Low prices make oil import tax appealing

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — With oil prices dipping below $20 a barrel, and the bottom still not in sight, politicians and policy makers are irresistibly drawn to the notion of a new oil tax to help reduce the federal deficit and avoid painful spending cuts.

"It is a window of opportunity," said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, co-sponsor of a pending bill to tax imported oil as a means of placing a floor under oil prices.

A $5 per barrel fee on all imports would raise about $9 billion in federal revenues a year, near to the total $11.7 billion of deficit reduction required in fiscal 1986 by the new Gramm-Rudman-Hollings deficit-reduction act.

Bentsen and others believe that while an oil price decline carries with it some beneficial results, it could do more harm than good to the economy.

"For one thing, the tax would encourage conservation, not extravagant use like we saw in the early '70s," Bentsen said. He sees the makings of another energy crisis "with thermostats set at 70 degrees in the

Oilpatch predictions may fray state budgets

By SCOTT McCARTNEY

DALLAS (AP) — The state of Oklahoma predicted oil would sell for about $23 a barrel this year. Louisiana planned on $24, and Texas set its budget for 1986 based on $25 a barrel.

They may all be wrong, and the miscalculations could leave their state budgets in shambles, officials say.

This week's oil price plunge on the spot market from the $25 range to below $21 has sent shivers through the oilpatch and oil-dependent states. Every $1 drop below $25 means the loss of 25,000 jobs, $100 million in tax revenue and $3 billion in gross state product in Texas, the state comptroller's office said.

Louisiana was expecting a $150 million budget deficit with oil at $24 a barrel, and will lose an additional $50 million in tax revenue for every $1 below that, Mark Drennan, the Louisiana legislature's chief fiscal officer, told lawmakers Tuesday.

State economists in Alaska say every $1 decline costs the state $150 million, but recent price reductions have not substantially affected the state's economy.

And Oklahoma, which planned on an average price of $23 a barrel, stands to lose $33 million in tax revenue if the price drops to $20 or below, said Gov. George Nigh, who has pledged there will be no tax increases.

"We're just getting over the shock of seeing that $20 price on the spot market and looking with super concern at what's happening," said Tony Proffitt, tax information director in the comptroller's office.

The price declines were accelerated by slack demand and increased output in recent months, leaving prices 18 percent lower in one week and 35 percent since November.

Analysts say prices could drop below $20 a barrel if OPEC countries continue to aggressively chase market shares.

"No. We ruled that out a long time ago."

Congressional leaders, in the first days of the 1986 session, are determined that any move toward a new tax of any kind will have to come from the White House.

Sen. Robert Packwood, R-Ore., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, speaking to reporters at a Wednesday breakfast, predicted Congress and the president finally will agree on program cuts that will avoid the necessity of increasing taxes. "Taxes are not necessary if we cut the right programs," he said.

Behind the scenes at the White House, however, some senior advisers believe that to shield defense spending from new cuts, the president ultimately will come around to the necessity of new tax revenues.

Quoted anonymously by the New York Times on Wednesday, they said Reagan would find an oil import tax easier to swallow than any other form of revenue raiser.

American killed in Indian hotel fire

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Flames and smoke raced through a 10-story luxury hotel before dawn today and officials said at least 38 people, including one American, were killed in the fire. Some plunged to their deaths from the second and third floors when they tried to escape.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said a second American had been critically injured in the blaze at the Siddharth Continental Hotel. Police said the fire sent panic-stricken guests to the windows to scream for help.

The hotel is owned by Siddharth Intercontinental Hotels Ltd. of India, and is not affiliated with the World-wide Intercontinental chain. The winter and 80 in the summer." The drop in oil prices will have an immediate and dramatic negative effect on Texas. A $1 decline in oil prices costs Texas $70 million in taxes and reduces the state's gross national product by $1 billion. Other supporters of an import tax have, until now, seen it as the least painful way to raise money to help shrink the swollen federal deficit. With oil prices plunging steadily from OPEC's peak of $36 a barrel to $19.50 on Wednesday's market, they figure an oil tax would meet less resistance than an income tax or other tax. John Petersen, director of the Government Finance Research Center, at a Wednesday hearing to explore ways of raising local and state revenue to repair crumbling bridges, aging highways and other infrastructure, said an oil tax could be part of the answer to declining federal revenues.

President Reagan remains adamantly opposed to any form of taxation to reduce the deficit. Asked specifically if Reagan would support an oil tax, the president's chief spokesman, Larry Speakes, said,

To G. Thane Akins's ears, all he's heard are the sounds of Tweedie-dee and Tweedie-dum coming out of the mouths of four announced candidates for the Republican nomination in the 21st Congressional District.

The mayor has a different tune to offer, he contended this morning as he became the fifth candidate to vie for the seat being vacated by Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt. The Republican congressman has returned to Texas to run for governor.

Charges filed in two MHS fires

From Staff Reports

Charges of arson and criminal trespass have been filed against five Midland high-school students in connection with two recent fires at Midland High School. Assistant County Attorney Janet Copeland said this morning.

Arson charges were filed against two female MHS students, one 15 years old and one 16, for allegedly setting a Jan. 13 fire in the projection room of the school auditorium which may have caused up to $100,000 in damages, Ms. Copeland said.

A 15-year-old male MHS student was charged in connection with a much smaller fire which was set Dec. 20 in a ticket booth near the auditorium. Two male Lee High School students, one 15 years old and one 17, were charged with criminal trespass for being on the MHS campus, she said.

Rallies mark anniversary of abortion case

By MARTIN STEINBERG
Associated Press Writer

Thousands of demonstrators blocked traffic and marched on state capitols, while others held a funeral for an aborted fetus and met with President Reagan as Americans on both sides of the issue marked the 13th anniversary of the Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion.

Pro-life and pro-choice demonstrations Wednesday were peaceful. However, 10 marchers were arrested in Washington, D.C., after they broke through police lines to pray and chant slogans outside the U.S. Supreme Court building, where on Jan. 22, 1973, the justices ruled 7-2 that women have the right to abortions.

The Washington demonstration against the Roe vs. Wade decision was among the largest Wednesday. Police estimated that up to 37,000 anti-abortion activists rallied at the Ellipse near the White House and marched two miles to Capitol Hill. Organizers estimated the crowd at about 100,000.

"I'm proud to stand with you in the long march for the right to life," Reagan told the crowd via telephone hook-up between the White House and loudspeakers at the Ellipse.

Leading the procession were marchers carrying 13 small white coffins symbolizing millions of abortions performed in the 13 years since Roe vs. Wade.

Later, the president met privately with about two dozen abortion foes and two of them — Paul Brown, chief executive officer of the American Life League, and Joseph Scheidler, of Pro-Life Action — quoted him as saying he might consider pardoning abortion clinic bombers on "a case-by-case basis."

However, Albert Brashear, a White House spokesman, denied the president had made any such remark and others at the meeting said they interpreted the president's remarks differently.

In other demonstrations, "Baby Charlie," a fetus used to promote the anti-abortion cause for nearly a year, was buried in a cemetery in Milton, Fla. More than 200 people attended the funeral. The fetus was obtained from pro-lifers in Wisconsin who said it had been aborted somewhere in the Midwest.

Also in Florida, directors of abortion clinics hailed the anniversary in remarks in Tallahassee.

"I really wish that the people who were anti-abortionists could be here when we tell young girls they are pregnant," said Donna Foster, interim director of Planned Parenthood of Florida. "I'm the one who has to hand them a Kleenex when they find out they're pregnant and don't want to be."

Six major intersections in San Francisco were blocked by pro-choice activists who formed "human billboards" urging motorists to "honk if you support legal abortion."

State at crucial point, Hance tells Lions Club

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

The state is at a critical period and what we do now will determine our future, said Kent Hance, Republican candidate for governor.

"This state is at the 'Y' in the road. What we do in the next 8 to 10 years will depend how we get through the next 50 years," said Hance, a former congressman from Lubbock. He was a Democrat at the time, switching to the Republican Party shortly before announcing for governor last year.

Other major GOP candidates are Bill Clements, a former governor, and Tom Loeffler, who is giving up his congressional seat to make the run. Hance spoke Wednesday on education, prison reform and economic development at the Midland Downtown Lions Club luncheon.

Hance attacked the education reform bill passed during the last legislative session. He said it takes away local control and mandates more cost to school districts.

To pay for the additional costs local school districts are facing, property taxes will be increased, he said. Discipline should be left up to the local school boards, he said, attacking the discipline rules set up by the state.

"Now you have to have almost a direct assault on a teacher before they can be disciplined as far as expelling goes."

"The prison system is in chaos," Hance said, assailing another program under the incumbent, Gov. Mark White.

"If you don't keep the prisoners busy, then you're going to have a lot of problems," Hance said. Prisoners are not spending enough time picking cotton, Hance said.

"They are not using agricultural property like they used to."

"I have a theory. If a man — a convict — picked cotton all day, then he wouldn't start a riot that night."

Doing away with the prison trustee system created a vacuum that has been filled with gang leaders, he said.

Lucas fires his second attorney

EL PASO (AP) — Accused killer Henry Lee Lucas fired his second attorney Wednesday and forced the fourth postponement of his capital murder trial.

State District Judge Brunson Moore had earlier refused to let attorney Gary Richardson of Tulsa, Okla., withdraw from the Lucas case.

Lucas confessed to hundreds of murders nationwide but he recanted last spring. He fired his first attorney after accusing him of being too close to the prosecution.

"I am tired of it, I am tired of you firing lawyers," Moore told Lucas, who is charged in the 1983 ax slaying of 72-year-old Librada Apodaca of El Paso.

Richardson apparently engineered his own firing because he couldn't afford to defend Lucas. The defendant's legal problems are so complex that it would take about $250,000 and six months of full-time work to untangle them, Richardson said after a pre-trial hearing was halted because of his dismissal.

"He has woven himself into a real legal web and it's going to take a lot of money and time to get out of it," Richardson said.

"If I thought Henry was guilty, I'd just go in there and wing it. But I'm thoroughly convinced that Henry did not commit this murder and I stand on that very firmly."

Moore had refused to allow a court-appointed lawyer help Richardson in his defense of Lucas. The judge also refused to designate Richardson a tax-paid attorney for Lucas, who is indigent.

Farmers learn how to file for bankruptcy

AMARILLO (AP) — Farmers concerned about mounting debts and the gloomy economic outlook facing the nation's agricultural industry gathered in this West Texas city to learn how to file for bankruptcy.

More than 200 farmers and ranchers from Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Kansas on Wednesday attended the Farm Crisis Seminar, which was sponsored by the Texas Department of Agriculture.

"A lot of you are not in financial straits, but are here trying to get information on a subject of interest to many," said Ronnie Walker, president of the Panhandle Bankruptcy Bar Association.

A former Crosby County farmer speaking at the seminar told troubled farmers they also can call the state's Farm Crisis Hotline, where they can get information on handling creditors and job retraining.

The hotline also can help someone find an attorney, financial counselor or mental health professional, said Nancille Gallimore, hotline administrator.

Mrs. Gallimore said there are 900 federal Farmers Home Administration delinquencies in the northern 25 counties of the Texas Panhandle, an average of 36 farmers per county.

"Bankruptcy isn't the end of the world. We filed bankruptcy and I'm still here," Mrs. Gallimore said.

"So when you call the hotline, feel sure we understand," Mrs. Gallimore said. "We've been there and we understand that you're scared. We know what you're going through."

"Most of all tell yourself 'What's happening in farming is not my fault,' and if you have to file bankruptcy, it's not the end of the world," she said.

Amarillo attorney Larry Sherman said filing for bankruptcy is fairly simple — it only requires that the individual sign a petition and file it in court.

"Immediately there is an automatic stay in place, or an injunction keeping creditors from repossessing, foreclosing upon, writing letters, suing or taking any action against you," Sherman said.

Hearings to be held on border economic woes

AUSTIN (AP) — A task force seeking solutions to the Texas-Mexican border economic woes has decided to begin its study with a series of public hearings from El Paso to the Rio Grande Valley.

The first session for public comment will be in El Paso in about two weeks.

At least three other hearings will be held two weeks apart, tentatively in Del Rio or Eagle Pass, Laredo and some city in the Valley.

At the initial meeting Wednesday, the Task Force on Border Economic Development was advised by Gov. Mark White and Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby to consider "cooperation" the key to their problems.

"If a solution can be found, I think you can find it," Speaker Gib Lewis said.

"We hope you will not expect instant solutions to a problem that has been there for at least three decades at least and also a problem that has been studied over and over without much result," said Ruben Garcia, Laredo business executive and panel chairman.

Garcia also said he hoped the task force's work would be used by the state "to better the quality of life for the people of the border and not wind up as another term paper that will be added to the libraries of our state."

White stressed that the task force had "a unique opportunity for the border region to assess itself, document its strengths, set its priorities and mobilize resources necessary to implement its common goals."

"We can no longer afford the luxuries of turf fights and regional jealousies and isolated efforts," White said.

"The border can be a beltway for industrialization if we capitalize on the natural advantages of the region and recognize our weaknesses," said Hobby. "The key is cooperation along the border and across the border."

Several border economists said education was one of the keys to the border's problems.

"To create new business opportunities you must enhance the quality of life in the border region," said Rex Ball, vice president of Laredo State University. "Education is the key to creating the environment we need."

Ball stressed that "South Texas problems are Texas problems" and the state should not leave solutions to local government.

Central Texas farmer to challenge Hightower in commissioner's race

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A Central Texas farmer Thursday became the second Republican candidate to challenge incumbent Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower.

Charles F. "Farmer" Trompler, who farms 1,000 acres near Hillsboro, said he will rely on his background. "To help agriculture, the Ag Commissioner has to know the business," Trompler said.

"It takes a farmer to know the shortcomings of the past policies in agriculture. It takes a farmer to know what directions to head in the future. It doesn't take a politician."

Trompler, 43, calls himself a "Christian farmer" and says his family "has been farming in Texas since the days of the pioneers." He raises cattle, corn, wheat, cotton and milo.

He supports the 1985 U.S. Farm Bill, saying it "will provide a reasonable safety net for those farmers still in decent financial shape." Reducing the federal deficit, he said, will help drop interest rates and help farmers better export their products.

Bill Powers, a lobbyist for the Texas poultry industry, has also said he plans to run in the May 3 GOP primary for agriculture commissioner.

EMS barred from business in Texas

BEAUMONT (AP) — A New York brokerage firm involved in the city's $20 million investment loss has been barred from doing business in Texas.

State District Judge Ronald Walker on Wednesday signed an agreement between the state of Texas and First Money Managers that restricts the firm and several of its brokers from selling securities in Texas.

The city of Beaumont lost $20 million that had been invested in ESM Government Securities. The Fort Lauderdale, Fla., securities dealer owed creditors and customers $315 million when it closed March 4.

According to the terms of the agreement, First Money should pay the city restitution in the amount of its net corporate assets up to $20 million.

However, the firm closed its doors shortly after ESM and officials said in court documents that the company has no assets and owes several debts in connection with ESM's collapse.

Authorities seek armed robber

EDGEWOOD (AP) — Law officers were searching for a man who held customers, employees and a bank president at gunpoint and cleaned out an East Texas bank's vault of what one bank director said was more than $100,000, authorities said.

Posing as a cattleman, the robber entered First National Bank of Edgewood in East Texas before noon Wednesday and asked to see the bank's president.

"We talked about five minutes, and then he pulled the gun," President Jim Pickens said. "He told me exactly what he wanted done and how he wanted it done, and of course that's how I did it."

The gunman ordered Pickens to lock the bank's front door. He then forced two customers and six employees to lie on the floor while Pickens filled bank bags with cash.

Texas Rangers, the FBI and county authorities searched for the robber, who was described as white, in his 30s and about 5-9, 220 pounds. The robber wore western clothes and a belt buckle engraved "Hogg" or "Hogs."

Indian police officers surround New Delhi's Siddharth Intercontinental Hotel following an early morning fire. One American was among those killed in the blaze.

HOTEL

Five other CARE staffers who were at the hotel for a meeting escaped without injury, Dugan said. Earlier, a U.S. Embassy spokeswoman had said only seven Americans were registered at the hotel, and that one, a woman she could not identify, had been injured.

Though no cause for the blaze was established, police and hotel personnel speculated an electrical short-circuit may have set a carpet afire in the hotel's ground-floor banquet room.

Survivors claimed no alarm was given and that the staff and fire department were poorly prepared for an evacuation.

"Nobody told us anything," said Philippe Demerey, a businessman from Liege, Belgium. "I looked out my window and saw the flames. I opened the door and the hall was full of smoke. I left the hotel through the fire escape with only my nightclothes. I saw people shouting for help. It was not very efficient the way they tried to help them."

New Delhi Lt. Gov. H.L. Kapur said 38 bodies had been recovered, of which 24 had been identified. Officials said about 70 people were hurt.

Hospital sources said the dead included about 20 foreigners, including three Britons, two Japanese, two Australians, an Iraqi and at least one Soviet.

Police said two diplomats, from West Germany and Argentina, also died. The United News of India news agency said the victims included two infants.

Authorities opened an investigation of the southern New Delhi hotel for possibly causing death due to negligence, a legal formality that allows a criminal investigation. No arrests have been made.

Police Commissioner Ved Marwah said "all aspects" of the fire would be investigated, including the possibility of sabotage.

Officials said the fire apparently began at 1:45 a.m. in the banquet room, that flames engulfed the first three floors and sent thick smoke through the floors upstairs.

"There was a stampede and all night the people were running helter-skelter," said an officer at the New Delhi police control room. Officials said most of the dead suffocated or were killed by smoke inhalation. "We found bodies on every floor," said a police officer who spoke on condition he not be identified. "Some of them were in their beds, others in the hallway."

But a doctor at Safdarjung Hospital, where the injured and dead were taken, said at least five people died of injuries suffered when they jumped from the hotel's second and third floors. At least one person died of burns, he said.

Staff members said the hotel was "practically full" with about 175 guests, about 40 percent of them foreigners.

George Allen, a businessman from Britain, said some guests tried to escape by tying bedsheets together and lowering themselves to safety.

"People were climbing down on sheets," he said, "but some of them caught fire. The fire brigade arrived but there was no water in the tanks. It was 20 minutes before they started to do anything."

United News of India quoted J.S. Malhotra, general manager of the hotel, as saying an alarm went off soon after staff members working in the cafeteria discovered the blaze. He was quoted as saying many guests did not hear the alarm because they were asleep.

The hotel's architect, S.C. Jain, was quoted by UNI as saying the staff was unable to awaken guests by telephone because electrical power was deliberately cut to prevent the fire from spreading through the electrical system.

Bush honored at Naval aviation party

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Vice President George Bush, the youngest commissioned aviator in Naval history, was guest of honor Wednesday night at a party marking the diamond anniversary of Naval aviation. "It is a special night," said Bush, "with many happy memories of people in my squadron, many who died, but some of us who keep in touch.... We felt that almost single-handedly we could change history."

The event at the Smithsonian's National Air and Space Museum, sponsored by Hearst Magazines, was the first of many events celebrating 75 years of Navy flying planned this year.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, high-ranking active and retired Navy officers and political figures were in the crowd of several hundred.

Frank A. Bennack Jr., president and chief executive officer of The Hearst Corporation, and Secretary of the Navy John F. Lehman unveiled an original oil painting commissioned by Popular Mechanics magazine showing Bush in the cockpit of a TBM Avenger, the biggest carrier-based Navy plane of its day.

Bennack, formerly publisher of The San Antonio Light, described Bush's courage as a Navy pilot. While over the Pacific on one of 58 combat missions he flew in World War II, Bush was shot down and received the Distinguished Flying Cross for his action under fire.

"He went on to other accomplishments — among them his decision to become a fellow Texan," Bennack said.

The painting, commissioned by the magazine, one of 12 Hearst magazines published in the United States, was presented to Bush but will be displayed in the museum. It is the work of widely-known combat artist Capt. Ted Wilbur, a retired Navy officer.

Bush said he was proud of serving as a part of "the greatest fighting force" at a time when "the whole country was united."

OIL

One week ago, a barrel of West Texas Intermediate, a major U.S. benchmark, cost $25.15 on the spot market, where surplus oil is sold on demand. The spot price closed Tuesday at $20.10. In November it had been $32.

Officials say the drop in prices on the spot market won't immediately translate into a major decline in the oilpatch since most transactions are done on contracts.

Prices on the contract market are still about $25 per barrel, Proffitt said, although Citgo Petroleum Corp. announced this week it was dropping the price it would pay for West Texas Intermediate by $1 to $24.50 a barrel.

But the spot market decline may be a bad omen.

"This could be either a mild shower or a very big rain storm. The clouds are right out there," said Proffitt. "Our concern now is what happens if all this spills over onto the contract market."

A sustained price of $20 on the contract market could mean a "devastating" loss of $750 million from Texas' $22 billion biennium budget, Proffitt said Wednesday, "and $15 would be a real deal, a real deal."

In Texas' oil-rich Permian Basin, Royal Lyson has already started to see the effects of the price fall.

Lyson, regional sales manager for the N.L. McCullough Co., an oil field service firm in Midland, said Wednesday nervous customers have already decided to postpone drilling because of the price drops.

At $20 a barrel, most independents would stop drilling and McCullough might lose 50 percent of its business, Lyson said. A price of $15 a barrel "would probably bankrupt us."

"It's nail-biting time," he said.

Officials say the price decline's effect on unemployment in oil-producing areas is hard to gauge since unemployed workers may pack up and move to areas with more opportunity.

More than 65,000 people were employed in the Oklahoma oil and natural gas industry last December, when unemployment in the state was 7.1 percent. But Wayne Hugas of the state's Employment Security Commission said officials know only that a sustained decline "would definitely increase unemployment."

California has 41,000 workers in the oil business, and Texas, where December unemployment was 6.8 percent, has already absorbed declines in the energy industry, U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics economist Nic Santangelo.

If the price falls to $20 for long periods, he said, employment in Texas "goes down through the bottom."

And at $15, "you might as well roll Texas up and put it away."

AKINS

Akins, who has been Midland's mayor since 1980, made his intentions official during a news conference in City Hall Council Chambers, which was attended by about 30 supporters.

Already in the GOP race are San Antonians Van Archer, Lamar Smith and Jeff Wentworth and Kerrville resident Henry Gandy. Akins said he has talked and listened to all of them and it sounds like "Tweedle-dee and Tweedle-dum. Everyone's saying the same thing. They're all hanging onto the coattails of Tom Loeffler and President Reagan."

Akins has been in the petroleum business since 1957 and that gives him the edge over the other candidates, he said. All would vote right on oil and gas issues, but he has working knowledge of the business that would be a help in lobbying other congressmen, he added.

"In this area, we greatly depend on oil and gas. I'm the only candidate that is certainly qualified to deal with those issues. If we need additional air service to Midland, who's the best qualified to get that?" he said.

Akins has been considering the race since last September. In his prepared statement he said in talking with people throughout the 21st District he found a common belief to "change government for the better, that we can find ways to put more people back to work, make our streets safer from crime, bring learning back to our classrooms without forced busing, ensure lasting economic prosperity and move positively to realize our hopes for peace."

He assailed the "big-spending, big-taxing liberals that control the House of Representatives today" for the country's economic problems and failure to recognize the role of the private sector. "They don't understand that for every $40,000 that government takes out of the private sector, business loses the ability to create one job."

Instead, he said, government "has created senseless laws that force people who need help to first give up everything, have nothing — including hope, pride, any sense of self-worth or self-reliance."

His prepared statement looked at solutions for the economic problems, defense spending and terrorism.

TAX

Talk turned toward the possibility of imposing a new oil tax at a Tuesday seminar in New York on approaches to government solvency and at an Austin meeting of Texas producers and royalty owners.

C. Fred Bergsten, a former assistant Treasury secretary, said headlines announcing new oil price reductions invite consideration of an oil tax.

"We could, if we want to, use it as a revenue source," Bergsten said. An oil import fee or a gasoline tax could "without any net adverse effect on consumers or the macro economy" achieve a big revenue increase, he said.

An import tax would "favor domestic oil producers over international oil producers," he said, conceding that "some people would be in favor of that."

A former senior presidential adviser on international economic affairs, Norman Bailey, said at the same seminar he would prefer a gasoline tax hike to a higher tariff on crude imports "for a lot of different reasons."

Asked by a Hearst Newspapers reporter to expand on his thesis, Bailey said an import tariff could counteract "positive effects on the economy from a reduction in oil prices."

"The way you hit consumption more than production is by taxing gasoline," he said.

An import tax would "favor domestic oil producers over international oil producers," he said, conceding that "some people would be in favor of that."

HANCE

"We have to go back to a trustee system."

Hance said he is against a state bill that will release 10,000 convicts early during the next 10 years.

"If we have to build additional prisons, then we are going to have to build additional prisons."

Prisons should be built with prisoner labor to cut down on costs, he said.

"It's just good business to utilize the prison labor."

Texas products need to be promoted in Western Europe and Japan, Hance said. And international money must be brought into the state to help it diversify its economy.

"It is very evident if we don't diversify our economy and things don't pick up in the energy industry, then we are going to be faced with a legislature that will have to make cuts or increase taxes," he said.

Police guard polls as voting begins in Ulster

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — About 25,000 police and soldiers guarded polling stations across this British province today as voting began to fill 15 Parliament seats vacated by Protestant hardliners protesting a British-Irish agreement on Northern Ireland.

The voting is widely regarded as a referendum on the 10-week-old accord, which gives the mainly Roman Catholic Irish Republic a consultative role in running the mostly Protestant province.

Police at Belfast headquarters said all leaves were canceled and police and troops were put on full alert at the 529 polling stations.

No trouble was reported in the first hours of balloting, which began briskly in many areas. At one polling station in Protestant south Belfast, 30 people stood in line waiting for the doors to open at 7 a.m. (1 a.m. CST) despite the near-freezing temperatures.

Balloting among the province's 953,494 eligible voters ends at 10 p.m. (4 p.m. CST), but votes will not be counted until Friday morning. First results are expected around noon Friday.

The Rev. Ian Paisley, one of the 15 legislators who resigned and a leader in the fight against the Anglo-Irish agreement, cast his vote at a school in east Belfast.

Wrapped in a scarf with the message, "Ulster Says No," Paisley said, "If any prime minister rejects the ballot box, then they are asking for anarchy."

Protestant leaders have said they are confident voters will return the 15 lawmakers with such large majorities that the British government will be forced to back out of the agreement. But the British government has said it will not be swayed by the vote.

"Ulster cannot say no to everything. Ulster must say yes to something," Britain's Secretary of State for Northern Ireland Secretary, Tom King, said last week.

Most Protestants condemn the agreement, signed Nov. 15, as a weakening of their union with Britain. Protestants, who outnumber Roman Catholics in Northern Ireland by 2-to-1, generally favor union with Britain, while the Irish Republic calls in its constitution for Irish unity.

The News Letter, a voice of moderate Protestant unionism, editorialized today, "The Hillsborough (Anglo-Irish) agreement must be smashed — and it must be smashed today."

But the Irish News, which supports moderate Irish nationalism, admonished voters to reflect "long and hard on the major advance which this agreement marks for the nationalist position. For the long-suffering, sorely-tasked nationalist community, there is no other way."

Both Catholic and Protestant candidates sought a large voter turnout. The Catholics said a handful of votes could be decisive in the four constituencies they are contesting.

Protestant officials worried that with victory certain in the 11 other constituencies, apathy and rough winter weather might keep voters at home and deny the Protestants the overwhelming mandate they seek.

The Protestant leadership presented an outward appearance of unity, with the larger and more moderate Official Unionist Party and Paisley's Democratic Unionist Party backing single candidates to avoid splitting the Protestant vote.

However, there were signs of resentment among supporters of the Official Unionist Party that Paisley is setting a militant tone of opposition to the agreement even though his party is much smaller than the Official Unionists.

The Catholics are split between Sinn Fein, the legal political wing of the outlawed Irish Republican Army, and the larger and more moderate Social Democratic and Labor Party.

The split sharply reduces the Catholics' chances of victory in the four constituencies where they have fielded candidates.

De la Madrid committed to increasing non-oil exports

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Miguel de la Madrid said Mexico is committed to increasing its non-petroleum exports and that the private sector should change its "attitude and mentality."

De la Madrid's speech to the National Association of Importers and Exporters of the Mexican Republic was on Tuesday, the same day that the price of crude oil dropped below $20 a barrel on some markets, an event that only means trouble for the Mexican economy.

The government, trying to keep up with payments on a $96.4 billion foreign debt, has been promoting non-petroleum exports to compensate for falling oil prices and demand. It also has been moving quickly to reduce trade restrictions.

Mexico's private sector has long had a protected domestic market that insulates many of its industries from foreign competition. And De la Madrid said the government "reaffirms its pledge to establish general conditions that stimulate and facilitate exports."

At another meeting, he said, "It is indispensable that (economic) rules that could be justified in other times be adapted to the new (times) and those that are to come."

Recently, the government announced it would begin membership talks with the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, a 90-nation trade group. To join, Mexico would have to dismantle some of its trade barriers.

Luis Bravo Aguilera, assistant foreign trade secretary of the Commerce Department, told the exporters and importers that non-oil exports will increase 10 percent this year, to $7.7 billion, after a 10 percent decline in 1985.

Total exports will rise to between $21.5 billion and $22.5 billion, depending on the ability to export 1.5 million barrels of oil a day, he said. 1985 exports were down from 1984, but final figures have not been released.

The balance of trade surplus for 1986 will range between $7.5 billion and $8.5 billion, Bravo Aguilera said.

He said the government will continue its program of eliminating import permits and reducing tariffs.

French tune fires British pride; Reply sets 'Frogs' hopping

LONDON (AP) — The British and French, who have been squabbling for the past 900 years or so, are at it again. But this time the chosen weapon is song.

A Frenchman fired the first salvo with "Miss Maggie," a chart-busting rock tune that pulsates with street slang and heaps musical abuse on Britain's Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher.

In reply, Britain's biggest daily newspaper, The Sun, put together a ditty called "Hop Off You Frogs" that lambastes France's President Francois Mitterrand. "Frog" is a derogatory term for a Frenchman.

Anglo-French animosity can be traced back to the Norman invasion of 1066, when William the Conqueror crossed the English Channel and defeated the Anglo-Saxon King Harold.

These days, of course, the British and French are close trading and defense partners and have just agreed to build a rail tunnel under the English Channel to link their countries. But it doesn't take much to reopen old wounds.

Enter "Miss Maggie," the creation of Renaud Sechan, a 34-year-old French rock star who goes only by his first name and is best known for catchy, hard-hitting songs of political protest and social discontent.

A sample of his lyrics: "There aren't any women mean enough to polish a gun and feel iron-tough, except, of course, Mrs. Thatcher."

"Hop Off You Frogs," which likens Mitterrand to, among other things, "an oily old master like Toulouse-Lautrec," was written by Sun entertainment writer Geoff Barker and sung by four of his colleagues calling themselves The Bizarre Boys.

On the threshold

There's exciting, deadly work under way at the University of Texas Health Science Center in Dallas. And it may pave the way to the eventual conquering of the dread disease, cancer.

Researchers are experimenting with a number of new anti-cancer drugs called "immunotoxins" which can be targeted to kill only cancer cells. That's an exciting possibility because conventional cancer treatments such as chemotherapy and radiation often kill normal tissue in addition to cancerous cells.

Of course, as in most medical advancements there are risks. The immunotoxins being developed in Dallas contain the potent poison ricin, an extract of the castor bean. That poison is highly lethal to humans since it can gain entry to any cell and kill it by stopping its production of protein.

But the researchers have been able to develop a way of making the ricin molecule attach itself only to the cancerous cells, thus stopping the growth of the cancer and killing only cancerous cells.

Research with immunotoxins is heralded by Carl Pinsky, chief of the National Cancer Institute branch that overseas laboratory, animal and early human studies of immunotoxins, as "very exciting" although "still highly experimental."

Certainly there are countless people around the state and nation who will agree with Pinsky and will be waiting on pins and needles as research into this new and exciting cancer treatment progresses.

Cancer has represented one of mankind's most perplexing medical challenges for a number of years. Successes in recent years in treating particular types of cancers have brought hope to many.

Now modern medical researchers appear to be standing on the threshold of a door that may lead mankind into a world in which the cancer threat is greatly diminished. That is a reason for joy.

'March' still serving

A few years ago about the only organized march to raise money to fight a particular medical concern was the March of Dimes. That was before the organized campaigns frequent today caught on.

Now there are many such drives and they annually collect millions of dollars to fight a battery of maladies. That's commendable, as is the generosity of those millions of Americans who annually dip into their pockets to keep the medical research labs open and the rehabilitation centers making life better for those afflicted with various medical problems.

However, this trend to organized campaigns for charitable causes has resulted in individual campaigns becoming less noticeable. Such is the case with the March of Dimes. It isn't so visible anymore but is merely one of many causes in the crowd.

That isn't to say the growth of organized collection campaigns is necessarily bad. In many ways the trend has benefitted society. But that growth has diluted the visibility of the mothers march against birth defects.

That's sad because the problem of birth defects still is very much around and so is the need for those dimes and dollars. In fact, March of Dimes officials report that more than 250,000 infants are born with birth defects each year in the United States alone.

Local executive director Leann Wilson says the goal is to see that all children have a healthy start and toward that end, marchers this week are distributing informational material on how prospective mothers can help prevent birth defects.

This is a highly worthwhile cause. Midlanders should join in the fight against birth defects by giving to the volunteer who contacts them or by mailing their contribution to the March of Dimes, P.O. Box 8337, Midland, TX 79708.

Another View:

Consult with allies

Mikhail Gorbachev's plan for worldwide nuclear disarmament is more than a proposal for arms reductions for the two great powers. It anticipates reductions by other nuclear states, too. This could put heavy new strains on the United States' relations with its European allies, especially the two — Britain and France — with their own nuclear bombs. For what Mr. Gorbachev is saying is that, finally and for the first time, the British and French deterrents must be brought under international controls.

In the West this is heresy. The British deterrent began and continues as a subsidiary of the American, and the French have leaned on American technology in building their "force de frappe." In any confrontation, Moscow would have to figure on coping somehow with allied missiles in addition to American ones, notwithstanding the allied — especially the French — insistence on independent national control. Nonetheless the British and French, citing the relative smallness of their forces as well as their status as sovereign states, have never joined the arms control regime.

That may be changing. Both London and Paris are embarked on major expansion that will multiply their warhead capability on the order of 10 times. Match this expansion of their nuclear forces to the contraction of great-power forces contemplated by both the Gorbachev and Reagan plans. As those numbers move nearer, it will become increasingly difficult to contend that the British and French deterrents are small special forces with no impact on the overall balance.

Mr. Gorbachev's plan in its first stage would have the great powers "destroy" medium-range Europe-based missiles, including the SS-20s with which Moscow upset the political equilibrium in the 1970s and the countering American missiles that the United States began deploying in the 1960s. Meanwhile, France and Britain would freeze their nuclear arsenals. In a considerably more problematical second stage, the Europeans would match Moscow and Washington (and Peking) in moving to an entirely nuclear-free world.

It is the first stage of the Gorbachev plan that needs attention now. It reflects familiar Soviet efforts to loosen allied ties to the United States and particularly to increase European pressure on Ronald Reagan to forgo his Strategic Defense Initiative — Moscow's stated condition for reducing offensive arms. But the plan has other aspects. It offers a prospect of reducing Europe's nuclear anxieties. Most important, it provides the British and French an opening to divert the huge sums they now intend to spend on nuclear modernization into the conventional forces whose strengthening is far and away Europe's greatest security need. But whatever happens, a new stage of East-West maneuvering has clearly begun. The first requirement is the closest American consultation with the European allies.

JACK ANDERSON

Company tailored ads to young

WASHINGTON — Tobacco companies do a slow burn whenever they're accused of trying to sell their hazardous products to young people through alluring advertisements. Industry lobbyists have now been hit with this charge by a prestigious opponent, the American Medical Association, which wants Congress to ban all cigarette advertising.

Jack Anderson

The ensuing controversy could shed belated light on a collection of secret industry documents that have been in the Federal Trade Commission's possession since 1979. The documents undermine the contention of a leading tobacco company, Brown & Williamson, that its ads had not been aimed at potential customers under the age of 21.

The internal Brown & Williamson documents were recently introduced as court exhibits in a libel suit the company brought against a Chicago television commentator.

Company officials declined to say whether the marketing strategies laid out in the documents — which date to the mid-1970s — are still being followed. Instead, they described "our policy" in this sensitive area as: "Brown & Williamson believes that smoking is an adult custom. Advertising and promotion activities for our products are aimed at adult smokers, 21 years of age and over."

Apparently that wasn't always the case. A "Strategic Positioning Statement," prepared by Brown & Williamson's ad agency in 1974, included young smokers among the crucial targets of a promotional campaign intended to boost the sagging sales of Viceroy cigarettes.

The document listed male smokers 16 to 25 years old as among the "Best Prospects" for increased sales, explaining: "Fifty-five percent of young males 16-25 smoke full-taste cigarettes. Twenty-seven percent of all full-taste 84mm smokers are 16-25. Only 15 percent of Viceroy smokers are 16-25. Therefore, there is ample opportunity for growth in Viceroy coming into alignment with the category."

The strategy paper said the "primary objective" of the upcoming ad campaign was to "position Viceroy as to attract young males from competitive brands" while hanging onto the cigarette's own customers.

The two other groups listed as "prime prospects for Viceroy" were "Females 18-49" and "Blacks 18-49." The ad agency's report played down the importance of "starters" (first-time smokers) and "re-starters" (those who had quit smoking for more than a year), explaining that "starter and re-starter groups together account for only 8 percent of all smokers."

A January 1976, "Marketing Strategy" paper, approved by Brown & Williamson, noted "problems (that the marketing plans must solve)." One listed solution: "Efforts must also be made to increase the brand's appeal to smokers 18-40."

The strategy paper identified the "Target Audience" for each of three Viceroy ads to be tested as either "Full-flavor smokers and starters, aged 18-40," or "Full-flavor smokers and starters, aged 18-40, specifically who think they smoke too much and would like to smoke less."

Finally, after the four-month ad campaign was dropped as ineffective, an internal memo dated November 1976, sought approval of

Brown & Williamson's vice president for marketing for more research "to determine the reason for Viceroy's inability to attract starters and competitive smokers."

Footnote: A Brown & Williamson spokesman told our associate Tony Capaccio: "Cigarette advertising is inherently public. Judgments about the advertising can be made only on the basis of the published advertisements."

UNDER THE DOME: American observers, including members of Congress, have been flooding into the Philippines for the presidential election. But certain Senate staff members have been quietly warned that it might be a good idea if they didn't make the trip. One, for example, was an Armed Services Committee aide who had written a committee report critical of President Ferdinand Marcos' ability to protect the two big U.S. military bases in the Philippines.

MINI-EDITORIAL: The bodies of more than half of the 248 American soldiers who died in the Newfound-land plane crash last month remain unidentified. One reason, the Pentagon explained, is that medical and dental records of the men were aboard the same plane and were destroyed in the fiery crash. This is strictly against Army regulations — for reasons that have now been made all too painfully clear. Yet someone along the chain of command made a thoughtless decision that has cost the families of the dead servicemen untold and needless anguish. That someone's head should roll.

GEORGE F. WILL

Rights mean little without love

WASHINGTON — The week that began with the first national observance of Martin Luther King's birthday ends with a stunning demonstration of the general irrelevance of the civil-rights era to the calamity currently engulfing much of black America. The demonstration will be on CBS for two hours Saturday night (Jan. 25) in Bill Moyers' "The Vanishing Family — Crisis in Black America."

George F. Will

The honors accorded King are proportional to his accomplishment, and nostalgia for the clarities of his day is understandable. But the struggles of the 1950s and 1960s, against institutional barriers to blacks and for material assistance, are almost irrelevant to the catastrophe of the 1980s.

Government programs on behalf of access and amelioration for blacks are necessary. But such programs are barely germane to the growing crisis of personal behavior by millions of inner-city blacks. All other value-generating institutions — schools, churches, youth organizations — are unavailing if the primary institution, the family, fails.

Today nearly 80 percent of all black children are born out of wedlock. Imagine the astronomic percentages in many inner cities. Blacks girls between ages 15 and 19 are the most fertile population of that age group in the industrialized world. Half of all black teen-age girls become pregnant. The resulting "families" rarely are self-supporting. Almost half of all black children are partially supported by government payments.

As a result, social pathologies multiply. More than half of all black pupils in primary and secondary schools are in the 12 largest central-city school districts, where schools are inadequate and only one-quarter of the students are white. Blacks are about 11 percent of the population, but about 50 percent of imprisoned felons. The principal cause of death among blacks aged 15 to 24 is murder by blacks. Approximately 40 percent of murder victims are black men killed by black men. The yearly total approximates the total number of black deaths in the entire Vietnam War.

Young blacks, whose sexual recklessness produces oceans of misery, feel little of the kind of guilt that changes behavior. One reason for this is that they have been taught by reflexive "civil rights" rhetoric that they are mere victims, absolved from responsibility by the all-purpose alibi of "white racism."

When next you hear a "civil-rights leader" (probably a middle-class black selected from a small and self-selected pool of middle-class blacks important as brokers of government benefits) say that the big problem is, say, "failure to enforce the Voting Rights Act," try this:

Suppose that the Act is now imperfectly enforced. Also imagine perfect enforcement. Then ask yourself: What would that accomplish?

The problem of black America is not an insufficiency of elected officials prepared to regard blacks, alone among American groups, as permanent wards of government compassion. The problem is that millions of blacks are victims of many irresponsible blacks.

Moyers begins asking a young unwed mother if she does not need a man's help. She replies, "Not really. I didn't have a father." Today most black families are headed by women. Most black children are growing up without fathers. Moyers talks with a Timothy, unmarried father of six children (not counting the abortion and the stillborn baby) by four women.

"I ain't thinking about holding up as far as no sex, my man, you know. If a girl, you know, she's having a baby, carryin' a baby, that's on her, you know. I'm not going to stop my pleasures because of another woman."

Moyers: "How did it feel to have those..."

Timothy: "Women?"

Moyers: "No, kids. Kids."

Try to concentrate, Timothy. The subject is kids. He laughingly says, "I'm highly sexed" and "I just got strong sperm," and he had "a lovely time" begetting the children. But he says, "I'm old-fashioned" about marriage. And he means he wants "a big wedding" with the men in tuxedos.

Moyers: "When?"

Timothy: "Whenever."

The Timothys are more of a menace to black progress than the Bull Connors ever were.

There is much heroism in the ghettos. Moyers interviews a black man, a Newark detective, who tries to be a caring father for some fatherless children. He says that with Medicaid, welfare and food stamps, "a lot of the women are more married to welfare than to the guys layin' in the bed next to 'em. Cause he's just a physical thing. The whole backbone of the family is coming out of downtown or out of uptown offices."

Wrong. Such backbone can not come from offices or any other mere physical thing. The detective really knows that. He says: "Freedom is a lot of times destruction (to fatherless children)... So I try to, you know, keep 'em in a little cage... keep 'em in my arms."

That is the voice of a real father. Nothing — not laws propounding "rights," not rhetoric deploring "racism" — can do what such a loving, protective cage can do.

ART BUCHWALD

Waiting on telephone a real classic!

There was a time when, if you wanted to hear good music, you put on a record or attended a concert. Now all you have to do is pick up the telephone and dial an institution. As soon as they put you on HOLD you can enjoy the great masterpieces of all time.

A big fan of this type of music is Stuart Brotman. He maintains the only way you can really appreciate the classics is to be left hanging on the line waiting for a live person to talk to you.

Art Buchwald

"Once you listen to Mozart on the phone you never want to hear him live again," Stuart said.

"I didn't know you could get Mozart on the telephone," I said.

"You'd be surprised what you can get," he said. "The other day I called to make an airline reservation to Atlanta and was plugged into Handel's 'Messiah.'"

"Is 'The Messiah' a favorite of yours?"

"It wasn't. But I had to wait so long that now I know the lyrics by heart."

"What has been the most memorable music ever played for you on the phone?" I asked Stuart.

"I once dialed Sears Roebuck about a lawn mower sale and they immediately switched me to 'Aida.' At the finish I lost my head and started shouting 'Encore! Encore!' and the clerk hung up on me."

"I've called Sears many times and I've never heard Verdi."

"They only play him during Columbus Day sales," Stuart said.

"How do you feel about Stravinsky?"

"I can take him or leave him. My problem with Stravinsky is that when you have the telephone up to your ear, he can blow you out of the booth. When I'm waiting to speak to someone on the phone I prefer a Chopin sonata."

"If I wanted to hear some good music what company would you suggest I dial?"

"American Express has excellent taste. If you call their credit card complaint department they will pipe in the 'Blue Danube.'"

"That's no big deal. My gas company plays the 'Blue Danube' every time they put me on hold."

"The difference is American Express pipes theirs in live from Vienna."

He then explained to me what was going on. "In the beginning most firms didn't pay much attention to the music they played. But as they kept cutting personnel, there were fewer employees to answer the phone. So with a smaller staff the companies had to play longer pieces. The days of piping in 'Begin the Beguine' are over. The average wait for a car rental agency to take your call now is at least a Beethoven symphony."

"I didn't realize so much thinking went into institutional answering services."

"I'll prove it to you," Stuart said. "I'm going to dial the IRS. They always put you on HOLD."

He handed the receiver to me. I listened and then said, "I don't believe it. The IRS is playing Wagner's 'Gottterdammerung.'"

"Why are you surprised?"

"It's a funeral march."

"What did you expect — 'Happy Days Are Here Again'?"

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1789, Georgetown College was established in the future site of the nation's capital, Washington.

In 1845, Congress decided that all national elections would be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November.

In 1849, Dr. Elizabeth Blackwell became the first woman to receive an M.D. degree. The native of Bristol, England, was awarded her degree by the Medical Institution of Geneva, N.Y.

In 1920, the Dutch government refused demands from the victorious Allies to hand over the ex-kaiser of Germany.

In 1932, New York Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt announced his candidacy for the Democratic presidential nomination.

In 1964, the 24th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution was ratified, eliminating the poll tax in federal elections.

One year ago, Philippine armed forces Chief of Staff General Fabian Ver and 25 other men were formally charged in connection with the 1963 assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino. All were acquitted by a three-judge panel last month.

Today's birthdays: Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., is 62. Actress Jeanne Moreau is 58. Actress Chita Rivera is 53. Actor Gil Gerard is 43. Princess Caroline of Monaco is 29.

Israeli prime minister: 1986 crucial year for Mideast peace

LONDON (AP) — Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres, citing a debate within his Cabinet on the future of occupied territories, said Jordan and moderate Palestinians must make progress toward peace with Israel this year or risk losing their best opportunity.

Peres, in a policy speech Wednesday, appealed for a meeting with Jordan's King Hussein and Palestinian moderates from the West Bank of the Jordan River and Gaza to arrange an international or regional peace conference.

"1986 is a crucial year. It may be the best year for peace. If it is wasted, the opportunity may never return," Peres told the Royal Institute of International Affairs.

"Should negotiations reach an impasse...We will find ourselves in a great national debate between those who have despaired of a settlement and those who still want to keep the hope alive," Peres said.

He referred to a policy division in his Cabinet. His Labor Party favors a land-for-peace exchange that would yield some territory captured in the 1967 Middle East war, while the right-wing Likud bloc of Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir advocates keeping the West Bank and Gaza, where 1.2 million Palestinians live.

This fall, under an agreement the two sides made when they formed a coalition government in late 1984, Shamir becomes prime minister and Peres becomes foreign minister.

Peres proposed that either a summit of "relevant national leaders" or small working teams meet to work out arrangements for a peace conference. He did not identify which countries he considered relevant.

South Yemen's president, forces regrouping for 'last-ditch battle'

DJIBOUTI (AP) — South Yemen's president, fighting to keep power in his pro-Soviet country, has called on loyalist forces to regroup in the capital for a "last-ditch battle" against rebelling hardline Marxists, diplomats here reported.

According to Western and Arab diplomatic sources in the Persian Gulf, 10,000 people have been killed and twice that number wounded since fighting broke out in South Yemen Jan. 13 after an apparent attempt to topple President Ali Nasser Mohammed.

Both Mohammed and the rebel leaders support Moscow, but Mohammed's recent overtures to pro-Western Arab nations apparently inspired the coup attempt and touched off the armed clashes, in which both members of the Arab nation's armed forces and tribal warriors were reported taking part.

Refugees fleeing Aden, the South Yemeni capital, spoke Wednesday of pitched battles that were terrorizing the civilian population, and some said warplanes fired at foreigners as they mustered on beaches awaiting evacuation by ship from the country at the Arabian Peninsula's southern tip.

No direct reports were available from Aden because regular communications lines have been cut, but one diplomat in Djibouti who was in touch with his country's embassy in Aden said, "The battles are vicious, and the confrontation lines are all overlapping. In some suburbs the fighting has been raging from house to house."

The diplomat, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said, "Decomposing corpses are everywhere, and almost all houses in Aden have either collapsed or are pockmarked with bombs and bullets."

Egyptian seaman Ismail Mohammed Ahmed, whose Greek freighter, the Dimitra, docked in Djibouti on Wednesday after leaving Aden, said, "Buildings were ablaze, others collapsing. Snipers were shooting at the tanks from the hills. Terrified people were running around and I saw terrified children running out of their school into the streets. I could see the children screaming and weeping."

The Arab diplomats in Djibouti, which faces South Yemen across the southern entrance to the Red Sea, said much of the fighting with heavy weapons was concentrated in the Aden suburb of Khormaksar, where embassies and key government buildings are located.

One diplomat said: "Ali Nasser (Mohammed) ordered his forces to descend from the provinces on Aden to stifle the rebellion in what would be a last-ditch battle."

The diplomats said cease-fire talks sponsored by the Kremlin at the Soviet Embassy in Aden had been fruitless.

Rival black tribes battle near port city of Durban

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Rival black tribes near the port city of Durban battled today with guns and traditional fighting sticks, killing 15 people, state radio said.

Police earlier had reported six dead and 10 wounded in new fighting between Zulus and Pondos. Seventy-one people were killed in clashes between members of the two tribes last November and on Christmas Eve.

Government-controlled South African Broadcasting Corp. said today that the toll had risen to 15, but police did not immediately confirm that toll.

Although such clashes usually are dismissed in South Africa as timeless clan wars, some analysts say they are rooted in the apartheid system, under which South Africa's 5 million whites enjoy political and economic rights denied to the 24 million blacks.

The 6 million Zulus, who comprise the country's largest ethnic group, traditionally live in the Durban region, where jobs are relatively plentiful.

Many Pondos, whose smaller tribe is assigned to an impoverished homeland further south, have migrated to the region to seek work and thus are resented by the Zulus.

The latest Zulu-Pondo clash began Wednesday in the black township of Kwa Makhutha after a Zulu man was attacked and burned to death, police reported.

Witnesses said police waited on the township's border but made no effort to enter. They said the worst fighting appeared over by dawn, but hundreds of residents fled the hostilities.

In other developments today, residents of the black township of Bekkersdal west of Johannesburg said police continued searching for suspects in the killings of two white police officers.

Police said Wednesday they arrested 11 blacks on murder charges and detained 250 others for questioning. They said the officers were beaten and stabbed to death late Tuesday when they tried to break up a meeting of about 500 black gold miners.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Italy seeking Abu Nidal

ROME (AP) — Italian prosecutors investigating last month's terrorist attack at the Rome airport issued an international arrest warrant today for Abu Nidal, leader of a renegade Palestinian guerrilla group, judicial authorities reported.

The warrant, signed by Prosecutor Domenico Sica, charges Abu Nidal with mass murder in the Dec. 27 raid at Rome's Leonardo da Vinci Airport that left 16 people dead and 80 wounded. The dead included three of the four suspected Palestinian terrorists and five Americans.

Three other people were killed in a simultaneous attack by terrorists at the Vienna airport, including one of the three alleged terrorists. About 40 were wounded in Vienna.

Abu Nidal broke away from Yasser Arafat's Palestine Liberation Organization in 1974, and leads a small band of guerrillas who have attacked Israelis, Westerners and Arafat loyalists. He is thought to be in his late 40s or early 50s.

Abu Nidal, whose real name is Sabry al-Banna, stays out of public view and has been reported ailing in recent years. Initially backed by Iraq and later by Syria, he now reportedly operates out of Libya.

Drought hurting Somalia

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Somalia's interior minister said 2.5 million people in eight of his country's 15 regions are threatened with food shortages because of drought.

Somalia's state-run Radio Mogadishu, in a broadcast monitored here, quoted Ahmed Suleiman Abdulle as saying Tuesday that pastures had dried up in the east African country's north and central regions. Most residents depend on livestock for food and income.

Abdulle said national and local committees will be set up to seek ways of assisting affected areas before the next rainy season is due in about three months. He also appealed for international aid.

Somalia has received substantial foreign food aid in recent years, but most of it has been earmarked for the more than 700,000 refugees from neighboring Ethiopia, also suffering from drought.

Three Guatemalans killed

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — The bullet-riddled bodies of three men were found in a garbage dump, tied up and apparently tortured, a national police spokesman said Wednesday.

The wife of a high school teacher said her husband was shot dead in what appeared to be a fourth terrorist killing.

Virginia Castaneda de Reyes told reporters that her husband, Edgar Antonio Reyes Monterroso, a high school teacher, was waylaid and killed by unidentified gunmen Tuesday evening in western Guatemala City.

County forecasts

Midland, Ector, Glasscock, Upton, Reagan, Crane, Garza, Andrews, Dawson, Borden, Martin, Howard, Sterling, Coke, Irion and Tom Green counties: Tonight fair. Low in the mid 30s. Wind southwest 5 to 15 mph. Friday mostly fair. High mid 60s. Wind west 10 to 15 mph.

Warming trend due on Friday

From Staff and Wire Reports
Friday should show a slight warming trend in the Midland area as forecasters at the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport predict the high to be in the mid-60s for the Permian Basin.
A low in the mid-30s, accompanied by fair skies and southwesterly winds at five to 15 mph, is forecast for tonight. Friday winds will shift to the west at 10 to 15 mph under mostly fair skies.
Wednesday's high of 53 was 30 degrees below the record high set for the date in 1950. In 1966 the record low for this date was set at 7 degrees, 21 degrees below this morning's low.

STATE
Skies across Texas were mostly clear as the state's weather remained under the control of a large high pressure system centered over the Midwest.

And forecasts called for a chance of some thunderstorm activity across North Texas Friday.
Forecasts called for mostly fair skies across the state except in South Texas tonight and Friday. Lows tonight were to be mostly in the 30s and 40s, ranging from the 20s in the Panhandle to the 50s in South Texas. Highs Friday are to be mostly in the 50s except for the 60s in far West Texas and in the 70s in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas.

Low level clouds extended northward early today from the Gulf of Mexico into South Central Texas and some areas in the Edwards Plateau. Skies were mostly clear over the rest of the state.

Early morning temperatures were in the 20s and 30s across western and northern sections of the state and in the 40s and 50s elsewhere. Extremes ranged from 23 at Marfa in the Davis Mountains to 59 at Brownsville.

Other early morning temperatures around the state included 25 at Amarillo, 28 at Wichita Falls, 36 at Fort Worth, 33 at Waco, 36 at Lufkin, 46 at Austin, 47 at San Antonio, 46 at Houston, 28 at San Angelo, and 29 at Lubbock, Midland and El Paso.

NATION
A frontal system spread snow and rain through much of the West today while cold weather and clear skies prevailed from the Plains to the Great Lakes.

The front threatened heavy snow in the Rockies. A winter storm watch was posted for the northern Utah mountains.

Travelers' advisories for snow with possible drifting were issued for Washington state, Oregon, the northern Sierra Nevada of California and the Lake Tahoe Basin.

The northern and central Pacific Coast had rain while most of the western mountains had snow.

Permian's Herring odd man out in 4-5A coach hunt

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

ODESSA — As the coaching wheels turn in District 4-5A, one name has surprisingly been left out of the picture.

Ken Herring, a 13-year assistant coach at Odessa Permian, was once considered the heir to the dynasty created by John Wilkins, now the athletic director in Odessa.

Now at 39, Herring is a coach without a team. "I thought right up until the last moment I would be the one they chose," Herring said in a telephone interview Wednesday. "I wouldn't say I was bitter, just very disappointed. I'm not going to get down about it, it's not the end of the world. I'm just sorry it wasn't me."

Herring felt he had a lot of support for the job among the public and assistant coaches.

"A lot of the faculty, assistant coaches and other people had voiced their support for me. I talked with the assistants and they all supported me because I was the only assistant to apply. They were going to back me all the way, but I don't think it's going to have any bearing on their attitude about the program at Permian.

"I'm taking a couple of days right off now, I've asked for reassignment within the system. I thought it best that I stay away from the situation. Best for the new coach, and best for myself. They're supposed to tell me on Monday where I'll go."

For 13 years, Herring roamed the sidelines as Wilkins' right hand man. He is credited as being the architect of the vaunted Panther defense that has helped Permian win a pair of state titles under Wilkins, and six straight District 4-5A championships.

Many assumed that when Wilkins stepped down earlier this month to accept the athletic director's job, that Herring was a natural to take over. After all, Wilkins was hired after serving a two-year apprenticeship under then-Permian coach Gil Bartosh, now Midland's athletic director.

Instead, a six-man panel, of which Wilkins was just one member, bypassed Herring and chose Gary Gaines of Monahans, a long time head coach in West Texas and a former Panther assistant. Other members of the panel were Bill Holm, superintendent of schools, Jack Brewer, retiring athletic director, Gordon Madison, director of personnel, Lloyd McKee, assistant superintendent, and Jerald McClary, principal at Permian.

"Wilkins told me it was the lack of head coaching experience," Herring said. "I feel there had to be some other things, but that's what I was told. I was led to believe that I was the top candidate. I've been there 13 years now and felt that they were going to move within the system."

Herring said from the outset of the search for Wilkins' replacement that he would look elsewhere if he were not chosen. When informed of the panel's decision just before noon on Tuesday, Herring requested a reassignment.

Now his search has begun for that head coaching experience the panel said he was lacking.

"There are a lot of jobs open, Fort Stockton, Monahans, Midland Lee," Herring said with only a hint of a laugh. "I'd like to stay in West Texas if possible. I know how important football is here."

Herring would probably like nothing more than to take over the reigns at Lee and have a shot at beating his old team.

Bartosh, however, has indicated he will stay within the Midland school system to find a replacement for Jack Tayrien, who resigned the Lee position Tuesday to become the secondary coach at Texas Tech.

"I don't think of revenge," Herring said. "I know I'm a good coach, I've proven that by the record we had at Permian. I know I played a big part in the success there. I don't want to say anything that might hurt my chances (anywhere else). I'll just accept what they did and go on from there."

Midland hosts prep swim meet

By ERIC SCHURER
Sports Writer

For the second week in a row, Midland will play host to a top-notch swimming invitational, this week with the Midland Invitational, a 12-team high school meet Friday and Saturday at Mabee Memorial Swim Center.

The Midland invite, coming on the heels of the COM Winter Invitational last week, should give a sneak preview of the District 4-5A meet Feb. 20-21 in San Angelo. All eight district teams are expected to participate in the two-day meet, but Big Spring and Odessa High weren't definite as of Wednesday.

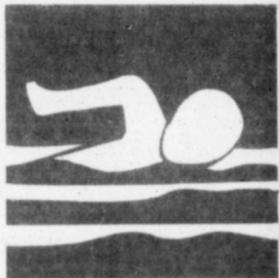

Competition will begin at noon both days, but Friday will be preliminary heats and diving. The diving will be split between the Mabee Pool and the MHS Pool. On Saturday, finals will begin at noon.

Midland High coach Jesse Marsh expects a strong showing from the MHS boys and hopes they will fight with Amarillo High for the team title. Midland Lee claims a couple top caliber individuals, but coach John Bettina expects the Rebels to end up in the middle of the field.

"Those Amarillo kids are pretty tough, but our boys will give AHS a run for their money — we're stronger than we were last year," Marsh said of the Bulldogs, the defending champions of 4-5A. "We've got more depth than last year, and that will help us as much as anything."

"MIDLAND HIGH and Amarillo are the class of the field, they both are very strong in the boys," Bettina said. "They are probably the two strongest boys teams in the region. Because of our lack of depth, I expect we'll finish in the middle of the pack."

On the girls side, Abilene Cooper and Odessa Permian will duke it out for the top spot, with both Lee and San Angelo nose and nose for third and fourth. MHS should also contribute some strong performances in the girls meet.

Sophomore Jane Marker has already set a new school record for the Rebels in the 100 breaststroke and also is one of the favorites in the 200 IM. Caroline Reed, a senior, has also been strong this season in the butterfly events and the 500 freestyle, Bettina said.

Add Kristin Burton and Noel White, and Lee boasts the depth that the Bulldogs can't match on the girls side.

MARSH EXPECTS MHS diver Theresa Brown to vie for the title in the one-meter competition on Friday night and Saturday morning if necessary. Debbie Colson is also strong for MHS in the distance freestyle events.

Junior Sam Perry will be favored in the backstroke events and Ricky Perkins in the butterfly for the Bulldogs. But it's the depth at MHS that will boost them toward the top.

Lee's Alan Reed is strong in the distance freestyle events, but because of prior commitments in a band competition, Reed will only swim in the preliminaries on Friday night.

Grades end Waelder team

WAEOLDER (AP) — The basketball team's plans for small Waelder High School for the 1985-86 season have ended abruptly because all five players on the squad became ineligible this week under Texas' no-pass, no-play rule.

Under the rule, any student with a failing grade in any class at the end of a six-week grading period is barred from extra-curricular activities for the following six weeks.

Coach Lester King's Wildcats had compiled a 6-8 record for the season with just five players. Two other candidates dropped from the squad before the season began.

"We don't have a basketball team any more. All five of our boys failed one course each, and that means the season is over for us," King told the Austin American-Statesman.

Waelder is in Class 1A, the smallest of Texas' five enrollment classifications. Only 11 boys are enrolled in high school, school officials said. The town of 940 people sits off Interstate 10 about 90 miles east of San Antonio.

Cougs stun A&M Aggies

SWC Basketball

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Cougars and Texas Aggies each had something to celebrate following the Cougars' pulsating 76-69 Southwest Conference victory over the Aggies.

Houston celebrated a return to the league chase with its third straight victory and the Aggies consoled themselves that they at least retained the SWC lead with a 5-1 record.

Houston's victory snapped A&M's five-game winning streak and evened the Cougars' league standing at 3-3.

TEXAS TECH and Texas Christian each started Wednesday's schedule with one league loss but the Red Raiders lost to Southern Methodist 61-57 and TCU lost to Texas 56-54, leaving the Aggies alone in first place. TCU and Texas Tech share second place with 4-2 records.

Baylor defeated Rice 53-49 in the only other SWC game.

"They are going to be tough the rest of the way and they are right in the middle of it," A&M Coach Shelby Metcalf said of the Cougars. "If they don't get back in contention, which I think they are, they will be tough by tournament time."

Houston's Greg Anderson scored eight of his 12 points over the crucial final 4:18 of the game to secure the victory.

It was an emotion-charged game for the Cougars, playing their first game since Coach Guy Lewis' announced Tuesday that he would retire at the end of the season, ending a 33-year coaching career with the Cougars.

Anderson's closing surge included a pair of three-point plays and a basket that put the Cougars ahead 70-67 with 1:01 to go.

Alvin Franklin, Renaldo Thomas and Ricky Jackson then added Houston's final six points with two free throws each.

"We must win to stay in the conference race and was wanted to win for Coach Lewis," Anderson said. "It's a combination of those two things."

Franklin led the Cougars with 24 points and Rickie Winslow added 17.

A&M's Don Marbury fouled out with 5:20 to go with 18 points for the Aggies. Winston Crite shared high point honors with another 18 points.

"We're still on top and control our destiny," Marbury said. "We'll get ready to play Rice and keep on going hard. The guys hung in there and traded buckets down to the wire."

LEWIS DIDN'T think his recent retirement announcement had anything to do with the Cougars' outstanding effort.

"Our kids were pumped up but they've been pumped up the last three or four ball games," Lewis said. "I'll say again the Arkansas game was abig boost to us."

Chaps place perfect mark on WTC line

By TED BATTLES

Is the long season beginning to catch up with the Chaps?

Is this the night Midland College will finally lose a game?

The Chaps, No. 2 ranked and 20-0 for the season, were reeling at the finish as Odessa College ran out of time in a 79-74 loss at the Langford Chaparral Center Monday night. The Wranglers outscored MC 25-6 over the final eight minutes in what had been a rout for 30 minutes.

A week earlier, the Chaps jumped out to a 16-2 lead against Howard College at Big Spring and won 74-65, but the Hawks were only three back with 2:17 left.

THOSE FINAL minutes seem to be getting longer and longer.

For those who were toying with the idea that MC might just be perhaps the best college team in Texas, capable of giving UTEP an argument, welcome back to earth.

Tonight Coach Jerry Stone takes his Midland College hoopsters to Snyder for an 8 p.m. game against Western Texas College, a seemingly modest 3-2 in WJCAC standings, but this is the team that lost to Midland 77-76 in the Odessa College Thanksgiving tournament. That's one of the two really close calls MC has had this year. The other was an overtime win over Seward, Kan.

Overall, WTC has a 12-6 record. The Westerners went to overtime to beat Clarendon, 89-83, and lost to NMJC, 83-81 and Howard, 80-72, but WTC owns a victory over OC, 92-75. It has been an up and down team, but there's no doubt the Westerners will be up for tonight's game with the Chaps. After all, how many times do you get to play the No. 2 team in the country.

James Dawn and Alvin Lee, both averaging more than 17 a game, lead the WTC attack while Dawn and Cliff Langford on the big rebounders. Alvin Hicks and Dawn lead in assist.

After tonight's game MC returns home Monday, 7:30 p.m., for Clarendon, the final game of the first half of the schedule and then next Thursday must travel to Levelland to play South Plains, lodged in second place.

TERRY WILLIAMSON

'No Pass, No Play' has cracks

On the surface, Gov. Mark White is winning his war with the Texas High School Coaches Association over his controversial "No Pass, No Play" rule, which basically stated means that no high school student may participate in any extracurricular activity if that student doesn't pass every course he takes.

"The Sporting News," a publication from St. Louis, recently jumped on the Gov. White band wagon by endorsing Texas' efforts with White's education reforms.

The thing funny about the endorsement is that TSN uses statements by Tony Dungy to back up its editorial claims. Dungy, of all people, is the defensive coordinator for the Pittsburgh Steelers. What gives him the right to be an expert on problems in Texas?

SAYS DUNGY, "For the guy who is kept from becoming a pro player by this rule, there'll be 20 who'll make a better living outside sports because of it."

TSN follows in its editorial with, "We think Dungy's appraisal is far more valid than the argument advanced by coaches, who sound more concerned about what's best for their football programs than about what's best for the kids."

Also, Gov. White has been holding proudly aloft a recent survey that 70 percent of the Texans polled are in favor of the "No Pass, No Play" rule. In the process, he has been pointing his finger at the Texas coaches as "cry babies" for not accepting the rule as it now stands.

The sad part of all this is that the THSCA is not against "No Pass, No Play" as the rule is stated in its basic form. All they want is some revision to make the rule more equitable for the kids who have to deal with the rule. Gov. White has never allowed any serious discussion of revision and has held a "no compromise" position on the rule.

Jack Tayrien, who just resigned his position as head football coach at Midland Lee for the college ranks and Texas Tech, points out, "I'm surprised that only 70 percent favored the rule. The way it was stated — Do you favor students having to pass their school work to be eligible for extracurricular activities? — I think 90 percent of the coaches would have voted in favor of the rule."

THERE ARE some disagreements the coaches have with the rule as now applied and I happen to think they should be taken seriously. So far, there is no movement for compromise and that seems a shame. It would take so little to make all groups happy.

Probably the main gripe of the coaches centers around the fact that a student must be out for a full six weeks if a course is failed. Coaches contend that a student should play if he is passing. That means if a student is passing that course after one week, he should be able to participate.

That concern sounds reasonable enough, but even the coaches would probably accept a three-week compromise.

And there are some other flaws that should concern even the hard core proponents of the rule.

We just passed the third six-week period of the school year last Friday. Did you know that some students who passed the first two six-week periods with averages of over 80 and 90 in some courses are now out after making a below-70 score in the third six-week period? That means that a student passes the course with an overall average of over 70 and is still ineligible to play for the next six-week period. Somehow, that doesn't seem right.

THAT WOULD be bad enough, but some schools have reported that students have failed the first two six-week periods with horrendous grades, but are playing in the third six-week period by passing with grades barely over 70. That means that students, who will end up failing the course, are playing.

If you can tell me what is fair about that part of "No Pass, No Play," I'm willing to listen, but that's not right.

It sure seems hard to me to justify "No Pass, No Play" as it stands now. There is room for improvement.

We are not asking that "No Pass, No Play" be eliminated, but the inequities of the rule must be addressed. Gov. White not only needs ears to hear the other side, but he needs some eyes to see that his great rule has inequities. Texas citizens should at least be able to hear both sides.

Peel, Pullin land Abilene's two coaching positions

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

The continuing saga of the District 4-5A football hot stove league added some fuel to the fire Wednesday when Abilene filled the head coaching vacancies at both Abilene Cooper and Abilene High.

The decision at Cooper insures that a former Midland coach, Larry Peel, returns to West Texas. Peel, 39, has been chosen to replace former Midland Lee assistant Mike Garrison, who resigned the position following the football season.

The Abilene High job has gone to 39-year-old Larry Pullin, who led Cuero to the state 3A finals in 1985.

The Abilene school board met in executive session until late Tuesday night to make the decision. The official announcement will come Monday when the school board holds its regular meeting.

However, Peel and Pullin were paraded before the Abilene media Wednesday morning. Monday's school board meeting will only be a formality.

Peel came as an assistant football coach at Midland High in 1976 under Jerry Hopkins and also served as head baseball coach at Midland High during that period. In 1979, he moved to Midland Lee as an assistant under Gil Bartosh, who is now Midland's athletic director.

In 1980, Peel accepted the head coaching job at Class 4A Boerne, near San Antonio, where he has compiled a 36-26-1 record in his six seasons there and two playoff berths.

Boerne became a 3A school in 1982 and Peel made his first playoff appearance in 1983 as a runnerup. He won a district championship in 1984.

"I'm glad Larry got the job. He asked me to recommend him for the job," said Bartosh. "He is one of the brighter young coaches around and I always felt like he had a great future ahead of him. He was an assistant of mine when I was at UTEP and coached the receivers.

"This is a job he wanted and I'm glad he got it. He understands that the Cooper job is a challenge. It's a tough job unless they change some boundaries in Abilene, but Larry will do a good job for them."

Peel is an ex-quarterback at TCU and played the high school football at San Antonio Highlands. The Boerne position was Peel's first head coaching job. Midland High trainer James "Doc" Dodson has a special relationship with Peel and was glad to hear the news from Cooper.

"I'm really excited for Larry. I didn't know he had gotten the job, but that is super exciting. Larry remarried this summer and we went down for the wedding. He is outstanding people," said Dodson after learning that the Cooper position had been filled.

Peel was in Abilene Wednesday and could not be reached for comment.

Pullen had a 50-19 record in his five years at Cuero, an annual playoff power. Overall, Pullen owns a 78-90-2 coaching record, also having been head coach at Floresville.

Pullen will replace Don Cumpston at Abilene High. Cumpston gave up the AHS job recently to replace the retiring Shorty Lawson as Abilene's athletic director.

McMahon can't hide sunglasses

By CHRIS JENKINS
Copley News Service

NEW ORLEANS — Try to keep in mind that clothes don't make the McMahon.

Better try real hard.

For a guy who steadfastly refuses to reveal much about himself, Jim McMahon sure had a funny way of showing himself Wednesday, appearing before hundreds in an ensemble that could be described as a cross between Captain America and Wham! Wraparound sunglasses of stars and stripes in Old Glory colors. A top that looked as if McMahon was walking by when the paint store exploded. Red and white pants of skin-tight spandex. People wear less exotic costumes at Mardi Gras.

REGALED THUSLY, then, the Chicago Bears quarterback proceeded to tell a roomful of reporters how he hates all the attention.

Jimmy, Jimmy, quite contrary, how does your image grow?

"I don't give a damn about my image," he said. "A lot of people worry about what others think. I don't."

If so, he's in the right place, but at the wrong time. More than anywhere else, New Orleans is tolerant of outrageous behavior. Tolerant? In the Crescent City, you get extra points for curious conduct. And here comes the Boy Bizarre of the NFL. Indeed, the hottest-selling item on Bourbon Street is a replica of the headband, inscribed with the name "Rozelle," McMahon used to thumb his nose at the almighty commissioner. He's the toast of the toasting town in America.

Hiroshi Shirashi gave McMahon his long-awaited shot in the rump Wednesday — and the rest of the Chicago Bears a shot in the arm.

McMahon, who had complained long and loud about the Bears' unwillingness to supply him with his favorite acupuncturist, got his wish Wednesday.

Shirashi, the trainer for the Japanese national track team, arrived in this Super Bowl city and administered a needle treatment in McMahon's sore left buttock. Shirashi said he flew here at the request of his friend, former world-class sprinter Willie Gault, now a wide receiver for the Bears.

"I am here for him and to make his Bears feel better so they can win the Super Bowl," Shirashi said. "My treatment is special, totally oriental. I am so happy to get here."

AFTER THE treatment, McMahon participated in a two-hour workout.

"The main thing I was impressed with was all of his movement," Coach Mike Ditka said after McMahon

AP Laserphoto

Chicago Bears' quarterback Jim McMahon doesn't like attention, but dressing like this isn't the way to hide — even in New Orleans.

took most of the snaps in the Bears' first two offensive series. "He was 200 percent better today."

"I'm really optimistic now. Frankly, I was not very optimistic after yesterday's (Tuesday's) practice. It was a pleasant surprise for me."

McMahon, by most accounts, has already been judged the latest of football's famous flakes. No matter how much he denies it, McMahon seems to relish the public perception. Fact is, he's cultivated it, starting even well before he ever popped a beer at bone-dry BYU. McMahon has always known how to get a rise out of people.

"I don't dwell on what I'm doing or what I'm like," he said. "It's not like I think, 'Well, I've got to do something different.'"

Actually, McMahon contradicted himself there. He has in the past admitted to pulling everybody's leg, just to see if they'd kick or not, or just for his own kicks.

"I like to do strange things to see what they write about," McMahon said just last month. "I just like to act crazy to see what reaction I get. I laugh at myself, too, for some of the things I do."

There was the punk haircut. Then the headband that roared. Then the Bronx cheer he gave America. His opening address to New Orleans? Something about this pain he has in his lower, lower, lower ... keep going ... lower back. (Seems only fair, say those who've been around him a lot.)

All that did was stir up a mini-controversy within the Bears organization, McMahon saying he needed to have an acupuncturist flown in from Illinois, the team eventually granting his permission. McMahon wouldn't let it end there, either, for Wednesday he wore a headband that said "acupuncture" to practice.

"He's goofy," said teammate and offensive guard Tom Thayer. "He's strange, he's weird and he's out of the ordinary."

COMING FROM a fellow Bear, that's high praise. Thayer didn't grasp that mentality right off when he joined the team directly from the USFL last summer, and he definitely had trouble getting a grip on McMahon's idiosyncracies. Thayer's initial perception was the same one so many other outsiders still have of McMahon.

McEnroe to rest 60 days

Midland stop still on schedule

From Staff and Wire Reports

NEW YORK — Saying he needs time to rest and get back in shape, tennis star John McEnroe has left the professional tour for at least 60 days.

However, McEnroe will fulfill his commitments to complete his non-competitive Tour Over America which will bring McEnroe to Midland on Feb. 6. McEnroe began the tour on Tuesday with a 6-4, 2-6, 6-4 win over Mats Wilander in Tucson.

In a release issued Wednesday, it was hinted that this may be the last such exhibition tour that McEnroe will make to the Midland-Odessa area.

The New York left-hander petitioned the Men's International Professional Tennis Council Tuesday for a reduction from a mandated minimum of 14 NABISCO Grand Prix tournaments in 1986, saying he needed the time to rest and get himself in shape.

The Pro Council granted the request.

UNDER THE rules, a player who does not compete in any pro tennis event for a minimum of 60 or more consecutive days can petition the Pro Council for a reduction of his commitment. The rule was put into the Code of Conduct several years ago after Sweden's Bjorn Borg was unable to play a limited schedule since the rules at that time did not allow for fewer than the maximum number of tournaments.

Last week, McEnroe reportedly told French tennis star Yannick Noah that he "won't be playing again until the baby's come."

Actress Tatum O'Neal, McEnroe's fiancee, is expecting their first child in May. Earlier this month, a London newspaper reported the couple planned to be married Feb. 17, although McEnroe has denied a date has been set.

The London Sun reported today that O'Neal has delayed her marriage to McEnroe until after the birth of their child.

The newspaper said McEnroe had agreed to the postponement and quoted him as telling an unidentified friend: "I am willing to wait as long as it takes to find

A four-time U.S. Open champion and three-time winner at Wimbledon, McEnroe failed to capture a Grand Slam title in 1985 and slipped from No. 1 to No. 2 in the world on the Hewlett-Packard-ATP computer rankings. He was upset by Slobodan Zivjovnich of Yugoslavia in the Australian Open in December and was ousted in the first round of the Masters last week by fellow American Brad Gilbert.

"I'm not moving as well as I normally do, I'm not serving as well, I'm not hitting the ball as solid, I'm making too many mistakes, and my concentration isn't what it used to be to do well in a tournament like this," McEnroe said after last week's loss to Gilbert.

"I don't know exactly what I might do," he told reporters at the Masters. "Physically, I'm not feeling too good. I'm not moving too well. I've had some problems that have been affecting me a little."

McEnroe won eight tournaments in 1985, ending the year with a 71-9 match record, counting the Masters, the season-ending event. With his bonus money, McEnroe earned more than $1 million last year.

After the French Open last year, where he lost to eventual winner Mats Wilander of Sweden in the semifinals, McEnroe appeared with O'Neal at a champions dinner given by the International Tennis Federation. There, he publicly thanked the actress for being at his side.

He repeatedly has mentioned the tranquility O'Neal has brought into his life. That tranquility, however, was not translated into success on the tennis court.

She stayed home during Wimbledon, where McEnroe has had a running feud with the London daily tabloid newspapers. When he was upset by eventual runner-up Kevin Curren, a testy McEnroe, obviously dejected and confused, fled for home.

After taking time off, he seemed to recoup, however, defeating Ivan Lendl in the finals of both Volvo-Stratton Mountain and the Players International in Montreal. He reached the championship match at the U.S. Open, only to fall to Lendl in straight sets.

Howard Payne hires Jerry Millsapps

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Former Odessa High head football coach Jerry Millsapps was named as head football coach of Howard Payne College in Brownwood this morning.

Millsapps resigned the head coaching job at Odessa High last Oct. 25, following a loss to Big Spring. He finished the season with the Bronchos before stepping down.

Since then, Jerry Taylor of Hereford has been named as the head football coach at Odessa High.

Millsapps replaces Bill Hicks at Howard Payne.

The new job is a returning to roots of sorts for Millsapps, who once played quarterback for the Yellowjackets. Odessa athletic director Jack Brewer, who has also announced his retirement, coached at Howard Payne when Millsapps was there.

Millsapps grew up in Lamesa and played quarterback under coach O.W. Follis.

"I'm excited to be back at Howard Payne," said Millsapps, who made a visit to Midland Lee's Jack Tayrien this morning after the announcement at Howard Payne had been made.

"Well, I thought Lee might have some players to talk to," said Millsapps jokingly. "I've got to go to work."

Millsapps said that he will begin immediately recruiting for Howard Payne, but said that he was under contract to the Ector County Independent School District until Jan. 31.

Millsapps was 6-4 at Odessa High in 1985, but had a 3-4 District 4-5A record after losing his last three games.

Former Midland College star Spud Webb (4) shows what 5-foot-7 can do in the NBA for the Atlanta Hawks by knocking ball out of the hands of Golden State's Geoff Huston. Webb also scored 11 points.

Celtics' Walton dumps Lakers

Boston and Los Angeles both acquired a veteran big man during the offseason in last year's NBA championship finals. On Wednesday night, when the two teams met for the first time since that June series, it was Bill Walton who stood out in Boston's surprisingly easy 110-65 victory. The 6-foot-11 Walton had 11 points, eight rebounds, seven blocked shots and one steal in 16 minutes of action. His performance revved up a crowd of 14,880, the 240th consecutive sell-out for the Celtics at Garden.

game in the third quarter, when an 18-8 streak gave them an 83-69 advantage. Rookie center Benoit Benjamin scored eight points during the spurt. The Mavericks, who got 26 points from Derek Harper and 25 from Mark Aguirre, got no closer than eight points after the Los Angeles run. Nuggets 137, Nets 124 Denver's Alex English reached the 40-point plateau for the sixth time this season with 43 against New Jersey, which lost despite the return of Micheal Ray Richardson from drug rehabilitation. The Nuggets, who snapped a four-game losing streak, led 90-75 with 3:08 to go in the third quarter, but a 23-8 spurt by the Nets gave them a one-point lead with 9:27 left in the game.

English and Lafayette Lever, who scored 13 of his 17 points in the final period, gave Denver its final cushion. Calvin Natt added 30 points for the Nuggets, while Mickey Johnson had 25 points and Darriy Dawkins 22 to lead New Jersey. Richardson had 15 points, eight rebounds and seven assists in 28 minutes. Hawks 131, Warriors 106 Atlanta hit 67.5 percent of its shots, the highest in the NBA this season, and pulled away from Golden State in the second half. The Hawks, who won for the ninth time in 11 games, took the lead for good at 50-46 late in the first half. An 11-1 streak in the third period helped Atlanta take a 91-78 margin into the fourth quarter, when the Hawks outscored the Warriors 40-22. Dominique Wilkins paced Atlanta with 25 points, while the guard duo of Randy Wittman and Glenn Rivers added 23 and 17, respectively. Wittman was 10-for-12 and Rivers 8-for-8. Golden State was led by Joe Barry Carroll with 16 points. 76ers 118, Suns 111 Philadelphia beat Phoenix for its 18th victory in 18 games as Charles Barkley and Moses Malone again led the way. Barkley had 29 points and 14 rebounds and Malone 23 points and 10 rebounds for the 76ers, who built an 88-74 lead in the third quarter before the Suns rallied to cut the deficit to four on two occasions. Both times, Maurice Cheeks got the next basket for Philadelphia. Cheeks finished with 12 assists and 19 points on 8-for-10 shooting. Walter Davis scored 25 points and Mike Sanders 22 to lead Phoenix. Pistons 107, Cavaliers 104 Kelly Tripucka scored 24 points, including a tie-breaking three-point play with 26 seconds left, to lift Detroit over Cleveland. Dennis Johnson scored 22 points and Larry Bird had 21 points and 12 rebounds in leading the Celtics, who led 57-49 at halftime, then broke away in the third quarter for an 88-75 advantage. Clippers 131, Mavericks 118 Marques Johnson scored 22 points and Kurt Nimphus, traded by Dallas earlier this season, added a season-high 21 for Los Angeles. The Clippers broke open a close

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: This should be a banner year for you both emotionally and financially. Loved ones are supportive of your efforts. A casual flirtation could develop into a serious romance. New career goals help you establish a special niche at place of employment. Welcome new responsibilities. The more you know how to do, the quicker you will be promoted. Project a professional image. Avoid discussing personal matters with business associates.

CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: Olympic star Mary Lou Retton, Neil Diamond, Oklahoma evangelist Oral Roberts, Senator Paula Hawkins (R-Fla.), San Diego stopper Tim Lincecum, Giants pitcher Ailee Hammaker, writer Edith Wharton.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Resist the urge to go along with the crowd. Friends provide valuable career or financial information. An unexpected visitor from out of town alters your weekend plans.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Diplomacy helps you avert a confrontation early in the day. Be discreet where romance is concerned. Imaginative use of materials makes a creative project a big success. GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your plans could backfire if you choose the wrong confidant. Talk things over with someone who has always been loyal. New friends broaden your horizons. CANCER (June 21-July 22): The emphasis is on impressing others with your versatility. Diversify. A financial situation shows decided improvement. Tackle chores with enthusiasm.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): An old friend helps you open new doors. Family matters occupy your thoughts this afternoon or evening. Seek a compromise if loved ones do not agree with your social plans. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A bolder approach will bring better results. Analyze family members' spending habits before revamping your budget. Your relationship with that special someone will improve if you act less obstinate.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Someone who shares your interests begins to see you as a romantic partner. The problem is you may not feel the same way! A job offer sounds attractive but may not prove suitable. SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Community service could lead to an exciting job offer. Go over your schedule and set aside more time for creative projects. Consult experts regarding an unusual proposition; it could have big tax advantages.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Learn to delegate more responsibility and you will have more time for creative and artistic projects. You make an exciting new discovery about a longtime relationship. A romance could not be happier.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): An excellent day to finalize agreements and sign contracts. Your intuition plays a major role in your career or business success. Teamwork produces the greatest gains. You attract an important new admirer.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The "soft sell" approach works best today. Be subtle. Curb a tendency to sound overly dramatic. Acting too independent could hurt romance. Streamline work procedures whenever possible.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Think through a career or financial move very carefully. You are in a stronger position than you realize. Talk less when around someone influential.

When the lie of the cards favors declarer, you can sometimes create the illusion that bad things are about to happen. Few are better at this than Pakistani ace Zia Mahmood. Watch him weave his spell on declarer in a seemingly impregnable four-heart contract.

The auction was brief and no one could quibble with South's decision to bid four hearts. It might seem that declarer's only losers are two clubs and a spade, since the king of hearts can be picked up with a finesse.

West led the jack of clubs, East overtook with the queen and declarer won the ace. He ran the queen of spades, and Zia casually followed with the ten.

Now declarer's imagination went to work. If the ten were a singleton, East would ruff the second spade, then get to his partner either with a club or a club ruff to trump another spade for the setting trick. Since he apparently had no spade loser, declarer opted to play the ace of hearts and another. Finis.

Zia won the king of hearts, cashed two clubs and then tried the king of diamonds. Declarer ruffed that, but it didn't help him a bit. No matter how he wriggled, he had to concede the setting trick to Zia's king of spades.

There are many situations where this type of falsecard can gain a trick for the defense. If you want to carry it off successfully, however, you must master the art of making the deceptive play smoothly. If you think about it for a while, you fool no one.

WATCHES

Mr. Sears and Mr. Roebuck got together because of a classified ad!

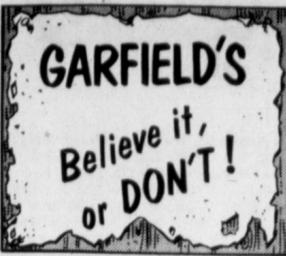

In the late 1800's, Richard W. Sears had a pretty good business going selling watches and needed someone to handle his watch repairs. He placed a classified ad in the newspaper and Alvah C. Roebuck got the job. That's how the nation's biggest retailer got started... through a classified ad!

If you need a good helper, try advertising in our classifieds. Who knows? You may spark the beginning of something big!

Creator of 'Bloom County' suffers fractured spine in ultralight crash

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Cartoonist Berke Breathed, creator of the popular "Bloom County" comic strip, suffered a fractured spine Wednesday when the ultralight aircraft in which he was riding crashed, authorities said.

The ultralight, which was carrying Breathed and another man, crashed north of Albuquerque on an Indian reservation near Interstate 25, according to a dispatcher with the Bernalillo County sheriff's department.

Police on the Sandia Pueblo reservation refused to release any information about the accident involving the craft, which resembles a glider with an engine.

Breathed was treated for a fracture of the spine at St. Joseph Hospital in Albuquerque, where he was listed in satisfactory condition, said Lillian Patterson, the evening supervisor at the hospital.

"Bloom County," which appears in about 700 newspapers nationwide, features Opus the penguin, Bill the Cat, a wheelchair-bound veteran named Cutter John, and sleazy attorney Steve Dallas, among other zany characters.

Breathed moved to Albuquerque last May.

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett will pay about $107,000 to a suburban bank this week to satisfy a delinquent loan, his attorney says.

Dorsett was ordered by a state district judge last month to pay First City Bank of Richardson $85,000 borrowed in 1983, plus about $9,100 in interest and $12,750 in attorneys' fees.

In a separate case last August, Dorsett was ordered by another judge to pay the bank $186,379 for defaulting on a $175,000 promissory note.

"I expect it will be paid before the week is out," said Dorsett's lawyer, H. Allen Hill Jr. of Austin. "Tony has been making arrangements for the financing to get that paid."

Hill said this week's payment will complete settlements of Dorsett's debt problems, which surfaced last July when the Internal Revenue Service temporarily seized his two Dallas-area homes to force him to pay $414,000 in income taxes.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The broadcast of the Live Aid rock concerts from London and Philadelphia last July raised more than $82 million for African famine relief, concert organizers reported after an audit.

Adding in revenue from all Live Aid efforts during the first eight months of 1985, including proceeds from a song recorded by the British all-star group Band Aid, the total raised for famine victims was reported to be $92,127 million.

American and British rock fans pledged $50.59 million by telephone during the July 13 concert broadcast organized by British pop star Bob Geldof. Broadcast rights, ticket sales and other revenue directly traceable to the event yielded $14 million. Television audiences in 21 nations other than the United States and Britain pledged $17.4 million.

The audit also revealed that in addition to the concerts, the sale of the Band Aid anthem "Do They Know It's Christmas" raised $9.166 million.

The audit, conducted by the firms of Laventhol & Horwath in the United States and Stoy Hayward in Britain, accounted for contributions and other income received as of Aug. 31.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Christine Craft, the former anchorwoman who sued a television station that she said demoted her because of her appearance, says she prefers using her time "to get the last fact that will make this story right" to having her hair done by a professional. Craft, 41, who has been off the air for two years, will co-anchor a 30-minute 10 p.m. news show for television station KRBK that makes its debut Monday.

Last month, Craft filed an appeal with the U.S. Supreme Court of an appeals court ruling last June that denied her the $325,000 awarded her in the second jury trial of her suit. That suit was filed in 1983 against KMBC-TV in Kansas City, Mo., and then-owner Metromedia Inc.

The suit said station officials removed her from the anchor spot because she was "too old, unattractive and not deferential enough to men." Station officials denied the charges.

LONDON (AP) — Actress Faye Dunaway will make her British stage debut in May starring in a two-character drama about an American first lady and her security officer.

"Circe and Bravo," written by Donald Freed and directed by dramatist Harold Pinter, will play a two-week run in a North London "fringe" theater. If successful, it will likely transfer to the commercial West End and perhaps New York.

Ms. Dunaway, whose film credits include "Bonnie and Clyde," "Eyes of Laura Mars," and "Network," for which she won an Oscar, lives in London with her second husband, British photographer Terry O'Neill, and their son Liam.

clarer opted to play the ace of hearts and another. Finis. Zia won the king of hearts, cashed two clubs and then tried the king of diamonds. Declarer ruffed that, but it didn't help him a bit. No matter how he wriggled, he had to concede the setting trick to Zia's king of spades. There are many situations where this type of falsecard can gain a trick for the defense. If you want to carry it off successfully, however, you must master the art of making the deceptive play smoothly. If you think about it for a while, you fool no one.

Creator of 'Bloom County' suffers fractured spine in ultralight crash

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Cartoonist Berke Breathed, creator of the popular "Bloom County" comic strip, suffered a fractured spine Wednesday when the ultralight aircraft in which he was riding crashed, authorities said.

The ultralight, which was carrying Breathed and another man, crashed north of Albuquerque on an Indian reservation near Interstate 25, according to a dispatcher with the Bernalillo County sheriff's department.

Police on the Sandia Pueblo reservation refused to release any information about the accident involving the craft, which resembles a glider with an engine.

Breathed was treated for a fracture of the spine at St. Joseph Hospital in Albuquerque, where he was listed in satisfactory condition, said Lillian Patterson, the evening supervisor at the hospital.

"Bloom County," which appears in about 700 newspapers nationwide, features Opus the penguin, Bill the Cat, a wheelchair-bound veteran named Cutter John, and sleazy attorney Steve Dallas, among other zany characters.

Breathed moved to Albuquerque last May.

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys running back Tony Dorsett will pay about $107,000 to a suburban bank this week to satisfy a delinquent loan, his attorney says.

Dorsett was ordered by a state district judge last month to pay First City Bank of Richardson $85,000 borrowed in 1983, plus about $9,100 in interest and $12,750 in attorneys' fees.

In a separate case last August, Dorsett was ordered by another judge to pay the bank $186,379 for defaulting on a $175,000 promissory note.

"I expect it will be paid before the week is out," said Dorsett's lawyer, H. Allen Hill Jr. of Austin. "Tony has been making arrangements for the financing to get that paid."

Hill said this week's payment will complete settlements of Dorsett's debt problems, which surfaced last July when the Internal Revenue Service temporarily seized his two Dallas-area homes to force him to pay $414,000 in income taxes.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The broadcast of the Live Aid rock concerts from London and Philadelphia last July raised more than $82 million for African famine relief, concert organizers reported after an audit.

Adding in revenue from all Live Aid efforts during the first eight months of 1985, including proceeds from a song recorded by the British all-star group Band Aid, the total raised for famine victims was reported to be $92.127 million.

American and British rock fans pledged $50.59 million by telephone during the July 13 concert broadcast organized by British pop star Bob Geldof. Broadcast rights, ticket sales and other revenue directly traceable to the event yielded $14 million. Television audiences in 21 nations other than the United States and Britain pledged $17.4 million.

The audit also revealed that in addition to the concerts, the sale of the Band Aid anthem "Do They Know It's Christmas" raised $9.166 million.

The audit, conducted by the firms of Laventhol & Horwath in the United States and Stoy Hayward in Britain, accounted for contributions and other income received as of Aug. 31.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Christine Craft, the former anchorwoman who sued a television station that she said demoted her because of her appearance, says she prefers using her time "to get the last fact that will make this story right" to having her hair done by a professional. Craft, 41, who has been off the air for two years, will co-anchor a 30-minute 10 p.m. news show for television station KRBK that makes its debut Monday.

Last month, Craft filed an appeal with the U.S. Supreme Court of an appeals court ruling last June that denied her the $325,000 awarded her in the second jury trial of her suit. That suit was filed in 1983 against KMBC-TV in Kansas City, Mo., and then-owner Metromedia Inc.

The suit said station officials removed her from the anchor spot because she was "too old, unattractive and not deferential enough to men." Station officials denied the charges.

LONDON (AP) — Actress Faye Dunaway will make her British stage debut in May starring in a two-character drama about an American first lady and her security officer.

Dunaway

"Circe and Bravo," written by Donald Freed and directed by dramatist Harold Pinter, will play a two-week run in a North London "fringe" theater. If successful, it will likely transfer to the commercial West End and London.

Ms. Dunaway, whose film credits include "Bonnie and Clyde," "Eyes of Laura Mars," and "Network," for which she won an Oscar, lives in London with her second husband, British photographer Terry O'Neill, and their son Liam.

West Texas Sports

Football

Midland Lee will honor the 1985 football team at 6:30 p.m. today at the Midland Center at its annual banquet.

The 10-3 Rebels advanced to the playoffs for the third straight year, losing to Irving MacArthur, 24-21, in the regional playoff.

The banquet will be the farewell appearance of Lee head coach Jack Tayrien, who has resigned to become secondary coach at Texas Tech. Guest speaker will be Jerry Larned, superintendent of schools in Monahans. Larned is a former head coach at Monahans.

The banquet is open to the public at $7.50 per person.

Karate

ODESSA — Midlanders Curtis Abernathy and Daniel Miller took first place finishes in the recent Triathlon Karate tournament here. Abernathy took first place in the lightweight black belt competition with a win over Miller in the finals, but Miller came back to win the form competition, which features prearranged movements against an imaginary people.

Abernathy teaches Tae Kwon-do at the Alamo YMCA while Miller is in the process of opening a Kung Fu school in Midland.

Baseball

Midland High tryouts for varsity and junior varsity begin at 3:30 p.m. Feb. 3 at Memorial Stadium. Players are required to take physicals. See Coach Tim Whelan.

Youth Tournament

The top pool, ping pong and chess players at Midland High and Midland Lee will get together to compete in the Youth Center Invitational at MHS Youth Center on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The 12 best pool players at each school will go into competition to determine the No. 1 player while the eight best in ping pong and chess will vie for the same honor.

A total of 50 competitors are expected for the tournament, which will recognize individual as well as team efforts.

Boxing

Levelland's Rockin' Robin Blake, 27-3, meets 1984 Olympic Gold Medalist Meldrick Taylor, 9-0, in a 10-rounder at Lake Charles, La., on Feb. 2. It will be on NBC Sportsworld at approximately 4 p.m. For ticket information on the fight, contact Loretta Gorman at (817) 332-2455.

Golf

The Hogan Park Golf Association will meet 7 p.m. Thursday, Feb. 6, in the Hogan snack bar. Annual HPGA membership are $20, and include a handicap (through the minimax system) and eligibility to all HPGA tournaments in 1986.

Registration is Feb. 6, but pre-registers are being accepted at the Hogan pro shop, or by mailing your name, address, city, zip code and home phone number on a sheet of paper along with dues to HPGA, Hogan Park Golf Course, P.O. Box 10136, Midland, 79702.

Soccer

The Midland Soccer Association is taking applications for players who did not play in the fall of 1985. A sign up is scheduled Saturday at the concession stand of the soccer complex from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. as well as at the Athletic Dept. in the Courtyard. Candidates must show a copy of their birth certificate. Forms are available at the Athletic Dept. in the Courtyard or at the Midland Parks & Recreation Dept.

There will be Midland Soccer Association meeting at 3 p.m. Saturday in the board room of the Western State Bank. All coaches who are planning to coach in the spring season or considering coaching should attend this meeting.

Bowling

Tall City Lanes and the PBA will hold a pro-am Saturday, between the Las Vegas Showboat Invitational and the Quaker State Open in Grand Prairie.

Twelve or more pros are expected in Midland to compete in four separate shifts of the pro-am, one youth, at 1 p.m., and three adult at 3:30 p.m., 6:30 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Entry fee is $35 for adults and $5 for youth. Sign up at TCL or call John Denton, 694-9521.

Basketball

The Parks and Recreation Department and YMCA are cosponsoring a winter 3 on 3 basketball league. The deadline for entries has been changed to Tuesday and play will begin Monday, Feb. 3. The games will be held on Monday nights at the Washington YMCA. Team fee is $70 for a seven-man roster. A coaches meeting will also be held at the Washington YMCA at 7 p.m. Wednesday. Enter at either the PR&D or Washington YMCA.

San Jacinto JC cures low grades

School has become pipeline for colleges, NBA

By JOHN JEANSONNE
Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

PASADENA, Texas — The inscription over the gymnasium at San Jacinto Junior College should be: Fluctuat nec mergitur — "Tossed by waves but never sunk." That is because the players here — the stars who brought three national junior college championships since the school opened in 1960 — have not had wonderfully smooth sailing, despite considerable basketball skills and eventual fame and fortune.

"We get kids for three reasons," says San Jacinto's 38-year-old head coach, Ronnie Arrow, the man who runs this athletic Halfway House. "First, because they aren't doing it academically. Second, because they've had problems off the court. Third, because they're just not ready for Division I basketball."

"Mostly, for the first reason." Since 1966, when Ollie Taylor came here from New York, on his way to the University of Houston and the American Basketball Association's New York Nets, San Jacinto has given aid, comfort and a second chance to 10 future pro players. Fellows such as Tom Henderson (who moved on to the University of Hawaii and the Houston Rockets and Washington Bullets of the NBA), Ray Williams (University of Minnesota and the New York Knicks, Boston Celtics, Atlanta Hawks), Alton Lister (Arizona State, Milwaukee Bucks), Larry Spriggs (Howard University, Los Angeles Lakers).

OF COURSE, St. John's heroes Walter Berry and, before him, Billy Goodwin, wore the pale blue of San Jacinto, too. And Frank "Spoon" James, who now plays at the University of Nevada-Las Vegas. When San Jacinto won the 1964 national junior college title, featuring Berry and playing before a gym full of Division I scouts, Arrow said he was told "by more than one Big East guy that we could have finished fifth, maybe fourth in the Big East." On the night last month when the nearby University of Houston played DePaul, Arrow figured that "four, maybe five of the kids I have now are good enough to play in that game. Let me say, 'four or five,' so I won't be bragging. And I've got one or two who would play a lot."

Okay. But let's get back to the point. Whenever a scouting service notes that a high school phenom's grade-point average is better than 2.0 (which translates to a low C), that is the end of San Jacinto's recruiting interest. "Too high," Arrow says. "That kid is going to a major (college)."

Naturally, they all would go directly to a major college — it is the path of least resistance to the pros — if their academic credentials were good enough. If not, they head for places such as San Jacinto. "Academically, we get these kids ready," Arrow says. "They get a toe in the door. And, athletically, it gets them knowing what they have to do to survive in a four-year school."

Case histories: Michael Porter, a 6-foot guard from Pulaski, Va., had signed a letter of intent to enroll at Virginia Tech this year, but a month before school opened, he learned that his grades were not good enough to get past the admissions office. Greg "Boo" Harvey, a 6-foot guard from New York, signed with Syracuse but he did not have the grades, either. Tom Grant, a 6-7 forward from Aldine, Texas, had gone to the University of Houston, but he was declared academically ineligible for basketball. John Hudson, a 6-8 forward from Anderson, S.C., was the high school player of the year in his state last season, but the four-year schools did not want to take a chance on his schoolwork.

ALL ARE playing for San Jacinto now. "This is a place where we get kids who have screwed up, for whatever reason," Arrow says. "But for a screw-up, this is a damn good place."

Sitting out here in a suburb of Houston, San Jacinto is near the bright city lights, for those so inclined. Plus, this is oil country — miles of smoking refineries are just north of campus — which pays good tax money to this state-supported school. There is a basketball dorm — small efficiency apartments, two players to a room, with a color TV in the lobby, washer and dryer in the building. There is an abiding interest in basketball, with the administrative offices peopled by former San Jacinto head basketball coaches. The chancellor, Tom Sewell, coached the Ravens from 1961-67 (143-92 record); the vice chancellor, Ron Rucker, coached from 1967-69 (88-5, with a national title). The administrative dean and athletic director, Dean Evans, coached the team from 1969-74 (162-33).

But back to the point. There are study labs for the players, twice a week. Both Arrow and his assistant, Scott Gernander, attend. There is constant contact between the coaches and teachers. "If they miss a class — and if they miss one, we find out — Scott gets them up at 6 a.m. and runs them," Arrow says. "If they don't turn in a paper on time, Scott runs them. The third time we have to run them, we add an 11 o'clock curfew. Now, Scott's a runner. He gets up at 5:30 every morning and he's going to run whether he has company or not. But we've had guys who've had to run twice a week, and last year we had guys who could've gone out for the track team. But we tell them, 'We damn sure didn't bring you here to get you up at 6 every morning to run.'"

THE OPERATION, by Arrow's estimate, is "20 percent coaching, 40 percent psychology, 40 percent classroom." He is dealing with youngsters whose primary interest is basketball, many of whom have huge egos, some of whom are overrated as high-school players, all of whom are passing through a significant period of adjustment. "Some of them have to go home for Christmas that first time, to get some of the homesickness out of them, before they can get on with it," Arrow says. "They go home and find it isn't the same anymore. They find their buddies aren't hanging out on the same street corner, that they've all gone their separate ways."

"A lot of these kids really live in a dream world. You talk to some of them and they're all making straight A's. They don't need a junior college. Then, suddenly, right at the end, it's 'Oh, maybe I might come down there, coach.' I'm talking to two kids right now who say they'd rather go to a four-year school and lay out a year (redshirt) while they get their grades up."

At San Jacinto, Arrow argues, those kids would be motivated to do the schoolwork because they still would be playing ball. Of the last 16 players who have stayed here two years, Arrow says 15 have graduated. At San Jacinto, he would "play them at the position they'll play in major college." At San Jacinto, they could adjust. "They all have big names from high school," Arrow says. "They've all got to come down a notch in order to rise two notches."

Unranked Florida stuns No. 14 LSU

Associated Press

Unranked Florida knew it would sink or swim with a pressing defense, because Coach Norm Sloan had decided there was no way the Gators would lose passively to 14th-ranked Louisiana State.

Lose they did not, stunning the Tigers 74-65 Wednesday night in a Southeastern Conference basketball game that gave Sloan his 550th career victory.

"We got a lot of help out of our full-court defense," Sloan said, conceding that despite the victory the weakness of the press did manifest itself. "They got some easy baskets, but you have to accept that when you play the press a lot."

College Roundup

"Florida's press hurt us — we took it poorly," LSU Coach Dale Brown said, adding that the Tigers also missed high-scoring forward Nikita Wilson, who is out of the lineup for academic reasons.

"I think something that hurt us was that the guys were unnerved all week long, since we knew we wouldn't be playing with Nikita," Brown said. "Obviously, it showed how gravely we missed him."

The loss of Wilson was reflected in Florida's 39-37 advantage in rebounding.

"All of our people rebounded well," Sloan said, "but I never thought at the beginning of the season that we would rebound LSU."

Andrew Moten was the key operative, converting three free throws and scoring after a steal for Florida. Moten, who led the 9-6 Gators with 17 points, scored five of them in the decisive 18-6 run in the closing minutes.

John Williams scored 20 points for LSU, which fell to 16-3. The Tigers are 4-3 in the Southeastern Conference as are the Gators.

Top Ten No. 8 St. John's, with Walter Berry leading the way with 17 points, beat Fordham for the 16th straight time, 56-47, but Coach Lou Carnesecca was far from satisfied.

"You better believe I'm unhappy, my face tells it," Carnesecca said after the Redmen won their fourth straight game to raise their record to 18-2.

But it was the strategy of Fordham Coach Tom Penders — to use most of the 45-second clock — that kept the game close.

"You can't expect to beat the No. 8 team," Penders said after his Rams fell to 7-11. "We did the things we had to do."

The contest before 25,631 in the Carrier Dome, where Syracuse is 12-0 this season, followed road losses to Georgetown and Louisville. Syracuse improved to 14-2 overall and 5-1 in the conference while dropping the Friars to 9-8 and 1-5.

Lower oil prices may be shot in arm for economy

STEVEN P. ROSENFELD

ANALYSIS

NEW YORK — A sharp slide in crude oil prices promises a shot in the arm for the U.S. economy by creating jobs and putting more cash in consumers' pockets and corporate treasuries without fueling inflation.

Analysts say almost a million jobs could be created by increased economic growth and the typical American motorist could save more than $70 a year in gasoline for each $5 slide in the price of a barrel of oil.

Not everyone would benefit. Lower oil prices are bad news for the oil industry itself, companies and regions dependent on it and banks that have lent heavily to it and to oil-producing countries in the Third World.

But experts forecast that most oil producers, their suppliers and bankers could survive a sustained lower price for petroleum.

In markets where contracts for future delivery of oil are bought and sold, the price of a barrel of oil has plunged $5 in the past week and about $12 in the past two months.

In non-contract, or spot markets, major grades of U.S. and North Sea crude oil available on short notice both are hovering around $20 a barrel, a level last seen in 1979.

If the lower prices hold, and assuming the entire savings are passed on, the average price at the pump of all grades of gasoline could drop from $1.21 a gallon to $1.08 — a $70-a-year savings for the typical driver.

Electric utility customers also would benefit, and trucking companies and airlines would see their fuel costs drop.

But unlike the pre-1981 days of federal controls on oil prices, savings no longer are automatically passed on.

Complicating factors include the cost of meeting new federal standards for reducing lead in gasoline, competitive pressures, sweeping retrenchments in the industry that have decimated the number of refineries and a general reluctance in the industry to pass up potentially huge profits following multibillion-dollar refining losses in recent lean years.

Lower prices would have far-reaching implications. Petroleum is among the basic building blocks of the chemical industry, which uses it in fabrics, plastic grocery bags, tires, recordings and building materials.

Lower oil prices also would mean moderation in utility rates. Consolidated Edison, the electric utility serving metropolitan New York, said recently its bills in 1985 were $132 million lower than the previous year, even though customers used more power. Lower fuel costs were a key factor.

For the economy as a whole, growth would rise by an additional 2 percent within two years if oil fell to $20 a barrel, creating 900,000 new jobs, according to a study by Data Resources Inc., a consulting firm.

The most important impact of a drop in oil prices to the United States would be a reduction in the bill for imported oil, with each $5 a barrel drop chopping nearly $25 million a day from the nation's tab for foreign oil. That could cut $9 billion a year off the nation's trade deficit, which was closing in on $150 billion last year.

"That money is available for consumers and businesses to spend on other things," said Lawrence Chimerne, chairman of Chase Econometrics, a forecasting and consulting firm.

Unlike a tax cut, which also puts more income in the hands of individuals and corporations, falling oil prices stimulate spending without adding to inflation.

It was an explosion in oil prices in the 1970s that contributed to double-digit inflation and a crippling global economic slowdown.

Before lower prices filter through to consumers, however, pressures have grown for new federal taxes on imported oil.

The theory is that the tax would leave prices unchanged, meaning that the government could cut its record deficit without having to cut as deeply in social programs.

Britain under pressure to change its oil policy

New York Times News Service

LONDON — With oil prices dropping sharply, Britain is under increasing pressure to change both its energy policy and its economic plans.

For Britain, a major oil producer, the recent price slide has weakened the pound, pushed interest rates higher and threatened the government's hopes of stimulating the economy with politically popular tax cuts this year.

Slower growth and no tax cuts would certainly weaken the support for the government of Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, who has repeatedly promised that her free-market brand of economic management would bring Britain both growth and lower taxes.

Since last November, the price of the benchmark North Sea oil, Brent crude, has dropped from about $30 a barrel to under $20 a barrel, a six-year low. Economists say that $20-a-barrel oil and no tax reductions could chop growth in the fiscal year beginning in April from an expected 2 1/2 percent down to 1 1/2 percent.

But while Britain, like other oil-producing nations, stands to suffer from lower oil prices, many in the oil market consider its actions critical in determining whether world production remains high and prices continue to slide. In particular, the country is viewed by some analysts as being the principal target of Saudi Arabia's recent, unsettling moves.

Saudi Arabia has stepped up production and increased sales, flooding the world with oil and driving down petroleum prices. The Saudis, according to one London-based Middle East expert, view Britain's North Sea production as the key variable in bringing world oil production more in line with demand, which would improve OPEC's currently weakened stature in the marketplace.

Although it is the world's fifth-largest producer, Britain is an odd member of the oil club. It is not a member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and, unlike most of the non-OPEC exporters, it is an industrialized nation, politically aligned with the consumer nations.

The Thatcher government has maintained a free-enterprise policy toward North Sea oil production, refusing to participate in any production- or price-control schemes. The British government last year abolished the British National Oil Corp., a state-run company, a move that particularly irked the Saudis. ac-

ording to analysts,

The company's activities propped up oil prices, since it had the right to buy more than half of the North Sea production at fixed prices, typically above the spot-market rate, and then sell the oil back to the oil companies. The Thatcher government's move thus set in motion price cuts, at a time when the world oil markets were already softening.

"Now the Saudis are trying to throttle North Sea production, and they are going after Britain in particular," the Middle East specialist said.

The pressure on Britain increased Wednesday when Norway, the other major North Sea producer, signaled that it was ready to participate in a cutback effort, if other producers did as well. In a reversal of Norway's policy, Kare Kristiansen, oil and energy minister, said that his country now stood ready to join a drive to stabilize oil prices.

But, in an implicit reference to Britain, Kristiansen said: "There cannot be any measures if they aren't coordinated with similar measures from other non-OPEC producers."

The Thatcher government does not plan to change its hands-off policy towards North Sea production.

"It's a matter for the oil companies," a senior British official said today. "We don't interfere with them."

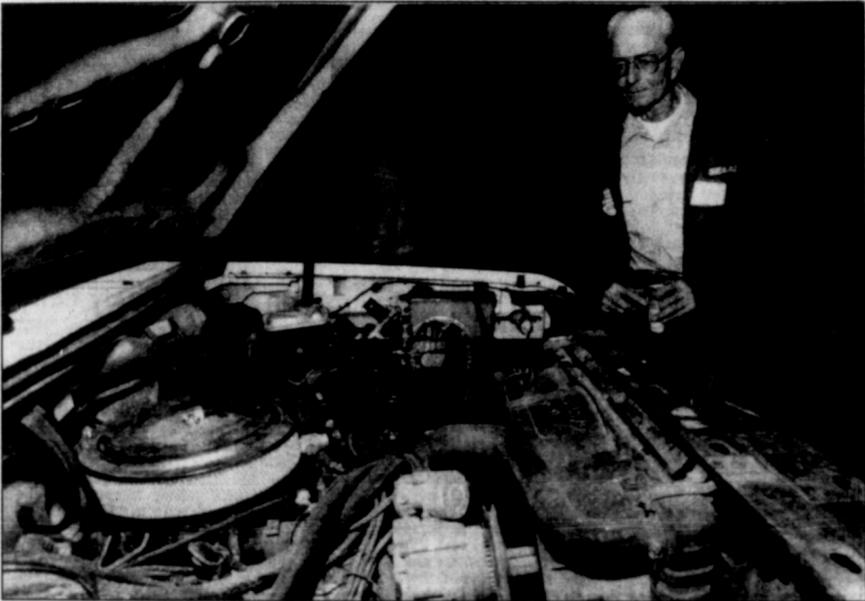

However, earlier this month, Britain's foreign secretary, Geoffrey Howe, met with the Saudis and said that follow-up meetings between Britain's energy secretary, Peter Walker, and Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, the Saudi Arabian oil minister, would be appropriate. A British government spokesman said Wednesday that no talks have been scheduled.

If such a session did take place, the Saudis would not come to the table empty handed. Saudi Arabia recently signed a letter of intent to purchase $4 billion worth of Tornado jet fighters from Britain.

But most analysts doubt that the Thatcher government will intervene to restrain North Sea production.

"In my view, there will be no direct action by the government to control production," said Richard Vernon, a senior analyst at Petroleum Economics Ltd., a London-based consulting firm. "But at a certain level, there is a coincidence of interest between the government and the oil companies."

At the current $20 price, according to Vernon, a production slowdown makes sense for both the companies and for the government.

Natural gas market could expand greatly this decade says expert

By JOHN PAUL PITTS
Business/Oil Editor

Over 150 attending a seminar on compressed natural gas Wednesday at Midland Center were told that natural gas was a here-and-now viable fuel option for fleet vehicles and the possible fuel of the future for consumers.

"Someday every automobile in the U.S. could be powered by compressed natural gas. We would have small compressors at home to fuel cars directly out of the gas line. It could be used even to power the lawnmower," said principal speaker Jeff Seisler, director of vehicle fuels for American Gas Association.

Seisler also said that natural gas was now being used to power ships and locomotives in pilot projects, and could be used in diesel engines with the proper equipment and blending of the two fuels.

He told the gathering that natural gas which costs about half the price of an equivalent of gasoline could remain competitive for years to come because of a surplus that is expected to last into the year 2010.

He said the fuel could remain competitive even longer if pricing ceilings were enacted. "The state of New York has told a utility company that it must sell natural gas for at least 35 cents per equivalent gallon than gasoline to keep the clean-burning fuel competitive as a vehicle fuel."

Seisler said utility companies were enthusiastic about the potential for natural gas, because one vehicle is the equivalent of one and a half homes. "It opens up a whole new market for them. They now see automobiles as rolling houses and potential customers." He said he expected the concept of compressed natural gas to takeoff as a truly commercial venture before the end of this decade.

"The government will play a strong role in the commercialization of CNG," said Seisler. He explained that government could create the cycle of events that could open the market: "There are approximately 293,000 government vehicles that could be converted today to natural gas. That would provide a strong enough market to prompt carmakers to manufacture a natural gas vehicle, and then once a manufactured vehicle was on the market more sales would be made and the demand for fuel would increase causing the installation of more fuel stations."

He added that the U.S. Postoffice, Air Force and several other government agencies were already investigating the feasibility of natural gas conversion for vehicles.

"The Russians are way ahead of us in this area. They will have a million vehicles to be converted to natural gas by 1990 with an extensive network of fueling stations in place," warned Seisler. "Compressed natural gas could play a strong role in America's national security by making us energy self-sufficient."

Chamber tries to increase airline activity

From Staff Reports

While economic conditions see-saw, airline boardings at Midland Regional Airport continue to climb, and Midland Chamber of Commerce officials are trying to increase these numbers even more.

Chamber directors reported at their meeting Wednesday that it has created the Commercial Air Task Force to put a packet together to attract new airlines to the airport. Ed Kerr of Exxon U.S.A. will head the committee.

In other business, President Joan Baskin appointed Darrel Pounds of First City National Bank to the Chamber board. He will replace Jim Everett of Petroplex Savings.

David Thayer, new director of the Bid Resource Center, presented a report to the Chamber. He said the new Permian Basin center has already received 24 clients before the center has officially opened for business.

"The response has been fantastic," he said. "The Beaumont center has brought $30 million to that area in a year and over 350 jobs. We're hoping that we can do the same."

The Permian Basin Bid Resource Center is a satellite of the Beaumont institution.

In addition, the Chamber approved a statement of receipts and disbursements for December 1985 and a financial report, compiled by Coopers and Lybrand, for fiscal year 1985.

The next meet of the Chamber board of directors is scheduled for February 26.

BUSINESS SCENE

Five businesses open, expand in Midland

By SUSAN LINDSAY

Business reports say there has never been a better time to start a business. At least a handful of Midlanders have taken this advice seriously, as five new businesses have opened or expanded in Midland.

INTERNATIONAL MERCANTILE has opened at 7803 E. Highway 80. The business sells town houses and condominiums in vacation places. The business opened January 15 by Tom and Gail Bryant.

TONY'S DELI has opened in the Northpark Shopping Center. The delicatessen, owned by Tony Pasoria and Anthony Santelli, sells Italian sandwiches as well as imported packaged Italian foods.

Another new business in the Northpark Shopping Center is CLETUS' HAIR AND SKIN CARE CENTER. The salon is a branch of the 1219 Midkiff location.

HEARTSTONE MINISTRIES has opened its doors at West Pecan and Pecos Streets, behind M System. This is an emergency shelter for children ages two to 17.

Located in the Courtyard at Midland Park is the SYLVAN LEARNING CENTER OF MIDLAND/ODESSA. The learning center, open since November 1, presents programs which help both adults and children improve reading skills.

Martha L. Lumpkin is director.

SOUTHWEST AIRLINES has been stepping up its service during the past year as the airline has purchased three Boeing 737-300 aircraft for delivery in June 1987.

The company currently has ten 737-300s on the fleet of 56 aircraft and will take delivery of seven more this year.

Herbert D. Kelleher, company president, said company and customer acceptance of the new aircraft during its first year of service has been enthusiastic. He said the company plans to order 25 more of the aircraft through 1989.

The end of Midland's high-fashion store will soon be closing. SAKOWITZ INC. has announced that it will shut down its Midland Park Mall location by the end of February.

The closings leave four Houston-area locations for the high-fashion specialty retailer, which is reorganizing under the protection of federal bankruptcy laws.

Since filing for protection from its creditors in August, the 83-year-old, family-owned business has sold stores in Amarillo and Tulsa and closed two Houston locations. Trade reports pegged the company's losses at $2 million on sales of about $120 million in 1984 at the time of the filing.

A seminar entitled "Today's Best Tax Saving Investment Ideas" will be given at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Training Room of the First City Tower 2.

The free seminar will be presented by Jim Cox of SHEARSON LEHMAN BROTHERS. The session will include discussion about retirement planning, tax reinvesting and tax-free single premiums.

EXPLORATION HIGHLIGHTS

Irion discovery pumps 55 barrels

From Staff Reports

Irion County gained an undesignated discovery, immediately north of the Mertzson West field, and west of the Santa Crista field.

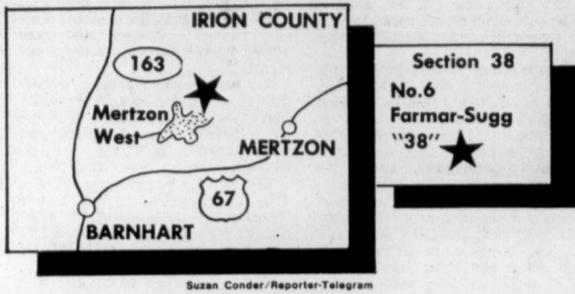

QED EXPLORATION, INC., Denver, Colo., potentiated the No. 6 Farmar-Sugg "38" to pump 55 barrels of 35.7 gravity crude and 37 barrels of water from perforations 2,044 to 2,045 ft., natural production. Gas-oil ratio is 18:1.

Planned as a 2,100 ft. wildcat, the well reached a total depth of 2,300 ft., with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 2,272 ft.

The well topped the San Angelo at 2,535 ft. on elevation of 2,535 ft.

Location is 669 ft. from south and 729 ft. from west lines of section 38, Block 1, H&TC survey, four miles northwest of Mertzson.

The company has a second wildcat, the No. 11 Farmar-Sugg "21" drilling approximately four miles northeast of the new discovery.

Susan Conder/Reporter-Telegram

BEN J. FORTSON, Fort Worth, re-entered and plugged back the No. 1 Mikeeska to pump 33 barrels of 46.6 gravity crude and two barrels of oil from perforations 5,319 to 5,336 ft., natural production. Gas-oil ratio is 758:1.

Scheduled as a 6,440 ft. wildcat workover, the well was plugged back to 5,860 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 1,853 ft., include the Palo Pinto at 4,563 ft., Strawn at 5,190, Ellenburger at 5,946, and Cambrian Sand at 6,260 ft.

Location is 467 ft. from north and 1,500 ft. from west lines of Section 96, Block 11, SPRR survey, two miles southeast of San Angelo.

March Exploration Co., Dallas, originally completed the well to pump 15 barrels of 48 gravity crude and 119 barrels of water from perforations 5,975 to 6,018 ft.

ratio is 24.421:1, and condensate gravity was 53.1 API.

Scheduled as a 10,400 ft. wildcat, the well reached a total depth of 10,300 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, and plugged back to 10,213 ft.

Formation tops, on ground elevation of 2,466 ft., include the Wolfcamp at 6,150 ft., Pennsylvanian Lime at 7,180, Bend at 7,930, Devonian at 8,670, Fusselman at 9,428, and the Ellenburger at 10,145 ft.

Location is 1,667 ft. from north and 2,100 ft. from east lines of Section 6, Block A, MK&T survey, seven miles southwest of Rankin.

660 ft. from east lines of Section 4, Block R-3, GC&SF survey, 24 miles north of Sanderson.

Spraberry Trend gets three new producers

Infield drilling continues in the Spraberry Trend area of Martin County, with three Midland operators completing wells in the field.

COSTEX RESOURCES, INC. potentiated the No. 3 George W. Glass "21", located in Section 21 of Block 38, T-1-N, T&P survey, to pump 192 barrels of 39.5 gravity crude, 220 Mcfd and eight barrels of water from perforations 9,077 to 9,083 ft.

JOHN L. COX finalized the No. 3 J.N. Woody, located in Section 38 of Block 37, T-2-N, T&P survey, to pump 73 barrels of 38 gravity crude, 78 Mcfd, and 24 barrels of water from perforations 8,187 to 9,179 ft.

PARKER & PARSLEY PETROLEUM CO. tested the No. 1 Glasscock "A", located in Section 44, Block 37, T-1-N, T&P survey, to pump 25 barrels of 39.1 gravity crude, 15 Mcfd and 125 barrels of water from perforations 7,451 to 9,045 ft.

Pasadena firm final six barrel discovery

PETRO HI-TECH, INC., Pasadena, completed a small Leonard discovery in Borden County, between the Reinecke and Double J fields.

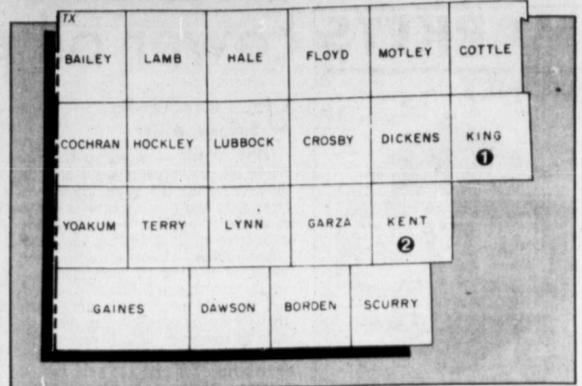

On potential test, the No. 168 J.G. Davis pumped six barrels of 27 gravity crude and three barrels of water from perforations 4,617 to 4,623 ft. The perforations were acidized with 1,500 gallons of acid. Gas-oil ratio was 167:1.

Drilled to 6,781 ft., the well was plugged back to 4,677 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 6,767 ft.

The well topped the Leonard at 3,150 ft., and the Canyon Reef at 6,788 ft. on elevation of 2,273 ft. Pay was topped at 3,150 ft.

WILDCATS

TRC DISTRICT 8A

1. KENT WILDCAT SET NEAR GIRARD. John L. Cox will drill its No. 1 Swenson-Lowe in Kent County, 19 miles west of Girard.

Location is 1,980 ft. from south and east lines of Section 10, Block B, PSL survey. Proposed depth is 6,400 ft.

2. SAN ANTONIO FIRM SCHEDULES KING COUNTY TEST. Delray Oil, Inc., San Antonio, will drill its No. 1-A W.A. Springer et al in King County, 14 miles southeast of Guthrie.

Location is 1,400 ft. from north and 467 ft. from west lines of Section 127, Block F, H&TC survey, and 14 miles southeast of Guthrie. Contract depth is set at 3,800.

Jennings discovery pumps 81 barrels oil

SANDS OPERATING CO., INC., Abilene, completed a Jennings discovery in Runnels County, south of the Winters Southwest field.

The company completed the discovery to pump 81 barrels of 37 gravity crude and no water from perforations 4,353 to 4,356 ft. The interval was acidized with 100 gallons acid. Gas-oil ratio is 432:1.

The well reached a total depth of 4,871 ft. and was plugged back to 4,380 ft., with 4 1/2 inch casing set at 4,500 ft.

The well topped the Jennings Sand at 4,348 ft., Gardner Sand at 4,386, and Jennings Lime at 4,200 ft. on ground elevation of 1,838 ft.

Location is 540 ft. from south and 1,843 ft. from west lines of Section 41, HT&B survey, eight miles southwest of Winters.

Tom Green re-entry yields 33 barrel find

A workover in Tom Green County has yielded a Strawn discovery, just inside the Floyd G. Miller field.

Bend gas production opened in Upton field

The Taylor Draw field of Upton County gained Bend gas production with completion of TERRA RESOURCES, INC., Midland, No. 3 Taylor, a location west-northwest of the Bend opener, and a west, slightly north extension of the field.

On potential test, the well flowed a calculated absolute open flow of 2.6 Mmcfd from perforations 8,112 to 8,122 ft. The interval was acidized with 500 gallons of acid. Gas-liquid

Shell tests producer in Pecos County field

Development continues in the Thistle field of Pecos County, with SHELL WESTERN EXPLORATION & PRODUCTION, INC. completing the No. 408 Downie Ranch.

Shell tested the well to pump 76 barrels of 24.8 gravity crude, 31 Mcfd and no water from perforations 1,748 to 1,850 ft. The interval was acidized with 2,400 gallons 15 percent NeFe acid. Gas-oil ratio is 408:1.

Drilled to 3,000 ft., where 5 1/2 inch casing was set, the well was plugged back to 2,954 ft.

The well topped the Base Cretaceous at 810 ft., Caballos at 1,720, and the Ordovician at 1,850 ft. Pay was topped at 1,748 ft.

Location is 4,780 ft. from south and

Coastal completes the purchase of terminals

HOUSTON (SWN) — The Coastal Corporation said it has completed the purchase of five Texaco Marketing Terminals and Texaco's interests in a refined products pipeline, significantly expanding the geographic coverage of its Belcher Oil marketing subsidiaries. Coastal's Belcher Oil subsidiaries are major distributors of petroleum products on the eastern seaboard and Gulf Coast.

The Texaco terminals, which have total storage capacity of 3.8 million barrels of refined products, include a deep water terminal in South Boston. Other terminals are located in Binghamton and Newburgh, New York; Chelsea, Massachusetts and Jacksonville, Florida.

Champion receives letter of intent to purchase

OKLAHOMA CITY (SWN) — Champion Reserve Corporation, a publicly traded Oklahoma City based energy firm, has entered into formal discussions for the purchase of a controlling interest of the firm by a Tulsa based investment group headed by Martin A. Vaughan, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer of Fortuna Energy Corporation based in Tulsa, Oklahoma.

The proposal will be submitted to the stockholders of Champion Reserve for approval Champion officials said.

Vaughan indicated that if the transaction is consummated, his first priority would be to develop a capital base that would support a program of growth and development of existing properties.

John C. Roberts, President of Champion Reserve, indicates management at Champion supports the proposal. "It would give the company an enviable financial base from which to expand," he said.

A letter of intent has been presented to Champion Reserve Corporation by investor Vaughan and his group following several months of negotiations between parties. If a firm offer results after appropriate reviews,

John C. Roberts, President of Champion Reserve, indicates management at Champion supports the proposal. "It would give the company an enviable financial base from which to expand," he said.

Rosewood, Valero announce Lake Washington discovery

SAN ANTONIO (SWN) Rosewood Resources of Dallas, Texas, and Valero Producing Company, a subsidiary of Valero Energy Corporation (NYSE:VLO), jointly announce a recently completed new pool discovery in the Lake Washington field of Plaquemines Parish, Louisiana. A steep development well has confirmed the discovery and will be completed in the immediate future.

Drilled on a Valero prospect, Rosewood-Valero et al's State Lease 10854 No. 1 tested at 1,438 barrels of 35 degree API gravity oil per day through a 24/64 inch choke. Flowing wellhead pressure was 1,000 psi and associated gas was produced at a rate of 487 cubic feet per barrel. Perforations are in the interval 12,224 feet to 12,254 feet.

The confirmation well, Rosewood-Valero et al Louisiana Land & Exploration No. 1, located approximately 2,500 feet from the discovery encountered the producing reservoir and is currently drilling to a greater depth. Completion operations will commence in the immediate future and additional development drilling will be conducted during 1986. Rosewood Resources as operator has a 35 percent interest. Valero Producing 27.5 percent. Other owners include Japex (U.S.) Corp. 12.5 percent, Black-Chapell; 12.5 percent and Albert Alkek 12.5 percent.

Midland oilman refuses to plug Scurry oil well

By STEVE LEVINE
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A Midland oilman's refusal to plug a Scurry County oil well will cost the state about $10,000, the Texas Railroad Commission charged Tuesday.

Commission records indicate that Jerry D. Nickell of Midland, operator of a 6,700-foot deep well near Snyder in Scurry County, has not complied with a June 1985 commission order to plug the well. Commission investigators have found that the well has leaked salt water and threatens a nearby freshwater stream that flows through Snyder.

Since September 1983, the commission has collected an extra $100 from every oil and gas drilling application. That money will pay the estimated $10,000 cost of plugging the Nickell well.

Commission spokesman Ray Grasshoff said the commission has referred the case to Attorney General Jim Mattox for prosecution.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE
Buying penny stocks poses great risks

By BILL DOYLE

Q. A publication to which I subscribe previews new issues of penny stocks. I became interested in a stock with an offering price of one cent per share. I telephoned the brokerage firm listed as underwriter and was told the stock would open in about a week or two and that the opening price would be between two and four cents a share.

I do understand there is high risk in penny stocks, but I can afford to take the gamble. Nevertheless, I am curious about having to pay two or four cents for a stock offered for sale at one cent. What is the reason for this?

A. If what you were told comes true—and that's a very large if—the reason will be you and other gamblers are willing to pay double or quadruple that stock's initial offering price, in hopes that it will go even higher, so that you can sell at a profit.

On Wall Street, that's known as "The Greater Fool Theory"—meaning dingbats who buy at an inflated price hope to find some meateaths who are willing to pay even more.

When a new issue of stock is first offered for sale by a brokerage firm or a group of brokerages acting as underwriters, it has a set price. If you buy at the offering, you pay the offering price.

Assuming the underwriting is successful and all the shares are sold, the stock then trades in the marketplace. At that point, its price might be higher or lower price than the offering price. So, after the underwriting is completed, you pay whatever price prevails.

In your case, it's obvious the brokerage firm you called wasn't able to sell that stock to you through the new offering. But, acting as market-maker for that stock that brokerage firm would be only too happy to sell some to you, at a higher price, after the underwriting is completed.

It's a good thing you realize the high risk in penny stocks. If you buy that item, you might not be able to locate a greater fool on whom to unload.

Q. Are new issues of penny stocks traded on the New York, American and regional stock exchanges?

A. No. After their initial offerings through underwriters, stocks—penny or higher priced—almost always trade in the over-the-counter market. It's a rare case for a new issue to go immediately to stock exchange listing.

Q. Are stocks trading at $1 and $2 a share considered to be penny stocks?

A. These days, they are. In years past, the term "penny stock" was applied to those trading below $1. Because of inflation, that name now is laid on stocks trading below $5.

Q. You told a reader who couldn't find a stock he owns listed in any newspaper to "ask a broker if there's a price quote in the Pink Sheets, which are published daily by the National Quotations Bureau and distributed to brokerage firms."

I spent 37 years on Wall Street, New York City, N.Y., and take issue with your answer. The Pink Sheets you mentioned are for stocks in the eastern area of the country. What are the colors for the Midwest and West?

A. Pink, because there's only one version of that daily publication. Those quotation sheets don't come in regional editions. Didn't you bother to even look at the Pink Sheets during all your years on the Street?

Q. I am an investor not a broker but I would like to keep track of the prices of a number of small company stocks, none of which are listed in any publication I can find. Can I subscribe to the Pink Sheets?

A. No. The National Quotations Bureau sells Pink Sheet subscriptions only to brokerage firms that make markets in over-the-counter securities and to some law firms. The Pink Sheets are about as thick as a medium-sized city telephone directory.

You can buy one page for $3. Other than that, the Pink Sheets are not available to investors. However, any company whose stock is listed in the Pink Sheets can get a daily copy of the page with that listing, for an annual $12 charge.

Analysts say U.S. economic growth slower than expected

Associated Press
The U.S. economy grew by 2.3 percent in 1985, the slowest since the recession year of 1982, and retail prices rose 3.8 percent, a double-barreled foreshadowing of another year of sluggish growth, economists say.

"We think 1986 will be a continuation of the pattern we had in 1985," said Lawrence Chimerine, president of Chase Econometrics, a private forecasting firm based in Bala Cynwyd, Pa. "There is no danger of a recession, but we're not likely to see an economic boom either."

The government's report Wednesday on the Gross National Product showed a slower growth rate than had been predicted, economists said. The retail prices report was the fourth successive year they were held to 4 percent or lower.

Meanwhile, the plunge in crude oil prices slowed, but still ended up mostly lower, down 17 percent over the past week.

Stocks declined broadly on Wall Street, where traders dwelled on the potentially harmful consequences of weak oil prices. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed at 1,502.29, down 12.16 from Tuesday's closing level.

In a separate report, the Labor Department said the average weekly earnings of Americans, after adjusting for inflation, rose 0.7 percent in December as increases in hourly earnings and the number of hours worked offset the 0.4 percent rise in consumer prices.

For the year, however, average "real" weekly earnings were down 0.7 percent as hourly earnings rose by 3.2 percent but the average number of hours worked dropped 0.3 percent.

The Labor Department said its Consumer Price Index of 3.8 percent would have been lower had it not been for a bulge in energy and food prices in November and December.

The index, which is based on the prices for a variety of goods and services that people buy for day-to-day living, was 4 percent in 1984, 3.8 percent in 1983 and 3.9 percent in 1982 — well below a high of 13.3 percent in 1979.

For December, consumer prices rose 0.4 percent, slower than the 0.6 percent rise in November but a bit ahead of the year's average monthly increase of 0.3 percent, the department said.

Personal income rises 1.4 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — American's personal income rose 1.4 percent in December, the biggest increase in almost two years, while personal spending shot up 2 percent, the fastest clip in more than a decade, the government reported today.

The Commerce Department said the rise in personal consumption spending was its best performance since a 2.5 percent rise in May 1975.

While the big gain in spending outpaced the rise in income, the 1.4 percent earnings increase was still the best performance since a 1.5 percent rise in January 1984.

The report on personal finances served to underscore the fact that the economy staged a major revival in December.

The government earlier had reported that unemployment in December dipped to its lowest level since early 1980 while retail sales, industrial production and housing construction all posted big gains.

Economists are divided, however, over whether these economic barometers signal only a temporary upturn in the country's economic fortunes or mark the long-awaited revival from the sluggish growth the country has been mired in since the summer of 1984.

The Commerce Department reported Wednesday that economic growth, as measured by the gross national product, slipped to a 2.4 percent rate in the final three months of the year. Many analysts believe that accurately reflects the underlying strength in the economy.

The Reagan administration, however, is confidently predicting that growth this year will hit 4 percent, well above the 2.3 percent turned in for all of 1985.

The more pessimistic economists point to the fact that Americans are now carrying record debt burdens and this is likely to cause them to slow their spending pace in coming months.

Since consumer spending accounts for two-thirds of GNP activity, such a slowdown would be a major drag on the economy.

For December, with spending rising faster than incomes, the personal savings rate dipped to 3.7 percent, down from 4.2 percent in November but still above the all-time low of 2.8 percent set in September.

For the year, the savings rate averaged 4.6 percent, the lowest since a 3.9 percent rate in 1949.

The low savings rate resulted from the fact that Americans' spending outpaced their income gains last year.

Personal income rose 5.9 percent last year but personal consumption spending was up 8.6 percent. Both these figures represented declines from 1984, when personal income shot up by 9.7 percent while personal spending rose by 8.7 percent.

Disposable, or after-tax, income rose a modest 4.9 percent in 1985. This was sharply down from the 10.1 percent increase in 1984 and was in fact the smallest rise in disposable income since a 4.2 percent gain in 1961.

Part of the reason for the weak gain in disposable income was a big rise in personal tax payments last year, an 11.6 percent increase that was the largest since a 15.5 percent rise in 1981.

For December, the 1.4 percent rise in incomes was almost three times faster than the 0.5 percent November gain.

By category, wages and salaries rose at a strong annual rate of 18.9 billion in December with one of the strongest performances coming from a $4.4 billion increase in manufacturing payrolls after a decline to $400 million in November.

Travel agents reluctant to book Eastern

MIAMI (AP) — Some travel agents are cautioning clients to avoid Eastern Airlines even though the financially troubled carrier still has five weeks to avert a strike by its flight attendants.

"The labor situation there makes the future too unsettled, so there's no way we can book Eastern," said Leo Bridges, of Exclusively Cruises in Miami.

Leaders of the flight attendants union have said they will continue to negotiate with Eastern until March 1 and possibly strike then. That is one day after the deadline Eastern's creditors have given the carrier to make major cuts in labor costs or face technical default on $2.5 billion in loans.

However, some agents say they doubt Eastern will be able to maintain all its regularly scheduled flights after Feb. 3 when the airline plans to layoff 1,010 flight attendants, leaving some 6,000 with increased duties.

"It's not that we don't want to book Eastern, but we can't take a chance and jeopardize our clients," said Mary Aiello, a travel consultant at Universal Tours. "We will still put passengers on Eastern, but their credibility has gone so low that we're saying if we can find a better way, we'll do it."

However, other travel agents profess confidence in Miami-based Eastern and will continue reserving flights until a strike.

"I have 100 percent confidence in them," said Joseph Russo, of All Points Travel and Tour Agency Inc. in Miami. "I'm sure they've done enough planning to take care of passengers."

"Clients ask me if I'm worried and I say, 'I don't think anything is going to happen,'" said Luisa Montoya, of Worldwide Travel in Little Havana. "I have a lot of confidence in Eastern's management."

Eastern officials said there has been no decline in reservations.

"Reservations are continuing to be strong," said company spokesman Jerry Coslew.

Beaumont Council could vote to roll back electricity rates

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — The Beaumont City Council may vote next month on whether to join other Southeast Texas communities that have rolled back rates Gulf States Utilities charges local customers for electricity.

Many Gulf States customers are unhappy because they are paying more for their power than the utility's Louisiana ratepayers.

City Council members conducted a public hearing Tuesday on Gulf States' rates, and Councilman Joe Dehotel said the panel will probably vote in about two weeks on whether to cut the rates.

The cities of Port Arthur, Port Neches and Groves have passed rollbacks to Gulf States rates and Vidor officials are considering similar action. Gulf States officials have said they will appeal the rollbacks to the Texas Public Utility Commission.

Texas residential customers of Gulf States paid $85.35 for 1,000 kilowatt hours of electricity last month, compared to the $68.42 Louisiana residents paid for the same amount of power.

Gulf States' commercial customers in Texas also pay higher rates than those in Louisiana.

Gene Darst, an electrical contractor who appeared at the hearing, said he thinks it is unfair that Louisiana customers pay lower rates than Texans.

Midland to host West Texas Cancer Conference

Inns to offer free lodging for out-of-town cancer patients

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

Following a national trend toward providing housing for patients who must go to another community for treatment, Allison Cancer Center and two local hotels have initiated a patient lodging program.

"The program is designed for those patients who come from out of town who need treatment at Allison," said spokesman Bob Bregant. "When you go in for treatment, it's every day for two to seven weeks. Obviously there's a need."

The idea was borrowed from similar programs set up in Austin and El Paso which have proved to work well, said Bregant. Two local hotels, Holiday Inn Country Villa and Ramada Inn, have agreed to provide lodging for visiting patients.

"Allison sent letters to every hotel in town and several responded offering reduced rates," said Bregant. "But both Holiday Inn and Ramada offered to provide free lodging, so we felt that should be our standard."

Spokesmen for the hotels have expressed enthusiasm for the project.

"If there's any way we can help another growing business diversity, then it certainly can't hurt us," said Nikki Dancy, regional director of sales for Holiday Inn.

Ms. Dancy stated that while Holiday Inn had received no patient visitors yet, they were ready for them.

"We will provide transportation (hotel van) and whatever type of room they need," she said. "Obviously I can't give them a suite, but we will try to do whatever we can do to make it easier for them."

Ms. Dancy discussed the possibility of including a training program for staff members to help them with the emotional and physical needs of the visiting cancer patient.

"We haven't set up anything definite yet, but we may try to have a one-day session or something like that," she said.

More than 100 physicians, allied health professionals, vendors, university members and community health department representatives are meeting Friday and Saturday for the West Texas Cancer Conference.

Participants will hear leading professionals in cancer treatment, according to Allison Cancer Center spokesman Bob Bregant.

"They are all considered top experts in oncology," he said. Two speakers are from M.D. Anderson Hospital in Houston, "considered the number one cancer clinic in the world."

Other speakers are from the National Cancer Institute, University of California at Los Angeles, and the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn.

The two-day conference, held at The Midland Hilton, is designed to "present current information on the care and treatment of cancer patients," said an Allison report. "During the 1986 conference, leading oncologists will present sessions focusing on breast, colorectal, lung and gynecological cancer."

The sessions will offer open forums for discussion geared toward oncologists, surgeons, internists, other practitioners and allied health professionals; provide information in three areas of treatment — surgical intervention, medical oncology and radiation oncology and include expert presentations on the most current methods and techniques of treating oncology patients.

Scharbauer, Schley honored by Jaycees for contributions

The Rev. Joseph H. "Buddy" Schley Jr., left, and Chris Scharbauer were honored Wednesday night at the Midland Jaycees 29th Annual Distinguished Service Award and Bosses Night Banquet.

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

After Midlander Chris Scharbauer paid tribute to the Midland Jaycees Wednesday night for its contribution to the 1985 Midland Centennial celebration, the Jaycees returned the gesture and presented Scharbauer with the Annual Distinguished Service Award for 1986.

The Distinguished Service Award is presented annually by the Midland Jaycees to a young person — ages 18 to 35 — in recognition of his or her contribution to the community and profession. The recipient is selected by a committee consisting of local civic, religious and business leaders.

About 100 Jaycees and guests attended the Jaycees 29th Annual Distinguished Service Award and Bosses Night Banquet at Midland Center.

Scharbauer, a native Midlander and member of the Midland pioneer family, is manager of ranching with Scharbauer Cattle Company where he oversees the operation of active cattle and sheep ranches in West Texas and New Mexico.

Planned Parenthood fears Texans losing abortion rights

By RAMONA NYE
Staff Writer

As pro-life demonstrators protested across the country, including in Midland, Planned Parenthood officials here warned Wednesday that Texans are in danger of losing the right to unrestricted abortions.

Wednesday marked the 13th anniversary of the Roe vs. Wade Supreme Court decision that made abortions legal nationwide. No time restrictions are placed on abortions in Texas, while other states have passed restrictions limiting abortions to the first and second trimester of pregnancy.

"We don't want to see any restrictions, because we don't know that woman's circumstances," said Dana Frazee, executive director of Planned Parenthood of the Permian Basin.

A majority of Americans support the right to an abortion, Ms. Frazee said, but few are as vocal as the opposition.

"I feel that the majority of Americans are going to have to start speaking out," Ms. Frazee said.

"Other people who have been quiet on the issue have to vote," she said.

Pro-choice people also need to write and meet with their legislators, she said, because politicians usually only hear from pro-life advocates.

Jan Foust, president of Planned Parenthood's board of directors, said, "People that are for something aren't as vocal and as active as the people who want change."

Ms. Frazee said the opposition to abortion and Planned Parenthood in West Texas is small, but very vocal.

A group of Midland pro-life members protested the Supreme Court ruling with a candlelight vigil Wednesday night outside the Federal Building.

Abortions are not performed at the Midland or regional Planned Parenthood clinics. Contraceptives and checkups are given at the clinics.

West Texans' access to contraceptives also may be in danger, unless the federal Title X family planning program is reauthorized this spring, said Pam Black, community relations director at Planned Parenthood. Twenty-nine percent of the funding or about $210,000 could be lost, she said.

If Congress cuts Title X funding in February, the Permian Basin Planned Parenthood program may have to close outlying programs in smaller communities, she said.

Abortions need to be reduced, Ms. Frazee said, through easily available contraceptives, teen sex education programs and increased involvement of men in family planning.

Midlander could face life in prison for burglary, assault conviction

By MARK LEWIS

A Midland jury was expected to consider punishment today for a 24-year-old man convicted Wednesday of breaking into a house on Sept. 25, 1984, and attacking his ex-girlfriend with a machete.

Lenn Charles Lee faces a penalty range of five to 99 years or life in prison after being convicted of burglary of a habitation with intent to commit aggravated assault. Prosecutors plan to recommend the maximum sentence, Assistant District Attorney Chuck Roades said this morning.

Lee is not eligible for probation because he was convicted of second-degree murder in California in 1979. He also faces a murder charge in Fort Worth, as well as several lesser charges in Midland. Prosecutors were waiting to see what the 142nd District Court jury gave Lee today before deciding whether to try him on the lesser charges or send him directly to Fort Worth to be tried for murder.

Lee took the stand Wednesday to dispute his ex-girlfriend Brenda Alexander's version of events. She had testified Tuesday that he kicked in the door of her aunt's house at 110 E. Cedar in the early morning hours of Sept. 25, 1984, and hacked at her with a machete after first slashing her cousin Kenneth.

"Somebody injured them," conceded defense attorney Jeffrey Hinkley during his closing arguments. "The question is, who?"

Hinkley said there was no physical evidence, such as a machete or fingerprints, to link Lee to the scene. He suggested Ms. Alexander identified Lee to police because she had been seeing other men.

"She wants to get rid of him," Hinkley said. "What motive did Lenn have to go over there and chop up those people?"

First Assistant District Attorney David Rosado told the jury Lee's motive was anger over Ms. Alexander's calling the police after a fight they had earlier that evening.

Sheriff's Office first class of reserves begins its service

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

The Midland County Sheriff's Office formally welcomed its first class of reserve deputies into the ranks Wednesday night with a graduation ceremony at the Allison Fine Arts Center auditorium at Midland College.

"It's a very proud moment for our department," said Chief Deputy Jim Chancellor, who runs the reserve program. "I thank you for a job well done."

Actually, the 20 graduating reserves have already begun their active service, along with four reserves who were already trained and certified when they signed on. But Wednesday's ceremony served as their official welcome to the department.

"You're entering on a milestone that has never been done in Midland County," Midland Sheriff Gary Painter told the assembled reserves and their families.

The idea behind the reserve program is to relieve the department's chronic manpower shortage by allowing interested, qualified citizens to act as part-time deputies. After graduating from a training program at the Permian Basin Regional Law Enforcement Academy (which they paid for themselves, along with their uniforms, handguns and equipment), the reserves were assigned to relieve regular officers in the communications room and the county jail.

The 24 deputies must put in at least eight hours per month in those two areas, but can volunteer any amount of time beyond that in other areas, such as patrol. Chancellor said the 24 deputies have been averaging about 460 combined hours per month, which is almost like adding four full-time deputies to the 61-officer staff without paying any extra salaries.

"It's freed up our regular officers to do work in other areas," said Painter, who initiated the program a year ago.

The reserve deputies put in most of their hours at night and on the weekends, when they aren't at their regular jobs. They receive no salary for the time they devote to the Sheriff's Office.

Midland District Attorney Al Schorre, the featured speaker, made the graduation ceremony sound more like an induction ceremony as he welcomed the reserves as new recruits in the war against crime.

"In Texas, one out of 17 citizens is going to be a victim of a crime," said Schorre, who described the reserve deputies as "our minutemen in the war against crime."

The district attorney said community involvement in crime prevention is a key to reversing rising crime rates.

"Slowly the word is going out in the community that we have a problem, that we know we have a problem, and that we can get it licked," he said. "Without citizens and community involvement, we're not going to win the war."

Schorre said the reserves should be counted with groups such as Mothers Against Drunk Driving and Neighbors Against Burglaries and Drugs as examples of citizen participation in law-enforcement.

"I think the pendulum is finally starting to swing, and you all are part of it," he said.

"In the U.S., there is no closer-knit family than the law-enforcement family, and we wholeheartedly welcome you into it."

Reasons people choose their chosen profession

Why do people do what they do? For instance, why be a journalist, reporter, editor or purveyor of Rag-Time News? The pay certainly is not compellingly persuasive. So, there must be a higher calling. Are the journalists, those who report and occasionally distort the news, such idealists that they think they can bring about social change to reform the world merely by telling the readers what's going on and interpreting it. Now, that's real vanity. Or, do news-types sustain their egos by seeing their works and names in print or broadcast via radio and television? Perhaps the journalist as a reporter, writer or editor enjoys the language and is fascinated by the marvel and nuances of words. Our language, bastardized as it often is, survives in an intelligible form. And despite bro-mides and misuses, it still is able to convey ideas and thoughts reasonably faithfully if we strive to be specific, clear and somewhat concise.

Why be a lawyer? The reason is obvious: to be a bastion of justice and human rights while strutting on that stage called the courtroom. Besides, the fees sometimes are exorbitant. And if there is a generous contingency on a multi-million-dollar judgment, the winning lawyer suddenly can enjoy "country-gentleman" status and hob-nob with the newly rich gentry.

Judge? You can tell the lawyers where to go without being offensive and in a dignified way.

Physician? Cure the sick and heal the lame. Besides, the pay is good to excellent to staggering — particularly if you're licensed to cut and suture. Surgeons are highly skilled body mechanics.

Schoolteacher? Well, there are those three-month summer vacations. The teacher, principal and superintendent can play the role of scholar, dictator and creator of pets and favorites. The teacher has the privilege of fretting loudly over his chosen field and begging that he not be tested for proficiency while he regular tests and rates his students.

Fireman. Where else can you be paid a school teacher's or policeman's salary while just waiting for the siren to blast. Of course, there's volleyball to play, chrome to polish and fire-fighting, life-saving and property-saving techniques to learn. It's a good field if you enjoy sirens, can tolerate smoke and enjoy putting out fires.

Minister. Here, we are careful out of fear of blaspheming. But we must be aware that no preacher can de-patch any of us of to hell or heaven. Some can talk up a storm. What some, particularly the television and radio evangelists, do is "preach" enthusiastically without bothering to delve into Scripture or The Gospel. They appreciate your support and "love offerings."

Peace officer. You can shoot from the hip without drawing at all. "You might not respect me, mister, but you'd better respect my firearm and badge."

Farmer and rancher. Well, there are lots of wide-open spaces and debts to cover, freedom to roam your land and toil without a slave-master cracking the whip...until the banker threatens to foreclose.

Counselor. You can talk with other people about their emotional problems without directly addressing yours.

Accountant. Like a mathematician, the accountant slips from not-so-absolute words to precise figures, which he then tries to convert to words and reason, which his client may not understand.

Oil operator. First, you try your luck as a geologist, engineer, roughneck, tool pusher, landman or investor. If you can survive the dry holes, marginal wells, petered-out gushers and tropy-turvy prices, you might get into The Petroleum Club and eventually get your debts paid off or absolved in bankruptcy. Just reflect on those days when the risk-taking oil operator had a fair shot at becoming a millionaire.

Airline captain. Good pay for flying a bus.

Actor, artist, poet. Each interprets life without having to live on the thoroughfares.

G-man. You can always tell your critics and upstarts: "Now, if J. Edgar Hoover were still in control, America would be no wimp." The problem with Mr. Hoover was that he turned out to be mortal.

Scientist, researcher, philosopher: High and mighty.

Secretary. You can observe the blunders and graces of your boss and marvel over how some people climbed the ladder of success.

Drifter. You can tell how the world should be conducted.

Politician. The trick is to justify your own blunders and pork-barrel.

Rich dude: Do as you please, thank you.

Ms. Alexander's doctor testified Tuesday that she will never regain full use of the last two fingers on her left hand, which were slashed to the bone that night. The seven-woman, five-man jury deliberated about 2 1/2 hours before returning a guilty verdict about 8 p.m. Wednesday. Hinkley made a motion to sequester the jury because local news reports had mentioned that Lee was under indictment for murder in Fort Worth, but Judge Pat Baskin denied the motion. He recessed the trial until this morning after asking the jurors to avoid local newspapers and television newscasts.

"There's no real area of emphasis," said Bregant. "We're covering every aspect of cancer treatment." He added that there will be several presentations on breast cancer. According to Bregant and Debra Georgas, also of Allison, the conference, held previously in June 1984, is comparable to if not better than others held in the state. "There are about 40 cancer centers statewide," said Bregant. "The speakers we have are all about the best you can get in the nation. We are a national conference." Participants will be health professionals and physicians from Amarillo, Lubbock, Austin, New Mexico and surrounding communities, Bregant said. Ms. Georges compared this conference to the Central Texas Cancer Symposium she attended two years ago in Austin and "our speakers our better," she said. While many areas of treatment will be discussed, the conference will not include "heavy research or experimental procedures (interferon for example)," said Bregant. Bregant has high hopes for the conference. "We would like to start hosting the conference annually," he said. Teacher convicted in death

ODESSA (AP) — A Lubbock teacher convicted of murder in the death of his wife, whose head and hands were found buried in the couple's backyard, was sentenced to 50 years in prison. Arthur Lee MacLeod was convicted and sentenced Wednesday after a week of court testimony that focused on the couple's stormy relationship and MacLeod's intent and state of mind the night he strangled and dismembered his wife, Evelyn Feather MacLeod. Jurors deliberated for more than three hours before handing down the 50-year prison term Wednesday night. MacLeod, who was also fined $10,000, had asked jurors to give him probation because he said he wanted to try and stop others from making the same mistake he did. The trial included testimony concerning the mental health and psychological histories of the defendant and the victim. On Monday, MacLeod admitted

Ms. Dancy, however, stated that Holiday Inn would "give them two rooms on a given night if that's what they needed." "This is a community service for Allison," said Ms. Dancy. "We

"Besides, we're so close to the hospital that it's convenient for the patient." Both hotels have vans capable of handling wheelchair passengers. In a program summation sent to the hotels, Allison asked for certain criteria including "single or double rooms, a minimum stay allowance of five consecutive weekdays (Monday through Friday), necessary amenities, room on ground level and continental breakfast or the equivalent." Optional requests were mid-day meals, transportation to and from Allison and two to seven week stay, if necessary. The hotels cannot provide the midday or evening meals.

The letter also described the procedure for a patient coming from out of town. "The patient is referred to Allison Cancer Center by his/her physician and then the patient lodging program is described to them," said the letter. "If the patient is interested a hotel/motel is selected from a list of participants. The list is rotated so that a different facility is selected for each new program participant." The letter stated that the hotel will then be contacted and informed of the impending arrival of the patient. "The program is also not for Midland residents who may be getting treatment at Allison and have out-of-town relatives visiting," said Cynthia Brust, public relations director.

He is a 1972 honor graduate of Midland High School and received a bachelors degree in ranch management from Texas Christian University. Scharbauer's service in Midland's Centennial celebration "was outstanding, as evidenced by the overwhelming success of the year-long event," according to 1985 Distinguished Service Award Winner Alan Hale. He served as co-chairman of the Midland Centennial Commission and currently is co-chairman of the Midland Commission of the 1986 Texas Sesquicentennial. In addition, he is director of United Way of Midland, board member of the Texas and Southwest Cattle Raiser Association, lifetime member of the American Quarterhorse Association and previously served as chairman and superintendent of the Quarterhorse Division of the Sand Hills Hereford and Quarterhorse Show. He and his wife, Connie, have four children. The Boss of the Year Award, also presented annually by the Midland Jaycees, is determined by the Jaycees Board of Directors. This year's recipient, The Rev. Joseph H. "Buddy" Schley Jr., pastor of St. Nicholas Episcopal Church, "has distinguished himself in every phase of professional life," said Jaycee President Kenny Gallagher. In his current position as rector of St. Nicholas, Schley "has inspired the growth of a church which is now the fourth largest Episcopal church in Northwest Texas." In addition, the former U.S. Air Force captain, lawyer and businessman is director and vice president of the United Way of Midland, president of the Council on Alcoholism, director of Midland County Families in Action, president of Midland Association of Churches, president of Samaritan Counseling Center, president of the Visual Aids News-Mobile, and a member of the Board of Directors of Permian Basin Mental Health and Mental Retardation and the Midland Association of Retarded Citizens. He and his wife, Carolyn, have two sons. "Recognizing that the work of the church only begins on Sunday morning, Father Schley has been active in every community in which he has lived, but particularly in Midland," Gallagher noted. "He has served on numerous organizations as officer, board member and worker at any task. At 46, in the middle of his third career, there is no telling how far Father Schley may go."

Kidnap victim's body found after surveillance stopped

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Bexar County sheriff's officers say the body of an apparent kidnapping victim was found in a shallow grave 12 hours after deputies, facing a manpower shortage, had called off a three-day surveillance of the site.

When officers returned to the scene Wednesday afternoon and cleared the gravesite, a deputy noticed two gym shoes sticking up from the grave.

The body was identified as John Cruz, 18, who was shot once in the head at close range, said Bexar Sheriff's Sgt. A. Ramon. No arrests were made early today, he said.

"We had been watching it (the grave) for such a long time before we started spot-checking it," he said. "During the day, it is difficult to have a team set up in broad daylight without being seen."

"Also, we do have a manpower problem," he said. "We have a heavy caseload. And there was a budget problem, also."

He said he could not elaborate on the staffing situation at the sheriff's office.

ed Sunday about the grave and had kept a watch on the site "pretty much" around the clock, Sheriff Harlon Copeland said.

"We watched it for 24 hours for three days," said Ramon. "It got to a point that a lot of the work was getting backlogged and we had to come in. And we started spot-checking it. And the last time was when the body was dumped out there."

Authorities said children playing in the area near the banks of the San Antonio River in far south Bexar County found the grave.

But the surveillance was called off at 1:30 a.m. Wednesday. Cruz was last seen early Wednesday, when he left his job at a convenience store one mile from his home, a co-worker said.

The gravesite is about five miles from the store.

The sheriff estimated the man was killed Wednesday morning within two hours of when his body was found.

At 3:15 a.m., a man telephoned Cruz's family and said he had their son and wanted $26,000. The family received a second call about noon Wednesday from a man who said the ransom had increased to $30,000, San Antonio homicide Lt. Albert Ortiz said.

The caller said he would call back at 3 p.m. to make arrangements for a money drop.

Cruz's body was pulled from the grave about the same time as the promised call, which never was made, officials said. The teenager was wearing his blue and red Texas Star clerk's jacket, blue jeans and a Hoble T-shirt.

The grave was about two feet deep and covered with an old tire, styrofoam, rags, string, green roofing plastics and broken shingles, investigators said.

Copeland maintained that the killer or killers could not have known the grave was under surveillance, and the timing of the kidnapping and the murder was a coincidence. "They just got lucky," Copeland said.

Cruz's family had received a $3.5 million settlement just months ago in connection with an auto accident that killed Cruz's father and one of his sisters, officials said.

Funds OK'd for summer program for gifted and talented students

From Staff Reports

The State Board of Education in Austin has allocated $251,000 in state funds to support development of the Texas Governor's School, a program to provide opportunities for tuition-free in-depth summer study by gifted and talented students.

Supported by Gov. Mark White, the school will begin operation this summer and will operate as a pilot project for 100 students who have completed their sophomore years in high school.

"The Texas Governor's School will provide our brightest students with increased challenges and opportunities to excel," said Commissioner of Education William N. Kirby. "We appreciate Gov. White's support and the chance to offer this special study program to enhance the education of some of our most gifted students."

Plans are to expand the program to include 250 students in the summer 1987 program and to add a second site for the school along with 250 additional students in 1988.

The school will operate as a four-week residential program featuring a curriculum that has been especially designed for gifted students.

Staff members will include faculty from local school districts, colleges and universities as well as members of the private sector.

A site for the school has not yet been chosen.

The 1986 program will recruit students from school districts that have state-approved, operational programs in gifted/talented education, districts that have state-approved honors courses for sophomore students and from private high schools throughout the state.

Plans are to expand the program to include 250 students in the summer 1987 program and to add a second site for the school along with 250 additional students in 1988. The school will operate as a four-week residential program featuring a curriculum that has been especially designed for gifted students.

Students will be selected by local district educators who have experience in secondary programs for gifted and talented students.

Student applications will be separated according to the 20 education service center regions. Each region will be allowed to choose a specific number of students to attend the school based on the percentage of sophomores enrolled in each region during the 1984-85 school year.

Students must apply for admission to the Texas Governor's School by March 7.

Local school districts have been asked to provide information about the school to students. However, students who fail to receive information by the end of January may contact the Texas Education Agency's division of gifted and talented education at (512) 463-9455.

Odessa police seek two robbers

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Police continue to seek two young men who took about $200 from a southside beer store Wednesday night.

According to police spokesman Rusty Baker, Cynthia Woods, the store clerk, told investigating officers a man entered the Beer Loft, 111 W. Murphy, about 8:34 p.m. and asked where the man was who was on duty earlier.

Ms. Woods said as she was explaining that the man was off duty she was grabbed from behind by a second man who had jumped a fence around the cash register area. The man told her not to turn around, just open the cash register, she said. She opened the cash register and the first man grabbed the money.

The man holding her pushed her into a small office area and told her to lie down on the floor, she told officers. She then heard the two men running away.

Baker said no weapon was used in the robbery and no threats were made.

Ms. Woods described the first man as a Hispanic about 22-years-old, about five-feet, three-inches tall, wearing a blue and white bandana, a red T-shirt and blue jacket, blue jeans and tennis shoes.

The second man, also Hispanic about 23-years-old, was wearing a red and white bandana, a blue T-shirt and blue jeans, she said.

White accredited airport director

From Staff Reports

Victor D. White A.A.E., director of aviation at Midland Regional Airport, has been accepted as a professional member of the American Association of Airport Executives and is now permitted to use the title of accredited airport executive.

To qualify for professional membership, White was required to demonstrate to the association's board of examiners a knowledge of airport management, business administration, and general transportation economics, as well as to prepare a paper on some particular phase of airport management.

AAAE, founded in 1928, is made up of 1,500 members who are responsible for managing and operating the nation's public airports. The association's principle function is to serve as a clearinghouse for the exchange of information on airport administration. It also sponsors two national meetings annually where the latest techniques in the operation and maintenance of public airports are discussed.

White, by fulfilling all the requirements leading to the title of accredited airport executive, joins a select group. At present, there are only 215 airport managers throughout the country who have earned this distinction.

Congressional candidate to visit

From Staff Reports

David Hunsicker, candidate for the Democratic nomination in the 21st Congressional District, is in Midland today through Saturday. He is a builder and Realtor from San Antonio.

Friday from noon to 1 p.m. he will be on the corner of Wall and Colorado streets for handshakes. Hunsicker said he prefers the direct old-fashioned approach and hopes to prove his openness to the voters in an open atmosphere rather than the "safe" surroundings of a reception.

On Saturday at 7 p.m. he will speak at the American Postal Workers Union meeting at the National Guard Armory, 3900 N. Lamesa Road.

A 20-year veteran of the Air Force, Hunsicker favors a strong domestic oil and gas industry.

'Smashing' senator athletes find 'make-do' tennis courts backhanded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Members of the Senate, whose perks have long included a small swimming pool and health facility, now have the added benefit of a "make-do" indoor tennis court opened without fanfare in the Hart Senate Office Building.

And they will have an outdoor roof-top court, as well — as soon as Senate laborers can solve a vexing problem of "bubbling" in the concrete surface they have laid, according to several congressional officials.

The courts, like the swimming pool and health facility in the Russell Senate Office Building, are generally for use by senators only, according to these officials, most of whom would speak only on condition they not be identified by name.

And like the swimming pool, their existence is rarely spoken of, apparently for fear of provoking public criticism.

Ironically, the indoor court was installed in the space originally earmarked in the Hart building for a spacious $736,000 gymnasium. When an economy-minded Senate voted to deny funds for the gym, the space stood vacant after the building was opened in late 1982.

But Elliott Carroll, a spokesman in the office of the Architect of the Capitol, said the court was installed in the space "at the request of the chairman of the Senate Office Building Commission" nearly a year ago.

The chairman of the obscure commission, Sen. Robert Stafford, R-Vt., confirmed Carroll's account through an aide.

Stafford "believes it was done at little or no cost," said the aide, Lisa Swan.

Several other sources said Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, D-La., pressed to have the tennis net strung. Johnston, a member of the building commission, reportedly received the first key when the facility was opened in March 1985.

In a telephone interview, the Louisiana Democrat said he is an "avid tennis player," but said he rarely uses the indoor court because it is "just a concrete floor and it really needs a surface on it...Someone is going to slip and break their neck."

He said he hoped a safer surface could be installed, but added he has no specific plans to seek federal funds for it.

Johnston said he and several other senators used the facility on Wednesday, when they arranged for a lesson from W. Timothy Gallwey, the author of "The Game of Inner Tennis," a 1974 book devoted to the mental skills involved with the game. The book deals with such topics as concentration, nervousness, self-doubt and self-condemnation.

Johnston said Gallwey believes a similar approach can be helpful in other sports, as well as in addressing the problems of government — the reason for his session with several senators.

Officials say the indoor court is a "make-do" facility, with lines and net laid out on the bare concrete floor in a large, two-story area, with temporary special lighting.

CURIOUS SHOPPER

Supermarket dairy case confusing to consumers

By SONJA HEINZE

Q. I buy cartons of the product labeled "half-and-half" for use in coffee, but nowhere does it say on the carton what it is half of. Could you explain?

Heinze

A. The dairy case in the supermarket is fast becoming a rather confusing place with its array of milks and creams, including skim, 2 percent, 1 percent light cream, medium cream, heavy whipping cream, old-fashioned whipping cream and half-and-half. According to Terri Kaminski of the National Dairy Council, these dairy products are judged on their fat content.

One would think that half-and-half would be half milk and half heavy cream, but actually it's half skim milk and half heavy cream, with a fat content ranging between 10.5 percent and no more than 18.5 percent.

Light cream has a fat content between 18 percent but less than 30 percent. Medium cream ranges from 30 to 36 percent and heavy cream contains no less than 36 percent fat. Regular whole milk has a fat content of 3.25 percent.

The difference between heavy whipping cream and old-fashioned whipping cream is that the former contains quite a few additives to make it thicker, while the latter does not.

Q. Recently I saw many truck loads of green tomatoes on the road. What do they use the very green tomatoes for? J. Benson, Modesto, Calif.

A. The very green tomatoes you saw were probably destined for warehouses where they will slowly turn pink and then red with the aid of a natural, harmless gas called ethylene, ending up eventually in your supermarket. Tomatoes allowed to ripen on the vine would get rotten during transportation. Tomatoes that are bound for cans or bottles, however, are picked ripe and quickly processed.

Q. I have a recipe for cookies called biscotti that calls for shelled, skinned and toasted hazelnuts (filberts). I have tried every method I could think of to skin them, to no avail.

First I blanched them. Then I froze them for several days, after which I toasted them. This helped somewhat after working at it for several hours, but most of them were still not skinned. Do you know of any way? Then again, do you think it would matter if the nuts were not skinned? Dorothy Calabrese, Stamford, Conn.

A. Caroline Fee, the manager of public relations at Nabisco Brands, consulted the staff of their test kitchens, and they could only suggest that the hazelnuts be soaked in water or boiled in water to loosen the skin. But if all else fails, they suggest you try the recipe using the nuts unskinned. You may even come up with a tastier cookie.

In any event, let us know how you make out. And if any of our readers have solved this problem, do let us in on the secret!

I would like to make the additional comment that from my own experience I have discovered that many recipes need not be slavishly adhered to. Some recipes will call for exotic, difficult-to-find ingredients when simple, accessible products will do just as well: for example, shiitake in a stew when ordinary mushrooms would be fine, or anolini, when ravioli would serve the same purpose.

As a young housewife I remember the panic I experienced in the middle of a recipe calling for white pepper, which I didn't have. It wasn't until a reader asked me years later what the difference was between white and black pepper that I found out that they came from the same plant, and the only real difference between the two was color.

By LINDA ANDERSON

From babies to college students and beyond, children are our most precious assets. Protecting and providing for them is a priority in parents' lives. In light of this fact, this column may be of interest to concerned parents:

• The F.J. Strauss Co. Inc. of North Bergen, N.J., in cooperation with the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission, has issued a voluntary recall of three types of baby toys. The CPSC reported that these toys may cause choking or suffocation in infants and young children, although neither the CPSC nor Strauss is aware of any injuries caused by these toys.

small enough to block a baby's throat and obstruct the airway.

One of these toys is Number 29/2, "Big Barrel," which was marketed in a white package showing a one-piece red barrel on the outside. The toy consists of two-piece orange, green, white, yellow, blue and red barrels of different sizes which fit together. The firm's later version of this toy — sold in a white package with three open barrels displayed on the outside — has five barrels and is not part of this recall.

The second toy recalled is Number 29/5, "Magic Clown," a blue and yellow plastic ball with a red-colored clown on the top.

The third toy, Number 29/7, "Big Bead Rattle," has six plastic ovals strung on a nylon string which forms a loop connected to a white plastic handle.

All three toys have been imported from Taiwan, the CPSC reported.

Customers are advised by the CPSC to remove these products immediately and throw them away or return them to place of purchase for a refund. Retailers are advised to remove the products from sale and return them to F.J. Strauss Co. Inc., 3900 West Side Avenue, North Bergen, N.J. 07047. For more information call Strauss at (201) 864-0100 or the CPSC hotline at (800) 683-CPSC. Teletypewriter number for hearing-impaired consumers is (800) 638-8270.

• In another product recall, Danara International Ltd. of South Hackensack, N.J., also in cooperation with the CPSC, has voluntarily recalled two types of exercise toys designed to be used on baby cribs. These toys are reported to have excess levels of lead in their paint, according to CPSC.

CPSC's requirements limit the level of lead in paint at 0.06 percent. These toys were found to have 2 percent lead in their paint, which made them potential lead poisoning hazards, the CPSC said.

One exerciser is Winnie the Pooh model number 15011, which features a wooden cross bar with plastic straps attached to metal springs at each end. Pooh is attached to the cross bar, as are wooden beads and plastic rings.

The other is a Smurf exerciser, model number 30940, which is much like the Pooh exerciser except a blue plastic Smurf hangs from the cross bar instead of Pooh.

Retailers should remove the products from sale and return them to Danara International Ltd., 14 Central Blvd, South Hackensack, N.J., 07606. The company's telephone number is (201) 641-4350.

• Now, for the big kids, Student College Aid, a scholarship locator service, has announced the publication of its book, "How and Where to Get Good Paying, Career Oriented College Jobs." The book is reported to contain "detailed information about how and where to enter this program" as well as "how to obtain work experience in your field and earn, part time, about $5,000 a year."

The book sells for $7.50 plus $1.50 postage.

SCA has also published "How to Obtain Maximum College Financial Aid," which it says "explains how to qualify for governmental awards which are need-based," meaning the cost of college education is more than the family can afford. "If a family knows how to legitimately reduce income and how to move assets into noncounting asset accounts, they will display greater need." (Hmmm. Is this honest?)

This book sells for $7 plus $1 postage.

SCA claims "Satisfaction is guaranteed on both books or your money is refunded." To order, send correct amount to SCA, 3641 Deal, Houston, Tex. 77025.

SCA is reported to be a member of the Houston Better Business Bureau — which may or may not make the college student feel better.

Fund raiser planned for shelter

The Abused Children's Shelter in Odessa will kick off its annual Super Bowl Party fund raiser at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Ector County Coliseum's Barn G.

Participants will watch the Super Bowl game on large screen televisions and barbecue will be provided by the Chuck Wagon Gang.

There will be an auction at half-time featuring a trip to Jamaica, clothing, sporting goods, home electronics, and numerous other auction items.

The Abused Children's Shelter, a 24-hour emergency care facility, has aided approximately 1,000 abused, abandoned and neglected children since being chartered in 1978 as the Odessa Youth Shelter, according to Paula Ahders of the shelter's board of directors.

"The shelter services Midland County with about 20 percent of the children a year being from Midland County," she said.

Tickets for the Super Bowl Party are $25 per person or $250 per sponsor table for six people and can be obtained from the shelter, 910 S. Grant, and tickets will also be available at the door.

For more information call the shelter in Odessa at 333-5233.

WE'VE JUST OPENED A BRIGHTER FUTURE FOR YOUR CHILD.

JUST TWO HOURS A WEEK AT A SYLVAN LEARNING CENTER CAN BRING OUT THE CLASSROOM WHIZ THAT'S HIDING IN YOUR CHILD.

Sylvan Learning Centers are located in major cities across America. We teach reading and math. We can bring your youngster up to grade level and then move him ahead. We can build the child's self-confidence and desire to succeed.

YOUR CHILD COULD GAIN A FULL SCHOOL YEAR IN 36 HOURS.

A school-aged child will spend between 800 and 1,000 hours in class during the year. An independent study by clinical psychologists showed that Sylvan students gain an average of more than one school year in reading or math during the first 36 hours of instruction. A full year...in 36 hours...just two hours a week.

WHY SYLVAN REALLY WORKS.

It's almost impossible for a public school teacher to offer individualized instruction to a class of thirty students. And few private tutors are equipped to handle problems involving visual skills, vocabulary, comprehension and reasoning ability. But Sylvan is an expert in those areas. Our teachers are certified professionals who use innovative teaching methods, even modern technology—computers, magnetic-sound drill cards, and video games—to help your child take great learning strides.

And there are never more than three students per instructor. So your child receives intensive individualized attention. He learns at his own pace, free from competitive pressures. We build your child's self-esteem and confidence through constant praise, encouragement, motivation and rewards. Learning becomes fun. Skills for a lifetime are quickly developed.

SYLVAN: EVERYONE'S LEARNING CENTER

The Sylvan Basic Reading Program.

It helps the student who is not performing at his full potential catch up, or even move ahead of his grade level. Age six through adult.

The Sylvan Basic Math Program.

It helps students with the fundamentals of mathematics. Age six through adult.

Few schools test a child more thoroughly than Sylvan Learning Centers. For example, we check the child's abilities in vocabulary, phonics and comprehension, or math, as well as vision and hearing. By the time we're through, we know exactly the kind of help your child needs. We then design a program that meets those specific needs. In addition, we continually monitor your child's progress and report to you regularly.

THAT BRIGHTER FUTURE BEGINS RIGHT NOW IN MIDLAND.

Since enrollment is limited to three students per instructor, you should enroll your child as soon as possible. Sylvan requires no contracts or long-term commitments. You pay only a monthly tuition.

COME VISIT OUR OPEN HOUSE. CALL 699-6400 AND WE'LL SCHEDULE A TEST FOR YOUR CHILD.

Or come tour our facilities, meet our teachers, and see demonstrations. THURSDAY, JANUARY 23, 4:00p.m. to 7:00p.m.

DEAR ABBY

Woman isn't thrilled by man's frilly taste

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: The gentleman I'm dating is kind, considerate, ambitious and just about the most wonderful man to be around that I have ever met. I love him and he loves me, but there is a problem.

He has told me that he enjoys wearing silk and satin items around the house — women's items, that is. He said he also likes to dress up in women's clothes occasionally, but he has never gone out in public dressed as a woman and has no desire to. He said he was hoping I wouldn't care, but I do. I don't know how to handle this, and I'm not sure I could ever accept it. Abby, he is 100 percent man; this I know for sure.

I asked him if he would consider giving it up, or going for counseling. I offered to go with him and try to understand it. He said he has done this since he was a young boy, and he's not sure he wants to give it up as he wasn't hurting anyone.

Abby, who needs help, him or me? I'm totally confused. — MIXED EMOTIONS

DEAR MIXED: If you love each other, this need not be a problem. The man is a transvestite — he enjoys dressing in women's clothes occasionally, but it does not affect his sexuality; he is as "normal" as any other male. You need to learn more about it before making a judgment. (Maybe you can accept it, and maybe you can't, but I can tell you that there are many men who cross-dress at home whose wives understand their need to do so, and have no objections.)

You don't indicate where you live, but if you will write to Dr. Paul Walker, Janus Information Facility, 1962 Union St., San Francisco, Calif. 94123, he can direct you to the proper counselor in your area. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. All inquiries are confidential.

DEAR ABBY: I'm going with a guy I'll call Sidney, who's divorced and has a couple of teen-aged kids who stay with him sometimes. When I stay overnight at Sidney's place, I am very self-conscious when he makes love to me with a picture of "Shirley" staring at us from the bureau. (Shirley is his ex-wife.) I told him that it bothered me to see Shirley's picture at a time like that, but he just laughed and said, "Don't be silly; she doesn't mean anything to me anymore."

Then I said, "Well, in that case, get the picture of Shirley off your bureau." So he said, "When my kids stay over, they might notice that it's gone."

I don't want to make a big deal out of this, but do you think I'm out of line to insist that he ditch the picture while I'm there? — HERE'S LOOKING AT YOU

DEAR HERE'S: You're not out of line. He is.

CONFIDENTIAL TO RETIRED AND BORED IN ZEPHYR HILLS, FLA.: In these days of a lagging economy and a tight labor market, opportunities for voluntary service are golden for those in their golden years. Hospitals, nursing homes, programs for the handicapped, parks and recreation departments reach out for volunteers. The older citizen, possessing the wisdom and patience of age, can help smooth out the wrinkles of community endeavor by committing his or her time and experience in the time-honored American tradition of "volunteerism." When life gets boring, the bored come to life — voluntarily.

Children need healthy snacks

By MARIAN FARR

When hungry kids rush home from school, they'll head straight for the chips, soft drinks and sugary treats unless some nutritious snacks are ready.

The key to getting youngsters to snack wisely is having the right snacks on hand. Having nutritious foods handy for youngsters may be especially important to working parents who are not at home to supervise after school snacking.

Have the following on hand as quick, nutritious after-school snacks:

- Fresh fruits of any kind
- Fresh vegetable pieces, such as carrot or celery sticks
- Unsweetened fruit juices
- Wholegrain crackers or bread with cheese

- Nuts and popcorn
  - Boiled eggs
  - Leftovers
- Parents can teach their children about nutrition by having nutritious snacks ready.

Parents warned of danger from drapery cords

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Consumer Product Safety Commission is warning parents to be wary of window blind and drapery cords, which can pose a strangulation hazard to small children.

Over the past four years the commission has received reports of 35 deaths when children aged between 7 months and 4 years strangled on these cords.

In most of the cases the children were under 2 years old and their cribs had been placed near a window, the commission noted. But some victims were not in cribs and merely found the cord hanging near the floor where they were playing, or the tot found the cord by climbing on furniture.

The commission and the American Window Covering Manufacturers Association issued a joint warning to parents to keep cords out of the reach of children by tying or hanging the cord at or near the top of the window — where adults can reach it.

Jump start car battery with caution

WASHINGTON (AP) — That tired growl, slowing to silence on a cold morning, is the first notice many people get that their car battery is exhausted. It's aggravating, but rushing to get a jump start without caution can be dangerous.

Using a car with a good battery to start one which won't turn over is a common practice that works well thousands of times each winter.

But officials of both the Department of Transportation and the National Society to Prevent Blindness warn that accidents can happen.

Federal transportation officials say the best procedure is to find the owner's manual for the car with the dead battery, and follow the jump starting instructions there.

But, of course, such manuals aren't always easy to locate, especially on a cold morning when scurrying to get to work.

The most serious danger is that the battery being started will explode, injuring the people nearby and possible spattering battery acid in their eyes or on their skin.

KEEPING AMERICA ON THE GROW

Eddie Albert: Actor, Conservationist

America is number one in agriculture because of a simple idea. In the past, we invested in our young people. Today, they lead the world in agriculture.

Programs teaching production, horticulture, processing, sales and service, natural resources, forestry and agri-mechanics are essential.

Through such educational programs, young people learn to use the modern technology of agriculture to feed our nation and the world.

We have to keep America on the grow. We have to invest in the people and technology that ensures our world leadership in agriculture.

That's why your support of vocational and technical education in agriculture, and the Future Farmers of America in your community, is so important.

Abortion activist says church blackmailed her

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Roman Catholic Church officials deny assertions by an abortion activist who said the church blackmailed her by blocking the confirmation of her 15-year-old daughter unless the girl disavowed her mother's beliefs.

Mary Ann Sorrentino, executive director of Planned Parenthood of Rhode Island, said Wednesday that she and her husband, Albert Ciullo, were told by their parish priest that their daughter, Luisa, could not be confirmed unless she accepted the church's views on abortion.

"They tried to blackmail me through my child," she said. "We let them interrogate her because she had worked so hard to be confirmed. They had us over the barrel."

The church allowed Luisa's confirmation but excommunicated Ms. Sorrentino and told her she could not receive Holy Communion at the confirmation ceremony.

The Rev. Salvatore Matano, vicar of administration for the Diocese of Providence, supported the decision of the Rev. Edward Egan to interview the daughter.

"I don't know how you can use the term blackmail," he said Wednesday. "The church needs to be free to do what it wants with its own laws."

The incident happened in May, but Ms. Sorrentino, 43, said she has been trying to get the church to "admit what they did to an innocent 15-year-old child is inappropriate."

In a June 14 letter to Ms. Sorrentino to explain the excommunication, Matano said her position was "the heart of the issue and the very cause of your excommunication. Your efforts have resulted in the sinful termination of human life."

Excommunication prohibits a person from receiving communion or any other of the church's sacraments, but Ms. Sorrentino said she had received communion in several churches several times since.

"I am a Catholic and I will always be a Catholic," she said. "Whether they give me communion or bury me in their church isn't going to change that...I can sit in my living room and talk to my God. I don't need to go to their church."

William Ryan, a spokesman for the U.S. Catholic Conference in Washington, D.C., said he believed it was the first time an abortion activist had been excommunicated. Egan could not be reached for comment.

Ms. Sorrentino has been executive director of Planned Parenthood of Rhode Island for nine years. The organization provides counseling on birth control and pregnancy and performs abortions.

Administration denies offering pardon

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is seeking to quell reports that President Reagan told a group of anti-abortion leaders he might consider pardoning abortion clinic bombers on a "case-by-case" basis.

Reagan met privately with about two dozen abortion foes Wednesday after giving a telephone pep-talk to thousands of demonstrators who marched to the Supreme Court on the 18th anniversary of the landmark decision legalizing abortion.

Paul Brown, chief executive officer of the American Life League, told reporters following the White House session that he asked Reagan "to simply consider a pardon for all of the pro-lifers who have been jailed because of the clinic violence."

"Mr. Reagan stated that he may eventually consider it on a case-by-case basis," Brown said. "We have asked him to consider a pardon, because the majority of these people are well-meaning people. We condemn what they did, but we still think they are nice people and should not have to spend the rest of their lives in jail."

Brown said such individuals "never hurt anybody, they may have destroyed a building or two, but they have not done anything to hurt a person."

Joseph Scheidler, a leader of another anti-abortion group, Pro-Life Action, said he joined in Brown's request.

Scheidler said Reagan "listened attentively" to their suggestion about meeting with the families of the jailed bombers and to consider the pardons. "He said that he might consider this request on a case-by-case basis," Scheidler said.

White House spokesman Albert Brashear disputed their account and denied that Reagan made such a statement.

Brashear quoted Reagan as saying, "I may get a review on that case." He said the president was talking about a case that had been mentioned about a man who received a 42-year sentence for kidnapping a physician who performed abortions.

The spokesman said he was unaware of any appeals for Reagan to consider such cases. He said most of the bombing cases have come under state, and not federal, jurisdiction, and therefore would not fall under Reagan's purview.

Brown and Scheidler's remarks caused a stir among several other participants in the meeting. They came forward to emphasize to reporters that they did not believe the president intended to condone the violence and that they did not interpret his remarks in the same way Brown and Scheidler had.

Jack Willke, the head of the National Right to Life Committee, said the two men represented only two out of two dozen participants in the meeting.

Willke said he thought the president was "surprised" by the pardon request, but that Reagan's response was a "proper response. Presidents have pardoned people in the past for many things, we simply have no comment and have to think it through." Willke said Reagan told the group that if they could put a stop to the violence, "our movement would get a lot of brownie points."

Victor Rosenblum, of the Americans United For Life, said he interpreted the president to say he would "like to think about" the matter. "There is no remote basis in judgment that the president would favor any kind of pardon for a person who has been convicted of an act of violence," Rosenblum said.

Asked whether Reagan said he would consider pardons on a "case-by-case" basis, he replied, "I do not recall."

Kate Michelman, the executive director of the National Abortion Rights Action League, criticized Reagan for "giving a platform" at the White House to people who want bombers pardoned. She said 65 incidents of such violence have occurred since Reagan took office in 1980.

"Would he consider pardoning Palestinian terrorists?" Ms. Michelman said. "He has to remember that as president he has a special responsibility to make sure that not even word or a nod is misconstrued — so not to lead to further acts of violence."

Philippine minister: Marcos' investments legal

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Philippine acting foreign minister, visiting American government leaders, says that investigations by a House subcommittee and the General Accounting Office will show there is no evidence of questionable financial dealings by Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos.

The comments by Pacifico Castro came Wednesday as Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., prepared for another hearing examining what the lawmaker says were massive real estate transactions by Marcos in Manhattan.

Also Wednesday, it was disclosed that the GAO is investigating whether any of the millions of dollars in U.S. aid to the Philippines during Marcos' 20 years in office were siphoned off for private gain.

Solarz was ready today to open the second of a series of hearings into allegations that Marcos and his wife, Imelda, indulged in a "real estate buying spree" during the past several years, investing at least $200 million in five Manhattan buildings he says now are worth $350 million.

Solarz has not accused the Philippine president or his wife of violating U.S. law with the alleged real estate purchases.

But he said Tuesday his House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on Asian and Pacific Affairs also will try to learn "whether any foreign aid to the Philippines was siphoned off for the purchase of these prestigious properties."

Congress approved $245 million in aid for the Philippines for the current fiscal year — including $125 million in economic help, $40 million in military assistance, $15 million in military sales credits and $65 million in AID funds. The GAO probe deals only with the $125 million in economic aid.

State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said Wednesday that so far, "the administration is not aware of any documented evidence that would directly or indirectly link U.S. aid dollars to overseas investments by Marcos."

On Tuesday, witnesses presented documents which Solarz said make clear that Mrs. Marcos was the real purchaser of an $18 million estate on Long Island called Lindenmere, even though the ownership had been veiled through the use of a corporation in the Netherlands Antilles.

Today, witnesses were to focus on the Manhattan properties alleged to have been purchased by Mrs. Marcos using a New York City real estate firm and similar offshore holding corporations.

The buildings include a nine-story vertical mall known as Herald Center, 40 Wall Street, 200 Madison Avenue, and the Crown Building at Fifth Avenue.

Foreign Minister Castro, in the United States to assure the Reagan administration that his nation's Feb. 7 presidential elections will be free and honest, called the Solarz investigation "definitely" an attempt to influence the election.

Vietnam may be returning MIA remains to prompt U.S. aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vietnam's desire to improve relations with the United States, and thereby become a potential foreign aid beneficiary, is a major cause of the recent flurry of activity involving American MIAs from the nation's longest war, legislators and other informed officials say.

"They are reaching out to the world," Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., said Wednesday at a news conference after he and three other legislators returned from a nine-day trip to Southeast Asia.

In recent months, Vietnam has released more information about the remains of some of the 2,441 Americans still unaccounted for from the Vietnam War and the Hanoi government has promised even more information and remains in the future.

But other factors are helping push the issue to the front of the public mind. Those factors include renewed attention on the plight of American servicemen who fought in the Vietnam War, along with a spate of books and movies about fictional rescues of American prisoners.

Included among the latter is last year's hit movie, "Rambo," starring Sylvester Stallone as a former Green Beret soldier who returns to Southeast Asia to rescue American POWs.

While the official U.S. government view is that the possibility of prisoners cannot be ruled out, most U.S. officials say privately they don't believe there are any remaining prisoners.

Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, said Wednesday the delegation did not receive anything to encourage the belief that prisoners still remain.

The U.S. military role in the war began in the mid-1960s and ended in 1973, when American ground troops were withdrawn and 591 American prisoners were returned. But there have been recurring reports — "live sightings" — that have fueled speculation that some prisoners are still being held. Both Vietnam and Laos deny they hold any U.S. prisoners.

The United States has requested a full accounting of the missing men, but it received relatively little attention until 1981, when President Reagan took office and elevated an accounting to the "highest national priority."

Following Reagan's declaration, the president and top administration officials pressed their case in public, declaring repeatedly that they wanted a full accounting of the U.S. servicemen. U.S. officials also traveled to Vietnam for technical and low-level meetings and pressed the case there.

In addition, there have been private, unpublicized meetings between the two sides, according to officials, and Secretary of State George Shultz wrote in 1984 to Vietnamese Foreign Minister Nguyen Co Thach seeking more information.

But the U.S. efforts met with little success until last summer, when Thach said Vietnam wanted to solve the MIA issue and set a two-year limit in which to try to end it.

Since then, Vietnam has turned over more than 30 sets of remains permitted a U.S. team to excavate B-52 crash site, and has promised information on 50 more MIAs next month.

American-backed UNO dividing, weakening Contras, exiles say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prominent Nicaraguan exiles say the U.S.-backed rebel movement is in disarray, with some contending that even President Reagan's plan for large-scale American military aid might not revive the war against that nation's leftist government.

The exiles, longtime opponents of Nicaragua's Sandinista government, said the U.S.-sponsored United Nicaraguan Opposition, UNO, had failed to heal divisions that long have plagued the war effort, and sparked complaints of American manipulation.

Several exiles added that the only realistic hope for ousting the Sandinista government is direct U.S. military intervention to crush the Soviet-supplied Nicaraguan army — an option the Reagan administration has rejected repeatedly.

The assessment by leading Nicaraguans in Miami, Washington and California came this week as Reagan prepared to ask Congress for as much as $100 million in military and logistical aid for the Contra rebels — a proposal expected to reignite bitter debate over Central America.

Republican leaders have told Reagan that the perception of UNO's effectiveness as a democratic alternative to the Sandinistas is vital to his aid package.

"UNO will have to show that it is the legitimate political leader of the Contras, that it controls the military and has a platform for a democratic society for Nicaragua," said Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman. But Nicaraguan exiles interviewed

Reagan's aid plan faces opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan's proposal for resuming U.S. military aid to rebels fighting Nicaragua's Sandinista government will encounter stiff opposition in a Congress constrained by new spending limits, supporters and opponents of the plan agree.

A White House official said Wednesday Reagan has "approved in principle" a plan to resume military aid to the Contra rebels.

The plan calls for $90 million to $100 million in aid and would eliminate congressional bans on using the money for weapons or ammunition, the official said, speaking on condition he not be named.

Current aid totals $27 million and is intended to be used only for non-lethal items such as food, medicine and clothing.

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., a leading opponent of Reagan's Nicaraguan policy, said of the new request, "I oppose it and I doubt that it will fly."

"There's grave concern about our getting involved in a conflict down there when you go in step by step," said Cranston.

By The Associated Press questioned UNO's success in unifying and controlling rebel ranks after it was created at the administration's urging last June.

The AP interviewed 22 anti-Sandinista Nicaraguan exiles about their views on the political and military situation.

UNO "was set up to function on paper, but not in action," said Jose Medina Cuadra, a Nicaraguan attorney living in Miami who has resigned from UNO. He complained that it "hasn't done anything either for those fighting in Nicaragua or those in exile."

Even with a massive infusion of U.S. military aid, the rebels "can never overthrow the Sandinistas on their own," Medina said. He said he would support direct U.S. intervention in Nicaragua "because the Soviets and the Cubans have already intervened and control Nicaragua."

"UNO is designed to do battle in Congress, not to do battle in the front lines, with the people of Nicaragua," said Silvio Arguello-Cardenal, a former Nicaraguan vice president now living in Miami. "It owes its existence...exclusively to...U.S. intelligence agencies that provide it direction and exercise strict, every-day control over its military operations and political pronouncements."

Conservative exiles particularly criticized the inclusion of former Sandinista officials Arturo Cruz and Alfonso Robelo in the triumvirate that runs UNO. They hold Cruz and Robelo responsible for the Sandinistas' confiscation of their property and they contend the U.S. attempt to broaden the rebel movement by including them has only deepened divisions.

Miller may request emergency IRS funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Budget Director James C. Miller III, defending the new budget-balancing law against attacks from congressional critics, has conceded that the administration might at times need extra emergency spending authority from Congress.

Miller told the Senate Budget Committee Wednesday that a proposal for additional funds to help the Internal Revenue Service process this year's tax returns will soon be on its way to Capitol Hill — even as the administration is enforcing the first $11.7 billion in spending cuts under the law.

Administration officials have said that at least another $200 million is needed for the IRS in 1986 to process tax returns.

"It's not a whole lot of money," Miller told reporters after his testimony. "We don't want to have this backlog of returns."

Miller said that the IRS manpower shortage was not caused directly by the Gramm-Rudman act, which requires cuts of more than 4 percent in most federal programs on March 1.

However, he said that emergencies may arise under the Gramm-Rudman cuts that threaten crucial government services. In those instances, he said, the administration will seek emergency authority from Congress for additional spending, or for the power to move funds between accounts.

"There is the possibility that some emergencies will be taken care of with a supplemental (money bill)," Miller testified.

Miller also said that President Reagan's 1987 budget, to be delivered to Congress on Feb. 4, would contain about $90 billion in cuts — rather than the $50 billion he had earlier predicted — to meet the law's 1987 deficit target of $144 billion.

He said that even with the $11.7 billion in new cuts, the 1987 budget deficit would still top $200 billion.

However, Miller said of the Gramm-Rudman timetable for eliminating deficits, "I think it will work."

He added, "I think it is an appropriate remedy for an ongoing problem."

Miller, in his first appearance before Congress since the new law took effect, spent most of his testimony defending the measure. At one point, he mentioned that he hadn't written the law and that the administration was just trying to carry it out in ordering spending cuts.

"Do you want me to violate the law?" Miller asked.

Everybody knows she's in danger. Everybody cares. But not enough people are digging down and doing something about it.

If the work to restore her is to go on, a lot more people have to make their contribution. Today. If not you, who?

Judge in alien-smuggling trial considers dropping charges

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The judge in the sanctuary alien-smuggling conspiracy trial is considering dismissing charges against 11 defendants or taking other action after finding a government agent's explanations for not disclosing information "not acceptable."

U.S. District Judge Earl H. Carroll questioned immigration agent James Rayburn, then criticized him for his failure to tell the court or the prosecutor about informant Jesus Cruz's role in a California alien-smuggling investigation last year and for not revealing that Cruz's testimony did not mention it.

Carroll took the matter under advisement Wednesday after holding a hearing, with the jury excused, over whether Cruz had committed perjury and Rayburn had withheld information.

Defense attorneys renewed requests for Carroll to dismiss the charges because of alleged government misconduct.

Carroll told Rayburn, a U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service special agent to whom Cruz had reported in the sanctuary investigation, "It is your obligation, as a representative of the United States, to provide that information ..."

Carroll said he had to determine whether Rayburn's failure to disclose that had prejudiced the defendants — two priests, a nun, a minister and seven church layworkers charged with conspiring to smuggle illegal aliens into the United States.

Doctors ordered to feed Bouvia

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A quadriplegic cerebral palsy patient who sought court permission to starve herself to death two years ago will have to endure forced feeding for at least three more weeks, a judge ruled.

Superior Court Judge Warren Deering refused to issue an order Wednesday calling for doctors to remove a nose-to-stomach feeding tube that Elizabeth Bouvia, 28, contends causes her extreme pain.

The woman is seeking $10 million in punitive damages and general damages of $10,000 for each day the tube, inserted last Thursday, remains in place. She says she no longer wishes to starve herself to death and will continue to consume liquids although she can't hold down solid food.

In the suit, her American Civil Liberties Union attorneys asked the judge to bar hospital officials from using the tube.

But Deering said Ms. Bouvia's case raised legal questions that required more argument and study and scheduled another hearing Feb. 12.

Senate eyes Fed nominees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Wayne Angell, a Kansas farmer and banker, and Manuel Johnson, a Washington bureaucrat, are certainly not household names, but the two men are seeking to win posts which will enable them to influence the U.S. economy well into the next decade.

When the two were nominated last October by President Reagan to the Federal Reserve Board, supply-side economists were jubilant, contending the nominees would pressure Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker to push economic growth upward.

More is expected to be learned about the views of Johnson and Angell today when the Senate Banking Committee holds hearings on their nominations.

The two men, if their nominations are approved by the Senate, will join two other Reagan nominees, giving the president a majority on the seven-member board, which influences the economy's performance with its power to control growth of the money supply.

Two other Reagan nominees on the 12-member board, Fed Vice Chairman Preston Martin and Martha Seeger, have often dissented from the Volcker majority in favor of looser monetary controls as a way of spurring sluggish economic growth.

However, many analysts are betting that Volcker still will maintain firm sway over the central bank's decisions, since he has many allies on the Federal Open Market Committee.

This 12-member group includes not only the members of the Fed board but also five presidents of Federal Reserve Banks.

Recruiter fined in Billig case

WASHINGTON (AP) — A military jury has handed down a sentence that includes salary forfeitures and a fine for the recruiter who signed heart surgeon Donal Billig into the Navy.

As sentence was pronounced in the case of Navy Cmdr. Reginald E. Newman in a courtroom at Bolling Air Force Base on Wednesday, another jury at the Washington Navy Yard continued to hear evidence against Billig.

Billig, a Navy commander, was chief of the cardiothoracic unit at Bethesda Navy Hospital in suburban Maryland. He is being tried on five counts of involuntary manslaughter stemming from the deaths of patients and 24 counts of dereliction of duty because he allegedly operated unsupervised when he had only limited privileges.

Newman, a 35-year Navy veteran, drew a $10,000 fine, forfeiture of $2,000 a month in salary for 10 years and an official reprimand. In addition he was placed behind 1,000 other commanders on the Navy's promotion list.

He could have been sentenced to a maximum 20 1/2 years in prison.

Hearings on hostages possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — Illinois Democratic Sens. Paul Simon and Alan J. Dixon say they may stage Capitol Hill hearings on the plight of American hostages held in Lebanon.

The senators made the statement Wednesday after meeting with relatives of the Rev. Lawrence Martin Jenco of Joliet, Ill., a Roman Catholic missionary kidnapped in Beirut more than a year ago. Simon said he and Dixon were contemplating the possibility of "formal, informal or ad hoc" hearings to review the lengthy stalemate over return of the U.S. hostages.

He said such hearings might be conducted by the so-called "anti-terrorism caucus" of the Senate — an informal organization of lawmakers interested in terrorism.

Simon said hearings would "maintain the visibility" of the hostage issue in Washington and around the world.

DEA agent's death ordered?

WASHINGTON (AP) — High-ranking Mexican federal police officials, fearing they were about to be revealed as being paid by Mexican drug barons, gave the order to slay a U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent last year, a newspaper reported today.

The Washington Times, citing unidentified DEA sources, said the murder of Enrique Camarena Salazar also involved officers of the Jalisco State Police in Guadalajara and several "high-ranking Mexican political leaders."

"It's clear to us now that Kiki (Camarena) had some very sensitive information involving a lot of high-ranking officials and that he was ready to deliver it when he was snatched off the street and murdered," the newspaper quoted one DEA official as saying. "Doing his job and doing it well cost him his life."
