

Vice president visits Reese

The Vice President of the United States, George H. Bush, will be visiting Lubbock Nov. 13 to address the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce's annual membership banquet.

He is tentatively scheduled to arrive at Reese aboard Air Force II in the 4-5 p.m. time frame. A formal welcoming is scheduled to take place immediately upon his arrival in front of base operations, building 79.

Formal greeting ceremonies will include a VIP welcoming party made up of Gen. Thomas M. Ryan, commander of Air Training Command; Col. Monte Montgomery, Lubbock Mayor Bill McAlister, Chamber of Commerce president Joe Horkey and other civilian dignitaries.

Music for the occasion will be provided by the U.S. Air Force's "Band of the West" from Lackland AFB, Texas. The Reese Honor Guard will also participate in the welcoming ceremony.

All Reese personnel and their dependents who wish to welcome Mr. Bush as he arrives may do so by joining in the official welcoming ceremonies in front of base ops. Small American flags will be made available to spectators at base ops.

The Vice President will leave Reese shortly after the welcoming ceremonies end to attend several functions in downtown Lubbock. As his official party departs the base, they are scheduled to pass through a cordon of Reese personnel in duty uniforms. These personnel will be holding state flags, and Reese squadron guidons and campaign flags.

81-02 selects award winners

Forty-seven members of Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 82-01 culminated a year of intensive physical and mental training when they received their certificates of Aeronautical Rating-Pilot during graduation ceremonies last week in the Reese theater.

The silver wings of an Air Force pilot were presented by Col. Monte Montgomery, 64th Flying Training Wing commander. Brig. Gen. Charles J. Cunningham delivered the feature address. General Cunningham is presently the Deputy Director for Programs, Office of the Deputy Chief of staff for Programs and Evaluation, at Headquarters United States Air Force, Washington.

Capt. Douglas W. Hale topped the field of 47 graduates by capturing a total of four awards during the ceremonies. He was presented the Air Training Command Commander's Trophy as the class' top graduate for attaining the highest cumulative grade average in all subjects. A native of Birmingham, Ala., Captain Hale was also presented the Flying Training Award, Distinguished Honor Graduate Award and the Academic Award for the highest academic grades.

Distinguished Graduate Awards were also presented to Capt. Aloysius J. Polaneczky, 2nd Lt. Dale A. Ende and 2nd Lt. Michael H. Zimmering. Leadership Awards for Class 82-01 went to Capt. Thomas T. Wyman and William P. Robb for displaying the most significant leadership attributes during the year.

Two foreign students graduated with the class. One is Italian, and will return to Italy to fly the G-91-Y. The other student pilot is Nigerian and will return to Nigeria to fly the F-5. Seven of the graduates have been assigned to Reese.

Veterans Day honors those who serve by Gen. Thomas M. Ryan Jr.

commander, Air Training Command

(ATCNS)—November 11 is Veterans Day.

That date first became enshrined in the hearts of Americans back in 1918 as Armistice Day, the day that buglers sounded "cease firing" across European battlefields to signal victory in World War I. We now celebrate it as Veterans Day in order to extend proper recognition to all of our veterans—past and present—who answered their country's call when freedom was threatened.

Many left the armed forces and returned home when they were no longer needed. Some stayed on, completed honorable military careers and retired. Others are still serving today.

I ask all members of Air Training Command to join with their families and friends in paying tribute to these proud sons and daughters of America by participating fully in the events, solemn and festive, that will highlight this Veterans Day.

Credit card could protect consumer

Using a credit card to pay for auto repairs can protect you from losing money on faulty or unnecessary repairs.

Suppose you take your car to a mechanic because of a noise in the power steering. The shop does a rack-and-pinion overhaul. You pay the bill, $180, with your credit card. The next day the noise is back. Another mechanic looks at your car and finds that the real problem lies with the power steering pump. That will cost another $125 to repair.

If you had paid the bill in cash or by check and had run into trouble negotiating a fair price adjustment with the repair shop, you would be in trouble. Your cash would be gone, or it would be too late to stop payment on a check. You would have to sue to recover losses.

Payment with a credit card can not only give you extra time but it is an effective tool for negotiating with the repair shop.

Federal law says that if you have a problem with goods or services purchased with a credit card, you have the same legal rights against the credit card issuer as you have against the repair shop. If you have the right under state law to withhold payment from the repair shop for sloppy or incorrect repairs, you also have the right to refuse to pay the credit card company.

The credit card company cannot charge an interest or penalty fee. You may withhold payment only for the amount in question at the time you first notified the repair shop of the dispute.

To exercise this right, you must first try to correct the problem with the repair shop. Also, unless the card issuer owns or operates the repair shop, (This might be true if your car is repaired at a gas station and you used a gas credit card) two other conditions must be met. The shop must be in your home state or, if not in your state, within 100 miles of your current address. The cost of repairs must exceed $50.

Should you decide not to pay, send a letter by certified mail with a return receipt requested to the credit card company and to the repair shop. Include the date of repair, the credit card and account number used, why the service was unsatisfactory, and what you want in settlement of the dispute.

An incident like this might sway the credit card company or the repair shop to make a "bad mark" on your credit record. The Fair Credit Reporting Act allows you to obtain information on your credit file and to challenge any part of your record that you feel is incorrect. Disputed information must be reinvestigated by the credit bureau.

If reinvestigation doesn't clarify questionable information, you still have the right to have your side of the story added to your file. If you file a dispute statement with the credit bureau, make sure it says that the dispute was a "good-faith exercise of your rights under the Consumer Credit Protection Act."

Under the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, your credit card account cannot be closed, nor can you be denied further credit because you exercised your credit rights.

If in doubt about your credit rights or how to proceed without endangering your credit record, see your legal assistance office.

Complaints or requests for more information about your credit rights should be sent to the Federal Trade Commission, Credit Practices Division, Washington, D.C. 20580.

SPs push vehicle deregistration

by MSgt. Eldon Stepp
NCOIC, pass and registration

How about a travelling traffic ticket to go along with your travel pay when you have a permanent change of station? It's very easy. Simply fail to deregister your privately owned vehicles at pass and registration.

Most military people and civilian employees on base know they are required to register their POVs at pass and registration to enter the base. Although we don't have much of a problem with registration of vehicles, deregistration has become a nightmare. People are going PCS, selling, trading or salvaging vehicles and failing to deregister them as required.

Those going PCS stateside are required to remove the Reese AFB portion of the decal and surrender it to pass and registration. Those going PCS overseas are required to turn in both the Reese AFB decal and the DOD registered vehicle decal. Failure to follow these requirements will result in a traffic ticket being forwarded to your gaining commander.

When you sell, trade, or salvage a vehicle, both decals must be turned in to pass and registration. The same applies if you replace the vehicle's bumper. If you fail to do so, you will not be allowed to register any other vehicles and will be issued a ticket.

If you feel the requirement to personally turn in the decals of a vehicle you sell or trade is a bit ridiculous, ask yourself this question, "Do I want someone driving around in a vehicle with decals that can be traced to me?"

Civilian employees are required to turn in both decals when retiring or terminating employment. Tickets can be issued if this is not done. Military personnel retiring and remaining in the local area could be allowed to retain their vehicle decals. They should clear through pass and registration so their registration records can be updated and a decision made on retention of decals. Decisions are based on individual circumstances. Those retiring and leaving the local area must turn in all vehicle decals.

Also, any change in vehicle license plate numbers, vehicle description, or organization of assignment must be reported to pass and registration. Questions pertaining to vehicle registration or deregistration should be directed to pass and registration in building T-1, Ext. 3742.

Bicycles require extra attention

One night while driving home, you observe a disturbance in the street ahead. Upon nearing the disturbance, you observe a mass of people milling about, a cascade of flashing lights, sirens wailing in the night, and medical personnel scurrying around.

As you draw nearer to the disturbance, you observe a stopped automobile with a slightly familiar bicycle laying underneath it. Taking a brief glance, you do not recognize the bicycle. Hoping that no one was seriously injured, you continue on your way to your quarters. Upon arriving at your quarters, you see a Security Police Officer talking to your babysitter. Then it hits you! The bicycle belongs to your child.

This could be the scene if you do not practice bicycle safety. It is each parent's responsibility to insure that their children are aware of bicycle safety before they are allowed to ride their bicycles.

Two of the major concerns pertaining to bicycle safety are the use of required safety equipment and obeying the rules of the road. A wing regulation tells us, "Every person riding a bicycle upon a roadway or parking lot shall be subject to all the rules of the road applicable to a driver of a motor vehicle..." This means that bicycle riders must obey the same rules of the road as a motor vehicle operator and are subject to the same consequences if they violate the law.

Pertaining to safety equipment, the wing regulation states, "Every bicycle, when in use at night, shall be equipped with a lamp on the front which shall emit a white light visible from a distance of at least 500 feet to the front and with a red reflector on the rear which shall be visible from 300 feet to the rear..."

In addition to the lights, no person shall operate a bicycle unless it is equipped with a bell or other device capable of giving a signal audible for a distance of at least 100 feet.

Remember, parents, protect your children! Don't ride bicycles or allow your children to unless you both know the consequences.

Should you desire additional information concerning bicycle equipment or bicycle safety, contact the security police crime stop personnel at Ext. 3614.

The CARE Line is prepared by Col. Monte Montgomery, 64th FTW commander. All information provided to the CARE Line will be held in strict confidence. I WAS PARTICULARLY impressed by the showing of Capt. Dave Fintel and his family in the base photo contest. Last year Dave won an Air Force award and looks like he might make a repeat performance this year. Another big winner in the local contest was TSgt. Carl Ridener. Congratulations to Dave and Carl and the rest of the winners, and good luck in the command contest.

VETERAN'S DAY IS coming this Wednesday. I hope everybody enjoys the holiday, but I want to see you all back at work Thursday morning. That means having a safe weekend. Don't drink and drive, don't try to stretch your one-day trip all the way to Dallas and back; just be careful in general.

TWO OF REESE'S squadrons were recognized recently for receiving the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award. Competition for this honor is fierce and those who win the award can be justifiably proud. The 64th Supply Squadron and the 64th Student Squadron richly deserve our congratulations and our thanks for showing what a fine group of people work at Reese.

WALTER SCOTT JR., aerospace engineer with the NASA flight planning branch, will be the guest speaker at the Air Force Association's quarterly dinner and meeting Thursday. He will give an informative presentation on the space shuttle program with film and narrative comments.

You only have until Tuesday to make your reservations for the dinner, so hurry and give Maj. Bob Brooks a call at Ext. 3354/3724.

WE HAD A caller recently who wanted to know why there was only one checker at the exchange during the lunch hour and why military were not given priority during the same period. Apparently, it was just one of those times when everything seemed to go wrong at once. Two cashiers had quit, leaving only two. On the day in question, one of the remaining checkers had to be excused for a family emergency. Now two checkers have been hired and the situation should be well under control. The exchange management apologizes for any inconvenience this temporary condition caused.

Concerning military priority lines, the old sign has since been replaced with an "Express Lane" sign. Military shoppers during the lunch hour should find it fills their requirement for speedy service.

I WANT TO give everybody a quick reminder that we are scheduled for a management effectiveness inspection beginning Nov. 15.

I know it may seem like a burden to take time out from busy schedules to clean and manure your areas, but the first impression the inspectors will receive is from the facilities themselves. Let's make them reflect the pride each of you shows in your daily routine.

Some may think it presumptuous to expect perfection, but you of the 64th Flying Training Wing have shown me in the past that you are capable of just that. Let's show the MEI inspectors, too.

Safety Wise
 by Maj. Kenneth E. Hamlin
 Chief of Safety
 Our safety record for the past four holidays has been outstanding. You, the people of Reese, have recognized the hazards associated with holiday activities and taken necessary action to ensure an accident free vacation.
 Veteran's Day is next week. This holiday is unusual in that it will be celebrated during the middle of the week. This restricts traveling significantly but we may try to cram a lot of local activities into a short period.
 Don't be caught unaware and use every possible safety precaution available. Not since 1976 has ATC suffered a fatality over the Veteran's Day holiday. Let's not end that string of successive fatality free holidays.
 One of the most disturbing facts about our (ATC) fatalities this year has been that none of the individuals who lost their lives were wearing safety devices. In addition, alcohol involvement was evident in 64% of the fatal automobile/motorcycle mishaps experienced so far this year.
 Our goal remains the same as during previous years—to make this a fatality free holiday. This goal can be achieved only with the 100% dedication of 100% of the people.

CHAMPUS increases dependent care rates

The Department of Defense has announced that the dependent rate for inpatient care at military hospitals has increased to $6.30 per day.

This charge is applicable to dependents of active duty members, dependents of retirees and to surviving dependents of deceased members. The previous charge was $5.50 per day.

This change also affects CHAMPUS, since by law the inpatient cost-share requirement for spouses and children of active duty service members is based on the charge at military hospitals. Therefore these individuals are now required to pay $6.30 per day or $25.00, whichever is greater.

This change does not affect CHAMPUS cost-sharing requirements for retirees, dependents of retirees or surviving spouses and children of deceased members. The law provides that these beneficiary categories are responsible for 25 percent of the reasonable cost/charges for both inpatient and outpatient services — with the government cost sharing 75 percent.

Inpatient charges at military hospitals are adjusted annually to reflect changes in uniformed services pay. The increase from $5.50 to $6.30 per day is approximately the same percentage increase as the pay raise that went into effect on Oct. 1.

Sturon joins Supply as AFOUA recipient

Editor's note: Recently a Roundup headline read that the 64th Supply Squadron had received an Air Training Command Award instead of the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award. The Roundup staff apologizes for this error.

Along with the 64th Supply Squadron, the 64th Student Squadron also distinguished themselves for exceptional service from Jan. 1, 1980 to April 30 of this year.

The 64th Student Squadron qualified for this award for its responsibility to supervise and counsel all student pilots as well as give maximum flight-line support to all classes. The student branch has developed various programs for the students to make a smooth transition into the Air Force and the UPT classes.

The Blast-Off program familiarizes students and their spouses with all base facilities and with the local area. The Host Family program was initiated by the unit which allows a local family to adopt a student pilot and include him or her in their "family circle" as the student goes through training.

Another program implemented by the student branch is the officership course which stresses the integrity, discipline and professionalism necessary to be an Air Force pilot.

The Air Training Command inspector general team recognized the branch recently by giving them an excellent rating for superior academic training given by the instructors, which includes 210 hours of classroom instruction and 745.4 hours of syllabus-directed ground training.

The foreign training branch averages 35 to 40 students per year from such locations as Italy, Nigeria, Jordan, Belgium, Saudi Arabia and Norway.

In addition to helping and counseling students from wide ranging cultures and backgrounds, the branch provides foreign liaison officers and embassies a point of contact. The branch also has organized tours for the students in order to familiarize them with the United States. The tours have included trips to Colorado, local industries and Washington.

Another branch within the student squadron recognized for their outstanding services was the learning center, which not only serves the entire base with audiovisual support, but also serves approximately 27,500 UPT student events during the evaluation period.

The standardization evaluation division, which recently received an excellent rating from the ATC Formal Evaluation team, was also singled out for praise. In addition to maintaining parachutes, helmets, masks, and survival equipment for all instructor and student pilots on base, life support also fitted 350 ROTC cadets with equipment and gave them necessary ground training for their orientation flights.

The Student Squadron as a whole has participated in many base wide activities by giving outstanding support to such programs as the Combined Federal Campaign, Air Force Assistance Fund, Tactical Air Command day and various local community projects.

Because of innovative job performance, support of base-wide activities and participation in the surrounding communities, the 64th Student Squadron received the Outstanding Unit Award.

VHA rates change

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Fiscal 1982 variable housing allowance rates were included in Oct. 30 pay checks. Some rates were increased while others were reduced or remained unchanged. The following questions and answers may help members understand the new rates.

Question: What is the variable housing allowance?

Answer: The variable housing allowance is authorized to help members entitled to basic allowance for quarters defray housing costs if government quarters are not assigned. This applies when the military member is assigned in the United States — excluding Alaska and Hawaii — where the average housing costs exceed the allowance by at least 15 percent or when the member is on an unaccompanied overseas tour and the family resides in a stateside location where the average housing cost exceeds the allowance by at least 15 percent.

Q: How are the rates determined for VHA?

A: They are based on a statistical survey of housing costs conducted by the Department of Defense. They are in effect for one year.

Q: Will VHA go up in the future?

A: Not necessarily. Housing costs will be determined by surveys and VHA rates adjusted annually. VHA rates will depend on local housing costs as well as quarters allowance raises.

Q: Why isn't my VHA plus my housing allowance enough to cover my rent, utilities and maintenance costs?

A: VHA isn't intended to completely make up the difference between housing costs and quarters allowance. VHA is only authorized where costs exceed 115 percent of the quarters allowance. It's based on a comparison of average quarters allowances and average cost. If your housing expenses are above the average for your grade at your location, you'll see the bigger difference between your costs and your allowance.

Q: Is VHA taxable?

A: No.

Q: Why do certain grades at some stations get no VHA?

A: If one or more grades receive no VHA, this means the average total housing costs determined for those grades at that location did not exceed 115 percent of their average quarters allowance.

Q: Why doesn't everyone at the same duty location receive the same VHA rate?

A: To determine VHA, average housing costs are compared to average quarters allowances for each grade at each location. Since the quarters allowance is different for each grade, the amount of the VHA will be different.

Q: I am single and living off-base in a stateside high-cost area. Can I receive VHA?

A: Yes, if you are entitled to the quarters allowance. The VHA is payable to all personnel receiving quarters allowance who have duty in a high-cost area.

Q: My wife and I are both in the Air Force and drawing BAQ. How is the VHA paid to us?

A: Each of you will receive VHA in your own right. If you are at different duty locations, each of you will be paid VHA based on your own duty location.

Q: Can two members receive different VHA rates if both members receive quarters allowance at the with-dependents rate, are the same grade and are living in the same military housing area?

A: Yes. VHA is determined by duty location, not place of residence, so the members could receive different VHA rates if they work at different duty locations.

Q: As a recruiter, I am not assigned to a base but work in a local community. My records show I am assigned to Wright-Patterson AFB, Ohio, with a duty assignment of San Francisco. What VHA rate do I receive?

A: Where you work, not the location of your parent organization, determines your VHA rate. Therefore, you would receive the San Francisco rate and not the rate at Wright-Patterson AFB.

Q: I have three categories of dependents: wife and children, dependent parents and children of a previous marriage in the ex-spouse's custody. I am stationed overseas; all my dependents reside stateside. Can I receive more than one VHA?

A: No.

Q: A member on an unaccompanied tour overseas must designate the location in which the VHA is to be paid if dependents reside in different locations. Would any particular dependent determine the primary location?

A: No. The joint travel regulation does not designate any particular dependent.

Q: I am stationed overseas and my dependents, who are stateside in a high-cost area, receive the VHA. What happens if they move?

A: When the dependents move to join you or to another military housing area, you must notify the accounting and finance office to stop or modify the VHA. If you don't, you could be in debt for overpayment when VHA is finally stopped or modified. If they join you VHA terminates the day prior to the day either a child or spouse arrives at the overseas location if either remains there for more than 30 days.

Q: I am going on a permanent-change-of-station move and I am living off-base with my dependents. When does my VHA change?

A: It stops the day prior to your arrival at your new duty assignment and your new VHA begins the day you report at the new duty station.

Q: I am receiving quarters allowance and live in inadequate government quarters with a portion of my allowance deducted from my pay. Do I get VHA?

A: No. VHA is not applicable to persons living in inadequate government quarters.

Q: I am living in government family quarters with my second family but I have to spend a portion of my pay to support my first family who reside in a high-cost area. Do I get VHA?

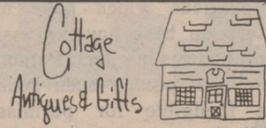

A: No. Since you do not draw BAQ while living in government family quarters, you are not eligible for VHA.

Q: How do I ensure that the VHA I receive is the correct amount?

A: Your VHA is based on your stateside duty zip code or the residence zip of your dependents, if you are in an overseas unaccompanied tour. If you suspect your VHA is incorrect, have the finance office check your records.

Q: If I have other questions, whom should I call?

A: Your local finance office. If they can't help, call the VHA Hotline, Autovon 221-0345/0346 or commercial 202-325-0345/0346.

Federal employees top private sector benefits

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — Federal and private employee benefits were compared in a study by the Office of Personnel Management that found the federal benefit package to be 4.7 percent ahead of average non-federal benefits as of October 1980.

Most of the advantages were seen in retirement benefits — federal retirement benefits total 28.2 percent of pay — the amount the employer pays into a fund to finance the benefits, including employee contribution. Private retirement benefits, including Social Security, total 16.7 percent.

Reasons for the differences are an earlier allowable retirement age for federal workers, 55 years of age after 30 years, and the fact that federal annuities are indexed for inflation. Few private plans offer such a package.

In other areas, private-sector employees tended to have more advantages, the study showed. Private firms paid a larger share of the premium cost for life insurance. Benefits represented .5 percent for private-sector employees, while federal employee life insurance benefits were .3 percent.

Private-sector employers paid a greater share of premium cost of health insurance plans also. The value of coverage for a federal worker was $760 per year, while a private worker received health benefits equal to $1,045.

Secondary benefits, such as stock-purchase plans, profit sharing, savings plans, bonuses, employee discounts, employer-furnished autos and educational assistance, favored the private-sector employee. These benefits totaled 5.5 percent of pay, while such benefits for the federal worker totaled only .3 percent.

Bill reduces taxes

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — To reduce the past marriage penalty for two-earner families, the new tax package will allow a 5-percent deduction of the first $30,000 in earnings for the spouse with the smaller income beginning in 1982, and a 10-percent deduction of the first $30,000 in 1983 and thereafter, to a maximum of $3,000 in deductions.

To see how this is applied, consider the following. Assume a sergeant and spouse both work

They have a gross income of $29,000 — $15,000 from the sergeant, $13,000 from the spouse, and $1,000 of taxable income from other sources. The taxable income on their 1981 joint return totals $22,000 after standard deductions such as mortgage interests, medical expenses and financial losses. A tax of $3,729.79 is due — $3,273 plus 28 percent of the excess over $20,200 minus the 1.25-percent tax credit.

In 1982, the couple can reduce their gross taxable income to $21,350 by deducting $650 — 5 percent of the spouse's $13,000 income. Tax on this amount will be $3,244.50, $509.29 less than 1981's on the same gross income.

Continuing the example to 1983, the couple can deduct $1,300 10 percent of the spouses $13,000 income, to give a taxable income of $20,700. The couple will pay a tax of $2,759 on this amount, $979.79 less 1981's and $465.50 less than that paid in 1982 on the same amount.

DEERS

Enrollment reaches midpoint

WASHINGTON (AFNS) — As the Defense Enrollment Eligibility Reporting System turns two years old, DEERS officials said program implementation is about half complete.

DEERS is a Department of Defense-wide centralized data base to confirm eligibility for health care. Benefits are proved to military active-duty members, retirees, dependents and survivors.

More than four million sponsors and two million dependents have been enrolled since the program began.

Enrollment is accomplished in 90-day phases. Active-duty members and those entitled to retirement pay are automatically enrolled by their service. During the enrollment phase they enroll their dependents. Survivors not receiving annuities and their dependents must also enroll.

After the enrollment period local military medical agencies begin to check DEERS eligibility.

Until implementation is complete, no one will be denied treatment at military hospitals or clinics solely because his or her name doesn't appear in the system. Those later proven ineligible may be billed for services or legal action taken.

DEERS enrollment is becoming a part of the in- and out-processing at all military bases. Active-duty members or retirees who move to an area where DEERS has been implemented should check with the personnel office to enroll their dependents.

Trick shot

Trick shot performer tees - off for Reese

Curt Wilson, known to be one of the best trick shot golf artists, will put on a musical comedy at the base golf course Saturday and Sunday at 3 p.m.

Wilson has been amazing audiences throughout the western parts of the United States for over 24 years until he retired in 1974. Saturday's show will mark Wilson's comeback performance, displaying his talent of comical but precisioned use of clubs and golf balls to music.

Wilson has appeared on the Johnny Carson show, numerous spot appearances on variety shows and programs and has had a long-running one-man show in Las Vegas.

Wilson, a former fireman in Lubbock, discovered his talent one day while practicing putting behind the station. He was using two golf balls and thought it was fun hitting them at the same time. Before he realized there was a trick shot artist group, Wilson began practicing various tricks.

Wilson joined the American Guild of Variety Artists and practiced for six years before he began the first of 3,500 shows he would perform.

Wilson, an avid golfer for years, said that after he became a par shooting golfer it took him up to ten years to become proficient in trick shot golf.

Some of the tricks Wilson will perform includes juggling three golf balls with a club, hitting 12 balls at once and using three clubs at the same time to hit lined up golf balls.

The show is open to all Reese personnel and surrounding communities. There is no cost.
