FTD boasts ATCs finest

by Sgt. Rich Tillman
public affairs specialist

There are 90 plus field training detachments and operating locations within the Air Force, but only one can claim to be the best—FTD 429.

The detachment won the Air Training Command Best FTD Award last month. ATC Commander Gen. Andrew P. Iosue presented the award to Col. Bob Hullender at the ATC Commander's Conference.

The wing commander re-

Sergeant Ritz stirred the fires of his instructors from day one; prompting them to be the best they could. The one stigma he's really shooting to kill is the idea that FTD instructors have an easy life.

"My instructors get in early and stay late working with students soon to be on Air Force flightlines fixing jets," said Sergeant Ritz. "When they're not teaching, they're reading and rereading the FTD courses looking for better ways to teach maintenance."

"We're all on the same team—and team members always pull together."

turned with the news, and "we went crazy," said MSgt. Nick Ritz, FTD 429 commander. "It's the first award this detachment has ever won."

The FTD honor is awarded semi-annually, but Sergeant Ritz stressed, "It's not the ATC John F. Entrican Annual Field Training Award; but we're shooting for it now, too."

The award is the appreciation instructors earn for months of continuous dedication to teaching and making the FTD system work better, said instructor TSgt. Dan Ashley. "All FTDs and operating locations are in ATC, and ATC belongs to the Air Force, so we're extremely pleased to have the award."

An aggressive leader,

The ATC officials that picked the winners had to consider such things as:

- The results of the ATC Management Effectiveness Inspection.

- The unit's instructor utilization and student production.

- FTD 429's administrative efficiency and training effectiveness.

- And, did the unit do anything to bring credit to itself, the 3785th Field Training Group, or ATC.

"The winners are the instructors; they're getting the credit they deserve, but like Col. Robert R. Dale Jr., deputy commander for main-

Civilian appraisals change July 1

About 230,000 Air Force civilian employees will be rated under a new appraisal system beginning July 1, according to J. Craig Cumby, director of Air Force civilian personnel.

The civilian performance and promotion appraisal form will replace three appraisal forms that are currently used to evaluate all civilian employees except senior executives and non-U.S. citizens overseas, officials said.

The CPPA is part of a larger performance management program started by the directorate of civilian personnel to tie many personnel matters together. Appraisals, merit pay, awards, retention decisions and other personnel matters will be taken from the five separate regulations they are now in and put into Air Force Regulation 40-452.

"The appraisal system is the bedrock of the regulation," said Neil F. Galloway, chief of the Air Force employee relations division. "Appraisals drive the other elements, like awards, step increases and promotions."

The CPPA will be used to evaluate employees in the general schedule, general manager, federal wage schedule and scientific-technical categories.

The change in the appraisal system will mean a change in rating cycles, rating procedures and training programs.

Air Force Form 860 will be used for the annual evaluations instead of GMAS, the general manager appraisal system; CPAS, the civilian potential appraisal system; and JPAS, the job performance appraisal system. The form will include nine "easily understandable and ratable behavior factors and will continue requiring written performance elements and standards," said Galloway.

Along with the change, supervisors will no longer grade job performance and work behavior at different times during the year. All appraisals will be conducted at the same time, said Galloway.

Another key change, he added, is that GS and FWS employees no longer will be rated on the anniversary of within-grade salary increases.

The new rating cycle for GS, ST and GM employees will be July 1 to June 30. The cycle for FWS civilians will be Feb. 1 to Jan. 31.

The transition from the present system to the new one "is fairly complicated and will be explained in detail when supervisors are trained," said Galloway. This affects about 12,000 civilian and military supervisors.

The Employee Relations Division will begin a major training program in June. Representatives of major commands and separate operating agencies will meet this month at Lowry AFB, Colo., for the initial phase. They will then train others and "eventually it will filter down to everyone," Galloway said. Civilian personnel officials expect to complete training in July. (AFNS)

CARE Line

The CARE line is prepared by Col. Bob Hullender, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, on a weekly basis. All information provided to the CARE Line will be held in strict confidence. Callers are urged to give their name and duty telephone number so that a personal reply may be made; however, neither are mandatory. Callers should use the CARE Line only after all possible means to air their views or complaints through the chain of command have been exhausted. The CARE Line number is 885- (Ext.) 3273.

A concerned Reese Village resident called about loose pets and the mess they can make wherever they "do their business." I checked with the security police and they're catching an average six to 10 uncontrolled animals a week. As aggressively as the SPs pursue loose animals, 20 percent of the strays get away before the SPs can respond.

Concerned residents can help the SPs by calling them as soon as such an action happens and when possible providing the pet owners' name.

The caller also said Village drivers seem to have trouble stopping at the four-way stop at Harmon and George Streets. This is the first I've heard of the problem, but I'll remind Village drivers that security police patrols monitor housing drivers, like those on-base.

If they catch someone violating the traffic laws in the Village, the violator will be cited. By the way, the security police have been instructed to watch the intersection a little closer too.

Parental control was the subject of one upset caller. He was dismayed by the obvious lack of parent concern for the behavior of their children. I don't blame him. I wouldn't appreciate a strange child climbing on my home's front lattice either.

The security police say they're not aware of increased vandalism, but records do indicate that with school out the number of vandalism cases does tend to increase.

The SPs are already coordinating increased foot and car patrols for the housing area.

Village residents can help themselves by calling the security police, Ext. 3332, immediately when they spot a vandal in act. The same holds true for residents that spot people taking things from patios. Only when the guilty culprit is identified, can the appropriate action be taken.

ALL-PRO's tardiness in repairing a leaky faucet upset a Reese Village mother. The seepage had caused a stagnant water smell and created a breeding ground for mosquitoes. The woman's husband had called in the problem in March, and she, herself, only weeks ago, but still no one had come to help.

When I had housing check into the claim, ALL-PRO records showed only the second call on their records. ALL-PRO officials reported that the work order was one of many waiting to be completed when the company changed plumbing personnel. It was that change and the more than 100 air conditioning unit calls that caused a backlog in the service calls.

To compensate, ALL-PRO is hiring an additional air conditioning repairman and continuing to get the service calls caught up as fast as possible.

Study; it will help

by SSgt. Jameson Reys
CES public affairs representative

"Now Johnny!" charged Miss Dickens, the 5th grade teacher at Walnut Grove Elementary School, "This is the fourth time you have failed to turn in your homework assignment in this class. How can you ever expect to amount to anything in life if you can't meet your responsibilities?"

Sound familiar? Sure. How many times have you received a scolding for neglecting to meet your obligations? Well, the truth is, when it comes to neglecting your homework, the punishment you receive affects you the rest of your life.

I know, I've heard it all before. In fact, I hear it every year right around July when the Air Force Weighted Airman Performance System score notices are released. Yea, you've heard it too! Remember last year? "Well, I just didn't have time, what with the house and kids and all," or "Hey man, when I get off work I don't even want to think about anything until I go back tomorrow," and "I'll never get promoted anyway; I don't have enough time in service points." I guess there are many, many other excuses and explanations but, I'll bet you could add just one more!

The point is this—you just can't realistically expect to reach the top rungs of the ladder if you are not willing to put some time in those books after hours. Quit blaming the system for your shortcomings! Resolve right now to make a conscious and dedicated effort to develop a study plan that you can live with.

Do you realize that if you study for 15 minutes every day for a year, that by test time you will have amassed over 91 hours of study, or almost four days? Work it out for yourself.

And oh, by the way, I have never seen a dog that ate a book report or Promotion Fitness Examination study guide and returned for seconds of the same.

Are you ready for the MCI?

Reese will soon receive a mission capability inspection (MCI) from Air Training Command.

This evaluation will be our chance to show the command how well the 64th Flying Training Wing is prepared to carry out our mission in the event of a national emergency. To evaluate our readiness posture the ATC team will initiate several no-notice situations. Our rating will be determined by how well we respond to the exercise situations.

A positive attitude toward the exercise and a sense of urgency when responding to the exercise scenario adds to the realism and improves the performance. Military courtesy will also be watched closely and along with AFR 35-10 will be evaluated by the ATC/IG team.

To help everyone know what's expected of them during the MCI, the following checklist has been extracted from the April 27 issue of the "Talespinner" from Lackland AFB, Texas.

The checklist can help ensure each person is aware of their responsibilities and is prepared at all times. Clip it out and keep it posted as a ready reference.

If you or your unit has a question on preparing for the MCI contact Maj. Tice Leonard, wing IG, at Ext. 3409.

Types of MCI exercises

- Attack response
- Major accident
- Mobility
- Resources protection (bomb threat, hostage or terrorist, anti-robbery and unauthorized entry)

Attack response—individual actions

- Report to duty in fatigues following an alert (recall)
- Execute plans
- Follow guidance
- Be ready for shelter
- Report to shelter
- Reconstitute
- Monitor OPSEC and COMSEC

Major accident response exercise

- Assist if you're at the scene; use common sense
- Report the situation to security police, Ext. 3400
- Clear the area
- Control traffic
- Do whatever is asked (runner, part of a cordon or traffic guard)

Mobility

- Be ready
- Report to duty
- Execute plans

Resources protection (bomb threats)

- Do not hang up the phone
- Report the bomb threat immediately to security police, Ext. 3400
- Complete form on page iii of base phone directory, or form RVA 125-4 (should be kept next to phone), and have it ready for security police.
- Implement a unity plan (evacuation, and cordon off area)
- If possible, keep the line open

Resources protection (hostage or terrorist activities)

- Get facts
- Apply necessary resources to the situation
- Report it if known, to security police
- Isolate area (evacuate, if it can be done safely)
- Maintain isolation until security police take over
- Keep out of area and keep others out

Resources protection (anti-robbery) (cashier or funds handler's actions)

- Avoid actions that would endanger life
- Activate a duress alarm
- Call security police, Ext. 3400
- Observe physical characteristics of the robber
- Preserve the evidence
- Observe the direction of escape
- Observe the method of escape

Resources protection (unauthorized entry)

- Challenge any unfamiliar person
- Ask for identification
- Detain unauthorized personnel
- Notify security police, Ext. 3400

Keys to a successful inspection

- Know what to do
- React immediately
- Play it real
- Be ready and have a positive attitude

Communication Keeps the mission flying

by Amn. Ken Carlson
public affairs specialist

Nestled some seven stories high, air traffic controllers with the 1958th Communications Squadron intricately govern the operations of 64th Flying Training Wing jet trainers.

Last year 1958th controllers directed the maneuvers of 60,000 Reese sorties. The total for 1984 is expected to climb still higher, according to Chief Tower Controller SMSgt. Cliff Burns.

The 1958th supports the wing mission in two obvious ways: air traffic control, and communications around Reese.

Their job as air traffic controllers requires keen dedication to duty and a watchful eye. Reese air traffic controllers must oversee numerous aircraft traffic movements on the ground and in the air at the same time.

Should they spot an aircraft in trouble, they would radio the pilot ordering the mission aborted to avoid any danger to the aircrew and the aircraft. Or if the jet is already in the air, controllers forewarn pilots of landing gear problems or engine fires.

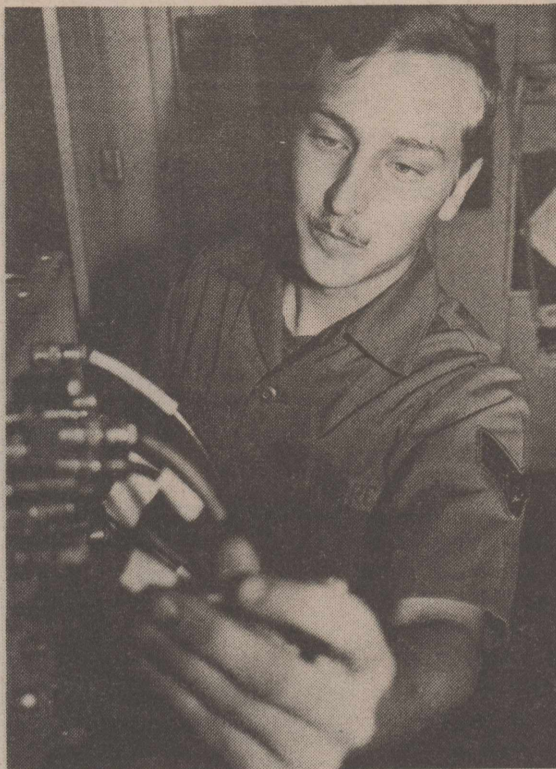

Air traffic controllers admit their job depends heavily on team support from the instructor pilots in the runway supervisory units to the radar maintenance technicians that keep their equipment running at peak efficiency.

Communications experts do more than keep airplanes on the runway; however, they must also insure clear communications.

Operations takes care of the commercial communications services with General Telephone. They make sure Reese gets quick, efficient installation of leased communications equipment, and when necessary, repairs.

The section manages the auxiliary MARS station, the telephone work orders, the cryptographic account, and the administrative services, too.

Maintenance is responsible for overseeing the communications electronics support and the five 1958th work centers within its realm: Navigational Aids Maintenance, Radio Maintenance, Radar Maintenance,

Radar Technician SrA. Matthew Rumbaugh adjusts the 1958th Communications Squadron bright radar indicator tower equipment. The BRITE II helps air traffic controllers sequence aircraft for landing.

Weather Maintenance, and teletype and digital subscriber terminal equipment maintenance.

Plans and programs is in charge of the Communications Authorization Program and Manpower Management. Plans and programs staffers look to the future seeking new, improved communications systems to support the 64th Flying Training Wing.

The staff also manages the money for local communications needs.

"It's not a single section that keeps Reese communicating, but rather a network of dedicated men and women known to themselves and Reese as the 1958th Communication Squadron team," said Capt. Jon Gardner, communications commander.

FTD picks top instructor

TSgt. Dan Ashley is the Field Training Detachment 429 Instructor of the Year for 1983. An Air Force man of better than 10 years, Sergeant Ashley is glad to have the award.

Sergeant Ashley teaches aircraft maintenance for the detachment, but prior to his selection as an FTD instructor he worked within the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron here.

Selection as the top FTD instructor was based upon the sergeants educational achievements, participation in community and base relations, instructor utilization, and his duty performance.

"He's one of the rocks; by that I mean he's someone I can count on to get the job done and done right," said MSgt. Nick Ritz, FTD 429 chief. "He's got to be one of the finest young NCOs I've ever worked with."

As an instructor, Sergeant Ritz continued the praise saying Sergeant Ashley is job knowledgeable. So much so, that he has identified five courses taught by FTDs that are less than adequate. He is now putting together a conference to discuss ways of correcting those situations.

"He's a fantastic person to work with, and his outlook is no less," exclaimed Sergeant Ritz. "Summing it up, if Sergeant Ashley is not selected for Officers' Training School, he'll be a chief before 20—he's that sharp."

OJT help available

One of the trademarks of the military, and that of the Air Force, is on-the-job training.

Each separate program depends on commander support, supervisor and trainer ability. To help these people Reese offers three types of OJT advisory services, and the services of a full-time base OJT advisor—TSgt. Jack Scheffel.

The Type 'A,' a formal consulting service, and the Type 'B' a formal and informal consulting service, deal primarily in finding weak spots in an OJT program so corrections can be made.

The Type 'C,' a formal classroom instruction program, helps trainers, supervisors, managers, commanders and staff officers fulfill their OJT responsibilities more efficiently.

The courses material offered in the Type C instruction is the OJT Trainer's Orientation. It teaches the skill of "how to train."

The OJT Supervisor's Orientation presents methods of planning, organizing, and evaluating section and individual training programs.

The OJT Manager's Orientation trains selected personnel to manage training programs.

And, the OJT briefing for commanders and staff officers provides a fast-paced managerial perspective of the goals and operations of an OJT program.

Any one needing one of the courses should contact their unit training manager.

The responsibility to keep

Sergeant Scheffel

the OJT program running smoothly falls to everyone, said Sergeant Scheffel. The benefits are qualified personnel, higher morale, and a more productive environment in which to fulfill mission requirements.

If you have a problem, or think you might, with your OJT program, don't hesitate to seek help. Contact your unit OJT manager or CBPO/OJT.

Sergeant Scheffel is in Building 955, Exts. 3121 or 3122.

ROTC cadets visit Reese

Air Force Cadets James Bergstrom Jr. and Marvin Murray are getting a first-hand look at life on an operational Air Force base thanks to Officers' Advanced Training Program.

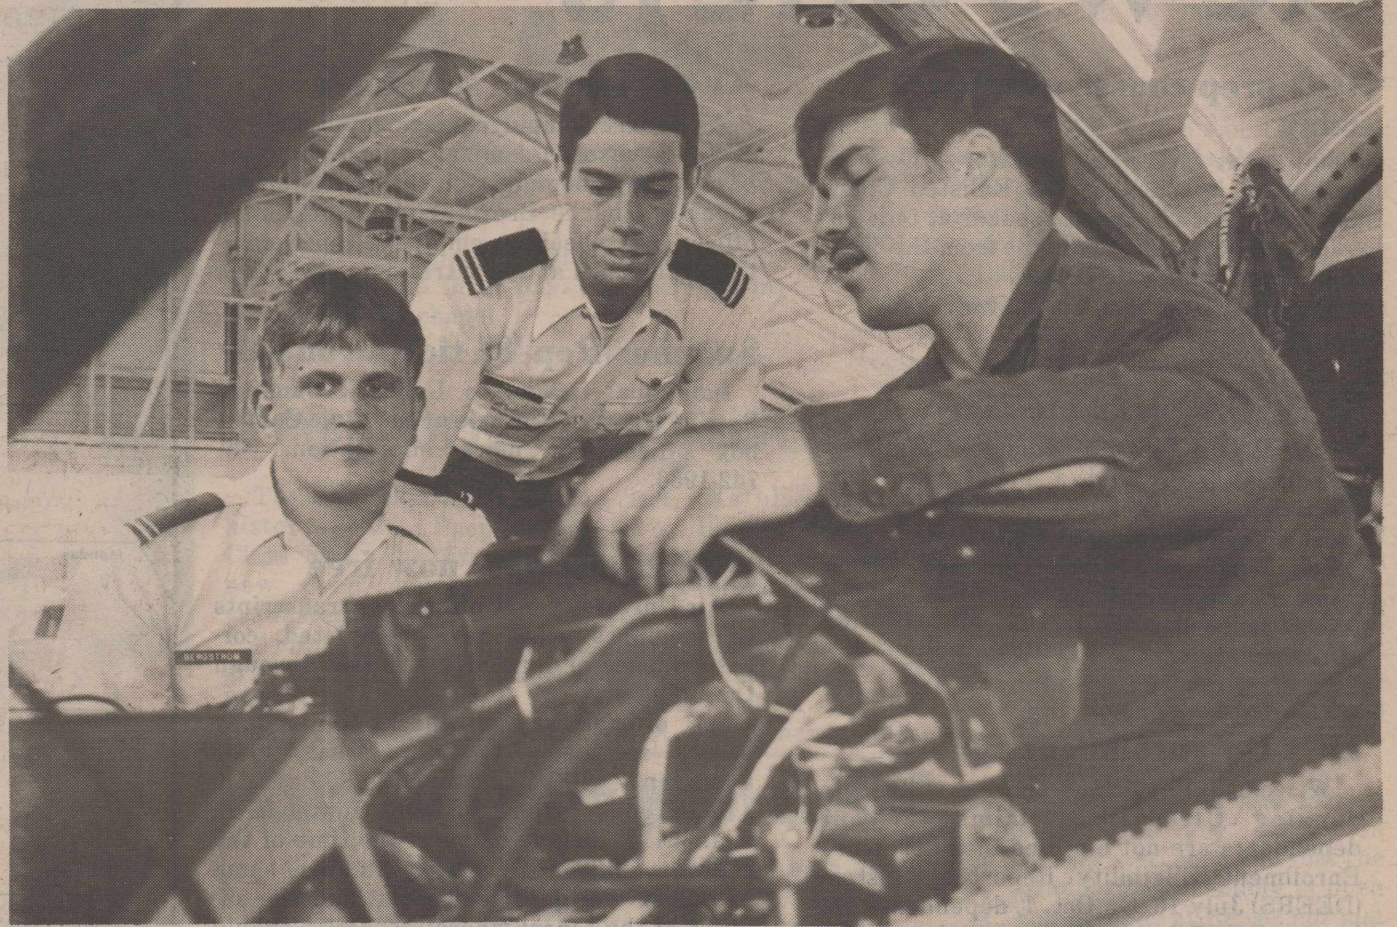

In the OAT program, cadets from throughout the United States are sent to operational bases to get an upclose look at life as an Air Force officer; both on and off duty.

Cadets Bergstrom and Murray, now nearing their senior year at college, are destined to become Air Force pilots. Knowing their future job has helped too. Cadet Murray says the program has helped him and fellow pilot candidate Bergstrom learn a lot of what to expect when they return to Air Training Command as student pilots.

"I'm real happy to have the chance" to be here, Cadet Murray said. "My experience here has made me want to return to Reese for pilot training."

Cadet Bergstrom, a student at College of St. Thomas in St. Paul, Minn., is a business administration major. Bergstrom's father, a 23-year Air Force career pilot, earned his wings at Reese in 1955.

Cadet Murray is an aerospace engineering major at Auburn University, Auburn, Ala. The Montgomery, Ala., native explains he's "always wanted to fly."

SSgt. David Patterson, an organizational maintenance aircraft maintenance specialist, explains the internal workings of the T-38 to future student pilots, Cadets James Bergstrom and Marvin Murray.

When Your Child Needs You...

Make Sure You're Only A Call Away.

You never know when a youngster may need to call from a coin phone. So, it's a good idea to have your child keep a quarter handy to telephone.

Southwestern Bell Telephone has a card for that purpose. It's called a "Quarter Keeper."

In addition to a slot designed to hold a quarter, it includes names and numbers to contact during an emergency.

To order your "Quarter Keeper," just complete the coupon.

The card reminds your child you're only a phone call away.

Dates set for mandatory Social Actions class

All persons who arrived here after May 1, who have not attended the Human Relations Education classes, will be required to do so June 18, 19 and 20.

An Air Training Command instructor will be here for the three days of class held in Room 9 of the chapel.

The schedule of classes are: first duty station class June 18-19 from 8 a.m. - 4:15 p.m.; Sexual Harassment Awareness class June 20, 8-10 a.m.; Newcomers class for personnel on their second or subsequent PCS June 20, 11-11:45 a.m.; and a Newcomers class June 20 from 1-1:45 p.m.

The Drug and Alcohol class schedule has not changed and the class will hold the meetings in Building 132.

Prep course grads make history

The class that made Reese history—NCO Preparatory Class 84-1. The first of the new prep course classes graduated May 10.

Among those first to graduate the new course: SrA. Sherri Cook, SrA. Cruz Garcia, SrA. Debra Anderson,

SrA. Kathleen O'Donnell, SrA. Henry Komarek, SrA. Anthony Nassef, SrA. John Hangerford, SrA. Benito Casarez, SrA. Robert Uhl, SrA. Clayton Osborn, SrA. Jack Guarino, SrA. Donald McCalpin, SrA. Gary Justus, SrA. Jonathan McClinton, SrA. Scott Santise, SrA. Jeffrey Willis, A1C Henry Bryson, A1C Kent Pearson and Toni Bergmann.

Since that first graduation of NCO Prep Course attendees, 84-2 has earned their diplomas, as will Class 84-3 this afternoon at 2 p.m. at the enlisted club.

A member of the Professional Military Education Center staff reported that the graduation ceremony is open to everyone at Reese, not just the commanders, first sergeants and supervisors.

Can you lend your help?

It's time for Reese to pull together to help a young family get going again. The family, whose name will remain anonymous, recently lost their month-old son.

The child had suffered medical problems throughout its short life, and the parents must now bear the cost of high medical bills and burial costs. Because of the high debt, a concerned group of Reese individuals established a base goal of $5,000 to donate to the family.

Donations to the family can be given to Capt. Jerry Scroggins or 1st Lt. Rick Dubois in D Flight of the 35th Flying Training Squadron. They may be contacted at Ext. 3858.

Squadron news

35th FTS

Second Lieutenant Robert J. Heppner flew an outstanding mid-phase check ride. Lieutenant Heppner is in Undergraduate Pilot Training Class 85-03, A Flight.

64th Supply

New arrivals to the squadron include Sharon Bednar, A1C William J. Flanigan and AB Alfredo Gonzalez.

RM aerobic times to shoot for: Males; A1C Henry Ruthe, 17-29, 7:18; Capt. Aubrey Hendrix, 30-34, 8:45; MSgt. Jimmy Clark, 35-39, 8:39; and Maj. Ronald Tiehen, 40-44, 9:16. Females; A1C Julie Reed, 17-29, 11:48; and SSgt. Kathie Sterett, 30-34, 11:53.

Fuels Distribution Section won the 1984 Transportation

Week Special Purpose Vehicle category. Amn. Michael Berg, assigned to the Fuels Branch, took second place in the Air Training Command's first annual truck Rodeo.

Fuels helped out at the aerobics run supplying the Gatorade.

After the first round of softball season '84, Supply is 10-1. That record ties field maintenance and the 35th. Key performers for the Supply team include pitcher SSgt. Marty Donovan, outfielders Sgts. Craig Jensen and Greg Rochester.

June 15, the Supply unit advisory council will sell hamburgers and chips at Windmill Park for $1.50. Drinks will be sold separately.

The picnic luncheon special begins at 10 a.m. and ends at 1:30 p.m.

64th CES

The cops cut loose on the civil engineering softball team thrashing CE 18-5, dropping the Workers (previously the Bishops) to 2-6.

Home runs from Alfred Lafave and Jack Damion weren't enough to stem the 10-run SP explosion in the third. CE tries to recover Thursday as they take on the Hospital and FMS in a double hitter.

Grants help MWR

Reese has received official word that the base will get new construction and equipment grants for the Morale, Welfare and Recreation program. The following approved items will impact the quality of life of Reese personnel:

- An automatic drive through car wash facility with three or four separate stalls and drying areas (one of these will be designed to handle vans and trailers).
- An enclosed patio for the golf course club house.
- Additional sun shelters for outdoor recreational areas.

•Swimming pool lounge and maintenance equipment.

•Public address system for use by the MWR Division.

•MWR supply shelving and rental equipment such as roto tillers, utility trailers, boats, motors and trailers.

Jack Hood, chief, MWR Division, expressed great satisfaction that Reese received far more than its share of ATC construction and equipment dollars. He advised that it's too early to predict completion dates at this time but he gave full assurance that every effort would be made to expedite construction and equipment delivery actions.

Base shooter aims at LA games

by 1st Lt. Myrtistene Wilson public affairs representative

MSgt. Lynnford P. Linko will be the only Air Training Command representative shooting for a chance to compete in the summer Olympics at Los Angeles.

The 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron NCOIC of maintenance supervision will compete in the smallbore rifle competition.

The senior NCO started shooting in his early teens, but only during the last four years has he been shooting in competition. Concerning the Olympic tryouts, "I'm really excited about it. I'm getting a chance to do something that many people only dream about; something different and unique," Sergeant Linko said.

It's his chance for "the gold," and he feels he's got a good chance at earning it, too.

OMS Commander Lt. Col. Gene Bardal expressed pride in Sergeant Linko and indicated that he and the squadron wish him the best of luck shooting in L.A.

The final tryout for the Olympic team began Thursday. Sergeant Linko is shooting against four other Air Force members.

Bernacki takes Air Force team to interservice tournament title

by 2nd Lt. Richard T. Sweeney public affairs officer

David Bernacki, an instructor pilot with the 54th Flying Training Squadron here, took top honors in the interservice racquetball tournament winning both the men's open singles and the open doubles competitions at Fort Jackson, S.C.

Bernacki's first place finishes were instrumental in helping the Air Force racquetball team to the interservice title. The Air Force finished the competition with 66 points; the Navy was second with 49 points; followed by Army with 42; and the Marines earned 12.

Bernacki earned the right to play in the interservice tournament by winning the Reese, Region 3, and the All Air Force tournaments.

Even though Bernacki participated in the interservice tournament last year and placed second, he said, "I thought the competition was tougher this year than last."

Following the interservice tournament Bernacki entered the American Amateur Racquetball Association's National Tournament in Houston. He made it through three rounds of competition before losing to an ex-pro from California.

"I realize that it is difficult to get away from work for the amount of time required to participate in these tournaments. But I do appreciate the support received from my flight commander and squadron commander," Bernacki said.

The young officer excels in many sports. Some of his favorites are basketball, tennis, running and racquetball. In addition to winning racquetball tournaments, Bernacki won the Reese tennis tournament two years ago and placed second in the 10,000 meter run.

Bernacki is the only Reese athlete to place in either Air Force or interservice level tournaments. His doubles partner for the Air Force tournament was Airman Steve Boddy from Carswell AFB, N.M.; and his partner in the interservice tournament was SSgt. Tony Alcalá, of King Salmon AFS, Alaska.

Swimming lessons available

The athletic section will offer Red Cross swimming lessons June 18-29 at the Enlisted Pool at 10 and 11 a.m. The two-week class is $12 per student and students must be at least 6.

There will be classes for beginners, intermediates, and advanced swimmers. There are special lessons to be offered for a men's and women's fitness class Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings, 7:15 to 8:15 p.m.

There will also be a mothers and toddlers class 8-9 a.m. weekdays.

Eagles take on Chiefs June 15

The rivalry between Eagles and Chiefs takes heat June 15 on the basketball court of the gym at 5 p.m.

Gym hours change

The new operation hours for the gym are Monday through Friday, 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.; and Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Field day puts class against class

The second annual Reese Undergraduate

Pilot Training Field Day is June 16 beginning at 8:45 a.m. at the Reese track field near Building 955.

Everyone is invited out to watch UPT class against UPT class struggle to see which is really number one. There will be refreshments available throughout the day's events.

Women still needed to play

Military women are still needed to play on the Reese women's varsity softball team. Players that sign up now will be eligible to play the Air Training Command tournament at Sheppard AFB, Texas, July 10-16.

Men's varsity ATC date

The Reese men's varsity softball team will play the Air Training Command softball tournament at Goodfellow AFB, Texas, July 5-9. The men in tournaments this season:

- First place in the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital tournament.
- Second place in the St. Theresa Catholic Church tournament.
- Second place in the Class C Lubbock Parks and Recreation tournament.
- Third place in the Our Lady of Grace Child Development Center tournament.

Soccer players vie for AF team slots

Reese soccer players Craig Ford, Chris LeCraw, Donald Sadlowski and Chuck Friedrich have been named to attend the Air Force soccer training camp June 17 at Luke AFB, Ariz.

Player-coach Ford indicated that LeCraw may be unable to attend due to a knee injury, but he and the others will definitely be there playing for a position with the Air Force soccer team.

Ford will coach the Air Force team for the third year, but with the aid of Charles Straw from Hanscom AFB, Mass. This is the first year more than one coach has been sent to the training camp.

In all Sadlowski and Friedrich will be competing against 22 of the Air Force's finest soccer talent for a team position. The final team will include a roster of only 18 players.

After a couple of weeks training together, the Air Force team will travel to Oceana Naval Air Station, Va., to compete in the interservice soccer tournament. There they'll try to retain the Air Force hold on the interservice soccer title.

Win or lose, each of the interservice competition's participants will travel north to Washington, D.C., to play in the Elite Cup Soccer tournament.

In Washington, military players will take on the best non-professional players in the United States.
