35th FTS wives get close-up look at T-37s

By SrA. Nanette Grumbly
Public Affairs Specialist

Forty-nine instructor pilots from the 35th Flying Training Squadron had an opportunity to escort their wives on orientation taxi rides last week. "Operation Petticoat" provided spouses with an appreciation of their partners' profession.

Operation Petticoat, developed by members of the 35th FTS, came into effect in December 1980. Since then the program has been offered to spouses once a year enabling them to experience procedures their partners undergo daily before sorties.

Before the spouses went on their taxi ride they had to go through several procedures. First, they went to briefings explaining the program, safety procedures and egress and cockpit warnings. After the initial briefings they were instructed about the wear of flight suits, ear protection, parachutes and helmets. Once fitted for their taxi rides, with the help of their spouses, they were ready to begin.

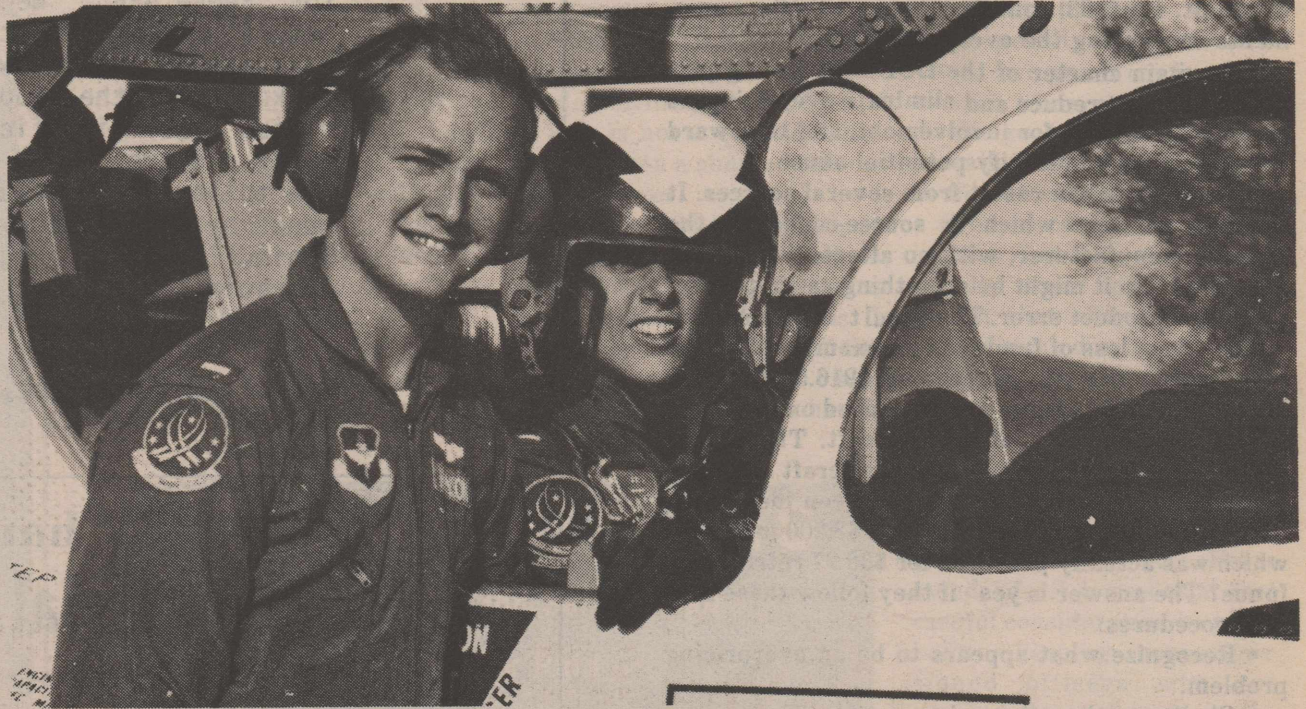

While they were being strapped in the wives were instructed on how to close and open the canopy. With everything checked Operation Petticoat was underway. The new operators experienced starting procedures to the runway, acceleration to a safe abort speed—65 knots for T-37s and 100 knots for T-38s—taxi back to the ramp and shut down.

After orientation rides 12 couples toured a runway supervisory unit and the control tower and the spouses had their pictures taken in front of a static display aircraft.

"Operation Petticoat was a very successful operation," stated Lt. Col. Leland B. Ransom III, commander of the 35th squadron. "It made the wives more familiar with the working environment and helped squadron morale at the homefront immeasurably," he said, adding "I would like to see it continue and in the future extend it to the student wives and wives of others who are directly related with the flying mission".

FIRST LIEUTENANT MIKE HANSON explains to his wife, Barbara, about procedures before her orientation ride during Operation Petticoat Oct. 14. "I think the program is a good idea and it was exciting going through all the procedures and taxi ride," said Mrs. Hanson.

Sec Defense signs new DWI directive

A Department of Defense directive on drunk and drugged driving was signed into effect recently by Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger.

The new directive establishes for the first time a comprehensive, department-wide policy for dealing with the problem of "intoxicated driving" by DOD military and civilian personnel. Provisions of the new directive call for the establishment of a world-wide, coordinated effort of education, identification, law enforcement and treatment programs, as well as increased cooperation with other national efforts against intoxicated driving.

Under the new policy, any civilian or military employee arrested for intoxicated driving or refusing a blood alcohol test faces a mandatory one year suspension of base driving privileges. Repeat offenders will face mandatory, longer suspensions of driving privileges if arrested again within five years.

Military departments and the defense agencies are directed to establish comprehensive, traffic safety education programs at the local level. A network of DOD community leaders to take part in the program include commanders, medical personnel, club system managers, public affairs officers and law enforcement officers. The new programs will be integrated into existing leadership programs to ensure that DOD personnel are reminded of the potentially serious consequences of intoxicated driving.

The directive also outlines procedures for notifying civilian authorities of DOD personnel convicted of intoxicated driving. DOD will notify civilian licensing authorities from the state in which the violator is licensed, as well as the state in which he or she is based.

"Today drunk driving represents the greatest single threat to the health and welfare of our military families," said Secretary Weinberger. "Last year, nearly 850 active-duty personnel were killed in motor vehicle accidents, making this the leading single cause of peacetime death in the military population. Indications are more than half of these deaths involved a drunk or drugged driver."

CCAF graduates 13 here

Thirteen members of the Reese community are among 2,500 other Air Force people, who will receive certificates from the Community College of the Air Force in ceremonies here next week.

The graduation will be held in the Education Office, Bldg. 91, at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday.

The graduates are: SMSgt. Joseph Dykes, MSgt. James Andrews, MSgt. Robert Beedy, SSgt. Anne Mohrmann, SSgt. Richard Morehouse, Sgt. Harrell Samford, TSgt. Kent Mueller, Sgt. John Sanchez, MSgt. Raymond Seils, Sgt. Ana Galvan, MSgt. Robert Dean, TSgt. Angeles Leeney and SMSgt. John Lemaster.

Currently recognized as the nation's largest community, junior or technical college, CCAF is continuing to grow. One in every three active duty enlisted people is a student or graduate of the college.

Reese, for example, has 98 percent of eligible enlisted personnel enrolled.

Additionally, Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve participation is on the rise.

The college is an accredited institution of higher learning and provides Air Force enlisted people with quality educational programs for personal and professional growth, consistent with Air Force needs.

base commander, will present the certificates to the graduates.

The CCAF was established in April 1973 with the goals of integrating both on- and off-duty education, gaining full academic recognition of Air Force training and providing incentives for recruiting and retention.

In February 1977, Congress and the U.S. Commissioner of Education granted CCAF authority to grant associate of applied science degrees, and CCAF is now the only degree-granting, military institution of its kind.

It is accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Wives club sets art auction

All Reese personnel and friends are invited to attend the Enlisted Wives Club Art Auction Oct. 28 at 7 p.m. The auction will be held at the Enlisted Open Mess club.

This is a unique and exceptional opportunity to view and purchase art directly from a publisher, wholesaler and supplier of fine art, said a spokesperson from the EWC.

Some of the famous international art collection includes works by Chagal, Farhi, Dali, Picasso, Roth and Rockwell among others.

Gathered from all over the world, the original lithographs, oils, etchings and water colors will be included in auction, with some of the prices starting as low as $20.

European American Art of New York will conduct the auction. The gallery will donate door prizes plus a free original pen-and-ink lithograph to each attending couple or single. All pieces are framed and ready to hang.

Viewing and exhibition of all art to be auctioned will be from 7-8 p.m. at the club. There will be a $1 donation per person and free hors d'oeuvres.

All profits will be donated to various charities.

Fight overpricing; be conscientious

By Maj. Gene Uptegraph
Wing Inspector

The Fraud, Waste, and Abuse Program is receiving increased emphasis within the Department of Defense (DOD) and this emphasis is attaining greater visibility daily. To many it has meant wrongdoing. The program bounds extend far beyond individual wrongdoing and, in fact, result in units' saving thousands of dollars in operations and maintenance funding. A recent TIG Brief article (Sept. 12, 1983) contained many excellent comments concerning the overpricing program.

"The main charter of the DOD overpricing program is to first reduce and eliminate overpricing, to provide an avenue for involvement, and to reward participants who identify potential abuse.

"Overpricing can result from several sources. It may be an item which is source-coded to the original manufacturer, with no alternative source identified. Or, it might be something as simple as a computer product error. The result to each unit is the same - loss of funds. As an example of actual overpricing, the Air Force paid $916.55 each for 7/8" x 7/8" x 5/8" plastic end caps used on the leg of sextant stool in one of our aircraft. These caps were source-coded to the original aircraft manufacturer and no alternate source had been identified.

"Can an organization which paid $3,200 for a part which was actually procured for $36.97 retrieve its funds? The answer is yes - if they follow these simple procedures:

- Recognize what appears to be an overpricing problem.
- Challenge the price using system. This can be accomplished by contacting the Base Supply Customer Liaison Office.
- Follow up with appropriate paper work with request for overprice refund. Again, supply customer liaison should be contacted.
- If warranted, submit AF Form 1000, Suggestion Form. The overall Air Force monetary savings could result in a cash bonus for you."

If in doubt about the price the Air Force pays for an item, challenge the system and ask why. If the responses are not satisfactory, there is no penalty for filling out an AF Form 635, Fraud, Waste, and Abuse Disclosure Sheet. This action will initiate an investigation. Remember, there is no punishment for submitting an AF Form 635, but there is indeed an injustice if a potential overpricing situation is ignored.

CFC fills need

With less than two weeks remaining in the Combined Federal Campaign, 67 percent of Reese members have participated in the fund drive totalling $107,994.20 so far.

Through the years the annual CFC campaign has provided funds for scores of worthwhile international, national, and local agencies. In the process, millions of Americans now live with less pain, with more dignity, and with renewed hope. In fact there are very few Americans who have not, at one time or another, in one way or another, benefitted from CFC, or its big brother the United Way.

The need for the campaign has never been questioned. "Caring" and "sharing" are the two principals at the heart of the fund drive. Additionally, CFC provides for one annual gift, versus numerous ones, and contains provisions for monthly payroll deductions. These features make giving more convenient and more comfortable.

Since its inception, CFC has been a key contributor to scores of service organizations which depend heavily on us for survival. This year, as expected, their needs are even greater. Thousands of Americans need the help made possible by our donations.

So please, as you have done in the past, be unusually generous when they pass the CFC hat.

CARE Line

The CARE Line is prepared by Col. Richard E. Hearne, 64th Flying Training Wing commander. All information provided to the CARE Line will be held in strict confidence. Callers are urged to give their name and duty number so that a personal reply may be made; however, neither are mandatory. Callers are urged to use the CARE Line only after all possible means to air complaints through the chain of command have been exhausted. The CARE Line Ext. 3273.

SOMEONE CALLED RECENTLY who, though happy overall with the services provided by the Enlisted Open Mess, was a little disturbed over the fact that when the club dining room is being used for functions such as banquets or parties, it is then closed to the rest of the membership leaving no other place on base to eat dinner with the family.

Unfortunately Air Force policy prohibits enlisted personnel from dining at officers' clubs, and, until we can find another room in the EOM to use for dining while these special functions are taking place we're stuck with the problem. However, we do have one other dining facility, the Talon Inn, which is open during these times.

ANOTHER CALLER ASKED how many of the CARE Line calls we get are actually printed in The Roundup.

This may come as a surprise to a lot of people, but since January, 93 percent of the calls made to the CARE Line have been run in the paper. Most of the calls that come in have at least something to do with other people on the base, so we run them. Of course, a few calls come in that are strictly personal, and these we usually don't run.

"WHAT WOULD BE THE consequences of a positive random urinalysis test?"

This is not a question that can be given a simple "this-or-that" answer.

There would be judicial, at least potentially, as well as administrative ramifications to any positive urinalysis. I say "potentially" judicial because most of the disciplinary actions are handed under Article 15 of the Uniform Code of Military Justice, which is nonjudicial punishment, i.e., does not involve actual courtroom procedures (although the same rules governing the rights of the accused are observed).

There is no Air Force regulation which directs the amount of punishment to be given; however, the Manual of Courts-Martial, published under Executive Order of the President, provides a maximum penalty for marijuana use of two years confinement at hard labor, a dishonorable discharge, forfeiture of all pay and allowances and reduction to the lowest enlisted grade.

Officers cannot be reduced in rank but the rest of the penalty would apply to them, except that officers are subject to being dismissed rather than dishonorably discharged.

Air Force Regulation 39-10, which covers administrative discharges, states that "Because drug abuse is not compatible with Air Force standards, it is essential that careful consideration be given before keeping noncommissioned officers who are verified drug abusers in the Air Force. Normally retention is not appropriate." AFR 36-2, concerning discharge of officers, lists drug abuse as a specific example of conduct incompatible with exemplary standards of personal conduct, character and integrity which would make discharge appropriate. A more difficult decision must be made when a senior airman or below is identified as a drug abuser. My belief that the individual's entire record must be closely scrutinized at that time to see we have an Air Force asset worth trying to rehabilitate.

While regulations provide important guidance, I cannot make a general statement saying what the consequences of a positive urinalysis would be. Each case must be tested individually. I can say, though, without hesitation that I view drug abuse as a very serious matter to be dealt with accordingly.

I LIKE TO END the CARE Line on a positive note, and I can do that again this week by relaying a compliment that came in anonymously. It came from a man whose wife received treatment at the base hospital that, if delayed, might have resulted in serious complications. The caller was highly complimentary of the OB/GYN clinic and the hospital in general, and specifically pointed out Dr. Janell Odom, Don Lovelace and Larry Ward, all of whom are affiliated with the Texas Tech Medical Center and who put in many hours in our hospital as well. This program has provided a much needed service to the Reese community. I thank this person for his comments and wish to add my own "well done" to the hospital staff.

Home fire escape plan outlined Does your family have a fire escape plan? If not, here are some recommendations from the National Safety Council:

To plan a fire escape route, draw the actual layout of your home. Mark the exits and sketch in the escape options you have if the main hall or stairway is blocked.

Is there a deck or porch roof that can give temporary refuge? If not, have you considered escape ladders from second story windows? Can windows be easily opened?

Conduct drills so that the emergency actions become second nature to the household. Remember, in a crisis it is difficult to think clearly unless escape options have been identified in advance and drills have been conducted.

Your plan should include an outdoor meeting place so you can make sure everyone is safe. If anyone is missing, leave the job of going back inside to the firefighters. Would-be rescuers should be aware that lethal quantities of odorless gases are often present — causing the rescuer to become a victim.

Have a "Safe Halloween"

Reese AFB, along with the Easter Seals Society, is working to help its children have a safe Halloween.

The Society has provided the base with its "Safe Halloween" coupon booklets that parents can buy for $1 each. The booklets contain 10 coupons that can be redeemed at local restaurants and entertainment establishments during November. Instead of giving candy or fruit, parents can give trick-or-treaters a coupon that the child or his parents can redeem later.

The coupon booklets are available from 2nd Lt. Markovich (hospital), 2nd Lt. Spraggins (operations), 1st Lt. Anderson (maintenance), 1st Lt. McQuown (ABG) and A1C Silva (RM).

Coffee-maker recalled

The Consumer Product Safety Commission recently announced a voluntary recall of the Model CMX1000 Mr. Coffee unit by its manufacture, North American Systems. The coffeemakers were recalled due to a potential fire hazard.

Military exchange officials say that this announcement is a reissue of a recall made last year. At that time, the affected units were pulled from exchange and warehouse shelves and customers notified to bring in defective coffeemakers.

Owners can identify a potentially defective unit by the three-digit code stamped on the bottom metal plate. The first two digits represent the week, and the third digit represents the year. For 1981, the codes to look for are 38-1 through 52-1. Production codes for 1982 are 1-2 through 21-2. If a unit does not carry a number in either of these two ranges it is not involved in the recall.

Exchange customers who still own a Model CMX1000 Mr. Coffee unit which is involved in the recall should discontinue use and return it to an exchange for full refund.

Fasten 'hip' belts

The regular use of seatbelts would virtually eliminate traumatic dislocations of the hip, report doctors in the Journal of the American Medical Association. An estimated 62 to 93 percent of all cases of hip dislocation result from high-speed motor vehicle accidents in which seatbelts were not used. About 35 percent of injuries involve people in their 30s and 75 percent involve men and boys.

Library celebrates anniversary

Tuesday marks the first year anniversary for the base library in Bldg. 15. With the celebration of their first year in Bldg. 15, library personnel invite all Reese personnel to attend a two-for-one paperback swap. Refreshments will be served while visitors can check out best-seller selections offered at the library.

Story Hour, for four and five year olds, is held from 10-11 a.m. and 12:30-1:30 p.m. The afternoon group is small and welcomes those who can come at that time. On Wednesday during Story Hour sessions, the library will have activities themed on Halloween for the children.

A few reminders from the library staff: don't forget to turn in books on the first and 15th of each month, also records are due back one week after check-out. Don't store records in hot places or they will become damaged.

Tricks for children's costumes

Before your children go out trick-or-treating, set up boundaries and a time for them to be home. Children should only go into neighborhoods where they are known.

Here are some further recommendations from the National Safety Council:

Do not block a child's vision with a mask. Use make-up instead. Make sure at least part of the costume is light in color; if not, attach bright reflecting tape to the child's bag or costume.

Do not allow children to carry candles or sharp instruments. Do have them carry a flashlight.

Tell children not to go inside a house if invited. They should walk only on sidewalks, not in the street.

Tell children not to eat any candy until they are home. Check carefully to make sure candy has not been tampered with. If you are unsure, don't take the chance - throw the candy away.

OWC sponsors fund raiser

Saturday at 8 p.m. the officers wives club will sponsor a charity fund raising event. The event will be held at the officers' club and will include 30 door prizes donated by local Lubbock merchants, live entertainment, games and jail.

Where do our ranks come from?

Have you ever wondered why Navy captain is a higher rank than Air Force-Army-Marine captain? Why a lieutenant general outranks a major general? Or why a colonel is called "kernal"?

When Air Force historian Ray Oliver was hit with these and similar questions he discovered, to his surprise, that there was no handy booklet about the origins and histories of military ranks. So he did the necessary research and wrote one himself.

Following is the first of a five-part series condensed from his booklet "Why Is The Colonel Called 'Kernal'?"

Private. The term "private" as a military rank probably came from a practice in the 16th century when an individual could enlist by means of a private contract to serve as a "private" soldier in a military unit.

Before the 16th century many armies were made up of serfs and subjects who were forced by their feudal lords to serve.

Airman. Airman is a recent word that means somebody involved with flying. The Air Force gave that title to the members of its four lowest enlisted ranks in 1952.

Corporal. Corporals often command squads. That was also their job in 15th century Italian armies. An important tactical formation was the squadra, or square, headed by the reliable veteran called the capo de squadra or head of the square.

The title seems to have changed to caporale by the 16th century and meant the leader of a small body of soldiers. The French picked up the term in about the 16th century and pronounced it in various ways — one of them being "cor-po-ral," which indicates a mixing with the Latin word corpus or French corps, both of which meant body. The British adopted corporal in the 17th or 18th century and it has been a part of their army ever since.

Our military services adopted the rank, as with most others, during colonial times from the French and British military.

Sergeant. The sergeant started out in medieval times as a servant, serviens in Latin, to a knight. He became a fighting man and warrior probably for self preservation. He may have ridden a horse but was not wealthy enough to afford all the equipment and retainers to qualify as a knight.

Sergeant originally was an occupation rather than a rank. As an experienced soldier he would be called upon to take charge of a group of serfs or other common people forced to serve in a feudal army. The sergeant would conduct what training he could to teach his charges to fight, lead them into battle and, most important, keep them from running away during a battle.

The English borrowed the word "sergeant" from the French in about the 13th century. They spelled it several different ways and pronounced it both of SERgeant and SARgent, the latter becoming the most popular.

The rank's many duties and levels of responsibility have led to several grades of sergeant. The Air Force has six while the Army and Marines have five.

Petty Officer. The petty officer title can be traced back to the old French work petit meaning something small. Over the years the word also came to mean minor, secondary and subordinate. In medieval and later England just about every village had several "petite," "pety" or "petty" officials/officers who were subordinate to such major officials as the steward or sheriff.

Since the early seamen knew petty officers in their home villages they use the term to describe the minor officials aboard their ship. A ship's captain or master chose his own petty officers who served at his pleasure. At the end of a voyage or whenever the ship's crew was paid off and released the petty officers lost their positions and titles.

Petty officers were important members of our Navy right from its beginnings and were also appointed by their ship's captain. They did not have uniforms or rank insignia, and they usually held their appointments only while serving on the ship whose captain had selected them.

Petty Officer became official rank in the U.S. Navy in 1841, along with the appearance of uniforms and rank insignia. (Courtesy AFPS)

Air leakage, infiltration can drive up energy bills

By Sam Lanham
Reese Energy
Conservation Manager

Air leakage or infiltration into a house can account for 20 to 40 percent of your utility bill. Heated air escapes and must be replaced by conditioned air causing higher operating costs.

Infiltration occurs around windows and doors and where any two materials or parts of the house meet. In a typical home, about 25 percent of the leakage occurs under the soleplate, another 20 percent through the wall outlets, 17 percent around windows and doors and 14 percent through air-duct joints.

Caulking and weatherstripping are the materials used to stop air leaks. They are simple to use and range in price and durability from inexpensive that lasts a short period to moderately expensive and long-lasting. Higher quality materials applied correctly, reduce costs in the long run because they do not have to be replaced as often. Replacing caulk is a time consuming task.

Eliminate 20 percent of air leaks by using inexpensive foam gaskets to close electrical outlets and switches in the home. They are available in hardware stores where caulking and weatherstripping are found. Air-ducts in the attic should be examined each year to make sure that no loose joints allow air to escape. Ducts should be re-insulated after the inspection is completed.

Fireplaces account for another 6 percent of the air leakage in the home. They should be altered so that they have an outside source of combustion air and do not draw conditioned room air up the chimney. Reduction of air leakage should be the first energy conservation measure taken by the home owner.

We at Reese are concerned about energy loss and are currently testing the air leakage/infiltration in our military Family Housing Units to determine the amount of savings that could be realized by simply tightening up our housing units.

Sure-Pay offers paycheck security

Sure Pay is not just for military members, but for civilian employees at Reese also.

Civilian workers can participate in the Sure Pay program which deposits paychecks directly to the financial organization of their choice. The program offers guaranteed deposits for the numerous banks and financial organizations participating in the U.S. Treasury Composite Check Program.

For military members Sure Pay provides continuous deposits of paychecks even when members are on temporary duty assignment or leave. In addition to the security of knowing paychecks are guaranteed in case of loss or theft, Sure Pay eliminates financial hardship by ensuring paychecks are received on time.

For civilians it's knowing their pay is deposited directly to the financial organization of their choice. Civilian Payroll division ensures that every civilian Sure Pay member receives his or her check on time including deposits and mailing of paychecks.

Everyone who enrolls in the program will also benefit by the convenience. With paychecks being deposited directly to each individual's account, there is no more waiting in line, no worry about late paychecks, security against loss or theft and guaranteed deposit.

Currently in Sure Pay Civilian Payroll officials state there is 82.9 percent participation by Reese Civilian personnel.

Civilian members interested in signing up for Sure Pay can visit Civilian Payroll in Bldg. 800, or for more information about the program call Ext. 3816.

Account number and name of bank are the only information required by Civilian Payroll to begin the member's participation in the program.

It's hard to ignore the facts: seatbelts work

by SSgt. Carol A. McDaniel
Safety Specialist

Reese personnel have been experiencing a rash of POV mishaps the past few weeks. Not exactly something to brag about — except — every single operator and passenger involved walked away from totalled vehicles with the worst injuries being minor lacerations. They were all using their seatbelts.

This is our greatest indication that the time and effort put into the empahais and support of the Wing Seatbelt Program by all concerned-from commanders on down-is working. It is unfortunate that it takes a frightening incident to prove what we have been saying all along is true — seatbelts do save lives.

All those, surveys, policy letters and enforcement tools are not going to waste. The purpose of the Wing Seatbelt Policy is to save lives by instilling the habit of buckling up whenever and wherever we get into a vehicle. Thanks to the program, we have several individuals who are still alive — true believers, now, in the value of wearing seatbelts — instead of bodies to be identified and families notified of senseless tragedies.

We continue to encourage commanders, first sergeants, unit safety representatives and supervisors to emphasize, support and enforce the Wing Seatbelt Policy. We urge each individual to continue their use of seatbelts off base as well as on base. That's where you really need them!

Those who insist in not using seatbelts off-base, should consider that any mishap reported from downtown is annotated whether seatbelts were used. If you are involved in a mishap and it is noted that you were not wearing your seatbelt, your commander can take administrative action against

you. Better yet, find a "survivor" to two, they'll tell you why they are still walking around today — able to tell their story.

They wore their seatbelts and walked away

Sen. Tower opens applications for academies

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AFNS) — Applications for the 1984-85 White House Fellows program will be accepted through Dec. 1. Air Force members are eligible to apply for the 14 to 20 one-year internship positions available.

The program allows selectees to learn about the government through first-hand participation. White House Fellows work as special assistants in the executive office of the president, vice president, cabinet-level agencies and for under or deputy secretaries.

Selection is extremely competitive, and is based on the application form and personal interviews of regional and national finalists. The Air Force doesn't participate in the selection process. All selections are made by the President's Commission on White House Fellowships.

Individuals are encouraged to apply early in their careers. No application restrictions apply, except that applicants must be U.S. citizens.

Those interested should write directly to the President's commission of White House Fellowships, 712 Jackson Place, N.W. Washington, D.C. 20503, for application forms and information brochures.
