Awards banquet honors several base members

Recently the annual Enlisted Awards Banquet was held at the enlisted club to honor several of Reese's airmen and NCO's for their contributions to the base and the mission. Three of these received additional honors by being named as Senior NCO, NCO and Airman of the Year.

MSgt. Ronnie J. Craft was the 1981 choice for Senior NCO of the Year. Sergeant Craft was selected out of a field of seven senior master and master sergeants.

SSgt. Keith M. Stevens was named the NCO of the Year. Sergeant Stevens was picked out of a total of six possible candidates in the grades of staff and technical sergeants.

SrA. Larry P. Gonzales became the 1981 Airman of the Year at the awards banquet. Airman Gonzales took the top honor in a field of six other airman firsts and senior airmen.

None of the winners were picked by anyone person, all went before boards and according to those boards, this years choices were tough ones to make. They cited all of the nominees going before them were qualified for the honor.

Another base NCO was recognized for his efforts, MSgt. Alponse Barboza. Sergeant Barboza, in addition to his normal duties, serves as the 64th Student Squadron's career advisor. For 1981, he is now the Unit Career Advisor of the Year.

Verne Orr sends holiday greetings

By Verne Orr
Secretary of the Air Force

Season's greetings! In this holiday season, Mrs. Orr and I are warmed with the thought of our new friends and associates around the globe. We have had the pleasure of visiting many of you on the job and in your homes this past year and are grateful for the way you have welcomed us into the Air Force family.

There are those of you, we know, whose duties require you to be away from the traditional and familiar holiday observances this season, and to you we offer a special greeting.

May the new year bring each of you continued blessings and success in facing the challenges that lie ahead.

General Allen sends holiday message

By Lew Allen Jr., General, USAF
Chief of Staff

The Christmas season is a time of joy and celebration — a time for families to join together to give thanks for the many blessings we have received and to renew our spirit and dedication to meet the challenges that lie ahead. It is also a time to renew our commitment to serve our fellow men.

the challenges before our nation and before us in the Air Force are many and demanding. They will require the best efforts of all Air Force men and women if the season's message of peace and good will is to be fulfilled in the years ahead. In this Air Force Year of the Family, Barbara and I extend our best wishes for a happy holiday season to you and your families. We thank you for your service and wish you the blessings of peace and happiness throughout the coming year.

Commander wishes ATC family happy holidays

By Gen. Thomas M. Ryan Jr.
Commander, Air Training Command

For most Americans, the approaching holiday season means a variety of things. It's the hustle and bustle of last minute shopping and the exchange of greeting cards and gifts. It's a time for solemn and joyful religious observances and celebrations. And somewhere in those busy days and hours, most of us find time for quiet reflection on events of the past and anticipation of what lies ahead.

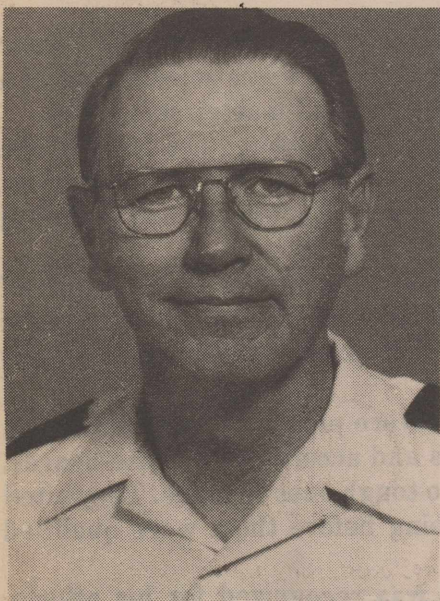

It is all of this, of course, but above all else, it's a family time. As such, this year's holiday observance should be a fitting climax to "The Year of the Family" which the Air Force has been celebrating throughout 1981.

As we gather with our families this festive season, let's take a moment to give thanks for the peace and freedom we enjoy in this great land. And let's remember with gratitude our comrades who, because of worldwide duty requirements, may not be able to celebrate this season of joy with their loved ones.

The Ryan family joins me in wishing every member of our ATC family, here and abroad, a Merry Christmas, a Happy Hanukkah, and a great new year.

Reese chaplain defines the true meaning behind Christmas

Chaplain P.E. Grimmert Jr.

By Chaplain (Lt. Col.)
Philip E. Grimmert Jr.
Base Staff Chaplain

As Christmas approaches our thoughts turn to the meaning of this glorious holiday. For Christians as the centuries have progressed it has become a time of celebration.

To the Christian, the Nativity of Jesus of Nazareth in a little town of Bethlehem is the supreme expression of God's love for His creation. In this event in history, love and peace came alive, brotherhood and fellowship were presented as gifts to the world.

A look at our world leads one to the fact that mankind has not accepted this gift, for everywhere we turn it would seem that humans do not want love, peace or brotherhood. It seems that humans cannot see the truth expressed in Christmas. It is sad, but because of the seeming lack of the true spirit of Christmas, the spirit of love, humankind appears bent on their own destruction.

But I do not think this is the complete picture. I feel that all people want peace and love, that all people want Christmas. The truth of this appears in many instances. Why did soldiers of the North and South call local truces on Christmas Day during the Civil War except for the reason they deeply longed for love and peace. Why did German soldiers and French, British and U.S. troops call a truce along the trench lines of the World War I on Christmas except they truly felt love and peace for their fellow man?

Even among hate and brutality, war and death, the message of love shines. The amazing thing is that at times it shows even in those who do not profess any belief in the God who created us. "Why?" we ask. Because the message is universal; Christmas is for all; the love expressed here is the hope of humankind. May this year as never before that hope come to all!

Retreat?

By SSGT DARRELL D. HARE, USAF

Somewhere a bugle softly sounds
The message of renown,
And men inside their buildings wait
Until the flag comes down.

And others run to get their cars
Quite harrowed or dismayed
Afraid they will not reach the gate
Before retreat is played.
Not thinking of the flag or men
Who fought to keep it flying.

How many would be glad to stand,
Whose bodies now are mute,
Or have no hand that they might raise
And stand in proud salute.

So accept it not as duty
But a privilege even more
And receive it as an honor
Instead of just a chore.

Superior performance noted, enlisted members recognized

"I think this is terrific," that's how Helga Herider, a dependent wife, described the recent Enlisted Awards Banquet held at the Enlisted Open Mess.

Posting the colors began the evening social followed by Chaplain (Lt. Col.) P.E. Grimmett Jr. gave the invocation. Master of Ceremonies CMSgt. Jerry Jarvis then began introducing members of the head tables, deputy commanders, chiefs and honored guests.

Following the brief introductions, dinner was served to the Reese audience. Club Manager TSgt. Jim Zable said "We don't get the chance to show off often, but when we do we like it." Sergeant Zable explained that many of the occasions calling for the mess dress uniforms were often held at the officers' club.

After dinner and a short break, Chief Jarvis introduced the evenings guest speaker Maj. Gen. Titus C. Hall, commander, Lowry AFB Technical Training Center.

General Hall began by listing several topics of much concern to the Air Force. The general told his captivated audience how we are trained in the todays Air Force and how we should be allowed to put that knowledge to work.

General Hall spoke of how the supervisors sometimes tended to be set in their ways and seemingly not caring what the never members had to offer.

He pointed out that we are technologically advanced and if we wished to stay ahead we must put the new training to the test, stating that these new people were tomorrows Air Force leaders.

He concluded by bringing a sense of life to "Old Glory" as he said "I am your flag, don't turn on me." Freedom was high, but if we ever lost it we might never see it again.

After the general's speech, the nominees for senior nco, nco and airman of the year awards were called to the front of the room and presented with a pen set by Col. Monte D. Montgomery, commander 64th Flying Training Wing.

After all nominees had been recognized CMSgt. Coy Martin, wing senior enlisted advisor, began announcing the winners, MSgt. Ronnie J. Craft, Senior NCO of the Year, SSgt. Keith M. Stevens, NCO of the Year, and SrA. Larry P. Gonzales, Airman of the Year.

After the military presentation, Doug Boren, Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, presented each winner with additional awards.

Chief Martin then announced that MSgt. Alponse R. Barboza had been selected as the Unit Career Advisor of the Year. General Hall then presented Sergeant Barboza with his award.

Concluding the ceremonies Colonel Montgomery told the Reese crowd that they were the best wing in Air Training Command and that he just couldn't hold it back anymore.

A benediction by Chaplain Grimmett and the honor guard's retiring of the colors officially ended the 1981 Enlisted Awards Banquet.

Craft takes award

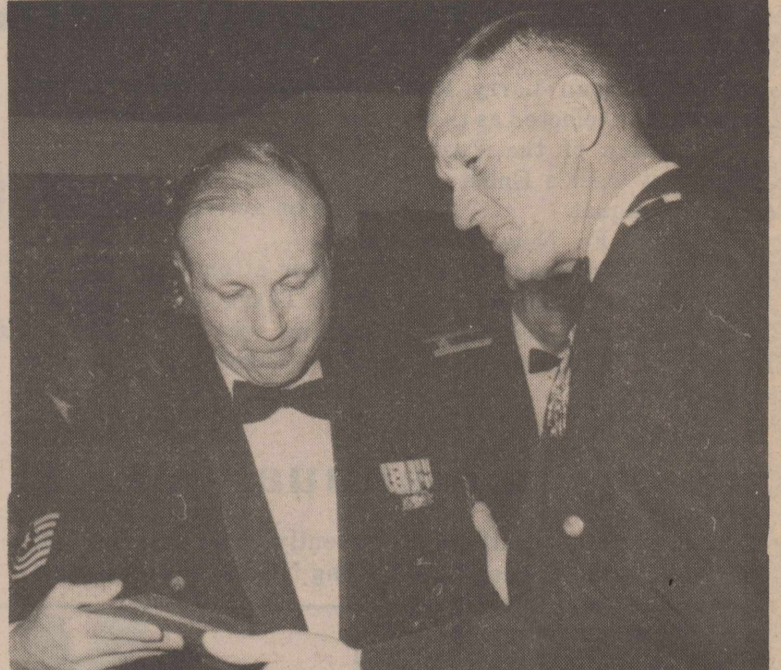

MSgt. Ronnie J. Craft, professional military education instructor and Senior NCO of the Year, was no stranger to the military way of life, before beginning his own career. His father retired from the Navy in 1970.

Sergeant Craft, a Greenwood, South Carolina native, began his Air Force career at Homestead AFB, Florida before being assigned overseas. He has been to Southeast Asia twice, first at Okinawa and then Thailand. He has also served at Robbins AFB, Georgia, while there attended the AFLC Leadership School finishing as an honor graduate.

In December 1977 he became both an honor graduate and a distinguished graduate of the ATC NCO Academy. Then in June 1978 Sergeant Craft took over as Commandant of the Reese AFB NCO Leadership school.

This year's award is the second in a row for him as Wing Senior NCO of the Year and adds to his credits for having been chosen as the Senior NCO of the Year twice for air base group.

New tax package explained

WASHINGTON (AFNS) —The administration's tax package will affect gift taxes, those earning public-utility dividends, heirs to an estate, and people who own oil royalties.

The annual tax exclusion for gifts from one person to another will increase to $10,000 — $20,000 for couples — in 1982. Before the increase, donors could annually transfer up to $3,000 to individuals and not pay a gift tax. Married couples could transfer $6,000.

The increase means wealthy grandparents could give up to $20,000 each year to each of their children and grandchildren, and thus reduce the value of their estates without incurring a tax liability.

Also effective in 1982, payments made in behalf of an individual for school tuition or medical expenses will not be subject to gift tax. There is no limit on this exclusion but such payments must be made directly to the institution or person that provides the service.

Payments made directly to individuals as reimbursement for such services do not qualify for the exclusion. Beneficiaries need not be related to the donor.

Stock shareholders will be allowed to exclude up to $750, or $1,500 on a joint return, of dividends in stocks of public utilities from 1982 to 1985. Profit on the sale of such stock is generally treated as capital gains but, if the stock is sold within one year, the gain will be treated as ordinary income. The top tax rate on investment and dividend income was reduced from 70 to 50 percent and effectively reduces the maximum long-term capital gain to 20 percent.

It has been estimated that taxes on 95 percent of all estates now being taxed will be eliminated. The old provision exempted estates valued at less than $175,625. Tax rates ranged from 32 to 70 percent for estates values at more than that amount.

In 1982, the provision will raise the minimum to $225,000 and will continue to increase it to $600,000 by 1987. In addition to the increase and exemption, the rate will be reduced over four years to the range of 37 to 50 percent.

In addition to these changes, the legislation now permits a surviving spouse to inherit an unlimited amount tax-free. Because of this change, many married people are advised to re-evaluate their estate plans — particularly those with marital deduction formulas in their wills or trusts.

The tax package has changes for spouses who own property jointly as tenants by the entirety or as joint tenants with rights of survivorship. After 1981, each will be treated as owning half of the property for estate-tax purposes. This is regardless of the purchase price each may have paid.

An example would be if a couple married and owned a home jointly. With the right of survivorship, each spouse would be considered the owner of half of the property for estate-tax purposes. This is even if it was paid for by only one spouse's earnings.

Royalty owners are now given added protection against a windfall tax imposed on their royalty oil. The old rule allowed a maximum credit of $1,000. The new provision increases that amount to $2,500 for 1981; a two barrel-per-day credit allowed for 1982, 1983 and 1984; and a three barrel-per-day credit thereafter.

Carbon monoxide: A silent killer

(ATCNS)—Carbon monoxide poisoning kills approximately 1,000 Americans each year, according to the National Safety Council. Among the latest victims were an Air Force staff sergeant, his wife and their infant child.

The family was discovered dead in an off-base apartment after the sergeant failed to report for duty Nov. 30. Police officers investigating the incident found an unvented natural gas space heater still burning in the bathroom.

In addition, all windows in the apartment were closed, and all but two were sealed from the outside with a plastic covering.

One of the dangers of carbon monoxide, safety officials say, is that poisoning can occur slowly and without any recognizable symptoms, especially if victims are asleep or relatively inactive.

When symptoms are present, they may include headache, irritability, confusion, dizziness, visual disturbances, drowsiness, nausea, vomiting and unconsciousness.

closes at 9 p.m. Christmas Day, closed. Dec. 26 through 30, casual bar only open until 11 p.m. Dec. 31 the club will open at 7 p.m. for a New Year's Eve party which will include a special Prime Rib dinner for two for $7.25. Heaven Rejoices

THE STORY focuses on the angels of heaven, contemplating and rejoicing over all that occurred on earth one wondrous night. While the angels participated in the Christmas story, it is mankind — you and I — who are the center of its focus. Millions of men and women have made the same discovery the wise men made. Kneeling before the Lord Jesus, they have found more than a baby — they have found a Savior. Each time it happens, HEAVEN REJOICES!

Learn to prevent holiday fires

By Bob J. Hitch
 Base Fire Chief

Christmas is a very special and happy time of the year for each of us. It is a time of rejoicing and family gathering. However, it can also bring many serious and unsuspecting fire hazards into our homes. Let's take a moment now to prevent a possible holiday tragedy.

Since the tree is an important part of Christmas, choose one that is firm and fresh. If you plan to store it for a day or two before putting it up, keep it in a cool, dry place and keep it in water to maintain its freshness. When you bring it into your home, make a fresh cut at the base as this helps the tree to absorb water. The water level should be checked daily to prevent drying and never let your tree block an exit from your home.

LIGHTING:

When buying light sets for your tree, check them carefully for the Underwriters Laboratories Label. Also check last years lighting sets for broken wires, fraying, etc. If they are damaged, replace them. If you use extension cords, use them sparingly. If you plan to go out or retire for the evening, turn-off all lighting for your own safety.

DECORATIONS

Use non-combustible materials (glass, asbestos, etc.) if possible, or flame-retardant decorations. Ordinary polystyrene foam or natural evergreens make fine displays but can be fire hazards. Remember, keep open flames and candles away. If you select holiday masks, whiskers and other costumes, be careful to select those that are "flame-proofed". They could mean the difference between tradition and tragedy.

GIFTS

Electric toys should carry the UL Label to show they meet safety standards. Wrappings should be removed and placed in covered trash containers and never burned in the fireplace.

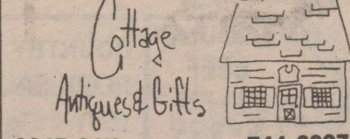

Smoking and children with matches are also a common hazard during any holiday season. Keep an eye on smoking materials—ensure adequate and plentiful ash trays are available and empty them frequently. Keep matches and lighters out of reach of children.

Finally, review your fire emergency plan; know your escape routes. If a fire begins, sound the alarm and call the Fire Department. If you can fight the fire safely, do so, but, keep near an exit. Remember, sound and timely planning by all of us will assure the achievement of a happy holiday season instead of a tragic one. HAVE A VERY MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

DOPMA affects promotions

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AFNS)—All active-duty reserve captains will have opportunity to be considered twice for promotion to major under the Defense Officer Personnel Management Act, according to Air Force officials.

In the past, active-duty reserve officers generally were limited to 20 years' active military service if at least 10 years were in commissioned-officer status. This caused reserve officers with more than 10 years' enlisted service to be mandatorily separated when they first became eligible to retire as a commissioned officer. As a result, officers with 10 or more years' enlisted service were not considered for promotion to major in the primary zone.

Reserve officers commissioned prior to DOPMA have the choice of separating on their original mandatory date of separation or remaining in the Air Force until they have been considered twice for promotion to major. This is in addition to below-the-zone promotion consideration. Officers affected by this policy will be notified by the personnel office and have until Jan. 1, 1982, to extend their date of separation to take advantage of this policy change.

Resolutions are for everyone

It's time for New Year's resolutions. I've put together my list: Get promoted. Quit smoking. Meet the new weight standards. Sock some of that pay raise into savings.

But maybe I'm not the only one who needs to get in shape. So here are my resolutions for others.

For everyone: Answer the telephone correctly. "Engine shop, Jones" isn't good enough. Airman Jones? Colonel? Mr.? Ms.? And please say your last name clearly. I like to know who I'm talking with, and I can't write Captain Mphltzweck on a coordination sheet.

For everyone: I'm not your honey, sweetheart, babe or dear, whether I'm a man or woman.

For writers of regulations, career development courses and promotion exams: I am using English to communicate with you. Try using the same with me.

For supervisors: Give me a job and get out of my way. Don't hover over me. Show me you can trust me and I'll do the same for you.

For subordinates: When I give you a job, do it. No complaints, no excuses, no postponing. Show me I can trust you and I'll do the same for you.

For drivers: Think safe. Understand that others may not be. And don't get angry. If anything, get self-righteous. It's better to be smug than sorry.

For all motorists: Buckle up. Pretend you're protecting something important — like your life. If you're carrying home seafood for supper, then buckle up for the halibut.

For managers of on-base food facilities: Push the local items. The Air Force weight standards have changed and many people need to lose a few pounds. When the choice is wilted lettuce or a fresh pizza, the salad will lose every time.

Probably by now you can see my sincerity in wishing you a successful and financially rewarding new year, for the more you have and the more careless you are, then the more I have.

I hope you'll understand why I don't sign this letter. Some of you know me.

Student squadron visits Lubbock nursing home

On Sunday afternoon, members of the 64th Student Squadron and their families visited the Lubbock Lakeside Memorial Nursing Home. The visit was meant to bring the spirit of Christmas to a group of Lubbock's senior citizens.

The visit consisted of a variety of activities. Each of the eighty-five residents was presented a Christmas gift prepared by squadron family members. Christmas carols were sung and children of Air Force families visited with the elderly.

The visit was sponsored by the squadron's Academic Training Branch with the Student Branch, Foreign Training, Learning Center, Life Support Section, Base Operations, Wing Standardization/Evaluation, Operations Division, and Class 82-02 contributing to make the project a huge success. The project was very worthwhile and plans are to make the visit a squadron Christmas tradition.

Bowling now in full swing

With the Christmas holidays rapidly approaching, the youth junior and senior bowling league is now in full swing.

As of last week team members in the High Rollers captured first place with the Champs in second and rounding out the top three were the U.S. Bowlers.

Terry Martin rolled the high game and series during recent league play for the boy's division rolling a game of 169 and a series of 450.

In the girl's division the high game winner was Melissa Williams who rolled a 150 game. Antonia Addison took the high series with a 353.

In the youth Bantam league the Strickers took first with the Midget Mess Ups in second and rounding out the top three were the Fantam Bowlers.

In the boy's division Timothy Palmer claimed both the high game and series with a 127 game and 232 series. Palmer's 127 game earned him a patch from the Amateur Junior Bowling Council.

Sylvia Valdez cornered the bowling action by capturing the high game of 91 and a 171 series.

During the first two weekends in December, 33 boys and girls comprising a total of six teams had entered the Lubbock City Bowling Tournament.

The six teams bowled 10 sets of doubles and 20 who bowled singles. Winners of the tournament will be announced later.

Intramural roundballers Supply and OMS now in their fourth week of play, are battling it out for top seating. Both teams are tied at 4-1.

During last week's first game, Brian Wilkerson led the FMS effort by slamming in 17 points in a razor thin win against air base group 44-43.

Another thin skinned win went to supply who's top scorer, Paul Caviel had a doble-figure showing of 17 points in a 44-43 route of OMS.

OMS's Robert Warren, who was the top scorer in the league after the first week of action play, also had a double figure showing of 11 points but his efforts were downed by Caviel.

Topping the half-century mark, student squadron-1 over powered civil engineering by breezing past them with a 59-44 win.

Keith Heise was the top scorer for Sturon-1 with a showing of 18 points which was backed by teammate Keith Milan, also in double-figure scoring, led the Sturon effort with 10 points.

CE's Tim Clark was the top scorer for both teams with 19 points accumulated but his efforts were downed by opponents Heise and Milan.

Wednesday evening was action packed with the first game of the evening going to the field maintenance squadron, who pitted their strength for a 46-31 win over Supply.

Brian Wilkerson's efforts made him the top scorer for FMS with 15 points which made him three points ahead of opponent Chris Stevenson, who is the leading scorer of the season averaging 17.5 per game. Wilkerson's teammate, Willie Hayes added to the win effort with 10 points which was matched by Supply's Paul Caviel.

The 54th Flying Training squadron dribbled circles around student squadron-2 pulling the 54th to a 50-24 win.

Even though there weren't any outstanding high scorers for the game by combining their efforts the 54th's Hoy and Hockendorff packaged 10 and 7 points, respectively

Rounding out the final game of the season was Hospital which slid past the 35th Flying Training Squadron to make a 38-31 victory.

Hospital's Gary Justice netted 11 points with Drew Campbell close behind with 8. Opponents Keith Heise who accumulated 9 points and Patrick Murphy who equaled, winning opponent Campbell's score.

CE bounced back after the first game loss to Sturon-1 earlier in the week with a 31-29 win over Hospital.

The highest scoring win of the week went to OMS who shipped stus-1 61-42.

Keith Sainten, who is the league's top scorer for the week, netted 29 points to help the OMS romp.

The final game of the week was played by Sturon-2, which breezed by the 35th, for a 50-38 win.

Teammates Danny Leonard and Tim Jones matched scores of 16 points to help the Sturon effort with teammate Michael Millay adding 10 points.

The following are standings as of last Thursday.

News Briefs

Finance Drops PFRs—

Effective the first of the year, military pay sections will no longer be required to maintain Personal Financial Records of Reese personnel. Therefore, when personnel desire to make changes to their pay records, they should keep all the involved document copies until the change shows in the members leave and earnings statement.

Hanukkah begins—

This year Hanukkah begins Monday and lasts eight days through Dec. 28. Jewish services in observance of Hanukkah will be at 8 p.m. Christmas Day at the Congregation Shaareth Israel Synagogue, 1706 23rd Street in Lubbock.

Puppet Play Set—

The Reese Chapel is sponsoring a puppet play, "The Story of Christmas" on Sunday beginning at 7:30 p.m. Our puppet ministry students will be working the puppets.

Everyone is invited to join in the fun.

Outstanding Results—

A1Cs Steven J. Driscoll and Rex Rampley, both of the 64th FMS, recently received "outstanding results" in regards to their end of course test to obtain their five levels. Congratulations.

Dining Hall Seeks Flags—

The Reese Dining Hall is seeking state flags for placement in and around the facility. There will also be plaques with the donating airman's name engraved below each flag.

If airmen wish to help the Dining Hall obtain these state flags all they need do is get in touch with their state representative and ask for the donation.

Awards Presented—

During the 2nd Annual 64th Student squadron

Christmas party, TSgt. James Roads and SrA. Joseph Beach were awarded NCO of the Year and Airman of the Year respectively.

Other squadron award winners included MSgt. Alphonse Barboza, first sergeant, for outstanding contributions and support during the year. Maj. Robert Brooks, SSgt. Debra Young and SrA. Rachel Fieldstad were also recognized for their support.

Super Check Ride—

Consumer Buying Tips—

During the Yuletide season, the Better Business Bureau of Lubbock handles many consumer problems that could have been prevented. To avoid trouble this holiday season take precautions—save sales receipts of presents and who got it in case an exchange is necessary. Check into the refund policy of each store before making a purchase. Stores are basically required to grant a refund or exchange if the items is defective or sold through misrepresentation.

Keep all the original packing because most manufacturers require that returns be in their original containers or they will not be accepted. Finally, when selecting a gift, check it out before giving, then if a return is required it can be done so then.

Get New Exemption—

If base members are claiming New York, New Jersey or Oregon and have been exempt from paying tax during 1981, you must reaccomplish your exemption at military pay. Otherwise state taxes will begin being withheld.

Dec. 31 Deadline—

Air Force members claiming New Jersey, New York, or Oregon as their legal residence must recertify their state tax exemption status by Dec. 31, say officials of the Air Force Accounting and Finance Center.

Members should fill out the state income tax exemption test certificate—DD Form 2058-1—at the base accounting and finance office.

Failing to recertify will result in state income tax being deducted from members' pay beginning in January 1982.

For more information, contact the Reese accounting and finance office at ext. 3432.

Shoplifting not the "in thing"

By SSgt. Rudy Perez
 Law Enforcement Specialist

Billy J. Kidd, A1C, is 18 years old and only joined the Air Force 9 months ago. However, today Billy was going home again PCS—Permanent Civilian Status, as a result of a court martial. This is Billy's story:

After arriving at his first permanent duty station, Billy heard from some of his friends that "shoplifting" was the "in thing" to do. Some of Billy's "friends" were people he worked with and a few were dependents of active duty personnel.

Billy became so good at shoplifting he became somewhat of a ring leader. Billy became "so professional" at shoplifting he started "taking orders for his friends." At Christmas time, Billy started charging his friends for items he stole for them.

Then one day as Billy exited the exchange facility, a man who identified himself as a store detective asked Billy to come back into the store with him. After entering the exchange manager's office, the detective told Billy he had watched him put a few items inside his coat jacket and walk out the store without paying for them. The detective also said the security police would be contacted and advised of this incident.

Billy started to feel sick, his stomach muscles started tightening and his throat felt very dry. A few minutes later TSgt. Jim Friday, security police, entered the exchange manager's office. After being briefed of the situation by the store detective, Sergeant Friday advised Billy of his rights. Billy stated he understood his rights and requested legal counsel. No further questions were asked.

Billy was then placed under apprehension. Prior to transporting Billy to security police headquarters, Sergeant Friday conducted a simple frisk of Billy's person, for safety purposes. From under Billy's jacket Sergeant Friday pulled out a 35mm camera, one AM/FM radio, one car stereo, one car stereo equalizer and one cartridge needle for a turntable. All items were confiscated as evidence.

After a long and very thorough investigation by the Office of Special Investigations, all the names of the people involved with Billy were revealed. Billy's court martial was the first; a couple of his "friends" are still awaiting their court martials. Another two or three of Billy's dependent friends are pending action downtown in court.

Today, Billy couldn't face his own parents. I wonder if he can face the public, knowing he has a permanent police record.
