Marcos resigns, flees nation

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A defeated Ferdinand E. Marcos resigned as president of the Philippines today, slipping away in the Manila night and setting off an explosion of joyous celebration among his countrymen.

"Cory! Cory!" Filipinos chanted in tribute to new President Corazon Aquino as they demonstrated by the thousands across the capital.

Marcos, heading out of the country via the U.S. Air Force's nearby Clark Air Base, was brought down by a combination of a "people's power" uprising, military revolt and U.S. pressure.

First official word of his resignation came in Washington, where Secretary of State George Shultz said the toppled Philippine leader would be "welcome to come to the United States." But there was no immediate report on his final destination.

Marcos' departure ended four days of uncertainty and political drama in Manila and 20 years of highly personal Marcos rule over this impoverished archipelago nation of 52 million people, an important U.S. ally in the Far East.

Fourteen people were reported slain in violence sparked by the revolt against Marcos.

The longtime president was given a final push Monday by the Reagan administration, which issued a statement calling for a peaceful transition to a new government because of what it said was widespread fraud in

"We are prepared to confer with the new government, to cooperate fully," he said.

Earlier today, both Marcos and Mrs. Aquino, 53, were inaugurated as president of rival Philippine governments in separate ceremonies. But within hours, both camps reported Marcos, at the president's Malacanang Palace, was engaged in lengthy telephone negotiations over his departure.

Manila radio station DZRH later quoted a Marcos loyalist, Romulo Fontanilla, as saying, "Without our knowledge he (Marcos) left us. Even the soldiers are not here anymore." The station said only a small protective force was left behind at the palace.

As word of Marcos' departure flashed across this turbulent capital, jubilant throngs of Filipinos set bonfires outside the palace.

"You're hearing the start of the rebirth of democracy!" a radio announcer boomed over the sounds of jubilation from demonstrators.

More than 10,000 people danced, cheered, applauded and chanted Mrs. Aquino's nickname at the gate of the palace. Marcos loyalists among the palace guards surrendered in single file.

January prices up by .3 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — A tiny 0.1 percent increase in gasoline prices helped hold consumer prices overall to a moderate 0.3 percent increase in January, the government reported today.

The Labor Department's consumer price index, after adjustments for seasonal factors, was the lowest since a 0.2 percent increase in September. It follows a 0.4 percent increase December.

Gasoline prices had risen 0.5 percent in December.

While wholesale gasoline price declines are not reflected in today's calculation, the Labor Department did report a 1.1 percent drop in overall prices for heating oil, coal and bottled gas.

The lower gasoline prices, the result of a worldwide collapse in crude oil markets, is expected to show up in the consumer price report for February.

Food prices rose a slight 0.2 percent, with a decline posted in overall prices for meat, poultry, fish and eggs. Those prices had risen 2.1 percent in November and 0.9 percent in December.

Vegetable and fruit prices rose a modest 0.8 percent, after rising at a faster clip through the fall.

Government as well as private analysts are saying the good inflation performance will continue throughout 1986, largely because of the drop in energy costs. Oil prices have dropped $10 per 42-gallon barrel since the fall.

The consumer price index report follows a 0.7 percent drop in wholesale prices in January, the steepest decline in three years, the Labor Department reported two weeks ago.

Donald Ratajczak, a Georgia State University economist who specializes in inflation, is now predicting that the CPI will increase only 2.8 percent this year — which would be the smallest rise in more than a decade.

A new round of auto-financing deals by major U.S. automakers, begun last December, held new car prices flat as compared to the month before. Used car prices were up 0.6 percent.

If last month's 0.3 percent increase held steady for 12 months, the yearly advance would be 4.1 percent. The annual rate reported by the department is based on a more precise calculation of price activity than could be obtained by a calculation based on the monthly CPI.

In all, the consumer price index stood at 328.4 in January, meaning that goods costing $10 in 1967 would have cost $32.84 last month.

"In February, falling meat prices should prevent grocery store prices from rising at all," said Ratajczak, the Georgia State economist.

Throughout 1985, the consumer price index rose a moderate 3.8 percent, the fourth consecutive year of inflation at or below 4 percent.

Most of the credit for holding inflation at bay has gone to the collapse of oil prices.

At the wholesale level, gasoline prices dropped 5.7 percent in January and heating oil costs plunged 10.8 percent.

The $10 decline per barrel in crude oil prices, if sustained, could reduce inflation by 1.5 to 2.8 percentage points over the year, according to Allen Sinai, chief economist for Shearson Lehman Bros.

"The lower inflation raises consumer purchasing power by increasing real disposable income and the funds available for discretionary spending," Sinai said.

White: Nation on 'brink of emergency'

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Texas Gov. Mark White, at the National Governors' Association Monday, warned that the nation "is on the brink of an emergency" with the unprecedented drop in the spot price for oil.

White told Deputy Energy Secretary Danny J. Boggs and fellow members of the association's energy and environment panel the United States could lose many oil wells — perhaps forever — if something isn't done to place a floor under oil prices.

The governor asked Boggs, the energy committee's guest, to persuade President Reagan to exercise his authority to immediately impose a temporary variable tariff on imported crude oil and refined products. He suggested rebates for neighboring Mexico and Canada and "appropriate exemptions for low income consumers in the Northeast for such products as home heating oil."

White told reporters after the committee meeting he "didn't find a great deal of support" from Boggs. He said he was encouraged, however, that the deputy energy secretary "left the door open."

Also, White said he would support a tax on imported oil, as proposed by Sen. Lloyd Benisen, D-Texas, and other oil state senators. And he called on Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, and former Gov. William Clements, a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, to support such a tax.

"Bill Clements says he knows a lot about drilling oil wells," White said. "I would hope he would help, as well as (Treasury Secretary James) Baker and all other Republicans in Washington," the governor said.

Gramm has refused to back the call for an import fee, on grounds it would slow down economic growth.

White said he is proposing that the federal government set a bottom for the oil industry, "just as the feds placed a top on oil (in regulating energy prices several times in recent decades). We cannot penalize producers," he declared.

White's message to Boggs and the governors was the same one he sent to Reagan by letter last Friday.

Since early December, crude oil prices have dropped more than 50 percent, he said. Last week, West Texas Intermediate closed at just over $14 a barrel, the result of what White described as "a market share war" led by Saudi Arabia and other foreign nations who are "glutting world markets with oil."

"Current OPEC market tactics would violate our own antitrust laws," the governor said. "This is not a fair game and the field is already tilted in favor of foreign nationalized producers."

Services for geologist slated for Wednesday

From Staff Reports

Spending only five months in high school, Berte R. Haigh became one of the foremost authorities on exploration and geology of the Permian Basin before his death Monday at the age of 98.

Memorial services for the longtime Midlander will be at 2 p.m. Wednesday in the First Presbyterian Church sanctuary with Dr. Ray Riddle, director of Hospice of Midland, officiating. Handling arrangements is Ellis Funeral Home.

Haigh was born Jan. 15, 1890, at Los Angeles. During his early years in Buena Park and Elsinore he worked on a farm, at a lumber and fuel yard, as an electrician's helper and for a small town garage. In 1908, after five months of high school, Haigh moved to Los Angeles where he worked in automotive maintenance, repair work, race driving and garage management.

He served in France during World War I and was discharged after inhaling too much poisonous gas. He returned to Los Angeles to work in the automobile industry, but was warned by a physician he had less than 10 years to live if he continued.

Kent Hance says he expects to be in run-off for Republican primary

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

Kent Hance is expecting the May Republican primary to be extended into a June run-off, but said it's still too early to tell which of the other two opponents will be on that final ballot.

During a swing through West Texas Monday that included a fund-raiser at the home of Larry Bell in Midland, Hance talked about a proposed oil import fee, the violation of the GOP's 11th commandment, and problems facing whoever is elected governor for the next four years.

Also seeking the Republican nomination for governor are former Gov. Bill Clements and U.S. Rep. Tom Loeffler.

Hance said he supports an oil import fee but with some reservations — "if they start putting an entitlement program with it, and it scares me that Congress would do it."

However, if Congress proposed a "straight heads-up fee, such as $10 a barrel," Hance would support the bill.

"We pay property taxes on oil to the local school districts, severance taxes to the state and Windfall Profits Tax to the federal government. We're competing with people (foreign countries) that don't pay anything," he added.

Hance is afraid the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries and Saudi Arabia might conspire to drop the price to $8-10 a barrel and domestic production would decline further. When supplies are used up, these same countries would hike the price suddenly to $80 a barrel.

"If they do it, it's a matter of national security," said Hance.

White, who is seeking re-election, said Sunday he would press for an emergency tariff on foreign oil when the nation's governors visited the White House Monday. Hance said the Democratic governor doesn't have support of Congress or the White House on this issue and is trying to play "demagogue" against the president.

"I can see the president's concern" about a fee, said Hance. "It would set up additional trade barriers."

"They're defecting to the people's side so we don't hurt them," said the Rev. Joe Dixon. But he said 200 Marcos "fanatics" remained holed up inside the compound.

Long lines of cars and public transportation "jeeps," packed with cheering Filipinos, inched along Manila's boulevards with horns blaring and flags waving.

"It's liberation day! It's liberation day!" chanted one group.

Gen. Fidel V. Ramos, a leader of the military mutiny, said he was going to the palace to protect it. Mrs. Aquino's whereabouts could not immediately be learned. A guard at her home said she was not there.

Juan Ponce Enrile, the defense minister who led the revolt against Marcos, told reporters earlier his forces could provide protection to the departing president and his family.

"We have no intention of harming anybody," Enrile said. "Our only interest is that we can settle this so we can now start working to serve the interests of the people."

Mrs. Aquino's vice presidential running-mate, former Sen. Salvador H. Laurel, speaking on NBC's "Today" show, said Enrile and Ramos had spoken to Marcos for almost two hours about his resignation.

In Washington, Shultz praised Marcos' decision and said of the Philippine people, "They have resolved this issue non-violently and in a way that does them honor."

The secretary of state said that "basically, this is not something the United States has done."

But he also acknowledged that U.S. officials had "a great deal of interaction" with Marcos in recent days as he pondered his decision.

Marcos' inauguration ceremony was not televised because the private station over which he had been broadcasting went dead.

Ceremonies inaugurating Mrs. Aquino were broadcast several times on a station taken over from Marcos' government.

Faced with a mutiny in the armed forces and giant street protests calling for him to step down, Marcos had told supporters gathered at Malacanang Palace for his inauguration, "We will overcome these obstacles...we will advance for the future."

Mrs. Aquino said her administration would be dedicated to "morality and decency in government, freedom and democracy."

As the two rivals took their oaths, fighting broke out at a Manila area police station and a television transmitting tower held by pro-Marcos forces. A police general said nine people were killed in fighting at the police station, and pro-Aquino forces killed three pro-Marcos soldiers at the television tower.

Aquino and Marcos supporters threw stones at each other outside the palace following Marcos' inauguration when the rivals began taunting each other as palace soldiers, arms linked, tried to get the approximately 300 banner-waving Marcos supporters safely off palace grounds.

Members of both sides scammed after the rock-throwing began. Soldiers lay on the ground with guns pointed, and one shot was fired in the air.

Most of the Marcos supporters fled, but the pro-Aquino demonstrators regrouped.

Marcos' running mate in the special election, Arthur Tolentino, was not present as Marcos took the oath for a new six-year term from Supreme Court Chief Justice Ramon Aquino, but no explanation was given.

More than 500 people attended Marcos' inauguration, brandishing fists and chanting, "Marcos! Marcos!"

About 3,000 Marcos supporters were outside the palace at the time, and some of them shouted, "Capture the snakes! Capture the snakes! Martial law! Martial law!" Marcos ruled under martial law regulations from 1972-1980.

Through most of today, Marcos remained in the palace with his family as loyal troops kept jeering pro-Aquino supporters at a distance. Earlier in the day, soldiers fired on rebel supporters near Malacanang, and hospital officials said eight people were hit by gunfire and five injured while trying to flee.

Mrs. Aquino was sworn in as head of the rebels' provisional government at a country club ringed by troops who rallied to the insurgency declared Saturday by the former defense minister and Ramos, deputy armed forces commander.

Mrs. Aquino said Laurel would be her vice president and prime minister, Enrile her defense minister and Ramos, promoted to full general from lieutenant general, would become military chief of staff.

Marcos' New Society Movement party controls the 190-member National Assembly which on Feb. 15 declared him re-elected by a 1.5-million-vote margin. Mrs. Aquino's supporters and growing numbers of military, business, religious and political leaders say the decision was based on rigged vote tallies.

Nine people were killed in the shootout in suburban Makati between police officers and a sergeant claiming to support Mrs. Aquino.

Police Gen. Ruben Escarcha said Sgt. Esteban Bandal entered Makati station with eight to 10 men, disarmed officers and claimed he was taking over the station on Mrs. Aquino's orders. A spokesman for Mrs. Aquino denied any connection with the group.

Escarcha said his men persuaded Bandal to leave but that the sergeant grabbed a policeman as a hostage. As Bandal's group fled, someone in his group shot and killed the policeman, police said.

A shootout ensued in which eight of Bandal's men were slain, police said. Hospital officials said nine people were wounded.

In suburban Quezon City, pro-Aquino forces battled Marcos loyalists occupying a Channel 9 television transmitter tower and a building near the government broadcast complex seized Monday by rebels.

The rebels shot and killed three army troopers sniping from the tower. Pro-Aquino soldiers later climbed up the 300-foot-high platform and brought the bodies to the ground.

About 50 other pro-Marcos soldiers cornered in the compound of the private broadcasting station were allowed free passage so they could return to their base, after negotiations mediated by Red Cross volunteers and Roman Catholic priests.

Aquino rises from reluctant candidate to president

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Corazon Aquino started her political career as a reluctant candidate but became a determined campaigner who rallied millions of her countrymen behind a drive to end Ferdinand E. Marcos' 20 years as president.

To the surprise of many Filipinos and many foreigners, the petite, 53-year-old woman managed to channel widespread dissatisfaction with Marcos into a powerful stream of opposition that swept him from power.

She became well known only after her husband was assassinated in 1983, a slaying that started the chain of events that brought down Marcos.

Today, Mrs. Aquino swore an oath of office as provisional president and said she was "taking power in the name of the Filipino people."

An hour later Marcos took the oath as president at a palace ceremony. As an indication of how his power had crumbled, the broadcast of the ceremony was knocked off the air by rebels who took control of the station. They substituted a John Wayne film.

Several hours later, the man who dominated the country for two decades resigned.

Mrs. Aquino is a daughter of the wealthy Cojuangco family of Tarlac province, which has sprawling sugar plantations. Her first cousin, Eduardo Cojuangco, is a close business associate of Marcos and believed to be one of the wealthiest men in the Philippines, controlling a coconut monopoly granted him under the Marcos administration.

Stepping forward after her husband was assassinated, Mrs. Aquino waged an emotion-laden campaign in the Feb. 7 presidential election and made a strong showing in balloting that was tainted by fraud, according to her supporters and to independent election observers.

She campaigned throughout the country, always smiling and always wearing yellow. The color symbolizes the yellow-ribbon homecoming planned for her husband when he returned from self-exile in the United States, only to be assassinated at Manila airport.

When the Marcos-controlled National Assembly on Feb. 15 completed the count and announced that Marcos had won, Mrs. Aquino refused to accept that verdict and pledged a campaign to bring down Marcos by boycotts and demonstrations.

Then, two military leaders of the Marcos establishment announced on Saturday that they had broken with the president. They demanded he resign and allow Mrs. Aquino to lead the nation. Their action provoked widespread sympathy from the public, and thousands of people poured into the streets to support the rebels.

By Monday, the rebels had taken over a government television station and proclaimed a provisional government headed by Mrs. Aquino. Crowds in the streets chanted her nickname, "Cory, Cory!"

Her only training in politics came from her family and as the wife of a man who was considered Marcos' main political rival. Mrs. Aquino's campaign biography listed no previous accomplishments or jobs other than that of a housewife. When martial law was decreed in 1972, Aquino was jailed for eight years. Mrs. Aquino has described those years as among the most traumatic in her life.

She was her husband's "eyes, ears and voice in the stifling environment of martial law," according to a biography provided by her campaign staff.

"Some people tell me I did not have any formal education in politics," she told The Associated Press in an interview. "But I was living with one of the best teachers in politics."

In addition, her grandfather, father and brother were congressmen. Her other grandfather and an uncle were senators, and another uncle is a member of the National Assembly.

But she has said most of her political ideas come from her late husband.

Aquino was allowed to travel to the United States for heart surgery in 1980 and spent the next three years in voluntary exile.

Aquino decided to return to rally the opposition. He was slain as he got off the plane at Manila airport on Aug. 21, 1983. Mrs. Aquino and thousands of other Filipinos accused Marcos of being behind the slaying. An investigation pointed to a military conspiracy to assassinate Aquino.

Although those charged with conspiracy were acquitted after a long trial, the slaying of Aquino ignited the opposition to Marcos. Protest marches, often with Mrs. Aquino a prominent participant, occurred almost daily and swept across all segments of society, from farmers to stockbrokers.

She called Marcos the "No. 1 suspect" in the assassination and led many of the demonstrations against him.

Seeking to show his hold on the country, Marcos considered a special election. Mrs. Aquino laughed off suggestions in 1985 that she be a candidate, saying, "I don't know anything about the presidency."

But when Marcos set the election for Feb. 7 she declared she would run and waged a vigorous campaign that attracted hundreds of thousands of cheering supporters.

Rocket engineer says he 'felt pressure' from NASA officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — A presidential commission heard testimony today that one key industry engineer "felt pressure" from space agency officials when his firm initially recommended against the launch of the shuttle Challenger for safety reasons.

Allan McDonald, booster rocket manager for Morton Thiokol, told the investigating panel that at one point in a long discussion on the eve of launch, he "made the direct statement that if anything happened to this launch I wouldn't want to be the person" standing before a board of inquiry explaining the decision to go ahead.

"There's no doubt in my mind...I felt pressure," McDonald said, adding he resisted the decision to launch the ill-fated shuttle even after his company superiors approved it. He said others might not consider the remarks he heard from NASA officials as pressure, and he said he wasn't "overruled" by his company.

But he said he refused to sign a company memo approving the decision to launch. The shuttle blew up eight miles above the launch pad, killing all seven crew members.

McDonald said he questioned the launch for three reasons — most importantly, for fear that sub-freezing pre-launch temperatures would compromise safety seals in the shuttle rocket boosters.

The silver-haired engineer told the panel that the lengthy discussions amounted to a reversal of the practice he had seen in his long association with the space program.

"The contractor always had to get up to prove it was safe to fly. In this case it was to prove it wasn't," McDonald said.

He said he thought veteran astronaut Robert Crippen had expressed it best when he said, "the philosophy seemed to change."

McDonald added that "conditions for justifying the launch were so much different than they had ever been before."

McDonald told the commissioners that he assumed his objections would be passed all the way to people such as Jesse Moore, NASA shuttle chief who had final authority over the decision to launch. Moore has said he never heard about the Thiokol objections.

Recounting his firm's initial opposition to launch, McDonald said one NASA official, George Hardy, said he was "appalled" at the recommendation, but quickly added the shuttle would not fly without the firm's approval.

McDonald also said that Lawrence Mulloy, NASA's manager for the booster rockets, "made some comments about when we'll ever fly again if we have to live with" the firm's recommendation that the shuttle not be flown at temperatures below the previous low reading of 53 degrees.

He said Mulloy expressed concern that the shuttle program would have difficulty meeting its ambitious launch schedule, because morning temperatures often fall below 53 degrees at an as-yet-unused launch facility at Vandenberg Air Force Base in California.

McDonald said the question of sub-freezing pre-launch temperatures at Cape Canaveral were discussed via a telephone conference involving space agency officials and engineers from Morton Thiokol, which manufactures the booster rockets.

McDonald was the leadoff witness at the first commission hearings since the disclosure that some company engineers at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida initially opposed the launch for safety reasons. The panel is searching for the cause of the Jan. 28 explosion that destroyed Challenger.

"Low temperatures were in the direction of badness" for the ability of rubber-like seals called O-rings to seal joints in the solid rocket boosters, McDonald said he told the conference held the night before the launch.

He said officials from Morton Thiokol initially recommended against launching the Challenger. The firm later reversed itself and sent a memo approving the launch.

Investigators believe the shuttle's problems began when a puff of smoke emerged from a seam in the right booster rocket less than a half second following liftoff.

White asked the president in his letter to "carefully consider" the effects proposed changes in the corporate minimum tax, depreciation, investment tax credits, percentage depletion and the treatment of intangible drilling costs will have on the oil and gas industry.
Such changes are included in the tax reform bill that has passed the House and is pending in the Senate.
"During the Senate's deliberations on the tax bill, I strongly urge you to use your personal influence to ensure that the proven incentives for our domestic oil and gas industry remain in place," White wrote.

In 1921, after passing Governmental Rehabilitation Program tests designed to get war veterans without high school diplomas into college, he entered the Texas School of Mines, now known as University of Texas at El Paso, under the G.I. Bill. In June 1925 he graduated with a degree in mining engineering and geology. He went to work for Dixie Oil Company (Amoco Production) in San Angelo for two years.
For the next six years, he worked as an assistant professor of geology at UTEP before moving to the University of Texas Lands System in 1934. He was one of the first geologists employed to investigate the University Lands. He became an experienced surveyor, scout, engineer, geologist, landman, geophysicist and petroleum executive. Haigh was placed in charge of the San Angelo office in 1936, moved to the Midland office in 1937 and designated geologist in charge in 1954.
Through his efforts, all the university lands were opened to geophysical exploration and he helped establish an open door policy on leasing, a policy described as flexible enough to bring in the major oil companies and the independents.
In 1962, Haigh was put on "modified service" with university lands, but in 1976 he was "retired." However, he still went to the office every day but this time to work on a history of the University of Texas Lands.

Last week, Clements reportedly called Hance "ignorant" when the latter said the number of state employees had risen during Clements' term as governor from 1978-82.
One of the commandments of the Republican Party is "thou shalt not speak ill of a fellow Republican candidate."
Hance said the Dallas Morning News study showed the number of employees rose 6.3 percent during Clements' term, even though in his 1978 election campaign Clements promised to cut 25,000 employees from the state payrolls.
"There's the problem with Clements," said Hance of the opponent's remarks. "That's the reason he got beat in 1982 and he'll get beat in 1986."
Noting the public hasn't focused its attention to the race yet, Hance said a Dallas Morning News poll showed him 10 points behind Clements. Looking back to his senatorial race in the Democratic primary two years ago, Hance said he originally was 57 points behind the leader, Bob Krueger. But the June runoff pitted Lloyd Doggett against Hance.
If the primary were held now, Hance said the runoff would be between him and Clements. "But if Loeffler catches fire or Clements falls through the floor, that could change," he said, suggesting the lat-

David Wyss, chief economist for Data Resources Inc., a private forecasting firm based in Lexington, Mass., said that gasoline prices will drop close to 15 cents a gallon before they level off, perhaps several months from now.
Lawrence Chimierne, president of Chase Econometrics of Bala Cynwyd, Pa., said he does not believe the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries can quickly restore higher prices.
"The key issue is the long-term issue," he said. In the short term, he said, "unless they are willing to make sharp production cuts, there is no way that prices can go back up (suddenly)."

There are clouds on the horizon. Although the recent decline in the value of the U.S. dollar against major foreign currencies hasn't yet had a major impact on consumer prices, any further devaluation could rekindle inflation by making imports far more expensive, Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker warned House and Senate banking committees last week.
Volcker said that the dollar, which has dropped in value 30 percent since a year ago, had "fallen enough." However, Treasury Secretary James Baker said a further decrease in the dollar's value, so long as it is orderly, can help the U.S. trade picture further without refueling inflation significantly.

Beggs said to be leaving top NASA post for good

WASHINGTON (AP) — James M. Beggs is leaving the top job at NASA for good, his wife says, to allow President Reagan to name a successor to lead the embattled space agency through the aftermath of the space shuttle Challenger explosion.

Beggs, 60, had been administrator of NASA since July 7, 1981, three months after the first space shuttle flight.

He has been on unpaid leave since Dec. 2, when he and three other former General Dynamics executives were indicted by a grand jury on charges they plotted to hide cost overruns on the now-cancelled Sgt. York anti-aircraft gun — before Beggs joined the space agency.

"I will not resign," he said then.

But Monday night, Beggs' wife, Mary Elizabeth, told The Associated Press, "He's about to resign." She said the letter would go to President Reagan in "a little while."

The criminal case has yet to come to trial. In the interim, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration has been run by acting administrator William Graham, who had been on the job as Beggs' deputy for less than two weeks.

Since the Jan. 28 Challenger tragedy, there have been increasing demands that he resign so a permanent chief could take the helm. The most vocal advocate of a new leader has been Sen. Ernest Hollings, D.S.C., who also has called for Graham's ouster.

Beggs opposed the appointment of Graham as his deputy. Published reports have said Beggs would resign on condition that Graham will not take his place.

A top-level NASA official said it was considered unlikely Graham would get the job. He has not aroused enthusiasm even among Republicans on Capitol Hill.

'If Marcos is out, then everybody can go home'

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — A member of a prominent Filipino family predicts that many of her countrymen now living in the United States will return to their homeland if Philippines President Ferdinand E. Marcos is ousted.

"If Corazon Aquino would be president, in five years I will be able to go home," Maria Louisa Crame said in an interview Monday. "If Marcos is out, then everybody can go home."

Mrs. Aquino was sworn in as president of a provisional government today as Marcos also was inaugurated at his guarded palace. Mrs. Aquino has the support of the defense minister and the acting armed forces commander, who rebelled.

Mrs. Crame is an American citizen

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Patrick Leahy said today that he was "very pleased" that Ferdinand Marcos is peacefully leaving the Philippines.

The Vermont Democrat said that "had he stayed and toughed it out for a while, there would have been a real bloodbath."

Leahy commented shortly after Secretary of State George Shultz announced that Marcos was ending his 20-year rule. Mrs. Corazon Aquino will replace him after apparently defeating him in the disputed Feb. 7 election.

"I think we came close to botching it by sticking with Marcos for so long," said Leahy, "but the way it ended, I think we can work with Mrs. Aquino. She is going to need a lot of help and I think the United States can provide it in a way that is going to stop the corruption that has existed there."

But Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., said the United States should be cautious in its response to the new government in the Philippines.

"Now we're in the post-Marcos era. We have to find out what the new government thinks of us," Dole told reporters.

He added that U.S. officials should "review a lot of the statements she (Mrs. Aquino) made in her campaign with a little more care."

Republican and Democratic leaders supported the administration's effort to end the crisis.

"I think the administration is now taking a far more realistic attitude toward Ferdinand Marcos and they realize the question is not whether he's leaving, but when he's leaving," Leahy said Monday.

Leahy was one of 18 senators and nine House members who were briefed by Secretary of State George Shultz and special presidential envoy Philip Habib on the administration's attempt to solve the problem.

The closed-door meeting in the Capitol lasted more than an hour and when it ended, Leahy and other participants refused to publicly discuss what was said.

But sources speaking only on condition of anonymity said Habib, who recently returned from Manila, told the participants there had been discussions between him and Marcos about the conditions under which Marcos would leave the country.

Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, refused to discuss what he was told by Shultz and declined to speculate on what Marcos would do.

Lugar added, "I don't believe his government is viable, but clearly there are military forces at his disposal that could cause bloodshed."

Leahy and Lugar said they thought the United States would offer asylum to Marcos if that would help end the crisis.

Congress has been central to the unfolding Philippine drama over the past six months.

Allen Weinstein, a U.S. election observer who spoke last week with Marcos, said, "It was clear that Marcos was very sensitive to reaction in the United States, particularly what Congress said and did."

Weinstein, a Boston University professor, was a member of the U.S. team sent to Manila to watch over the Feb. 7 election in which both Marcos and challenger Corazon Aquino have claimed victory.

The Philippines, home to the two largest U.S. military bases outside the United States, has long been a close U.S. friend.

Although Marcos' critics had warned of problems, the country generally received little attention until September.

That was when a Senate Appropriations Committee report said the Pentagon should consider other locations for U.S. bases.

Court rejects anti-pornography law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court derailed an "innovative" anti-pornography ordinance in Indianapolis, but leaders of the drive say at least they focused attention on the way sexually explicit material can lead to abuse of women.

John Samples, a spokesman for Indianapolis Mayor William H. Hudnut, said the court defeat was not in vain.

"We were looking for new and innovative ways to fight pornography," he said. "And while this particular ordinance was apparently being struck down, it has helped focus attention on new ways of fighting pornography that will be of value in the future."

The Supreme Court, by a 6-3 vote, said Monday the ordinance that subjected distributors of sexually explicit materials to lawsuits violates freedom of speech.

The ordinance allowed women injured by someone who had seen or read the explicit material to sue the maker or seller.

by virtue of her father's service in the U.S. Navy, while her husband, radiologist Dr. Andres Crame, is a naturalized U.S. citizen. They have been in the United States about 15 years and have four children, all born here.

"It's just that I love my country," Mrs. Crame said of her desire to move back to the Philippines. "We will have a better Philippines."

The Crame family name has been prominent in news about the political struggle in the Philippines. The rebel military leaders have made their headquarters at Camp Crame, named after a Spanish colonial general.

The situation in their homeland has been difficult for the Crames because they have relatives on both sides, Mrs. Crame said.

"I am all for Marcos getting out of the country," she said. "I think, personally, he has drained the wealth from the Philippines."

Her husband also is outspoken in his opposition to Marcos. To avoid any political arguments, the family steered clear of Prime Minister Cesar Virata, a distant relative of Mrs. Crame and a Marcos supporter, during a December trip to the Philippines.

"You cannot let my husband stay in the Philippines because he will talk against the government," said Mrs. Crame, who has several relatives working for Virata. Her maiden name is Abueg, a family long active in politics in Cavite, her native province, and Rosario, her home town.

Her husband's father, retired physician Amando Crame, is a close friend and former classmate of Arturo Tolentino, who was the vice presidential candidate on the Marcos ticket in the recent election.

"I'm sure Dad was very disappointed when Mr. Tolentino sided with Marcos," she said.

Although several relatives oppose Marcos, the only one to speak out publicly is Thomas Gomez III, a brother-in-law who is a spokesman in Hawaii for Mrs. Aquino. He has appeared several times on U.S. news programs in the past few days.

NAACP leader blasts paper

CHICAGO (AP) — A top official of the NAACP's Chicago chapter says he'll stay chained in front of the city's only black-owned daily newspaper until it retracts an editorial criticizing Mayor Harold Washington.

"As long as it takes, that's how long I'll be out here," the Rev. Herbert Martin said late Monday as he adjusted the 200-pound logging chain attached to his waist and a pillar of the building housing the Chicago Defender.

Martin, president of the board of directors of the Chicago NAACP, also said he was going on a hunger strike that would end when the retraction appears.

"I'm a preacher," Martin said. "Divine guidance told me that such a method was necessary to dramatize the dissatisfaction of the black community with this action by a newspaper which purports to represent the black point of view."

Martin said he was prompted by an editorial in Saturday's edition that criticized Washington, the city's first black mayor, and "his apparent lack of ability to make unimpeachable decisions in sensitive matters."

Gerber Products Co. filed the suit against Gov. Harry Hughes and other officials Monday, one day after the state ordered jars of Gerber strained peaches removed from store shelves.

"Gerber strongly believes that the unilateral conduct of the governor of the state of Maryland has only created a climate of fear and confusion among the consuming public at a time when copycat actions should not be encouraged by acts of public officials," Gerber said.

Lawyers to appeal ruling

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Attorneys for the man accused in the "Night Stalker" serial killings plan to appeal a judge's rejection of their request that their client's preliminary hearing be closed to the public.

Municipal Judge James Nelson Monday rejected arguments by lawyers for Richard Ramirez that their case would be irreversibly prejudiced if the hearing were open to the public, and said he was convinced a fair jury could be found.

Judge denies bail request

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (AP) — A woman suspected in the deaths of seven of her children and an infant she and her husband planned to adopt must remain in jail until her arraignment, a judge ruled.

Schenectady County Court Judge Clifford Harrigan Monday denied a request that he set bail for Mary Beth Tinning, 43. Harrigan said he expected Mrs. Tinning would be arraigned Wednesday or Friday.

Mrs. Tinning has been jailed since her arrest Feb. 4 on a second-degree murder charge in the Dec. 20 death of her 4-month-old daughter Tami Lynne, who police say was smothered with a pillow.

Authorities are also probing Mrs. Tinning's role in the 1972-1981 deaths of the seven children, said Police Chief Richard Nelson.

Should East play a low trump to the first trick, you might not be able to surrender the lead before ruffing a club, lest the defenders manage to play another two rounds of hearts. Therefore, you have to ruff a club immediately. However, if you now cash two high clubs and then ruff a club, you run the risk that, when a defender wins the ace of hearts, he can lead a fourth round of clubs for his partner to ruff.

Therefore, you must adopt a slightly different line. You must hope clubs are 4-3 and cash all three your winner in the suit before ruffing your losing club high in dummy.

The Rolling Stones to be awarded Grammy for lifetime achievement

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Rolling Stones, which for 24 years has failed to win a Grammy, will finally receive one — a lifetime achievement award to be presented at tonight's 28th annual ceremony.

The Stones were not considered Grammy material when they were spinning out their sexy, threatening and downright raunchy music of the late 1960s and early 1970s. That was the time of "Honky Tonk Woman," "Sympathy for the Devil," "Gimme Shelter," "Midnight Rambler," and the "Let It Bleed" and "Sticky Fingers" albums. Mick Jagger was rock energy incarnate.

The Rolling Stones will accept the award in a live satellite broadcast from London during the awards show.

Tonight's show, with Kenny Rogers as host, will be televised live and in stereo starting at 7 p.m. CST on CBS. Presentation of 14 of 71 awards will be shown, with the others given earlier. The nominees are songs released from Oct. 1, 1984, through October 1985.

Scheduled performers include Sting, Whitney Houston, Stevie Wonder, A-ha, Ronnie Milsap and The Five Satins, and an all-star jazz segment.

Dire Straits leader Mark Knopfler has eight nominations, the song, album and video of "We Are the World" has six, and artists Phil Collins, Tina Turner and Sting have five each. Dire Straits has three nominations.

The Manhattan Transfer's "Vocalese" album got 12 nominations, but the awards are divided among individual artists from the group, guest artists, and vocal arrangements.

Besides the Rolling Stones, the academy's trustees have voted lifetime achievement awards to clarinetist-bandleader Benny Goodman and classical guitarist Andre Segovia. The late George and Ira Gershwin will receive an achievement award, with Ira Gershwin's widow, Leonore, accepting.

Chosen for inclusion in the Grammy Hall of Fame this year were five records released before the academy began making awards in 1958:

"A-Tasket, A-Tasket," by Chick Webb and his Orchestra, featuring Ella Fitzgerald. The song was released in 1938 on Decca Records.

"Bach: Goldberg Variations for Harpsichord," by Wanda Landowska, issued in 1945 on Victor Records.

"Blue Suede Shoes," by Carl Perkins, issued in 1956 on Sun Records.

"Cool Water," by Sons of the Pioneers, issued in 1941 on Decca Records.

"Tea for Two" by Art Tatum, released in 1939 on Decca Records.

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A $3,250 tanning bed has been removed from the Governor's Mansion and will be sold as surplus property, a spokeswoman for Gov. Martha Layne Collins says.

The tanning bed became the butt of many jokes in the legislature after its presence in the mansion was reported earlier this month.

The governor was irked that news reports and editorials about the tanning bed had taken attention away from more important topics, press secretary Barbara Hadley Smith said Monday.

Following a visit with President Reagan last week, Collins met with reporters on the White House lawn and one of the questions was about the tanning unit.

The bed will be sold through sealed bids, and Collins will reimburse the state for any difference between the highest bid for the bed and its actual cost, Smith said.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Singer Willie Nelson is considering a request from the state's agriculture commissioner that the next FarmAid concert be held in the heart of Dixie, an organizer said.

Nelson, whose concert last summer in Champaign, Ill., raised nearly $11 million for the nation's financially ailing farmers, also has been invited by officials in Austin, Texas; Dallas and Washington, D.C., said Steve Hauser of the Houston-based Pace Management Inc., which promotes Nelson's concerts.

Commissioner Jim Buck Ross offered the Mississippi Memorial Stadium, which can hold 62,512 people, as a site for the July 4 benefit concert.

"Mississippi is the heart of the South, which was built on farming and has thousands of farmers that need help," Ross said in his Feb. 18 telegram.

Hauser said, however, that organizers were looking for a stadium that will hold up to 80,000 people.

NEW YORK (AP) — Edwin S. Lowe, who made a fortune by taking an obscure carnival game and successfully marketing it into a national pastime called bingo, died Sunday. He was 75.

Lowe was a traveling toy salesman. He stumbled upon the game now called bingo at a Georgia carnival in 1929. Lowe founded the E.S. Lowe toy and game company and manufactured bingo, Yahtzee and miniature chess and checker sets. He sold his toy company to Milton Bradley in 1973 for $26 million.

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Hernando Courtright, internationally famed hotelier who until recently owned the Beverly Wilshire Hotel, died Monday. He was 81.

Courtright's first venture into the hotel business was his purchase of the Beverly Hills Hotel in the 1930s. He sold that hotel in 1965, spent some time helping to develop Century City and then took on the Beverly Wilshire. Courtright, who gained fame with his Beverly Wilshire Hotel at the foot of fashionable Rodeo Drive, sold the hotel Dec. 30 to Regent International for $125 million. He had owned it since October 1961 and was credited with inspiring the growth of Rodeo Drive as a shopping area for the rich.

BERNARDS TOWNSHIP, N.J. (AP) — The Kienast quintuplets spent their 16th birthday in much the same way as other days, as they went dashing off to various activities.

"It's hectic. You go, go, go," said their mother, Peggy Jo Kienast, as she raced out the door to take Sarah to play in a basketball game Monday.

Gordon was at a rehearsal for a revue of selections from "Cats" and "Cabaret," in which he sings.

Abigail, Amy and Ted were off on their own activities. All the children are on winter vacation from school this week.

Mrs. Kienast gave the girls signet rings for their 16th birthday, a tradition that began when older sister Margaret turned 16 four years ago.

Gordon got a pocket watch with his initials engraved on it, and Ted was given a tennis racket.

They also gave each other gifts after pulling names out of a hat.

Bones in Brazil leave doubts of ID

WASHINGTON — Serious differences of professional opinion have split the team of forensic experts who traveled to Brazil last June to determine whether skeletal remains exhumed there were, in fact, those of Dr. Josef Mengele, the Nazi war criminal.

In its preliminary verdict last summer, the team expressed confidence that the remains — a skull, bones and seven teeth — were Mengele's. But in the eight months since, some members of the team have admitted privately to doubts that the remains were Mengele's.

If the discovery of the bones was simply a hoax planned by the old Nazi and his accomplices, it has already achieved at least partial success. The concerted worldwide search for Mengele was called off when the experts proclaimed their "scientific certainty" that Mengele was dead. If he's alive, the trail is now eight months colder.

The principal sticking point — the most serious doubt that will not die — involves the lack of any evidence of osteomyelitis, a bone-marrow disease that Mengele's S.S. records show he had suffered from as a teenager.

Osteomyelitis, caused by infection, can be treated today with antibiotics. But in the 1920s, when Mengele claimed to have had it, the disease was treated by surgery and there would have been some traces that would be detectable even half a century later.

One member of the team of experts, Dr. John Fitzpatrick of Cook County Hospital, Chicago, has publicly stated that if it were proved through X-rays that Mengele had had osteomyelitis, "we would have to change our tune."

Another team member, who requested anonymity, told our associate Lucette Lagnado that if Mengele's osteomyelitis could be established, the investigation of the Brazilian remains "would be thrown wide open."

Team members who cling to their initial verdict that the remains were Mengele's recognize the crucial importance of the osteomyelitis factor. Fitzpatrick suggested recently that Mengele had never had the disease and that his S.S. records were the result of a "misdiagnosis."

But the information came from Mengele, and by the time he entered it on his S.S. records he was both a physician and an anthropologist. He was also certifiably narcissistic, and would have been more likely to cover up than exaggerate or make up a disease he hadn't had — especially when applying for membership in the ranks of Hitler's supposed supermen. Furthermore, he had told friends for years that he had once suffered from the disease.

The Justice Department's Office of Special Investigations was concerned by the team's inability to find any evidence of osteomyelitis in the bones dug up last June, and it sent a Smithsonian Institution anthropologist, Dr. Donald Ortner, to Brazil for an independent investigation. He had specific instructions to check for the disease, taking his own X-rays of the skeletal remains.

Ortner found no obvious trace of osteomyelitis.

What it boils down to is a matter of choice. Either you believe the remains in Brazil are Mengele's and therefore his S.S. records were wrong, or you believe the S.S. records were correct and the bones may not be Mengele's.

Professional reputations and egos are involved. The experts ducked the osteomyelitis mystery the first time around by making no reference to it in their preliminary report. But the final report is a different matter. Coupled with the bone disease question, enough other doubts have arisen to make some members of the team leery of a rush to judgment that could allow the Auschwitz "Angel of Death" to cheat the hangman.

Forget the 'fox'

Without a doubt any number of people hoping the various leaders of warring factions in the Middle East can find the key to the peace padlock were heartened by Jordan's King Hussein dropping his effort to woo the PLO's Yasir Arafat. Hussein had every reason to take that step.

For the past year while Hussein has been seeking the support of the leader of the controversial and troublesome Palestine Liberation Organization, Arafat has stubbornly refused to recognize Israel as a legitimate state. The PLO chief, who once appeared at a United Nations assembly in New York with a gun on his hip, never was to be trusted as an intermediary.

In deciding to drop his effort to get Arafat to the peace table, Hussein remarked:

"We are unable to continue to coordinate with the PLO leadership until such time as their word becomes their bond."

That certainly hasn't been the case and it's little wonder the Middle East monarch became fed up. Arafat's departure from the peace-making scene is good riddance. Not that the Middle East doesn't need to quieten the PLO's radical attitude, but it was obvious the peacemaking process would not work with the organization involved. That would have been akin to inviting the fox into the henhouse.

Israel and Egypt, who exchanged ambassadors six years ago this month after 30 years of war, can with the help of the United States continue to work things out their own way. The presence of an anti-Israeli Arafat in the negotiations only would have been a destructive rather than a positive factor.

King Hussein deserves credit for trying to get the various factions together. Today he deserves credit for ditching a PLO leader whose word can't be trusted.

Calling the Colonel

Threatening as it may be to the chances for a general peace in Africa, France's decision to send a "deterrent force" to assist the legitimate government of Chad can hardly fail to excite admiration in the West. It was one of the few visible responses to the absurd posturing of Libya's Col. Moammar Khadafy.

France, which supports the Chadian government of President Hissen Habre, and Libya, which backs a rebellious faction, signed a troop withdrawal agreement 15 months ago which France has honored to the letter. Libya not only ignored the pact but its troops, collaborating with the rebels, launched attacks on government-held strong points last week.

Reports reaching Paris indicate the Chadian government repulsed the attacks. France, however, lost no time rushing military aid to the strife-torn country and the French Air Force already has joined the action.

A spokesman for the French government has affirmed its determination to come to the aid of Chad "in the face of foreign aggression." France's resolute stand may give Khadafy somewhat more than he can handle, considering he already is in a tense situation with the U.S.

Whatever the outcome of the Chadian situation, France can be credited with unmistakably calling the bluff of a certified bully.

Pennsylvania kicking off rustbucket image

HARRISBURG, PA. — I drove into Pennsylvania on I-81 looking for winter and rust. I found winter, but little rust in this part of the state.

I've always believed a journalist has three jobs: to tell what's so, to tell what isn't so, and to complicate oversimplifications.

To be sure, economic development is the number one concern in Pennsylvania. You know that when the main argument between Republicans and Democrats is which party can do it best. Even such things as education and a clean environment are talked about in terms of how they will impact economic development.

If you are a collector of fundamental shifts in the flow of American politics, this is one of them. Nationally, as well as in places like Pennsylvania, the framework of the political debate has shifted from the people vs. business to how can we best help American business. Politicians have finally realized that if you cook the goose, you won't get any more eggs. This probably explains in part the discomfort of the Democratic Party. After spending decades boeing the Republican Party as the party of business, it now finds itself in the position of having to say, "Hey, we can help American business better than the Republicans."

But even though economic development remains the number one concern, it is an oversimplification to visualize Pennsylvania as one decaying bucket of rust. The unemployment rate is the lowest it's been in the last five years. The governor's office claims 437,000 more Pennsylvanians are working today than were three years ago. It also claims the rate of new business formation is more than twice the national average and that Pennsylvania is among the nation's leaders in both new manufacturing starts and growth in electronics and advanced technology.

On the other hand, Democrats claim more than 150 businesses have left the state in the last 18 months. The truth seems to be that Pennsylvania, just as I suspected it would be, is a perfect laboratory case of the basic shift in the American economy from heavy industry to advanced technology and service.

Jim Pickard, the secretary of commerce and the point man in the present administration's economic development efforts, said there is no question that heavy industry will continue to contract.

"For one thing, the country's iron ore is depleted or at least the high grade ore," he said. "Steel and mining are never going to come back to the way they were. The automobile industry, for example, uses far less steel than it used to."

The most recent groin kick to Pennsylvania's economy has been the decision by Mack Trucks to leave Allentown for South Carolina.

Pickard said two key factors were involved. The tip-point, he believes, was the refusal of the United Autoworkers Union to allow the Allentown local to vote on a proposed labor agreement.

"I think the local would have approved it, but the national union didn't allow a vote because it didn't want to have to defend that kind of contract in other places," he said.

A secondary factor, he said, was that the center of trucking has shifted from the Northeast to the Southeast.

Pickard left our conversation to attend another crisis meeting. A TRW jet engine parts plant in Harrisburg burned to the ground a couple of weeks ago and state and city officials are going all out to persuade TRW to rebuild it. About 800 jobs are at stake.

TRW officials last week hadn't said yes or no so you can bet a yes answer is going to cost some concessions from both government and the union. The bargaining chips are piled highest on TRW's side of the table.

Pickard claims that union problems follow the 80/20 rule. "About 80 percent are misconceptions on the part of outsiders and only 20 percent are real."

One of the main planks in the administration's economic development strategy is to apply advanced technology to existing industry to help it become more productive and competitive. Pennsylvania officials very much want to keep what they have as well as foster new business.

The Ben Franklin Partnership is their main tool. This program is administered by a 15-person board that includes representatives from the private sector, small business, education, labor and the legislature. It has provided matching funds to start four Advanced Technology Centers to provide joint applied research and development efforts, education and training, and entrepreneurial assistance.

America was born in Philadelphia, saved at Valley Forge and again at Gettysburg. Pennsylvania had the nation's first oil well, first superhighway, first commercial nuclear power plant. It has survived war, natural disasters, and the gilded age of the robber barons. I suspect it will survive the de-industrialization process, too.

Another View:

Let the cameras roll

Do you remember how much handwringing and worrying went on when the House Judiciary Committee decided to allow television coverage of impeachment proceedings in 1974? Even some politically knowledgeable people were concerned that members would grandstand, hog the camera and destroy the decorum of these extremely serious meetings. Instead, committee members rose to the occasion and brought credit to themselves and the House in allowing the American public to observe every step of the process. By 1979, the House had begun televising proceedings on the floor.

The Senate, meanwhile, has been relatively camera shy. Television coverage of committee hearings is allowed, but cameras are barred from the floor. After years of wrangling over whether to amend this rule, it now appears that senators are ready to take the big step. Some worry, though, that many Senate rules, devised in a more leisurely era, will make them look anachronistic, even foolish. Plans are being made to change some of these rules in preparation for television — to "clean up our act," says Sen. Robert Byrd — and that's fine.

There's no reason for lengthy, delaying quorum calls, for example, and more disciplined scheduling could be instituted. Non-germane amendments might have to go and electronic vote counting be adopted.

Hesitant legislators should have more faith in the viewing public. The people who would sit for hours watching the Senate debate are likely to be intelligent, involved citizens and fans of the legislative process. Within a single session many will be second-guessing the parliamentarian and futilely trying to prompt the debaters. They may be horrified by arcane rituals, inefficiency and bluster, but they will understand and accept the rules that make sense.

As for the lense-louse factor — the fear on the part of some senators that others will pose and pontificate — the public will not be fooled. In years of watching televised committee hearings we all remember certain senators whose very appearance on the screen caused millions of viewers to rush to the bathroom, head for the refrigerator or go downstairs to move the laundry from the washer to the dryer. Television enables us to separate the wits from the windbags, and it is the former who have the most to gain by allowing coverage. Let the cameras roll.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 25, the 56th day of 1986. There are 309 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 25, 1913, the 18th Amendment to the Constitution was declared in effect — giving Congress the power to levy and collect income taxes.

On this date:

In 1570, Pope Pius V excommunicated England's Queen Elizabeth I.

In 1792, the various department heads of the U.S. government met with President George Washington at his home for the first Cabinet meeting on record.

In 1836, inventor Samuel Colt patented his revolver.

In 1870, Hiram R. Revels, R-Miss, became the first black to serve in the U.S. Senate. He was sworn in to serve out the unexpired term of Jefferson Davis.

In 1873, opera singer Enrico Caruso was born in Naples, Italy.

In 1901, United States Steel Corporation was incorporated by J.P. Morgan.

In 1956, Soviet leader Nikita Khrushchev harshly criticized the late dictator Josef Stalin in a speech before a Communist Party congress in Moscow.

In 1964, Cassius Clay, later Muhammad Ali, became world heavyweight boxing champion by defeating Sonny Liston in Miami Beach.

Hussein taking necessary risks in Mideast

AMMAN, Jordan — King Hussein's disaffiliation from the PLO's Yasir Arafat was the first step in a daring strategy to move the deadlocked West Bank issue into negotiations before the hard-line Likud Party, with its expansionist territorial designs, takes command late this year in Israel.

Arafat was charged by Hussein in his tightly-reasoned, four-hour speech last week with deceit. That was an honest acknowledgment by the king that the joint Jordanian-PLO peace initiative he launched a year ago was dead in its crib.

Working for maneuver room in a period of time now closing in around him, the mild-mannered king is seeking new negotiating partners on the Israeli-occupied West Bank. The disaffiliation has already produced favorable signals from leading West Bankers also fed up with Arafat. But certainly even the king himself does not foresee any careful predetermined step-by-step tactical path toward his objective. He is now open-field running, a treacherous course in the Middle East.

It may not be clear for many weeks whether Hussein's modulated attack on Arafat knocked him out. Instead, using his powerful weapons of massive financial support from Arab states, his ambiguous formulations and his automatic access to the media, Arafat might be able to exploit Hussein's attack and turn the West Bank's stateless 1.3 million Palestinians against him.

Quick West Bank reactions were sharply to the contrary. In an exclusive interview with us in his palace here, the king quietly noted that he had received "hundreds" of congratulatory messages from Palestinians. They came from the West Bank, from refugee camps and from Jordan's own Palestinian citizens forced out of the West Bank by Israel's occupation. An aide to the king said that delegations from the West Bank were planning to cross the Jordan River early this week to come and see him here.

But even if such reports are wholly accurate, their pro-Hussein implications could be a mixed blessing:

They would raise unredeemable expectations among West Bankers who have waited vainly for relief from Arafat and the PLO high command for more than a decade.

Hussein is nowhere near ready to satisfy such expectations, and could not be. As of today, he has no recognizable negotiating partner with which to submit peace proposals that could lead to direct negotiations with Israel. He will never go alone. The proposals Hussein thought Arafat had accepted were all tied to the present "PLO leadership" — the Arafat-led "leadership" denounced as untrustworthy in Hussein's Feb. 19 speech.

Moreover, powerful enemies seek to torpedo Hussein's valiant effort to build a new negotiating bridge between a Jordanian-Palestinian team and Israel. The unreported machinations of one of these enemies — the Soviet Union — illustrate the case.

Mikhail Gorbachev, in an unusual intercession, personally warned Hussein in a message from Moscow that his Feb. 11, 1986, Accord with Arafat was against Soviet interests. Gorbachev had also worked hard to turn Arafat away from the "confederated Arab states of Jordan and Palestine," as set forth in the Hussein-Arafat Accord, and back to the Soviet-sponsored idea of an independent Palestinian state.

Another enemy, as seen by the king, is the pro-Israel lobby in the United States. He told us the power of the American-Israel Public Affairs Committee (AIPAC), Israel's main American lobby, was responsible for "a great deal of procrastination" in the Reagan administration during the tortuous deliberations toward agreement — on a negotiating framework.

Hussein fears that hard-liners inside the Likud Party, and extreme nationalists in smaller parties, will push a far more activist Israeli settlements policy on the West Bank when Likud takes over the prime minister-ship this fall.

Asked whether the U.S. could reverse such policy if it led to the eviction of Palestinians from the West Bank, the king told us he had doubts because of "the influence of AIPAC on the domestic (political) scene."

Hussein regrets such intrusions but will not be deflected by them. He knows he has already taken more risks in seeking peace with Israel than any other Arab leader except the assassinated Anwar Sadat. But he also knows this: The risks he takes are small compared to the dangers his country will soon confront if he takes no risks at all.

He helps lovelorn meet their 'match'

EDITOR'S NOTE: Milton Fisher is a cupid from Connecticut with an astonishing record for arranging romances that wind up at the altar. When that happens, he says, "It's like winning the lottery, the Kentucky Derby and an Oscar all wrapped up in one prize."

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — In the tough and competitive world of New York City, Milton Fisher is an attorney, president of a small investment banking firm, author of two books, teacher of a course on creativity, a man who successfully analyzes mergers and acquisitions.

He's also an incurable romantic, a Manhattan matchmaker, a commuter-train cupid. And his arrows are usually true to the mark.

Fisher, who simply thinks married is better than single, takes responsibility for 27 marriages, not one of which has ended in divorce.

It's not a business, it's a labor of love. Fisher, who commutes to Manhattan from Connecticut, doesn't ask people upon first meeting what they do for a living. Or, inane, what Zodiac sign they are. Instead, he asks them if they're single. And if they are, Fisher will do his darndest to remedy that.

"I work on the premise that every unmarried woman is a sleeping princess waiting for Prince Charming to waken her to life, and that every bachelor is a lonely soul desperately looking for Miss Right," says Fisher. "I've yet to meet a man looking for Ms. Right."

ONE OF THE first questions he asks an unmarried acquaintance is whether brains or good looks are most important.

"Ninety percent say both, but that's a cop-out," he replies. Fisher recently arranged a date for a couple who both had been widowed. They were both lovely 70-year-olds.

"He complained that everything would be fine if she would just wear a little makeup and maybe dress up a little bit more," recalls Fisher, who also acts as coach once the introduction is accomplished. "I mentioned this to her and she took great umbrage and that was the end of it."

He also likes to ask prospective "clients" about their tastes in books and authors.

"I even learn a lot from the way they handle the question," says Fisher, who often takes his prey out to lunch to learn more about them.

He weighs other considerations such as age, education, appearance, religion, career, family etc., but he does not let discrepancies deter him on his appointed rounds.

"There are few perfect matches, but imperfections are not necessarily fatal," he says. "As noted in 'Fiddler On The Roof,' the way he sees and the way she looks, it's a perfect match!"

Fisher loves singles who will agree to a blind date.

"You have to think of it as a high adventure filled with excitement," he says. "It calls for a certain intrepidity, a certain zest for life." But for those "who would no more go out on a blind date than use someone else's toothbrush" he falls back on other strategies.

ONCE HE ARRANGED for two people to be judges together at a Beaux Arts Ball. They miraculously discovered each other. But Fisher fooled no one. He got a New Year's card from the man with a single word: "Thanks."

Fisher listens patiently to the prospective blind date's list of specifications...tall, sexy, cultured, wholesome like my mom and dad, elegant, good-looking, etc. He then promptly ignores all that and proceeds on his own intuitive way.

One of his books was called "Intuition: How to Use It for Success and Happiness." It was translated into four languages. Except for the chapter on sex, which was translated into eight tongues. His other book was "How to Make Big Money in the Over-the-Counter Market."

"Beauty is in the eye of the beholder," Fisher says. "It's amazing how an obviously plump woman looks perfect to the right man and how often a 5-foot-4 shrimp looks like a giant when he sits behind the wheel of his Porsche."

But if Fisher doesn't like a person's priorities, he doesn't take the case.

"If they say 'rich' I put them in a reject file," he says. "Let them work with an Internal Revenue agent." He also has little use for chauvinists or anyone with a list of prejudices.

"If I arrange 20 dates for someone and nothing happens, I eventually realize I'm dealing with a psychological problem. They're not interested in a relationship."

Fisher recommends matchmaking as a hobby. "There's the satisfaction and delight in knowing I've done some good. When it works, it's like winning the lottery, the Kentucky Derby and an Oscar all wrapped up in one prize."

BUT THERE ARE some disadvantages. You are the guest of honor at the wedding frequently and the gift must be commensurate.

"More seriously, I've lost some friends," he says. "They don't want to admit they needed help in finding a partner and I am a reminder."

But he's not about to quit. Just recently, at Fisher's favorite event, a wedding, he met a bachelor in his late 30s looking for a woman.

"I was subliminally thinking of who I had for him and I came up with no one," he says. "And then, at lunch one day, I came up with the perfect match. It was just a flash."

They are in his clutches now, and, as Fisher says, "they realize that escape is impossible." A competent matchmaker never permits an escape.

And poetically, Fisher himself got caught by a matchmaker who may not have his track record, but she matched the matchmaker.

Fisher was happily married for over 20 years when his wife died. He spent two years as a single man, dated 30 to 40 women, but had not met Miss Right.

A fellow commuter on his suburban Connecticut train platform grabbed him one morning and announced she had just the girl for him. The master matchmaker was less than enthusiastic. But the fellow commuter was no slouch in the matching business either. She told Fisher the woman for him was a senior editor at a big New York publishing house and could perhaps look at one of his books for him.

Fisher is, again, a happily married. Just like he wants everyone else to be.

Louisiana's pelican can flourish once more

GRAND CHENIERE, La. (AP) — The Louisiana state flag whips from the staff in front of the Rockefeller Wildlife Refuge, a reminder of what was once an embarrassment.

The flag depicts the official symbol of the state — the brown pelican, which ceased to exist along Louisiana's teeming marshes in 1963.

"They just disappeared," said David Richard, a biologist for the Department of Wildlife and Fisheries. "The exact reason has not been proven but the theory is that pesticides was a reason, as was the subsidence of nesting colonies on the barrier islands due to severe hurricanes and weather changes."

Beginning in 1968, Louisiana asked Florida for help and the pelican was reintroduced. After a few setbacks, the population took hold and now the birds are thriving.

The pelican, with its white head and brownish-white body, was originally so common that the Legislature made it the official state bird more than 50 years ago. When Huey Long built the state Capitol, he had the bird's big-beaked profiled emblazoned throughout on doors and murals.

Biologists had estimated that Louisiana had 50,000 breeding pairs in the 1940s, but by 1950 the population began decreasing until, in 1963, a check by department teams found not a single bird.

Richard said he was concerned late last year after the coast and barrier islands were battered by three hurricanes.

"We did have erosion at all sites but found that the islands were still suitable for nesting and seemed to have fared well," said Richard. "In fact, one colony is already nesting and another will be nesting shortly. We'll be flying over the areas in a few weeks to check on the results."

Colonies have been established at North Island in the Chandeleur Island chain and at Queen Beas-Camp Island in Barataria Bay.

"We think it has been an astounding success story," said Richard, "and it's getting bigger and bigger, re-establishing them in their original range."

Now, he said, the department is studying a way to transplant birds to the western part of the Louisiana coast. Historically, the birds ranged only in the eastern portion of the coastal area, leaving a gap of several hundred miles from central Louisiana to near Galveston, Texas.

The only setbacks came in 1973 and 1974, when many birds died and autopsies found lethal doses of pesticides.

"The Mississippi River has been a mixed blessing," Richard said, "originally giving us the lush delta and the marshes, but at the same time it's the drainage area of the nation's farms. Pesticide runoff gathers in the Mississippi and are dumped into the Gulf of Mexico."

"In the brown pelican there was a magnification of the pesticides. The fish will eat the smaller fish, picking up the pesticide."

The pesticide problem hasn't been as great in recent years and biologists aren't positive just why, other than that there are more controls on the use of pesticides.

Forecast calls for sunny skies

From Staff and Wire Reports

Wednesday in the Midland-Odessa area should be picture perfect. The National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport is calling for sunny skies to accompany near 90 degree temperatures and light winds.

Tonight will be fair with a low in the middle 40s with winds out of the south at five to 10 mph. Wednesday winds will continue out of the south and increase only slightly to five to 15 mph.

Monday's high of 76 was 8 degrees below the record high set for the date in 1956. This morning's low was 28 degrees warmer than the record low of 11 set in 1960.

STATE

Dense fog covered portions of the Lower Rio Grande Valley early today, dropping visibility to about one fourth of a mile.

Some high clouds drifted over portions of the western High Plains at dawn today, but clear skies were reported over the rest of Texas.

Forecasts called for sunny days and fair skies at night through Wednesday. Dense fog was also expected at dawn Wednesday along mid and upper sections of the Texas coast.

Lows tonight will be mostly in the 40s and 50s. Highs Wednesday will be slightly warmer, mostly in the 80s except for the 90s in Southwest Texas, as far upward into the mid 90s in the Big Bend area.

NATION

Snow spread across the mid-Atlantic Coast today while the Washington coast had rain and high winds, and much of the nation had above-normal temperatures.

Snow-prompted travelers' advisories extended from southern New Jersey across Maryland, Delaware, northern Virginia and northeastern West Virginia. Snowfall totals were expected to be 4 inches or less, the National Weather Service said.

Snowshowers extended from Lake Ontario across Vermont and south across eastern Virginia.

Rain spread along the Washington coast and gale-force winds lashed the Hood Canal of western Washington.

Partly cloudy skies prevailed across the rest of the nation and temperatures generally were above normal.

Today's forecast called for snow scattered over Maine; rain widely scattered across the remainder of the northern half of the Atlantic Coast and across Washington; and strong and gusty winds from western Wyoming across western Montana.

Chaps 'fight' way to 29th consecutive win

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Unbeaten Midland College made it 29 in a row, tying the Chaparrals' longest winning streak, with a free-wheeling 101-90 win over Western Texas College at Langford Chaparral Center Monday night. And it was a crowd-pleasing show even without the bench-clearing free-for-all.

It was an emotionally charged situation right from the start. WTC not only was taking dead aim at No. 3 ranked MC's unbeaten season, but as a result of Odessa College's upset of South Plains College Saturday night, "We can take second place in the conference," said Western Coach Phil Spradling before the game.

When trouble broke out, WTC indeed was leading 21-20 with 9:21 left in the first half and the brawl resulted in the loss of "our two best players" for the game, and one, it developed, for the rest of the year.

"He was boning me so I boned him right back," MC's Bruce Nix said in explaining the fight that began after he exchanged elbows with WTC's 6-9 Cliff Langford.

"He got me pretty good before that," said Chap center Eddie Frazier, who again had another big night.

Both Nix and Langford were ejected from the game, but the real loser was Alvin Hicks, who was knocked out when the benches emptied, and had to have stitches taken in his scalp and his jaw, broken on both sides, wired.

"He's out for the season," Spradling said after the game. "It was unfortunate the whole thing happened. But the intensity of the teams was too great. As a result there was a lot of pushing, and you've got to call that stuff early to keep things under control."

AS FOR the blow that ended Hicks' season, the MC player admitted it was unfortunate and he was sorry it happened, "but he was the one who threw the ball at the back of Bruce's head. You can't let someone do that to a teammate."

MC Coach Jerry Stone was no less upset over the incident than Spradling. "People will say that's just junior college ball. They can't control their players, but this was one of those things. These were two intense teams and things got too rough over there and it happened."

"They lost two players, but, like us, the team is their strong point."

The loss of the 6-9 Langford should have killed the Westerners. He had eight points in the first 10 minutes and MC's Tony Wright, Eddie Frazier, and Derrick Lewis had all picked up two fouls trying to keep the big Baton Rouge, La., sophomore under control.

"No doubt about it," said Spradling, "Langford was having his best game of the season. But we lost our two best players and still hung in there close. We are looking forward to playing them again in the Region V tournament at Snyder. We lost but I'm happy with our effort."

"I'm not blaming anyone for what happened. Things just got too physical and when people came off the bench, that's when things really got bad."

Spradling added, "I'm glad Alvin isn't hurt bad. And we came out of the game knowing we can play with them."

WTC FINISHES at Levelland against South Plains Thursday. "If we win, we take second. If we lose, we finish third and will be in the same bracket as Midland."

As it turned out, 6-1 Alvin Lee kept the Westerners' in the game almost single-handedly, scoring 34 points with a 15-for-24 shooting clinic. James Dawn had 17.

"They've got more offensive talent than any one in the conference," said Coach Stone. "They all can shoot."

MC displayed a pretty impressive scoring punch of its own. Frazier and Mookie Blaylock shared scoring honors for MC with 20 while Ricky Grace and Lincoln Minor each had 19 and Wright chipped in with 12.

"No, we haven't changed our offensive scheme," Stone said in explaining Frazier's stepped up scoring tempo. "It's just Eddie. He gets excited when it gets close to regionals. "I always play better at this time of the year," admits the 6-6½ postman who hails from Dorchester, Mass., outside of Boston but wears a Detroit Tiger t-shirt. "Next year? A lot of schools have contacted me, but I'm not going to think about that until after the season is over."

Unlike last Thursday's 55-49 close-to-the-vest win over OC, this one was an offensive show in which players on both sides made great moves and flashy passes and, as is inevitable in this type of game, a lot of turnovers.

Blaylock, who scored 14 of his points in the last half, had as many assists as he did baskets.

MC spent most of the first half playing catch up, but after the fight flashed to a 46-36 lead on the impetus of eight points by Minor, six by Grace and four by Blaylock. The best play came when Wright intercepted, passed to Grace, who saved the ball while flying over the WTC end line, with Minor scoring off the save.

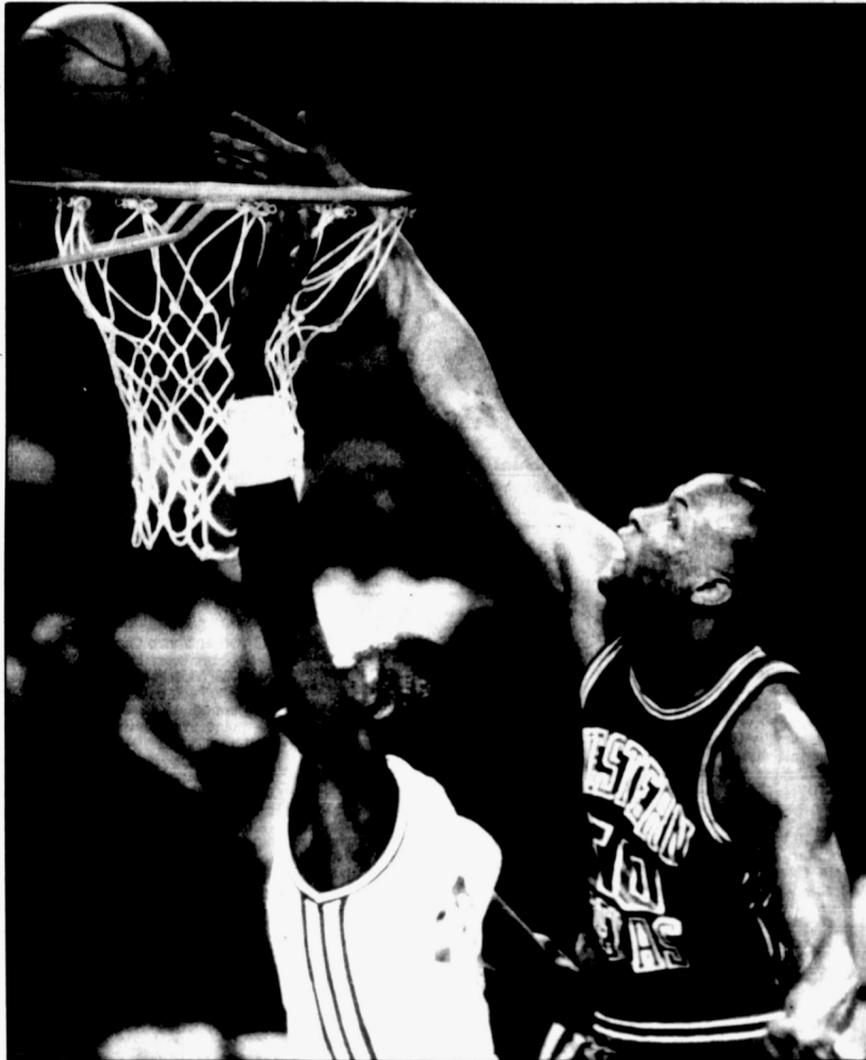

However, WTC took a 49-48 half-time lead helped by a six point play, resulting from a basket and free throw by Kevin Scroggins plus a technical on Frazier and one on the bench, of which Lee converted all three. Lee's two baskets in the final 50 seconds gave WTC its 49-48 half-time edge.

Trailing 53-50 in the second half, MC ran off a 25-7 streak to lead 75-60 with 10:53 left as Grace directed an offense that saw Blaylock score six, Minor six, Wright four and Frazier three during the run.

WTC whittled it to 91-86 with 3:35 left, but Blaylock's steal and solo, Minor's free throw and Blaylock's jumper from the lane made it 96-86 with 1:32 left.

CHAPSTYQUES—Hicks' injury came on the night when Virginia Commonwealth University had a recruiter here to scout him...MC, now 15-0 in WJCAC, needs a win at Clarendon Thursday to finish the season unbeaten and set a new consecutive game winning streak of 30...OC remained in the race for a tournament playoff spot with a 70-60 win over Clarendon. Dick Williams resigns from Padres

Associated Press

Like ships in the night, they passed. Dick Williams, Charlie Lea and Bruce Kison were on their way out, while other managers, coaches and players were on their way in for the annual rite of spring training.

Williams, on the outs with the San Diego front office, resigned as manager Monday as the Padres were opening their camp. He will be replaced on an interim basis by pitching coach Galen Cisco. Steve Boros, former Oakland manager now in the Padres' minor league system, has been mentioned as a possible replacement.

"For the past few weeks, I have been asking myself, 'Do I really want to manage the Padres another year?'" Williams said at a news conference in San Diego. "My honest answer finally was 'no.'"

IN WEST Palm Beach, Fla., the Montreal Expos said Lea, a right-handed pitcher, would miss a second straight season with a rotator cuff injury. A club spokesman said Lea, 29, had not recovered sufficiently to pitch. He probably will be assigned to one of the Expos' minor league teams.

Leon, a Boston Red Sox right-

Spring Training Roundup

hander, said he was retiring at age 36 because of shoulder problems. Kison said he had a "small tear in the rotator cuff" in his pitching shoulder. His announcement, made in Winter Haven, Fla., came as a surprise to the Red Sox.

At the same time, infielders Tim Teufel of the New York Mets and Alan Wiggins of Baltimore and outfielder Robin Yount of Milwaukee were early arrivals at camp. Teufel is starting with a new club, Wiggins was traded to the Orioles in midseason 1985 and Yount is coming off a shoulder operation.

Williams had been manager of the Padres for four seasons, but 11 weeks ago, club President Ballard Smith and General Manager Jack McKeon tried to buy out the final year of his contract. Club owner Joan Kroc, Smith's mother-in-law, blocked the move.

"I heard Dick in December. I hear him today," Kroc said. "I respected his feelings then, and I respect them now and appreciate his candor in sharing them with me."

WILLIAMS LED the Padres to a

National League pennant in 1984.

In 127 appearances with the Expos, Lea had a 55-40 record with a 3.28 ERA. He pitched a no-hitter in 1981 and in 1984, he was 15-10 with a 2.89 ERA and started the All-Star Game for the National League.

"My arm is going to heal at its own rate no matter what I think," Lea said. "When I'm healthy, I know I'll have a place in the major leagues."

Kison was due to report with 17 other pitchers to the Red Sox's opening day of spring training when he made his announcement. Kison, who began his major league career in 1971, has undergone four major operations and has been troubled by injuries throughout his career. He signed with the Red Sox as a free agent last year and was 5-3 in 22 games.

In St. Petersburg, Fla., Teufel arrived early to work on his footwork at second base with Manager Davey Johnson, a former major league second baseman. Teufel was acquired in trade from Minnesota last month.

"We made tremendous strides with Wally Backman the last two years and I'm sure we can help Tim,"

Johnson said referring to his current starter at second base.

Second baseman Wiggins was the third regular to report for work at the Orioles camp in Miami. After being traded to the Orioles from San Diego last July, Wiggins hit .285 with 30 stolen bases.

"Spring training will give me a chance to get used to everybody and the way the Orioles do things," Wiggins said.

YOUNT, SWITCHED last year from shortstop to the outfield, underwent surgery on his right shoulder in September and says he is "way ahead" of where he was last year. The 30-year-old Yount could only throw 20 feet when he reported last year.

"It's a lot more encouraging knowing I'm going to be able to throw when spring training gets over," Yount said. "It's not like last year, sitting there and wondering if it ever was going to come around."

While comings and goings were the big news of the day, the Atlanta Braves were trying to figure out where pitcher Pascual Perez went. Perez was still missing without explanation from the Braves camp Monday, and Manager Chuck Tanner said he didn't know and didn't care where he was.

'No pass, no play' stands

HOUSTON (AP)—The U.S. Supreme Court's decision that Texas' "no pass, no play" law raises no federal questions clears the way for further attacks on the rule in state court, says a lawyer for students challenging the law.

The high court on Monday let stand the rule that bars failing students from extracurricular activities for six weeks. The rule was a major part of a 1984 education reform package approved by Texas legislators.

It became the most controversial part of the package after failing grades made about 15 percent of the state's varsity football players ineligible.

HOUSTON ATTORNEY Anthony Sheppard said his clients will raise new issues when the case returns to state court.

"This clarifies that we have not had any federal issues in the case yet," he said of the U.S. Supreme Court decision. "The appeal was entirely based on Texas law and did not involve the U.S. Constitution. This is something we had to do to foreclose an argument in the state."

Sheppard said when the case goes back to the state district court in Houston, the issue of the rule's effect on minorities and the handicapped will be included in his arguments. Those issues fall under federal jurisdiction, he said.

Gov. Mark White, who pushed the reform bill in 1984 and has rejected efforts to make changes, said he was pleased by the decision.

"That's a state issue and we won," he said.

State Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby said the decision could end judicial scrutiny of no pass, no play.

"I hope we will now be able to get this issue out of the courthouse and get emphasis on academic achievement back into the classroom, where it rightly belongs," he said.

Kirby said he believes the rule is working well.

"However, at the request of the State Board of Education we will be studying the overall impact of the no pass, no play rule very carefully after the first full year of implementation has been completed," he said.

Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said he had been confident the U.S. Supreme Court would uphold the law. The decision means Texans should "now know this is the law unless the Texas Legislature changes it."

Students who challenged the law for the most part were prevented from participating on interscholastic athletic teams.

But in their appeal to the Supreme Court, they said the penalty affects the right of free expression because students, for example, could be denied a spot on the school newspaper or in school government.

"The case patently does not involve the media favorite, academics vs. athletics," lawyers for the students said. "The undisputed evidence has revealed that the law works to deprive all public school children in Texas, falling within its purview, from participation in all extracurricular activities."

THE LAW also is arbitrary and capricious, the appeal said, because it may single out students who flunk one course and get straight "As" in all other courses. On the other hand, a student with all "Ds" — a poor but passing grade — is not prevented from taking part in extracurricular activities.

At an earlier stage in the suit challenging the law, lawyers argued that it discriminates against black and Hispanic students. That argument was not raised in the appeal acted on Monday.

The Texas Supreme Court, overruling a lower state court, reinstated the law last July.

The state Supreme Court said the right to take part in extracurricular activities is not guaranteed by either the Texas or federal Constitution.

Oklahoma suffers third straight loss

Associated Press

Kansas Coach Larry Brown kind of understated the case.

"This was a good road win as I've ever been involved in," Brown said Monday night after his second-ranked Jayhawks beat No. 14 Oklahoma 87-80 in a Big Eight Conference game at Norman, Okla.

The loss ended a 46-game home-court winning streak for Oklahoma, the last loss in Norman coming to Kansas in 1983. It was the third straight for the Sooners.

Forward Danny Manning, who saw limited playing time in the first half because of foul trouble, scored 20 of his 25 points in the second half for Kansas, 27-3 and 12-1 in the Big Eight.

"We could never seem to get over the hump tonight," Sooners Coach Billy Tubbs said. "We couldn't take command of the game — I can't remember the last time we had control of a game."

In two other Top Twenty games, it was No. 7 Memphis State 86, South Carolina 73, and No. 13 Louisville 66, South Alabama 55.

Trailing by seven at halftime, Oklahoma tied the score 53-53 with 12:46 to play. Manning then scored 10 of Kansas' next 12 points, and the Jayhawks led 65-61 with 7:47 left. Kansas took its biggest lead, 69-61, on a slam dunk by center Greg Dreiling with 6:31 to play.

"I wanted to make something happen," Manning said. "Being on the bench in the first half, the coaches talked to me and it worked to my benefit."

Darryl Kennedy had 22 points for Oklahoma, which fell to 23-6 and 8-5 in the conference.

No. 7 Memphis St. 86, S. Carolina 73

William Bedford scored 17 points, and Baskerville Holmes scored half of Memphis State's points in a 20-9 run that helped the Tigers build a 43-28 halftime lead in their Metro Conference victory at South Carolina. The Tigers led by as much as 54-32 with 14:19 left on a tip-in by Marvin Alexander. Five players scored in double figures for Memphis State, 24-3 and 9-2 in the conference.

College Roundup

Memphis State scored the first three baskets of the second half, and after taking a 22-point lead never let the Gamecocks get any closer than 84-73 with 15 seconds to play.

Michael Foster scored 21 for South Carolina.

No. 13 Louisville 66, S. Alabama 55 Louisville won its seventh straight game, shooting 72.7 percent from the floor in the second half against non-conference opponent South Alabama. Herbert Crook scored 13 points for the Cardinals, 22-7 after winning 11 of their last 12 games. The Cardinals led by eight when they outscored South Alabama 16-9 to take a 51-36 lead with 8:28 to play. Crook had four points during the run. Ricky Brown led South Alabama with 15 points.

Unranked Teams
In other Metro Conference games, Dell Curry scored 36 points, hitting 16 of 22 field goal attempts, to lead Virginia Tech over Florida State 92-84. Sophomore Casey Fisher scored 26 points as Southern Mississippi beat Cincinnati 76-62.

In the Big East, Charles Smith scored 18 points and Demetreus Gore had 17 as Pittsburgh ended a four-game losing streak with a 79-51 victory over Connecticut. Ernie Lewis hit all eight of his shots from the floor to pace Providence to its third straight victory, 97-82 over Seton Hall.

Female gains Sullivan title

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Joan Benoit-Samuelsen, who overcame knee surgery to win an Olympic gold medal in the marathon, is battling physical problems again. "I'm not sure I'll be able to compete in Boston (the Boston Marathon)," the 28-year-old from Freeport, Maine said Monday after becoming only the seventh female winner of the Sullivan Award.

The award has been presented annually since 1930 by the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union for an athlete's accomplishments the previous year.

"I had surgery on both heels in my right foot in November," Benoit-Samuelsen said in discussing her current physical problem. "My right side bounced right back. My left one is still giving me some problem. I am training, about two-thirds of what I normally do to prepare for my competitive races. I'm just taking it day-by-day."

Benoit-Samuelsen set a world record for a loop course with a time of 2 hours, 21 minutes, 21 seconds in Chicago last fall in the America's Marathon and is aiming to break the 2:20 barrier.

"I'm up against the time clock, so to speak, as far as Boston is concerned. But, if there is any place I would like to break 2:20, it would be Boston in the Spring. But, if it doesn't happen in the Spring, Chicago was very good to me last fall and perhaps it will be even better."

She said Ingrid Kristiansen of Norway, who set a women's record of 2:21.06 last year, might be the first to break the 2:20 barrier. Benoit-Samuelsen's record was set in an event where the runners start and finish at the same location after following a specific route. Kristiansen's record was set in a traditional marathon, where the runners start at one point and finish at another. "I'm really shocked," she said about winning the Sullivan in her second consecutive trip to the annual presentation dinner as a finalist. "I was here last year with what I considered the best athletes anywhere and this field assembled here this year equaled that field."

The award was presented by last year's winner, diver Greg Louganis, who told the finalists, "You all are winners. You may not realize it, but young kids are looking up to you."

"I run because I love to run, not for the awards," said Benoit-Samuelsen, who also won a 12-kilometer race in San Francisco last May and a seven-miler in Davenport, Iowa, in July. In August she returned to her native New England to win the 7.1-mile Falmouth Road Race.

"I thought after the Olympics I would at least slow down with my training and not take it as seriously," she said. "It's a tough thing to let go of when you're still enjoying what you're doing and having success."

A&M's Crite spills Cougs

COLLEGE STATION (AP) — While the University of Houston concentrated on stopping Texas A&M's Jimmie Gilbert and Don Marbury, A&M forward Winston Crite scored 24 points and grabbed 10 rebounds to lead the Aggies to an important Southwest Conference basketball victory over the Cougars.

The Aggies stopped the Cougars, 82-75. Houston coach Guy Lewis said A&M had "too many guns. If you stop one, another one will hurt you."

Despite Houston's efforts, center Gilbert got 13 rebounds and scored a career-high 22 points, while conference scoring leader Don Marbury, who sat out five minutes of the second half with four fouls, scored 19 points. Alvin Franklin had a game-high 26 points and Greg Anderson scored 20 while pulling down 16 rebounds for Houston.

The Cougars fell to 7-7 in conference play and 13-12 overall, the Aggies improved their conference record to 10-4 and their overall mark to 18-10.

A&M coach Shelby Metcalf said, "We had some good shooting tonight from the people who should do it. The game was closer than seven points. We hit our free throws down the stretch and that did it for us."

After playing to a 34-34 tie at halftime, and not more than four points separating the teams during the first 15 minutes of the second half, the Aggies scored six straight points for a 67-56 lead with 4:19 left. Houston could get no closer than four points the rest of the way.

Duke leaps to top of poll

Jayhawks move into No. 2 spot

Associated Press

Duke became the third team — all from the Atlantic Coast Conference — to hold the No. 1 spot in The Associated Press Poll this season as the Blue Devils convincingly jumped over North Carolina.

Duke, 27-2, received 62 of the 64 first-place votes and 1,278 points from the nationwide panel of sports-writers and broadcasters as the Blue Devils joined Georgia Tech, which was No. 1 in the preseason poll, and North Carolina, which held the top spot each of the 13 weeks in the voting since the season began. In four of the last five weeks, the Tar Heels were unanimous choices.

The Blue Devils managed two victories last week as they blasted Miami, Fla. 104-82 and held off a charge by then-No. 10 Oklahoma, 93-84.

KANSAS, 27-3, jumped from third to second in the poll with 1,181 points and one first-place vote as the Jayhawks clinched the Big Eight regular-season title with an 84-69 victory over Kansas State on Saturday. Monday night, the Jayhawks beat Oklahoma on the road 87-80.

North Carolina received the other first-place vote and 1,140 points after suffering two losses last week. The Tar Heels, 25-3, were beaten at home by Maryland 77-72 in overtime and fell at then-No. 20 North Carolina State 76-65.

The Tar Heels were second in the preseason poll and are scheduled to meet Duke this Sunday in Durham, N.C. North Carolina won the earlier meeting this season, 96-92.

Georgia Tech, 21-4, moved up one notch from last week to fourth with 1,077 points, while Kentucky, 24-3 and winners of the Southeastern Conference regular-season title, reached its highest ranking of the season in fifth with 979 points, 93 more than Syracuse, 22-3, which held on Sunday for a 64-63 nationally televised victory over then-No. 13 Georgetown.

Memphis State, St. John's, Nevada-Las Vegas and Michigan round out the Top Ten.

MEMPHIS STATE, 24-3, fell from last week's No. 4 ranking as the Tigers dropped their only decision of the week, 82-80 at Florida State, and finished with 865 points. St. John's, 25-4, fell one spot from last week's ranking with 786 points as the Redmen lost to DePaul 81-72. Nevada-Las Vegas, 11th last week, improved two notches with 759 points, 12 more than Michigan, which fell three spots after losing 74-59 to Michigan State.

The Second Ten is comprised of Bradley, Notre Dame, Louisville, Oklahoma, Georgetown, Indiana, Michigan State, North Carolina State, Navy and Purdue.

Last week's Second Ten was Nevada-Las Vegas, Bradley, Georgetown, Notre Dame, Indiana, Louisville, Navy, Virginia Tech, Michigan State and North Carolina State.

Purdue, 21-7, is the only newcomer to the Top Twenty as the Bolleermakers closed up the Big Ten Conference race with an 85-68 victory over Indiana. Michigan and Indiana are both 10-4 in conference play, one-half game ahead of Purdue, 10-5.

Virginia Tech was the team replaced by Purdue as the Hokies, 21-7, dropped a 69-66 Metro Conference decision to Southern Mississippi last weekend.

Earnhardt given fine, probation

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt was fined $5,000 and placed on probation for the rest of the 1986 Winston Cup season because of reckless driving at Sunday's Miller 400 in Richmond, Va., NASCAR said Monday.

Earnhardt was leading the race with three laps remaining when Darrell Waltrip was passing him on the back straightaway at the Richmond Fairgrounds Raceway.

Officials at the National Association of Stock Car Auto Racing, who reviewed films of the final laps, said Earnhardt made an irresponsible move in hitting Waltrip. The resulting wreck extensively damaged both men's cars and those of several other drivers. No one was injured. Kyle Petty maneuvered his car through the crash for the victory. Joe Ruttman finished second with Earnhardt third. Midland's Bobby Hill Jr. finished sixth to go with his fourth earned in the Daytona 500 and keeps him in the top five in the points standings.

"There is a fine line between hard racing and reckless driving, and Earnhardt clearly stepped over that line Sunday," said Bill Gazaway, NASCAR's vice president for competition. "We simply cannot tolerate or condone such actions. We must preserve the integrity of our sport."

Earnhardt was fined $5,000, put under a $10,000 bond and placed on probation for the remainder of the 1986 season, Gazaway said.

Amazin' Grace
Midland College's Ricky Grace goes high for two points against Western Texas.

Webb slays NBA champs

Spud Webb is the smallest player in the NBA at 5-foot-7, but he is showing a knack for being at his best when the crowds are largest.

Webb, the winner of the NBA's slam-dunk contest before a sellout crowd in Dallas on Feb. 8, played the best game of the season Monday night against the defending champion Los Angeles Lakers in front of a capacity audience in Atlanta. The 102-93 Hawks victory was their first over the Lakers in more than six years.

Webb had 23 points and 13 assists, both career highs, and he delighted the crowd of 16,522 with two dunks and 14 points in the third quarter.

"That's something I've been doing all my life," Webb said of his two dunks. "If they block me, I'll go back again."

"He's not a novelty, he's a player," Lakers Coach Pat Riley said. "What Spud does especially well is come so hard on you on the break. We just can't get in front of him. He is an incredible threat driving and passing off."

The Hawks had lost 12 straight to the Lakers since Dec. 19, 1979. Atlanta Coach Mike Fratello said his team was helped by a groin bruise that sidelined Los Angeles forward James Worthy, and the Lakers lack of rest after a tough overtime victory at Philadelphia Sunday.

"We caught them at the right time," Fratello said.

Dominique Wilkins scored 33 points to lead Atlanta, while Kevin Willis had 16 points and 18 rebounds. Earvin "Magic" Johnson and Maurice Lucas each scored 23 points, and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar 22 for the Lakers.

Atlanta led 53-52 at halftime, then scored the first eight points of the third quarter to lead 61-52. The Lakers cut the lead to 72-71, but Webb then led a 10-4 Atlanta run with six points, including a dunk, to make the score 82-75 at the end of the third quarter.

Rockets 110, Mavericks 105

Ralph Sampson had 28 points and 19 rebounds as Houston maintained its Midwest Division lead at 24 games with a victory over Dallas.

Jay Vincent, who led all scorers with 31 points, gave the Mavericks a 105-103 lead with 42 seconds left, but Robert Reid's fallaway jumper 17 seconds later tied the score. Sampson put the Rockets ahead to stay with a free throw with 22 seconds remaining, and John Lucas' four free throws in the final nine seconds iced the victory.

Dallas led by as many as seven points in the third quarter before Houston jumped ahead with a 12-0 Cavaliers 124, Spurs 111

World B. Free, who missed two games with a pulled calf muscle, came back to score 31 points and John Bagley had 24 points and 11 assists for Cleveland against San Antonio.

The Cavaliers trailed by 11 points in the first quarter before leading 66-64 at halftime and taking a nine-point advantage in the fourth quarter. The Spurs got as close as four points on two occasions, but Free and Roy Hinson stifled the rallies.

Mike Mitchell led San Antonio with 28 points and Wes Matthews had 20. Hinson scored 21 for Cleveland.

Pistons 110, Bulls 106

Detroit won for the eighth straight time and captured its 12th consecutive home game as Kelly Tripucka scored a season-high 41 points against Chicago.

The scored was tied 50-50 at halftime before Tripucka hit two three-point goals to key a 16-8 spurt that gave the Pistons the lead to stay. Tripucka had one other three-pointer in the game after collecting just five previously this season.

Isiah Thomas added 33 and Bill Laimbeer 22 for Detroit and 15 rebounds for Detroit, while George Gervin had 26 points and Sidney Green 22 for the Bulls.

Nuggets 119, Blazers 113

Alex English scored 32 points as Denver won its fifth straight game and handed Portland its NBA season-high 10th consecutive loss.

The 10-game losing streak surpassed a nine-game loss skinned by Phoenix, which started the season 0-9.

Calvin Natt added 23 points for the Nuggets, while Mychal Thompson led Portland with 23 and Kiki Vandeweghe added 22.

Bullets 89, Nets 89

Jeff Malone scored seven of his 25 points as Washington outscored New Jersey 11-2 in the final 4:17, handing the Nets their eighth loss in the last 10 games.

Malone started the surge with a field goal and one of two free throws. Following a basket by New Jersey's Buck Williams, Dan Roundfield scored a rebound field goal for Washington and Malone hit two more shots.

Gold soars

LONDON (AP) — The U.S. dollar fell against all major currencies in early trading today. Gold prices soared, boosted by political turmoil in the Philippines and the continuing economic troubles of heavily indebted Mexico. Gold opened in London at a bid of $348.75 a troy ounce, leaping $7.50 from late Monday's $341.25, and continued rising. At mid-morning, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $351.40. In Zurich, the bid was $350 an ounce, an even sharper rise from $341.50 late Monday. Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold rose $6.13 an ounce to close at a bid $348.34. Later, in London, the dollar was quoted at 181.06 yen.

The dollar took a 3-cent dive in London trading against the British pound, which was quoted at $1.4920 dollars, compared with $1.4615 late Monday. Silver was quoted in London on Tuesday at a bid price of 5.97 dollars a troy ounce, up from 5.90 late Monday.

Midland cost of living drops in January

From Staff Reports

The cost of living in Midland declined 0.7 percent during the month of January, according to figures released by ClayDesta National Bank this morning. Medical and housing expenses increased, but were offset by decreases in clothing, transportation, taxes, food at home, and utilities. The cost of eating out remained stable.

Over the last 11 months, according to ClayDesta's figures, the cost of goods and services in Midland rose 1.1 percent, due to increases in utilities, food at and away from home, clothing, medical and housing expenses. The only category to show a decrease was transportation.

Following three months of increases, the city of Odessa's cost of living rose 0.4 percent for the month, and showed a 1.9 percent increase during the last 11 months.

Reversing a December decrease, medical expenses in Midland rose 1.2 percent, due to higher prices for non-prescription drugs. Lower costs for doctor's care were offset by higher prices for over-the-counter drugs, resulting in a 1.6 increase for the year.

Midlanders began paying higher rents during the month of January, resulting in a 0.5 percent increase in housing expenses. Although maintenance costs slipped some, Midlers paid 1.3 percent more in housing costs during 1985.

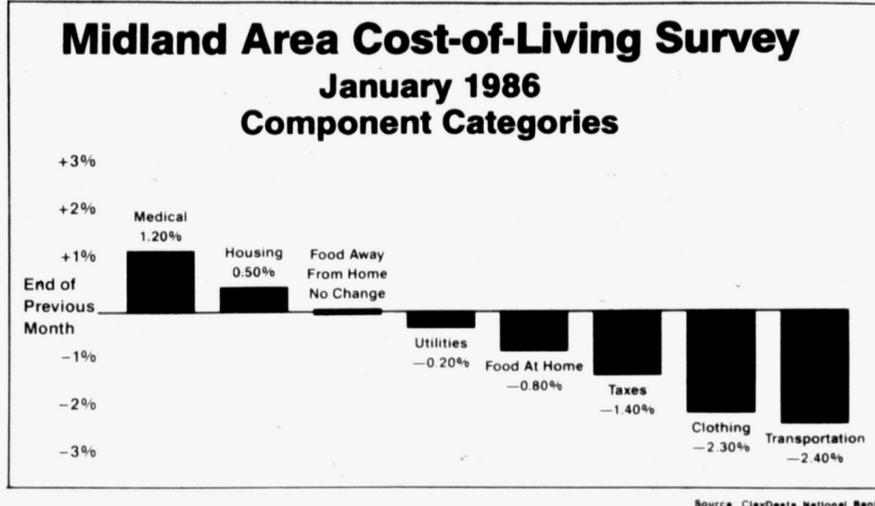

Slightly higher prices for women's apparel were offset by lower price tags on children's clothing, resulting in a 2.3 percent decrease in the cost of buying clothes. The category showed a 3.3 percent increase for 1985, due to higher price tags for children's and men's clothing.

Midlanders paid less in transportation costs during the month of January, continuing December's downward trend. Transportation costs fell 2.4 percent, due to lower maintenance costs and gasoline prices, and a drop in automobile insurance rates.

The taxes that Midlanders have to pay decreased 1.4 percent during January as the new Federal rates took effect. The Social Security tax rose 1.4 percent while the Withholding decreased 2.7 percent.

Grocery prices decreased 0.8 percent in January, due to decreases in produce, alcohol and meat prices, which were offset by higher prices for shelf items. Increases in shelf items, produce and alcohol offset decreases in meat prices, leading to a yearly increase of 3.9 percent in grocery prices. The lowest prices were recorded in June, and the highest were seen in December.

Residential utility bills went down

0.2 percent, due in part to a decline in gas rates. At the same time, the electric fuel adjustment charges also rose, by 1.8 percent, although gas prices fell 6.6 percent during the year. The cost of eating out in Midland remained stable during January, following a December rise. Midlanders who like to eat out paid 2.0 percent more during 1985, especially when ordering non-alcoholic beverages or meals prepared with fish.

MidCon to sell profitable unit to clear way for Occidental merger

LOS ANGELES (AP) — MidCon Corp., the natural-gas pipeline concern that Occidental Petroleum Corp. is acquiring, said Monday it has agreed to sell its Mississippi River Transmission Corp. to Arkansas-based Arkla Inc. for $305 million cash.

The sale will trim MidCon's revenues and earnings by about one-sixth.

The Federal Trade Commission, in giving its blessing earlier this month to the $3 billion Occidental-MidCon merger, did so only on condition that Mississippi River Transmission be shed within a year.

The FTC contended that that unless the division were sold, the merger would lessen competition in the pipeline transport and sale of natural gas in the St. Louis area.

Sale of the division is expected to be completed in April after completion of the Occidental-MidCon merger, the companies said.

Meantime, Los Angeles-based Occidental and Lombard, Ill.-based MidCon set shareholder meetings March 27 to vote on the second stage of the merger — a stock-swap deal valued at about $99.75 per share, or $1.43 billion, for the remaining 49 percent of MidCon's stock.

Last week, Occidental completed the first stage of the merger by buying 21 million shares, or 51 percent, of MidCon's stock for $75 each, or about $1.57 billion.

Mississippi River Transmission, which was purchased by MidCon in 1983, has about 2,200 miles of natural-gas pipelines in Texas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri and Illinois.

That is about 7.3 percent of MidCon's 30,000 miles of pipeline. But last year the division accounted for about 16 percent of MidCon's revenues and earnings.

In fiscal 1985 ended Sept. 30, it earned $26.5 million on revenues of $625.1 million. MidCon earned $156 million on sales of $4.1 billion.

Arkla, with offices in Little Rock, Ark. and Shreveport, La., operates about 9,600 miles of natural-gas pipelines, primarily in Kansas, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas and Oklahoma.

For fiscal 1985, Arkla earned $99.5 million on revenues of $993.4 million.

The merger of Occidental and MidCon would create the nation's 12th largest industrial company. Currently, Occidental ranks 18th.

Airline merger faces obstacles, questions

MIAMI (AP) — The last-minute takeover of Eastern Airlines by Frank Lorenzo's Texas Air Corp. still faces many obstacles, and the 41,000 employees of the nation's No. 3 carrier are waiting to learn what it will mean for them.

Chief among their concerns is the anti-union reputation of Lorenzo, a former Eastern employee who founded Texas Air six years ago and since has taken over Continental Airlines and New York Air.

The $606 million deal also must meet with the approval of Eastern's creditors, who earlier set a Feb. 28 deadline by which Eastern must have a firm business plan for a return to profitability or default on $2.5 billion in debt.

The creditors could decide the agreement with Texas Air satisfied their requirements or they could decide that Eastern still must obtain concessionary contracts from unionized attendants, ground workers and pilots.

Lorenzo flew to Miami from Houston on Monday and met with Eastern chairman Frank Borman and president Joe Leonard. Before leaving, he told KPRC-TV that "we're company-builders, not union-busters."

"We're very excited, it's a wonder-

A group of flight attendants announce an agreement reached Sunday between the attendants and Eastern Airline. However, the airline failed to sign the contract.

ful company and we're out to help build," he told The Miami Herald. "We have no plans to make any changes at Eastern. We have no plans to diminish the size of the airline."

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Champlin Petroleum plans to cut work force

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Champlin Petroleum Co. of Fort Worth plans to cut its salaried work force 10 percent by April 1 because of the recent plunge in oil prices, a company spokesman says.

Dan Prescott said Champlin has about 3,400 employees, including about 800 at company headquarters here. Prescott said he did not know how large Champlin's salaried workforce is and thus could not state how many employees would lose their jobs.

Observers expect Champlin's move to be repeated in coming months by other oil companies if the decline in petroleum prices continues.

Lower oil prices may strengthen U.S. economy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Falling oil prices will give the United States stronger economic growth and lower inflation this year while pushing the threat of a recession further into the future, business economists are predicting.

The National Association of Business Economists said Monday that its latest survey of 300 members found them more optimistic about economic growth. Three months ago, relatively few believed the current recovery would last.

Texaco among companies cutting oil prices

NEW YORK (AP) — More oil companies are joining the latest round of cuts in the contract price for domestic crude, the kind of move that has led analysts to become more optimistic about the U.S. economic outlook.

Texaco Inc., the nation's third-largest oil company, said Monday it had cut the price it will pay for West Texas Intermediate crude, the top domestic blend, by $1.50 a barrel to $20, effective last Friday. It was the seventh cut since the start of 1986, when Texaco was paying suppliers $27.75 a barrel.

But prices rebounded sharply from seven-year lows on the futures market for petroleum, as some OPEC members renewed efforts to persuade oil producers to support slumping prices by limiting output.

Federal deficit falls 56 percent in January

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal budget deficit narrowed in January to $6.49 billion, down 56 percent from the December imbalance, the government says.

But even with the decline, the deficit for the first four months of the fiscal year was still 2.7 percent ahead of last year's pace, when the deficit surged to an all-time high of $212.3 billion for the entire year, the Treasury Department reported Monday.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Start investment program with IRA

By BILL DOYLE

Q. What advice would you give to a young man, age 27, who seems anxious to get a modest investment program started? My son has about $10,000 in a bank at 5.5 percent interest and a steady job paying about $30,000 a year. Financially, he has only himself to worry about, for the present.

Should he look for income, growth or both? About how much of the $10,000 should he invest?

A. The first thing you should do is pull his $10,000 out of that 5.5 percent account — obviously an old-fashioned savings account — and put all that money in a money market deposit account, where it will earn higher interest and be just as safe.

It's a constant amazement to me that people keep large sums in low-interest savings accounts. Banks love people who do that. In effect, your son has been making a gift to his bank of the higher interest he could have been earning.

If he doesn't have an individual retirement account, he should open one — immediately. He has until April 15 to make a $2,000 IRA contribution for 1985. And he should take another $2,000 into the IRA for 1986.

He'll have to decide whether to look for high income or high growth. He can't expect to get the best of both from the same investment. For a young person, my recommendation would be to invest for growth in common stocks or mutual funds holding common stocks.

He should be aware that investments aiming for growth carry risk. If he doesn't want to take on risk, he should put most of his money in bank certificates of deposit or U.S. Treasury securities.

How much to invest is another decision only he can make. I'd suggest keeping about $3,000 in a money market deposit account, for emergency purposes, and investing the rest.

Q. My bank is offering "capital notes" in $2,500 minimum denominations. The notes pay 12.25 percent interest and mature in seven, eight, nine and ten years. I have $20,000 from a recently matured certificate of deposit and the 12.25 percent is higher than I can get on new CDs. I asked the bank teller if these notes are federally insured. He said they aren't but that they are backed by the bank. When I asked what would happen if the bank is taken over by another bank, he said the notes would be paid off before the takeover.

How safe are these capital notes?

A. Unlike various types of accounts and CDs, these capital notes are not deposits and, therefore, are not covered by federal deposit insurance. By buying these notes, you would become a creditor of the bank. If the bank fails, you might get nothing for your investment.

My advice is to read the offering circular for those notes very carefully. The teller's statement about the notes being paid off in the event of that bank being merged into another bank might not be true, unless there's a definite provision for that in the note offering.

All this is not intended to scare you. Banks frequently raise money by selling notes and other debt securities and, almost always, meet the interest payments and maturity obligations.

It boils down to the fact that the notes are as safe as the bank. Because the notes do not have federal insurance, the bank naturally has to pay higher interest on them than on insured CDs.

Q. I go to Canada from time to time and use Canadian money. When I exchange U.S. dollars for Canadian dollars, I never get the amount listed in newspaper foreign exchange tables. On my last trip, I received $1.31 Canadian per U.S. dollar. On that very day, the exchange rate in the paper was $1.40 Canadian per U.S. dollar. Where can U.S. investors get the full exchange rate?

A. Unless you deal in very large numbers, you can't. The foreign exchange rates in newspapers are for transactions of $1 million and up. Those are the rates at which banks, brokerage houses and other institutional investors trade currencies.

When you exchange smaller amounts of money, you receive less foreign currency for U.S. dollars. This applies to all foreign currencies — not just Canadian dollars.

Car-seat law cuts number of children's deaths

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

Since going into effect in October 1984, a Texas law requiring that young children be protected by seat-belts or car seats has cut the number of children killed in traffic accidents by almost a third, according to the Texas Department of Health.

"I think it's been very effective," said Highway Patrol Capt. Coy Clanton of the Department of Public Safety's Midland headquarters. "There's no question that the deaths have gone down."

1985, 43 children were killed in Texas auto accidents, according to statistics released by the Health Department. For the same period in 1984, 63 children were killed.

To celebrate the law's success and encourage better compliance, Gov. Mark White has declared this week Child Passenger Safety Week, which coincides with National Child Passenger Safety Week.

"Laws are in effect now in all 50 states and the District of Columbia," said Carol Kendall of the Midland Memorial Hospital Auxiliary's Kids 'n' Cars program.

The Texas law requires that all children from infancy to 2 years must ride in approved child safety seats, and that children from 2 to 4 years must ride in safety seats or be buckled in seat belts.

A more recent law requires that all front seat passengers in cars or light trucks wear seatbelts.

Clanton estimates that compliance with the child-safety law is about 80 percent. According to the Health Department, if all children up to 4 years old were properly restrained while on the road, 90 percent of child traffic deaths and 85 percent of injuries could be prevented.

"In a crash, (restraints are) the only thing that can protect them," Ms. Kendall said. "Of course, there still are too many kids riding unprotected."

There are four different kinds of car safety seats, according to Ms. Kendall. Infant seats, usually costing from $30 to $50, are designed for children up to 20 pounds. Convertible seats ($40 to $100) are designed for children from infancy up to about 43 pounds, and toddler seats (also $40 to $100) are intended for children weighing between 20 and 43 pounds. Booster seats, which can be used with seat belts, are for children weighing between 30 and 60 pounds, and cost between $20 and $30, she said.

Ms. Kendall noted that an estimated 65 percent of all child-safety seats are incorrectly used, and emphasized the importance of following manufacturers' instructions to ensure the full safety benefit for the child.

She cautioned against using older seats made before federal standards went into effect in 1981; seats that have no instruction booklets with them; or seats which have been put through the strain of an accident.

The hospital auxiliary's Kids 'n' Cars program provides information and short-term rentals on car seats (infant seats can be rented for as long as needed).

For lower-income families, the Department of Public Safety has a federal grant to loan car seats for six-month periods, according to Clanton. But supplies are limited, and all the seats are currently in circulation, he said.

Before the law was passed, "Texas was one of the states that led the nation" in child traffic deaths, Clanton said.

"Our greatest asset is our people," he said. "If we can keep those youngsters alive, they may be the ones who solve all our problems."

Court to re-advertise for computer system for Sheriff's Office

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter asked that all bids for a new computer system be struck during Monday's meeting of the Midland County Commissioner's Court.

Painter, in a non-agenda request, asked the court to re-advertise for bids due to a problem in planning for the Sheriff's Office computers — part of a county-wide computerization move. Approval for bids was first authorized during a December meeting.

"We went about it backwards," said Painter. "We looked at what hardware we could order and tried to match the software to it when we should have done it the other way around."

The court agreed and authorized Midland County Auditor Floyd Jarnagin to re-advertise for the computers.

Commissioner Win Brown urged Painter to consider the expense of inputting current and past data into the new system in his budget.

"You know that it's going to take six girls six months to put that information in," said Brown. "Have you set aside money in your budget for that?"

Painter replied that he had not but would consider hiring someone at a later time to bring it up to date.

The Commissioner's Court also approved a resolution submitted by the Texas Department of Agriculture which sought support for increased funding for vocational agricultural programs statewide.

In a letter from Mike Muller, deputy commissioner of the Department of Agriculture, the need for increased staffing in those programs was highlighted.

"There is a lack of staffing due to budget cuts," said Muller. "Only six of the 15 former positions are staffed."

"Educational legislation in 1984 has brought vocational/agricultural programs to the point to where they've been drastically reduced."

Muller added that restoring the funding would cost "less than $200,000 per year to the state of Texas."

The resolution, which Midland County Judge William Ahders said "was aimed at enlisting our support for influencing legislation," was adopted unanimously by the court.

In an addendum item, the commissioners also approved specifications submitted for the installation of a new heating and air conditioning system at the Midland County Courthouse Annex Building.

The court authorized Jarnagin to advertise for bids.

Bids were also considered for several items, including a computer system for the Adult Probation Office, new cars for the Constable's office and a backhoe for the cemetery.

Two bids for the computer system — IBM ($53,260) and AT&T ($55,260) were accepted for further study. A decision will be made at the next meeting.

Four bids were considered for the backhoe, including Periman Tractor Sales for $29,265 (Case), Tilson Godsey Inc. for $30,265 (John Deere), Cisco Equipment for $24,965 (Ford) and Associated Supply Co. for $28,361 (JCB).

A decision will be made at the March 10 meeting.

The court voted to accept a bid for the constable's car from Friendly Pontiac Chrysler Co. The bid was for a 1986 Plymouth Fury ($10,451).

In other matters, the commissioners also approved a temporary pipeline crossing by Teledyne and authorized a speed limit sign on County Road 1224.

Wrapping it up

Digging into their chore of wrapping 8,000 sets of eating utensils for the Downtown Lions' Pancake Jamboree scheduled for March 8 are members of the Lionesses, from left, Phyllis Gonzales, Nancy Leung, Alice Cole, Hazel Somerville and Eva Combs. The event will run from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. at Dellwood Mall. Tickets are $2.50 each. The Lions had a turnout last year of 9,500 and are expecting the same amount this year. About 2,000 sets of utensils were left over from 1985 and will be added to this year's wrapped eating ware.

Odessa's 'streams of living water' not just for Catholics

ODESSA (AP) — No crucifixes adorn the walls at the Manatial de Vida — streams of living water — Hispanic Christian bookstore.

No votive candles line the racks. Rosary beads do not clutter the tables.

Gone are the trappings of Catholicism. That absence, said the operators of the store on West Eighth Street in Odessa, is one of the more obvious signs of their reborn faith.

Manatial de Vida, in other words, is a store not just for those of the Catholic faith — the religion embraced by many of the world's Hispanics — but for Hispanic Christians of all denominations, say operators Joe and Nellida "Nellie" Arana.

The 30-year-old Joe Arana, an Alpine native who earns his living selling insurance, said that, like most Hispanics, he was brought up in the Catholic church.

Today, he attends the First Assembly of God Church along with his wife. Both teach a Sunday School class for 14 to 17-year-olds.

The Aranas say they are among a growing number of Hispanics to turn from traditional religion toward what they consider a "personal" faith.

"It's just Christian," Mrs. Arana said. She said it is a misconception that all Hispanics are Catholic.

"People are hungry for the word of God," Arana added. He was quick to point out that he's not trying to say Catholics don't embrace God's word.

"It's just that (many Hispanics are) looking for something different, and that's when they have a personal encounter with Christ," he said.

Spanish-language Bibles and Spanish-language plaques bearing well-known Bible quotations take the place in the Aranas' store of medicinal herbs and votive candles found in many other Hispanic religious bookstores.

The books, written in Spanish, bear titles familiar to many Christian readers: "Las Cruz y el Punal," or "The Cross and the Switchblade," for example, and "Corre! Nicky, Corre!" or "Run! Nicky, Run!"

Spanish translations of books by James Dobson, a minister who produced a film series on family life, elbow for space with books by evangelist Billy Graham.

In a sunlit back room, Spanish records and tapes fill cabinets and spill over into several racks.

In a black dress and black heels, Mrs. Arana smiles wryly as she recalls phone calls from Odessans who obviously misunderstood the 2-year-old store's purpose.

A sign in front bears both the store's name, Manatial de Vida, and the explanation, "Libreria Y Discoteca Cristiana," or Christian book and record store. Mrs. Arana pointed out.

Some passers-by must miss reading the word "Cristiana," Mrs. Arana speculated, because she has received calls asking whether the store sold the Spanish-language edition of "Playboy" magazine.

Other would-be customers walked inside the store for a quick survey before walking back outside. Those people may have wanted "hiervas," or medicinal herbs traditionally found in Spanish bookstores, the Aranas speculated.

The Aranas said they noticed a need for the store after talking to other Hispanic Christians, who were driving to Lubbock and San Antonio in order to buy the same books now sold by the Aranas.

Bentsen introduces bill to set up border health program

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, Monday introduced legislation to set up an education and training program for health workers on the U.S.-Mexico border.

Similar legislation was introduced last week by Rep. Jack Brooks, D-Beaumont. Rep. Albert Bustamante, D-San Antonio, is a co-sponsor of the House bill.

"The health needs of border area residents far exceed the ability of the existing network of providers to meet those needs," said Bentsen, quoting from a report from the 1985 U.S.-Mexico Border Health Conference.

"Many families do not have access to health care services, an unacceptable number of women and young children are at nutritional risk and professionally trained personnel — particularly bilingual nurses and allied health providers — are in short supply," Bentsen said.

If approved, the Bentsen-Brooks legislation would authorize $10 million in Fiscal Year 1987 for grants from the U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services to border states.

States in turn would contract with medical schools to create programs to evaluate manpower needs and support educational opportunities for students interested in training for health-related careers.

The border health conference, sponsored by the University of Texas and the Carnegie Corporation, brought together officials and health professionals from both sides of the border. It concluded that any effort to relieve border health shortages "will have to transcend geopolitical boundaries."

Training programs envisioned by the proposal would be carried out in cooperation with similar programs in communities on the Mexican side of the border, but the bill specifies that no U.S. funding may be diverted to participating Mexican institutions.

"Rapid and profound changes on the border in recent years — such as the peso's devaluation from 20 to 400 pesos per dollar since 1980 — have overwhelmed the existing border health care network," Bentsen said.

A successful, small-scale program aimed at increasing the number of health professionals in South Texas has been carried out by the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston for the past 12 years. Brooks, chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, represents Galveston.

UTMB worked closely with South Texas colleges and health care providers to allow physicians to spend part of their residency there. More than 1,600 South Texas students were recruited for training in nursing, dental and allied health careers and 83 percent of them remained to practice in the region.

Midland student got to 'rap' with first lady

From Staff Reports

Midland High School student Tyrone Oliver was one of three Texas youths to participate in a "rap session" with First Lady Nancy Reagan during a recent visit to Fort Worth. The session with Mrs. Reagan was the second for Oliver, a high school junior.

Oliver was invited by the White House to share stories with Mrs. Reagan about his efforts in drug abuse prevention and to answer her questions on youth involvement in alternatives to drug use.

He is founder of Midland's Prevention Using Student Help, PUSH is an organization of Midland students dedicated to promoting fun without the use of drugs and alcohol. The group also serves to educate youth about the effects of drugs on teens. Currently, there are PUSH groups at each of the city's junior high and high schools.

Oliver was joined in Fort Worth by three students affiliated with Texans' War on Drugs. The youth greeted Mrs. Reagan at Cenikor, a residential drug treatment center. She also was in the Dallas/Fort Worth area to attend the presentation of the Churchill Award to Dallas businessman H. Ross Perot.

Mrs. Reagan is an outspoken advocate of the drug abuse prevention movement. The purpose of her visit was to listen as the youths told of their individual accomplishments in their communities. Cenikor residents also shared how they wished to be involved in prevention efforts as a result of their experience with drugs.

Employees union suggests corporate income tax

By GARY RASP
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — A state employee hiring freeze will disproportionately affect front-line workers because direct care positions have such a high turnover rate, the Texas State Employees Union said Monday.

At a Capitol press conference, union leaders again suggested a corporate income tax to raise more money for the state. The organization, which has about 10,000 members, also urged lawmakers to consider a state lottery and pari-mutuel betting as alternative sources of money.

Gov. Mark White ordered the freeze on state employee hiring as part of his plan to offset a $1.3 billion revenue shortfall. Comptroller Bob Bullock predicted two weeks ago. Bullock named declining oil prices and federal budget cuts as the reason for his revenue adjustment.

The governor's austerity plan calls for 13 percent cuts in all state agencies, colleges and universities. White said agencies could achieve that goal without layoffs, across-the-board cuts or the elimination of "essential services."

Wayne Smith, spokesman for the Texas State Employees Union, says, at a Monday press conference in Austin, that employees will help find ways to cut the state budget.

White also said the reductions could be made without jeopardizing a 3-percent yearly pay raise legislators approved for state employees.

Wayne Smith, a state fire safety inspector who is a lobbyist for the employees union, said he expects "massive layoffs" of state workers, if agency heads do not make the 13-percent cut.

"While we believe that the budget cuts will hamper the delivery of services," Smith said, "we will do our part to assure that the impact is not placed solely on the recipients of our services and the employees who provide them."

Cuts won't save enough money, state report says

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White is being unrealistic to hope that freezing hiring and cutting spending will save $1.3 billion, according to an aide to Comptroller Bob Bullock.

In a report titled "The New Math of the Governor's Budget Plan," the aide said White's plan to meet a projected budget shortfall this budget cycle could save as little as $100 million to $200 million.

The Austin American-Statesman received the report on the condition the author would remain unidentified.

White ordered state agencies and universities last week to cut spending by 13 percent by imposing moratoriums on hiring and merit pay raises, restricting travel and halting purchases of non-essential supplies. The action was spurred by falling oil revenues caused by a collapse in oil prices.

The report said White's plan will save $567 million "under the most optimistic assumptions."

"While it does appear possible that it will save some money, holding out the hope that it will even come close to filling the full $1.3 billion budget hole is completely unrealistic," the aide wrote, adding that layoffs would almost certainly be necessary in order to reach the goal.

White promised that no state employees would be laid off, nor would critical services be cut.

A spokeswoman for White, who was in Washington Monday, said White never said the suggested cuts would add up to $1.3 billion.

Janis Monger of White's press office said White "never said that these are the only options open to state agencies to trim their budgets. They were offered as starting points."

White, in Washington for the National Governors' Association meeting, told The Associated Press there is "always a Chicken Little out there who says that something can't be done."

The governor disagreed with the report's contention that his cost-cutting figures are unrealistic.

"I want to suggest to you that our numbers are accurate," he said. "Just attrition alone, we should save $400 million in Texas just by not replacing everyone who quits or resigns."

White also said he did not believe that Bullock had leaked the report to embarrass him.

"Not at all," White said. "He wouldn't dare."

Bullock projects state revenue and certifies that the state will not spend more than it collects.

White said $10.2 billion could be cut without affecting public schools, highways and retirement programs, but the report said only $4.2 billion is available for cuts.

White's executive assistant, Cliff Drummond, said, "We feel pretty confident of the $10.2 (billion) as the budget base from which it is possible to effect savings."

"We don't have to see cuts in agency budgets totaling $1.3 billion by this coming Saturday night, but we have got to have in place a savings plan that reduces the rate of spending such that we won't run out of money."

MARC volunteer wins Trimble Service Award

From Staff Reports

Leadership Midland Alumni Association has announced the winner of the February Trimble Service Award. Janet Kirkpatrick averaged 15 or more hours per week as a volunteer for Midland Association for Retarded Citizens. She is currently on the MARC Board of Directors, chairs the Education Committee, the Special Olympics Committee and is a participating member of the Parent to Parent Pilot program.

Ray Unterbrink, executive director of MARC, said "Janet is a personal advocate for all retarded citizens. I can think of no one more deserving of recognition for epitomizing the spirit of volunteerism."

Mrs. Kirkpatrick and her husband, George, moved to Midland in 1962. The couple has two daughters, Kathy and Susan. Because Kathy has Downs Syndrome, Mrs. Kirkpatrick became involved with MARC, enrolling Kathy in school at the Opportunity Center. During her 23 years of volunteering, she said she has seen MARC grow dramatically and believes the people of Midland are special in their support of the programs sponsored by MARC.

According to Mrs. Kirkpatrick, her favorite project is the Special Olympics, especially since daughter Kathy competed in 1983 in the Special Olympics International

Janet Kirkpatrick

Swim Competition in Baton Rouge, La. The entire family watched as Kathy won two gold medals and a silver.

Still in the planning stages is another favorite project — the establishment of a permanent living facility for older retarded citizens.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick said the most satisfying part of her volunteer work has been her participation in the "Parent to Parent Group" which provides counseling to new parents whose children are born with retardation.

Students 'tell' their names without opening their mouths

ABILENE (AP) — Most students are prepared the first day of class to stand up and tell their names.

But Diane Fisher's students must stand up and spell their names their first day of class without opening their mouths.

That's not so tough if you're Ann or Dan. But Juanice and Esperanza have a tough task on their hands, literally.

Mrs. Fisher, director of deaf education for Abilene schools, teaches sign language to a packed house every Monday night at Madison Middle School.

"The classroom response has been phenomenal," Mrs. Fisher said. "We usually have 30 to 50 students in a class. This time we have 145."

So many students signed up for the eight-week course that five classes have been filled, three beginning classes and two intermediate.

The students have one thing in common: they want to be able to communicate with the deaf.

"Some of the students have family members who are deaf," she said.

Some older students who are losing their hearing have signed up, so they'll be able to communicate as their hearing deteriorates.

One such student is Beatrice Vick.

"I'm losing my hearing," she said. "I have to be prepared to know how to communicate if I lose it all. The doctor who fitted me for my hearing aid suggested I take the course."

Several of Mrs. Fisher's students are people who work with the hearing impaired, such as occupational or speech therapists.

One such student is Phelps Morrison, a psychologist at Abilene State School.

"I took the class because we have some clients who are deaf," Morrison said. "They don't teach you sign language as part of a degree in psychology. I had to learn to communicate with those clients who can't speak."

The youngest student in class is 6-year-old Rebekah Crumbills.

"I have a friend who can't talk," the girl said. "I wanted to be able to talk with her."

Rebekah's mother, Mary Crumb-ills, sits beside her daughter in class, learning sign language too.

Mrs. Fisher has taught sign language to people in their 70s, but she also works with infants.

"We work with babies and their families in their homes," she said. "We start as soon as the parent learns the baby is deaf, teaching first the parents, who in turn teach their children."

Texan gives gift worth $3 million to UTHSC

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — San Antonio developer Dan Parman has given the University of Texas Health Science Center his $2 million mansion and $1 million to fund research.

"It was a dream come true," said Health Science Center President Dr. John Howe III at announcement ceremonies Monday.

"This is the largest single gift ever made to the Health Science Center," said Marvin Stettler, chairman of the medical school's development board.

The gifts include the Parman's four-bedroom house on a four-acre estate. It will be used as a president's mansion.

Engine failure prompts alert at D-FW airport

GRAPEVINE (AP) — One of two engines on a commuter plane failed after takeoff from Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, prompting an alert by fire and rescue units, an airport spokesman says.

Airport spokesman Joe Dealey Jr. said the airport's Public Safety Department responded to an alert at about 5:30 p.m. Monday after an American Eagle twin-engine turbo-prop Convair reported the failure of an engine.

The plane, which had taken off minutes earlier for Fort Smith, Ark., and Fayetteville, Ark., returned to the airport at about 5:32 p.m.

No injuries were reported and the flight continued after a delay of about one hour, a reservations clerk for American Eagle said.

Dealey said fire and crash and rescue responded immediately to the alert. He said the alert was canceled about 15 minutes later.

Mario Gonzales, deliveryman for United Parcel Service, prepares to weigh a package at the office of Texas Railroad Commission Chairman Buddy Temple, left, as Temple makes out a check for UPS Monday.

UPS wins 20-year fight for intrastate delivery

AUSTIN (AP) — Minutes after the Railroad Commission issued its final ruling in a 20-year battle, a United Parcel Service deliveryman picked up the company's first Texas intrastate delivery in what could be a $50-million-a-year business.

The historic package — the first UPS delivery from a Texas city to a Texas city — contained a letter from Commission Chairman Buddy Temple to himself.

"This is the first item shipped intrastate in Texas by United Parcel Service," Temple told himself in the letter he sent Monday from his Austin office to his Lufkin office.

He wrote a personal check for $4.48 to pay for the one-pound, one-day shipment.

"We've been waiting 20 years for you to write that check," Tom Hardegan, a UPS spokesman from Dallas, told Temple as he wrote out a $4.48 personal check.

UPS has long made interstate deliveries from other states into Texas and from Texas to other states.

But Texas shipping companies had fought the company's entry into intrastate service, basing their opposition on a 1931 state law requiring delivery companies to operate on regular schedules and regular routes. UPS offers on-demand service and pledges to pick up packages anywhere in Texas.

The regulatory route took the case that began in March 1966 through the Railroad Commission twice and into state courts, where it is again headed.

The commission initially rejected the UPS application, but held another hearing after the courts sent the case back. In 1982, a commission examiner began listening to 600 witnesses in hearings that produced a recommendation in UPS' favor. Last February, the commission approved the recommendation.

But it took another year to set the rates and rules. UPS got the final go-ahead Monday when the commission denied a motion for rehearing filed by Texas shipping companies, who have filed suit challenging the commission's final decision.

"I believe there are millions of Texans who have been waiting a long time for this service," Temple said.

The long-standing ban on UPS intrastate deliveries in Texas had drawn complaints from businessmen who said they needed the service. But Texas delivery companies complained that the Connecticut-based company is a "greedy brown giant" that threatens their livelihood.

"That's an issue that was confronted in the case when the opponents alleged that on one hand UPS did not provide adequate service but on the other hand would put everybody out of business," Temple said.

"I don't believe anybody will be put out of business," he said.

Woman claims innocence in federal judge's murder

AUSTIN (AP) — Elizabeth Chagra says she is still convinced she is innocent of conspiracy in the murder of San Antonio Federal Judge John Wood in 1979.

"I know they will never convict me but it's the long months in jail," the 32-year-old defendant said in a tape played Monday for the jury of seven men and five women.

She testified on cross-examination the recording was made by FBI agents while she visited her husband, Jimmy Chagra, in a federal prison in 1981.

Throughout extensive cross examination, she maintained that she did not know a payoff for the judge's murder was in a briefcase she delivered to a Las Vegas hotel room, a main contention of the government.

Mrs. Chagra is charged with conspiracy to commit murder in the slaying of Wood on May 29, 1979, outside his San Antonio home. If found guilty, she faces up to 30 years in prison.

Wood, called "Maximum John" for the stiff sentences he gave drug dealers, had been scheduled to preside at a narcotics trafficking trial of Jimmy Chagra.

The lengthy questioning of Mrs. Chagra, the last defense witness, caused attorneys to predict the case might not go to the jury until Thursday morning. Final arguments are tentatively set for Wednesday, three hours each side.

U.S. District Judge William Sessions refused late Monday to grant a defense motion for a mistrial because government attorneys brought up Mrs. Chagra's previous convictions as a means of questioning her credibility as a witness. After the motion was denied, Defense Attorney Warren Burnett had Mrs. Chagra testify she had completed serving the sentences given in three felonies — a cocaine possession charge in California, an Internal Revenue tax charge and a 1982 charge of obstructing justice in the assassination of Wood.

Much of Monday was spent replaying wiretaps of conversations between Mrs. Chagra and her husband while he was in federal prison in 1979 and 1980.

"I didn't believe that was what it was for," Mrs. Chagra said again Monday on cross-examination when asked about the briefcase containing $250,000 she took to a Jockey Club Hotel room in 1979.

"I would not have taken it if I had thought that," she said. Earlier, she testified her husband told her to deliver the money. She said he at first said it was for the slaying of U.S. District Judge John Wood, then told her he was only "joking" and she assumed it was for a gambling debt.

"I always agreed with what my husband had to say and what my husband told me to do," she said.

She said Monday, as she had testified earlier, that she first learned she made the payoff in September 1980 when her brother-in-law, Joe Chagra, said it went to Charles Harrelson. Harrelson is now serving a life sentence for killing Wood.

Mrs. Chagra said she asked her husband about the payoff when she visited him in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan.

Final arguments scheduled in principal's murder trial

LIVINGSTON (AP) — Final arguments were scheduled today in the trial of former junior high school principal Hurley Fontenot, charged with murder in the death of a football coach.

Fontenot, 48, former principal at Hull-Daisetta Woodson Junior High School, is accused in the April 12 shooting death of coach Billy Mac Fleming, whose body was found 10 days later in a densely forested area southwest of Livingston.

Fleming, 36, had been shot twice in the back of the head with a .22-caliber weapon.

Prosecutors contend Fontenot and Fleming were rivals for the affections of Laura Nugent, 36, a school secretary. Fleming and Mrs. Nugent planned to marry last summer.

Testimony showed blood was found in Fontenot's pickup truck. But a state Department of Public Safety forensic chemist testified he could not match the samples to Fleming's blood type.

Several teachers also testified that Fontenot boasted of "always" carry ing a .22-caliber revolver. Defense attorney Dick DeGuerin suggested someone else killed Fleming, possibly a former business associate who was "a big-time drug dealer" or the coach's estranged wife who collected $55,000 from three insurance policies.

Fontenot, who has steadfastly maintained his innocence, acknowledged he gave Fleming a ride to the school field house on the last day the coach was seen alive.

Afterward, Fontenot said he drove to a Houston airport to meet his daughter. When she never arrived, a drove to a Louisiana horse race track. He said he kept a weapon for personal protection because he frequently went to the race track late at night.

Fontenot also told jurors he "occasionally" dated Mrs. Nugent for about two years, beginning in late 1982. However, he denied he ever seriously proposed marriage.

Mrs. Nugent testified that Fontenot had jilted her so he could remarry his ex-wife.

RRC candidate rejects campaign finance limitations

By JIM WARREN
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Democratic Railroad Commission candidate John Pouland Monday again asked his top opponent, state Sen. John Sharp, to agree to campaign finance limitations, and Sharp again declined.

Sharp previously refused to go along with Pouland's proposal because Pouland accepted contributions exceeding his own guidelines. Pouland originally asked his three Democratic opponents to limit contributions to $5,000, then raised it to $10,000. Three people donated more than $10,000 to Pouland, but they will get their money back if Sharp agrees to the limits, said Pouland, a Dallas attorney and political activist.

Pouland's law partner, Terry Stanford, donated $50,000, and restaurant owner Tim Schmidt and Austin developer Jim Moore each gave Pouland $25,000. Pouland said he will return those three contributions and the three men will each give him $10,000, meaning Pouland loses $70,000.

But if Sharp, as he says, does not agree to the restrictions, Pouland said he will accept more money from his three big contributors. "I won't unilaterally disarm," he said.

Mike Sims, a Sharp spokesman, said their campaign will obey state laws. "He (Pouland) is playing by his rules and we're playing by state rules," Sims said.

Mr. Pouland must have felt strongly about returning that $85,000 (actually $70,000) and I wonder why he didn't feel so strongly about it earlier if he feels so uncomfortable with that money," Sims said.

Pouland said he expected Sharp would not agree to his restrictions, which include no political action committee contributions and no deficit spending. The other two Democrats seeking the open Railroad Commission seat — Austin attorney Bill MacNaughton and Dallas oil and gas consultant Percy "Sam" Ervin — have agreed in principle to campaign restrictions, Pouland said.

"I am tired of politicians claiming to represent the public interest while stuffing their pockets with contributions from the interests they regulate," Pouland said. "The public demands campaign finance reform. The don't want any more excuses."

Member of group claiming links to extraterrestrials goes on trial

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — A man belonging to a group that claims to be aligned with an extraterrestrial power went on trial today on charges of pipe-bombing a car in front of the Weslaco mayor's store.

Mark Alan Lingenfelter, a member of Outer Dimensional Forces of Weslaco, is charged with bombing a car last Feb. 25 in front of a McAllen paint store managed by Weslaco mayor Hector Farias.

Lingenfelter — initially found incompetent to stand trial — is a member of ODF, whose literature describes a Time Arc that will land in Weslaco in the final days of Armageddon.

ODF members live in a dilapidated house on about 2 acres in Weslaco, and they have said city officials were attempting to force them off their property to make way for a department store.

Prosecutors allege that Lingen-felter, and Daniel Paul Hoverson, also charged in the case, were attempting to damage the paint store managed by the mayor.

Lingenfelter is acting as his own attorney but is receiving assistance from federal public defenders.

On Monday, a seven-man, five-woman jury was seated to hear the case.

U.S. District Judge Hayden Head Jr. of Corpus Christi warned Lingenfelter that he could incriminate himself even if he wasn't on the witness stand.

"I kind of figured that, anyway," Lingenfelter said.

Head took over the case after U.S. District Judge Ricardo Hinojosa said he had received threatening letters from Lingenfelter.

Hoverson has waived his right to a jury trial and his case will be taken up after the end of Lingenfelter's case.

This display at Merriman Appliance, 3001 W. Wall, reveals what a difference high-quality Unique Cabinet Fronts can make in your old kitchen cabinets. To find out more about this beautiful alternative to complete cabinet replacement go by and see the display or call Texas and New Mexico's only Unique Cabinet Fronts dealer, Bill and Ruth Shields, at 563-4720 for an appointment or brochure.

Unique can make your kitchen elegant

You've seen pictures of those really elegant kitchens in magazines—the ones that look very expensive and are very expensive.

Now, your kitchen can look just as elegant without tearing out your cabinets, counter tops, flooring, plumbing, electrical and on and on.

Unique Cabinet Fronts gives you cabinet fronts a "facelift" and lets you keep the good solid part of the cabinets that you have already paid for once.

Whether you have wood or metal cabinets, Unique can redo the fronts and sides in oak or cherry and install beautiful new solid oak or cherry doors and drawer fronts in many styles and colors.

Bill Shields, who has been in the home remodeling business for 10 years, recognizes the frustration and expense caused by having a kitchen out of service for weeks, while installing new cabinets. That's why he began looking for a reasonable and top-quality alternative to complete cabinet replacement. After more than a year of research, he concluded that Unique Cabinet Fronts is the superior alternative.

Bill and Ruth Shields believe it's a waste to throw away the cabinetry you already own and have paid for. Most likely, 75 percent of your cabinets are structurally sound and usable (sides, backs, bottoms, tops, shelves, etc.) New cabinets really mean only new fronts.

The Unique system utilizes the 75 percent of your cabinets that is still good and turns your old outdated wood or metal cabinets into beautiful new cabinets quickly and usually for less than half the cost of conventional cabinet replacement.

Unique cabinet doors and drawer fronts are beautiful hand rubbed oak, custom made for your kitchen. You can select your solid oak doors from a variety of styles and finishes, ranging from a natural finish to a dark Spanish Oak finish. One door, the Versador, even offers the option of glass, wallpaper, cane or other inset.

Because Unique Cabinet Fronts is a specialty manufacturer, they measure and cut each door to give you a custom fit.

A beautiful wood veneer, which matches the doors you select, will cover the framework and sides of your old cabinets - giving you a complete wood cabinet.

It takes only three to four days to install Unique Cabinet Fronts. Then for less than half the price of cabinet replacement, you have increased the value of your home and the beauty of your kitchen.

Unique Cabinet Fronts can be used on old wood cabinets, metal cabinets, even long bell cabinets and bathroom cabinets.

Bill announces that they now have a display at Merriman Appliances. So, go by Merriman Appliance at 3001 W. Wall and see the difference Unique Cabinet Fronts really make. Or, call Bill and Ruth Shields, Texas and New Mexico's only Unique dealer, at 563-4720 for a brochure or appointment.

Hanks Superette is Midland's down home, friendly grocery

Remember, the grocery store where everyone knew each other on a first name basis and Mom felt perfectly comfortable letting the children run down to the store by themselves. There was a meat counter, where the meat was cut fresh each day and special cuts could be made for each customer. Perhaps, that kind of little store is what makes people long for the good old days. Hanks Superette, 2040 Cuthbert - just across from the football stadium, is the friendly kind of place that many people remember from their childhood.

With its friendly service and down home atmosphere, Hanks Superette makes the 1980's the good old days. They have the many things you remember enjoying years ago - the fresh meat counter with special cuts from the hind quarter and rib eye, barbecue by the pound, seasoned brisket, FRESH eggs, even fresh green beans and black eyed peas will be in this summer. It's just like the good old days. Richard Mayfield does admit, "We don't have the pot-bellied stove, but we're thinking about it."

Richard and Emajon Mayfield, new owners of this well-stocked little grocery store, get to know their customers by name. "Everybody said we replaced a legend when we bought it (the store) out," Richard said. When asked why they bought the grocery store, Richard said, "It was the personalized service, the country atmosphere, the friendliness that has gone out of our business in the U. S. We wanted that when we were buying groceries from other people, all we got to be was a number."

Now, Richard and Emajon are providing their customers with that good old-fashioned service. They're open Monday through Saturday, 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. and will deliver groceries.

"There are a lot of things we handle that no other store handles," Richard said. For instance, Hanks Superette has fresh turkeys at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

It's no wonder that many families have shopped at Hanks Superette for nearly 30 years. Now, the new owners don't plan on changing any of the good things about the store. If you haven't been in a while, go by Hanks Superette this week and get to know some new friends in a good old fashioned atmosphere.

B and J uses Von Schrader method for carpet and upholstery cleaning

The professionals at B and J Carpet and Upholstery Cleaners did a lot of research before they purchased their Von Schrader equipment. Perhaps, you can learn from their discoveries.

There are four basic ways to clean carpet and upholstery: the rotary brush method, the hand application method, the "steam method," and the only safe way - the Von Schrader extractor method.

With the rotary brush method shampoo is scrubbed into the surface of the carpet using one large or two small brushes. This does a fair job of cleaning the carpet surface, but the deep-down dirt is either untouched or carried deeper into the pile by the shampoo. This method makes no provision for the removal of the shampoo and dirt, thus the carpet must be vacuumed later in a separate operation.

Have you ever seen a man on hands and knees sponging a carpet? This is the second method of cleaning. Such old-fashioned procedures will brighten the surface but can't remove dirt deep in the pile.

In the "steam" method, the "steam" is only hot water that is sprayed into the carpet. And in most cases, little more than half of the dirt bearing water is extracted from the carpet. The remainder is left and can result in soggy carpet, browning, mildew, shrinkage, or damaged backing, padding and floors.

Betty and Jerry are delighted that they can offer the Von Schrader method which protects your carpet from these hazards. This method uses a dry foam (not gallons of water!) and a cylindrical brush which shampoos down to the base of the carpet (unlike rotary brushes which merely clean the surface!). Moreover, this equipment immediately vacuums the floor, its powerful suction lifting out dirt laden foam in seconds.

Only the Von Schrader Carpet Ex-tractor applies a dirt emulsifying dry foam, brushes it thoroughly into the carpet and removes both foam and dirt immediately before it can sink back down into the carpet. This simultaneous operation is an important.

Another thing B and J customers really appreciate is that an anti-soil product is in the shampoo. This helps keep carpet clean longer, at no extra charge.

For upholstery jobs, the Masseys will take a Von Schrader Upholstery Extractor to your place and quickly get the job done with no mess or odor. The Von Schrader Company pioneered on-location upholstery cleaning nearly 50 years ago.

The delicate but thorough action of this cleaning process cannot be equaled or duplicated by other processes.

If you call (915) 697-0444, the experts at B and J will be glad to examine your furniture or carpet and give you an estimate at no obligation. People in surrounding towns are invited to call COLLECT.

These professionals are bonded and insured. Once they have carefully cleaned your carpet and/or upholstery, paying careful attention to getting those bad spots out, they will rake the carpet. They also offer carpet protector by Du Pont, room freshener and chemicals that will get rid of pet odors. Even your auto upholstery and carpet can be cleaned with their Von Schrader VS2 equipment.

Whether the carpet in your home or office needs to be cleaned, now is the time to call B and J Carpet and Upholstery at 697-0444.

B & J Carpet and Upholstery's Von Schrader Carpet Extractor shampoos deeply with a dry foam and then gets rid of the foam along with the dirt! Call 697-0444 for professional cleaning.

Texana Room dedication slated for March 2 at Pages and Prints Pages and Prints bookstore, located at #40 Plaza Center, will be the site of a very special Texas Sesquicentennial event on Sunday March 2 at 2 p.m.

Patteann Daniel, owner of Pages and Prints, recently announced that the day's festivities will include the dedication of the store's newly enlarged Texana collection, a double autographing party of Flamboyant Judge, written by J. Evetts Haley and William Curry Holden, Ph.D. and the introduction of the new HalDan Collection of Texana collectibles.

Pages and Prints' newly enlarged Texana Room, which houses a collection of over three hundred first editions and out of print collector books of Texana, including cowboys, Indians and history, will be dedicated to J. Evetts Haley.

The Honorable Pat Baskin will be master of ceremonies. Speakers for the day will include Roger Ollen, Ph.D. of the University of Texas of the Permian Basin, B. Byron Price, Director of the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum, Chris Scharbauer, Co-Chairman of the Midland Centennial-Sesquicentennial Committee and The Honorable Tom Craddock.

"The room is being dedicated to J. Evetts not only because of his writing, but also because of his dedicated preservation of the history of Texas," Daniel said.

Haley has written many books and countless articles, each thoroughly documented and historically factual.

Following the dedication, J. Evetts Haley, Jr. will introduce the HalDan Collection of Texana collectibles, which was compiled especially for this Sesquicentennial event. Almost 400 books and articles are listed by HalDan and the most complete collection of J. Evetts Haley work ever to be assembled is included. Original articles by J. Evetts Haley, Jeff Dykes and B. Byron Price were written especially for this limited edition catalog, which will be available after the dedication.

In addition, special copies of The Flamboyant Judge, now an out of print collector's item, have been made available for this celebration at Pages and Prints. J. Evetts Haley and William Curry Holden co-authored the book and will both be on hand at the autograph party.

Of the flamboyant Judge, Judge James D. Hamlin, the subject of his book by the same name, Holden said, "He was the most stimulating and colorful character on the high plains since the demise of Temple Houston (Sam Houston's son) in 1906. Houston in later years was a good friend and drinking companion of the young attorney Hamlin."

The owner of Pages and Prints is Patteann Daniel, owner of Pages and Prints, and J. Evetts Haley look over The Flamboyant Judge, a book he co-authored with William Curry Holden. A double autographing party for this book will be part of the Texana Room dedication, scheduled for March 2 at the store.

excited about this very special Sesquicentennial event and says it is only one of many community events planned to be held at the store. "I want the store to be a vibrant segment of the community," Ms. Daniel said.

Indeed, it is a vibrant segment of Midland. Not only is Pages and Prints Midland's best source for books on any subject, it's a friendly meeting place and the location for many special events.

For instance, a class taught by Jaeri Fleet and entitled "Writing to Sell" is scheduled for March 5 at Pages and Prints and has already been filled. Eight more individuals are on a waiting list for a later class.

Ms. Daniel has also scheduled a reception on March 22 for Cathy Heck a native Midlander and creator of the newly popular Share-A-Hug line. J. Hampton Hare and Bahama Bear, two whimsical creations in the line, will be on hand for the reception. Pages and Prints will be adding the entire line including the plush animals, unbreakable bar ware, music boxes, mugs and other fanciful creations to the many gift items already in stock.

Already the Bluebonnet Trails line has been added in the Pages and Prints kitchen. A perfect place to find a bridal or Mother's Day gift, this cozy room features cookbooks galore and a selection of entertaining specialty books.

On April 12 Pages and Prints will host an autograph party for Roger and Diane Ollen, authors of Life in the Oil Field.

Whether a big event is scheduled or not, every day is special when you are browsing through the multi-roomed Pages and Prints bookstore, which is accented with antique furniture (available for sale), beautiful art, including some new pastels by Margaret Marcum, and exquisite gift items for adults and children.

Pages and Prints' area for fashion and image books also offers Paper White, unique fashions of linen for you, your child and your home.

Recently a number of new titles for women in business were added to the business room.

Put the upcoming events on your calendar and browse through Pages and Prints this week at #40 Plaza Center. You'll find more books than you've ever dreamed of seeing in one store and a quaint, comfortable atmosphere.

Manpower: No one else brings so much to work

No more hoping. No more guess work. The Manpower System of matching temps to assignments is the most effective system available today, because it's innovative. It's thorough. And it works. In depth interviewing and reality-based testing enable Manpower to get to know the applicants and their capabilities. Manpower's system enables them to know about the applicant's work methods and experiences, likes and dislikes and skills — word and data processing, typing or secretarial skills.

That's only half of it. The other half is gathering information before and after the assignment. Before, to learn about your needs office procedures and equipment. After, to help Manpower evaluate how the temps performed on the job.

This all takes a little extra time, but it pays off. Because it enables Manpower's professional staff to select the temps who are just right for your needs.

Manpower is proud of the system that took decades to perfect, because they know it works. Now they have advanced even further to include training in their professional services. They can now provide "hands on" training on all major brands of dedicated word processors: Wang, IBM, Displaywriter, Lanier— no problem, Xerox 860 and IBM 5520.

Suppose you don't have a need for temps at this point, but have a need for good training at a reasonable cost. Manpower will come to your business and train your employees — FREE. There is no better training available at a more reasonable cost. What's the catch? Why would a company provide valuable training, free? There's no catch. "We at Manpower know that you can't simulate actual experience. We're out to prove it. It's very simple, if we can train your people we can train ours, and when you need an operator, we'll be able to provide one, with the same training as your actual permanent employees," said Manager Vicki Hicks.

There is no contract. There is nothing to bind you to Manpower, except the need for exceptional service.

There is more. Manpower's latest testing breakthrough: ULTRASKILL for word processing. ULTRASKILL evaluates the "total" operator, with 30 function knowledge tests and eight tests of basic clerical skills ... all hands-on the actual machine they're testing for. It's accurate and effective for every word processing system in use, and no simulator can match it in testing and actual performance on the job.

It all comes down to response. Manpower is ready with the skilled temporaries you need... even though your needs may change as quickly as today's fast-moving office technology. So, if you are interested in the quality of service, service you can depend on, call Manpower at 683-4624 and talk to their friendly professionals.

Manpower professionals Vicki Hicks, manager, (left to right), Staci Turner and Jenny Mobley invite you to call 683-4624 if you are interested in quality service and training.

American Metal Refinishing offers electrostatic painting at low price

Are you moving, remodeling, re-decorating? Color coordinate your office or home at a fraction of the cost of new furnishings by calling American Metal Refinishing at 686-7660.

American Metal refinishing is an electrostatic painting firm owned by Lynn Henson of Midland. Lynn has ten years experience in the field and his work is fully insured and bonded. His motto is "Quality at the lowest price."

For example, an office desk can be refinished for under $40.00. Because Lynn mixes his own paint, he can match any color you desire, usually within 24 hours. Moreover, office furniture refinishing is a completely deductible maintenance expense.

Electrostatic painting is the ideal way to paint any metal surface. It is a process by which the paint is given a positive charge and the object to be painted a negative charge. Working like a magnet, it pulls the paint from the air and wraps it around the object to be painted. The epoxy paint yields a beautiful, durable, finish that is equal to the original factory finish. Because it is applied in this manner, there is no overspray and all painting is done right on site.

An office can be repainted leaving drawers and files full. In the morning when you return to work you will be greeted by an office that looks like new.

Electrostatic painting is by no means limited to just office furniture, however. Because it can be done on site with no overspray and uses such a high quality of paint, it is far superior to methods used in the past. For computer firms, Lynn has painted shelving units and revolving bins. For bank buildings, he has painted safes, outdoor drive up tellers, elevator doors, bathroom partitions, vending machines, metal door and window frames and waste baskets. For the medical field, he has painted complete x-ray units, hospital beds, incubators, exam tables and dental chairs. For schools and gyms, lockers are commonly in need of refinishing. For grocery stores and restaurants, Lynn has painted refrigerated cabinets, freezers and mixers. For individual homes, he has repainted spiral staircases, railing, garage doors, solar panels, patio furniture, antique barber chairs and cast iron beds. The most common items painted in homes are in the kitchen - besides metal cabinets, he refinishes refrigerators, oven doors and dishwasher panels.

Lynn also offers other on location services. Desk retopping and lamination, leather and upholstery cleaning, wood furniture renewing and furniture repairing are some of the other services available.

American Metal Refinishing prides itself on its personalized, dependable, service and customer satisfaction. As a matter of fact, Lynn says, "If I can't beat any written bid from a competitor, I will do the job for nothing."

Gorbachev attacks 'stiffness' of Soviet bureaucracy

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev today opened the 27th Soviet Communist Party congress with an attack on the "stiffness and escalation" of Soviet bureaucracy — a clear reference to the legacy of former party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev.

Speaking to 5,000 party members and foreign guests, Gorbachev, the party's general secretary, also predicted the "moral and political isolation of U.S. imperialism," and called on Communists to abandon "habitual but already outdated notions" in their approach to world and domestic problems.

Delegates to the congress, the nominally supreme party body that meets every five years, will elect a new Central Committee, approve a policy program and changes in party rules, and formally endorse a new five-year plan and economic targets in line with Gorbachev's reform efforts.

At today's session, Gorbachev said the Soviet leadership commends the country's achievements but also "considers it to be its duty to tell the party and the people honestly and frankly about the deficiencies in our political and practical activities, the unfavorable tendencies in the economy and the social and moral sphere, and about the reasons for them." He told party delegates assembled at the Kremlin Palace of Congresses that party and government bodies had "tailed behind the needs of the times and of life."

"The inertness and stiffness of the forms and methods of administration, the decline of dynamism in our work, and an escalation of bureaucracy — all this was doing no small damage," Gorbachev said.

Gorbachev did not refer to Brezhnev by name, but his remarks clearly referred to the Kremlin leader who headed the Soviet Communist Party from 1964 until his death in 1982. The final years of Brezhnev's 18-year reign were characterized by bureaucratic stagnation and the occupation of numerous posts by aging bureaucrats.

Gorbachev criticized the United States for what he said was manipulation of the dollar's value and interest rates to "fatten its economy" at the expense of U.S. allies, and for allegedly exploiting developing countries.

He said capitalism will have to choose between "shameless force and plunder" and criticized "bourgeois corruption and vandalism" worldwide.

"The U.S. ruling circles are clearly losing their realistic bearings," Gorbachev said, predicting "the inevitable moral and political isolation of U.S. imperialism."

In contrast to the opening of the last party congress held in 1981 under Brezhnev, Gorbachev dispensed with a reading of the 100-plus names of foreign delegates, a time-consuming process. Applause from the party delegates was brief as Gorbachev and the 10 other members of the ruling Politburo took their places at the podium, with President Andrei A. Gromyko and Kremlin ideologist Yegor Ligachev flanking the Soviet sonnel changes in party and government. Only three of the 11 members of the Politburo were appointed under Brezhnev and are reminders of nearly two decades of gerontocracy.

In his speech, Gorbachev quoted extensively from Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels, who developed the theory of communism, and from Vladimir I. Lenin, the leader of the 1917 Bolshevik revolution that brought the Communists to power in Russia.

His references appeared to be a call for a return to the basics of communism, but he also said, "any attempt at turning the theory by which we are guided into an assortment of ossified schemes and prescriptions valid everywhere and in all contingencies is most definitely contrary to the essence and spirit of Marxism-Leninism."

About half of the Central Committee seated at the 1981 congress have died, retired or been removed from the local office that gave them the seat on the committee. Additional changes at this congress will give Gorbachev a new slate of deputies to carry out his policies at regional levels.

The session was nationally televised and made available worldwide by satellite. The official Soviet news agency Tass began running a text of Gorbachev's speech, said to be nearly 200 pages long, and Radio Moscow provided a simultaneous English-language translation.

Gorbachev will turn 56 on Sunday, and nine days later will mark the first anniversary of his rise to the post of party leader following the death of Konstantin U. Chernenko. Chernenko held the post briefly after the death of Yuri V. Andropov, who had been chosen to succeed Brezhnev.

Gorbachev's year of leadership has already brought widespread per-

Iran protests U.N. Security Council resolution

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran launched a new offensive in the mountains of northeast Iraq today to protest a U.N. Security Council resolution calling for a cease-fire in the two nations' 5½-year-old war.

"After being disappointed by the Security Council resolution, the Iranian forces in the northern sector of the warfront dealt another crushing blow to the Iraqi regime," said Hashemi Rafsanjani, the speaker of Iran's parliament who is also the spokesman of the Supreme Defense Council.

The council's resolution Monday night was "ineffective and shallow," Rafsanjani was quoted as saying by the Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia.

Earlier in the day, IRNA reported that the offensive was launched east of Suleymaniyah, in the northern sector of the battlefield which stretches for more than 700 miles along the border.

The objective of the offensive "to liberate strategic heights in the region has been attained," IRNA added.

The Security Council resolution calls for an immediate cease-fire and the withdrawal of the rival forces behind their own borders. Iran immediately rejected it.

Iranian President Ali Khamenei said in Tehran it fell short of "explicitly condemning Iraq as an aggressor in the conflict and for its commission of war crimes," the Iranian news agency said.

In their latest communique on the Faw fighting Monday, Iran said it had repulsed an Iraqi counterattack while Iraq said its forces continued to narrow the ring round the besieged town.

IRNA said four Iraqi warplanes were shot down Monday, raising the total claimed destroyed since the beginning of the Faw offensive to 60.

The official Iraqi News Agency said Iraqi forces were attacking Iranian positions "according to a concerted battle plan between the ground, air and sea forces and the rocket and artillery batteries."

The Iraqi agency, also monitored in Nicosia, said the Iranians made an overnight attempt to "intercept" the advancing Iraqi forces, "but were torn apart" and forced to retreat, leaving behind a large number of casualties.

Four black supervisors' deaths spark miners' strike

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — More than 12,000 black miners struck South Africa's second-largest gold mine today in a dispute that began with the deaths of four black supervisors in a fight at the mine last week, the union said.

The 250,000-member National Union of Mineworkers, South Africa's largest labor union, did not say how long the strike would continue at the Van Reefs mine located 100 miles west of Johannesburg.

However, it called the situation

"extremely tense," and warned that the remaining 30,000 Vaal Reefs miners also might join the walkout.

The union said in a statement that the strike was sparked by the arrest of eight miners during the night following a clash at a workers' hostel at the mine last week in which four supervisors died.

Details of the fight last week were not revealed, and it was not known whether it was connected with the racial turmoil plaguing South Africa.

WORLD in brief

Bones, dog tags found

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Human bones, large pieces of aircraft, and at least one set of dog tags have been found at a crash site in southern Laos where a U.S.-Laotian team is searching for remains of American MIAs, a spokesman said today.

Lt Col. Terry McCann, a spokesman for the U.S. Pacific Command, said the bones were found with "limited personal effects" and large pieces of aircraft at the site in Savannakhet province where an AC-130 gunship carrying 14 American airmen crashed almost 14 years ago.

Today is the ninth day of excavation at the site. The search is expected to last several more days and the remains will be flown to the Honolulu-based Joint Casualty Resolution Center for analysis, McCann said.

This is the second such joint project allowed by the Laos government. The remains of 13 missing U.S. airmen were uncovered in the first excavation a year ago in Pakse Province south of Savannakhet.

Israel to buy Mexico oil

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Israel will continue buying petroleum from Mexico despite the uncertainty in the world market, an official of that nation's embassy said.

Mijail Eligol, the embassy's counselor for economic affairs, told the government newspaper El Nacional that Israel was not interested in promoting the further fall of oil prices but rather in seeing the market stabilize.

Mexico provides about 40 percent of Israel's demand of 50,000 barrels a day.

China airline to add jets

PEKING (AP) — China's national airline, CAAC, plans to add another 30 jets to its fleet this year, bringing its total fleet to 460 aircraft, the official Xinhua news agency said today.

The report quoted CAAC Director Hu Yizhou as telling an aviation conference in Peking that over the past five years, CAAC has acquired nearly 100 imported jetliners.

The new airplanes are to include Boeing 747s and 737s, according to Xinhua.

CAAC, which stands for Civil Aviation Administration of China, is also the nation's civil aeronautics ministry.

Six killed in bus crash

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — Six people were killed and 50 injured when a bus plunged off a 40-foot-high bridge near Manikganj, 62 miles northwest of Dhaka, police said today.

The incident happened Monday when the bus driver lost control and broke through the bridge's railing, police said. The bus was heading to Rajshahi from Dhaka.

Dr. Wallui Bari, 45, vice principal of the Northern Rajshahi Medical College, was among those killed, police said.

DEAR ABBY

Speaking up for others is way to protect one's self

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am very much interested in obtaining an item that appeared in your column. I can't remember exactly how it went, but it contained an important message for people who did not want to get involved with the persecution of minorities because it didn't concern them. For example:

"They came and took the Indian, and I said nothing;

"They came and took the Jew, and I said nothing;

"They came and took the Negro, and I said nothing;

"And then they came for me."

I hope you know the piece I am referring to, Abby. I need it for a speech I am writing. Thank you. — MELISSA S. IN FOXHOME, MINN.

DEAR MELISSA: This is it — it was my response to a letter I received:

DEAR PERPLEXED: Speak up! You may not educate your in-laws with one speech, but you can let them know that you disapprove of racial "jokes" and do not care to hear them.

Appropos remaining silent when one should speak up is this gem of a piece I have kept for nearly 30 years. It was written by a German Lutheran pastor who was arrested by the Gestapo in 1938 and sent to Dachau concentration camp until he was freed by the Allied forces in 1945.

I DIDN'T SPEAK UP
by the Rev. Martin Niemöller
"In Germany, the Nazis first came for the communists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a communist. Then they came for the Jews, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a Jew. Then they came for the trade unionists, and I didn't speak up because I wasn't a trade unionist. Then they came for the Catholics, and I didn't speak up because I was a Protestant. Then they came for me, and by that time there was no one left to speak for me."

DEAR ABBY: We live in an apartment building, and it's one of the nicest in town. The people in the apartment directly above ours have no floor covering, and they are constantly dragging furniture around, which is very disturbing. When they walk it sounds like a herd of buffalo stampeding up there.

Don't suggest that we report them to the manager. He IS the manager, and they have a waiting list of people who want to move in here. Now what? — THE PEOPLE IN 502

DEAR PEOPLE: Complain anyway — in a courteous, inoffensive manner. But put it in writing so your complaint will be part of the record. If nothing happens, complain to the owner. And if that doesn't work, put your name on the waiting list for another apartment.

DEAR ABBY: I've often wanted to write to you about my problems, but always felt I could (and should) handle them myself. Tonight, however, I'm incensed by the comments made by several readers concerning that 35-year-old unmarried, professional woman who decided to impregnate herself by artificial insemination because she wanted a child and had no man in her life.

"Skeptical" wrote, "If I were her parents, I wouldn't buy that story unless I saw the doctor's record or had some kind of proof that artificial insemination actually took place."

Really now! "Skeptical" probably wouldn't have bought the story about the pharaoh's daughter finding Moses in the bulrushes either. — PAT S.

Cultured pearls Japanese speciality

Hearst News Service

ISE, Japan — Pearls. Thousands of pearls. Millions of pearls!

Like Oriental potentates, we plunge our hands to the wrists in the opalescent orbs, letting them sift through our fingers back into the large baskets.

Two dozen young men and women sit at benches directly in front of the north-facing windows of a long, narrow workroom, sorting rapidly with tweezers through the wide puddles of pearls at their elbows. They are able to distinguish the subtle differences between 100 shades of white, from slightly gray to delicate pink.

Machines sort by size. It's up to the workers to sort for color, clarity and imperfections. Baskets and baskets of pearls of all sizes and hues are around them.

Chiaki Nishioka, president of the Asahi Pearl Co. of Ise, scoops up a handful of pearls from a basket at a worker's elbow. No two pearls are alike in color or size, Nishioka points out. It is his company's job to match them.

After the pearls have been sorted according to size and color, several young women examine them for surface defects. Finding one, one of the women places a small dot on the area with a felt pen. That's where the hole will go, Nishioka says, so the defect will not show when it is made into a necklace.

In another room, a young woman sits at a tiny horizontal drill press with two small bits facing each other about 2 inches apart. She lines up the mark with the drill on the left, clamping the pearl into a V-shaped holder. With her foot, she operates a pedal that moves the tiny drills together, making a hole in each side simultaneously.

The drill bits don't meet. To complete the hole, she pushes the left drill to the right until it opens the channel all the way through. In another room, workers line up the pearls and string them onto threads of nylon.

Nishioka is not accustomed to talking with reporters, but he is self-assured and friendly. Visits by foreigners are discouraged and rare.

Perhaps that accounts for the fact that security measures either are non-existent or so well-hidden they aren't discernible to the untrained eye. There are no guards.

Nishioka chuckles when asked about the security. Elaborate precautions are unnecessary, he says, because a thief would find it impossible to sell any stolen pearls outside the normal channels.

The Japanese cultured-pearl business is a tightly controlled monopoly. No one else in the world, except the Chinese, attempt cultured-pearl production, and the Chinese have been only marginally successful so far, he says.

Why haven't other countries been able to duplicate Japan's success in producing cultured pearls?

Several reasons, Nishioka says. They don't have as ready a supply of the mussels from the Mississippi River, for one. They have different varieties of oysters, for another. But the biggest reason is security, he says. A Japanese man tried to start a cultured-pearl business in Malaysia, and he was killed by the underworld, Nishioka says. That would not happen in Japan, he says.
