children, but, under a 1984 law they have to pay income tax on the value of a pass given a parent.

The tax is on half the value of the highest regular coach fare that would be charged for the same trip, even if that fare is higher than available discounts.

Airline workers are not bashful about complaining about this one. Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, says his two daughters, who are flight attendants, never miss the chance to raise the subject with him.

Rep. James Jones, D-Okla., a Ways and Means member, has introduced a bill to restore the benefit for parents. The airline industry is in trouble, Jones said, and free passes are important job incentives for employees.

Congressman says South African rulers not ready to make reforms

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Pennsylvania congressman says his recent trip to South Africa leads him to believe the white-ruled Pretoria government is not ready to make significant reforms despite blacks' increasing

Rep. William Gray III, D-Pa., the chairman of the House Budget Committee, said in an interview Monday he expected President P.W. Botha to speak soon of sharing power with blacks, partly to try to appease international creditors calling for reforming the apart-

But both Gray and Rep. Peter Kostmayer, D-Pa., a Foreign Affairs Committee member who also made the four-day trip, said they did not believe the government was prepared to make important changes.

'They can say they have agreed to power sharing in principle," said Gray, who is black. "I'm not going to get up and bang the drum for that. The majority population is interested in one thing: one man, one vote.'

After meeting with Botha on Sunday, Swiss banker and mediator Fritz Leutwiler, who is trying to help resolve South Africa's international debt crisis, said he was confident reforms were on the way.

"To the unlearned eye, Botha may say, for example that he's going to allow local government autonomy said Gray, who also met with Botha. "But Soweto already has a mayor, a mayor who was elected by less than 1 percent of the people.

Gray said he did not believe the group was snubbed by Winnie Mandela, the wife of imprisoned African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, even though it was unable to arrange a meeting with her

She had met in South Africa last year with Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

"We're disappointed we could not meet with her for some reason which we don't know," Gray said. "I'm not going to assume somebody snubbed me just because we're running around for four days and she's in the courts fighting for her right to go home.

Kostmayer viewed it differently. "Apparently she was unwilling to meet with us," said Kostmayer, who is white. "Whether she felt it would jeopardize her standing, I don't know. There is a lot of anti-American feeling, a real bitterness toward this

Woman arrested, charged with murder in son's decapitation, dismemberment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Police arrested a 25-year-old woman at a federal mental institution, charging her with first degree murder in the decapitation and dis-memberment of her 5-year-old son. Erica Mendell Daye was arrested at St. Elizabeths mental hospital in Washington on Monday night and charged with "one of the most brutal and sadistic murders" police had seen, said spokesman Bob Law, of the Prince George's County, Md., police. She was being held without bond pending an extradition hearing today in D.C. Superior Court.

Police said the child, William L. Deloach, had been alive when he was decapitated. Cpl. Bruce Gentile said Monday night that a butcher knife believed to be the murder weapon had been recovered.

The boy's body was discovered Sunday evening by an aunt at his Adelphi, Md., apartment, Law said. His head and arms had been cut off and placed nearby and his body disemboweled, he said. The woman had been transferred to the federal mental institution after first checking into D.C. General Hospital under an assumed name earlier Monday, Law said. He said an employee of St. Elizabeths recognized the woman's picture from a television news program

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) - A woman stabbed her husband five times after he refused to go out for a pizza during the American Football Conference championship game, police said.

Edward Kaushas, 33, was in serious condition Monday at Scranton State General Hospital, police said. His wife, Sandra, 29, was charged with aggravated assault, recklessly endangering another person and simple assault, police said.

Lt. William Thomas said Mrs. Kaushas asked her husband to go out for pizza, then became angry when he refused, offering instead to go out for chicken during halftime of Sunday's game in which the New England Patriots defeated the Miami Dolphins, sending the Pats to the Super Bowl.

He said she stabbed Kaushas in the face with a steak knife, which fell onto the floor as they struggled in their home in this northeastern Pennsylvania city. When Kaushas stood up, his wife picked up the knife and stabbed him four times in the back, Thomas said. Mrs. Kaushas was being held in lieu of $10,000 bail

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) - Streetwalkers moving in from northern climates have doubled the rate of prostitution and crime along a gaudy Orlando thoroughfare known as the Orange Blossom Trail, officers say. Despite a crackdown, police and businesspeople in the area say they've never seen it so bad. "It's the worst we've known it," says Orange County sheriff's spokesman Randy Means.

More than 100 prostitutes have been arrested in the past three months, authorities said, and deputies posing as prostitutes are also arresting their clients.

But police can't keep up. "We are not controlling the problem due to the sheer number of prostitutes and the availability of clients," said Means.

Reagan to ask for more Contra aid

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan has decided to ask Congress to renew military aid to the anti-Sandi-nista rebels in Nicaragua and will soon consider an interdepartmental task force recommendation that the assistance range between $25 million and $30 million, according to a published report today.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Monday that Reagan has not decided whether to seek military aid, which was suspended last year. But, the Washington Times said other sources indicate Reagan had decided to ask for arms for the Contras but had not decided on the exact amount.

According to the newspaper, the task force, which has been working with the National Security Council, will urge that the aid include money for conventional antiaircraft weapons or small heat-seeking missiles as a means of combating the Nicaraguan army's Soviet Mi-24 Hind helicopters.

The task force also wants the aid package to include money for training rebels to fight the Nicaraguan army along that country's border with Honduras, the newspa-

WASHINGTON (AP) - Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan says he was relying solely on public sources in his assertion that he has "no doubt, no doubt at all" that the Soviets are using their new embassy in Washington to listen in on U.S. telecommunciations.

The New York Democrat is a former member of the Senate Intelligence Committee, but he said Monday he as not relying on confidential information in making his claims.

Moynihan also said he would persist with efforts to pass legislation urging increased countermeasures against Soviet eavesdropping.

Program calls for lower crop prices for farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) - Lower crop prices and large cuts in producing acreage would be imposed on farmers by the 1986 commodity program outlined by Agriculture Secretary John R. Block

Farmers will have to accept lower price support "loan" levels in a move aimed at making U.S. crops more marketable overseas, Block said Monday.

The acreage cutbacks will be the maximums allowed by the new Food Security Act of 1985, the farm bill passed by Congress last month and signed into law by President Reagan. The programs will affect wheat, feed grains, cotton and rice in 1986. Agriculture Department officials said they could not estimate how much U.S. exports might improve because of the cuts in loan rates. The loan rate is the amount the government pays farmers for each crop. If market prces fall below the loan rate, farmers can post their crop as collateral and receive government loans at the guaranteed rates.

Thus, the loan rates effectively set the foreign prices of U.S. commodities. The administration contends foreign suppliers have been able to undercut relatively high U.S. commodity supports.

The loan rate for 1986 wheat crop, for example, will be $2.40 per bushel compared with $3.30 for last year's harvest. Corn supports will be $1.92 per bushel, compared with $2.55 in 1985; barley, $1.56 and $2.08 last year; 99 cents for oats and $1.31 last year; and $1.82 for sorghum and $2.42 last

Loan rates for 1986 crops of cotton and rice will be announced later, $2.88; barley, $2.60; and oats, $1.60. Block said.

Under the acreage reductions announced for 1986, wheat farmers will have to idle 25 percent of their base acreage; feed grains, including corn, 20 percent; rice, 35 percent; and upland cotton, 25 percent.

Included in the reductions for wheat and feed grains is a 21/2 percent paid diversion. Under the paid diversion program, farmers are paid for diverting land from production. The new law froze target prices for two years at the 1985 rates, so no changes were made for those. Target prices are used to determine federal "deficiency" payments to farmers when market prices drop below the target levels. Targets for 1986 are: wheat, $4.38 per bushel; corn, $3.03; sorghum,

Block also announced some provisions of the dairy program, which includes an 18-month "whole-herd buy-out" operation intended to reduce the number of milk cows. The program is to begin April 1.

Under the plan, dairy farmers will submit sale bids for their herds based on base period milk marketings. If the government accepts the bid, the producer will be required to stay out of dairying for five years and not use or allow the use of his facilities for milk production during the entire period.

Block said producers will be required to submit evidence of the size and composition of their herds as of Jan. 1, 1985, and Jan. 1, 1986, and on the date the bid is submitted.

Down's victim hero

ROCKFORD, Mich. (AP) - A 7year-old victim of Down's syndrome came home from the hospital a hero to his family members, who say the boy's quick action saved his parents from a fire that destroyed their southwest Michigan home.

Hospital appeals for court ruling allowing treatment for cancer victim

CINCINNATI (AP) - A 7-year-old they judge the treatment's risks bone cancer patient whose parents object to medical treatment for him will die without chemotherapy, a hospital lawyer told a state appeals court on Monday.

Doctors at Children's Hospital Medical Center say the boy, David Willmann of suburban Montgomery, recommend six weeks of chemotherapy to shrink the tumor in his left arm, after which they will evaluate whether to proceed with surgery that could involve amputating the arm and part of his shoulder. The Willmanns, members of the Christian Church, say Jesus Christ is already healing their son and that the swelling of David's left arm is a symptom that will go away.

"He has a rare tumor," Frank Woodside, lawyer for the Cincinnati hospital, told the three-judge Ohio 1st District Court of Appeals Monday. "The only thing we know for sure is, if we do nothing, the child's condition will get worse...It is their position that faith has already cured the little fellow, contrary to all the medical evidence presented. "Without any chemotherapy, this is a death sentence for this little boy," Woodside quoted a hospital physician as saying.

Douglas and Lori Willmann say they oppose the chemotherapy and surgery because of their religious beliefs, their fear that the surgery could disfigure the boy and because greater than its benefits. Prison will keep rodeo, get outside organizer

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — Corrections officials say they'll allow the 54-yearold Texas prison rodeo to continue, but the annual event may be turned over to a new organizer.

"We want to continue with the rodeo. It's a tradition that should not to be scrapped," James Parsons, a member of the Texas Board of Corrections and chairman of a special rodeo study committee, said Monday

Board members voted 7-1 to accept the committee's recommendation to continue the rodeo, held during weekends in October at the Walls prison unit in Huntsville. Board member Robert Lane cast the only dissenting vote.

The rodeo has come under scrutiny because of several unprofitable years, although it turned a profit last

Parsons said that because the rodeo is an integral part of Huntsville and Walker County, perhaps a nonprofit local group could get involved and stage the rodeo.

"We feel the rodeo is a great tradition in the Texas Department of Corrections and offers public involvement in TDC," he said.

But Parsons said he had "fundamental questions" over whether the board should worry about deciding on entertainers when they also have to worry about spending millions in connection with a prison reform lawsuit. The board also took under advisement a plan under which inmates within six months of their parole would be released into a kind of "house arrest" program suggested by the State Board of Pardons and

Under the program, inmates would be confined to their own residences as part of a pre-parole program. The program is modeled after similar efforts in other states where up to 15 percent of inmates are involved, said prison board chairman Alfred Hughes.

"This is a more major step than appears on the surface," Hughes said. "...For the first time in recent times sits TDC and the Board of Pardons and Parole across the table to discuss inmates.

But board members said they were reluctant to immediately get involved with such a program because of questions in legal liabilities. "Philosophically, I'm in favor of this," Parsons said. "It's the mechanics that bother me. Lane said he was worried about whether TDC or the parole board would be legally responsible for the

"It's not the family I'm worried about, it's the neighbors," Parsons said, voicing concern about the effect of inmates living at home.

Drug smuggling 'foreign policy problem'

EL PASO (AP) — Drug smuggling is a foreign policy problem as well as a law enforcement problem, according to New Mexico Gov. Toney Anaya, who suggested that aid to narcotics-producing nations could be made conditional to the elimination of drug crops there.

Anaya and Texas Gov. Mark White offered suggestions at a hearing of the U.S. House Select Committee on Narcotics Abuse and Control on how to fight the drug trade more effectively. The governors also told of how the illegal business has affected their states.

"It's not just a law enforcement problem but a foreign policy probem," Anaya told the committee

But while the supply of drugs must be targeted, the demand should also be taken into account, he

"Ultimately...the root of the problem is not in marijuana, coca and poppy fields of the developing countries," Anaya said. "It is within our own society, hometowns and schools. Anaya told of an incident last cent increase over 1984, White said. Heroin smuggling is on a similar increase, the governor added.

"Our situation has deteriorated rapidly over the last four years, coinciding with the establishment of a multi-agency drug enforcement task force in South Florida," he said.

'We haven't stopped the traffic, we just diverted the traffic," White said. "If we do a good job in Florida, then we must do a good job in Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana,

But Gulf Coast states affected by the shift of drug smuggling from Florida lack the resources to fight the trafficking in their areas, White

"That is a federal responsibility, yet our government has failed to guard its states against intrusion by drug traffickers...," he said. Both governors called for increased federal help in the drug war.

The committee, chaired by U.S. Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., is scheduled to hold a similar hearing today in Tucson, Ariz., and in San Diego, Calif., Thursday. Following that, the panel will meet with Mexican officials in border towns and in Mexico City with members of the U.S. Embassy

'Hopefully, as a result of this trip and at the end of the week, when we travel back to Washington, we will have gathered enough information so that we can formulate some legislation that will assist us" in fighting the drug problem, said U.S. Rep.

TDC attorney says mail aids drug deals, gangs

HOUSTON (AP) - Mail among inmates often is a conduit for drug deals, prison violence and gang activities, an attorney representing the state of Texas told two federal judges

Assistant Attorney General F. Scott McCown Monday defended prison officials' decision last September to crack down on inmateto-inmate mail at 13 Texas Department of Corrections units.

Attorneys for TDC and for plaintiff inmates appeared in court before U.S. District Judges William Wayne Justice and John Singleton in a battle over inmates' rights to correspond with one TDC officials say inmate-to-inmate correspondence promotes deadly gang activity. But inmates' attorneys say letter-writing is a right that should not be denied the prisoners.

Inmate-to-inmate mail is used to set up assaults and murders; it's used to set up gangs and facilitate gang activities," McCown said. "Inmate-to-inmate mail is the single most effective form of communications from one unit to Singleton said limiting inmate correspondence would not necessarily thwart violence caused by the more than 1,230 gang members that officials say are housed in Texas prisons.

Publishers of black papers forming trade association

AUSTIN (AP) - Publishers of Texas' black newspapers are forming a trade association they hope will give them added clout in their communities and statewide.

"Through this association, we hope that we can get some respect for the black press from political leaders, community organizations and especially advertisers," said organizer T.L. Wyatt of Austin.

"This organization will be made up of the black newspapers of the state and will be represented by virtually every area of Texas," he said in announcing the group Monday.

Wyatt, publisher of the Villager newspaper in Austin, said 13 weeklies in Texas currently belong to the National Newspaper Publishers Association, a nationwide organization of primarily black publications.
It is hoped that those 13, plus several others around the state, will join the new regional group called the Texas Publishers Association, the Black Press of Texas, Wyatt said.

He said the Texas papers, with combined circulations of approximately 500,000, are following the lead of black newspapers in other regions of the country in forming a local association.

Besides advertising, the new group will consider statewide editorials on some issues, look for improved training opportunities for young journalists, share business advice among members and take other actions to strengthen the newspapers, Wyatt said.

While the national association has helped members obtain some national advertising. Wyatt said, efforts are needed to sell advertising for the Texas papers as a group.

"Advertisers are more inclined to deal with the regional than the national office. In Texas, we have so many Texas-based companies that don't advertise on a national basis, so therefore we miss that," he said.

He said the black press in Texas also can be an influential force on a variety of issues.

'We think that these papers play a major role in political campaigns. We also think we play a major role in the social growth of our communities," Wyatt said.

Doctor: Home's nurses kept accurate records

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - Nurses kept accurate records on patient care at a Texas City nursing home, a doctor has testified in a murder-by-neglect trial.

The state claims nurses at the Autumn Hills nursing home falsified patient charts and kept notes so haphazardly that it was impossible to assess patient conditions.

Were you able to form an opinion as to whether those nurses' notes appeared unreliable or made up?" defense lawyer Tom Sartwelle asked.

"I would say the nurses' notes appeared to be written in a normal way - not made up - a true reflection of what happened," said Dr. Anthony Silvetti, an expert in the healing of wounds. The testimony Monday came in the murder trial of Autumn Hills Convalescent Centers Inc. and four of its current and former employees.

They are charged in the Nov.

20, 1978, death of Elnora Breed. The 87-year-old woman died 47 days after entering the Autumn Hills home in Texas City.

The state has called medical experts who testified she died of starvation and overwhelming infection from bedsores - all brought on by poor nursing care. The defense claims Mrs. Breed died of a recurrence of colon cancer.

Silvetti agreed with that contention, saying Mrs. Breed wasted

"They were dealing with a patient at the end of the normal lifespan on this earth," Silvetti said. They felt this patient was very close to dying and there was nothing they could do to save her," he

Whistleblower to present case to federal judge

By PEGGY ROBERSON Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON - James P. Jones, the former assistant to the Texas Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service who accused his supervisor of harassing female employees, will tell a federal judge he was transferred to Washington as punishment for blowing the whistle.

Jones, recovering from surgery at home in College Station, will make his case before U.S. District Court Judge John Pratt on Jan. 21.

He is scheduled to return to work in Washington this week. Such a move would force him to sell his home and move his family - including a 34-year-old crippled son and an 83-year-old mother-in-law - to Washington or cause him to separate from his family, he said.

His attorney, Andrew L. Lipps, said Monday the case "presents a classic example of a government agency punishing one of its employees for opposing and disclosing sexual discrimination and harassment by a top agency official while letting the official whose repeated and serious wrongdoing he exposed go virtually unpunished."

Jones, who formerly lived at Kress, crossed swords with the man he accused, Charles Wayne Mayfield, formerly of Silverton, after Mayfield was named by the Reagan administration to replace Jones as state executive director of the ASCS.

Jones said he was eased out of responsibilities at the state office. But more serious difficulties arose when he asked USDA officials in Washington to investigate allegations by female employees that Mayfield and another official had pressured them to engage in sexual relations.

Lipps, in a brief filed in court, said he can produce minutes of meetings in which retaliation against Jones was planned.

To carry out their plan, the brief states, USDA officials in Washington called for an investigation of Jones' charges. "It soon became apparent that the ... investigation would not exonerate Mr. Mayfield, as the ASCS officials had expected, and that they could not publicly justify firing the person making the charges," the brief states.

Mayfield was suspended for 30 days last year after the investigation validated Jones' complaints.

Jones, then 61, was transferred to Washington, with the reminder that he would be eligible for retirement on his birthday in December, 1984. Jones did not retire, however. He said he was given "make work" duties but continued to draw his GS 14 salary of 55,600.

And he continued to file complaints until he got attention. When he received abusive telephone calls in Washington, Jones put a tracer on them. He and his lawyer intend to introduce evidence that may link the calls to high-level Agriculture Department officials.

Some might view an assignment to Washington as a great opportunity, Jones said, but for him, it would cause extreme hardship. His son is unable to walk, to get dressed, to take baths, or perform normal bodily functions without assistance. His wife would have to give up her job as a school teacher if she joined him in the nation's capital. And his elderly mother-in-law is dependent emotionally as well as financially upon the family. Jones, a Republican, is asking to be reinstated to his former position. Also, he wants an order restraining ASDA officials from taking any measures which could discourage him or others from making charges, testifying, or taking part in any investigation of alleged violation of civil rights or other laws.

The change was designed to simplify fees charges by the Department of Public Safety for copies of driver's license records, said George Griffin, DPS chief of driver and vehicle records.

The change also allows insurance companies to a pay a flat fee and receive five years or information, instead of paying staggered prices for ing conflicting stories about a thing called "acid rain" and its effects on the lakes, rivers and forests of the nation.

It's in the air

According to some accounts, acid rain - believed to be caused by pollutants being released into the atmosphere - actually has killed or severely damaged lakes and portions of forests in the northeastern United States. To the contrary, other accounts go so far as to claim that the incidence of acid rain is a perfectly natural phenomenon and poses no harm to the planet or to mankind.

The Reagan administration has remained relatively unmoved by predictions of widespread destruction of the environment, choosing to only contend that more evidence is needed before anything drastic is done in regard to the potential problem. Now there are two good reasons to take a closer look at the acid rain issue.

One is continuing concern by this country's neighbor to the north - Canada, whose people are understandably concerned that the acid rain dilemma could be a result of American polluting. Some Canadian lakes and forests are said to be sustaining damage as a result of acid rain and U.S. industries in the northeast are the suspected culprits.

Then there's a report from Dr. Michael Oppenheimer, an atmospheric physicist in New York City, that indicates high-altitude lakes in the West are now beginning to show signs of acid rain damage. Said Dr. Oppenheimer: "We've been anticipating the problem since about 1980 or 1981. We had noted that there were a lot of sulfur emissions in the region - mostly smelters, or a number of years but also power plants — and that tains were among the most sensitive in the world. That suggested to us that we didn't need to reach the super-polluted situation that we have in the East to have resources at risk.'

Those two indicators should be enough to tell the Reagan administration it needs to begin moving toward action on the acid rain problem. But now there's another reason to begin heading that direction.

Drew Lewis, the former Reagan administration secretary of Transportation who has been serving an investigative function for the administration on the acid rain problem, has written a report that states the major sources of acid rain in the United States include coal-fired power plants along the Ohio River Valley and that the areas bearing the brunt of the polluting "are downwind and to the northeast of the areas of highest emission."

What's more, Lewis's report, which was written along with William Davis of Canada, goes on to note that while there have been relatively few lakes acidified to this point, "the number of potentially sensitive lakes is relatively large.'

The report also says forests are being damaged probably by air pollution which includes acid rain and that the danger is long

In light of these additional concerns, the Reagan administration should devote more attention to the acid rain problem. It's obvious that this problem not only poses potentially widespread and far-reaching adverse effects for this nation but for U.S. neighbors as well.

Fed food rules hard to swallow

7 ASHINGTON - Elderly renters in several states have complained that the federal government is helping their landlords force unwanted food down their throats.

The unhappy tenants live in federally subsidized apartments. They pay 30 percent of their incomes in rent, and the feds pick up the balance. Fair enough. What some tenants ob-

insist on a mandatory additional charge for a meal a day, whether the tenants want it or can even eat it. Most federal-subsidized tenants are free to choose what they want to eat and where they want to eat it. Hundreds of housing projects have ject to, though, is the landlords who cafeterias where low-cost meals are But in 98 subsidized projects with almost 7,000 elderly, low-income residents, the tenants are required to buy one meal per day provided by the landlords, according to a recent congressional survey. Dozens of tenants have written complaints to the House subcommittee on housing and community development which is looking into the problem. One woman wrote that the mandatory meals actually make her sick, but she still has to pay for them. Several low-income tenants complained that the required meals eat up most of their monthly budgets, leaving them with almost nothing for other necessities. Obviously, the subsidized renters can't afford to move elsewhere.

The General Accounting Office, which conducted the survey for the House subcommittee, agreed with the landlords, however. The GAO concluded that meals must be mandatory to make them financially feasible for the landlords, and to make sure that the elderly tenants get at least one nutritionally balanced meal a day. The GAO, therefore, decided no changes were needed in the rules that allow mandatory meals. The controversy isn't new. We first reported on it in 1983, and little has changed since then.

In one New York City housing project, Randall Smith and 19 other tenants have refused to pay the $110 a month demanded for the one daily meal, which they don't eat. The landlord, a non-profit corporation founded by the Episcopalian Trinity Church on Wall Street, responded with eviction notices. A court order blocked the evictions temporarily.

"The meals are terrible," the 70year-old Smith told our reporter Vic Kolenc. Even assuming he could stomach the chow, Smith said, he prefers to cook his own meals, which most of us" have been doing for many years.

The project manager said most tenants were satisfied with the meals, and many wouldn't be able to eat properly without the program. The tenants have filed a lawsuit against the landlord and the Housing and Urban Development Department seeking an end to the mandatory meals. They argue that since meal charges are included in the leases, the total cost must be considered rent - and thus cannot exceed 30 percent of their incomes. Landlords and the federal government have already won cases in California, Colorado and Minnesota, where judges ruled that mandatory meal charges are not part of the rent. But a California judge last summer ruled that the government must publish guidelines for mandatory meal programs.

HUD officials said they have been using unwritten guidelines, which will soon be published. They are also working on new rules that are unlikely to exempt tenants on grounds of financial hardship. It is precisely those tenants the mandatory meal programs are intended to help, one official said.

Legislation before Congress would allow exemptions for financial hardship, and would require landlords to accept food stamps for meal charges, among other things. House and Senate conferees are expected to consider the matter soon.

WATCH ON THE PENTAGON: For almost 10 years now, the Army and the Air Force have assumed exactly the opposite about a particular military hospital in Europe. The Air Force assumed that the hospital would be destroyed or captured in the early stages of hostilities, and has consequently made plans to abandon it. The Army, on the other hand, has assumed the hospital would be saved, so its war plans are counting on its availability. How to resolve the dispute? "By a change in an intelligence assessment," notes a recent House Armed Services Committee report. The report didn't make clear which view was "reassessed" into oblivion.

MINI-EDITORIAL: Knowledge is power, as Lenin well knew, and the paranoid power brokers who rule in his name have taken one simple, effective step to keep knowledge from the masses they so heartily distrust: Copying machines are few and far between in the Soviet Union. Those that do exist are carefully guarded by the authorities. There'll be no Russian version of the Pentagon Papers surreptitiously run off if the commissars have anything to say about it. United Press International reports that its 25-year-old copier had to be destroyed when a replacement arrived. It was fed into a trash compacter - the Soviet equivalent of driving a stake through its heart.

ness is one of the blocks to clear thinking which affects a lot of Americans. Plural pronouns are often a clear indication of demagoguery and drivel.

To say something like, "We must do something to help our farmers," is to talk nonsense. Since slavery has been abolished, I assume nobody owns a farmer. They aren't anybody's farmers. They are just farmers. And "we" aren't going to diddy-bop to help them. "We" used in this sense usually means somebody else or the government.

would help a farmer if I could, but being a newspaper man, there's not much I can do. Willie Nelson and John Mellencamp, by staging the Farm Aid Concert, did not help "our farmers." They helped some farmers, and quite often the ones who don't need it.

The world consists not of collectives but of individuals, of particular places, and of particular things. That's why it's complex. To forget that or to deliberately blur that truth is to abandon reality.

When an American black politician says of the economic pain disinvestment in South Africa will cause that "it is something we will have to endure," he's a turkey talking jive. As an American, he isn't going to suffer or endure any economic pain at all. Black South Africa will do that.

What's this we-business, American?

When some obnoxious anti-smoker says he doesn't want smokers polluting "his" air, he's talking jive. He doesn't own any air. Nobody does. A smoker might just as logically say, im going to sue you for taking my oxygen out of 'my' air and replacing it with germ-laden vapor and carbon

We" don't even own "our" national parks. The federal government owns them, physically possesses them, and dictates who may do what when and how on them if at all. If you think a city park belongs to you. try growing turnips on them to feed your family.

Most government programs are inefficient because they are addressed to verbal abstractions. There are not in reality any such entities as the poor, blacks, or farmers. There are only individuals. Some farm. Some don't have much money. Some have black skin. But they are all separate individuals and they do not share one common problem.

Most people who use collective nouns and plural pronouns a lot are really pursuing their own individual selfish goal. There are a lot of individuals drawing big paychecks in comfortable offices for expressing concern for verbal abstractions. It's a lot easier to be concerned about 'America's farmers" than to help a farmer. It's a lot easier to be concerned about "black Americans" than to do something tangible for a black person. It's far more simple to express concern for "the poor" than to help a person find a job.

What is done in this world, for good or evil, is done by individuals to individuals. When more people start talking about "what I can do" instead of "what we ought to do," some real progress can be made.

proved that sanctions would be

On the first point, the Europeans know as well or better than the U.S. what Khadafy does. The single fact that terrorists who attacked in Rome turned up with Tunisian passports, confiscated by Libyan authorities when they brutally expelled tens of thousands of Tunisian workers a few months ago, is a fingerprint, if not a hot smoking gun.

On the second point, the sanctions could be effective if all the major countries participated. The Europe ans are putting economic and general political interests ahead of their nonetheless urgent interest in stemming terrorism.

Certainly, there is a craven side to it. But some of the points they don't make out loud also weigh on their ambivalence and should be taken into account, if only as a guide for future American planning.

1. There's no doubt that Khadafy is and long has been a patron of terrorists. But Abu Nidal, who is identified as the organizer of the Rome and Vienna airport attacks last month, now has his main base in Syria. Nobody talks about sanctions against Syria, that would be too delicate, but it does weaken the logic of singling out Libya. 2. Queries about the "effectiveness" of sanctions are a way of asking whether American companies will really observe them, or will return to Libya by the back door as they did when Americans were ordered out in 1981.

3. Mumbles about the general uselessness of sanctions have to do with the U.S. reacting too loudly, too impetuously or too pointlessly on other occasions, for example the European-Soviet gaspipe deal, KAL flight 007, the invasion of Afghanistan.

There is a consensus among international experts that to have a chance of working, sanctions must be directed to a specific issue, be relevant, and contain an inherent criterion for being lifted. The sanctions which President Reagan imposed on Libya come nearer to these requirements than some other cases, but they still are conditioned on Libya's stopping the use of terrorism without any definition of how and when that might be established.

4. Countries such as Germany and Britain which opposed sanctions against South Africa now find their self-interested caution to be a convenient shield, saying why should they turn on Libya rather than South

The very confusion and evasive-ness of these arguments reveals the unhappy dilemma about Libya. No doubt practically every European country and most of the Arabs as well would be delighted to see the last of Khadafy, but they would like him to disappear without the slightest bruise on their own skins or pocketbooks.

It is a measure of the world's tangled politics that the Communist states, which don't really like Khadafy any better, have come to his defense in the name of "anti-imperialism," and all the Arabs, including those whom he has menaced most directly, support him in the name of

These are the wages of crude American "globalism," making an East-West confrontation out of every issue and seeing a strategic interest wherever and by whomever the U.S. is challenged. Khadafy is an unscrupulous pest to everybody, not a power, and he has certainly earned having his international privileges cut by the perfectly legal means of sanctions. But he is only Khadafy.

Reagan showed sober judgment in withholding military action. Khadafy's real enemies are most of the other Arabs, and they obviously felt that a U.S. attack on Libya would hurt them more than it would hurt

These are disagreeable facts, but a U.S. which proclaims global interests must by definition take far-ranging interests into account before it acts on a specific point of irritation. It should be understood that globalism acts as a restraint on U.S. power, it doesn't reward going-it-alone. That said, the European allies have shown neither courage nor a farsighted view of their own needs. They are going to have a foreign ministers meeting about Libya. It is to be hoped they will think again and realize that common defense must mean against terrorists as well as against mighty foes.

From Staff and Wire Reports

Partly cloudy skies and warm temperatures with a high in the mid 60s are being predicted for Wednesday by the forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport.

Tonight, under partly cloudy skies, the low should reach only into the upper 30s with southeasterly winds at five to 10 mph. Wednesday's winds should shift to the south at 10 to 20 mph. Monday's high of 59 was 21 degrees below the record high for the date set in 1957. The record low for January 14, set in 1982, was 13 and was 19 degrees colder than this morning's low.

STATE

Except for some high-level cloudiness in far West Texas, the state basked under clear skies this morning with chilly temperatures in the 30s and 40s.

A high-pressure system covered South Texas and the coastal waters, while out west, a trough of low pressure sliced across the state from Childress to El Paso, according to the National Weather Service.

Temperatures in the 30s and 40s were most common across nearly all of Texas. Only in the Trans Pecos area could temperatures in the 20s and and teens be found.

At 4 a.m., the temperature extremes ranged from 19 degrees at Marfa to 45 degrees at Guadalupe Pass, the weather service said. The forecast calls for fair skies tonight and partly cloudy conditions by Wednesday. Highs should be in the upper 60s to lower 70s, while lows should be in the 30s. West Texas should be partly cloudy to cloudy with a slight chance of light rain or showers by Wednesday. Highs should be in the 60s with lows tonight mostly in the 30s.

South Texas should be clear and cool tonight and partly cloudy Wednesday. Highs should be in the 70s with lows in the 40s and 50s.

NATION

A cold front off the New England coast forced cold air and gusty winds into the Northeast today, pushing wind chills to as low as 30 below

Light snow was falling across the Great Lakes region and along the coast of Maine.

Skies were cloudy over much of the nation west of the Rockies and fog covered many valleys.

Clear skies prevailed from the Rockies to the Mississippi Valley and across the Southeast.

BIG SPRING - For an 18-0 team, Midland College looked distressingly mortal Monday night despite a 74-65 Western Junior College Athletic Conference win over upset-intent Howard College.

The Chaparrals' lead was a precarious 65-62 with 2:17 to go and the Hawks had scored the last four

"I thought we could win," said Howard Coach E. L. Sparling. "I called time. I knew we had fouls to waste, and I told them to try to foul No. 42. But it's a freshman team and I guess we had a mental block. Midland is just a 54 per cent free throw shooting team and I wanted to get them to the line.

Mookie Blaylock drove the lane off perfect feed from Mike Smith with 1:50 left and then, after the Hawks missed a free throw, penetrated for a fast break layup and was fouled on the shot. His conversion with 1:08 left gave MC a 70-62 lead and the No. 3 ranked Chaps had safely stowed away their fourth WJCAC win.

'At half time I told Reggie (assistant coach Reggie Franklin) that I was concerned about the game," said Coach Jerry Stone. "The way things were going I didn't feel we were playing the way we can. But you look up at the scoreboard and you've got an 11-point lead and what can

WITH WALTER Walker, a 5-11 freshman from Statesville, N.C., hitting his first five shots from the field and Howard clicking on 10 of its first 13 attempts in the third quarter, the Hawks closed to within three, 53-50, with 11:30 left to play and hung close until the final two minutes.

It was a game that started out like the standard Chap blowout as MC converted a rash of turnovers and some big assists by Tony Wright into a 16-2 lead 6:40 into the first half. As it turned out, that surge was the difference. Howard outscored MC for the rest of half, 28-25, and held a 35-33 edge in the second half.

Wright was the spark early for the Chaps, hitting on a rebound from underneath and then twice feeding Ricky Grace, breaking for the rim, on superbly executed lob dunks.

Grace also hit off a Blaylock pass and then a 15-footer for a 10-2 lead.

Wright dropped a backward bounce pass off the pivot to Blaylock breaking to the basket for a layup. Wright then was back muscling up from underneath for two off a Grace pass and Lincoln Minor concluded the run with a drive from the right

Wright, who displayed ball-handling finesse one might rather expect to see from a 6-0, 165 pound guard than a 6-6 230 pound inside man, never felt threatened. "We won by nine points. That's not really close. But they played a lot better than when we saw them before. They've improved a lot."

COACH STONE predicted "They have quickness and shooters and they are going to beat lot of people. As for us, I'm like the fans, when we're undefeated and ranked, I expect us to beat people by big scores all the time, but that's not going to Even MC's quick lead didn't both-er Sparling. "I thought our defense would keep us close. That early spurt was the difference. We kept coming back and coming back, but couldn't quite make it all the way. He added appreciatively, "Midland shoots only 54 per cent from the line, but the thing that makes them great is that they shoot 'em when they have to shoot 'em.

Blaylock wasn't the 12 of 14 marksman he was here Friday night against Murray State, but he finished with a game high 28 points on 10 of 20 from the field. Grace was 6of-8 from the floor for 12 and Wright contributed 10 points, although his floor work was perhaps even more valuable

Lady Rebs finish first half at 7-0

By TERRY WILLIAMSON Assistant Sports Editor

It was supposed to be a battle with first place in the girls District 4-5A basketball race at stake at the Midland Lee gym Monday night, but it turned into a nightmare for the Abilene High Eagles as the Lady Rebels claimed a 71-45 mismatch verdict.

The Lady War Birds, who entered the game with a 5-1 loop mark and just a single game behind the perfect 6-0 Rebs, might as well not have shown up for this one. They evidently left the war club at home while this engagement looked like a battle between first and last place clubs.

You knew AHS was in deep trouble in the first quarter when Lee raced to a 20-4 lead while the Eagles' Trena Jackson, the league's leading scorer, was a meager one of seven from the field and only two of 18 as a

It got worse folks. AHS ended up hitting a sloppy 18 percent from the field with a 15 of 82 shooting eye. Jackson, the classy senior who has been over 50 points in a game this year and regularly over 30 points, ended the game with a humanistic 10 points, hitting only three of 19 shots from the field.

If that wasn't bad enough, Vicki Dean contributed a four of 23 effort from the field, despite hitting for 17 points on the night. Even with 17 points, Dean was of little help with a 17 percent night while connecting on only nine of 15 charity tosses. She could have had 50 points easily.

Meanwhile, Lee's consistent and swarming Rebs galloped merrily up and down the court, hitting at a 46 percent clip from the field. The only shortcoming for Lee was a seven of 19 effort from the charity stripe, but this wasn't pressure basketball. The verdict was in before the polls

ROZ EADEN led Lee with 13 points while Becky White and Regina Calicutt each added 10. But every Rebel on the roster got in the game and scored. Lee coach Shirley Stephenson didn't do any cartwheels after the game, but you could tell she would have if she had been asked. "We did what we had to do. The son. "We knew before the game that we had to keep the Jackson girl from hitting big, but I didn't realize we held her to a three of 19 night. That's pretty good, don't you think?

"We had to work hard at making her work hard for her points. We had to put as much pressure on her as we could."

Now with Lee owning a perfect 7-0 loop start, the real pressure may come in the next two weeks. Lee started district play at 8-0 last year, only to end up missing out on a playoff berth with a skid down the stretch. Will the Lee girls be feeling that pressure down this stretch run?

"We'll know pretty soon if our girls feel the pressure from last year," said Stephenson. "One thing that is different this time around is that we have more home games down the stretch than last year. We have two trips to Abilene and Midland High Monday and that's all the road trips we have in the second half. It was the other way around last year.

Abilene High coach Carlos Ratliff, who put his star scorer on the bench in the fourth quarter, was really miffed with the loss.

"I don't want to make any comments about this game," Ratliff said after the drubbing. "You couldn't print what I have to say.

Lee hosts Odessa High at the Lee gym Friday at 8 p.m. to begin second half action and the Rebels had an 80-45 win against the Bronchos the first time around. OHS is coming off a 53-46 win over Big Spring, but whether they have improved 35 points remains to be seen.

In the junior varsity contest, Lee had little trouble in posting a 61-47 verdict as Peitte Mayfield led the way with 20 points. Anissa Wyatt added 11 points while Abilene High's Julie Clevenger got 13 points to lead the Eagles they've got this head-knocking new academic rule. How do NCAA schools propose to enforce it? With help from independent testing services and a willingness to blow the whistle on one another, the organization says. Instead of just sitting back and complaining and saying, This guy over there can't be eligible because we recruited him and we know he can't be,' the coaches need to call us and tell us that," NCAA enforcement chief Steve Morgan said. "Then we will go to whatever source we need to get an accurate indication of that student's performance. If it's not up to standard, then that triggers the disciplinary process."

By vote of National Collegiate Athletic Association convention delegates on Monday, freshmen cannot play or practice without making "Cminus" grade point averages and minimum scores on the ACT or SAT standardized college entrance exams.

Research indicates perhaps half the top athletes next fall may not qualify, bringing to mind visions of pressured coaches skulking around with pockets stuffed full of advance copies of the tests.

The same schools that have been getting around the other rules will find a way to get around this," said Grambling president Joseph Johnson, a sharp critic of the use of standardized tests.

THE SERVICES which administer the SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test) and ACT (American College Test) are not connected with the NCAA or any athletic conference. But NCAA officials agree that their integrity and security checks are vital to the effort of building what NCAA President Jack Davis terms "a better class of student-athletes."

"The test people themselves take great efforts to protect the validity of their tests by not making copies available outside of the normal testing circumstances," Morgan said. "My understanding is that the tests are definitely not the same from year to year and that even within a year, forms of the test are different, even in the same testing site. If you copy off the guy next to you, even though the answers may be right on his paper, they could be wrong on

The Educational Testing Service, a non-profit organization, administers the SAT. The ACT is administered by the American College Testing Program. The NCAA will require prospects to take the tests on national testing days at national testing sites the same time as other high schoolers. But nobody from the NCAA will be there to watch.

"There's no overall requirement to report as to the means for certifying each athlete to the national office, Morgan said. "We won't have a re-student to say, 'This guy's eligible, and this guy's not."

There will be a danger of hired test-takers posing as athletes. "The ACT and SAT people try to verify as best they can, and obtain signatures from the person taking the test," Morgan said. "Obviously, any time you have a rule, there's going to be some way that somebody can beat it or try to beat it. What you hope to do is make it tough enough to beat that the guy who tries it runs a substantial risk of getting caught."

ANY DELIBERATE attempt at getting around Proposition 48 will be treated as a major violation and would put schools in jeopardy of the greatly toughened penalties adopted ast summer.

'It's hard to know right now exactly who is going to be affected and what's going to happen," Morgan said. "When the satisfactory progress rule first came into effect, you wring their hands and say half their teams would be lost as a consequence. And you're seeing some hand-wringing right now.

"Two basic things need to occur one is we need to make sure the member institutions know how to apply the rules and are educated to its terms. Then we have to be prepared to follow up those instances in which there are reports that indeed the athlete can't be eligible."

Morgan is hoping college admis-sions offices will be more cooperative with his people than with wouldbe violators within their own athletic departments. And since the move toward strengthened academic standards is the work of a unified body of college presidents, many believe admissions officers may indeed be so inclined "Admission office personnel can often detect things that don't wash," Morgan said. "Despite the fact they're employed by the same insti-tution as the coaches, that doesn't mean they're always going to do all they can to protect the athletic program.

"There's absolutely no way to make it fool-proof," Morgan added. But I think we have the best situation we could have with the existing circumstances.'

One factor complicating things this year is that a great many high school seniors will not have been tested prior to Feb. 12, the national signing date for football prospects.

"I don't know how many. But who don't know their test scores as would be normally thinking that there will be a substantial number of signing date because a lot of these people are not the students who they've got to take the SAT to be ready," Morgan said. "They're just kind of hanging on, hoping to be this season, which has also prouduced a 14-6 overall record (including three losses by forfeit because of an ineligible player), has been a wide-spread scoring attack.

The Bulldogs have had three players put points on the board in a strong double-digit effort all season. Matt Sears leads the team in overall scoring for the year with a 20.4 average, but is being chased hard by Elvin Mackey at 19.4. Anthony Deande is third at 14.0.

The scoring race is different in 4 5A play where Mackey and Deande are in the league's top four and Sears falls to eighth.

UAB took the lead at the start and never lost it, although South Alabama clawed to within one point on several occasions. Mincy was five of six from the floor during the first half on his way to scoring 16 points as the Blazers led 36-25 at the half. In the second period, Mitchell and Mincy continued to hit during the first 10 minutes of the half, helping UAB pull away. John Williams scored 21 points to lead Louisiana State to an easy victory over Mississippi. LSU pulled away from a 10-10 tie to go ahead 44-29 at intermission and coasted the rest of the way.

Roderick Barnes paced the Rebels with 22 points.

"If LSU plays the rest of the season like they did tonight, they're definitely going to be a contender for the championship," said Mississippi Coach Lee Hunt. "No matter what we did, they scored on us." Jeff Hall hit a 20-foot jumper to break a 54-54 tie with 1:21 remaining and Louisville added three free throws to hold off Southern

Humphries sparks Suns to victory

Louisville built a six-point lead with 12:58 to play, but Southern, led by a pressing defense, rallied to 54-54 with a little under two minutes to play. Billy Thompson added a pair of free throws and Herbert Crook one to perserve the victory for Louisville in the final minute.

"I knew it would be a tough game coming in here," said Louisville Coach Denny Crum after the game at Hattlesburg, Miss. "They have good athletes, and a young team like USM plays a lot better at home.

"We substituted there in the first half after building a lead, and we ust never seemed to get things gong again until the end. However, I give them a lot of credit for scrapping and getting back in the game."

Hersey Hawkins scored 25 points, including the tying basket as time ran out, and Bradley went on to defeat Dayton in overtime. Newly-arrived to the polls, the Braves improved their record to 16-1. Others

James Hunter made two free throws to break a tie with 19 seconds left and lift Tennessee-Chattanooga to a 64-61 win over Furman. Keith Thomas scored 28 points to lead Old Dominion over North Carolina-Charlotte 94-87. Anthony Taylor's 24 points led Oregon to an 83-69 decision over Stanford, and Alvin Robinson came off the bench to score 12 points, grab 11 rebounds and block three shots as Virginia Commonwealth trimmed James Madison 72-

Brian Humes had 20 points and De-troit held off a late surge by Butler to post a 75-73 win. Doug West scored 15 points and Ken Wilson added 13 to pace Villanova over Connecticut 68-Derek Rucker contributed 20 points to lead Davidson to a 92-71 decision over Western Carolina. Doug Turner hit a 15-foot jump shot with 20 seconds remaining to give St. Bonaventure an 82-81 victory over Rhode Island.

Tim Legler's 19 points led LaSalle over Holy Cross 89-63, William An-derson hit a 12-footer in the last seconds to give Illinois State a 35-34 win over Creighton, and Kevin Johnson's eight points in two minutes helped Marquette break open a close game en route to an 87-71 victory over Southwestern Louisiana.

main thing.'

Led by North Carolina, the top seven teams in The Associated Press college basketball poll were unchanged from last week's nationwide voting of sportswriters and broadcasters.

North Carolina, 16-0, remained atop the poll for the eighth straight week, receiving 46 first-place votes and 1,280 points, 49 more than Michigan, 16-0, which got 15 first-place votes after registering two Big Ten Conference victories over ranked teams, Illinois and Purdue.

Duke, 15-0, had the last four firstplace votes from the panel of 65 and finished with 1,173 points, followed by Syracuse, Georgia Tech, Memphis State and Oklahoma. The first seven teams have a combined record of 104-1, the lone loss being Georgia Tech's defeat at the hands of Michigan in the Tipoff Classic.

Syracuse, 13-0, held fourth place with 1,116 points, Georgia Tech, 14-1, was next with 988, while No. 6 Memphis State, 15-0, had 976 and Oklahoma, 15-0, finished with 909

Kansas, which has not been out of the Top Ten all season, moved from ninth to eighth with 858 points, while St. John's, which lost to Boston College in overtime last week before rallying for a national television victory over Georgetown, was ninth with 720 points and Nevada-Las Vegas, 12th last week, rounded out the Top Ten with 653 points.

Last week it was Kentucky, Neva da-Las Vegas, Georgetown, Alabama-Birmingham, Texas-El Paso, Notre Dame, Louisville, Illinois, Virginia Tech and Purdue.

Bradley, 16-1, is the only new member of the Top Twenty. The Braves' only loss, 81-76, came at the hands of Clemson in the first round of the Rainbow Classic in Honolulu.

Falling from the Top Twenty was No. 18 Illinois, 10-5. The Fighting Illini lost to the second-rated Wolverines of Michigan 61-59, and also dropped a 58-51 decision to Michigan

Louisiana State, 15-2, dropped from eighth to 14th after suffering Southeastern Conference losses to Alabama and Tennessee.

Georgetown suffered its third loss of the season, 79-74 to St. John's, and fell two more places, to 15th.

Louisville, 94, fell just one spot from last week's ranking as the Cardinals suffered their fourth loss of the year, all to ranked teams.

Purdue, 14-3, jumped from 20th to 19th as the Boilermakers split their two Big Ten games last week, an 88-83 victory over Michigan State, and a 75-51 loss to Michigan.

Associated Press The Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings have built up a lot of frustration while limping to the worst records in the National Hockey League. They decided to take it

181 minutes in penalties were handed out after a bench-clearing brawl with five minutes remaining in Monday night's game, a 7-4 Maple Leaf victory over the Red Wings. In the only other NHL game Mon-

Nine players were banished and day night, the touring Edmonton Oilers beat the Boston Bruins 5-3. Eighty seconds before the main event at Toronto, the Leafs' Brad Smith and Detroit's Danny Gare and Steve Richmond were banished for Detroit Coach Brad Park, already seething because the Wings had blown a 2-0 first-period lead, had had enough after the Smith-Richmond confrontation. Smith was given the rest of the evening off after ripping Smith's helmet off his head and slamming it over the Leaf player.

"If they want us to scratch and claw, then we'll do it." And they did. The battle broke out when Toronto rookie Wendel Clark slammed into Detroit defenseman Barry Melrose behind the Red Wing

"We've been talking about our power play and our penalty killing and I think we did pretty well on both of them," said Edmonton Coach Glen Sather. "I'm satisfied just to come in here and get a win.'

New England not best bet for Las Vegas casinos

this season.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) - Oddsmakers here are lukewarm over the impact the New England Patriots will have on betting action for the Super Bowl.

"It looks like a dud," said Jimmy Vaccaro of the MGM Grand Hotel Sports Book, who predicted a betting total under $30 million, or $10 million less than the record $40 million wagered on last year's San Francis-co-Miami game. "I venture to guess there'll be a 25 percent cut in our share of the Super Bowl pie."

Oddsmakers said two weeks ago a Chicago-Miami matchap would have been a winner while a Chicago-New England game would cut substantially into the betting action.

Sonny Reizner, the long-time oddsmaker at the Castaways Sports Book, repeated that view, saying a Dolphin win Sunday would have meant an additional $5 million in betting

"Chicago people are much more geared toward big betting than peo-ple from New England," Reizner said, noting heavy early action on the Bears. "The Patriots don't figure to draw much money from their

Rates shoot up

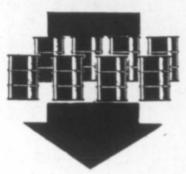

WASHINGTON (AP) - Interest rates on short-term Treasury securities shot up in Monday's auction to their highest levels since November.

The Treasury Department sold $7.4 billion in three-month bills at an average discount rate of 7.23 percent, up from 7.05 percent last week. Another $7.4 billion was sold in six-month bills at an average discount rate of 7.28 percent, up from 7.11 percent last week.

The rates were the highest since three-month bills sold for 7.24 percent on Nov. 18 and sixmonth bills averaged 7.3 percent on Nov. 4.

The new discount rates understate the actual return to investors - 7.47 percent for a $10,000 three-month bill selling for $9,817.20 and 7.66 percent for a six-month bill selling for $9,632.00.

Dollar falls

LONDON (AP) - The dollar fell against most currencies on European exchange markets early today in hesitant trading before the release of U.S. retail sales figures. Gold bullion prices edged up from a weak opening but remained below levels reached in Europe late Monday.

London traders attributed the pound's rally to market rumors of another rise in British base lending rates. The rumors subsided after the Bank of England signaled through money markets that the time was not right for another Major British banks raised their base rates last week from 11.5 percent to 12.5 percent.

MARKETS Pennzoil appeals decision on Texaco bond

NEW YORK (AP) — Pennzoil Co. has appealed a federal judge's ruling relieving Texaco Inc. of a Texas state requirement that it post a $12 billion bond while appealing Pennzoil's multibillion-dollar judgement against Texaco.

In filing its request late Monday, the Houston-based company asked the 2nd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New York for an expedited hearing. Analysts said the next big moves of the two company's stocks will probably hang on the outcome of that hearing.

In the first day of trading since U.S. District Court Judge Charles

White Plains, N.Y., Pennzoil dipped $2 a share to $69.25, while Texaco edged down 50 cents to $31.

Calling the idea of enforcing a $12 billion bond "absurd," Brieant ruled that Texaco would have to put up no more than $1 billion. The decision marked Texaco's first major victory in a legal dispute over its 1984 acquisition of Getty Oil Co. in 1984. Texaco, the nation's third-largest oil company, had argued the Texas law requiring a $12 billion appeal bond while it challenged the damage award, would destroy it, making the appeal meaningless.

Sanford Margoshes, an analyst with Merrill Lynch in New York, called Brieant's decision "a victory of a battle, not a war."

He said that even if Brieant's ruling is upheld, Texaco faces "a very long row to hoe" in the Texas courts. If the decision is overturned, Texaco will again face the devastating question of how to fight the case while posting the $12 billion bond and avoiding bankruptcy at the same

Alan Edgar, an analyst at the Dallas securities firm of Schneider, Bernet & Hickman, said the ruling significantly strengthened Texaco's

Pennzoil to reach a settlement rather than risk losing everything on

Spokesmen at Texaco's headquarters in White Plains said company Chairman John McKinley had said he would be willing to renew settlement negotiations with Pennzoil, which is based in Houston.

Asked if Pennzoil Chairman J. Hugh Liedtke also would be willing to resume settlement talks, Pennzoil spokesman Mickey Gentry said: "As he has stated before, he'll negotiate or he'll litigate, but he can't do both at the same time.'

tlement collapsed last week after Pennzoil's board rejected a merger proposal from Texaco on Tuesday. Details of the offer were not

In November, a Houston jury ruled that Texaco wrongfully interfered in a merger agreement be-tween Pennzoil and Getty when it acquired Getty. It awarded Pennzoil $7.53 billion in actual damages and an additional $3 billion in punitive

Texas District Judge Solomon Casseb Jr. later added $600 million in interest to the judgment

Hormel begins replacing its striking workers

AUSTIN, Minn. (AP) — Geo. A. Hormel & Co. officials, having reopened their flagship meatpacking plant, issued a new warning to striking employees, saying those who do not end a 5-month-old strike may be Company officials planned to begin accepting applications today to replace workers who will not cross the picket line.

Everyone out there (on strike) has a right to their job unless and until they've been replaced," Hormel senior vice president Chuck Nyberg said Monday as the plant reopened for the first time since the strike began Aug. 17.

"If enough of our people come back, we won't hire permanent re-placements," he said.

Leaders of Local P-9 of the United Food and Commercial Workers union, who said seven of their approximately 1,500 members returned to work Monday, remained confident that union employees would stay off their jobs.

It's still a clear indication the rank-and-file, no matter how they voted on the last proposal, believe they are union members and they're going to honor a picket line," said Pete Winkels, business agent for the Plant Manager Deryl Arnold said it would be two weeks before replacement workers could be offered

"We do want all of our employees to return, and we welcome them with open arms," Arnold said. "We fully expect people to continue to make the decision to return to

Hormel officials also disputed P-9's contention that the company was out to "bust" the union by reopening the plant and hiring permanent replacements for the strikers.

Nyberg said company officials are willing to negotiate but will not increase their offer of a $10-an-hour base wage.

Bank announces layoff of 38

In response to reduced market expectations RepublicBank First National Midland announced today that it would lay off 38 employees.

The layoffs announced this morning will reduce the workforce at the bank from 374 to 336 employees, and follows a staff reduction in February 1985 in which a similar number of employees were laid off.

We are just running with the market," said Tom Wageman. "It is very regretful, but the market was just not coming on as we had expected. We are only doing what any other business has to do in a downturn

Hundreds of striking George A. Hormel Co. employees stood behind police barrricades as they watched other employees cross picket lines at the struck plant.

HNG-InterNorth sells firm. loses subsidiary president

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) - The president of Houston Pipe Line Co., a subsidiary of Omaha-based HNG-Inter-North Inc., has announced his resignation effective Jan. 31.

Melvin R. Sweatman, president of Houston Pipe Line since September 1984, becomes the second president of an HNG-InterNorth subsidiary to resign in the last two business days. His resignation Monday followed the resignation Friday of William Morgan, the 42-year-old president of Northern Natural Gas since HNG-InterNorth is seeking a replacement for Morgan. The company said Monday R. Gerald Bennett, 43year-old executive vice president of Houston Pipe Line since January 1985, will replace Sweatman as president.

In a statement released Monday Sweatman said he had contemplated his decision for some time and felt it was the best time to make a chance and pursue other business interests.

HNG-InterNorth Chief Executive Kenneth Lay said he tried to convince both Sweatman and Morgan to stay. Lay said Bennett, Sweatman's successor, has about 20 years in the natural gas transmission business. "We expect Houston Pipe Line to maintain its pre-eminent position in the Texas natural gas market under Gerald's leadership," Lay said. HNG-InterNorth also announced

Monday that Energy Systems Co., which supplies heating and cooling to 114 buildings in Omaha and Wayne, was sold to Reuben Johnson & Son Inc. of Superior, Wis., for an undisclosed sum HNG-InterNorth officials said the company sold the division Dec. 30 but made no announcement until questioned Monday. Randal Blauvelt, an HNG-Inter-

North spokesman, said the sale fits in with a plan to sell specific units to help reduce the company's $4.7 billion debt.

In December, HNG-InterNorth also sold Peoples Natural Gas Co: to UtiliCorp United Inc. of Kansas City,

Officials said Reuben Johnson & Sons, a privately held construction firm, would retain the 34 employees of Energy Systems and would keep the firm as a separate Nebraska corporation based in Omaha.

Bank lawsuit blamed for six directors' resignation

From Staff Reports

A lawsuit between 18 stockholders of Western Bank and Mercantile Bank of Dallas was the reason for six members of the Western Bank's Board of Directors resigning over the weekend, according to Robert Truitt, attorney for the group.

Truitt said the six former directors are among the stockholders being sued by Mercantile Bank as the result of a loan made to the stockholders to buy Western Bank stock.

"Our position is that Mercantile Bank now owns the stock, and now the stockholders are no longer involved. Since MBank now has the stock, these directors felt it was necessary to resign from the board," Truitt stated. He added that there may be other stockholders entering into the suit, which will be heard in

There hasn't been any response from MBank on the stockholders' position. "The ball's in their court

Gas pipelines seen as targets for takeovers

New York Times News Service

DALLAS - Takeover speculation surrounding the sharp rise last week in the stock of the Transco Energy Co. occurred against what several energy analysts described as a backdrop of continuing consolidation, falling prices and turmoil in the natural gas pipeline industry.

lation you'll have consolidation within an industry," said Ronald J. Barone, an energy analyst with Kidder, Peabody & Co. Transco's stock rose $4 a share Friday to a high of $61.25 as speculation mounted that a major energy con-

Wagner & Brown, the big oil companies Exxon, Amoco, Shell Oil and Sohio are considered the most likely to have the interest and financial strength to buy a large pipeline The Occidental Petroleum Corp., which has significant gas reserves, was the first of the major oil companies to buy a large pipeline when it agreed to rescue Midcon for $3 billion on New Year's Day.

Pipeline companies with access to major markets could provide the large energy companies with a more secure means of transporting natural gas to customers, some analysts said. Then, too, oil executives increasingly are attracted to pipelines as the government turns natural gas pricing over to market forces.

"Under the new regulations, producers buying pipelines makes sense," said Curt Launer, an analyst with L.F. Rothschild, Unterberg, Towbin. "The Oxy-Midcon deal is the first one heading in that direction."

Many major pipelines so far have balked at last November's order by the federal Energy Regulatory Commission that they ship gas purchased by utilities and other distributors directly from production companies. Previously, the pipelines had served as middlemen, buying gas from producers and selling it to distributors.

Barone of Kidder, Peabody noted that although natural gas prices are at cyclical lows because of excess supplies and faltering demand, the industry has produced above-average returns on equity of close to 15 percent in recent years.

Houston-based Transco, which supplies natural gas for customers between Texas and Manhattan and provides more than 70 percent of the natural gas used in Manhattan and neighboring New Jersey cities through its Transcontinental Gas Pipe Line Co. - is regarded by several analysts as among the most at-tractive takeover candidates remaining in the pipeline industry.

Infield drilling set for Andrews

From Staff Reports

Sizable infield drilling programs have been planned for fields in Andrews and Pecos counties.

AMOCO PRODUCTION CO., Andrews, intends to drill five Pennsylvanian producers in the Bakke field of Andrews County, all located in Block 1 of ULS survey.
The No. 1 and No. 2 University

"JG" wells are located in Section 3, and the No. 1 University "JF" is located in Section 4 of the block. The No. 1 University "JD" is located in Section 5 while the No. 1 University "JC" is staked in Section 6. The wells have a proposed depth of 9,850 ft. Also in Andrews County, EXXON CORP. plans to drill nine wells in the Fullerton field, all in the Fullerton Clearfork Unit lease.

Transco tests Gulf gas producer

it has drilled its first successful natural gas well on North Padre Island Block A-43, about 35 miles offshore Corpus Christi. The A-43 No. 1 well was drilled in 209 feet of water to a total depth of 6,420 feet. Log and test results indicated 71 feet of net gas pay from five middle Miocene : at depth ranging from 5,680 to 6,190

The well is located 4,500 feet westnorthwest of TXP's producing plat-form on the adjacent Block A-42 and extends the underlying field. Transco acquired Block A-42 in August 1978 under a farm-in arrangent and discovered natural gas in

MMDAs earn more interest than do CDs

By BILL DOYLE

Q. My bank certificate of deposit has just matured. I liked that CD, because it paid high interest. But the money was not available to me during the CD's 30-month term.

As I now may have to use that money at any time, I thought it was necessary to transfer it to a savings account, paying only 5.5 percent

Then, I read in your column about "money market deposit accounts," (MMDAs) which pay higher interest than savings accounts and from which money can be withdrawn at any time. Would it be wise to transfer my money to such an account?

A. Very wise, for the simple reason that your money will earn more interest. How much higher depends on the particular bank. Every federally insured bank and savings and loan association is free to set the interest it pays on MMDAs. Another wise move is to shop around for the bank or S&L paying the highest

It makes absolutely no sense to keep money in an old-fashioned savings account, when you can get higher interest simply by moving your money to a MMDA. Until recently, federal regulations required you to keep at least $1,000 in a MMDA, in order to get more than 5.5 percent interest. But that requirement went off the books as of January 1. Now, each bank and S&L sets its own MMDA deposit minimum.

Also gone is the federally imposed $1,000 minimum for "super NOW" high-interest checking accounts.

And, on March 31, the 5.5 percent savings account interest limit will disappear. After that date, every bank and S&L will determine what interest it pays on savings accounts.

This all results from the final phasing out of interest rate regulation on consumer deposits, as mandated by the Depository Institutions Deregulation and Monetary Control Act of 1980.

Q. My wife has $80,000 in high-interest bank certificates of deposit in her name. I have $95,000 in high-interest CDs in my name at the same bank.

If one of us joins the choir silent, the survivor will inherit what the deceased spouse leaves and will then have $175,000 at that bank — $75,000 above the $100,000 Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. coverage per depositor. What can we do to correct this situation?

A. FDIC insurance on the dead spouse's deposits will remain in effect as long as that money remains part of his or her estate. So, if the survivor does not transfer the CDs out of the estate, the insurance coverage will not be reduced.

Let's say you leave this vale of tears before your wife. The CDs in your estate will be below the $100,000 FDIC coverage - unless the interest that markups accumulates on those CDs lifts their value above arough the $100,000. At that point, the executor or administrasome accrued interest.

After that, as each CD matures, the estate's executor or administrator can remove the money from Here, I'm assuming the surviving spouse will want to leave the money in those high-interest CDs, rather than transfer it elsewhere at current lower rates. CDs can be redeemed, without early withdrawal penalty, after the owner dies.

Q. What protection does a depositor at a bank, savings and loan association or credit union have if another person manages to withdraw money from his account, without authorization? Does the depositor lose his money?

A. The depositor shouldn't lose anything. The bank, S&L or CU would have to swallow the loss and make good the unauthorized withdrawal. The person - "thief" is the more descriptive word - making the unauthorized withdrawal would have to commit forgery by signing the depositor's name on a withdrawal slip or a check. Granted, there are some adept forgers on the loose in this less-than-perfect world. But every bank, S&L and CU has depositors' signature cards on file. Depository institutions are constantly on guard against unauthorized withdrawals.

Local grand champion calf brings $6,240

By ED TODD Staff Writer

The grand champion calf of the 37th annual Midland County Livestock Show brought the steer's 14year-old exhibitor, Jason Gray, $4.80 a pound for a total bid price of

And the total bidding on the 118 steers, lambs and swine in the premium sale Monday night grossed about $90,000 for the 4H Club and Future Farmers of America youths in the show in the Midland County Exhibit

Top bids lagged behind last year's total sales of more than $105,500 by about $15,000, noted Eileen Welch, treasurer of the show's sponsor, the Midland County Livestock Association.

She credited the drop in sales to the "overall economic situation." "I think last year was so exception-al," Mrs. Welch said. "This was not a Jason's winning steer, a 1,300pound Maine-Anjou calf named 'Red," was his first champion in six years of exhibiting in livestock shows under the 4-H Club banner.

"He's the first big calf I've every had," he said. Top bid for the steer was by RepublicBank First National Midland, which last year also bought the grand champion calf. The boy's grandfather, C.M. Edwards, was proud of his grandson's accomplishment.

"It doesn't make any difference what I think," said Edwards, a 71year-old cowboy. "He's got to be the

The champion fine-wool lamb, exhibited by Michelle Driver, sold for $6.60 a pound for a total sale price of $745.80. Buyers were Holt Cowden and Community National Bank.

Last year's champion lambs brought $7.50, $7.48 and and $8.75 a pound. The 1985 grand champion nog sold for $5.55 a pound. The reserve champion swine in 1985 sold for $3 a pound, and the reserve champion calf was auctioned off at $2.75 a pound.

Floor prices in the sale were 57 cents a pound for steers, 44 cents for hogs and 61 cents for lambs.

Said livestock show supporter Ted McVey: "We're thankful for the community participation that we get out of the show.

Commissioners' Court approves office for Teen Court

By ED TODD Staff Writer

The proposed Midland Teen Court is nearing its debut, District Attorney Al Schorre is bulldozing in on crime, and the long-range study of Midland County Courthouse and jail needs into the 21st Century is in the

The Midland County Commissioners' Court Monday authorized an office in the Courthouse Annex for Midland Teen Court, a pseudo-trial court for and by teen-agers who plead guilty to such Class C misdemeanors as traffic offenses and public intoxication.

"I think it's wonderful," Margaret Wade said of the donated office space for the Teen Court's coordinator. She is a project-and-research-development committee member for the Junior League of Midland, a women's service organization, which is launching Teen Court here. The court may get into action by September.

The court will "try" the teen-ager only on the punishment phase after the teen-ager admits his or her guilt. The Midland County Juvenile Court judge or a Municipal Court judge may recommend the teen-ager for Teen Court trial. The option is to bypass the "for-real" court system and to pay for the offense by public service projects, restitution, apology and special-education programs. such as on alcohol and drug abuse.

"This is exciting," League President Sharla Hotchkiss said of the Teen Court, which is being patterned after the Odessa Teen Court, which is "one of the most successful" in the nation.

Midland County Judge Bill Ahders said he is backing the Teen Court.

"I'm all for it," he said.

Ahders, former Midland Municipal of the Teen Court. Court judge, said he had instituted a Teen Court when he was city judge from the late 1960s to the late 1970s. Jurors, then composed of students from Midland and Robert E. Lee High Schools, would try the defendant teen-ager on both the guilt-innocent and punishment phases of the trial, which dealt with traffic

"Instead of having them pay a fine," he said, "I'd send them out to the golf course to pick up trash." "It's real good for the kids if they are conscientious about it," he said

Ahders said the "potential is great" for the League-sponsored Teen Court. "I think it is a tremendous idea.

Kids have to learn the difference between right and wrong.

Ahders said he offered the League the nighttime use of the County Courthouse Courtroom to try cases, but he said it appears Teen Court will be held in Municipal Court.

The League, which already has committed $10,000 for the initialyear operation of the court, is seek-from Midland County, the city of Midland and the Midland Independent School District. The League is considering a $40,000-a-year-budget, which would include a $24,000-a-year salary for the Teen Court coordinator.

ing first-year funding of $10,000 each

"It is the League's policy to initiate needed projects and then turn them over to the community," Ellen Beil, chairman of the League's project and research development committee, said in a letter to Ahders.

Couple wanted for passing bad checks may be in area

From Staff Reports

Police officials say Nancy Ann Pineda and Robert Louis Crawford are out to prove that the pen is mightier than the sword, especially when applied to a bad check.

Ms. Pineda and Crawford have been leading Texas law-enforcement officers on a merry chase in the past year, and in the process they have run up several pages of outstanding felony warrants on a variety of theft-by-check and forgery charges. Now, that chase may have led them to Midland.

'There's a chance that she or possibly both could be in this area," says Sheriff's Sgt. David Cobos of the Midland Crime Stoppers program.

Cobos says Ms. Pineda is originally from the Pecos area, and is wanted as a parole violator out of Midland County.

"She hasn't been seen in a year," he said, but investigators have reason to believe she may have returned to this area.

Catching up with these two fugitives has been difficult for lawenforcement officials, who must contend with an enormous number of aliases and bad-check cases. Ms. Pineda has 18 known aliases, including Nancy Ann Acosta, Shelly Calkins, Jennifer Durcan, Jenny Warlick, Sieglinda Watkins, Carolyn Wright, Marjorie Ann Reed, Karrie Boswell, Natalie Andres and Sandra Hester. The most commonly used of Crawford's seven known aliases are Ernest Clark, Welton Mims, Richard Crawford and Earnest

Crawford

Ms. Pineda, 27, has been convicted of forgery and theft. She is described as a Hispanic female standing five feet seven inches tall and weighing somewhere between 130 and 145 pounds, with black hair and brown eyes. She Crawford is described as a 38-year-old black male, about six feet tall and 180 pounds, with brown hair and brown eyes. He is confined to a wheelchair, but investigators say that hasn't slowed him down or made him any less dangerous - he reportedly carried a sawed-off shotgun under the seat of his wheelchair.

This pair of traveling fugitives allegedly stole several shipments of money orders from check printers in Los Angeles County and Santa Barbara, Calif. They were traced back to Texas, where they obtained driver's licenses, opened bank accounts and successfully applied for credit cards using false identities, reports say.

A large number of worthless checks have allegedly been cashed, and investigators believe merchants and banks have lost at least $98,000 to the pair, who last week were added to the Texas

Gandy enters race for 21st

By LANA CUNNINGHAM Assistant City Editor

Coming from the Hill Country, Henry Gandy is using his home base in Kerrville and experience in legislation as a jumping off point in announcing his campaign for the 21st District congressional seat.

During a news conference Monday afternoon at Republican county headquarters here, Gandy contended he could continue the policies set down by U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler. Loeffler is leaving that seat to run for governor, and the race has drawn several candidates. In addition to Gandy, others already announced are San Antonio residents Lamar Smith and Jeff Wentworth. Van Archer, also of San Antonio, has scheduled a news conference today, and Midland Mayor G. Thane Akins is expected to announce his candidalegislation aide, chief counsel on the Appropriations Committee, top floor assistant to Loeffler and legislative strategist for House Republican leadership. Three months ago, he left his job as special assistant to President Reagan for legislative affairs.

Whoever is selected in May must have the broad-based support to win in November. You need someone in Washington who has had the experience and can pick up where Tom Loeffler left off," said Gandy, 30.

Suzy Homemaker hysteria towers over leaning pizza

It was one of those weird ideas I get when I'm in a strange mood. Looking back now, I was probably delirious with a rare fever.

During a recent week of vacation I got that crazy notion that I could act like a perfect Little Miss Suzy Homemaker. I spent two days cleaning out files and another one dusting, sweeping a navigable path through the apartment and clearing out trash piled in front of the television set so I could watch Phil Donahue and Then came the delirious part. I decided to cook, and something more than my goarmet lunch of throwing a slice of cheese on my bologna sandwich. I was going to bake bread. As I flipped through the cookbook, that idea grew into making hamburger buns and then a homemade pizza, including the crust "from scratch."

Several months ago I had purchased a food processor and I'm still in the stage of "let's take it out and play with it." It's great for mixing up bread dough, and once that dough has risen, all I had to do was shape it into eight hamburger buns. Sounded Mixing it was easy, once the flour dust settled. So was pouring it into a bowl to rise. Letting it rise was the

Shaping the dough into eight perfect flat-on-the-bottom and round-onthe-top buns was a different matter. I ended up with eight lumpy balls. I thought letting them rise again and baking would solve the problems. It didn't. The dough rose into eight larger and lumpier balls. They baked that way, too, although they didn't

I don't know what I did wrong but each bun feels like a heavy croquet ball. My dog refuses to touch them; she snickered, turned up her nose and trotted off to her dog food. Complicating the kitchen scene that day was my pizza. After watching all those pizza commercials on TV my mouth was watering, and the cookbook read as if it would only take minutes to whip up a crust and layer it with all the goodies in my refrigerator. It also gave me a chance to play some more with the food processor

The crust whipped up OK...after about 20 minutes.

There was the one blade on the food processor designed to slice stuff, like sausage, into small slices. Mine ate the sausage; I got a bowl full of crumbly pieces.

And I grated the cheese — a ton of it. The more the better, I thought, as I envisioned that deligious pizza swimming in melted mozzarella. Along with the crumbly sausage was pizza sauce (a la one of the popular jars of spaghetti sauce), onions and mushrooms. Layer by layer it went onto the crust until I had a deep-dish pizza in a thin-crust pan. With the uneven layering, it was more like the Leaning Tower of

By the time it finally came out of the oven, steaming, with the cheese bubbling, three hours had passed. I was too tired to eat anything then. It tasted OK, but it certainly was not what I am accustomed to eating.

At least I learned a lesson. It's too expensive to cook "from, scratch."

My hamburger buns cost about $1 each and the pizza, well, I lost count. Next time I desire a pizza I will pick up the phone and order one. Even the jumbo size with everything in the kitchen thrown in is cheaper than what I made.

In fact, give me take-out orders, cheap hamburgers, good restaurants and delivery service. Anything is better than my cooking.

It will be a snowy day in Tahiti before I try the Suzy Homemaker

People in Congress don't understand that 80 percent of exploratory wells are drilled by independents, according to Gandy. If elected, he first would seek decontrol of natural gas. He said he would support an import fee on crude oil, but noted there has been a lot of opposition to it by other congressmen.

In addition to oil and gas legisla-tion, the deficit is one of the most important issues facing Congress, he said. Gandy supports a constitutional amendment to balance the budget and admitted the defense budget should be examined closely. While there should be some management reforms in the defense budget, he said the budget shouldn't be cut so much it would seriously impair the country's defense.

He also supported the president's sanctions against Libya. "Terrorism does not know any national or international boundaries. The president is right. You have to go to the root of it...put economic and political pressure on countries harboring terrorthere is clear knowledge of who the Committee.

With three candidates coming from San Antonio, he said that county's vote will be split. Winner of the primary will "depend on who carries the Hill Country. Winner of the 21st District will be a candidate outside San Antonio," he said.

Gandy was born in Houston and educated at Kerrville schools and Trinity University. He co-founded the Conservative Energy Resource Council, served on the International Ranchers' Roundup planning committee in Del Rio, was named to Outstanding Young Men of America, served on steering committee of Texas Energy Forum in Washington and ists. Schorre, district attorney for Midland County since 1985, told the commissioners that his office's 1985 convictions are 10 percent higher than those of 1984 and that his office is scoring an 88 percent conviction rate in jury trials.

"Overall, the office is going real well," he said. "I think we've made it more efficient," he said. "And when it is more efficient, you can push more cases through.

Were the conviction rate to exceed 90 percent, Schorre said that would be indicate "You're only taking gut-cinch cases.

In the past year, his office has experienced an 100 percent increase in conviction rates on child-sexualabuse cases and drug cases.

Schorre credited the increase in child-abuse convictions to greater "public attention" and "public awareness" and to more attention paid by his office to those cases. The increase in drug cases was due to the "intensive investigation" and drug roundup last summer by the Midland County Sheriff's Office.

In 1985, Schorre's office was re sponsible for 445 convictions. Of those, 206 defendants were sentenced to prison, 173 were placed on probation and 66 were sent to the Restitution Center, a halfway house.

The commissioners discussed the long-range study of county courthouse and jail needs and reviewed names of seven Dallas, Austin and Midland firms capable of conducting such a study. The names were fur nished to the commissioners at their request by the Midland Chamber of Commerce

Tom Mitchell, a Concerned Citizen Committee member who is monitoring the Commissioners' Court, re minded the court that the 1985 $3million bond issue included funding for "an appropriate study of the long-term courthouse and jail needs of Midland County" and did not authorize a study of library and other county services, such as road-andbridge construction and repair.

"I'm not against it at all," Mitchell said of the library.

Commissioner Durward Wright noted that an exhaustive study of library needs was carried out in recent years by a library consultant.

Court upholds award to cable TV franchise

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Supreme Court has upheld a $6.3 million jury award to a Houston cable television franchise that claimed it was unfairly excluded from the city's cable TV contracts.

The high court Monday left intact the award to Affiliated Capital Corp., rejecting without comment arguments from a competing firm found guilty of federal antitrust law

A federal court jury ordered Gulf Coast Cable Television Co. to pay the damages to Affiliated Capital, which sold a savings and loan association it owned to compete for a Houston cable franchise in 1978.

In 1984, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans upheld the jury verdict, ruling that "a group of powerful Houston businessmen, with the approval of city officials, conspired to divide up the city's cable TV contracts and exclude outsiders.

William White, attorney for Affiliated Capital, said Monday he was pleased but not surprised by the Supreme Court's action.

Richard Berman, a New York attorney for Warner-Amex, which acquired Gulf Coast in 1983, said the outcome is consistent with court practices. "We would have liked for them to have taken the appeal, but I don't think it comes as a surprise that it did not," he said. Gulf Coast Cable and four other companies were licensed to service five different sections of Houston.

"It is abundantly clear from the record of this case that a group of Houston businessmen decided to ensure the receipt of cable television franchises by agreeing to divide the city among themselves and exclude anyone who wanted to compete for a franchise on the merits," the appeals court said.

"They did so not simply with the blessing of the mayor, but at his behest," the appeals court added.

The mayor at the time, Jim McConn, testified that the arrangement was designed to avoid offending any businessmen with political clout in the city. McConn said Affiliated Capital Corp. was excluded because Gulf Coast Cable and its allies had more political power.

DoRite is also ready to assist those companies that don't need a new system, they just need the current one moved to a new location. When was where the files went," says DoRite does a move, Macklem begins with a schematic of the new file room and a list of all that needs to be hat means many companies are in bind for space and need to use moved. A scale drawing is prepared and reviewed, then DoRite takes every square inch as efficiently as care of all the hassle of moving the possible. Movable shelves, whether manually or electronically con-trolled, can contain the same files

No two filing systems are just alike, but DoRite is ready to deal with all

One thing Macklem feels that Midland companies do have in common is a desire for quality and value in just doesn't measure up to the needs of Midland offices. That's why DoRite offers only quality equipment. However, because DoRite is a member of the International Systems Dealer Association, purchases are made in huge quantities and the products can be offered at exceptionally fair prices in Midland.

DoRite also lets their customers take advantage of bulk buying discounts without having to worry about storage space. Macklem says a customer can purchase a year's supply of file folders at one time, but have the folders delivered as needed once every three or four months. This service is offered at no additional cost.

If your company needs an efficient filing system that will grow with the company and help it func-tion more efficiently, Call DoRite at 694-6662 or 563-3508. To grow, you have to plan to grow - DoRite will help you plan.

Midland Stained Glass Center announces new classes, bargains

Midland Stained Glass Center is starting the new year off right with new classes and first-time specials.

If you are looking for a new way to express your creativity or an opportunity to learn a little more about stained glass, now is the time to call 697-0322 and sign up for a class.

A four-week beginners class will begin January 23. It will meet each Thursday from 7 p.m.-9 p.m. An intermediate class is scheduled to start February $20.

In addition, Mary Anderson of Midland Stained Glass Center announces that they are planning three workshops during January. Provided enough interest is shown January 16, 7-9 p.m. will be the time for a Kaleidoscope Construction workshop. Panel Lampshade Construction will be tought January 21, 7-9 p.m. A Saturday workshop on January 25 will deal with Bevel Panel Construction.

Tuesday night worknights will be continued when there are at least five reservations mayd by 4 p.m. on Tuesday. It's a perfect time to begin making or ordering Valentine decorations and gifts. Jewelry boxes, letter holders, business card holders, recipe holders, terrariums, lamps, waste baskets and flower picks are just a few of the patterns you'll find in books at Midland Stained Glass

Classes and workshops are not the only new things at Midland Stained Glass. They have just introduced a Color-of-the-Month special. Each month all glass of a particular color will be 25 percent off regular price. Yellow is the color for January.

A sale table, where you'll find unadvertised in-store specials and close-out items, has also been added at Midland Stained Glass

Go by Midland Stained Glass Center now at 4313-B W. Illinois and take advantage of these new opportunities in 1986. If there is some stained glass item you would like to learn to make - ask about it. Maybe there will be enough interest to have a class.

Midland Stained Glass Center, 4313-B W. Illinois, is just beginning new classes, where you can learn to make a variety of items for decorations or gifts. Now is also the time to order custom-made Valentine gifts. This picture reveals only a few of the many possibilities.

Video Memories now offers home inventories, media management

Video Memories, a professional video taping company, has expanded its service to include not only professionally video taping of special events but also recording home inventories and offering media management consultation Media Expert Conrad Coleman, who owns Video Memories, explains that he is now able to offer these additional services because he is working full-time with Video

Coleman is especially excited about doing video home inventories. He explains that he has one microwave which has been stolen three times. Fortunately, it has been recovered each time, but Coleman realizes the value of having a video record of household possessions.

Video Memories can record all your household goods and the serial numbers of expensive items. Such an inventory is very important not only in the case of theft, but also in case of fire. A record of all your art work, china, furniture, electronic equipment even linens can make recovery or replacement much simpler. Such an inventory of an office can be equally valuable.

Video Memories is bonded and insured.

Another service that Video Memories is able to offer because of Coleman's nine years television experience and four years in radio is media management. This is designed to help professionals harness the great resource of media coverage.

Coleman teaches individuals how to sell their story to the media and then present the image they want in an interview. "If you're going to do interviews, you might as well come across looking good," said Coleman.

To help an individual learn to relax in front of the camera, Coleman will tape that person doing an interview. Then, he will review the tape with them and point out ways to

Coleman will also speak to nonprofit organizations about how to get the most out of the media.

Of course, Video Memories is still offering professional quality videotaping of special events such as weddings, birthday parties, fashion shows, surprise parties, school concerts, plays and sporting events. Seminars, sales presentations, in-service events and training sessions can be recorded, for later review or new employees. The possibilities are almost endless.

"My concern is that people get quality video... I take that extra step to make sure that everything's right," Conrad explained.

There are many video photogra-phy companies, but few offer the expertise and quality you get with Video Memories.

"We're one of the few services that uses lighting," Conrad said. Video Memories uses top-of-theline commercial VHS equipment and tapes to record those special

Unique transforms cabinets at fraction of replacement cost

When the time comes to update your kitchen, Unique Cabinet Fronts offers you a most reasonable and beautiful alternative to just repainting or totally tearing out those old wood or metal cabinets.

Repainting or refinishing your cabinets may not be very expensive if you do the work yourself; however, it is messy and very time consuming. The worst part, however, is when you finish all your hard work not much of a change has been made and in a few years you will have to go through the the whole ordeal

Tearing out your old cabinets and installing new ones does make a real change, but the change will be well reflected in your bank account. It's not easy to tear out the old cabinets without damaging the old counter, sink, floors and walls. Often it becomes necessary to get into electrical, plumbing, wall and floor repair or replacement expense Meanwhile, your kitchen is disrupted for weeks on end.

No one understands these frustrations more than Bill Shields who has been in the home remodeling business for 10 years. That's why he began looking for a reasonable and top-quality alterna-tive to complete cabinet replacement. After more than a year of research, he concluded that Unique Cabinet Fronts is the superior alternative.

Bill and Ruth Shields, who now offer Unique Cabinet Fronts in the Permian Basin, believe it's a waste to throw away the cabinetry you already own and have paid for! Most likely, 75 percent of your cabinets are structurally sound and usable (sides, backs, bottoms, tops, shelves, etc.) New cabinets really mean only new

The Unique system utilizes the 75 percent of your cabinets that is still good and turns your old outdated wood or metal cabinets into beautiful new cabinets quickly and usually for less than half the cost of conventional cabinet

Unique cabinet doors and drawer fronts are beautiful hand rubbed oak, custom made for solid oak doors from a variety of styles and finishes, ranging from a natural finish to a dark Spanish Oak finish. One door, the Versador, even offers the option of glass, wallpaper, cane or other

Because Unique Cabinet Fronts is a specialty manufacturer, they measure and cut each door to give you a custom fit.

A beautiful wood veneer, which matches the doors you select, will cover the framework and sides of your old cabinets giving you a complete wood

It takes only three to four days to install Unique Cabinet Fronts. Then for less than half the price of cabinet replacement, you have increased the value of your home and the beauty of your kitchen.

Unique Cabinet Fronts can be used on old wood cabinets, metal cabinets, even long bell cabinets and bathroom cabinets

Call Bill and Ruth Shields, Texas and New Mexico's only Unique dealer, at 563-4720 for a brochure or appointment. Because all doors are custom-made, six to eight weeks is required for delivery so call now and avoid the spring

MINE THOSE TRICKS

South won the first trick with the queen of hearts and led a diamond to the king. East took the ace and continued with a heart. Declarer rode that round to the king, led a low diamond and inserted the eight. Had West been able to win the trick, declarer would have had the last two diamond tricks. When the eight held, declarer had only to cash the queen for his contract. Observe that had East played the nine of diamonds, declarer could promote a second diamond trick by winning and conceding a trick to the jack.

Had the king of diamonds won the second trick, declarer would have continued with a low diamond. If East shows out, declarer rises with the queen and, although that loses to the ace, declarer sets up a second trick in the suit by leading a diamond up to the ten when next he gains the lead.

If diamonds were 3-2, declarer could come to two tricks by force regardless of how he played. A quick perusal of the spot cards in the suit revealed that declarer could make two tricks even against

'My Only Love' named top song

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — "My Only Love," a No. 1 hit by The Statler Brothers, was honored at the National Songwriter Awards as the top country music song by fans who also picked "Hello Mary Lou," first popularized by the late Ricky Nelson, as another favorite.

The two songs and the writers who composed them were honored Monday night along with other country music composers at the nationally televised sixth annual awards show at the Tennessee Performing Arts Center.

Statler Brother member Jimmy Fortune, who wrote "My Only Love" for his brother's wedding, won the top award for the second straight year. He won in 1985 for his composition, "Elizabeth."
"My Only Love," which topped on the country music charts last March, also was voted the year's

No. 1 traditional ballad in country music. '40 Hour Week (For a Living)," recorded by the four-piece band Alabama, won top country-rock song for writers Dave Loggins, Lisa Silver and Don Schlitz, Ms. Silver also won The Rising Star award

"There's No Way," another Alabama hit, was voted top contemporary ballad. The song was written by Lisa Palas, Will Robinson and John Jarrard.

"Mississippi Squirrel Revival," written by Cyrus W. Kalb Jr. and his wife, Carlene, was voted No. 1 for achievements as a young songwriter.

comedy-novelty song.
"Baby's Got Her Blue Jeans On," recorded by Mel
McDaniel, the newest member of the Grand Ole Opry, won contemporary upbeat song for writer Bob McDill.

Winners were chosen by subscribers to The Music City News, a monthly country music publication in Nashville. Five finalists in each category had been announced in December.

BOSTON (AP) — Family members hope to reach Soviet dissident Andrei Sakharov by telephone to tell him about his wife's heart surgery, although Yelena Bonner is still recovering from the operation and cannot speak to him herself.

"It won't be possible for her to talk tomorrow at all," Efram Yankelevich said Monday night after visiting his 62-year-old mother-in-law at Massachusetts General Hospital, where she is recovering. "She's still under sedatives. She's still half asleep."

Earlier in the day, surgeons bypassed six arteries – three main arteries and three branches, said Martin Bander, spokesman for Massachusetts General Hospital. "The operation went very well and she is now doing well in intensive care," he said.

The bypass operation on Mrs. Bonner, herself a physician, took just over four hours and ended about 12:30 p.m., Bander said. He said Mrs. Bonner was in satisfactory condition and would be at the hospital for eight to 10 days.

She had hoped to place a call to Sakharov, exiled to the Soviet city of Gorky, from her private hospital room. But the call scheduled for 11 a.m. today would be made from the Yankelevich home in the Boston suburb of Newton, her son-in-law said.

NEW YORK (AP) — Movies such as "Rambo" and "Porky's" are "made by idiots for idiots," says actor Walter Matthau.

When he compares those movies to earlier films, Matthau said, he feels "as though I've been in a time capsule that's suddenly shot back to Earth. When I look around, I don't recognize the terrain anymore."

"'Porky's II,' 'Rambo IV,' 'Mishagass VIII' — pictures made by idiots for idiots," Matthau said in an interview published in February's McCall's magazine. Mishagass is Yiddish for craziness

But Matthau professed a love for the classics, saying: "I feel so good whenever I hear Shakespeare

LOS ANGELES (AP) - A judge has rejected a request for a new trial of a suit that contended entertainer Dolly Parton stole parts of the hit song "9 to 5." U.S. District Judge Terry Hatter on Monday also said he would award attorney's fees to Miss Parton's lawyers when motions were submitted.

Jurors took just 35 minutes in December to return a verdict in favor of Miss Parton, who played guitar and sang for them from the witness stand.

Songwriters Neil and Jan Goldberg filed the copyright infringement suit against the 39-year-old country singer, claiming parts of Miss Parton's "9 to 5," were lifted from their composition called "Money World.'

The Goldbergs' attorney, Terran T. Steinhart, had said a new trial was merited because the jury was overcome by Miss Parton's charm.

Designer Dell'Olio still top after partnership split

By SHERYL FITZGERALD Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

Washington Post News Service NEW YORK — Is there life after

Donna Karan?
When the crowd of fashion buyers, press and well-wishers filed into the Parsons School of Design's fashion education center last April to see Louis Dell'Olio's first solo collection for Anne Klein, that was the question on everybody's mind.

Some 30 minutes later, they had their answer. With his erstwhile partner at Anne Klein and Co. standing quietly in the back, Dell'Olio presented a well honed collection of slick knits, leather skirts and pants, sequined evening separates and pony-printed skirts and tops with a Western air.

Despite mishaps like an unplugged sound system that left his models bereft of music for more than 10 minutes, the show served notice on all those who had been avidly observing the split of one of Seventh Avenue's most famous — and successful—team efforts that Louis Dell'Olio was not going to be known as "the guy Donna left behind."

"There are good points and bad points about being alone," said Dell-'Olio, who is now vice president in charge of design at Anne Klein and

"At 8 o'clock at night, when you're sitting around trying to come up with ideas, it's nice to have someone to talk to, to bounce ideas off of. But at the same time, it's harder to make decisions when there are two of you, because in the end you have to agree.

"IN THE BEGINNING of a collection it was not so important to agree. We just gave each other the space to grow, to experiment, to bring it to a point where we could say whether it was right or all wrong."

Now, he continued, not only does he not have anyone to bat ideas around with, but life has gotten very hectic, because now he is responsible for designing eight collections each year for Anne Klein and Anne Klein II in addition to working on the firm's accessories licensees. "I'm not bored anymore," he said. "My days are full."

Born in New York in 1948, Dell'O-

lio began his career in the traditional way, as a "gofer" for the legendary couturier Norman Norell.

At the time, fashion was about to undergo what observers would agree was one of its most significant turning points.

Although Coco Chanel, about 40 years before had pioneered the concept of wearing pants, sweaters and skirts for something other than sporting occasions, in the late 1960s haute couture still dominated the fashion scene.

The sportswear concept that today forms the foundation of every woman's approach to fashion, he explained, was still a gleam in Anne Klein's creative mind.

"It was an incredible experience," said Dell'Olio of his stint with Norell. "I was just graduating from high school, and I was a real pin-picker-upper. I thought that that was the way Seventh Avenue operated. I mean, everything was just done to perfection.

"He (Norell) has his cabine (cabin) of five models that only worked for him.

EVERYTHING WAS fitted on them, and they were the only girls who could wear the clothes. All the celebrities would come up, and I thought that was the way it was done. I was in awe of everything; everything was hamdmade on the premises. It was gorgeous.

"When I went to school, evrything was still couture," he continued. "There was no sportswear as we know it today. There were dress houses, suit hourses and coat houses, and that's the way we were trained because those were the jobs that were open.

"Anne Klein had just opened up in 1968, Calvin Klein hadn't opened, Perry hadn't opened, Ralph hadn't opened. ... Ralph was still into menswear, Blass was still doing couture, Perry just wasn't around and Calvin was doing coats so Anne was it."

was doing coats, so Anne was it."
Following his stint with Norell, Dell'Olio enrolled in Parsons School of Design, graduating with a diploma in design in 1969. That same year Dell'Olio went to work as a design assistant for Dominic Rompollo at Teal Traina.

"I had been trained as a dress, suit and coat designer and I loved it because that's what I had done," he said of his first job. "Then he opened a division called Traina Sport, because that's what everybody was doing. And, when the designer went on vacation, I would go and work in the sportswear division, and that's when I found out what I really wanted to

It had always disturbed him that a woman had to buy an ensemble of perfecty matched clothing in order to be well turned out. "It was so stifling, and to be able to design individual pieces that all worked together made so much sense to me that that's when I got involved with sportswear." he said.

The firm has opened a sportswear line under then-president Allen Duddle, formerly of Jaeger, the British sportswear firm. In 1974 he was tapped to join Karan at Anne Klein and Company.

As one who was present when the sportswear concept was being created, Dell'Olio is in a unique position to chart its evolution from the days when it meant clothing for less formal times to a wide range of clothing that is as much at home in the boardroom or at a black-tie function as it is on shopping trips and luncheon dates.

"It's really evolved a lot," he said. "Anne was very innovative. She used to do incredible clothes that never saw the light of day. People know her for her tailored clothes, but she used to do incredible, fabulous skirts with conches and fringed suedes and really outrageous things, but sportswear was still, at that time, really tailored. And what it's evolved into is a whole concept of dressing.

"It's not just tailored clothes anymore, it's day clothes and sport clothes and evening clothes, it's executive dressing. It's really a collection of lifestyles.

"Sportswear firms should not really be called sportswear anymore, they really produce lifestyle dressing. I mean, I do beaded evening clothes. We call it sportswear because it's interchangeable but you wear it to black-tie functions, not to play golf. It's really couture in quality, but more relaxed in form."

THE PUSH TO FIND more relaxed, more interesting ways of designing separates often led the team into trouble, said Dell'Olio.

In fact, he explained, for a while it seemed that the pair was getting lambasted every other fall because the collections they presented did not live up to the critics' preconceptions of what an Anne Klein collection should be.

"They'd trash us," he said. "They'd say things like that the collection was not tailored. They trashed us the first time we showed shoulder pads, they trashed us when we showed the sarong skirt."

Now so famous an Anne Klein trademark that the fashion industry jokingly wondered who would be given custody of it when Karan left, the sarong skirt was, perhaps, Karan's and Dell'Olio's most successful effort at softening and diversifying the separates concept.

"Every spring it would get really boring doing tailored clothes over and over and over," he said. "Especially that little straight, slim skirt. It could get on your nerves. I mean, how many ways could you do it? It had started to look very uptight. So we felt we needed to soften up something on the body and we decided that we needed something soft on the bottom to offset the broad shoulders and tailoring of the jacket."

In the beginning, he said, the sarong skirt wasn't the wardrobe staple that it is today. It took time for the stores and customers to get used to the idea.

But now, he said, the sarong idea has become a tradition, flowing through everyone's consciousness like 'water off a duck's back, and I'm getting bored with it."

WHAT CAN HE DO to relieve that boredom? There are areas that he'd like to try, said Dell'Olio, like more dresses, more coats or more evening clothes.

"We could design dresses for what we want them to be, because we don't design dresses," he said. "Because we're not a dress house, we don't have to worry about what any dress buyer is going to think."

Will that ever happen? "I don't know," he said. "It's like brea; you keep popping it in the oven and waiting to see what happens."

For fall, Louis Dell'Olio designed coats like this black and brown wool with button-out linings, then teamed them with knit dresses.

DEAR ABBY

Invitation refused because of pride

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I'm a divorced woman who knows what it feels like to be overlooked, forgotten or just plain excluded on special holidays, so I round up all the "strays" I know and invite them over for a Christmas Eve meal. It's not a formal sit-down dinner; it's a casual, serve-yourself buffet sort of party, and all seem to enjoy themselves.

Well, how is this for a slap in the face? About 10 a.m., I phoned someone I thought would appreciate the invitation and said, "Hi, if you're not doing anything special tonight, come on over for dinner about 6 p.m."

This friend said, "Thank you, but I

This friend said, "Thank you, but I have plans." (I could tell the way she said it that she didn't have any plans, but I wasn't going to beg her.) I learned later that she sat home alone, but had too much pride to admit it. My question: Don't you think a person who has no plans is foolish to turn down an invitation for this reason? Also, is there something wrong with the way I worded my invitation? — ALSO HURT

DEAR HURT: Not everyone is comfortable admitting that he or she has nowhere to go. Since it's become a tradition to "round up strays" at holiday time (and I hope you don't use that expression publicly), why not invite them a week or so ahead of time? Their pride would be salvaged, and a good time could be had

DEAR ABBY: As a Christmas gift, a co-worker gave me a membership to an organization she is very much devoted to.

I have never attended a meeting, or expressed any interest in joining the organization. In fact, I would prefer not to have my name listed as a member.

Can I be made a member of an organization without my permission? I don't want to insult this woman, nor do I want to sour our relationship because we have to work together, so please tell me how I can cancel my membership without offending her. — UNWILLING MEMBER

DEAR MEMBER: Thank her for the gift, then tell her that since you have no intentions of becoming active in the organization, you must decline the membership. I can't guarantee that you won't offend her, but it beats being a member of an organization you would not care to join.

DEAR ABBY: I was married last

October in a very elaborate wedding. I am just finishing up my thank-you notes to all the wonderful people who shared in our day and gave us such lovely gifts.

My problem is that well over 200 people attended our wedding, and three of them gave us no gift. Two of them are co-workers who brought their husbands.

Do I send these people thank-you notes for coming to my wedding? How do I know their gifts were not lost? It really is an awkward situation. I certainly didn't invite people to get a gift, but what do you do when you don't get one? — PER-PLEXED BRIDE

DEAR PERPLEXED: You need not write to thank the guests for attending your wedding. If you did not receive a gift, it's safe to assume that none was sent.

Wait a while. If perchance some gifts were lost, in due time the senders will probably drop a subtle hint to let you know they are still waiting for your thank-you note. Then you may let them know that their gift was not received.

DEAR ABBY: Many people down here in the deep South who have arranged their lives around shift work owe you a debt of gratitude for helping to eliminate the old concept that uninvited guests should be welcomed with open arms at all times.

Now we need your help in another area: Recently I attended services in a small Protestant church where a very sincere layperson delivered an impassioned address, closing with, "Would those who would like to rededicate their lives, please come forward and kneel at the altar?"

As looked around the church, I saw that about three-fourths of the congregation was over 55 year of age.

As anyone involved in the health care field can tell you, their reason for not wanting to kneel could range from A to V — arthritis to vertigo.

for not wanting to kneel could range from A to V — arthritis to vertigo. Please inform the clergy to consider the age of most church congregations and use the phrase, "Come forward and gather at the altar" instead of kneel. I'm sure the response will be greater. — ARTHRITIC WITH VERTIGO

Proportion hidden tool in petite women's style

Hearst News Service

Morgan Fairchild, Bernadette Peters and Apollonia are three examples of good things that come in small packages, and these petite stars keep their sense of proportion to look their best.

The importance of proportion in everything from hairstyle on down was among the fashion tips offered by the stars in the January issue of Harper's Bazaar for women 5-foot-4 and under.

Proportion is the rule when Bernadette Peters, 5-foot-3 star of Broadway's "Song and Dance," picks her wardrobe.
"I don't rule anything out as long

"I don't rule anything out, as long as the proportion's right," she said. "That's the main thing to watch when you're 5-foot-4 and under." She likes this season's short, fitted shimmering jackets.

"This is the key to dressing for small size and terrific looks—cropped jackets," she said. "Besides being versatile, they put you right in the spotlight.

be strict or flamboyant, day or evening. I think of them as 'my' look." When movie and TV star Morgan Fairchild, 5-foot-4, was asked the secret of looking tall, she answered in one word: "Proportion." And that starts at the top, with her hair. Fairchild's hair stylist, Suga, advised short women not to wear hair longer than four inches below the shoulder, nor should it stand away from the head too much or it overshadows the body. Fairchild works out with weights

Fairchild works out with weights to keep her body in proportion. She eats anything — but only in half portions.

"Clothes play an important part in keeping a right size balance, too," she said. "I've learned to focus on a single item — the belt, the jewel — even a color. I'm after impact. I don't want to distract the eye. So I avoid anything that breaks up the silhouette. Solid colors are more effective than prints.

"I grew up with lots of incentive to stand tall. My 5-foot-9 sister can wear whatever she wants and look great in it. I can't. The trick is to make people think I can. You alone know your limits. You've done it right when they say, 'You're so lucky — you can wear anything.'

Apollonia, now seen in CBS's "Falcon Crest," doesn't worry about distracting the eye when it comes to accessories.

"If you're short and adore accessories, the sky's the limit. Style is whatever makes you feel comfortable," she said, adding:

"Maybe being short makes you feisty. But I'm out to break the rules. None of this 'small-scale' stuff for me — I'm light years away from demure prints and delicate jewelry. I'm an accessories fanatic — if it shines, it's mine."

Apollonia likes close-fitting, off-beat bare dresses.

Iran's interception stirs fears of U.S. intervention

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Iran's interception of a U.S. freighter has increased fears in the Persian Gulf of superpower intervention in the Iran-Iraq border war as Iran apparently escalates its campaign to detain any ships suspected of supplying Iraq.

An Arab diplomat based in Kuwait said he believed "the Americans would not hesitate to shoot to kill if their ships were endangered in the region." He spoke on condition of anonymity.

The French at one stage sent a warship to escort a French-flag merchant ship in the gulf, and in recent weeks the Iranians harassed a British ship, and now we have the Americans being forced to protect their ships," said another Arab diplomat, also speaking on condition of anonymity.

"The situation is fraught with danger, and the American warships are not exactly safe to play with," said the diplomat, who also spoke on condition he not be identified.

The U.S. warships — the destroyer Conolly and the frigate Boone — were sent as a precautionary move to the Gulf of Oman, where the U.S. freighter President Taylor was stopped and boarded Sunday by Iranian sailors. U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger said the warships were there 'to prevent anything other than what happened."

A maritime shipping agent in the United Arab Emirates said U.S. Navy units were "shadowing" American merchant ships in and near Persian Gulf sea lanes to protect them against harrassment by

In Washington, however, State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said in a statement Monday that a nation at war traditionally has "certain rights" under the rules of naval warfare to find out whether neutral freighters are supplying contraband to the enemy.

U.S. Navy escorts commercial ships

FUJAIRA, United Arab Emirates, (AP) - U.S. Navy units were reported escorting American commercial ships in the Persian Gulf and south of the Strait of Hormuz on Monday, a day after Iranian soldiers boarded and searched a U.S. freighter at gunpoint.

Arab and Western diplomatic sources, insisting on anonymity, said Iranian gunboats chased the 39,000-ton President Taylor on Sunday and "threatened to to blow it up" unless it stopped and submitted to a search.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency reported Monday that the Iranian navy released seven other foreign ships - two British, two Greek. two Panamanian and one Sri Lankan - after ascertaining they did not carry military goods for Iraq, with which Iran has been at war since September 1980.

IRNA, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, said the interceptions took place on Sunday

Earlier in the day, Iran confirmed that its navy also intercepted and searched the President Taylor. It was the first American vessel boarded by the Iranians, who began four months ago to search ships entering the gulf in an effort to keep arms from reaching Iraq.

A maritime shipping agent, speaking on condition he not be identified, said, "Units of the U.S. Navy have been physically shadowing American merchant ships in and near gulf sea lanes, protecting them against the eventuality of being harassed

In Washington, U.S. Navy sources confirmed Monday that the destroyer Conolly and frigate Boone were operating in the Gulf of Oman. The sources said they did not know how many other U.S. vessels might be in the vicinity.

U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger told reporters at a breakfast meeting the naval ships moved to the Gulf of Oman "at the request of the ... (President Taylor).'

He said the Conolly and Boone were there "to prevent anything other than what happened. The boarders left very quietly after an hour, an hourand-a-half. There wasn't any need for the kind of naval protection that the ship was seeking.' State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said

Iran — which unlike Iraq, is not an Arab state retaliated by raiding Arab and other vessels in international waters south of the zone declared off-limits by Iraq.

Iran's Parliament speaker, Hashemi Rafsanjani, warned at one point that if the Persian Gulf sea lanes were not kept secure for Iran's oil exports, then they would be "made insecure for all"

On Oct. 18, Iran tried to intercept a French freighter, prompting a French warship in the vicinity to move in and chase away the Iranians. U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said Monday that in 1985 the International Maridetained and searched by Iran's navy. He said Iran confiscated cargo from Chinese and Danish ships on the grounds that it was bound for Iraq, and ships with West German, Japanese, Dutch, Italian and Yugoslav owners also were stopped and searched.

Perez de Cuellar also said the International Maritime Organization reported 45 other incidents in the gulf in 1985, including Iraqi air attacks on ships sailing to or from Iranian ports.

The United States is neutral in the Iraq-Iran conflict, but last year restored relations with Iraq after an 18-year break.

Meanwhile, the direct hostilities between Iran and Iraq showed no signs of ending. The two sides particular incident, not all ow which are yet report almost daily skirmishes along their 733-mile warfront, each claiming victories that cannot be

WORLD IN BRIEF

New Guatemalan president sets economy as top priority

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) - The first civilian elected to govern Guatemala in 16 years says his priorities upon taking office today will be to improve the ailing economy and control human rights abuses.

Vinicio Cerezo, a 43-year-old lawyer and Christian Democrat, will be inaugurated at a midday ceremony, becoming the first civilian president since Julio Cesar Mendez Montenegro, who served from 1966-70. He replaces chief of state Gen. Oscar Humberto Mejia Victores.

Vice President George Bush is scheduled to meet Cerezo before the inauguration. Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega, under heavy security guard following a threat on his life, also is expected to attend the ceremony.

Cerezo said Monday what he needs most from the United States during his term is "unconditional economic aid and willingness to truly support an autonomous democracy at the service of national and Central American interests."

This country of nearly 8 million, half of whom are descendants of the Maya Indians, has an international debt of $2.3 billion. Its economy slumped in the late 1970s when world demand for its chief exports of coffee, cotton and sugar plunged.

Ver may retire before election

NAGA CITY, Philippines (AP) - President Ferdinand E. Marcos said today that armed forces chief Gen. Fabian C. Ver probably will retire before next month's election and that Ver's deputy would be in charge of soldiers assigned to keep the peace during the election.

Marcos, speaking to reporters after a campaign rally in Naga City, said he would assign Lt. Gen. Fidel V. Ramos the task of commanding the soldiers assigned to the election detail because "apparently, the foreign elements, the United States for instance, believe that Gen. Ramos is someone who can be depended upon.'

Ver, Marcos' most loyal military commander, had been suspended from his job pending completion of a trial on charges of involvement in the assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino in August 1983. He and 25 others were aquitted in December and Marcos immediately reinstated Ver. Ramos was in charge of the armed forces while

Earthquake rocks Pakistan

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) - An earthquake rocked the Afghan capital of Kabul and surrounding districts early Monday, but there were no immediate reports of casualties, Radio Kabul said.

The Afghan government radio, in a broadcast monitored in Islamabad, said an earthquake measuring 5.5 on the Richter scale shook the city just after midnight. The epicenter of the quake was located 100 miles southwest of Kabul, the radio

Radio Kabul said there had been no reports of casualties or serious damage. The open-ended Richter scale is a gauge of the energy released by an earthquake, as measured by the ground motion recorded on a seismograph. On the Richter scale, a quake of magnitude 5 can cause considerable damage, and one of magnitude - which would be ten times stronger - could
