82-01 slates graduation today

This morning's graduation ceremony of the Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 82-01 will mark the end of a year's intensive work and study for 47 new Air Force pilots.

Guest speaker for the event will be Brig. Gen. Charles J. Cunningham, deputy director for programs, Office of the Deputy of Staff for Programs and Evaluations, Headquarters United States Air Force Washington.

Cunningham received his bachelor's degree in political science in Florida State University in 1957; a master's degree in business administration from the George Washington University in 1965; and a doctorate in public administration from Nova University, in Florida in 1976.

In June 1954 Cunningham entered the aviation cadet program at Harlingen Air Force Base, Texas, for navigator training and upon graduation in August 1955 was commissioned a second lieutenant.

He entered pilot training in March 1959 and after receiving his wings in April 1960 served as an instructor pilot and standardization pilot at Vance AFB, Okla.

Fintels make winning a family affair

Best of Show

This close-up photo of a macrame owl won first place in the black-and-white general category and was selected as Best of Show in the annual Reese photo contest. The winning entry was only one of several netted by the family of Capt. Dave Fintel. For a look at more of the family's work, see page five. (Photo courtesy Capt. Dave Fintel)

In the report of last year's Reese photo contest, the name Capt. Dave Fintel figured prominently in the list of prize winners. This year the name Fintel again looms large, but it seems to have become a family affair.

Fintel and his wife, Kay, swept first, second and third places in all four categories of the black and white print division. Fintel's study of a macrame owl which won first place in the general category was also chosen as the best of show.

But the Fintel sweep didn't end with black and white prints. Dave captured two first places in the color print division, one in general and one in experimental. The couple was joined by their daughter Laura in the color slide division in garnering one award each: Kay a second and Laura a third in the general category and Dave a second place in the people category.

Rounding out the Fintel family affair was Larry, the Fintel's son, who did all the printing for the group in his home dark room. Larry is a student at Texas Tech University. Said Kay, "It's a shame we kept Larry so busy printing or he probably would have won some awards too."

Joining the Fintels in dominating the local-level contest was TSgt. Carl Ridener. With the exceptions of those awards won by Dave Fintel in the color print division, Ridener swept the competition, netting all three places in the people and scenic categories and a third place in general. He also won a first and third place in the people category of the color slide division.

Also winning awards in the contest were A1C John Bigelow who came away with two first place ribbons in the color slide division, one in general and one in scenic; Charles Caruthers garnered a second place in scenic while 2nd Lt. Jerry Mehlberg came in third; SSgt. Alvin J. Johnson came away with a first place in the experimental color slide category.

Rounding out the awards were SSgt. Larry A. Johnson with a second place in experimental and Sgt. Michael Leib with a third.

Referring once again to last year's Roundup report of the contest in which he won a first place at Air Force level, Fintel was referred to as "an anesthetist at the base hospital and sometime amateur photographer." Since that time his interest in the craft has leaned more toward the professional.

With an eye toward his impending retirement, Fintel has been working toward making photography his living. He has attended seminars in Arizona and New Mexico in addition to making contact with local professionals in an effort to expand his abilities.

"You very seldom find a group of photographers that get together and are not willing to share their knowledge and ideas," he stated.

Judging for the Air Training Command contest will take place at Randolph AFB Texas today. Winners in that competition will go on to compete in the 1981 Chief of Staff Championship Awards competition, also to be held at Randolph sometime in November.

Unfortunately for Fintel's family and other dependent winners, ATC, unlike other major commands, does not permit dependents to be forwarded past base level.

DCR greets Reese

by Col. Donald J. McCullough
deputy commander for resources

The challenges of a new assignment are always plentiful; however, the magnitude of the demanding responsibilities inherent in the position of deputy commander for resource management seem endless.

My first impressions are that the job is tremendous, but the people assigned to carry out the work will make it an enjoyable and rewarding experience. I look forward to working with the many fine people who have contributed so much in the past in the resources area. I know every effort will continue to be made in providing the very best services necessary to meet wing mission requirements.

It is with great anticipation that I look forward to meeting and working with the people at Reese and in the local community. My family and I are glad to be a part of the "Reese family" and know that we will be richly blessed through this assignment.

Racism thrives in different forms

by TSgt Roland Edmonds
social actions

Racism may be defined as a program or practice of racial discrimination, segregation, persecution, and domination. It includes a belief that human races have distinctive characteristics that determine their respective cultures and involves the ideas that one's own race is superior and has the right to rule others.

Since the mid-sixties expressions of racial behaviors have changed from the open exhibition of dislike for people that are different to more subtle ways, but with the same adverse effect. I'm referring to a lack of concern or understanding for people or cultures that are different.

Examples are intentional polarization, stereotyping, and graffiti. Ethnic jokes are very much alive and are visible to the public. The beliefs that one should not date interracially, and to do so is to lower yourself is also an example. These signs, and many more, are the indications that racism is truly alive and doing well in the military.

These situations continue because we have become a reaction force rather than an action force. These conditions are allowed to exist just as long as they do not cause major incidents. Some people still laugh at the racial jokes, while others just walk by. Still, some think that everyone that is different is a joke.

Have we forgotten the lesson of the mid-sixties? A few people remember! For too many I feel just don't care, possibly because they actually feel they're not personally affected by racism today.

Compensation act provides money to victims

by Captain Richard A. McDonald
Office of the Staff Judge Advocate

Because innocent people frequently suffer personal injury or death because of crimes, the Texas Legislature enacted the Crime Victims Compensation Act.

This Act is designed to provide monetary compensation to the victims of crime and to those who are injured while intervening on behalf of such victims.

A victim who is physically injured or the representative of one who is killed may apply for compensation within 180 days after the day of the crime. The Texas Industrial Accident Board after reviewing the case, may award up to $50,000 if the results of the crime will cause financial stress and the injured party will not be compensated from any other source for the loss. In addition to cash payments, the board may "award" vocational, rehabilitative, or counseling services.

A victim who participated in the crime or who will not suffer financial loss cannot recover any award under this Act.

The money used to support the "Compensation to Victims of Crime Fund" is obtained from additional court costs levied against those found guilty of criminal offenses.

If a situation ever arises in which you think you might be entitled to recover under this legislation, contact the Legal Office at Ext. 3505 for an appointment.

Career advisor recommends intensive study

by MSgt. Al Barboza
DO career advisor

"I don't have enough time to study," "I'm too busy with my job to study," "The material is too dull and boring." These are but a few of the many face-saving alibis used every year at this time.

Sure, everyone would like to be on the next promotion list; but each year many are not. What does it take - only a little of your time each day.

I recommend each individual preparing to test develop a systematic and comprehensive study plan. Just one hour per day of study can be all that you need to help you make that next stripe. And to take that plan one step farther, I invite each of you to attend the 64th Student Squadron's "How To Take A Test" class.

This class is presented by 1st Lt. Lenny Robichaux, one of the squadron's academic instructors. It is designed to help you read and understand what the question is looking for. Most important of all, it shows you how to eliminate those answers not associated with the question at all.

Oh, don't think the class will make you an overnight sensation. You have to put forth the effort to study the material. The test can just be that little edge you need to tackle those questions you're not sure of.

Classes are held in the student squadron approximately every six weeks with the next class scheduled for about the end of November. If you're interested in attending or just have a question about it, call Ext. 3727.

Remember, only you can get yourself promoted. Time is running out. So jump on the promotion band wagon — STUDY!

Speakers bureau seeks supporters

The Community Relations Branch of the Public Affairs Office is actively seeking military and civilian employees who will share their knowledge with local high school and various civic organizations.

A silver tongue and a golden voice are not prerequisites for the speakers program. Speeches about Air Force career fields, education and sports will do nicely.

Reese people who participate in the speakers program have discovered that they are doing the base, students, civic organizations and themselves a real service. They realize that students and civic organizations want and need to know about the men and women in today's Air Force. Experts in their fields are best qualified to fill that need.

Opportunity is knocking for those who can hoist up their courage and batten down their fear of public speaking.

Getting into the program is easy. Just fill in the Speakers Bureau Application and send it to PA, Stop 9, Attn: Speakers Bureau. Those who are interested but feel that they need additional information may call MSgt. Pollard, Ext. 3169.

Yes: You can count on me. I wish to share my expertise and experiences with students and civic organizations. I enjoy Public speaking and would like to tell others about my profession and today's Air Force. I understand that participation in this program is a vital link in our Community Relations.

Callers are urged to use their chain of command to air complaints or comments if possible. If not, call the CARE Line at Ext. 3273.

THREE OF OUR officers were recently recognized as distinguished graduates of Air University's Squadron Officer School at Maxwell AFB, Ala. Capt. John F. Burns and John A. Pasqual and 1st Lt. Kathleen A. Bachus were in competition with 627 other students and graduated in the top 18 percent of their class.

The mission of the eight-and-a-half week course is professional development of company grade officers so they can better perform and value their role in the conduct and support of the Air Force mission. These three officers can be justifiably proud of their accomplishments.

CONGRATULATIONS ARE also in order for MSgt. Dave Campbell of the data automation branch. He has been selected as runner up for the outstanding data automation NCO for ATC. Keep up the good work, Dave.

IF YOU ARE not getting action on your complaints, comments or suggestions through regular channels, an opportunity to "go to the top" will be open Nov. 17. A personal conference period will be held by the Air Training Command inspector general in building 900 at 1:30 p.m.

Special permission for an appointment is not necessary and this opportunity is open to all personnel; military and civilian, active duty and retired. All disclosures during the conference period will be held in confidence except to the extent necessary for corrective action. Those who are unable to attend should call the wing inspector at Ext. 3409 to make an appointment with the ATC/IG representative.

SOMETIMES THE maze of medical jargon, the numerous different clinics and, most of all, the flood of rumors associated with hospital care leave the average person at a loss when in need of medical assistance. Inside this week's Roundup can be found the first in a series of articles explaining hospital policies and procedures that could be invaluable now or in the future.

I would suggest clipping this and upcoming articles to answer any questions you might have about how to best use hospital entitlements.

DORM RESIDENTS are even now seeing the first stages of a major dormitory renovation project. In an effort to improve the living conditions of Reese's single airmen we have contracted for new carpeting, drapes, paintings and several other improvements that should make dormitory living much more pleasant. Please bear with us during the work. It will certainly pay off in the near future.

Terrorism

Reese presents possible target

by 1st Lt. C. Edward Herron chief, security police

As you are entering base to start your swing shift as usual, you see a large cloud of heavy black smoke rising from the flight line area. Wondering what might be the cause of the smoke, you go to work and find out someone has blown up an aircraft.

You can't believe it, why would anyone want to destroy an aircraft here? Reese is only a training base. You have just guessed the reason for the attack. Our mission is to train pilots, a loss of any number of aircraft will greatly affect the mission of Reese.

Terrorist activity is not supposed to happen in the United States. They (terrorists), according to television and newspaper accounts, are supposed to confine their activities overseas, right? Wrong!

There are many sensitive areas on base that are crucial to our mission. Security is an ever increasing job and we must all become more security conscious. Reese security police are trying to cover all areas of security, but we cannot do it effectively alone.

What can you do to help?

1. Become more security conscious.
2. Report to the security police unauthorized personnel in controlled areas.
3. Become knowledgeable to security alerting and reporting procedures.
4. Know the security priority of your resources.

If you have any questions, you can call the security police at extension 3612.

VHA benefits majority

Reese personnel eligible for the Variable Housing Allowance can check the listing below for the amount to be allotted for their pay grade. The figures shown are not official at this time but may be checked against October Leave and Earning Statements correct amounts.

This year VHA rates will be based on each grade. Last year an averaging system based on five grade groups was used. The change should better represent the different housing costs incurred by each grade. Additionally, separate rates will be computed for company-grade officers with prior enlisted service. They are shown in the chart as 0-1E, 0-2E, 0-3E.

The monthly rates for Reese personnel are:

CFC attains goal

After four weeks of the Combined Federal Campaign, Reese not only attained the goal of $91,500 but exceeded the goal by $1,619.83, according to 2nd Lt. Jackie Lopez, this year's vice-chairman of the campaign.

Lopez attributed the success of the campaign to all the key workers, who spent many hours working to help make the campaign run smoothly, and to all Reese personnel who contributed to the worthwhile campaign.

Personnel who gave their fare share will help others to help themselves. Such programs as the Reese boy and girl scout troops and the youth center will benefit from the campaign. The monies donated will be spent on materials for projects and special camping trips for many boys and girls who would not be able to do such things otherwise.

CFC helps 60 local, national and international agencies. It also provides aid and services to millions of people each year. A few of the agencies who receive contributors' fare share are: March of Dimes for Birth Defects, American Cancer Society, Save the Children Foundation and Salvation Army.

Their organizations assist homeless children, help persons afflicted with crippling diseases, provide youth with a healthy environment, assist the old, and aid everyone in the time of a disaster.

Commander attends luncheon

by 1st Lt. Darrell Smith

Col. Monte Montgomery, speaking at the first professional development luncheon sponsored this month by the Reese Junior Officers' Committee, gave the group a candid look at his own personal management philosophy.

The 64th Flying Training Wing commander made eight key points. First he stated "Support your boss with enthusiasm. The commander makes decisions and selects goals based on the big picture. To achieve our mission at Reese everyone must work toward the same goals and support his or her superiors."

Continuing, Colonel Montgomery stressed the need for setting high standards. "We should set our standards at least as high as our boss' standards. Anything less is totally unacceptable."

He also stated, "As supervisors we have stated responsibilities and as officers we have a great amount of inherent authority. Too many officers today don't take their Air Force profession seriously and make excuses when the ball is dropped. We need junior officers willing to pick up the ball and run with it—willing to accept the responsibility with the authority."

Moving on to his fourth point, Colonel Montgomery emphasized the importance of "supporting your organization." He stressed that we all should get involved with the base community. "You can't be considered totally involved in your Air Force career unless you support base activities."

The commander's fifth point was "Police yourself—be aware of your image and standards as Air Force officers. Shiny shoes, pressed shirts, and immaculate, detailed compliance with AR 35-10 is essential to good morale and leadership."

Colonel Montgomery went on to say, "We have to be consistent in our decision making and in the enforcement of standards. If we allow our subordinates to get away with less than adequate performance one time and not the next then they become confused. Be consistent, accept only the best possible performance each and every time."

Concluding, the first professional development seminar, the guest speaker stated, "get out of the assignment business. We don't know enough to manage our careers well. Let the Air Force and our commanders manage the assignments. I have never had a bad assignment—some perhaps which were less desirable at the time—but every assignment contributed something toward my selection as a wing commander."

Non-personalized checks, those without a name imprinted on the front, may no longer be cashed for more than $50 or accepted as payment for amounts of purchase exceeding $250.

Why? Worldwide surveys of base exchanges has revealed that five times more non-personalized checks than personalized checks, bounce. Exceptions will be made if: 1. An account can be verified as to the amount of funds presently on hand, or 2. if account is with a local bank which does not provide personalized checks.

Any questions should be directed to Capt. Andrepont, Ext. 3800.

OB / GYN clarifies maternity program

by 2nd Lt. Chris Kelleher patient affairs representative

During the months of pregnancy many women will have questions about what to expect when labor begins and delivery time nears.

The obstetrics and gynecology ward is an eight-bed unit with semi-private rooms. Once the baby is delivered the hospital staff encourages 24-hour rooming with the infant, if the mother so desires, in order to promote emotional bonding.

Staff on the ward consists of 12 registered nurses and five medical technicians. A nurse will monitor expectant mothers throughout labor and will be with them during delivery. Technicians are responsible for preparing the delivery room and assisting the pediatrician with the infant. New mothers will receive one-to-one care.

Prior to delivery time, prenatal classes are offered through the hospital by Capt. Karen Mutz and Bonnie Kauffman. These classes provide mothers-to-be and their families with valuable information in preparation for the new child.

Also provided by the OB/GYN staff is extensive post-partum instruction in self care for new mothers and baby care. The baby care classes include instruction in bathing, dental care and health care.

Nursing care is continuous. The doctors are civilian M.D.s affiliated with Lubbock General. There are two pediatricians and one pediatric nurse practitioner to care for newborns. Capt. Barbara Zarate is the charge nurse and she is assisted by Capt. Gloria Jones. Nursery charge nurse is Capt. Doris Battle.

Reliable information on any aspect of OB/GYN is best received through the experts. Expectant mothers who even suspect they may be in labor should come to the ward to be evaluated. Tours of the ward are also available by prior arrangement. Those interested should call Ext. 3720/3407.

Safety Wise

by Jack O. Lantern

The night is All Hallows Eve, October 31, and amidst the barren treetops the screeching wind blows and the moon gazes over the land while goblins, witches, and assorted monsters are prowling stealthily about stripping homes of their sweets.

Being absorbed in their evening romp, these little spooks have little regard for safety, but hopefully they are accompanied by adults who are watching over them. These little creatures are also accepting only factory-wrapped or sealed treats and waiting until they get home to taste them so that parents may first inspect the goodies.

Since these goblins are attracted only to lighted areas, darkened areas are off-limits. Houses which want to participate in tricking or treating should have their porches well lit. These little spirits which go bump in the night may do so because of face masks restricting their vision. If possible, face make-up should be used instead.

Be on the lookout if you need to be driving about in the neighborhoods. Leave the screeching to the wind.

Ghouls and goblins patrol streets searching for goodies

On Saturday all children in Reese Village will have the chance to dress up in their favorite costume and go trick or treating.

Hours for the little goblins and ghouls to go from house to house to collect various goodies will be from 5 to 7 p.m.

Many children will be out and about enjoying the evening and parents should accompany their children to ensure safety. Another helpful hint to parents is for the kids to use makeup instead of face masks. Masks can hinder vision.

There will be a pumpkin at the main gate handing out candy for all children who drop by.

Happy Halloween!

ATC seeks trainer

Airspace battle
 (ATCNS)—A new or modernized primary jet trainer that will eventually replace Air Training Command's aging T-37 has moved one step closer to reality.

On Oct. 7, the Air Force asked several civilian contractors to submit detailed proposals on a new primary trainer for undergraduate pilot training.

Officials at ATC headquarters say nine civilian aircraft manufacturers had received the request for proposals, including five which submitted extensive concept definition studies on a new trainer last year.

Those five firms were Cessna Aircraft, which had proposed a modernization of the present T-37 model; and Fairchild Republic, General Dynamics, Rockwell International, and Vought Corp., all of which proposed new designs.

The T-37 has served as ATC's primary phase jet trainer since 1956. Most of today's Air Force pilots learned their primary flying skills in the twin-engine "Tweety" before moving on to T-38s and then to fighters, bombers, transports and other operational aircraft.

No longer adequate
 But Air Force officials have long recognized that the T-37 might not be adequate for the training needs of the late 1980s. In 1978, ATC submitted a request for a next generation trainer, and that request was approved by the Secretary of Defense one year later.

ATC's requirement for a new trainer was originally based on three factors: the T-37's existing operational deficiencies, projected numerical insufficiency of the T-37 fleet and potential cost and fuel savings with a new or modernized aircraft.

Command training officials say the T-37's operational deficiencies already limit its effectiveness to-day and will get worse in the future. It is limited to altitudes under 25,000 feet because of its lack of pressurization. Its low thrust capability further restricts its performance at altitudes higher than 20,000 feet.

But the next generation trainer will unquestionably be a more modern aircraft. Specifications in the request for proposals include pressurization, to allow the aircraft to operate at higher altitudes. Other requirements include a higher rate of climb, improved maneuverability, and greater range.

Aircraft contractors have 60 days to respond to the Air Force's request. A contractor will be selected next year. And by 1987, a new or modified jet trainer should begin replacing the venerable T-37 at all of ATC's flying training bases.

Another problem with the aircraft is that it is nearing what officials refer to as fleet insufficiency, the point where ATC will have too few aircraft to meet flying training requirements. Those requirements will increase significantly in the next five years as the Air Force replaces the large number of trained pilots who left the service for other jobs.

Fuel savings
 The Air Force also believes a substantial fuel savings are possible with a new trainer. The T-37 now uses approximately 185 gallons of fuel per hour, and a new trainer could save as much as 75-115 gallons per hour, depending on the model selected. Based on current fuel costs, that would result in annual savings of $30-50 million.

Further savings are possible through reduced maintenance costs. As an older aircraft, the T-37 is subject to frequent maintenance problems, a situation that is aggravated by the Air Force's shortage of experienced mechanics and T-37 replacement parts.

Proven advantages
 Whichever model is eventually selected to replace the T-37, it is certain to resemble the present trainer in some respects. The Air Force will retain the proven side-by-side seating design and twin-engine configuration used now in the T-37.

But the next generation trainer will unquestionably be a more modern aircraft. Specifications in the request for proposals include pressurization, to allow the air-

AF retains Goodfellow

(ATCNS)—The Air Force announced Oct. 19 its decision to retain Goodfellow AFB, Texas, as an active installation and to retain the base's primary mission—cryptologic training—at the installation.

In addition, the Air Force proposes to locate a phased array warning system, designated Pave Paws, on or in the vicinity of Goodfellow in order to improve detection of a submarine launched ballistic missile attack.

Goodfellow was first announced as a candidate for closure in April 1978. The decision to retain this installation, Air Force officials said, is based on increased recruiting requirements, increased emphasis in wartime training requirements, the value of maintaining the Air Force cryptological training center there and the operational advantages of siting Pave Paws near Goodfellow.

The Southwest Pave Paws system will complement existing Pave Paws operations at Otis AFB, Mass., Beale AFB, Calif., and a proposed Southeast Pave Paws System at Robins AFB, Ga.

The four Pave Paws systems will provide full coverage of potential submarine launch areas. Southwest Pave Paws will also have a corollary mission of supporting NORAD's spacetrack program.

Bill reduces taxes

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—Service members will see their federal income taxes reduced an overall 23 percent in the next three years as a result of the tax package passed by the Reagan administration.

Withholdings have been reduced by 5 percent starting this October and will be included with the pay raise in the Oct. 30 check. Withholdings will be reduced 10 percent July 1, 1982, and another 10 percent July 1, 1983.

To see this applied, consider the following examples. Staff Sergeant Bluesuiter is single with eight years of service. The sergeant's pay is $965.70 per month. With the 5 percent reduction, the withholding is $136.59. Without the reduction, $143.96 or $7.37 more would have been taken from the sergeant's pay.

If the sergeant is married, the withholding for two people—the member and spouse—is $87.09. The pre-reduction tax withholding would have been $97.33. If the sergeant has a child and spouse—three persons including the sergeant—the withholding is $73.75, rather than the $82.33 figure before the reduction.

In 1982, the increase to a 10 percent reduction will result in more savings for the sergeant. If the sergeant is single, the deduction is about $122.93. If the sergeant is married, the 1982 withholding is about $78.38. If the sergeant has a child and spouse, the withholding for 1982 will be about $66.37.

Weight standards change

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AFNS)—Air Force members 31 years of age or older after Nov. 1, 1981, must comply with Air Force weight standards set for service members 17 to 30 years of age.

The announcement by Air Force officials here follows a revision to the Department of Defense directive on physical fitness and weight control. Air Force Regulation 35-11, Air Force Physical Fitness Program, will reflect the change by Nov. 1, say the officials. The new weight standards chart will have just two columns, one for height and one for maximum weight.

There will be a grace period ending

April 15, 1982, for those in the 31-and-older group to meet the new standard. However, Air Force time requirements for weight loss were not changed.

Until the change, the Air Force was the only service which permitted maximum weight increase after age 30, officials said.
