New Rule Governs Taking Ballots From Homes

The practice of carrying ballots to homes of persons ill or unable to come to the polls onelection day, will be discontinued in the 1958 Democratic primaries. In future primary elections election judges will carry a ballot to the curb at the polling place in instances where the voter is unable to leave his car. However ballots will not be taken to homes or hospitals on election day. An order to this effect adopted at a meeting of the Dem-ocratic Executive Committee

Too Soon for An Obituary

Newspapers have a reference room called " the morgue" where they keep clippings and obituaries of people famous or infamous. When a prominent man dies, they haul out his obituary and print it.

Somebody did that with Mark Twain once before he died and he made a classic reply. He said: "Reports of my death are exag-

Ever since 1955, when the Salk vaccine was officially approved and licensed for use by the U. S. Government, people have been writing obituaries of paralytic polio. Polio, they say, is finished. But like Mark Twain, such polio authorities as the National Foundation for Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Smith. Infantile Paralysis answer: "Reports of polio's end are exaggerated."

True, 65 million Americans have had one or more shots of Salk vaccine. But only 35 million have had the three shots prescribed for full protection, and 46 million have had no shots at all,

True, the number of polio cases dropped way down last year. But 1957 may have been a year of light polio attack. With three out of seven susceptible people still unvaccinated, there is no guarantee that polio epidemics may not break out again next summer.

The age groups that need vaccination most are pre-school children, teen-agers and parents of young children. But there is plenty of vaccine available now for every body, regardless of age. It's the cheapest insurance on the market.

Prospects Bright For Bumper Grain Crop

At no time in the past decade have prospects for small grain equalled today's outlook, not only in Haskell County, but throughout a large area of West Texas.

Some say that today's prospects are equal to the fabulous year of 1919 when the country, figuratively speaking, turned to grain. On the more conservative side, all agree that a "bumper" crop is in the making, with harvest time only a few short weeks away.

However, there are many hazards between today's prospects and harvest of the crop and these threats will keep producers uneasy until the grain is in the bin. Among the greater hazards are rust that can blight the crop, rainstorms, hail or high winds. Then as the crop matures, the threat of fire can be of major concern,

All in all, the lot of our grain farmers will be an uneasy one during the coming weeks. On the other hand, if all goes well, Haskell County farmers stand to reap their largest cash income in years from what could easily be a record yield of wheat and oats.

Magic Circles

There is a famous story about two children who set out in search for the Bluebird of Happiness. They traveled to many places over the world but they never found it. Finally, they gave up their search and returned home. To their greatest surprise, they found in their own back yard, the Bluebird, singing away loud and clear.

The moral of this story is that there is a real touch of magi all around us-figuratively, right in our own back yard. One of the easiest ways to discover it and explore it is by drawing a circle of any radius, using your home as the center point for the compass. Your magic circle can be fifty, a hundred, two hundred miles in diameter and your magic carpet to all of the pleasure and adventure in this circle is your automobile.

Actually, you'll discover if you look around, many scenic and historic places in this immediate area that certainly warrant a visit. And sometimes, too, driving nowhere in particular and just letting the road be your guide can be the best fun of all. You'll discover all sorts of interesting things about your own countryside that perhaps you hadn't realized before. It can be fun and educational for the entire

Like the children in the story, you'll discover the real joy of life isn't as far away from you as you once might have thought

The group of fellows in the Saddle Tramps riding club who play a leading role in promoting and staging the annual Rice Springs Roundup (and that includes just about every member who can don a pair of 'chaps')

Thursday was to cover the Rounding night program of the Rounding. That job, it turned out, involved being almost blown away and getting soaked through and are tops in putting on a good ro-deo, but they are the world's worst weather prognostigators.

Consider opening night, for instance. Spectators had hardly settled themselves in their seats when the elements cut loose to dish out one of the season's worst wind and rainstorms, sending fans Creek Power Plant, to check on scurrying back to their cars and

You've got to hand it to those Tramps, though, and the rodeo contestants. An hour after the interruption, the night's schedule was again in full swing in the muddy arena, with only a few

The sturdily built stand did a rock 'n roll act that had everybody in it as nervous as a rabbit's nose, while rain swept in from every direction. We wedged in beside Dude Montgomery and behind Bob Cooke of the Abilene Reporter-News. Bob bore the brunt of the driving rain, reminded us of a bantam hen trying to hover a flock of half-grown chickens.

Despite weather interference. the three-night program of the Roundup was staged as scheduled, along with a top-flight Quarter Horse Show Friday and Shetland Pony Show Saturday.

As sponsoring organization, the Saddle Tramps can take pride in the fact that the 1958 show went into the books in the black, in the face of a non-cooperative weath-

A news item appearing in The Free Press recently was read with regret by this column, and we are sure other readers will share this feeling.

The item told of the resignation of Supt. Dan McRae of Paint Creek High School, who has accepted a similar post with a Nolan County school.

Dan has been administrator of the Paint Creek school system for eight years. His achievements and the notable progress made during that time deserve, but not neces-sarily need, praise in this column. What Dan McRae has done in building, almost from scratch, one of West Texas' most outstanding rural high schools, is too well known, too widely recognized in educational circles and too ev dent to patrons of the Paint Creek Few rural high schools in Texas can equal Paint Creek in accreditation rank, and in the educational facilities it affords stu dents at every level. This standing has been attained as a result of constant study and work by Dan McRae and corps of loyal faculty members who have followed his leadership in developing Paint Creek school to its present high standard.

The modern school plant developed at Paint Creek is lasting evidence of the progressive program for which Supt. McRae has been responsible, a program of which any school administrator might well be proud.

Yet knowing Dan McRae as we do, we are certain that to him any material achievement in modernizing the school plant is of secondary importance.

We know that Dan McRae's

Youth Phase of Extension Service In 50th Year

Fifty years ago an event took place in Jack County which es-tablished the youth phase of Agri-cultural Extension Service work in Texas. The occasion was the organization of the first boys' corn club in the state by a county agent and resulted from the failure of an adult corn show held in

The late Tom Marks was the county agent and the remark. "You can't teach old dogs new tricks," prompted Marks to come up with the statement—"Then I'll start with the pups"—and that is exactly what happened. He enrolled 25 boys and by demonstrations taught them the latest practions taught them the latest practices then known in corn produc-tion. The corn show held in Jacks-boro in the fall of 1908 in the caboose of a train proved Marks' point that farm youth could put into practice the better known methods of production.

This method of teaching among the rural youth of Texas is now in its 50th year and is known over the world as 4-H club work. The first of many special observances, honoring the pioneer workers, members and leaders of the early day clubs, will come during the annual 4-H Club Roundup for June 10-12 at Texas A&M College.

While major emphasis and ac-tivities of the 1958 Roundup will be devoted to determining state winners in 22 different judging and team demonstration contests, plans are being perfected to initiate a series of observances to carry recognition and attention to the importance of 4-H club work. The theme of the Roundup and for the activities to follow in the counties will be, "Learn Today—Lead Tomogrow".

Total attendance at Roundup, according to Extension Service officials, will approximate 2,200 with 4-H members making up a majority. Others attending will be

Young Wildlife Poor for Pets. Wardens Warn

Hands off young wildlife. That is the warning of the director of Law Enforcement of the Game and Fish Commission in Austin. Right now reports are coming in about persons capturing young deer, coyotes, and other "babies" of the wild, hoping to make pets It is against the law, the director warns. Wardens have been asked to keep a close watchout for persons who go into the woods and come out with the young pets.

In addition to being against the law, it also is dangerous, the director says. For instance, a coyote pup is a cute little thing. While still very young, it is playful and full of fun. As it grows older, however, the animal instinct develops. We have cases on record where these young coyote pups have bit-ten the hand that feeds them, the director warned. "Every year we have any num-ber of calls from persons who have found a deer they thought to be lost in the woods." the director said. "It might be lost, but the chances are it has a much better chance of survival in the wild than when you take it away from its mother. He advised persons finding dis-tressed wildlife to contact the game warden. He'll know what to do about it.

Rogers, 20, said "I admit I was scared. I didn't know what was happening. I don't think I was the one that was scared either." There were two incidents in connection with the mishaps stranger than the others.

The short circuit that caused the most damage occurred to a circuit breaker at least 50 feet removed from the nearest end of the broken telephone line. The other strange event was how the heavy copper wire of the telephone line was dissolved without burning the rubber insulation.

Holt said apparently when the wind snapped the telephone line. several snort pieces must have been whipped off the end and blown across the substation area. One of them landed on the oil circuit breaker and caused a short. A second piece of the line was found on the ground between the circuit breaker and the tele-

The telephone wire, of copper about the size of the lead in a seeking to contact fineline pencil, was dissolved except for a few short pieces from a quarter to an inch long, for 50 feet of the length of dangling wire. But the insulation appeared undamaged. The short sections of copper wire was as rigid as steel.

A strong steel fence surrounds the substation. It apparently was electrified and the current arched from the steel post to a steel latch on the gate and practically melted the prongs of the latch.

When the Paint Creek power went off, other stations and standbys cut in and started feeding power into the lines. By a simple manipulation, the damage in the Paint Creek substation was bypassed and by 11:30 Thursday night the operation was back to normal, except for the damaged circuit breaker which had to be

HIGHLIGHTS AND SIDELIGHTS From Your State Capitol

BY VERN SANFORD Texas Press Association

Austin, Texas-Leaders of the Texas cotton farming industry long plagued by regional feuding have joined hands. Object: to try to stave off a drastic cut in the 1959 acreage allotments.

Unless the present farm law is amended by Congress this session, the national cotton acreage allotment would drop automatically from the presently authorized national quota of 17,500,000 acres to approximately 14,200,000 acres in 1959.

Spokesmen from ail the state's cotton producing areas met in Austin to hammer out an alternate proposal. Their plan: 1. Retain the 17,500,000 national acreage allotment. 2. Give farmers a choice between planting higher acreage at 3. Abolish the present Soil Bank

Memorial Poppies Aid Children of War Veterans

Memorial poppies worn in honor of the nation's war dead on Poppy Day help bring aid to needy children of war veterans throughout the year. This was pointed out by

of the American Legion Auxiliary as the Auxiliary continued preparations for the observance of annual Poppy Day here May 24.
Contributions received by the volunteer poppy workers will go into Auxiliary child welfare funds, as well as into funds which finance the Auxiliary's work for disance the Auxiliary's work for dis-abled veterans. The Auxiliary is at work continually in activities for needy children of veterans and improve conditions for all

"More than half of all children are now children of veterans and the Auxiliary is carrying a heavy load in its work for the unfortunate among them," Mrs. Rueffer said, "and will be grateful for help given us on Poppy Day."

Flooding Project In Kent County Field Studied

FORT WORTH-Plans for unitization and water flooding of the SMS field in Kent County are now under study by operating com-panies there. Pan American Petroleum Corporation would be-come unit operator if the proposal is adopted.

Engineering studies at the West Texas field indicate that water flooding would extend field life about nine years, substantially increasing remaining recovery. Principal operators at SMS now studying the proposal include Pan t has declined gradually since then in ability to produce. Drilling showed that the producing reservoir-the Atkins sand of Pennsylvanian age-apparentwas originally formed millions of years ago as a sand bar along the flank of a low hill. The sand covers only a small isolated area, surrounded by impermeable rock. Such reservoir has no source of water which could move into it and push the oil out. Normally, absence of such wat-er "drive" results in low oil recovery, since the oil can be produced only by inefficient expan-sion of gas dissolved in it. Such a "gas solution drive" forces oil to the wells much like soda pop is forced out of a bottle when the Early pressure decline and acconfirmed the geological evidence that this field would require some form of secondary recovery or artificial drive. Engineering studies which followed recommended a water injection secondary recovery program. Those studies showed that an artificial water drive can be created by injecting water along the edges of the field. The injected water will maintain high pressure and producting capacity while it efficiently pushes oil from the

But before water flooding can commence, the field must be unitized, which means operators and royalty owners must agree pooling their interests in the field. The field is then operated as a single unit rather than a number of individual leases, allowing the implementation of secondary recovery methods. In general, when water flooding programs are put in opera-tion, some wells of a field are shut in and others are converted to water injection wells, while production is taken from the remainder. The plan permits the most effective use of natural and supplementary energies, and thus results in the greatest possible recovery of oil from the reser-

Texas Streams and Rivers at Normal Flow in April

April began with the streams and rivers of Texas flowing at normal rates for this season, ports the State Board of Water Engineers, Mid-month flooding in the upper Colorado River basin was moderate but runoff effected an increase of about 10,000 acre feet in storage in Lake J. B. Thomas by April 21. Flooding during the last days of April occurred on the Brazos. Trinity. Sabine, Cypress, Sulphur, and Red River watersheds due to heavy rains along an axis from Abilene to Texarkana. Rainfall amounts along this line were 3.5 inches at Abilene, 8.63 inches at Ft. Worth, 9.16 inches at Dallas and 7.78 inches at Shreveport, La. Flow in the lower Neches River was deficient for the first time since March 1957 because of insufficient rains on the basin.

Never over-treat plants to be used as livestock feed, advises Garner, Some highly poisonous insecticides can be used safely because directions call for quantities too small to cause animal poisoning. Less toxic compounds more dangerous where may be more dangerous where larger than recommended quantities are used. Always follow the manufacturer's directions and never guess at quantities, cautions Garner.

Poison symptoms appearing in animals fed pesticide-treated ma-terials may mask even more serious disorders such as rabies, pseudo-rabies and encephalitis. Diagnosis is difficult, but animals suffering from pesticide poison ing alone will usually recover completely under good care, providing the poisoning is not too

This can be avoided by removing livestock from treated plants for one or two weeks. Arsenical compounds are well established as poisonous, but they are less frequently used than formerly.
