Astronaut talks at prayer breakfast

Prayer breakfast guest speaker

Brig. Gen. Charles M. Duke Jr., Air Force Reserve, will be the guest speaker at Thursday morning's National Prayer Breakfast gathering. The Reese prayer breakfast will be held at the officers' club and will begin at 6:30 a.m. when the serving begins.

General Duke was the lunar module pilot for the Apollo 16 space mission in April 1972. Prior to Apollo 16, General Duke served as a member of the astronaut support crew for Apollo 10 and as the backup lunar module pilot for Apollo 13 and later Apollo 17.

General Duke began his career earning a bachelor of science degree in naval sciences from the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., in 1957. After graduation he was commissioned and assigned to Spence AFB, Ga., for primary flight training; Webb AFB, Texas, for basic flying training; and finally Moody AFB, Ga., where he completed advanced training in F-86Ls.

After a tour with a fighter-interceptor squadron in West Germany, General Duke attended Test Pilot School. He then began teaching control systems and flying F-101s, F-104s and T-33s.

Then in 1966 he became an astronaut. Six years later, the general flew his Apollo 16 mission. Apollo 16 had special significance — it was the first scientific expedition to inspect, survey, and sample materials and surface features in the Descartes region of the rugged lunar highlands.

The general and Astronaut John Young ended their record setting lunar surface stay by maneuvering the lunar module "Orion" to a landing on the Cayley Plains. In three subsequent trips to the lunar surface, the pair placed and activated scientific equipment and evaluated the use of Rover II.

The general is a command pilot with astronaut wings (he has logged 4,147 flying hours). The father of two enjoys hunting, fishing, reading, golf, and activities involving the Boy Scouts and Youth Soccer Organization.

Tickets to hear General Duke speak and attend the Reese prayer breakfast are still available through unit first sergeants, the commander's office and the base chapel. Tickets will be available at the door, too. The tickets cost $3 per person.

Air Force implements test per diem method

The Air Force is testing a simplified method of computing temporary duty per diem for service members, according to an Accounting and Finance Center handout.

The new program called "Flat Rate" per diem was authorized as part of the Fiscal 1984 Appropriation Bill, but the test is being conducted only by the Air Force and the Defense Logistics Agency.

The purpose of the test program is to enable travelers to better understand how finance personnel compute their per diem to the extent that they can compute (fairly accurately) their own per diem entitlement. The flat rate concept uses whole dollar amounts and even percentages making the computation process more understandable than the present system, the pamphlet explained.

Travelers can consider these program points and if they still have questions contact the Travel Pay Section, Ext. 3163.

The per diem is payable for the day of departure based upon the rate established for the TDY point to which you traveled and stayed. Whether a full or partial day of per diem is payable is based upon the hour you depart.

One simplifying factor of the new program is that there is no reduction to per diem made for meals that could be eaten in an available or government contracted dining facility.

Traveling days, except those to and from the TDY point, there is no reduction to per diem for available government meals between TDY points.

The per diem rate payable on these days is either 50 or 100 percent of the locality rate at the new TDY point. Where government contracted quarters are available, 50 percent of the locality rate is payable. The full payment of per diem is authorized when use of civilian quarters is authorized.

Under the test program, receipts for lodging are not required, but a statement of nonavailability (DD Form 1351-5) is still required to support:

Use of commercial lodgings at locations where government or government contracted quarters are normally available.

Nonavailable meals on interim TDY days when government quarters are assigned and government dining facilities are normally available.

There are other key points to the test program, so if you have to travel in the future it could be worth checking into.

'Buddy-Wing' works

Capt. Dave Withey and 1st Lt. Mark Fruscione, both instructor pilots, recently returned from Holloman AFB, N.M., where they represented Reese in the Buddy-Wing Program.

The program is available to all Reese instructor pilots, but it is the outstanding personal achievements of the instructors themselves that determines who participates, according to Capt. John Burns, program monitor.

During the Reese pilots' four-day trip to Holloman, they got an overall perspective of the Holloman mission. The pair got eight flights in the AT-38B (the jet used for lead-in fighter training) and a chance at the simulators, too.

Captain Withey got to go one step further when he and another AT-38B pilot flew an air-to-air training mission against four F-15 Eagles.

The program is a lot like an incentive flight, but it offers the instructor pilot a chance to acquaint themselves with other major command missions and helps them make sound career choices.

Reese gets to send two instructor pilots per quarter (on the average) to various bases in support of the program. The 64th Flying Training Wing is involved with the F-15 program at Holloman, the B-52 program at Carswell AFB, Texas, the F-111 program at Cannon AFB, N.M., and the C-5 and C-141 programs at Altus AFB, Okla., as well as the AT-38B program, explained Captain Burns.

THE ROUNDUP is an unofficial newspaper published under exclusive written agreement with the 64th Flying Training Wing Commander in the interest of personnel of Reese AFB, Texas, of Air Training Command. It is published by Barron Publications, Inc., a private firm, in no way connected with the Department of the Air Force. Opinions expressed by the publisher and writers in this publication are their own and are not to be considered an official expression of the Department of the Air Force. The appearance of advertisements, including inserts, in this publication does not constitute an endorsement by the Department of the Air Force of products or services advertised.

CARE Line

The CARE Line is prepared by Col. John R. Hullender, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, on a weekly basis. All information provided to the CARE Line will be held in strict confidence. Callers are urged to give their name and duty telephone number so that a personal reply may be made; however, neither are mandatory. Callers should use the CARE Line only after all possible means to air their views or complaints through the chain of command have been exhausted. The CARE Line number is 885- (Ext.) 3273.

Two callers were concerned that the hospital personnel were parking in the patient parking lot near the emergency room entrance, which caused an inconvenience for patients. The hospital's policy is that no hospital personnel will park in the patient parking lot during normal duty hours.

The hospital commander has re-emphasized the policy to hospital personnel, and the individual identified by a caller as violating the policy has been counseled.

We are aware that the hospital parking areas are inadequate, and have a project identified to add additional parking spaces.

Since the CARE Line is used to show Reese people that we care about their problems, it seems an appropriate place to thank those who show they care through their actions. The spirit of the "Air Force family" was very much in evidence in the "Cookie Caper" conducted by the Women of the Chapel during the holiday season. The project provided home-baked cookies, cakes, candy and fresh fruit to single enlisted people, and to those who manned the duty stations during the holidays.

This year's project was a tremendous success, and is just one of the ways the Women of the Chapel show their support of the Reese community and enhance the morale of the base. I add my thanks to that of the recipients who enjoyed the little touch of home during the holidays.

While the rush of Christmas shopping may have tested the patience of some base exchange shoppers, a caller reports that the ladies who work at the customer service counter remained courteous despite the impatience of some customers who waited in long lines. I add my compliments to those of the caller.

During the bitter cold weather of December, a base housing resident complained that housing maintenance contractors had not responded to his request that they adjust the heat in his house. A check with our housing maintenance contractor revealed that the heating ducts from the furnace were not properly connected, which caused an inconsistency in the heating in the bedroom in the unit. Repairs to the duct system were made Dec. 29.

The delay in completing the repairs to the heating ducts were due to the excessive number of service calls concerning no heat during the unusually cold weather. The caller's house was never without heat, but reported lack of heat in one bedroom.

Residents of Reese Village may report service problems to the Military Family Housing Quality Assurance Evaluator at Ext. 3602.

Happiness is—a new baby

by Col. Thomas F. Sheffer hospital commander

Few events in life bring more joy and happiness to a family than the birth of a child. A new addition to the family brings about many changes. From the time that the diagnosis is made, the prenatal care, delivery, and postnatal care all are part of the changes taking place in the family life. Everyone on the team at the OB Clinic, labor and delivery room, and those working on the ward have a desire to do all that is possible to provide the very best medical care to the mother and new infant. This is our contribution in making this special occasion so meaningful.

In 1983 302 babies were delivered at USAF Hospital Reese and we were delighted that we had this opportunity to provide this type of quality health care to our community.

Even though our hospital appears small, we really have some very big "pluses" to offer our patients. Our obstetrical unit is an eight bed unit with a nursery, adequate in size and modern equipment, to handle eight infants at one time. Another advantage of using this facility is the reasonable cost to the family, including the prenatal, delivery, and after care. The only family charge is $3.60 a day for meals. Should one desire to use the medical facilities downtown, CHAMPUS will pay only the allowable charges for the delivery and anesthesia. (The family is then required to pay the difference, which can be several hundred dollars.) There would also be a $25 charge by the downtown hospital. It is important that all of these factors be evaluated before a decision is made on which medical treatment facility is used.

Because of the size of our hospital, our staffing is such that we are able to provide highly personalized care along with many opportunities to teach the new mothers special aspects of infant care. All during pregnancy there are classes available on prenatal care; prenatal dental care; breast feeding; and parenting and even a class for siblings on becoming a brother or sister. We feel this is a much needed service. It is one that is not always available in a non-military setting and we feel fortunate to be able to provide it.

Before you make a decision whether you will or will not use our facility, I would urge you to come have a visit with Bob Gregorio, our health benefits advisor, and he can even arrange for you to have a tour through our facility.

Effectiveness excels extra necessary evils

by Lt. Col. Gary W. Schuck
Grissom AFB, Ind.

Many of you may look at additional duties as necessary evils — jobs you do above and beyond your primary duties solely to look good for inspector general and staff assistance visits, or to get "fodder" for officer effectiveness reports or airman performance ratings.

But have you ever considered how our units would run without additional duties? How would important programs like safety, security and suggestions be implemented? Who would be responsible for running the squadron sponsor program, the athletic program, the Combined Federal Campaigns and Air Force Assistance Fund Drives, or the dozens of other duties that must be accomplished in our shops on a day-to-day basis?

Yes, additional duties are necessary, but they are not evil! They play an important role in each and every squadron. Not only do they contribute to the accomplishment of each unit's mission, but they also provide a means for individual accomplishment and recognition.

In every duty section there are people who excel at something, be it working with words, numbers, ideas, or people. "Word" people might be suited to working in additional duties such as awards and decorations or manuals and publications.

"Numbers" people might be interested in jobs like fuel conservation monitor or supply officer/noncommissioned officers. The suggestion or security programs might be managed effectively by "idea" people.

"People" people are needed everywhere, but particularly in organizing the sponsor program, the athletic programs, and charity and membership drives.

The bottom line is people will work harder at duties they are interested in or can excel at.

Commanders and supervisors can promote the accomplishment of additional duties in their units by getting involved, showing interest, and rewarding those individuals who perform well. Commanders should take the time to meet with each additional duty monitor and discuss his or her program to find out what projects are in the works and what problems, if any, are being encountered.

As an additional duty performer, you should carry out your additional tasks with the same zeal and attention to detail that you devote to your primary duties.

Most importantly, you should strive to perform your additional duties in a manner that will reflect favorably on your squadron, your commander or supervisor and yourself.

Additional duties are important. Together with primary duties they form the backbone of a squadron's character and are necessary for the successful completion of a unit's mission.

CJR procedures change

Career Job Reservations issuing procedures will be changed from the previous first come, first served method, to a rank order method Jan. 1. In addition, the "protected quarter" concept for waiting list skills will convert a "protected month" system. The rank order criteria to determine who will receive a CJR is in the following priority: three most recent airmen performance reports (in descending order), grade, projected grade, date of rank, unfavorable information file, and date/time of CJR application.

Effective with this change, airmen who have been selected for reenlistment and are otherwise eligible, may request a CJR as early as the first day of the month in which they will complete 35 months on their current enlistment (59 months for six year enlistees). For example: a first-term four-year enlistee who completes 35 months service Jan. 29, will be eligible to apply for a CJR Jan. 1. For airmen to receive "protected month" consideration, their CJR requests must be processed in system and received by Headquarters, Air Force Manpower and Personnel Center not later than the 25th day of the 35th month (59th month for six year enlistees). Airmen serving in waiting list skills whose CJR application is received by Hq./AFP-

MC after the 25th day of the 35th or 59th month (as appropriate), will be placed on the CJR waiting list. Placement will be based only on date/time of CJR application (ranking will not be used). Airmen who are on the CJR Waiting List as of Jan. 1, 1984, will be given a special one-time reconsideration using the new rank order criteria. This special reconsideration will apply only to those airmen who applied for a CJR during their

"protected quarter" (current system). Airmen not receiving a CJR will be placed back on the CJR Waiting List based on their date/time of CJR application.

Air Force planners believe this program will provide a more equitable system; one which will equally serve the best interest of airmen as well as the Air Force. For more information, contact the base career advisor in Building 920, Rm 227, or call 3168.

Baby's first tooth—more than cute

by Capt. (Dr.) Lisa A. Darbonne preventive dentistry officer

(National Children's Dental Health Month will be observed throughout the nation during February. Today as part of the observance, Reese Dental Clinic begins a six article series on "Going through life with a smile.")

When baby's first tooth appears, mother writes the date in her baby book. Father takes a picture of it. The grandparents brag about its arrival to their friends. Everyone seems to know that the appearance of the first tooth marks an important step in the baby's development.

They're right. Children need healthy teeth to chew their food easily, to help them speak clearly, and to look good to themselves and their friends. In these respects, your child's primary or first teeth are just as important as the permanent teeth, even though most of the primary teeth will be lost naturally by about age 12. Let's take a look at the primary teeth to see how they develop and how they should be cared for during these important early years.

The tooth buds begin to grow between the sixth and eighth weeks of pregnancy.

A Healthy Smile Brightens Everyone's Day

As weeks pass, the buds become tooth-shaped, and their cells form enamel, dentin, and the other parts of the teeth. The enamel starts to calcify (harden) between the third and sixth months of pregnancy. During this time, it is important for the pregnant woman to eat a diet containing enough calcium, phosphorous, and vitamins. If her diet is inadequate, the baby's teeth may not develop properly.

By the time the baby is born, the crowns (the part you see when you look in the mouth) of some primary teeth are almost complete. In fact, a few babies are even born with teeth. According to recent estimates, about one baby out of a hundred is born with a tooth already peeking through the gums. Usually this is a perfectly normal tooth that has come early.

As a rule, the first tooth to erupt (come through the gums) is one of the central incisors, or front teeth. This tooth often appears when the child is about six months old. By age 2½, the remaining primary teeth are usually in place in the mouth. In between these times, parents may blame a child's fussiness, diarrhea, drooling, night waking, and even fever on "teething." Studies have shown, however, that teething is not the cause of many of those problems. It is especially important for parents to realize that a child with a fever is ill and needs to be seen by a physician. Mistakenly blaming the fever on teething can unnecessarily delay medical treatment.

As soon as teeth appear in the mouth, they can start to decay. The day your baby's first tooth appears, you must assume an important new responsibility — cleaning the child's teeth. After the baby eats, clean the teeth with a wet washcloth or gauze pad. This will remove plaque, the film or bacteria that forms on everyone's teeth and causes dental disease.

In addition, take care not to give your baby a bottle of milk, formula, sugar water, or fruit juice when putting the baby to bed at night or during the day, for a nap. This can cause "nursing bottle mouth," a condition in which a young child's teeth are affected by a serious decay. The teeth most likely to be damaged by this condition are the upper front teeth, the ones that make such a difference in your child's smile. So don't take any chances — fill the bottle with water when putting your child into bed.

Remember that baby's first tooth isn't just cute, it's important! By taking good care of it—and the 19 other primary teeth that will follow it—you can help your child go through life with a healthy, happy smile.

News briefs

Scholarship loans available

Now is the time to request Retired Officers' Association Scholarship Loan forms for the 1984-85 school year, says Lt. Col. John Greiner, Army retired, president of the Lubbock ROA chapter.

Service children may receive an ROA loan for undergraduate college study if they can show financial need, scholastic ability, and have good character, Colonel Greiner added. Completed applications must be submitted by April 1.

Unmarried dependent children of ROA members are automatically eligible for consideration; other students of active or retired service personnel may also be eligible. For details or an application, write ROA, Attn: Administrator, Scholarship Loan Program, 201 North Washington Street, Alexandria, VA. 22314.

February promotion increments

The officer promotions for February include: To colonel—Line of the Air Force, 0072-0142; chaplain, 0002; judge advocate, 0002; nurse corps, 0002; medical services corps, 0002; and biomedical science corps, none.

To lieutenant colonel — line of the Air Force, 2128-2327; chaplain, none; judge advocate, 0029 and 0030; nurse corps, 0037-0040; medical service corps, 0021 and 0022; and biomedical science corps, 0034-0036.

To major — line of the Air Force, 0796-1061; chaplain 0012-0014; judge advocate, 0017-0021, nurse corps, 0041-0053; medical service corps, 0015-0019; and biomedical service corps, 0025-0032.

Officers may assume the higher grade unless otherwise instructed.

The enlisted promotion increments for February include: To chief master sergeant, 0039-0082; to senior master sergeant, 1564-1734; to master sergeant, 5298-5777; to technical sergeant, 7326-8186; and staff sergeant, 001-2211.

The date of rank cutoff for fully qualified senior airman to be effective Wednesday is Oct. 29, 1981 or earlier.

Enlisted promotees should verify their promotion status before assuming the higher rank.

Jack stands recalled

DALLAS — An Auto-Mate jack stand has been recalled by the manufacturer for possible defects, according to quality assurance specialists with the Army and Air Force Exchange Service. A malfunction during manufacturing is responsible for the defect in the jack stand, model 172 (1-1/2 ton).

Auto-Mate notified AAFES that a welding machine malfunctioned from November 18-22, resulting in a possibly defective weld to the jack stand leg. AAFES has returned its jack stand stock and is urging customers who purchased them between the affected dates to return them for a replacement or refund. Any jack stands bought outside these dates are not included in the recall.

Overweight can't retrain

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (AFNS) — Overweight Air Force personnel are no longer eligible to retrain voluntarily, according to a recent change to Air Force Regulation 39-4, Airman Retraining Program. The change brings the program in line with recent assignment policy changes. Air Force Manpower and Personnel Center officials explained.

Members are not eligible to voluntarily retrain regardless of the progress they are making in the weight management program.

For further information contact the base career advisor at Ext. 3168.

NCOAGA meeting planned

The NCO Academy Graduates Association meets every second Thursday of each month in the NCO club conference room at noon.

The next meeting of the NCOAGA membership is Feb. 9. Association members are reminded that their annual dues must be paid by the end of February.

JOC plans AFMPC visit in March

The Reese Junior Officers' Committee will visit Air Force Manpower and Personnel Center at Randolph AFB, Texas, March 8-10.

The trip, open to officers in all grades, will require permissive TDY orders for those attending. Transportation will be provided by a government vehicle if enough individuals sign up or by personal vehicle if only a few sign up. Because of the transportation question, those officers wanting to attend must sign up for the trip by Feb. 7, by contacting Capt. Cordell Kylo, Ext. 3832; 1st Lt. Julie Foster, Ext. 3744; 2nd Lt. Glenn Lang, Ext. 3944; or 2nd Lt. Ellen Wells, Ext. 3515.

Our Members Make Us Different

Unlike the other electric companies, the members of a cooperative share in the successes and obligations of the business. When the cooperative makes money, the members receive credit for a fair share. On the contrary, when the cooperative faces obstacles, the members working together share in the effort of meeting the challenge.

From participating in load management, to serving on the Member Services committee, to receiving Capital Credits — the members of South Plains Electric Cooperative make it different from the others.

Awards cite years of service

Several civilian employees at Reese were honored during the second half of 1983 with length of service certificates for their continued efforts here.

Ten-year awards went to supply's Wayland W. Fannin and Betty F. Madry, civil engineering's Mitzie H. Hallgarth, field maintenance's Roy G. Toler and Gary D. Kirby, and the training wing's Larry J. Hagan, Jay D. Hart, Bufus Lee, Pam G. Seiler and Donald R. Stewart.

Twenty-year awards went to the training wing's Shirley

C. Alana, Glenna F. Cornwell, Wilma E. Foster and Marie Williams, the group's Mary F. Clary and Fred Flewellen, civil engineering's Joseph Beaudoin and Lomas L. Freeman, and Jesus D. Liova of the hospital.

Thirty-year awards went to field maintenance's Chester T. Dean, training wing's Bobby Ferguson, Billy J. Keller and Henry A. Ussery, civil engineering's Stanley Hagedorn, supply's Vernon D. Reed, and organizational maintenance's James E. Kelley.

First quarter length of service award for 1984 will go out to (10-year) FMS's John H. Gomez, James E. Neugent, Raymond Santiago and Floyd Taylor, and the commissary's Henning Pierson, CES's Frank T. Simon, ABG's Billye R. Swanson, and wing's Barbara Williams.

First quarter 20-year award will go to CES's Gilbert W. Zeiss, and wing's Dennis Boydston and Mickey Kennamer.

First quarter 30-year awards will include CES's Melvin Bolding and Ruel G. Nugent.

Correct settings help save heat and money

by Sam Lanham
wing energy conservation manager

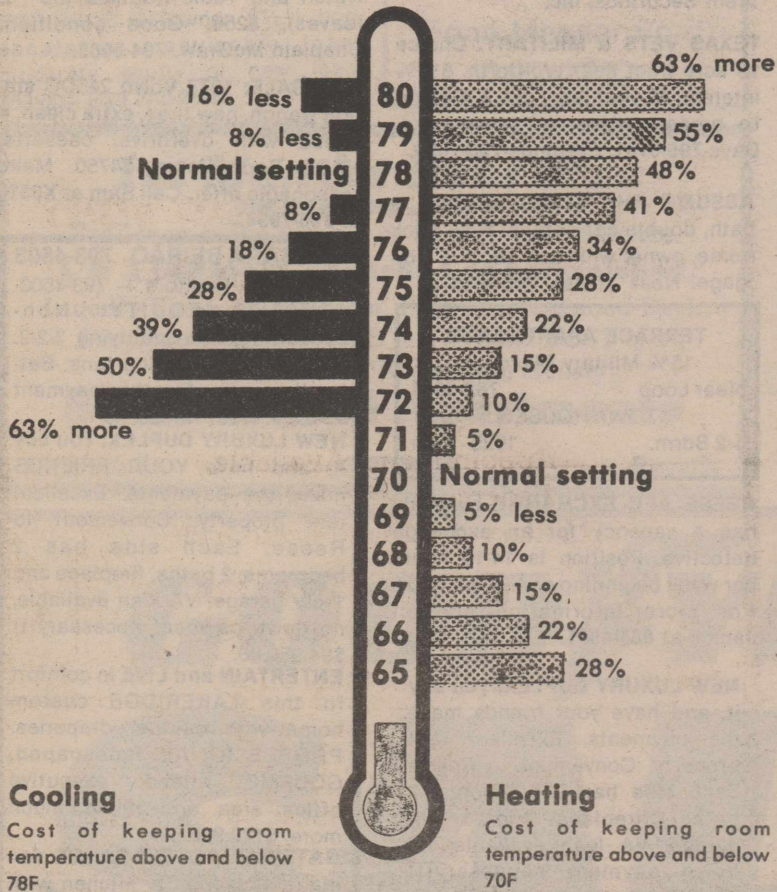

This thermometer-chart shows the relationship of temperature to the operating cost of heating and cooling our homes and offices. As you can see, a change of one degree can make a drastic change in the cost and amount of energy we use.

This chart re-emphasizes the importance of maintaining the correct thermostat setting everywhere. We could reduce our energy consumption drastically if each individual will become more energy conscious.

Individuals can help their building managers and myself by leaving the settings in the correct position and quickly reporting any deviations in thermostat settings. Air Force guidelines require that thermostats for work areas and homes be set at 65-68F for heating and 78F for cooling.

For industrial work areas like the hangars and warehouses, the heat setting is 55F and cooling is 78F. These temperatures are no unreasonable, nor unbearable. We do not want to make work areas unbearable, but do want to identify and correct energy problems wherever they happen.

Civil engineering cannot correct the problems unless we point them out and submit the paperwork through the energy conservation office, 64ABG/CCXE Stop 3. I encourage everyone at Reese to do their part to conserve energy. If you do have a problem that no one seems able to correct please call me at Ext. 3310. I'll be more than happy to assist you.

GET YOUR HANDS ON A TURBO THAT PULLS 30 EXTRA HORSES OUT OF THIN AIR.

To automotive engineers concerned with performance, the air we breathe isn't fit for combustion engines.

It's too thin.

So turbocharging was developed to create a denser air/fuel mixture, which in turn created more power.

But now there's something even more powerful: the new Volvo Intercooled Turbo. And what it does is make the air/fuel mixture even denser by cooling the air in the cylinders by as much as 135°F.

The result? An unbelievable 24% increase in horsepower that delivers 0-55 in 6.8 seconds*.

See us today for full details on how easy it is to add this remarkable innovation to any Volvo Turbo.

But our intercooler quantities are limited, so better get here fast.

We promise you'll leave even faster.
