Park-Plant Road No. 1 Project for 1958

Revived interest in a hard-surfaced road to serve Scott Mem orial Park and the West Texas Utilities Company power plant southeast of Haskell is indicated, with groups representing the C. of C and Jaycees meeting with the Commissioners Court this week.

An ideal solution to the problem would be the securing of a Farm-to-Market designation for the route, and this angle is being studied by county officials and local groups. Whether this plan would meet approval of State Highway officials is problematical, but their consideration will be sought

If the F-M road designation is denied by the State, it is to be hoped that county officials and local groups will continue their efforts on the project and work out some plan for building the road.

Need for the road is self-evident in the fact that it would serve two of Haskell County's greatest assets. The WTU power plant repre sents not only the county's largest source of tax revenue, but also one of its largest payrolls. Between 20 and 30 permanent employees at the plant live in Haskell, are homeowners and taxpayers.

Scott Memorial Park, attracting thousands of visitors each, year, has brought additional business to Haskell and this volume is by 225 guests. Other officers are steadily increasing each summer. An improved road to the park will serve to increase the number of visitors with resultant benefit to local the board.

Building of the Park-Plant Road, we believe, should be Haskell County's No. 1 project for 1958

C. of C. Plans Active Program

An attractive program of work during the coming twelve months is in prospect for the Haskell Chamber of Commerce, follow ing the annual banquet to be held Friday night, when new officers of the organization will begin their administration.

The Chamber of Commerce has to its credit a number of worthwhile achievements during the past year, despite the unfavorable economic conditions which have prevailed. These achievements are the foundation on which a broader and more active program can be developed this year, and any accomplishments in carrying out this year's program can be credited in large measure to the groundwork laid by the retiring officers of the organization.

With Haskell and this section facing its best prospects since 1950 as the result of seasonal rain, there has been an upsurge of confidence on the part of farmers, livestock raisers, and businessmen alike. Although the country as a whole has a long way to go in overcoming all the effects of six years of drouth, prospects are encouraging that 1958 will be a banner year for Haskell County.

One of the first and most important objectives in the current work program of the Chamber of Commerce will be to broaden the membership to include every business in Haskell, large or small, and to enlist full cooperation of the entire membership along with all other civic groups and organizations in the community. Attainment of this goal alone will be a long step forward in assuring the carrying out of the ambitious work program facing the new leaders of the Chamber of Commerce.

What Happened to Schoolroom Crisis?

The proposal that the federal government underwrite scientific education is running into strong opposition-and some of it comes from top educators. They see federal aid as an open sesame to ultimate federal control of education. They want to get the needed money from industry, foundations and individuals,

The situation caused the Wall Street Journal to make an apt observation: "This year we are told that unless Washington spends $1 billion more on science education we will never catch up to the Russian Sputniks and education is doomed.

"Last year we were told that unless the Federal Government came across with billions of dollars to build classrooms across the country, education was doomed. But hardly mentions that these days. "Is it fair to ask the Federal aiders what happened to the schoolroom crisis?" Those who want the federal government to become a dictator of education will use any excuse to get their foot in the door. That is happening now. It amounts to arguing that we must ape the Russians in order to keep pace with the Russians. If that is true, free and representative government is dead. One of the great paradoxes of this age is that we could destroy ourselves from within as we gird mightily to guard against attack from without.

Whatever form the observance takes should include recognition for all communities and towns in the county. A fitting observance, properly staged, would result in widespread publicity and recognition for Has'tell County and this section.

The fact that Haskell County can stage a noteworthy celebration when our people get behind the undertaking is a matter of record. In the not too distant past, the annual Haskell County Fair was one of the outstanding expositions in all West Texas and attracted thousands of visitors each year.

Antedating the County Fair Haskell was host 60 years ago for an event which was publicized throughout the Southwest even in those early days the Texas Cowboy Reunion, forerunner of the sent a shipment of knitted arpresent-day rodeos. That 1898 reunion is well remembered by a good many of our senior citizens, including Wayne Perry. Albert English, Irion Pearsev and others.

In those days, it was no trouble at all to bag an antelope any time you desired, they were so plentiful, Wayne recalls. However, they were thinned out fast when the county began to settle with newcomers and fences were built. Blue quail, now seldom seen in this country, were here by the thousands, Wayne declared. He recalled one enterprising man who built a trap and snared them by the hundreds. "He'd take a wagon load of quail into Stamford, when the town was being built, and sell the quail at 5c apiece," Hayne recalled.

Other settlers killed wild turkeys for the market, and it was not uncommon to see a wagon load of turkeys on the streets of Haskell or Albany, where they were sold at 25c each.

It was a profitable business for a short time, until too many enterprising hunters depleted the game supply almost to the vanishing point.

Another source of income which was short-lived because of crafty and unscrupulous operators, was a 5-cent bounty paid on prairie dogs by the county. To collect the bounty, the dog's scalp, consisting of a narrow strip which included the ears, was brought in Each first Monday in the month was "scalp day" when trappers and hunters would bring in sacks containing hundreds of the shriveled scalps and collect from the county.

It wasn't long until a cunning to a Centennial Celebration if the and observant trickster noted that a small strip of the prairie dog's pelt, if allowed to dry in the ho sun, would shrivel and curl until it was difficult to distinguish from the real "scalp.

Mrs. Sam Herren was narrator of the "Album of Memories" which was taken from the History of Haskell County as written by the late R. E. Sherrill.

The interesting and authentically portrayed program unfolded as follows:

In the spring of 1885, Miss Mellie Holmes conducted a little private school in a shed room about where Jones Cox is today. Her class consisted of seven boys, portrayed in the album by Dickie Frierson, Montie Wayne Frierson, Tommy Hester, Mike Bland, John Kimbrough, Randy Wiseman and Bill Ratliff. The stern Miss conducting the class was Miss Louisa Herren. The boys were dressed as in 1885.

Continuing the story school's growth, Mrs. Herren again opened the album and the cene was in somebody's living room in 1920 where six ladies were conducting a meeting to orcanize a Mother's Club. Of course, the chairman had a hard time keeping the matter of electing a president foremost in the minds of the women. The six ladies who were dressed in old timey clothes gave Academy Award performanes. The group consisted of Mesdames Hooper T. Wilkinson, F. Coston, John Kimbrough, Bud Herren, J. G. Vaughter, Howard Perry Jr.

The room count of Junior High P-TA went to the room of Mrs. Scott Green, and the room of Mrs. Bob King in the elementary school. This room count is based upon the number of members and guests present who stand for the room their children are in.

Thirteen past presidents of the wo associations were present at his meeting: Mesdames S. W. Flournoy, Ed Hester, Guy Kennedy, Carl Wheatey, Bob Herren, Dave Persons, John Crawford, John Kimbrough, Jim Byrd, J. G. Vaughter, Odell Bynum, Jean Elliott, Kenneth Thornton.
