National Farm Safety Week

The President of the United States by proclamation has called upon the people of the nation to observe the week beginning July 24 as National Farm Safety Week.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture and the National Safety Council co-sponsor this observance in cooperation with the State Agriculture Extension Services, farm organizations, the farm press, radio, television, and other groups to join in making the decade of the 60's memorable for accident prevention.

The theme of Farm Safety Week this year is "Enjoy Farm Life—Practice Safety." During the decade of the 1950's farm families have diligently reduced the accident death rate from 63.3 deaths per 100,000 farm residents in 1950 to 34.3 in 1958, the latest rate available. Nonfatal injuries were likewise reduced.

The remedy is to practice safety vigilantly in the 1960's. The reward is greater enjoyment of life for thousands of farm families.

Young Male Drivers: The National Disgrace

(San Antonio Express)

Young men—ages 16 to 25—have all the physical and mental equipment necessary to be the world's best drivers.

But they are the worst. Which means that they don't use the equipment that they have. Insurance rates for young males is higher than for adults and for girls of the same age.

Youngsters who don't know that they don't know how to drive account for a staggering 8,400 traffic deaths a year.

When a teen-age son starts driving the family car, the insurance rates nearly double. Or if he becomes the principal driver of the family car—or has a car of his own and he is unmarried—as a whole is to make them higher.

The effect of the young male drivers on insurance rates the rate almost triples.

There are some things that can be done to moderate the horrible driving record of these youngsters. First, the idea should be debunked that recklessness is anything but utter folly. Second, the idea should be hammered home that a smooth driver is a good driver.

Another point is to teach the youngsters some driving manners and, frankly, some adults we know will have to seek elsewhere than around home for an example of that one.

"Burning rubber," which still seems to be a mark of the daring young man at the wheel, is hard on the car, hard on the pocketbook, hard on the neighbors and has been fatal to many young men.

Driver training is essential if the death and insurance rates are to come down.

Haskell County History

20 Years Ago—July 12, 1940 One of Haskell's most disastrous fires in years occurred early Sunday morning, when fire destroyed the modern new high school building, and caused damage estimated at 50 per cent to the adjoining high school auditorium. Haskell firemen, aided by members of the Stamford fire department, battled the flames more than an hour in unsuccessful efforts to save the main building.

Three members of the Paint Creek Future Farmers chapter, accompanied by the advisor, W. B. Cowan, Jr., are attending the FFA convention at Houston this week. They are Ray Overton Jr., Kermit Brown and J. V. Weaver.

All-risk crop insurance indemnity payments to Haskell County growers who suffered losses have passed the $10,000 mark and adjustment work is still going on, according to J. E. Thomson, secretary of the county AAA committee.

Burglars who entered the dry goods store of Frank Salera in Rochester sometime Sunday night took about $14 in money from the store's cash register.

The City Council has contracted for the purchase of a new fire truck. It will be a 500-gallon pumper, made by the American La France Company.

People, Places & Things

By A. PATE

Everyone who has read Huckleberry Finn has at one time or other secretly longed to duplicate the young adventurer's experience on a raft, drifting aimlessly and unhurriedly down some river with the problems of the world forgotten.

A Haskell couple, Oscar and Helen Oates, had that experience recently as part of a month's vacation spent in the Ozark region of Arkansas.

One of the highlights of their vacation was a floating trip down the White River, one of Arkansas' favorite fishing streams.

Instead of a raft, as used by Huck Finn, the Haskell people availed themselves of a comfortable boat, outfitted for fishing and accompanied by a guide.

Starting their river trip early one morning, the couple fished in the clear waters of the stream as the boat drifted downstream. At day's end they had a nice catch of fish, and had drifted 17 miles down the scenic river.

Jim Thompson of Waskon, Texas, who was born here and graduated from Haskell High School, is anxious to locate copies of the 1936-37, 1937-38, 39 HHS annuals.

Members of the Haskell County Sheriff's posse who rode in the parade at the Coleman Rodeo last Friday got caught in freakish weather.

The parade formed near the north outskirts of town. Then, as the procession moved into downtown Coleman they rode into a hard shower and the downpour continued while the riders traveled several blocks.

As the dripping riders got together after the parade, club vice president C. O. Holt commented: "I can understand now why a baby puts up such a loud squall sometimes. These wet clothes are mighty darned uncomfortable."

Recent mention of "runaway" teams during the days before the automobile, recalls one that H. C. "Buck" Arbuckle, now of Corpus Christi, witnessed while he was living here, in what he termed "the good (?) old days."

This incident occurred about 1910 or 1912 and "Buck" tells about it as follows:

"At the time of this runaway Theodore Bowman was selling tombstones and always carried a bunch of advertising circulars he'd had printed, in his coat pocket."

"The team broke loose a block south of the square and ran north along the west side of the square and they were really sifting sand. A drunk Mexican was stretched out in the wagon bed and at times he would bounce 18 inches high and was thrown about in the wagon bed like a pea rattling around in a pod."

"As the team approached, Theodore left the sidewalk in front of the West Side Drug Store and ran out into the middle of the street as if to try to stop the runaway."

"As he did I said to Russ DeBard, who was standing by me, 'Russ, Theodore is apt to get hurt trying to stop that team.'"

"Russ answered, 'He's not going to try to stop 'em, he just wants to throw one of his tombstone circulars into the wagon with the Mexican.'"

"The team ran out of gas about halfway between the square and Bose Shook's place and Theodore failed to make a sale. But you've got to admit he knew a live prospect when he saw one."

The $10 reward offered by Albert W. Barnett in a Free Press Want Ad last week sounds like easy money, it seems to us, but we're predicting no one claims the pay-off.

The reward was offered for information as to the identity of the person who drove across Barnett's field of higar and took a hat from a scarecrow he had in the field.

The young farmer was justifiably angry over the deal. "If they just had to steal something, they could have done it without driving over and running a lot of feed," he commented.

When Barnett definitely learns identity of the culprits (and he has some mighty good leads) they will likely be the basis for more publicity.

A Haskell oil field worker was once the owner of an elephant, briefly it's true, but for a short time he was probably the only Haskell County man in history who could claim ownership of a real live pachyderm.

An expert manipulator of those small numbered cubes better known as "the bones," and also extremely adept with cards, the oil field worker, or derrick man, would sometimes have a run of luck with dice or cards, that was unbeatable. A big winner one day, with money enough to purchase a Cadillac, the next day might find him borrowing a buck to eat on or for a "snort" of bottles fluid.

He had one of these lucky streaks when a carnival was playing a week's stand in Haskell, and the derrick man was sitting in a game with the carnival owner.

One of the carnival's attractions was an elephant, and as the game progressed, the animal was mentioned "Who's a good elephant like that worth?" the oil field worker asked. He had accumulated an impressive stack of currency despite the fact that he was about three sheets in the wind.

The carnival owner, covetously eyeing the stack of lettuce in front of the tipy derrick man, said "About as much as that stack of money you've got there."

As the next hand was dealt the derrick man shoved in his stack. "All that against your elephant on this hand," he challenged as the other players tossed in their cards.

The bet was called, and ownership of the elephant changed hands and the game broke up for the night.

Word spread quickly, as the new owner had his elephant paraded uptown, stopping in front of a pharmacy then located in the Tonkawa Hotel Building, where the derrick man showed off his newly-won animal.

Asked what he intended to do with the monster, the new owner, who had been reared on a farm, replied: "Gonna hitch it to a one-way and quit using a tractor."

Luckily for the carnival owner, luck of the local gambler hit bottom before the week was out and the elephant went back to its original owner.

Max Steger tells this one in the Shallowater Star: I heard about the N. A. A. C. P. Worker that called his New York office to make his report. He said "We have done a lot of work here lately; we have integrated a lot of schools, and here lately some of our congregations has visited in some of the churches and some of them met with the Methodist Church and later joined the Methodist Church. Machine Harvest Of Cotton Shows Gain In State Increased mechanization marked the 1959-60 cotton harvest in Texas.

In keeping with the national trend, machine stripping and picking accounted for 44% of the Texas cotton harvest. A year earlier, it was 15%. Hand picking and snapping with 56% still predominated, however.

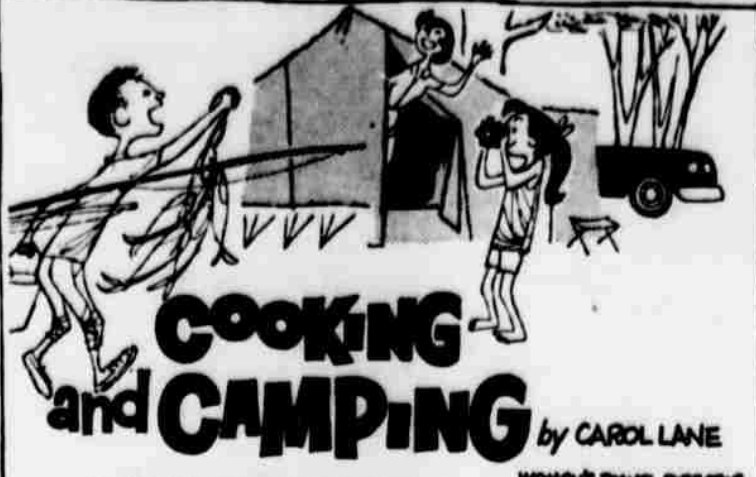

A survey by the Agricultural Marketing Service, in cooperation with ginners, compressmen and warehousemen, shows that 42% of the state's 4,371,000 bales ginned were hand snapped, and 14% hand picked, compared to 49 and 16 per cent, respectively, in 1958-59. Machine picking gained from 4 to 10 per cent, and stripping increased from 31 to 34 per cent.

In comparison, the 1958-59 national average was 39 per cent hand picked; 18 per cent hand snapped; 31 per cent machine picked (a new high); and 12 per cent machine stripped. A year earlier, U. S. growers harvested 44 per cent by hand picking; 22 per cent by hand snapping; 21 per cent machine picking; and 13 per cent by machine strippers.

Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico, with 48, 34 and 5 per cent respectively, were the only states that employed machine stripping extensively. South Carolina led with 92 per cent hand-picked cotton and California was first in machine picking with 83 per cent.

The AMS survey also reveals that Texas growers paid an average of $15.94 for ginning and wrapping each 500-pound gross weight bale. A year earlier it was $15.40. Charges for bagging and ties, alone, averaged $4.34 a bale, 8 cents more than in 1958-59. The national average last season was $15.02, total charges, and $4.29 for bagging and ties only.

Last year, it took 1,455 lbs. of Texas hand-picked seed cotton to make an average 500-pound bale, compared to the Cottonbelt average of 1,406. A bale of hand-snapped cotton in Texas required 1,932 pounds; machine picked, 1,515; and machine-stripped, 2,078.

Dove Hunting Rules Issued By Government

The Interior Department at Washington issued a list of federal regulations last week to govern the 1960-61 hunting of many land birds.

Waterfowl regulations will be announced later.

The announcement said individual states will select the dates for their seasons on doves within the period of Sept. 1 through Jan. 15.

Because of its size Texas may select seasons of 60 consecutive half days for each of two geographical areas; and in a third geographical area there will be a season of 37 consecutive half-days plus 3 days for hunting both white-winged and mourning doves.

For Texas the daily bag and possession limits on mourning and white-winged doves will be 15 daily and 30 in possession in the aggregate of both kinds, but no more than 10 may be white-winged doves.

Shooting hours in Texas will be from noon standard time until sunset except on three specially designated days in one area, when they will be from 2 p. m. until sunset.

Seasons for hunting of white-winged doves are prescribed for certain counties in Texas.

Texas may designate three days for hunting white-winged doves and mourning doves in addition to a 57-day mourning dove season in Brewster, Brooks, Cameron, Culberson, Dimmit, El Paso, Hidalgo, Hudspeth, Jeff Davis, Jim Hogg, Kenedy, La Salle, Maverick, Presidio, Starr, Terrell, Val Verde, Webb, Willacy and Zapata counties.

Guide on Cotton Defoliation

Effective March 5, 1960, defoliants and desiccants came under the regulations of Public Law 518. The basis for the control program of farm chemicals is to prevent undue risk from residues of the chemicals in the raw agricultural product.

Certain of these chemicals, however, have been granted an extension by the Food and Drug Administration, explains Fred Elliott, extension cotton work specialist. This extension is good until March 5, 1961, he says.

Any defoliant or desiccant used will eventually have tolerances or an exemption from tolerances designated for its safe use or will be registered on a nonresidue basis. Until official Federal regulations are issued governing the use of a specific defoliant or desiccant, it should not be used, Elliott warns.

In a recently published Texas Agricultural Extension Service leaflet, Elliott lists the chemicals that have been granted this extension, and gives a guide for their use. This leaflet may be obtained from the local county agent or from the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, Texas. Ask for L-145.

Cattle Owners Warned of New Highway Law

The Texas Department of Public Safety reminded Texas cattle owners today that a new law went into effect July 1 aimed at controlling livestock on designated US and state highways.

The new law makes it illegal for a person knowingly to permit his domestic livestock to roam at large and unattended on state and federal highways. It applies regardless of whether or not the highway right-of-way is fenced. Maximum fine for such violation is $200, and each day the violation occurs may be considered a separate offense.

Farm to market roads are excepted from the law. The new law also gives law enforcement officers the authority to have such livestock picked up, when unable to locate the owner, and turned over to the sheriff or constable in the county.

The law does not prohibit the driving or herding of livestock across or along highways. It gives peace officers the authority to enforce provisions of the act without a warrant.

Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said state patrolmen will enforce provisions of the law in an effort to reduce the traffic hazard caused by animals on designated state and U. S. highways. He said that during the year 1959 a total of 1406 rural traffic accidents occurred in Texas involving animals of all types. In these accidents 216 persons were injured and four persons were killed.

The Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council urges all Texans to be doubly careful now with cigarettes and fires. Pastures are dry and grass fires are on the increase. All available forage is needed for livestock feed.

Lack of Fishing License Brings On 176 Arrests

Too many fishermen still think they can get by without a license, according to the director of law enforcement of the Game and Fish Commission. Last month 176 persons paid fines for failure to buy their $2.15 fishing license. This license is required for all persons who fish with rod and reel, except those under 17 and over 65. Persons fishing outside their home counties also need a license.

In all, there were 272 violations in May, with a total of $5,197.74 collected in fines and costs.

A number of arrests also were made for killing game out of season. Several were caught shooting doves, quail, ducks and deer.

Two others were caught "telephoning" for fish, which is the illegal use of an electrical device for shocking fish.

Current fishing licenses will be valid until Sept. 1, when a new license will be required.

The 1960-61 hunting license has been revised and a new license will be placed on sale Sept. 1. The new license has been devised to provide a better record of sales and to facilitate handling of licenses by license deputies.

Pardon Me Lady, But...

ALMOST PINCHED—A Chrysler rolled into Detroit from Chicago on three wheels and almost earned a ticket from Patrolman Raymond Brewington. But the lady pointed out that it was only an engineering test to prove that unbody construction makes cars so strong that they don't sag even when you take off a front wheel for 800 miles. Note to motorists—don't try this unless you have a ton of weight in the trunk as this engineering test car does.

Improvement of Grass Pastures Boosts Profits

Plenty of grass for livestock to graze is the difference between profit and loss in the cattle business. According to W. E. Lawson, a new ranch owner in Haskell, the proper use of native grass pastures will bring about an improvement in quality as well as quantity of grass.

Grazing must be limited to the kind and amount of grass available, stated Hinda A. McGowen, Jr. of the Haskell Soil Conservation Service. This is a commonly accepted principle well followed by livestock farmers and ranchers who plan to stay in the business and get ahead. There are not only interested in making a profit on their operations for just today but in the days and years to come. This is being accomplished by grazing grassland at an intensity that will maintain the vigor and improve the quantity and quality of the better range grasses. These people are in the livestock business for keeps.

The success or failure of a livestock operation depends entirely on the availability of yearling forage to meet livestock grazing needs. When there is a shortage of winter grazing, stock may go hungry. This situation occurs during the spring growing season when livestock are forced to graze the weakened grass plants too soon. The results—starved grass plants and starved cattle. There will not be enough growth left for the plant to manufacture more food to produce more grass. Supplemental grazing areas provided by growing small grains and temporary pastures of sudan or blue panic grass will remove this condition.

Spur Experiment Station states that their yearly income from steers is 50% to 60% greater when only half the forage is grazed as compared to when three-fourths of the annual grass production is taken, stated McGowen. The secret to success in this type of program is the adjusting of livestock numbers to the amount of grass produced.

Moisture conditions are very good in the California Creek and Wichita-Brazos Soil Conservation Districts at the present. Most rangeland looks better than it has in several years. Many ranges over the district are now in a good condition, while a few years ago there were some areas completely bare of desirable grasses. Rainfall is our limiting factor in growing grass. However, McGowen concluded, the proper use of available grass is the key to successful livestock operations.

Wildlife Brings Many Benefits to Farms, Ranches

Wildlife is not often given much importance as a part of the total soil and water conservation program, states Harry G. Koehler, Conservation Aid of the Haskell Soil Conservation Service. Numerous benefits are derived from the useful wildlife on our local farms and ranches. Plants and animals work together to convert food, moisture and sunshine into food and fiber for man. A better farm or ranch can be obtained by maintaining a favorable balance with wildlife.

The improvement of small out-of-the-way areas for wildlife is an important part of our conservation program. Koehler continued. Every farm and ranch in the nation as well as Haskell County is a complex living community. That community is successful only if all the living things in it are working for the benefit of the whole community.

To have a successful community we need to provide food, cover and water to increase the beneficial wildlife. No two kinds of wildlife require the same living requirements, Koehler stated. But, it is safe to say that food, cover protection, and water are basic living requirements for all.

Proper land use for wildlife can greatly effect its abundance or scarcity. A large number of our soil and water conservation practices benefit wildlife. The odd area of waterway, or even an abandoned farmstead makes an excellent wildlife area. Small eroded areas in cropland, large gullies, bare knobs of land, an abandoned road or even a small parcel of good land cut off from the rest of the farm can be easily and cheaply converted into a wildlife habitat. Such areas may now be furnishing good cover and food for dove and quail and only needs some protection from grazing or fire. The farm pond will furnish the needed water.

Koehler concluded by stating that numerous farmers and ranchers are considering the wildlife on their farms and ranches. Plans are being made to develop wildlife areas on many farms and ranches in the Haskell Work Unit area. Waterways recently developed on the James E. Jetton farm east of Weinert and the W. L. Holt farm south of Mattson will be excellent wildlife areas.

Lutheran Parish Mission Builder Team to Visit Haskell Church

In a push-button world, where young people complain life is dull, that there isn't enough to do, members of the Lutheran Parish Mission Builders Team have no such complaints. They have a remedy. They find great satisfaction in their service to the church and, in addition, make friends. There are ten such teams, each of which includes four collegians, spending ten weeks this summer in serving American Lutheran Church congregations throughout the States and in Saskatchewan.

One such team of two young men and two co-eds is coming to Haskell at the request of Trinity Lutheran Church. Their period of service in our community will be from July 20, 1960 to August 20, 1960.

The members of Trinity Lutheran congregation will provide lodging and meals for team members during their stay in our midst.

The girls of the team are attractive enough to be successful beauty candidates. The young men resemble clean-cut athletes. It is their quiet, assured expression of contentment with the inspirational work they are performing, that makes them stand out among a group of young people.

As a result of the survey calls, a visitation call will follow. The unchurched families and those Lutherans who are

New Variety Of Wheat Is Released

Seed from Tascosa, a new hard red winter wheat variety which produces excellent yields of outstanding quality, will be available from producers of certified seed after the 1960 harvest, according to F. W. Martin, County Agent. Tascosa was developed by the Small Grains Section of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station in cooperation with USDA. It was named for Tascosa, the early Pannhandle settlement west of Amarillo. Tests on the Rolling Plains show Tascosa ranking first in yield. In regional trials in 61 station-year tests, Tascosa averaged 33.7 bushels per acre over a 4-year period compared with 33.3 for Concho and 21.4 for Comanche. The new variety has not yielded as well as Crockett in North Central or Central Texas tests, and because of this and its susceptibility to certain diseases, it is not recommended for these areas. Tascosa differs considerably from the present commercial varieties grown in Texas. The plants are shorter in stature and the straw is strong, which aids in resisting lodging. The variety resists shattering and may require special setting of the concaves for threshing because the kernels were held tightly by the glumes. Further information about Tascosa can be obtained by calling at the local County Agent's office.

HERE FROM ABILENE
 Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Edwards and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bright of Abilene were recent visitors in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Edwards of this city. Accidents in the farm home kill more than 27,000 and injure nearly 400,000 farm residents each year.

Turkeys, Melons On July List of Plentiful Foods

Looks like a spread for an old-fashioned Fourth of July picnic! That is how the Texas Extension Service, College Station, describes the U. S. Department of Agriculture's July plentiful foods list for this area. There is turkey for the main dish, surrounded by a variety of summer vegetables, with watermelons, cantaloupes and peaches for salads and desserts. Farmers are marketing about 10 per cent more turkeys this summer than last. In addition, cold storage stocks are larger than last year and larger than average, says the Agricultural Marketing Service. Heavy supplies of lemons and limes suggest many cool and refreshing beverages. Also, USDA July plentiful foods include ice cream, peanut butter and vegetable fats and oils.

Myers Is Named Grade C Water Operator

Skill and knowledge of water plant operation has won a Grade C "certificate for competency" for Carl J. Myers of Haskell. The certificate was awarded under Texas' general sanitation law that water plants supplying the public must be under the supervision of an operator who has proven his talent for the job in a written examination and has been certified by the Texas State Department of Health. Myers' newly won certificate will be valid for three years. After meeting certain conditions of additional training and experience, he will be eligible to try for higher certification. The examination for Grade C certification covers fundamental knowledge in quality requirements for a public water supply.

'61 Farm Wheat Allotments Sent To Producers

Official notices of farm allotments for the 1961 wheat crop have been mailed to farmers, according to Baldwin F. Davenport, chairman of the Texas Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee. Most of the allotments differ only slightly from those for 1960, since the national acreage allotment remains at the minimum of 55 million acres, Davenport said.

He pointed out that all growers who will produce more than 15 acres of wheat as grain in 1961 will be eligible for the '61 wheat crop. Growers with smaller acreages and those in the feed wheat program are not eligible to vote since their wheat would not be subject to marketing quota penalties.

Davenport said the referendum would decide important questions for wheat producers and he urged all eligible growers to cast a ballot. Marketing quotas will be in effect for the 1961 wheat crop if two-thirds of the growers casting ballots favor their continuance. Too, marketing penalties will apply to the excess wheat of growers not complying with their farm allotments, and price support at not less than 75 per cent of parity will be available.

If more than one-third of the voters oppose the quotas, no quotas or penalties will be in effect on the 1961 wheat

Barwick of Martindale, Texas, and Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Fowler of Haskell. The young couple plan to move from Denton to Gainesville, and James will teach in the Callisburg Rural High School near Gainesville.

SPEND VACATION IN MISSOURI

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Kieves and children have returned from a several days trip to points in Missouri.

Accidents to farm residents cost the nation 1.4 billion dollars each year, the National Safety Council reports. Counting the 20 million farm residents, the 10 million people in related industries and the six million farm suppliers, a sizeable chunk of population suffer from farm accidents.

crop and price support at 59 per cent of parity will be available to producers who plant within their farm allotments.

Growers who like to make their own decisions should cast a ballot on July 21, Davenport said. Local announcements will soon be made regarding polling places and opening and closing times for balloting. Local ASC officers can supply additional information on the referendum or it also can be obtained from the community and county ASC committeemen, Davenport said.

Turkeys, Peaches To Be Plentiful In August

Turkeys and peaches will get feature support in all of the promotion efforts of the U. S. Department of Agriculture during August.

Here's why. Head-count marketings of turkeys during August are expected to run a sixth larger than last year but tonnage will run even higher because of the increased proportion of heavy breed birds.

Also, cold storage holdings of turkeys are higher than average and last summer.

More states harvest peaches is August than in any other month, so supplies will run heavy as the largest crop since 1946 moves to market—76.8 million bushel.

Both watermelon and cantaloupes remain on USDA's plentiful foods list for this region with retail prices low enough to attract heavy volume sales.

Onions and tomatoes are in the best supply of summer vegetables.

Broilers and fryers return to USDA's plentiful list as August marketings promise to run 12 percent above a year ago.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO ALL OWNERS OF DOGS

Every year from 6,000 to 10,000 dogs in the United States have rabies. The bite of a rabid dog can pass this terrible disease to children and adults. Once symptoms of rabies develop, the disease is fatal. After the bite of a rabid animal, vaccination of the person bitten is resorted to in an effort to prevent the development of the disease. This vaccination is known as the "Pasteur Treatment" and it requires daily injections of at least 14 days. These daily injections, although necessary, are annoying and painful and there is the possibility of serious reactions.

Dog owners should vaccinate their dogs for three reasons: (1) To protect your family and friends against rabies. (2) To protect your pet—your dog—from rabies. Your dog is a devoted and respected member of your family in health and in sickness and is entitled to your protection from this disease. (3) To play your part in obtaining health protection for your entire community. If all dog owners keep their dog immunized through vaccination, rabies will no longer be a problem.

A move is under way to eliminate stray or unwanted dogs in Haskell and the City authorities ask your full cooperation. If your dog has not been vaccinated and does not carry a City registration tag, bring your dog to the City Hall Fire Station, Friday, July 22nd, between the hours of 9:00 a. m. and 1:00 p. m. Dr. David Ballard of Stamford will be there at that time to give the rabies vaccination. Please bring your dog on leash and keep him under your control at all times.

CITY OF HASKELL

The OLD RANCHER

I GET BETTER USE OF GRASS WITH FENCES TO CONTROL THE GRAZING

Hints Offered On Making Quality Hay

There's more to the production of a bale of top quality hay than just planting and mowing a field of forage. Geo. McBee, extension pasture specialist, says that hay quality is affected by harvesting, curing and fermenting.

For good quality hay, the crop should be harvested before it reaches the mature stage. McBee says that, even though yield is reduced if the crop is cut young, quality is greatly enhanced. The specialist recommends that grass type crops be cut between the boot and dough stages, and that clovers and other legumes be cut between the 1-10 and 1-2 bloom stages. When plants go beyond these stages, palatability and feeding values are greatly reduced.

Growers often produce high yields of good quality plants, and then lose this quality through improper curing.

The old saying "The grass is always greener on the other side of the fence" does not apply to a conservation rancher or livestock farmer. He sees that his farm or ranch is on the other side of that fence by cross fencing to get better use of grass in different parts of his pasture. Uniform grazing means better grass use and better grass use puts more dollars in the pocket.

See the local Soil Conservation Technicians for further details.

VISITOR FROM TYLER

Miss Ann Fortner of Tyler, Texas, visited several days in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Bevel and daughter. While here they attended the Olympic track try-outs at ACC, Abilene. Joel Bevel of Rochester accompanied them. Miss Fortner is physical education director and girls coach in the Rio Hondo schools.

Hot weather is also horn fly weather. These insects, says C. F. Garner, extension entomologist, will be one of the chief pests of livestock from now until fall. They can be controlled and Garner recommends that producers check with their local county agent for the best practices and control measures.

Don't relax your efforts in production of high quality milk. That's the advice to dairymen from A. M. Meekman, extension dairy husbandman, who adds that seasonal jobs may take more attention now but herd management and production of top quality milk must always be prime considerations.

Cotton Root Rot Is Reduced By Deep Plowing

Drying out the soil for 2 weeks or more after deep plowing can reduce cotton root rot to as low as 2 percent or less the following year, according to Dr. Harlan E. Smith, extension plant pathologist.

Deep plowing 10 to 14 inches or more, is best to use a mold board or disc type plow. Bedding and listing are ineffective. Plow in the summer if possible. If not, plow as soon in the fall as possible, advises Smith.

Drying out the soil helps reduce the root rot by lowering the number of fungus seed bodies or sclerotia in the soil. It also kills old cotton roots and roots of susceptible weeds on which fungus lives over-winter. The fungus has been found at depths of 8 feet; however, most of it is concentrated in the top 12 to 20 inches.

Deep plowing is most effective if no rain occurs for at least 2 weeks after plowing.

Check the long range weather forecast. Try to select a time when dry weather is expected. Do not irrigate after plowing for at least 2 weeks to allow soil to dry.

A combination of practices carried on for a number of years is necessary for best results.

Local county agents can supply additional information on recommended cotton root rot control practices, Smith says.

Vitamins For Beef Cattle

The green in grass means greenbacks in the livestock producer's pocket. Green color in plants is caused by the presence of chlorophyll, the quantity of which is an index to the amount of carotene present. Carotene, which is formed only in plants, is an important source of vitamin A, an indispensable ingredient in beef production. Loss of green color in hays or feeders means that a large percent of carotene is lost.

If cattle are not provided with green forage or a vitamin A fortified ration, vitamin A deficiency will occur. This deficiency is characterized by night blindness, watery eyes, swollen joints, rapid breathing, a staggering gait and a general loss of vigor. If the condition is not remedied, the cattle will become unmarketable and eventually will die. Time required for cattle to become deficient varies. Young animals, which have not had enough time to store a supply, become deficient faster than older animals.

A sufficient supply of vitamins A, C, D, E, K and the B vitamins is as necessary for normal growth and reproduction as proteins, carbohydrates, fats and minerals. Vitamins A, D and E are normally found in natural feeds, and vitamins C, K and the B vitamins are produced inside the body. U. D. Thompson, extension animal husbandman for the Texas A & M College System, has prepared an interesting and informative publication in which "Vitamins For Beef Cattle" are discussed. This publication may be obtained from the local county agent or from the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, Texas. Ask for MP-415.

Too Many Fatal Farm Accidents

Farm people have a slightly higher percentage of fatal accidents than do other population groups, reports the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council. The rate of accidental deaths from work and recreational activities on farms is increasing slightly each year, as is the death rates associated with machinery, drownings, firearms and electricity. Accidental deaths due to animals, falls, lightning and burns are decreasing, however.

According to a recent survey made by the National Safety Council, Texas ranks in the top ten states in the number of deaths caused from drownings, firearms, burns and electricity. The Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council points out that a little care and caution on the part of rural dwellers could help remove Texas from these unpopular lists.

During the week of July 24, an intensive safety campaign will be conducted in Texas, and all over the nation. The Texas Council urges all rural residents to participate in the activities of National Farm Safety Week—not only for that week, but for the entire year. "A little bit of caution could prevent a lot of grief," reminds the Texas Council.

Accidents to farm residents claim more than 11,300 victims and injure about 950,000 persons annually, according to the National Safety Council.

Texas far outranked other states in cash receipts from farm marketings of cotton, rice and grain sorghum in 1959 reports Extension Economist John Mc Haney. Cotton brought in about a third of the total agricultural receipts.

Broiler condemnations at the processing plant are expensive to the producer. F. Z. Beanblossom, extension poultry marketing specialist, says complaints are taking an estimated $22 to $25 million annually out of the producer's pocket. Since Texas is a major broiler state, he says the losses are of prime importance.

Meeting Slated On Organizing Gun Club Here

Considerable interest has been shown in the Jaycee plan to organize a Gun Club and set up a Skeet Range in Haskell, and sponsors said this week there was a possibility that persons from several neighboring towns would join the local club when it was organized.

An ideal site for the range is available on the grounds of the Haskell County Golf Club northeast of town, sponsors said.

Two members of the junior chamber of commerce, Wallace Wooten and Ben Curd, are investigating the feasibility of organizing the gun club, and they report enthusiasm among persons they have contacted.

A meeting of all persons interested in the proposed club and range is to be held Friday night, July 29, at the Highway Drive In Cafe in this city. Everyone who would like to help in organizing the club is urged to be at this meeting, or to contact Ben Curd at Western Auto or Wallace Wooten at Wooten Service Station.

Governor Daniel Proclaims Farm Safety Week

Governor Price Daniel by proclamation has designated the week of July 24-30 as Farm Safety Week in Texas. This same period has also been designated as National Farm Safety Week by the President of the United States.

In his proclamation, Gov. Daniel said: "The Nation's economy is dependent upon the continued well-being and progress of our State's agricultural population. Accidents from farm work cause needless suffering, distress and loss of life each year among rural families.

"By directing the attention of our rural residents to safety education, such worthwhile programs now being conducted can greatly reduce accidents. I urge all Texas farm families to increase their vigilance against needless accidents and further encourage interested organizations and individuals to participate in this program."

The Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council points out that the purpose of the special week is to focus attention on the year-round need for reducing the number of farm accidents, and to cause those who can do something about the problem, to act. The farmer and his family, says the Council, must carry safety into their everyday lives. Nationally, they add, farm accidents cost one and a quarter million dollars annually, a sizeable sum any way you take it.

The ever-tightening cost-price squeeze faced by agriculturists makes accident prevention even more important, says the Council, because a single costly accident can just about squeeze out the profits from most farm enterprises.

The Council joins Governor Daniel in urging rural residents and organizations to make safety their number one project for the months ahead.

Machinery, drowning, firearms and falls are the leading causes of death on farmland and around farm buildings. Greatest number of accidents caused by tractors overturning occur while the tractors are being operated on level ground.

The safe storage of agricultural chemicals is vital to farm safety, says the Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council. The council strongly recommends the use of proper labels on all storage containers and that storage buildings be locked when possible.
