Modern medicine hasn't calmed people's fears of quarantines

By STEVE LEVINE

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN - Like the Black Death where it originated as a public health measure — the word "quarantine" scares most folks.

It conjures up visions of homes boarded up and guarded, of yellow "Keep Out" notices, of a time when medicine could do nothing about some very deadly diseases but try to stop their spread to other people.

The quarantine practice began plague - the Black Death - that swept through Europe and parts of Asia in the 14th century. Officials in merchant cities such as Venice quarantined travelers for 40 (quaranta in Italian) days to prevent them from bringing the deadly disease into the

Searchers haven't yet found trace of shuttle crew

PORT CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Bits of debris from the shuttle Challenger keep turning up but a small armada of searchers has yet to find the first trace of the $1.2 billion spacecraft's seven-member crew.

The first load of debris, about 600 pounds, arrived at Port Canaveral Wednesday. The material plucked from the ocean contained no personal effects of the five men and two women aboard the Challenger.

"Mostly what we found was bulkhead-type material, aluminum with insulation attached to it, making it float," said Lt. John Philbin, commander of the U.S. Coast Guard patrol boat that brought in the debris.

A 15-foot aluminum section was discovered Wednesday afternoon, but most of the debris was no larger than an opened newspaper. The shuttle alone weighed 200,000 pounds.

The search today was expanded from eight ships and nine aircraft to 13 ships and 13 planes covering 8,000 square miles.

Coast Guard spokesman Lt. Cmdr. Jim Simpson said today that two heavy cone-shaped objects were found off the coast, but their size had not been determined. Officials of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration speculated after one such object was found Wednesday that it might be part of a solid booster rocket rather than the

In addition to expressions of grief from Americans, Reagan received a message from Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, saying, "We share the feeling of sorrow in connection with the tragic death of the crew of the space shuttle Challenger. We express our condolences to the people of the United States and to the families.'

Speakes said messages also were received from Cameroon, Canada, Chile, France, West Germany, Greece, India, Indonesia, Jamaica, Japan, Jordan, the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, Nigeria, Pakistan, Somalia, Spain, Taiwan, Britain, the United Nations and Zambia.

make out what the pieces were. Everything was indistinguishable."

Members of the Coast Guard, Navy and Air Force have been systematically searching the Atlantic, an area that today stretched from Cape Canaveral to Daytona and 50 miles out from shore. Simpson said the debris recovered by the searchers has come from a wide area, including some pieces that have washed ashore.

The offshore search is being coordinated at the Coast Guard operations center at Miami, where data from the day's search is evaluated and plans drawn for the next day.

One of the ships "has a boom for picking up any large debris we might find," Simpson said. He also said that as of Wednesday no divers had been sent to the ocean floor, whose depth ranges from 50 to 125 feet in most of the area being

"Although we're searching for surface debris right now, a decision will be made soon about whether to look below the surface," Simpson added.

NASA spokesman Jim Mizell said several shrimp boat owners had volunteered to use their nets to drag the ocean floor.

"We turned them down but considered it to be a nice gesture," he said. "For one thing, that ocean floor out there off the cape has been a graveyard for rockets for the past 25 years. There's no telling how much stuff is down there.'

The tapes could reveal whether the fireball that killed the astronauts Tuesday, 73 seconds after liftoff, was caused by something that went wrong with the spaceship's huge external fuel tank or whether the fault lay with one of the two solid fuel rocket boosters.

Experts have considered both theories, but shuttle director Jesse Moore said Wednesday: "I refuse to speculate on the cause. We intend to make a thorough examination of all the evidence and base our conclusions and recommendations on the

Moore said he was confident the cause would be found, but that could take months. Until then, there will be no more shuttle flights in a year in which the National Aeronautics and Space Administration had planned a record 15 missions.

An investigation board has impounded the high-speed tapes as well as spaceship debris washed ashore. The panel has also taken possession of film, photographs and work documents related to the shuttle.

The first 600 pounds of debris, most of it small pieces of thermal tiles, was brought into port Wednesday, and the Coast Guard, Navy and Air Force expanded the search fleet today from eight to 13 ships and from nine to 13 aircraft.

The ships have begun picking up a great deal more debris, larger and more varied pieces," Lt. Cmdr. James Simpson of the Coast Guard said today. "One ship alone is bringing in 1,000 pounds of debris. They've got wiring and gauges and so forth," he said. "Some sizes range from 15 by 10 feet to 30 by 5

Simpson said ships expected to retrieve today two heavy cone-shaped objects that might be parts of the two solid fuel rockets. He also said searchers began using sonar detection devices for the first time today in an effort to locate pieces of the shuttle on the ocean floor, more than 50 feet down.

plague in the past 11 years, the most recent affecting a 48-year-old West Texas man who caught it after eating some infected rabbits he had shot Jan. 14, 1984.

Modern medicine, however, has not eliminated the fear of quaran-

That fear played a major role in the recent on and off Health Department proposal to allow public health officials to place certain "incorrigible" AIDS victims in medical isolation. The proposed rule would have involved only those people with AIDS who won't comply with warnings to stop spreading the fatal disease.

Acquired immune deficiency syndrome is a fatal disease spread by intimate contact with blood or other body fluids. Homosexuals and intravenous drug users are most at risk to contract the disease. Through Jan. 11, about 16,000 AIDS victims have been diagnosed across the country, with 897 in Texas.

Had the law allowed it, Health Commissioner Dr. Robert Bernstein says now he would have used the term "medical isolation" in his proposed rule. But the Texas Communicable Disease Prevention and Control Act allows only "quarantine" for those patients who refuse to obey the first warnings.

From the beginning, Bernstein tried to explain that his rule did not contemplate the use of quarantine "in the classical sense." The law made him use the word, he said, and he planned medical isolation — as a last resort only - to stop the spread

The warnings didn't work. Medical and legal experts and gay rights activists attacked the proposal from all sides. A common thread emerged: the threat of quarantine would drive AIDS victims or those who thought they had the disease underground: they wouldn't seek treatment or counseling for fear that they would end up behind the boards and signs, imprisoned until death.

Knowing that he needed the gay community's help in an education campaign that would stop AIDS more efficiently than any quarantine plan, Bernstein backed down. He promised to return with an acceptable alternative for those rare cases, and he asked for help from the Legislature.

Lawmakers revised the Communicable Disease Act in 1983. The introduction to the new law states that the Legislature "recognizes that many of the public health laws of the state were enacted under public health conditions that are not relevant to contemporary society." The new law made sweeping changes. But it still retained the word "quar-

Bernstein has two suggestions for the next time legislators try to help:

"One is this matter of quarantine, we just don't use it," he said. "We would rather speak of some sort of an isolation of a person, much as you do in a hospital. You can have a medical isolation, an isolation ward, an isolation which isn't a prison and the people aren't neglected. They're taken care of.

The second suggestion goes to the heart of the furor over the AIDS quarantine plan. The new law deleted a list of diseases for which public health officials had authority to institute quarantines. In place of that list, lawmakers gave the Health Department authority to create its

On May 15, 1984, Bernstein's office proposed eight quarantinable diseases: cholera, diphtheria, gonorrhea, plague, syphillis, tuberculosis, viral hemorrhagic fever and yellow fever. No additions came until Fabian Bridges came to Houston and

In the midst of the anti-AIDS hysteria that characterized the 1985 Houston City Council elections, Bridges came home to Houston. A homosexual prostitute in the final stages of an AIDS infection, Bridges told his doctors he would not close his business, he would continue to spread the disease through his sexual relations.

Dr. James Haughton, Houston's public health director, ordered Bridges to curtail his activities. Bridges refused. Haughton learned then that state law allowed only quarantine as an appropriate control measure for patients who refuse their first warnings. But AIDS was not on the quarantine list.

On Dec. 16, 1985, Bernstein proposed adding AIDS to the list. That brought the protest — the fear of quarantine — that eventually defeated the proposal.

Marcos appoints last election commissioners

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Saying he was responding to "some of my friends in the U.S. Embassy," President Ferdinand E. Marcos appointed the last members of the national election commission today, eight days before the Feb. 7 special presidential election.

U.S. Ambassador Stephen Bosworth said Monday that filling the nine-member commission's two vacancies with qualified individuals would be a "significant confidencebuilding step, but time is drawing short."

Critics have charged the commission, mostly composed of friends of Marcos, would help rig ballot counting in order to keep the 68-year-old Marcos in office. Marcos has been in power 20 years.

Marcos said today during a speech to the Manila Rotary Club that the "idea of losing has never entered my mind." He added, however, that he would turn over power peacefully to opposition candidate Corazon Aquino if she wins the election.

Meanwhile, a military announcement reported that unknown gunmen shot to death two local leaders of Marcos, raising to 16 the number of people killed in pre-election violence in the Philippines.

lence in the Philippines.

The announcement of two leaders'

deaths said armed men believed to be communist guerrillas gunned down Mayor Lorenzo Padua of Goa today as the official, riding in a motorcycle, was conducting a house-tohouse campaign in Camarines Sur province, 188 miles southeast of Manila.

The Philippine News Agency and the military announcement reported the death of village headman Pedro Liabore. The news agency said he was killed in Camalig, 40 miles south of Goa by unidentified men on Wednesday while he was on his way to a market.

Military authorities said they were investigating the incidents to see if they were connected with the election campaign.

Padua, a former World War II guerrilla, was known as an anti-Communist fighter.

The Philippines News Agency quoted Camarines Sur Gov. Felix Fuentebella as saying Padua's slaying was "the act of cowards (with) dark political motives."

The new election commissioners were identified by Marcos as Jaime J. Layosa and Ruben E. Agpala, giving no details except that the appointment of Layosa was recommended by the private poll watchdog body Namfrel.

Independent union workers protest salary limits in Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Thousands of workers, most of them from independent unions, marched to the main city square on Wednesday to protest high prices, limits on salaries and the foreign debt.

Carrying banners and signs that read "No to the payment of the foreign debt" and "For de-

They also demanded respect for labor contracts, democracy in unions and changes in the country's economic policy to the poor.

'Stupid' ban on political T-shirts, posters lifted

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government today revoked a day-old police order that would have barred bumper stickers, posters and T-shirts emblazoned with political slogans in Cape Town as Parliament opened there.

The Wednesday order from Brig. Chris Swart, police commander in Cape Town, would have banned all visual means of political expression in six Cape Town districts for two weeks under state-of-emergency powers, beginning today.

The order was ridiculed by white opponents of the white-led government, with one calling it "stupid." A liberal newspaper, The Cape Times, said the measure was "reminiscent of a banana republic."

Minister of Law and Order Louis le Grange, responsible for police matters, said after meeting with Swart today that the ban had been rescinded, but said police would not hesitate to act if demonstrations or protests threaten public order in the next two weeks during ceremonies for the opening of Parliament,

WORLD IN BRIEF

Convicts can't be bought

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) - Prime Minister David Lange today said it was unlikely France would pay compensation for the bombing of a Greenpeace protest ship unless New Zealand frees two French agents who pleaded guilty in the attack.

Lange, however, said he would refuse to do that.

"France very simply wants to buy back two criminals. Therefore we are not negotiating on the same point," Lange said on national radio. He said his Labor government now believes the chances of obtaining reparations for the bombing of the Rainbow Warrior in Auckland on July 10 are "not good" because France refuses to negotiate compensation while its agents remain in custody.

France has admitted its intelligence operatives were responsible for planting bombs aboard the ship, which was to lead a flotilla to protest French nuclear testing at Mururoa Atoll in the South Pacific. A Green-peace photographer was killed in the explosion.

The New Zealand leader repeated that the two jailed French nationals, Maj. Alain Mafart and Capt. Dominique Prieur, would not be released early or deported while his government was in office.

Libyan tip-offs end

ROME (AP) — Italian and West German officials say information from Libyan intelligence agents enabled them to foil some planned ter-rorist attacks, but an Italian source said such tip-offs have ended in the past few years.

about 120 people wounded. The killers have been linked to Abu Nidal's Palestinian terrorists, a group the Reagan administration says is primarily supported by Libya. Fraudulent Tunisian passports used by the Vienna terrorists have been

Navy murder trial carries threat of death penalty for Garraway

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Mitchell Garraway Jr. liked the Navy so much that he left home to enlist when he was 17 without his mother's permission.

Now, 3½ years later, his mother watches and takes notes as a panel of his peers weighs testimony in his trial on a charge of killing a lieutenant who blocked his promotion.

If convicted of first-degree murder and given the maximum sentence, Garraway, now 21, could be the first sailor put to death in 137

"He always loved the Navy," his mother, Mattie Umrani, said during a break in the trial. "He wanted this to be his life. It turned out to be an unhappy ending for such a young life. He's just beginning to come into the reality of the incident."

"I spent most of my time crying," she said. "It has been overwhelming to come see the whole thing. I was saddened for the victim and his family, too. This is not a one-sided thing.

The victim was somebody's son, too.' Mrs. Umrani said she had sent a note to the family of the victim, Lt. James K. Sterner, 35, expressing her regrets, but that she never heard back from them.

"I didn't expect to," she said. "It was something I felt I had to do

Only three chairs from Mrs. Umrani in the small courtroom sits James Backstrom, a cousin of Sterner who is representing the family. He has nothing to say.

The case has drawn little attention in this resort, which several years ago was the site for the sensational first trial of Claus von Bulow. Only a dozen or so reporters, relatives and spectators have been in attendance for most days of the trial.

An officer, who spoke on the condition that his name not be used, said that although the Newport case is an isolated one, it strikes at the heart of what the Navy does.

There is a very special relationship between the crew and the ship's officers," he said. "It never entered my mind that such a thing would occur. It is one of the things you would never expect.

Garraway has admitted stabbing Sterner in the back with a Marine survival knife aboard the frigate USS Miller off the coast of Bermuda out loud at the thought of Libya's Col. Moammar Khadafy, clad in one of his outlandish outfits, speeding into the Mediterranean to confront U.S. naval

Patience, patience

He's a showman and a half, but the performance is not particularly enjoyable.

For weeks now Khadafy has been prancing like a banty rooster, obviously hoping he can draw the United States into a position from which it can't squirm without losing a hefty portion of selfrespect, if not more. Nothing would please the Libyan leader more than for the United States to strike out at him.

While such a response might be tempting, it wouldn't be worth the costs at this particular point in time. Khadafy's chestthumping attitude already has elevated his nation to the position of outcast where the United States is concerned. To say that the relationship between the two nations is strained is a respectable understatement.

Yet the course cautiously being followed by President Ronald Reagan appears to be the cor- tience, patience.

f the situation didn't hold rect one: Provoked but such explosive potential, one restrained. Not flying off the would be inclined to laugh handle at Khadafy's first hint of aggression.

Still, more is at stake here than Khadafy's spotlight antics convey. Libya is a small nation attempting to show it can push big, bad Uncle Sam around. In the process, Khadafy undoubtedly hopes to win the respect of his neighboring nations and, probably, his own people who are without a doubt less enamored with him since the world oil slowdown cut off Libya's easy road to wealth and power.

The colonel's irritating manner is enough to make a healthy person nauseous. Yet that's no reason to consider sending in the

If cool heads don't prevail in the current situation — with Khadafy and the ships from the U.S. 6th Fleet only waves apart what looks like nothing more than a fanatic's ravings could quickly be turned into a shooting war. There are, of course, situations that would make such an eventuality reasonable.

In light of what has already transpired, we don't believe this is one of those instances. Pa-

Mengele evidence inconclusive

7 ASHINGTON - Even the most dedicated Nazi hunters concede that the skeletal remains dug up in Brazil last year were probably those of Dr. Josef Mengele, the Auschwitz "Angel of Death." But many still have nagging doubts. We've already reported on what some knowledgeable critics consider errors of omission by the international team of medical experts that examined

humed remains in Brazil: No evidence of a serious bone disease or the other ailments Mengele was known to have suffered from, no dental X-rays, no discussion of signs that point to a possible hoax arranged by Mengele and his loyal friends

Now we'll disclose errors of commission made by the team of exerts, as well as some intrinsic con tradictions in the evidence that could be explained by a carefully planned hoax. Our associate Lucette Lagnado has interviewed experts who conducted an independent investigation for the World Jewish Congress, as well as others who harbor doubts about the international team's findings. Here's what is bothering the skeptical and the cautious:

The remains were exhumed in "an outrageously unprofessional manner," a WJC letter charges, with an unskilled gravedigger handing up the bones and fragments piece by piece to a Sao Paulo police laboratory official. In fact, one American anthropologist asked to help with the autopsy said "it was 'too late,' in light of the disinterment spectacle he had seen on television," according to the letter. The scientist joined the examination team anyway.

Bush's "hyperkinesis."

- The same police official who permitted the improper exhumation procedure was also the one who took the X-rays used by the visiting experts.

- Much weight was given to the new German "electronic superimposition procedure" that matched the exhumed skull to known photographs of Mengele. But Eli Rosen-baum, the WJC general counsel, pointed out that the technique "has not yet been employed in this country (the United States) ... (and) its reliability has certainly not been tested with time." Many experts are skeptical of the computer monitor used in the process, expressing concern that the program fed into the computer would tend to "average any inconsistencies that might ... appear in a skull-photographic comparison.

- A curious hole under the skull's left eye socket raised a serious question. The scientists concluded that it was most likely the result of a sinus infection. Yet, as the WJC letter notes, "such infections are easily cured with antibiotics, and since Mengele was a physician, one would have expected him to have sought treatment well before a hole was created in his skull

One leg of the skeleton was shorter than the other. "This abnormality is not reported anywhere in Mengele's extensive Nazi medical records.

The head of the team of pathologists told us a few months ago that he had found an Auschwitz survivor who had polished Mengele's shoes and would testify that one contained a lift. We have since learned that the witness proved unreliable.

- The suspicious absence of nine out of 10 fingertips and a fracture at the neck of the one intact finger were not explained.

 The World Jewish Congress was concerned that the medical experts were "unduly influenced by circumstantial evidence ... (which is comparatively easy to fabricate and/or tamper with).

Bush debacle 'part of pattern'

- Leaving out the circumstantial evidence, all that's left is a number of similarities between the remains and Mengele: sex, height, age at death, the gap between the upper front teeth, the skull/photograph match and the apparent matching of the few teeth that were found to old dental records. "Any minimally competent hoaxster" could have found a body with most of these similarities, and added the rest, the WJC claimed.

UNDER THE DOME: The Congressional Research Service was recently asked to give the daughter of Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., a little help on a law school project. According to a memo we've seen, the solon's daughter "will need a one-page synopsis for Friday and asks for material to prepare that synopsis, with material for the more extensive project to follow." Asked if this might be an abuse of senatorial privilege, a Domenici aide said the senator's daughter was simply given a hearing transcript, and besides, congressional family members may ask for the research service's help. A service spokesman said this is incorrect.

MINI-EDITORIAL: The military spenders are up to their old tricks. Use it or lose it" is still the battlecry, even as they stare into the mouth of the Gramm-Rudman cannon. The latest outrage: The Air Force Logistics Command issued orders that its buyers speed up their purchases of spare parts in the closing days of 1985, because some unsympathetic penny pincher had told them they'd forfeit some of their current funds if they didn't use up the old appropriations. Typically, the brass blamed the problem on Congress, which had given them too much money and had enacted reforms that made it impossible to spend fast enough.

"I don't care what right-wing groups he addresses - the man's a closet middle-of-the-roader," Niblock

"That's not fair," I retorted. "George Bush is as much a conservative as I am, possibly even more. He believes in prayer in school, overthrowing the government in Angola, and the sanctity of Jesse Helms' political fund-raising campaigns."

"Bush only says that to get votes," Niblock said. "What he really wants to do is hijack the conservatives pledged to Jack Kemp."

"Perhaps he started out with that goal. But now George is convinced the conservative way is the true way. Have you seen where he stands on Niblock sneered, "He's coming out against pornography awfully late."

"As Vice President he couldn't afford to get the pro-pornographers mad. But now that Reagan is a lame duck, Bush is his own man.

"What I think is that Bush's presidential election team decided the only way to beat Kemp was to have the Vice President show up at more conservative dinners and prayer breakfasts than Jack does. They keep feeding Bush speeches about Nicaragua, abortion and the family, in hopes people will forget what he said about Reagan's voodoo economics."

When will you be convinced that Vice President Bush is truly a man of the right?"

"When he attacks the gays. I don't trust any politician who doesn't harangue homosexuals."

"It's too early in the campaign to attack gays. You have to save them for the last week of the primaries."

Then I asked Niblock, "Will you grant that even if Bush isn't a 100percent right-wing activist at the moment, that he's off to a good start?" He replied, "Maybe, but I'd prefer he wrap himself in the flag a little

"He is doing the best he can. In attacking Gov. know what is. "All right, let's say for argument's sake that Bush is as far to the right as Attila the Hun. Why should I give him any money when I'm already supporting another Attila the Hun?

Because George has a chance of being elected President of the United States, and your Hun doesn't."

"Three conservative appearances don't make an ultra-right-wing candidate," Niblock said. "I'll believe he's one of us only after I see him dancing with Phyllis Schlafly to the 'Darktown Strutter's Ball.'

Decision to publish bad

This letter is respectfully submitted to those responsible for selecting which letters are published in the Midland Reporter-Telegram, and also to M.C. Wilson, whose letter appeared in the Sunday edition, January 12,

The aforementioned letter concerned the decision of KMID-TV to pre-empt the taped re-run of the lowering of the Times Square Ball (the live showing aired locally at 11:00 p.m.) in order to air the live performance of J. Gordon Lunn's Tribute to Elvis.

It would seem that M.C. Wilson's complaint would be with the management of KMID-TV, and not with J. Gordon Lunn, as the letter implied, which is certainly of no concern to the readers of this paper.

With regard to this particular incident, my complaint lies with the editorial department of this newspaper. I feel that it was in very poor taste to choose to publish a letter which bluntly expressed one person's opinion of another through an obvious slur, and had very little to say about the subject for which it was written. It appears as though those who chose to publish such a letter, as well as M.C. Wilson, who chose to write it, should keep in mind the old saying, "If you can't say something nice about someone, don't say anything at all."

Why are they retiring?

Why has Midland lost experienced and qualified men to early retirement?

On Wednesday, Jan. 15th, Midland lost four men, one with a degree in Fire Science and MT training. Three of these men each have 25 years experience, and the other having 30 years. All of these men are in their early to mid-50s with one retiring due to an onthe-job injury.

Being the daughter of a recently retired fireman, I have grown up in the Midland Fire Department family. I honestly feel that if it were not for deep problems with the upper management of the department these experienced fire fighters would be on the job today. The Midland City Council should wake up and start asking why, unless they are afraid to hear the truth!

Angolan rebel Savimbi claims U.S. oil money supports Marxists

WASHINGTON (AP) — Angolan rebel leader Jonas Savimbi, visiting government officials here, appears to be receiving support from the State Department in his efforts to bring attention to U.S. business investments in the West African Savimbi, here seeking American backing for his struggle against the Cuban-backed government in Luanda, has long been troubled by the benefits the Marxist authorities have received from Angola-based U.S. firms. He was to discuss the matter with President Reagan today.

On Wednesday, State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb, echoing an earlier statement by Assistant Secretary of State Chester Crocker, said U.S. businesses help Angola to buy military equipment and pay Cuban troops there.

"This supports the war rather than the search for peace," Kalb said. His remarks were aimed mostly at the Chevron Corporation's Gulf Oil subsidiary, which has operated for many years in Angola with U.S. government support. Savimbi's meeting with Reagan followed sessions Wednesday with Secretary of State George Shultz and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger.

"I had a one-hour and 10-minute discussion with the secretary of state and I am satisfied and I hope there will be progress," Savimbi told re-porters after his meeting with Shultz, declining to answer further questions.

Savimbi then met with Weinberger and Adm. William J. Crowe, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, for 30 minutes.

Savimbi noted the presence of 35,000 Cuban soldiers in his country along with an unspecified number of Soviet advisers, and said his forces were facing government troops that were being supported by Sovietmade helicopter gunships and attack planes, an aide to Weinberger said.

On Capitol Hill, Rep. George W. Crockett, D-Mich., who is fighting proposals to help Savimbi, called Angola "perhaps the most democratic revolutionary government in all of Africa."

Chevron pumps 83,000 barrels a day under an agreement with the Angolan national oil company, according to company officials.

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House on Wednesday approved a plan to have all polling places in the 48 continental United States close at 9 p.m. EST on presidential Election Day.

The bill would approve extension of Pacific Daylight Savings Time in presidential years until after Election Day, so polls in the West would close at 7 p.m. local time.

Americans spend 10 percent of '84 GNP on health care

WASHINGTON (AP) - America paid an average of $1,580 per person for health care in 1984, more than 10 percent of the nation's gross national product, but the investment is paying off in lower death rates from killer diseases, a new study says.

The annual report on the nation's health, released Wednesday by the Health and Human Services Department, says life expectancy once again has hit a record high, while infant mortality once again has set a record low

Study: Cigarette smoke threatens non-smokers

WASHINGTON (AP) - People who complain about smokers' cigarettes aren't being finicky, they are rebelling against a potentially deadly health hazard, says a government health-safety official.

Cigarette smoke can be life-threatening, even if it's somebody else puffing, the official said Wednesday, arguing that tough restraints on "passive smoke" could save thousands of people from dying of lung cancer or other diseases. "The non-smokers' rights movement has been portrayed by tobacco interests as an assemblage of finicky busybodies intent on imposing their values on smokers," said John C. Topping Jr., staff director of the Environmental Protection Agency's Office of Air and Radiation. "In the past year, the passive smoking issue has taken on new dimensions as evidence has mounted that involuntary expsure to tobacco smoke may be one of the leading environmental sources of death," he

Ferraro probe ending

NEW YORK (AP) - Former vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro is unlikely to be prosecuted by the Justice Department, which is wrapping up a lengthy investigation of her finances, The New York Times reported today.

The Times, quoting an unidentified federal law enforcement official, said Ferraro would probably be cleared of allegations of improper fi-nancing in her successful 1978 congressional campaign. However, officials cautioned that the probe was not completed, and that it was possible something could be uncovered that could lead to prosecution, the newspaper said.

Gun-sale bill opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) - Ten law enforcement organizations today asked House members, "in the name of sanity," to oppose Senate-passed legislation that would permit interstate sales of firearms.

A large high pressure system ex-tending from the Midwest to the Southwest kept Texas weather pleasant and free of precipitation today.

A weak cool front stalled along the lower Texas coast, resulting in some low clouds over South Central Texas and some fog in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Skies were clear over the rest of the state.

Forecasts call for fair skies over West Texas tonight with some clouds forming over portions of North Texas and South Texas. Lows tonight will be in the 30s in the Panhandle and in the 40s and 50s over the rest of the state except in extreme South Texas where readings will dip only to the 60s.

It will be partly cloudy in Northeast Texas and over most of West Texas Friday. It will be mostly cloudy over northern sections of South Texas and mostly clear in the south. Highs Friday will be mostly in the 60s and 70s, ranging from the 50s in the Panhandle to near 80 in the Big Bend area of Southwest Texas.

NATION

An Atlantic storm spread snow from the Northeast to the Midwest today, while rain and snow covered broad sections of the West and freezing rain glazed roads in parts of Montana.

The tail of an icy cold front lingered in northeast Tennessee, dropping an inch of snow and making driving conditions hazardous, while the central and western part of the state basked in temperatures in the 40s and 50s.

Snow ranged from Ohio and east ern Kentucky across the mid-Atlantic Coast states to southern Maine. A winter storm warning was issued for Cape Cod and the islands of eastern Massachusetts.

Big Spring drops down in only 4-5A change

Despite rumors to the contrary, the heart of District 45A will remain the same for the next two years, it was announced by the University Interscholastic League this morning. Several area schools however, will find themselves in much different surroundings next fall it was announced in the bi-annu-

Big Spring, a member of the same district as the Midland, Odessa and Abilene schools since the 1960s, was the only school that will not return to the district in the 1986-87 school year. The new alignment will make 4-5A a seven-team district for at least the next two years. The member schools are Midland High, Midland Lee, Odessa High, Odessa Permian, San Angelo Central, Abilene High and Abilene Cooper

Cooper.
The Steers, long on the borderline between 5A and the next lowest classification, 4A, will drop down next year and join District 24A. The new alignment for 24A is: Big Spring, Lamesa, Andrews, Pecos, Fort Stockton, San Angelo Lakeview, Snyder, Sweetwater and Monahans.

BIG SPRING head football coach Quinn Eudy welcomed the change this morning after hearing of the official announcement.

"I was pleased. I think that we now get to compete with schools that are more our enrollment level," Eudy said. "The ditrict we'll be going in is probably as competitive as 45A except for the depth problem. All the schools have tremendous off-season programs — perhaps the best in the state.

"All the administrative people, coaches and teachers that I have talked to have been pleased with it. I'll tell our kids this morning. Our kids have had a good attitude about playing 5A when they were in that district. Whatever level they're at, they'll have a good attitude."

The loss of exposure from playing in the same district as Permian and Lee, perennial playoff powers, shouldn't be that great, according to Eudy.

Football coach and athletic director Joe Longley worried about the extensive travel time in a district that spreads nearly 300 miles to just east of El Paso.

"They really got us in the travel league," Longley said. "My initial reaction is shock. We knew we would move up, but we were sort of afraid of some-thing like this. We were hoping for the possibility of taking Ozona's place (in what was 7-3A) and them taking ours (in what was 8-2A)."

Longley mentioned the possibility of an appeal to the UIL for a change of districts. If Greenwood should appeal, they must file by Feb. 19.

Also on the move up in today's realignment were

Rankin and Iraan, the two playoff teams from Dis-trict 6A. Rankin will join Reagan County, Stanton, Eldorado, Forsan and Ozona in District 6-2A. Ozona was moved down from Class 3A and Forsan up from Class A. McCamey and Iraan will play in 6-2A in

"IT COULD really hurt us because we're right on the bottom of it (enrollment for Class 2A)," said Red Devil coach Dwayne Turner. "We expect to have a fairly good ballclub, but the competition gets a whole lot tougher in 2A. We can compete, we'll just have to play harder."

District 8-2A champion McCamey was not moved up, but was shuffled into a district that includes Iraan, Marfa, San Elizario, Van Horne and Presidio. Badger coach Buster Leaf also expressed concern over the amount of travel time involved in 340 mile road trips to San Elizario in the newly formed Dis-

CRANE-The Nebraska Cornhuskers were the big winners when Crane's all-purpose athlete Kenny Walker agreed to a verbal commitment to play football at the Big Eight school on Wednesday.

Walker, a deaf player who overcame his handicap through determination and tremendous athletic ability, was a three-year letterman and played tight end and defensive end for the Cranes who were 8-2-1 in 1985. Crane was eliminated in the first round of the Class 3A playoffs

Another committment was secured recently by an area football player, this one by Texas Tech. Reagan County's Mitchell Martin has verbally committed to the Southwest Conference school.

Martin, 6-7, 240 pounds, was the offensive center and a defensive lineman for the Owls, 9-4 last season and a two-time playoff winner and area champion.

Texas Christian University coach Jim Killingsworth said it was a "ragged game," but it was enough for the Horned Frogs to defeat the Houston Cougars and stay only a game be-hind Texas A&M in the Southwest Conference basketball race.

TCU took advantage of some excellent rebounding against against a taller Houston team to take a slim 53-49 victory and break a four-game winning streak by the Cougars. TCU out-rebounded Houston, 43-33. Houston played hard and they played good, but it was just kind of a ragged game," Killingsworth said.
"There wasn't much finesse on our part, but we managed to struggle through."

"I thought we did a good job on the boards," Killingsworth said. "And you know that's pretty good for our guys to stay on the boards with (Greg) Anderson and (Ricky) Winslow.'

Aguirre unhappy as Mavs win

DALLAS — The Mark Aguirre-Dick Motta feud took the glitter off the Dallas Mavericks 126-114 victory over the San Antonio Spurs that included a club record 37 consecutive free throws.

Rolando Blackman celebrated his selection to the National Basketball Association West All-Star team Wednesday night by scoring a game-high 25 points. Aguirre, who had 22 points, was in one of his moods after the game.

A disgruntled Aguirre fired another volley in his running disagreement with Motta, saying "Dick has no feeling for me and I have no feeling for him, but I can Aguirre said he knew he would be ignored on the All-Star team because of his three-game suspension by Motta a month ago.

"I knew I wasn't going to make it after my run-in with Dick," said Aguirre. "I knew I had blown it all." "I could be playing the starting small forward (in the All-Star) game if I was with some other teams," Aguirre said. "It's strictly business between us now. He's a good coach but we have no relationship.'

Asked if he wanted to be traded, Aguirre said "I love Dallas but they are not going to trade me."

Motta said he noticed a "different mood" in Aguirre after Blackman was informed of his All-Star status. "I haven't said anything to him but I'm surprised by what he said," said Motta. "Sure I have feeling for him. I have five years invested in him.'

Motta said Aguirre's mood changed like the weather. "I think Mark will have a different attitude tomorrow," said Motta.

Motta said he didn't know the Mavs were approaching the NBA record of 39 free throws in a row.

I knew we didn't miss any free throws in the first half and I couldn't remember if we had missed any free throws in the second half going into the fourth Rookie Detlef Schrempf's miss with 4:13 to play ended the Maverick charity streak.

"We've been concentrating more in free throws in practice and it paid off," said Motta.

FOXBORO, Mass. - The unprecedented, overwhelming vote by New England Patriots players to submit to drug testing by the National Football League team has unleashed a storm of controversy that threatens the program before it gets off the

The first action could come today, with the NFL Players Association saying it will file charges against the Patriots. Gene Upshaw, executive director of the NFLPA, was quoted by the Bosto n Globe as saying the union would file with the National Labor Relations Board in New York.

The Patriots' 46-10 loss to the Chicago Bears in last Sunday's Super Repercussions were swift.

UPSHAW SAID Tuesday that a voluntary testing program "is in direct opposition to our collective bargaining agreement."

That agreement provides for testing only if a player had a known drug problem and had tested positively, or if the team physician has cause to believe a player has a drug problem.

MARKETS Texans think Texaco bond unfair, poll says

AUSTIN (AP) - Pennzoil Co. is shrugging off findings of Texaco Inc. opinion polls indicating that many people believe the $10.5 billion in damages Texaco has been ordered to pay Pennzoil was unfair and ultimately will cost consumers.

Texaco distributed the results of three polls - taken for it in Texas and nationally during December and January - to top state officials and members of the Texas congressional delegation.

A copy of the poll, which Texaco officials said hadn't been generally released, was obtained Wednesday by The Associated Press.

Texaco spokesman Gregory Good said the poll results were sent to Texas officials because "what it confirmed was that the attitude of citizens of Texas - matched very closely by citizens across the country - was that we definitely should have a chance to pursue our appeal in the Texas courts.'

The results also showed "that the judgment itself was unfair and not in the best interests of the citizens of Texas," Good said.

But Pennzoil spokesman Bob Harper in a phone interview from Houston said, "Pennzoil feels that Texaco's survey has about as much credibility as those experts who preTexaco loses bid to have judge removed Casseb was appointed as a "retired judge," and as such would not have to be administered an oath of HOUSTON (AP) — A state administrative judge has refused to disqualify a Texas judge who ordered Texaco Inc. to pay $11.1 billion for interfering in Pennzoil Co.'s merger with Getty Oil Co.

On Nov. 19, a jury held that Texaco deliberately interfered in a binding merger agreement between Pennzoil Co. and Getty Oil Co. before it acquired Getty in 1984. It awarded Pennzoil an unprecedented $7.53 billion in actual damages and an additional $3 billion in punitive damages.

Casseb upheld the award in December and added $600,000 in interest.

A group of 16 sixth grade students from Hillander school listened intently to Shariff as he told them how he chose to become an American citizen.

He tells them he came to America in the late 70's without knowing a single word of English. But within a year, had not only mastered the language, but had enrolled in an Iowa College to major in mathematics. Already holding a degree in civil engineering, Shariff was impressed with the intelligence of Americans and the hard work that Americans put into business.

visit Midland's El Chico facility. He said, "I have never regretted my decision to get involved in business. It is hard work, but it always pays off."

Shariff said he initiated a program for school children to visit El Chico's in response to questions that young children asked him as they were dining in the restaurant. "Children today are very curious and very bright. As more and more children would ask me ques tions about how a particular food was prepared, I began to get this idea to show them, first hand, how things are done in a restaurant."

One of the the things they were most curious about was how fried ice cream was made, he said. Shariff brings the school tour into the kitchen at the noon rush hour to let them experience the speed and skill with which the food is prepared. They are also shown the giant walk-in freezers and huge steam kettles in which the beans are prepared.

To date three groups of school children have joined Shariff as his guest for lunch, followed by a tour of the El Chico kitchen and an impromptu lecture on the greatness of American free enterprise and what it takes to run a successful business.

"One of the first lessons you learn," said Shariff, "is that the manager usually has to work harder than any of his employees, and the harder he works, the harder his employes will work for him.

That resulted in earnings for the fourth quarter being reduced $71 million to a restated $95 million, or 39 cents a share, while earnings were restated upward by $71 million for the other three quarters of the year.

For the year, Phillips reported earnings of $418 million, or $1.44 a share, on total revenues of $15.8 billion. This compares with 1984 earnings of $810 million, or $1.75 a share, on total revenues of $15.75 billion.

Trade deficit expands to record $148.5 billion in 1985

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit widened to a record $148.5 billion in 1985, as imports in December alone outpaced exports by $17.4 billion, the government reported today.

The December deficit itself was an all-time monthly high. For the first 11 months of 1985, the deficit had averaged $12.0 billion a month.

In advance of today's report, how-ever, many economists said that the deficit may have peaked last year and could head down as imports gradually become more expensive with declines in the value of the merchandise trade report showed that such a turnaround had not materialized by year's end. The 1985 trade deficit was up 20.4

percent from the then-record $123.3 deficit of the year before. In all, U.S. imports totaled $361.6

In all, U.S. imports totaled $361.6 billion in 1985, up 6 percent from the preceding year. Exports totaled $213.1 billion, falling 2.2 percent from 1984, the report said.

Japan accounted for roughly one-third of the overall deficit. Imports from Japan exceeded exports by $49.7 billion in 1985, up from $37 billion the year before.

The U.S. deficit with Western Europe in 1985 was $27.4 billion. $22.2

rope in 1985 was $27.4 billion, $22.2

billion with Canada, $13.1 billion with Taiwan, and $11.6 billion with members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

December's trade deficit was up 27 percent from the $13.7 billion of

Exports during the month fell by 5.3 percent, to $17.0 billion, while imports soared by 8.7 percent, to $34.4 billion, more than double the export

Helping to propel the December deficit upwards were $4.1 billion in new car imports, up 5.9 percent from the month before.

Meanwhile, agricultural exports declined in December by 0.22 percent, to $2.5 billion, while oil imports increased by 10.1 percent, to $3.5

In a separate report, the Com-merce Department said that the in-dex of leading indicators — the government's s main guage of future economic activity - rose a sharp 0.9 percent in December.

That matched an August increase that was the largest since a 1.3 percent rise in January 1985. Part of the nation's surging trade imbalance has been blamed on the high value of the U.S. dollar on foreign currency exchanges. A strong dollar makes domestic products rela-tively better buys against imports.

The value of the dollar has declined about 24 percent against other major currencies from its peak last March. However, economists said it often takes six months to a year before declines in currency values translate into trade balance changes.

The United States did not run a surplus with any of its major trading partners last month

For December, the U.S. trade balance showed deficits with Japan of $5.5 billion; with Western Europe, $3.7 billion; Canada, $2.9 billion; OPEC, $1.6 billion; Taiwan, $1.2 billion; Mexico, $800 million; Korea, $600 million; and Brazil, $200 million.

Program, Ltd. due to uncertainty caused by recent reductions in worldwide crude oil prices.

Coastal withdraws offering

The size and content of a revised 1986 program are under review by Coastal and its independent petroleum engineer and it will be offered to the company's stockholders and employees as soon as practicable.

Coastal reported that the recent price decline could effect 1986 revenues of its seven previous drilling partnerships but has not changed the performance estimates for these programs. Drilling programs sold in 1981 and 1982 have already reached partnership payout, and the 1983 program is expected to reach that level in mid-1986. Programs offered in 1984 and 1985 are still expected to reach payout within the estimated 3-1/2 to 41/2 years from start-up.

The 1986 program was offered on January 2, 1986 and was scheduled to expire January 31. As with the prior Coastal programs, it was initially offered only to stockholders and employees of the Coastal Corporation and its subsidiaries.

Trinity asked to reduce credit line

HOUSTON (SWN) - Trinity Resources Ltd. announced that its banker has requested that the company reduce its outstanding line of credit from $9.9 million to $7.5 million. The reduction would be effected pursuant to an amortization schedule acceptable to the bank or, failing that, through repayment of $500,000 of principal on February 14, 1986 and $1,900,000 on February 23 or the provision of additional collateral. The bank also stated that its loans are to be repaid in full if the proposed reorganization of Trinity. which would result in the combination of the business of its subsidiary. Trinity Resources, Inc., with that of Caland Petroleum Corp. of Denver, the reorganization would result in a substantial increase in the security available for the bank because 1) it adds $7.0 million of net book value of shareholders equity on a pro forma basis as at September 30, 1985 and 2) IHC/Caland N.V. has agreed to subordinate to the bank its loan to Caland Petroleum Corp. of $2 million. I can only assume that the bank's ac-nate banking arrangements. Pending resolution of the banking situation, Trinity proposes to adjourn the shareholders meeting scheduled for Jan. 31, 1986 until 2:00 p.m., Feb. 28, 1986 at the Royal York Hotel in Toronto, Ontario. Shareholders will be informed of further developments.

Union Texas has confirmed significant gas discovery

HOUSTON (SWN) Union Texas Petroleum announced that a recently completed well in state waters off St. Mary Parish, Louisiana, confirms the discovery of significant natural gas reserves the company made there in Located some 25 miles southeast of Intercoastal City, Louisiana, the East Lake Sand State Lease 10251 No. 2 well flowed on a short-term test at a rate of 7.6 millon cubic feet of natural gas and 60 barrels of condensate daily through a 11/16-inch choke with 12,900 pounds-per-square-inch flowing tubing pressure. The gas and condensate were tested from perforations between 17,700 feet and 17,720 feet. The company said that the confirmation well penetrated 379 feet of net productive pay below 15,900 feet and that the well is capable of producing up to 40 million cu-bic feet of natural gas daily.

The discovery well, the State Lease 10251 No. 1, which was completed in 1983 tested at a rate of 15.4 million cubic feet of natural gas and 102 barrels of condensate daily through a 17/64-inch choke with 12,475 pounds-per-square-inch flowing tubing pressure. As operator, Union Texas has a 24.3 percent interest in the well. The remaining interest is held by Texaco with a 27.6 percent interest; Sun Exploration and Production Company with 20.1 percent; Freeport-McMoRan Energy Partners, Ltd., through its operating affiliate, FMP Operating Company, et. al. with 20 percent; Maynard Oil Company with 4.6 percent; and Coastal Oil and Gas with 3.4 percent. Houston-based Union Texas Petroleum is one of the nation's largest independent oil and gas companies with interests across the United States and overseas. It owns and operates 13 natural gas processing plants and is a large LP-gas marketer in the eastern half of the nation.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE Upon co-owner's death, bonds go to survivor

By BILL DOYLE

Q. Over the past 30 years, my wife and I have accumulated a very large number of Series E and EE, U.S. Savings Bonds. All these bonds are in co-ownership form, in both our names. If one of us dies, must the bonds be cashed, at once, by the survivor? A. No! Upon the death of either co-owner, savings bonds become the sole property of the surviving co-owner, to do with as he or she sees fit. At that point, the survivor can either redeem the bonds, retain them as they are, have them reissued to remove the name of the dead coowner or reissued with the name of a new co-owner or beneficiary

To have the bonds reissued, the surviving co-owner must provide a certified copy of the deceased co-owner's death certificate.

Let's assume you die first. That's realistic, because men do have shorter life expectancies than

Your wife won't be required to redeem those bonds. Unless she's in dire need of cash, it would be a mistake for her to do so and be socked with income tax on all the interest that has accumulated on the bonds over the past three decades.

Q. My accountant disagrees with the column

in which you wrote:
"When accumulated (U.S. Savings Bond) interest is reported on a deceased bond owner's final (income tax) return, federal income tax is paid on that interest at that time. Heirs then become responsible for income tax only on interest that builds up on the bonds after that.

"When that accumulated interest is not reported on a final return, heirs have the tax liability for all past and future bond interest." Where did you get your information for that statement?

A. My source was a booklet entitled "Legal Aspects," (SBD-1482) published by the Treasury Department's U.S. Savings Bond Division.

Tell your accountant to get a copy from the nearest savings bond office. On Page 3, he'll find the following:

"...if the person filing the final income tax re-turn of the decedent elects to include all interest earned on the bond(s) to the date of the decedent's death, the (co-owner's, beneficiary's or heir's) tax liability would extend only to the interest accruing from that date.'

Based on the bulging mailbag, there's a great deal of confusion on this subject — even among accountants and tax lawyers, who should be aware of these details.

Q. I have 13 $1,000 Series E, U.S. Savings Q. I have 13 $1,000 Series E, U.S. Savings Bonds, nearing their 40-year final maturity, after which they no longer will build up interest — four in 1988 and nine in 1989. I cashed one last year and was jolted by the federal income tax I had to pay on its accrued interest.

What is the most advantageous way to handle my remaining 13 bonds? Should I exchange them for HH bonds?

A. Don't do anything with them until November 1987, at the earliest. As this column keeps stressing, Series E and EE bonds must be held for at least five years after Nov. 1, 1982, in order to get the variable — and higher — interest rate.

Once your bonds have passed their next semiannual interest accrual date following Nov. 1, 1987, you can either redeem them or exchange them for

If you redeem them, you'll be hit with federal income tax on their accumulated interest. If you exchange them, you'll postpone that tax bite until you redeem the HHs received in the exchange.

Assuming you make the exchange, you'll receive semiannual HH bond interest checks. You'll have to pay federal income tax on that HH interest. But that tax will be small, compared to the tax you postponed

HHs now being issued pay interest at an annual 7.5 percent rate — 3.75 percent every six months. There's no telling what interest will be paid on HHs issued in future years. If interest rates fall, interest on new HHs could be reduced.

Gannett considering bid for Louisville Courier-Journal

Los Angeles Times — Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON — Gannett Co. Inc. Chairman Allen H. Neuharth said this week the publisher of USA Today, based in Rosslyn, Va., is considering bidding for The Courier-Journal and Louisville Times newspapers, which the Bingham family put up for sale earlier this

The Washington area apparently has no shortage of parties interested in acquiring the Louisville newspa-pers. In addition to Gannett, The Washington Post Co. and Washington Redskins owner Jack Kent Cooke are considering bidding.

Barry Bingham Sr., who announced his intention ear-lier this month to sell the Louisville newspapers and other family holdings because of a family dispute, said Monday he received a phone call from Cooke and referred him to Goldman, Sachs & Co., the investment banker that is handling the sale for the Bingham family. Cooke said Monday he has not decided whether to bid for the properties.

Last month Cooke acquired the Los Angeles Daily
News from Tribune Co. for $176 million and said he wants to acquire additional media properties, especially Neither Cooke nor any of the other interested parties has received any of the confidential financial information about the properties that would be necessary to prepare a bid, Bingham said. Bingham said Goldman was in the process of preparing information describing the family's holdings, and added that no final decision has been made about who will receive this information and be invited to submit bids.

"This is going to take some time," Bingham said

Meanwhile, The Associated Press reported that Neuharth, speaking at a press conference at the Economic Club of Detroit, said he has been in contact with the Bingham family and that any Gannett purchase would come only under "the friendliest of circumstances." Neuharth was in Detroit to discuss Gannett's soon-to-becompleted acquisition of The Detroit News.

In addition to the Louisville newspapers, which have a combined daily circulation in excess of 300,000, the Bingham family has said it plans to sell two Louisville radio stations, the city's CBS television affiliate and the Standard Gravure Corp. printing operations.

Newspaper analyst John Morton said Monday he estimates the newspapers will be sold for about $300 million and the remainder of the properties for a total of $100 million. Morton said The New York Times Co., which has a chain of newspapers in the southeast, has indicated it is interested in bidding for the Louisville

"There is some question about who they (the Binghams) are going to invite," Morton said.

Cold weather sends U.S. heating bills up sharply in December

WASHINGTON (AP) - The cold weather that swept across the nation in December sent Americans' heating bills up sharply, with the typical bill topping $150, or $18.59 above normal, government statistics show. The average national heating bill was $150.71 for December, compared with the normal heating bill of $132.12 for the month. U.S. consumers posted the third-highest temperature-related heat demand in 55 years of recordkeeping.

The bill was about $41 more than the average in December 1984, when milder weather prevailed. This December's weather was similar to that of December 1983, the most recent very cold December. And while fuel prices were not much changed, government statisticians said a direct comparison of consumer costs could not be made because of differing methods of calculation that were used two years ago. "All three major residential heating fuels experienced above normal temperature-related consumption at the national level," according to a report Monday from the National Environmental Satellite, Data and Information Service. Americans heating with electricity saw their bills rise 15 percent above normal for the month, with natural gas costs up 14 percent and heating oil users paying 12 percent more, according to the service's Assessment and Information Services Center.

The above-normal heating costs stemmed from weather that averaged from 4 degrees to 8 degrees below normal during the month.

Excessive costs varied considerably by region and fuel, however, ranging from a high of $70.61 more than normal for natural gas users in the East North Central states to a low of $3.53 extra for electric heat in the Pacific states.

For the heating season so far -October, November and December the nation's total heating bill was estimated at $20.8 billion, about 3 percent above normal. Of that, $10.8 billion was spent in December.

The Assessment Center compiled the average heating costs for the nation's 71,941,600 home-heating customers based on the weather in each part of the country for the month, the costs of gas, oil and electricity and the share of homes using each fuel in each area. Here are their estimates of the average household heating bill in December for each region, and the departure from a normal December: -New England, $167.34, $9.70 above normal. Includes Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

-Middle Atlantic, $197.23, $14.05 above normal. Includes New York, Pennsylvania and New Jersey -East North Central, $190.08, Mississippi $33.06 above normal. Includes Wisconsin, Michigan, Illinois, Indiana

-West North Central, $166.06, $32.85 above normal. Includes North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa and

-South Atlantic, $138.19, $15.52 above normal. Includes Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

-East South Central, $111.30. $20.92 above normal. Includes Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and

-West South Central, $99.96, $15.52 above normal. Includes Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana

-Mountain, $101.83, $6.13 above normal. Includes Montana, Idaho, Wyoming, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Arizona and New Mexico. -Pacific, $108.15, $9.32 above normal. Includes Washington, Oregon and California

The monthly energy use calculations do not include figures for Alaska and Hawaii.

Southwestern Bell increased earnings in 1985

ST. LOUIS (AP) - Southwestern Bell Corp. has reported earnings of $996 million in 1985, up from $883 million in the previous year.

Revenues for the year were $7.92 billion, the St. Louis-based company said

Wednesday, compared with $7.19 billion in 1984. For the last quarter of 1985, the company earned $230 million on revenues of just over $2 billion. The results compared with earnings of $224 million on revenues of nearly $1.9 billion in the fourth quarter of 1984. Southwestern Bell Corp.'s principal subsidiary is Southwestern Bell Telephone, which provides telephone service to customers in Arkansas, Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas. It also is the parent company of Southwestern Bell Publications Inc., the nation's largest directory publisher.

Treasury to borrow $23 billion to fund deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Treasury Department says it plans to borrow a record $23 billion next week to finance the burgeoning federal deficit. The borrowing announced Wednesday will come at what is known as a "quarterly refunding," a series of three auctions of Treasury securities held one week in every three months. This refunding takes care of much of the government's needs for new cash to finance a deficit that now stands at

The previous record borrowing at a quarterly refunding was $22.5 billion last November. That amount was part of a record $63.4 billion in cash raised during the October-December quarter.

Reagan nominates new agriculture secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Reagan has nominated veteran agribusiness figure Richard E. Lyng to be secretary of agriculture.

The choice was welcomed Wednesday by members of Congress, but questioned by a group that lobbies for government consumer and nutrition

Lyng, who will replace resigning secretary John R. Block, declined interview requests until after he was confirmed by the Senate - an action that was expected to be routine.

Investors sweeten offer for Kaiser Aluminum

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) - An investor group led by Oklahoma businessman Joseph A. Frates has sweetened its offer for Kaiser Aluminum & Chemical Corp. by $1.50 a share, to $21.50.

Under the new bid disclosed Wednesday, the group would buy each of the remaining shares for $8 in cash and a package of securities with a combined face value of $13.50, said Leonard T. Conway, a partner in Asset Management Associates, one of the investors in the Frates group. The group already controls an 18.6 percent stake in the aluminum producer.

Steel producers expect loss of $200 million

DETROIT (AP) - U.S. steel producers will show a collective loss of more than $200 million when calculations on 1985 earnings are complete, but this year should be the first profitable one since 1981, according to the American Iron & Steel Institute.

The improvement will be due primarily to the continued strengthening of the Japanese yen, quotas on steel imports, inflation and continuation of tax credits, institute Executive Vice President James Collins said Wednesday.

Productivity dropped 1.3 percent in 1985

WASHINGTON (AP) - Productivity, the efficiency with which the nation produces goods and services, dropped at an annual rate of 1.3 percent the ast quarter of 1985, the sharpest decline in four years, the government said. Excluding farming, the productivity drop was even greater - 1.8 percent - the Labor Department said Wednesday.

The downturn reflects the slowdown in economic growth last year and may indicate a long-term return to higher inflation rates, analysts said.

Appraisal system 'big step' for education

By JULIE HILLRICHS Staff Writer

A consistent statewide method for evaluating public school teachers not only will help school districts determine at what level teachers will be assigned to the career ladder; it also will point out teachers' strengths and weaknesses in the classroom and help resolve the prob-lems with public education, State Board of Education member Katherine Raines said Wednesday.

Mrs. Raines — making her third appearance in Midland since being appointed to the board in September 1984 — said once the appraisal system is in place, the state will have taken a "big step toward major improvements in the teaching profession and in our overall system of public education.

The SBOE will hold a public hearing on the proposed statewide teacher appraisal system from 9 a.m. to noon Feb. 6 and from 1 to 4 p.m. Feb. 8 in Austin.

The hearing is aimed at gathering input from teachers, administrators and the general public prior to the board's consideration at its March 8 meeting of new rules to implement the teacher appraisal system and es-

"The statewide teacher appraisal system will help ensure consistent, meaningful appraisals for placing teachers on the career ladder," Commissioner of Education Dr. W.N. Kir-

Under the draft now in place in the pilot study, four key areas—called "domains"— of classroom performance will be evaluated by specially trained and certified appraisers.

The domains include a teacher's ability to: 1) implement effective instructional strategies; 2) organize and manage the classroom; 3) present subject matter; and 4) maintain an effective learning environment.

A fifth domain would expand the appraisal focus to include job-related professional characteristics such as following board policies and continuing professional growth activities Mrs. Raines said many of the state's teachers are "concerned" over the appraisers' ability to "document" elements in the fifth domain.

She defended the key area, however, saying "some elements of this domain will remain, but others will focus on items that are observable and can be documented."

The teacher appraisal system is expected to provide for at least four observations by two appraisers. Only one of the four classroom visits will be scheduled with the teacher in advance.

In scoring the appraisal, the report of the teacher's supervisor or the first appraiser will be weighted more heavily.

While the teacher appraisal process being developed by the Texas Education Agency under the direction of the SBOE is designed for use in all school districts, the board agreed to explore ways to allow substitute assessment systems. Mrs. Raines said the board will consider the Midland Independent School District's request to continue use of its own evaluation instrument.

However, the criteria necessary to assure the validity of the district's appraisal plan will be developed by the TEA staff and approved by the board, she added.

Andrews group to discuss ambulance service

By RAMONA NYE Staff Writer

ANDREWS - A group of Andrews citizens are expected to meet tonight to discuss separating the ambulance service from police operations.

Clifford West of Andrews is leading the group meeting at 7:30 p.m. at the Old Country Club to separate police and ambulance duties.

Andrews police are certified as Emergency Care Technicians or Emergency Medical Technicians to operate the city's four ambulances, said police chief Doug Gaines. Because Andrews has a volunteer fire department, the city cannot run its emergency service with fire personnel as many cities do, Gaines said. Andrews City Manager Len Wilson said West is the only individual he knows who wants the ambulance department. This gentleman doesn't have a complaint with the service. He would like to see a separate opera-

service maintained as a separate tion," Wilson said. According to the Andrews County News, West says the ambulance service which serves Andrews and the surrounding county is inadquate. West told the newspaper he would work to separate police and ambulance duties. The Reporter-Telegram was unable to locate West this Gaines and Wilson said West, who is trained as a paramedic, has a self interest in running a separate ambulance patrol himself.

The police do an excellent job as ambulance operators, said Rob Mercker, administrator for Permian General Hospital.

However, he said a group of EMTs think the community would be better served by a professional ambulance service which has only one

Wilson said West will have to submit a written proposal to the six council members for consideration of a separate ambulance service. About five years ago, a complete study was made by the council on separating the ambulance service from police duties, Wilson said.

"The council appointed a study commission. They met and when all the smoke cleared...it stayed with the police department," Wilson said.

Separating the service would be more expensive, Wilson said. The emergency service costs the city and county more than $100,000 per year to run, he said.

Wilson said a private ambulance service has been considered, but no one has ever come forward to start one. Profit is one reason. Under the city, the service has never "broke

Congressmen face 'unkindest cut' from law

By KATHRYN BAKER

WASHINGTON (AP) - Congress rallied last year behind Gramm-Rudman, the new budget reduction law, lecturing the populace about how all must sacrifice to shrink the federal deficit.

The congressmen transmitted their message through mass mailings and press releases and automatically typed letters. Now, under Gramm-Rudman, it looks like those mass mailings and press releases will be fewer and some of those automatic typewriters will be silenced.

"You usually think of these guys as immuning themselves. This was one time they weren't able to do it," said Bob Welling, press secretary to Rep. Joe Barton, R-Ennis.

Yes, those across-the-board cuts mandated by the law, named for its Senate sponsors, including Phil Gramm, R-Texas, will go for congressional offices, too.

"We can't very well ask the rest of government to sacrifice to deal with the deficit and not be willing to do it run them." ourselves," said Gramm.

what you preach," he said.

"The joke around here is, we're going to have cards printed up and mail them out that say, 'Due to Gramm-Rudman, we cannot respond to your letter," said Mario Perez, press secretary to Rep. Albert Bustamante. D-San Antonio.

Perez said everyone in Bustamante's office expects to take a 3 percent pay cut during fiscal year 1986, the first year the law is in

If Congress fails to reduce the budget so that the resulting projected deficit meets the target mandated by law, the automatic cuts go into effect. According to current estimates, the fiscal 1986 cuts would be 4.3 percent, and go up to around 20 percent in fiscal year 1987.

Between now and October, we'll feel a pinch," said Perez. "After October, there will be a devastating impact on our offices and the way we

The sad thing is the people in the district don't realize what it takes to run a congressional office. They're going to get a surprise in 1987," said

But his boss opposes Gramm-Rudman and is one of the dozen congressmen who are challenging the law in court.

Welling's boss, a freshman Republican who won Gramm's district last year when Gramm won the Senate seat, supports Gramm-Rudman and isn't complaining.

"We're going to take the cuts," said Welling. "There may not be the salary increases many of us were looking forward to.

Bite the bullet, right?" The attitude in Gramm's office can be characterized as, "Hey, no problem," says Gramm's press secretary.

Larry Neal. He said the office expects to return 16 percent of its office expense allotment for fiscal 1986, easily absorbing an expected 4 percent cutback.

But many offices use their full allotments. They got a surprise a few weeks ago when congressional administrative assistants were called to a meeting to be given the bad news. Until they had the A-As meeting,

I don't think it had dawned on them," said Welling. In the Senate, the cuts are still a question mark. Senators get allotments from different accounts and the amounts are based on state population.

Jack DeVore, press secretary to Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, said Bentsen and Gramm each receive $79,000 a year in office expenses. Bentsen spent $716,000 on six months' worth of salaries, according to the most recent report of the Secretary of the Senate. Gramm spent $251,000 for the first three months he was in office.

A Midland grand jury reindicted an Odessa hot oil operator and his son Wednesday for criminal theft from Gulf Oil

A two-day trial that began Monday ended Tuesday after charges against Hale and his son were dismissed because of a faulty indictment.

Prosecutor Dan Mills with the Attorney General's office, said he failed to include, "without the effective consent of the owner," in a 19-page indictment against Hale. A new indictment was drawn up Wednesday and resubmitted to a grand jury. Hale and his 23-year-old son are charged with billing Gulf over 38 months for $454,967 worth of propane allegedly never used.

Propane is used by hot oil companies to heat oil pumped into production wells. Heated oil unclogs paraffin, a waxy byproduct of crude oil, from wells.

No trial date has been set.

Young entrepreneurs clean up with new business By CARROLL COPELIN

WICHITA FALLS (AP) - Andy Kocher and Kelly Blake hardly look old enough to own a laundry and drycleaning plant, much less three of them, but the two 25-year-old business graduates are examples of Midwestern State University's emphasis on entrepreneurship. "We hadn't planned on getting into this business. I guess you could say we goofed around in that class (entrepreneurship) and waited until the last minute to come up with a project," said Blake. 'Yeah, that's probably why we only got a B in the class," said

"But we remind the instructor about it every time he comes in now," said Blake. The two were frantically seeking some kind of a class business project when they talked to a relative of Blake's who is in the dry-cleaning business in Austin. That conversation put them in touch with the firm which sells Comet Cleaners franchises and led them to where they are today.

helpful the franchising firm was when they were getting started. "We really didn't know a lot about this, and they were super nice to us,"

They are both quick to say how said Kocher. They recently opened their third

Today, they have 20 people on their company's payroll. The two partners admit it's a lot of work with each putting in 12-14 hours a day, six days a week. Both admit their social lives suffer from such hours. Blake says he doesn't get down to the Dallas-Fort Worth area to see his girlfriend nearly as often as he'd like.

Kocher said most of his dates are confined to Saturday nights and Sundays. Neither partner seems to mind having to get up at 5 a.m., but both admit it's sometimes hard to get up at that hour on a Monday morning.

In the 21/2 years they've operated the laundries and dry cleaners, the longest either has been able to take off at once has been four days last summer, but they hope this will change soon.

Asked about hobbies, the two replied almost in unison that "sleeping" occupied most of the time they weren't working. Blake is perhaps more used to long hours than his partner. Until recently, he milked his family's dairy herd at Thornberry, Texas, before driving in to work each morning.

Their plants offer one-hour service on all dry cleaning and one-day service on laundry.

"If we can get it in by about 9 a.m. we can have it out the same afternoon," said Blake.

Their three outlets process about 1,400 pieces of dry cleaning a day with pleated articles and silk ones being the most difficult. The business has its humorous

Blake said shortly after they had opened one store, a man came in with a load of laundry.

"He was a businessman who made a lot of out-of-town weekend trips, but he held up one real nice shirt that had lipstick all over it and told me that if we couldn't get the lipstick out, he never wanted to see the shirt again. Fortunately, we were able to get it clean, and he kept bringing his laundry in for us to do," said Blake.

Another of their early experiences involved a woman who brought in a white silk dress with a red silk flower on it. When it was cleaned, the area around the flower turned pink.

"The people with the franchise were still here and they told us to pay off, so we wrote her a check for about $135. After she had left, we got to thinking about taking the flower off and cleaning the dress again. We did and it turned out perfect so we sewed the flower back on and called the woman. She didn't believe us and went on and cashed that check," Blake said.

Man's drive to exploit the wild also has sublime side

Man's curiosity is unbridled. His pioneering is unquenchable. He explores, and he exploits.

That's the nature of mankind - find, kill and devour. But that's not the whole story There is, fortunately, a sublime side of man which appreciates the aes-thetics and is not too hasty to spoil the pristine in nature. It is man's inlination to exploit the untamed vilds for the sake of making money, generating power and producing corruptible civilization, which, too, has its glorious moments.

I think of Spain's deserts, which formerly were forests, and of the great American plains and forests and unpolluted lakes, streams and artesian wells. Man moved West with a passion and exploited, under li-cense of the Manifest Destiny, the land and its life-sustaining waters

He staked the plains, tilled the soil, cut the trees, prospected for gold, ran off, made treaties with, killed and isolated the American Indians, virtually wiped out the buffalo and did kill off the passenger pigeon and possibly would have driven to extinction the bald eagle and the whooping crane were it not for some 'bleeding hearts" who intervened.

Now, man's got to make a living if e plans to survive, which he does despite some of his inane and self-destructive ways. He takes minerals and organic matter from the earth and ingeniously fashions them for use in building and running his marvelous inventions: the locomotive, the automobile, the airplane, drilling rigs and refineries, the lightbulb, the generator, phonograph, the printing press, radio and television, and all manner of electronic inventions.

They all are a tribute to man's gift as an inventor and limited creator And in light of the axiom that there's nothing innately "bad" in this world but misused "goodness" and power, then no one can condemn any of man's works. His intentions and applications often are sus-pect and have been quite destructive, sorrowful and regrettable. The misuse of dynamite, TNT, atomic power, the knife, the automo bile, food and drink, and each other has reeked untold pain and misery Despite our wayward ways, the planet Earth still is salvageable. Yet, we fling ourselves headlong into exploring and exploiting deeper into the ocean, the Arctic and Antarctica, pristine forests and mountains and into the heavens and beyond.

Our prayer is that man learns to live in balance and harmony with nature and all of God's creation.

Library's friends will get early Valentine

From Staff Reports

An early Valentine will be given to Midlanders who join the Friends of the Library Saturday at the Centennial Branch Library in Midland Park Mall.

Deborah Mayes, mall marketing director, said a free nylon tote bag will be given with each $10 membership in the Friends of the Library to kick off their membership drive.

'We are pleased to have had the county choose the mall as the site for the branch, making us a part of Midland's expanding educational and cultural resources. We have learned that the Friends played a large part in the furnishing of the branch, making it a pleasant place for patrons who have discovered the convenience of having a good collection of library books available whether they are shopping or just brows-ing in the mall. This is our way of saying welcome to our new neighbor," said Ms. Mayes.

Money from the Friends' Used Book Sale each fall has bought special equipment that libraries can't always afford. The Friends have been working for the library since 1953, and were a strong force in bringing about construction of the downtown building in 1958.

The first book sale was held in 1968 and each year it has grown bigger until it now is filling the County Exhibit Building. Sales of these used books have been recycled into new film projectors, videocassettes, records, cassettes, laser discs, videocassette recorders, a computer and printer and framed prints.

Membership in Friends of the Library is your way of voicing an approval for Midland to have the best library service in Texas, said Rob Sutphen, Friends president.

Paper declines award, says column incident 'apocryphal' competition after it learned that one

AUSTIN (AP) - The San Antonio Light on Wednesday declined to accept a newspaper column writing award from the Headliners Club of Austin, later announcing the author had written about a meeting between a bag lady and a businessman that never took place.

Ernest Stromberger, chairman of the committee which conducts the club's annual Charles E. Green Journalism Awards, said the newspaper notified club officials it would not accept an award announced Friday for newspaper staffer Betty Godfrey.

The award instead will be present ed to Kent Biffle of The Dallas Morning News, who had been a runner-up behind Ms. Godfrey, Stromberger column published last Easter Sunday was based on an apocryphal incident that Godfrey rewrote, changing the locale from Germany to downtown San Antonio. The column concerned an encounter between a young businessman and a bag lady who inadvertently ended up sharing a lunch in a downtown cafeteria.

Quoting Executive Editor Ted Warmbold, the story said: "Betty is not a who-what-when-where-why. journalist. But she has an uncanny ability to tell stories, to capture a moment, to take the human approach. That is her value to this newspaper. But that does not excuse any instance of taking liberties with who, what, when, where or why. That is inexcusable, but that is what happened in this column. Insurance-rate hike needed to save companies

AUSTIN (AP) - The recent 30.7 percent rate hike in workers' compensation insurance was designed to keep more Texas companies from going broke, according to Insurance Chairman Lyndon Olson.

"That was the hardest vote I have ever had to cast since I have been on the board," Olson, a member of the board since 1978, told the House Committee on Workers' Compensation on Wednesday. "We felt we acted responsibly."

Olson said the industry wanted a 40.8 percent increase.

He appeared before the House study group assigned the task of deciding what, if anything, the 1987 Legislature should do about what many call a crisis in the liability insurance industry.

"It is up to us to decide if we recommend a fine-tuning of state laws or a major rewrite," said Rep. Richard Smith, R-Bryan, committee chairman. We cannot tell at this

Smith said the committee would hold hearings in March in Houston, Bryan, San Antonio and Dallas to get comment from the public and

The insurance board sets rates that Texas insurance companies may charge for insurance to cover in-

Texas is only one of three states in which workers' compensation insurance is not mandatory. Some employers take out private liability insurance policies and some go "bare," Olson said.

In 1984, there were 337 insurance companies writing workers' compensation. Olson said a recent survey showed that only 294 of the 615 companies licensed to write workers' compensation are actually issuing

"In the calendar year 1984, the companies writing this line of business wrote $1,612,131,428 in workers' compensation insurance premiums, which is some $24 million less than 1982," Olson said.

There were seven liability insurance companies placed in receivership in 1982 compared with 77 to 82 in 1985. Olson said.

State Board of Insurance Chairman Lyndon Olson tells a House committee on workers' compensation in Austin Wednesday the 30.7 percent increase in workers' compensation insurance was necessary to keep Texas insurance firms from going broke.

Woman testifies in father's murder trial

LIVINGSTON (AP) - The daughter of a high school principal ac-cused of murder testified that two statements she made contradicting her father's alibi were incorrect. Vanessa Fontenot, 25, testified Wednesday about statements she made to a grand jury and to a Texas Ranger concerning her father's activities the day murder victim Billy Mac Fleming disappeared.

Her father, Hurley Fontenot, 48, former principal of Hull-Daisetta Woodson Junior High School, is on trial for the shooting death of Fleming, 38, who coached and taught math and science at the school.

Fleming disappeared from the Liberty County school April 12. His body was found 10 days later on a logging road in Polk County. He had been shot twice in the back of the Prosecutors allege Fontenot, who is free on $50,000 bond, and Fleming were rivals for the affections of Laura Nugent, 36, the school secretary.

Ms. Fontenot, an Austin financial clerk, told the ranger and jury panel last year that her father called her between 8 a.m. and noon on April 12.

But on Wednesday she said she remembered her father called her about 5 p.m. on the day in question. Fontenot has said that on April 12 he called his daughter from Houston Intercontinental Airport. He said he had gone to the airport to pick up his daughter, who was flying in from

He gave investigators a parking stub from the airport indicating he was there between 5 p.m. and 5:10

Miss Fontenot testified she never made any plane reservations for April 12. But under questioning by defense attorneys, she said she could have forgotten about the weekend at about 5 p.m. when an appointment for my boss was also coming in," she said.

Fontenot was the last person to report seeing Fleming alive. He said he gave the coach a ride to his truck in the school parking lot on April 12.

Fontenot has told investigators that after dropping Fleming off at his truck about 2:50 p.m., he ran some errands, then drove to Hobby Airport in southeast Houston to pick up his daughter. When she did not show, he said, he decided to check Houston Intercontinental Airport.

He said he telephoned Miss Fontenot in Austin from a pay phone at the airport and gave investigators the parking stub as proof.

Prosecutors have said it would be impossible for Fontenot to make the trip from the school to the two airports in two hours.

Two other witnesses testified Tuesday that Fontenot had been seen in his hometown about 4 p.m., giving him only one hour to make the trip.

Nurse disputes story of maggots in patient's sores

SAN ANTONIO (AP) - There is no truth to allegations that maggots bred in a bedsore on an elderly nursing home patient, a licensed vocational nurse has testified in the Autumn Hills murder-by-neglect trial.

Mary Harris, who worked at an Autumn Hills nursing home in Texas City, said she never saw maggots Ms. Harris testified Wendesday in the murder trial of Autumn Hills Convalescent Centers Inc. and four of its current and former employees. They are charged in the Nov. 20, 1978, death of 87-year-old Elnora Breed. The elderly woman died 47 days after she was admitted to the Autumn Hills home in Texas City. The state claims poor nursing care caused Mrs. Breed to die of starvation and infection

The defense claims Mrs. Breed died of a recurrence of colon cancer. In earlier testimony, nursing aide Sherel Johnson told the court she found maggots in a bedsore on Mrs. Breed's body. Ms. Johnson testified she told Ms.

Harris about the maggots.

"Is there any truth to that story?" defense attorney Tom Sartwelle 'No, there is not," Ms. Harris said. Under cross examination, prosecutor Mike Guarino asked Ms. Harris if she remembered telling a state investigator prior to the trial she did not remember Ms. Johnson. "I didn't at that time," she said. "Didn't you testify that she was like a daughter to you?" Guarino 'Yes, she had a small daughter,'

Ms. Harris reponded.
"She was like your daughter but you didn't remember her," Guarino

You don't have to be a mathematical genius to be a good bridge player. But a knowledge of the basic probabilities is essential to success. Study this hand. There is considerable difference of opinion about whether South should open the bidding with one club or one spade with five cards in each black suit. Regardless of which he chooses, his side should reach a contract of four spades in comfort.

West led the queen of hearts, taken by dummy's ace as declarer sluffed a diamond. If declarer had to lose only one trump, he could afford to lose two tricks in the minors; if he had two trump losers, he could not give up more than one trick in the minors. How would you play the hand?

Since he had escaped a diamond lead, declarer realized that, if clubs broke 3-2 (a 68 percent chance), he could afford to ignore the spade finesse, which offered only a 50 percent chance of success. He could af-

NEW YORK (AP) - Actress Hope Lange married theater producer Charles Hollerith Jr. in a private ceremony at the home of friends in Monterey, Calif., a publicist says.

The marriage Wednesday was the third for Miss Lange, 54, and the second for Hollerith, 58, said publicist John Springer. She previously was married to actor Don Murray and director Alan Pakula. Hollerith's first wife, Helen, died in 1981.

Miss Lange won two Emmy Awards for her 1968-69 television series "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir." She has also appeared in a number of films, including the 1957 Oscar nominee "Peyton Place.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rock 'n' roll legend Little Richard was charged with reckless driving and other counts in an October traffic accident that put him in the hospital for three weeks, an official says.

The 53-year-old singer, whose real name is Richard Wayne Penniman, also was charged Wednesday with driving without a license, said district attorney's spokesman Al Albergate.

Penniman, now a preacher Little Richard and gospel singer, suffered a broken thigh bone and cuts after the sports car he was driving smashed into a metal traffic control box and a wooden pole Oct. 8, sheriff's deputies said. He was driving at least 50 mph in a 30 mph zone, deputies said.

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) - Leif Erickson, best remembered for his role in the television series "The High Chaparral," has died of cancer. He was 74.

Erickson, who portrayed char-acter Big Jon Cannon for the television show, lost his battle Wednesday night with the disease that first sickened him in March, said his brother-in-law, W.T. Cooper.

Born William Wycliff Ander-Erickson son, the actor changed his name the year after his 1937 Broadway debut as Lewis in "Golden Boy." His first effort with the new name playing John Merritt, M.D. in "All the Living His career included starring roles opposite Bette

Davis, Helen Hayes and Greta Garbo. His films include "Joan of Arc," "Show Boat," 'With a Song in My Heart" and 'The Carpetbaggers."

RANCHO SANTA FE, Calif. (AP) - Retired actor Victor Mature, who once flexed his muscles in such movies as "Samson and Delilah" and "The Robe," turned 70, stepping from his home overlooking a golf course for his usual morning game.

"God's been very good to me. I've been blessed with a very beautiful life," Mature said Wednesday.

The actor left full-time moviemaking in 1960, and now lives in this San Diego County community with his fourth wife, Lorey, a former Chicago opera singer, and their 10-year-old daughter, Victoria.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Oscar winner Dustin Hoffman has signed with Cannon Films to play a retired Secret Service agent caught in a blackmail plot in the film adaptation of Elmore Leonard's novel "LaBrava," a newspaper says. Cannon chairman Menahem Golan confirmed that Hoffman had signed but refused to discuss the fee.

At least three other major stu-Hoffman dios considered the movie but all declined because of the fee Hoffman requested, the Los Angeles Times reported Wednesday. The actor asked for $6.3 million and 22.5 percent of the gross revenues, the newspaper said, quoting a source close to the negotiations.

Golan said the deal with Cannon was different.

Runcie, spiritual head of the Church of England and leader of the world's 70 million Anglicans, will be the first archbishop of Canterbury to make a formal visit to the Indian churches while in office. WASHINGTON (AP) - Fourteen Gannett Co. Inc. newspapers that pulled out of the Audit Bureau of Circulation in a dispute over how circulation figures are calculated will reinstate their memberships, the company said.

The decision followed a meeting between executives of Gannett and an ABC liaison committee that included executives from other newspapers and newspaper chains, Gannett said Wednesday. The audit bureau is a non-profit cooperative of publishers and advertisers which vouches for the circulations of 95 percent of the nation's newspapers. It is based in the Chicago suburb of Schaumburg, Ill.

Gannett's Westchester Rockland Newspapers, a group of 10 dailies and one weekly in suburban New York City communities, withdrew from the ABC the second week of December.

Three other Gannett newspapers, the Des Moines Register in Iowa and the Rochester Democrat & Chronicle and Times-Union in New York, had pulled out of the circulation audit group earlier last year.

Among the issues raised at the meeting Wednesday, Gannett said, was the "addition of bulk circulation as a separate category and its inclusion in total paid circulation on the front page" of ABC audits.

Plastic soda bottles determined safe by FDA

By SONJA HEINZE

Q. Is soda in plastic bottles harmful to the body? People are telling me that this is so. Rose Wilson, Scranton, Pa.

A. The Society of the Plastics Industry has a section called the Plastic Bottle Information Bureau, and Terry Yacona, its representative, claims that plastic soft drink bottles, constructed from a material called polyethylene terephthalate, otherwise known as PET, have been determined by the Food and Drug Administration to be safe for use in packaging foods and carbonated and alcoholic beverages. This material is also used for heart valves and artificial blood vessels

The plastics industry further claims that plastic materials are becoming so widespread because this is what consumers want.

If you walk into a supermarket, however, and find all the glass bot-tles suddenly replaced with plastic bottles, this doesn't necessarily mean that's how you want your soda contained. It simply means you have no choice in the matter.

Elizabeth Davenport, a spokesper-son for Environmental Action, a Washington-based conservation group, asserts that "profits are usually the overriding factor in companies' decisions on materials."

Plastic is cheaper packaging than paper or glass. By replacing aluminum soft-drink cans with PET, a project in the works, manufacturers will be able to increase their profits by 15

The major problem with all this plastic is that it does not rot. Long after you and I have turned to dust, an empty Mazola bottle will nestle on a sandy beach for eternity.

Furthermore, although the plastics industry maintains that, properly incinerated, these plastics turn into simple carbon dioxide and water vapor, there are other experts who contend that we are dealing with a group of chemicals that are not fully understood and whose presence in landfills and improperly operated incinerators is causing an increase in deadly dioxin in our environment when burned, and is stopping valuable methane from being generated when mixed with

Q. Last summer I parked my car under a pine tree and did not know that somebody had cut some branches from it. The top of my car is still covered with marks left by tree sap dripping on it and I'm unable to remove them. Any suggestions? Marianne Gruber, Ventnor,

A. Mary Ann Peach, consumer education manager at Johnson Wax, sent some printed material that advises, under the heading "Tree Sap and Bird Droppings," that problems from these substances can usually be remedied with a rubbing compound.

I asked for specifics, such as what sort of rubbing compound and what the procedure involves. Peach's personal response was different from the printed material I had been sent earlier. This time she advised that tree sap and bird droppings can be successfully removed with a polishing, not a rubbing, compound. Both products are available in automotive

Readers who have met and solved this problem please explain to us how you did it.

Q. I have heard that green potatoes are not good for you and should not be eaten. Green potatoes are in the bags of potatoes that you buy in the supermarket. You have no way of knowing if you are eating green potatoes in a restaurant. What can be done about this? Mary Solek, Tuckerton, N.J.

A. When a potato is green, it means that it has been exposed to light for an excessive period of time.

Poisons then develop in the vegeta-ble as a natural defense against insects, fungi and bacteria. If you eat them, you won't die but you could

There's no way, of course, of knowing what color the potato was

If you can help it, don't buy pota-toes in the bag. Buy them one by one, and when you get them home,

Starting 'homemade' soup time consuming

By LINDA ANDERSON

In the heart of the long (well, in some places anyway), cold winter, nothing soothes a tired body as much as hot, homemade soup.

Unfortunately for those of us who work outside our homes, making homemade soup takes a lot of time. Vegetables have to be washed, cut up and cooked, meat has to be simmered to make the broth, noodles have to cook and the whole dish has to be simmered together to get the flavors to blend just right.

Beatrice (the company that keeps introducing itself to us in commercials as "We're Beatrice!") offers a line of Soup Starters - which are basically the fixings for soup, dried and put in a container — for those who want homemade soup with less fuss. All the cook has to do is add fresh meat.

The usual taste-testers sampled beef vegetable Soup Starter for taste, price and advertising accuracy. The cook in this case was the older teenager (wasn't that thoughtful?).

Soup Starter is marketed in 7.3ounce containers, and is priced at $1.25. When used according to label directions, one package yields about five servings of soup. (Price listed is from a local supermarket. Price at other locations may vary.)

Label advertising claims "We did all the shopping, chopping, slicing and dicing. All you do is add fresh beef ... " Inside the container is a packet of powdered stock mix - its label advertising claims "The great taste starts here. Good cooks agree the most important element of good homemade soup is the stock. That's why this stock packet is so important. Inside is a special blend of herbs, spices and flavors made especially for Soup Starter Homemade Soup Mix.

Some of the ingredients used to make this "homemade" soup include dehydrated vegetables (including potatoes, yellow split peas, carrots, onions, red bell peppers, celery and leeks), macaroni, barley, sugar, salt, modified food starch, tomato powder, onion powder, monosodium glutamate, glyceryl monostearate, sodium sulfite and sodium bisulfite added as preservatives, thiamine hydrochloride, torula yeast, disodim inosinate, disodium guanylate and

I don't know about you, but I don't have a lot of those ingredients in my kitchen, as a general rule.

Soup Starter does take time to prepare. The meat has to be cut up and browned, the soup mixture has to be brought to a gentle bubble and the whole dish has to simmer for 90 minutes. Maybe it isn't as much trouble to make Soup Starter soup, but the product takes almost as long to make as real homemade soup.

In the taste test, the testers seemed to be divided by age. Everyone older than 12 who tried it thought it was fine - quite tasty, even - and those who were younger than 12 didn't like it much. That probably has less to do with younger and older taste buds than it does with the fact that my younger children are not very fond of beef-type stews or soups.

The soup did have a dried-soup whang to it, and it is probably high in salt; but those of us who finished our bowls enjoyed it and the cook was very proud of her accomplishment. So was I.

Good diet contains enough fiber

By MARIAN FARR

Is it necessary to buy special high-fiber foods for health? Not if you're eating a well-balanced diet that includes about 15 grams of dietary fiber for every 100 calories. Marketers have capitalized on medical scientists' call for more dietary fiber as a possible cancer preventative, by introducing a number of high fiber products. For example, several cereals with nine to 12 grams of fiber per one-ounce serving are now on the market shelves.

However, more fiber isn't always necessary. Nutrition research over the years has identified several useful properties of dietary fibers. Reduction of cholesterol absorbed by the intestine, alteration of the ratio of types of fats absorbed or changes in the transit time of digested food through the intestine have all been

However, the researchers also point out that high bulk diets may cause a loss in the absorption of essential vitamins or minerals. Reduced absorption of proteins, fats, minerals and vitamins can result from 35 grams of dietary fiber per 100 calories per day. Research is con-tinuing to determine both the best types and amounts of fiber for a healthful diet.

In the meantime, the person who eats a balanced diet containing the recommended four servings of vegetables and fruit each day, as well as four servings of whole grain breads and cereals, should be able to get enough fiber from regular foods.

Vegetables, fruits and whole grains are the most common food sources of fiber. Some of the foods highest in fiber include broccoli, raw cabbage and carrots, dried beans and peas, wheat bran, oatmeal, dried prunes, unpeeled apples and other fruits with skins.

The changing face of credit turns wealth to debt

Los Angeles Times-Washington Post News Service

WASHINGTON - For Chris G., sliding into debt - $25,000 worth of debt - was, unfortunately, all too easy.

The unsolicited credit cards that kept coming in the mail permitted Chris to maintain the style of living she and her husband had grown accustomed to before she quit her $25,000 a year job six years ago to raise the first of her two children.

"At the beginning I had only four credit cards — a Visa, a MasterCard and two store cards," recalled the Silver-Spring, Md., woman, who agreed to talk on the condition that her identity not be disclosed.

Then, thanks to her previous good credit history, the unsolicited credit cards began pouring in. "They just rolled in," she said. "If you're a credit-card addict like I am, you use them. In the end, I had five Visa cards from different banks that sent them to me to use free.'

With thousands of dollars of credit available from each card, "we just kept borrowing and borrowing and borrowing to live. ... I always had reasons: We needed snow tires; the boys needed pajamas; the Christmas Wishbook had arrived from Sears."

Besides, she added, it was easy to rationalize the borrowing. "I figured I could always deduct the finance charges from my income tax."

IN THE end, though, the borrowing "got us in a real hole." Finally, she and her husband — who did not know the extent of the debt until last summer - visited a credit counselor. They have now put themselves on an excruciatingly tight budget to permit them to repay all of their debts within five years. As for the credit cards that got them into trouble, "we had a burning ceremony. ... Now I pay cash for everything.

Chris' tale of woe may be extreme, but her basic problem with credit is by no means unique. With a growing number of lenders eagerly dishing out the credit, thousands of Americans are acquiring debt almost as naturally as they turn on a television

From traditional automobile loans to credit cards to new lines of credit that are linked to the value of their homes, consumers have been taking on debt at a pace unmatched since the end of the Korean war, when consumers splurged to satisfy the unmet needs of the war years.

Today, according to figures from the Federal Reserve System, Americans have tallied up a total of $664.2 billion of debt for loans - car, property improvement, home equity, mobile home, recreational vehicles and personal loans. That sum is more than triple the $223.2 billion rung up in consumer loans 10 years ago.

For home mortgages, there is another $1.4 trillion of credit outstand-- also nearly three times the $483 billion outstanding 10 years ago. Consumer debt has grown faster than consumer income and faster than the economy itself. While most economists had, as a result, expected consumer borrowing to slow down last year, it continued to rise sharply, growing at an annual rate of 21 percent in the first half of 1985 and 18.8 percent in the third quarter. Over the last three decades, the normal annual growth rate has been about 13 percent.

THE GREATEST growth in credit has come in the use of bank cards as financial institution aggressively pursue consumers, mailing unsolicited bank cards across the country to attract new customers. Between Dec. 31, 1983 and Oct. 31, 1985, bank credit card debt rose from $44.2 billion to $73.7 billion — a 67 percent increase in less than two years.

Even so, most economists do not believe that the current high level of consumer debt poses a threat to the economy as a whole, particularly when it is compared to all the different types of debt being incurred by various segments of the country.

"What consumers are doing on their balance sheet is considerably less than what the government is doing on its balance sheet or business is doing," noted Charlene Sullivan, associate director of Purdue University's Credit Research Center.

What's more, households appear in better shape to repay their debt than in the past. For even as they borrow, they are increasing their liquid assets - checking and savings accounts, stock, money market funds, bonds and other financial instruments that can be readily converted into cash — according to Daniel Van Dyke, a vice president and senior economist for the Bank of America. Five years ago, installment debt accounted for 10.9 percent of consumer liquid assets. Today, that ratio is 9.9 percent. "Installment debt has grown fast, but assets have grown faster," Van Dyke said.

But by some of the measures economists use to determine whether consumers are in debt over their heads, households would appear to be in trouble. Consumer debt - excluding mortgages - is equivalent to 19.2 cents of every dollar of spendable income. That compares with 17.8 cents at the end of 1979 - the peak of the previous recession.

DELINQUENCY RATES on credit payments are also rising, with 2.39 percent of all consumer installment loans (excluding bank card loans and mortgages) more than 30 days late as of Sept. 30, 1985, the last available figures. Although that level is below the record 2.91 percent delinquency rate posted 11 years ago, it is higher than the 2.1 percent recorded a year

Delinquencies on bank-card loans, however, are near their all-time high, with 2.88 percent of all the payments for such loans more than 30 days late at the end of September. Although that may sound like a small number, economists point out that it is up sharply from the 2.1 percent delinquency rate recorded for a year earlier.

Mortgage loan delinquencies, meanwhile, have declined somewhat since January 1985, when they were at a record high - 6.19 percent for the last five years. At the end of September, those rates had dropped to 5.64 percent.

Credit counselors don't need to see these figures to know that a growing number of families are overextended. They know simply by the sharp increase in the number of clients that are turning to them for help. 'We're definitely seeing a marked increase in the number of clients," said Joanne Kerstetter, executive director of the Consumer Credit Counseling and Educational Service of Greater Washington. "Our waiting list this year is about four weeks; it used to be only a week and a half a year ago. For the first six months of 1985, the number of families we saw increased by 25 percent."

WHAT'S MORE, their debts were far higher than previous clients. The debt load, excluding secured debt such as loans for homes or cars. averaged $7,000 this year; last year it was less than $5,000," Kerstatter calculated. Contributing sharply to the increased debt load was the average number of credit cards each family carried - from four to five last year to seven to nine this year, Kerstatter

This rapid expansion of consumer debt is causing increasing concern among many economists who fear that the overextended consumer soon will have to put a brake on spending. That in turn, could lead to a sharp slowdown in the economy, which for the past year has been spurred on by consumer spending.

"Since the fourth quarter of 1982, consumer spending has been a major driving force in U.S. economic growth," Allen Sinai of Shearson Lehman Brothers said. "Can the consumer keep it up? Likely not, with the odds favoring a substantial slowdown, but no collapse, in consumer spending during the fourth quarter of 1985 and in 1986," he added.

With every other sector of the economy weak, that could spell trouble, said Sandra Shaber, vice president of consumer economics for Chase Econometrics.

But Shaber and many other economists pointed out that the sharp growth in consumer credit numbers may be misleading because the numbers include credit-card charges that are made primarily as a convenience rather than for a loan.

"Consumer credit is growing rapidly, but not at a crisis rate," said Leo Mullin, executive vice president of the First National Bank of Chicago, one of the nation's biggest issuers of credit cards, with about $3.2 billion outstanding on the Visa and Master-Cards it issues.

WHEN PEOPLE say that credit is higher than ever, it's true, but it's not quite as scary as it sounds because we pay for things differently than we used to," said Fabien Linden, executive director of the Consumer Research Center at the Conference Board.

"Not too long ago, you withdrew money from the bank and paid cash.

Today, we hand over the credit card and pay at the end of the month. That's created a short-term float' that has sharply increased the amount of outstanding consumer credit, Linden said. According to the Federal Reserve Board, that convenience factor accounts for 30 to 40 percent of the sharp increase in credit-card debt. If those transactions were subtracted from the overall consumer debt numbers, then the ratio of debt to spendable income would decline sharply from 19.2 percent to about 15 percent, some bank economists calculate - far below the last previous high of 17.8 percent in 1979.

The way consumers are financing their cars has also added to the overall consumer debt. "As the price of cars got higher, in order to make them affordable, car dealers and banks extended the maturity of the contract from 36 months to 48 to 60 months," noted Purdue's Sullivan. That means much smaller monthly payments - and more credit outstanding.

Another factor behind the sharp increase in consumer credit is the country's demographic makeup. "A huge proportion of the population are in the very part of the life cycle where they have to buy cars, appliances and houses," noted Chase Econometrics' Shaber.

And, noted a Federal Reserve official, "there is a growing recognition that taking on debt for major goods is a reasonable way to acquire

THAT PHILOSOPHY is a relatively recent one; with the exception of cars, banks did not extend credit to consumers until after World War

Even though consumer credit has now reached a record high, in relationship to personal income, many economists predict it will continue to grow at rapid rates - to the point that some think that by 1990 it could amount to 25 percent of disposable income - up from the current 19.2 percent level.

One reason: the eagerness of lenders to offer credit cards and create new types of loans to encourage consumers to borrow.

"Lenders are still innovating with our financial system to make credit more available," said Charles Lieberman of Shearson Lehman. Among the newest offerings is the home-equity loan in which homeowners can obtain new lines of credit at favorable interest rates, based on the equity of their homes.

For relatively well-off homeowners with large amounts of equity in their homes, these lines of credit are replacing not only first mortgage refinancings but traditional second mortgages as well. When a lender makes a second mortgage, the institution gives the borrower a lumpsum amount in return for a lien on the house. The second-mortgage lender then has to stand in line behind the holder of the first mortgage if the borrower defaults.

In a home equity line of credit, the lender also has lien behind the first mortgage holder. But, the borrower has greater flexibility in the amount of credit he or she can borrow. Once a line of credit is established, he or she can borrow as much or as little as they want and pay it back much like a bank credit-card loan, paying as much or as little (beyond a minimum premium) any one month.

BUT UNLIKE bank credit cards, the rates are far more favorable, at least for now, with most institutions charging a rate based upon their prime rate - the interest their best corporate customers can get for a short-term loan.

Washington's American Security Bank began to charge 11 percent on Jan. 1 — 11/2 percentage points above its current 91/2 percent prime rate according to William Couper, the bank's senior vice president in charge of retail operations. By contrast, credit card loans commonly carry interest rates of about 18.5

Most customers that establish home equity lines of credit with their banks are old enough to have built up enough equity to qualify for a line of credit and are financially well off, according to David A. Olson, director of marketing research and education at the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp.

As a result, the lines of credit often are large. Couper said American Security's average credit line is $45,000. That does not mean a customer will ever borrow that much, but could in an emergency.

The home equity lines of credit did not exist 10 years ago. Today, they account for nearly $35 billion in consumer borrowing, Freddie Mac's Olson estimated.

Unlike credit card borrowers who may be young or have needs that far exceed their incomes and can get credit cards from a number of issuers — the home equity borrowers are less likely to get into trouble, Olson said. "Most of these borrowers are high-income people and most are over 40. They know what they're doing. They are not young kids with little experience. If that group ever started borrowing this way, then I'd worry.

Nevertheless, the willingness of banks to extend these and creditcard loans represents a major change in attitude among financial institutions - and is perhaps the most important reason behind the sharp growth in consumer credit, Purdue's Sullivan noted.

"Since 1980, we have seen a tremendous revolution in the market. You used to ... feel like you were robbing a bank every time you asked for a loan. Now, you can get credit by phone or mail. It's just a whole lot

Eating habits: More than matter of taste

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Recently wife and I toured England, Scotland, Wales and Ireland, and we noticed a strange habit in all these countries that puzzled and disturbed us. While eating, they held their forks upside down as compared to the way we Americans hold ours. I tried to explain to them that the fork is curved so as to facilitate the lifting of the food to the mouth. They "rake" their food onto the fork with their knife. (And you should see how they eat their peas!)

Also, after cutting meat, they do not set the knife down and change the fork from the left hand to the right; they eat left-handed, which looks rather awkward.

When I mentioned this to an Englishman, he laughed and said, "We are one up on you; switching the fork from the left hand to the right hand is wasted motion.

Opponent says White may have been 'first nerd'

AUSTIN (AP) — A Democratic gubernatorial hopeful says Gov. Mark White's failure to participate in high school activities may have made him one of the first nerds in Texas."

A. Don Crowder, opposing White in the May 3 primary, displayed a copy of White's high school year-book entry at a news conference Wednesday and said a lack of entries for extracurricular participation may account for the governor's re-fusal to ease the "no-pass, no-play" academic rule and his lack of support from teachers.

The first-term governor's aides said Crowder was wrong on all counts.

"The governor was very active during junior high and high school and worked to support his family since the seventh grade. In addition to working after school, he was quite active in a number of school activiactive in a number of school activities, including school plays and church activities," said Mark McKinnon, White campaign spokesman.

"The governor is 100 percent, foursquare behind education and behind teachers. He's just trying to raise the standards," McKinnon said.

The "no-pass, no-play" rule, pushed by White as part of the state's school reform laws, prohibits students from all extracurricular activities for six weeks if they fail any

Crowder said the lack of listings of extracurricular activities in White's entry in his high school yearbook entry from Lamar High in Houston "indicates to me and leads me to believe that perhaps Mark White was one of the first nerds in Texas."
"I think that shows and gives a clear indication of why he does not favor extracurricular activities and wants to punish those who would choose to engage in them and learn from that experience," Crowder added.

Crowder said the rule should be eased to bar only students who don't make a 75 percent average of all their course grades. Failing that, the suspension period should be reduced to one to three weeks, he said.

Crowder also accused the governor of becoming "vicious" with teachers who complained about White's endorsement of limited drug testing of public and private workers, including teachers.

When leaders of some teacher organizations complained, White said those individuals didn't look closely enough at his remarks to understand that he meant testing only in cases where drug use is suspected. Crowder said White's dealings with teachers have alienated them and threatened teachers' voting support for the Democratic Party.

STATE in brief

Work on reactor halted

DALLAS (AP) - Work at Unit 1 of Comanche Peak Nuclear Plant came to a halt and 250 construction workers were laid off when plant officials discovered a construction permit had expired six months ago.

Dick Ramsey, spokesman for Texas Utilities Generating Co. said the permit expired Aug. 1, 1985, and would take about 30 days to renew.

The 250 Brown and Root Inc. employees who remained on the job Wednesday will be transferred to jobs on the second reactor unit, Ramsey said.

"It was simply an oversight on our part," he said. "We're concerned. It's regrettable." All construction work on Unit 1 stopped at 11 a.m. Wednesday after the utility was notified by officials of the Nuclear Regulatory Commission Tuesday night.

The order will affect construction areas common to both units of the plant, Ramsey said.

Texas Cavalry rides again

DENISON (AP) - The resurrected Texas Cavalry will carry a cargo of congratulatory letters from 49 states' governors when it rides again in mid-February from Denison to Austin.

William Miller of Denison is the impetus behind the Cavalry and the letters congratulating Texas for 150 years of independence from Mexico. The letters will be delivered to Gov. Mark White.

Miller formed the 2nd Cavalry, named himself colonel and drafted 49 letters asking governors of each state to participate in the event. Miller also recruited the posse that will ride with him to deliver the letters to White.

He said he will don an authentic Cavalry uniform and hit the road with his trailblazers on Feb. 15. with the letters.

The driver crossed Farm Road 616 and stopped on the shoulder on the other side of the road, facing traffic. An oil truck came around a bend and slammed into the van, killing Dove and another passenger, George

Family 'coping very well' in wake of shuttle tragedy

FILAMINGHAM, Mass. (AP) — Christa McAuliffe's family was mourning her death privately today, while hundreds of the teacher's friends joined strangers in memorial services to honor the woman who always wanted to be a space pioneer and her six crewmembers.

"I hey're coping very well, and try-ing to get their lives back in order," said Linda Long, a NASA representative who accompanied Mrs. McAuliffe's parents and siblings from Florida to their home in this Boston sub urb. "They're trying to relax a littl e bit."

On Wednesday, in churches and classrooms, in grocery stores and of-

Class receives McAuliffe's letter

SOMERS, Conn. (AP) — A hand-written letter from Christa McAuliffe that urges students to "reach for the stars" was received by an eighth-grade class one day after she was killed aboard the space shuttle Challenger.

"Oh my God. It's from her," teacher Ellen Quagliaroli gasped when she opened the brown manila envelope.

McAuliffe, a high school social studies teacher from Concord, N.H., and six other astronauts were killed Tuesday when the Challenger exploded shortly after liftoff. The letter arrived Wednesday at the Mabelle B. Avery

The letter, dated Jan. 20, thanks Quagliaroli's American history class for its letter and resolution the class sent her Jan. 15. McAuliffe also wrote she could not take along the emblem because of space limitations.

The letterhead said "NASA Teacher in Space Project." The signature read: "Sincerely, S. Christa McAuliffe.'

"The students are thinking about Christa and what she meant to us." Marian High joined more than 20 Boston-area radio stations at 10 a.m. for a minute of silence in honor of the Challenger crew. Several west-

Anguished nation honors its heroes

Radio stations and stock exchanges went silent, porch lights glowed and children wrote painful essays as anguished Americans sought to honor a teacher-astronaut and her six crewmembers killed in the shuttle Challenger disaster.

"It's as if a family member has passed away," said the Rev. Paul Hall, who sponsored a candelight prayer service at his South Side Chicago boys club Wednesday night.

'A number of children called who were very depressed and bewildered ..they were asking 'Why? Why did it happen?'" he said. "They didn't know the people but they feel a real kinship to them, especially because one was a teacher.

Christa McAuliffe, a 37-year-old teacher from Concord, N.H., was killed along with her crewmates when the Challenger burst into flames Tuesday about a minute after liftoff from the Kennedy Space

Mrs. McAuliffe was the first ordinary citizen to be selected for a space mission, and she had planned to teach two lessons to the nation's children from space via television. Her crewmates were commander Francis R. Scobee, 46; pilot Michael J. Smith, 40; Judith A. Resnik, 36; Ronald E. McNair, 35; Ellison S. Onizuka, 39, and Gregory B. Jarvis, 41.

Students in Rose Stromsta's sixth grade class at Lincoln Elementary School in Kalamazoo, Mich., had looked forward to bringing sack lunches to her home to watch the lessons from space. Instead, they wrote sympathy cards Wednesday to Mrs. McAuliffe's family.

Ninth-grade English students at the Johnson High School in Savannah, Ga., wrote essays Wednesday to cope with the loss.

"A horrid feeling overwhelmed me and I could do no more than to imagine what the families of these people were going through," wrote LaTrelle Sneed.

"I feel as if she would have wanted us to do something like this," said teacher Judy Sutton, who assigned

In Colorado Springs, Colo., the U.S. Space Foundation announced a fund to replace the $1.2 billion Challenger.

"People around the country have been asking what they can do or how they can get involved in the wake of this tragedy, foundation executive director Richard MacLeod said Wednesday. "The seven astronauts would have wanted the program to continue, and the fund provides a way for people to recognize their heroism and achievements and to help us realize their goals."

The non-profit charitable, scientific and educational organization has pledged $10,000 toward the fund, MacLeod said. Missy McPhillips, 9, of Gillete, Wyo., said she and her 10-year-old brother. John, also came up with the idea of raising money to replace Challenger. "The astronauts' dream was to make the shuttle program go on and on. We want all the kids in the U.S. to give a dollar in memory of them," she said. Tennessee Gov. Lamar Alexander announced the creation of the Christa McAuliffe Memorial Scholarship Fund to assist outstanding students in the state who want to become teachers. The chamber of commerce in Coventry, R.I., voted to establish a scholarship in Mrs. McAuliffe's honor, and said it would urge other business groups nationwide to set up scholarships.

In Lake City, S.C., birthplace of Challenger astronaut Ron McNair, school officials plan to increase the $3,000 science scholarship named for him to a level where interest on the principal can produce a $1,000 grant each year, said James Hyman, superintendent of Florence County School District No. 3.

Plaque has been hung in space museum

WASHINGTON (AP) — A plaque bearing a picture and names of the Challenger crew members killed when their space shuttle exploded has been hung in the National Air and Space Museum, paying tribute to America's newest aviation heroes who died "in the quest for reaching the sky."

Maria Company of the Party of t

Those seven carried along with them that questing, that dream, those hopes that epitomized the very best of this nation," Sen. John H. Glenn Jr., D-Ohio, said at a memorial service for the victims Wednesday. The memory of those and what they gave will sustain us and make sure that quest for all mankind goes on," said Glenn, a former astronaut who was the first American to orbit the

The commemorative plaque was hung beside a scale model of the space shuttle Columbia, which looks much like Challenger did at launch Tuesday, attached to a large liquid-fuel tank that is straddled by twin solid-fuel rocket boosters.

The 30-inch by 40-inch plaque, dwarfed in the five-story hall by satellite-launch rockets rising like spindles from floor to ceiling, honors the seven crew members with a group picture and a few simple words:

"Crew of Shuttle Mission 51-L Challenger January 28, 1986. The crew of the Challenger was lost as a result of an in-flight explosion, shortly after the launch of the space shuttle."

it also contains brief biographies of the members of the About 400 museum visitors stood along balconies and stairways to watch the ceremony, as official Washington paid tribute to the Challenger seven.

"These seven will always be remembered as pioneers and it is fitting that our salute to them is here, surrounded by their companions in discovery - the Wrights, Lindbergh, Earhart and others who had given their lives in the quest for reaching the sky," said Rep. Norman Y. Mineta, D-Calif.

Glenn said that while the space program has raced along on successful launches, it was only a matter of time before trage-

'Our triumphs are matched occasionally by tragedy," he said. "We've gone a quarter century and we've put back that day of reckoning, that day we all intuitively knew inside was somehow coming

Rep. Bill Nelson, D-Fla., who returned from a space shuttle voyage earlier this month, reminded the audience of Helen Keller's words "that life is either a daring adventure or

The Challenger crew members, he said, were "pioneers who accepted risk...and paid the ultimate sacrifice.

Reporter recalls time spent with McAuliffe

EDITOR'S NOTE: Bob Hohler, who met Christa McAuliffe when she was a finalist in the teacher-in-space program and spent many hours with her over the past seven months, is a feature writer on her hometown newspaper, the Concord Monitor. A longer version of this column appeared in the Monitor's Wednesday editions.

By BOB HOHLER

KENNEDY SPACE CEN-TER, Fla. (AP) - Christa McAuliffe died with a few of her favorite things: her son's stuffed frog, her daughter's cross and chain, her grandmother's watch, her Carly Simon tape. She died with little things. Ordinary things.

Put her by a swimming pool with her family, a baconlettuce-and-tomato sandwich and a cold beer, and she needed little more from life. Give her a compass, her childhood friends and a forest, and she flourished. Call her a hero, and she shuddered.

McAuliffe

In the 200 days I knew her, Christa went from a Concord (N.H.) High School classroom to a spacecraft bound for an infinite frontier in the sky. She asked to be nothing more than an ordinary person on an extraordinary mission.

How silly, she said on the day I met her in Houston, that people would swarm her for autographs. How absolutely crazy, she said three weeks ago, that the New England Patriots would line up after a game for her signature. What a joy it would be, she imagined, to return to signing hall passes at the high school.

When I met her, I was an ordinary reporter and she was a finalist in NASA's teacher-inspace race. I shadowed her. She had a nervous giggle and the gee-whiz bounce of a camp counselor, but she made me want to follow her. She made me wish she taught every child.

We hit it off, and on the day she was chosen to pioneer space for the common man, she kept a promise. She let me ride away from the White House with her after a dozen reporters had tried and failed. I sat with her an hour later when she called her husband, Steven, to share the news. She cried for joy, and I fidgeted, waiting for her patience with me to wear thin. It never did.

I wrote about Christa for seven months, hopscotching from Concord and Houston to Florida and her hometown of Framingham, Mass. My 6year-old daughter lost me to a teachernaut. "Christa this, Christa that," she said. "When's it going to be over?" In Houston, Christa and I ate tortellini with friends at an Italian restaurant. We talked about her children, Scott, 9, who couldn't sleep without his stuffed frog, Fleagle, or his cat, Rizzo; and Caroline, 6, who loved Michael Jackson and liked to draw pictures of her mother in Both were afraid of loud noise. She worried about them watching the shuttle take off (Tuesday).

"Caroline likes to turn up her 'Thriller' album sometimes," she said, "but Scott's the only kid I know who turns down the commercials.

When I last talked to her 11/2 weeks ago, Christa was in quarantine in Houston and Scott was watching a Boston Celtics game at home. She had called to say goodnight to the children and asked to say hello to me before she hung up. She was proud she had won a beer from mission commander Francis Scobee when she bet on the Patriots against the Los Angeles Raiders a week earlier. And she was excited about her space flight. "Have fun," I told her. "I will," she said.

South Carolina mourns their native son

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) - South Carolinians, mourning their native astronaut who died in the space shuttle Challenger explosion, praise Ron McNair as a pioneer whose accomplishments will not be forgotten.

Members of the General Assembly passed resolutions expressing sympathy and sorrow on Wednesday and school officials took steps to assure his achievements will be recalled Sen. Tom Smith, D-Florence. said Tuesday's explosion had people in McNair's hometown "crying in the streets."

"We mourn for his passing but we celebrate what he was.

What an epitaph that is for Ron McNair, who died a hero, a modern-day frontiersman. Two separate resolutions expressing sympathy and sorrow were passed unanimously in the House. Rep. Toy Nettles, D-Florence, who represents the district where McNair grew up, said the astronaut "demanded of him-self excellence in everything, and in so doing, he conveyed an important message to all those who knew him

"He told us that a young man growing up in Lake City, South Carolina, need not feel any limitations to his goals and ambitions. He told us that our only limitations are those we impose upon ourselves. Ron McNair spent his life pushing himself through the frontiers of excellence."

The other resolution authored by Rep. B.J. Gordon, D-Williamsburg, and others said McNair was a hero of the entire state and will always be remembered as a courageous man willing to take great risks to span new horizons for mankind. "The tragedy of Jan. 28, 1986, should not be allowed to overshadow the happy and lasting achievements of the American space program and of great men such as Ron McNair." it

McNair's career will be highlighted in the school district in February during National Black History Month, and one day will be set aside near the end of February to honor him, Hyman said. And beginning in 1987, the district will annually mark Feb. 3, the date of the astronaut's first flight, in McNair's honor, he said.

McNair graduated from Carver High School, now Lake City Junior High. "We will put up a bust of him in the school and name the science wing after him, and if the community desires and the board approves we will rename the school after him,' Hyman said.

The district also will ask city officials permission to erect a sign at the entrance to Lake City honoring McNair, Hyman said.
