T-37 pilot IP of the Year

Lieutenant Knowles prepares a flight plan for an early morning sortie

A T-37 pilot has been named the 64th Flying Training Wing Outstanding Instructor Pilot of 1984.

First Lieutenant Ted Knowles, a 35th Flying Training Squadron Instructor Pilot, competed for the honor with top unit IPs—1st Lt. Steve Henderson, 54th Flying Training Squadron, and Capt. Gary Conwell, 64th Student Squadron.

Each nominee went before a board of senior officers who reviewed their records. The board looked at such things as their ability to do their jobs and what the IPs do in their off-duty time.

Lieutenant Knowles will represent Reese in Air Training Command IP of the Year competition.

The lieutenant said he believes his job of teaching young officers to fly is as important as any operational assignment. "I may not be flying a weapon system, but I'm training one," he said. "The people I train will be flying bombers, fighters, and other aircraft, and the most important aspect of these machines is the pilot."

Although proud of what he is doing now, Lieutenant Knowles hopes to serve an Air Staff Training Assignment at the Pentagon, then fly the F-16 "Fighting Falcon."

After graduating from the Air Force Academy, with a bachelor of science degree in physics, he entered undergraduate pilot training here. A year later, he graduated the course as a member of class 82-06.

From there he was selected as a new Reese IP. "When I began teaching, I found it a little difficult," he said. "I expected the students to think like me. I found that I had to teach them to think like pilots, then things seemed to run pretty smoothly."

He said he found that he had to tailor his instruction to match the student—that one standard teaching course of action wouldn't work. "There is a difference between teaching an arts major and an aeronautical engineering major to fly," he said.

Lieutenant Knowles said his objective with each student is "make him the best pilot he can be, rather than just a passing student. You have to squeeze that extra bit out of the student."

The Northfield, Minn., native has earned many awards for his skill as an IP, including 35th FTS IP of the month, Observer of the Quarter, and was voted outstanding T-37 IP by class 84-04. When the ATC Stan-eval team visited here, he was named an Outstanding Performer.

"The UPT environment situation requires utilizing all your resources to produce the best possible pilots," he said. "This is our responsibility to the Air Force and to the students."

To assume wing command

Col. Bob Rohatsch will assume command of the 12th Flying Training Wing, Randolph AFB, Texas, in a change of command ceremony there Feb. 5.

Colonel Rohatsch has been the 64th Air Base Group commander here since March.

He said he really enjoyed his stay here, and added he was "just getting to know the people."

A farewell has been scheduled in his honor, Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in the officers' club. Officers, enlisted personnel and civilians from ABG, as well as deputy commanders and squadron commanders are invited.

Contact Capt. Richard Savko, Ext. 3715, to make reservations. The cost will be $5.50.

Lt. Col. Harry McMillin will temporarily assume the base commander's duties until a new base commander is assigned.

Careline

Ext 3273

The Care Line is prepared by Col. Bob Hullender, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, on a weekly basis. All information provided to the Care Line will be held in strict confidence. Callers are urged to give their name and duty telephone number so that a personal reply may be made; however, neither are mandatory. Callers should use the Care Line only after all possible means to air their views or complaints through the chain of command have been exhausted. The Care Line number is 885-(Ext.) 3273.

I've received a number of calls regarding the Child Care Center (CCC) and the new policy that prohibits family-day-care in Reese Village. You might recall from the Jan. 11 issue of the Roundup that family-day care in military family housing can be authorized if the local Child Care Center is saturated, and is thus not meeting base needs. Here at Reese, that is not the case, so family-day care in Reese Village is not authorized; however, baby-sitting is authorized. Most of the concerns voiced fall into five general areas and I will address each. Before beginning, let me restate two existing facts: first, we must maintain our child care center as an integral part of Reese Morale, Welfare and Recreation programs, and second, by Major Air Command Policy, the Child Care Center must be operated on a break even basis.

Some callers felt the CCC hours were not responsive to needs, e.g., some personnel go to work early, before the CCC opens, or work shifts when the center is closed. Others voiced concern of needed care when they are TDY, or participating in a recall or mobility. We can certainly help to a degree. People with needs that exceed current CCC hours simply should contact the CCC Director, and tell us your specific needs (hours and number of children.) We'll then consolidate these requests, and expand service, where it's economically possible to do so. Recalls, mobility, and TDYs are another matter, however. Dependent care regulations require individuals to make their own arrangements.

The CCC will never fill these requirements. Obviously, readiness is our mission, and CCC will not be there if we go to war. The bottom line here is we'll expand when the demand is sufficient to permit us to operate on a break even basis.

Some callers felt the rates being charged were too high. You'll recall we had a town meeting last summer, where the Base Commander explained we were directed to operate the CCC on a break-even basis. We are also directed to charge a "flat fee" . . . no discount for additional children. This required us to increase our fees. Higher headquarters felt it was unfair to the majority of the base populace to continue to use limited nonappropriated funds for a non-profitable single operation that benefitted only a limited number of people; when these funds could be used throughout the entire base, for the benefit of all. I think you'll still find our rates are competitive with, or cheaper than centers off-base. Further, if our patronage increases, and we hope it will, we'll readdress our rate structure toward lower fees. Remember, we're not trying to make a profit, only break-even. The more children we have, the less we'll have to charge.

Some callers felt the care given by "private" individuals was better than the CCC. Obviously, this is a subjective call or opinion. In my view, however, I'm convinced we're providing quality care, with a qualified staff, and that our programs are successful and meaningful. We abide by the required ratio of providers to children. I cannot believe a single person in Reese Village, giving care to 10 or more children, is "better." Again, it's a judgment call.

A few callers were angry, claiming we were "forcing" people to use the CCC. This, obviously, is not the case. Parents can make whatever arrangements they prefer—off-base, our child care center, on-base baby sitting. That is their prerogative. We'll certainly welcome them to the CCC, if they would give us a try.

Finally, some callers suggested we simply close the CCC and go exclusively with day-care in Reese Village. We're committed to providing this service, even if only a few request it. It is an important part of the overall Morale, Welfare, and Recreation programs we offer, like gyms, recreation centers, clubs and golf course.

I realize this is a very sensitive and emotional issue, and that this response will not totally satisfy all of the callers. However, considering the regulatory and policy requirements we must comply with, there is no other alternative, at least for the present. Further, even if family-day care in Reese Village was authorized, very specific and detailed requirements would have to be met, in order to be licensed. These include health certificates, training, food handler permits, $500,000 personal liability insurance, and many, many more. Many "providers" could not or would not desire to meet these requirements. Nevertheless, we will look at, on exception basis, people with needs that cannot be met in the CCC. For example, a child with a physical problem ineligible for the CCC, could be authorized care in Reese Village, if the provider met the regulatory requirements. We would review these on a case-by-case basis.

To summarize, we hope to lower all prices as soon as we can (through increased participation); we will make every attempt to expand the CCC service where feasible (call Mr. Hernandez), and authorize Home Day Care where the CCC cannot meet our needs.

PME students need you

By CMSgt. Ronald Y. Levy
23rd Air Division
Tyndall AFB, Fla.

SSgt. Bruce B. Goodensharp's day had finally arrived; he was graduating from the non-commissioned officer's leadership school.

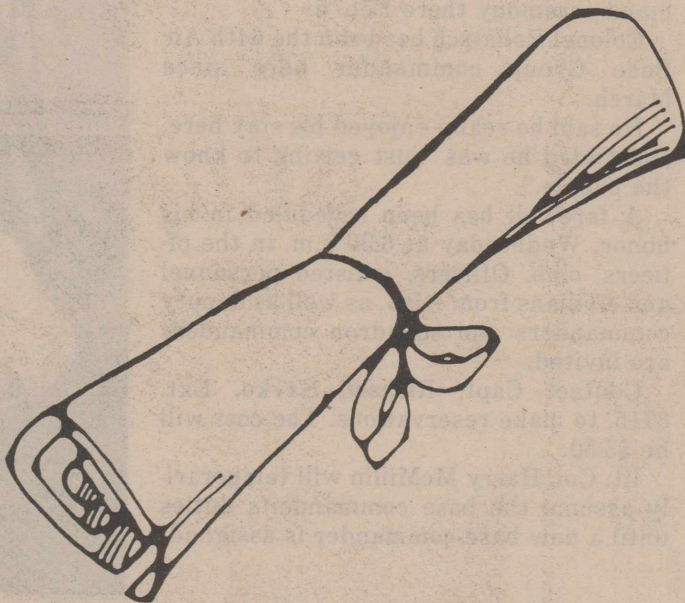

He was proud and had worked hard to make the best of this golden opportunity to polish his leadership skills. He had done well on the tests and secretly hoped that he would be among the distinguished graduates being recognized at the banquet that evening.

He had invited his officer in charge and non-commissioned boss to share in his moment of glory, but his sergeant had to bowl and the officer said he was sorry, but he didn't have a serviceable mess dress. Oh well, Sergeant Goodensharp thought, surely the squadron commander and first sergeant would be there.

The dinner was over—it was the moment of truth. Soon the awards would be presented—the Academic Achievement Award, the Commandant's Award, the Distinguished Graduate Award and the coveted Honor Graduate Award.

The sergeant looked around the large ballroom to see if he could spot his first sergeant and commander, but to no avail. It was a large room and there were about 350 people in attendance. Surely his squadron commander and first sergeant were there somewhere.

And then it happened. The master of ceremonies was saying, "And now . . . for the highest honor that the Professional Military Education Center can bestow, the honor graduate . . . SSgt. Bruce B. Goodensharp!"

He couldn't believe it. In a daze, he got to his feet and made his way to the stage. He accepted his award and although he couldn't remember what he said, he hoped he hadn't sounded too dumb.

After the ceremony, he was being congratulated by his fellow students, his instructors . . . even the base commander and the senior enlisted advisor. It sure felt good.

But where were his commander and first sergeant, someone from his squadron to help him celebrate, to take pride in the fact that one of their own had won? They hadn't come. He had given a party, but no one came.

Professional military education is great. It is an investment in the future of our Air Force and it desperately needs your support. As supervisors, first sergeants and commanders, you need PME and PME needs you. Contact the PME center and ask how you can help, but above all, when one of your people is graduating, be there.

Flag — More than just symbol

By TSgt. Mike Roberts
Public Affairs Office
Military Airlift Command
Scott AFB, Ill.

Recently, a young woman made national headlines by refusing to stand for the national anthem and the flag. She said, "The flag is just a symbol. It's the people who make the country."

It's her right not to stand for the flag, but her reasoning that the flag is "just a symbol" contradicts her other statement of "It's the people who make the country." Does she know how many people have died for that flag, and the freedoms that are woven into its colors, including the right to sit?

The flag is more than a symbol, just like the Statue of Liberty is more than a statue, and the Constitution is more than a piece of paper. They may not breathe, but they are living pieces of America. If they die, so do the hopes and dreams of people throughout the free world. And if those hopes and dreams die, so does the right to express personal convictions.

People have died trying to raise the flag above battlefields. They have rallied around her as a source of hope and inspiration, and have absorbed her strength to continue fighting oppression and tyranny.

No, the flag isn't "just a symbol." She's alive with two centuries of the hopes and dreams of people in search of a better life. She's alive with the blood of two centuries of loving protection running through her threads. She's alive with compassion—even for those who don't respect her.

If it's the people who make America, then the Constitution is the heart of America and the Statue of Liberty is America's conscience and the flag is America's soul. To think of her as "just a symbol" is to lose sight of all that America is and stands for.

The next time I stand for the flag, I'll stand a little taller to make up for those who prefer to sit. And, if I'm ever called upon to fight for America, I'll fight harder so those who prefer to sit will be able to do so in a free country.

And, should I die fighting for that right, I will do so proudly, because my blood will then be flowing through her threads, and she—Old Glory—can live a little longer.

Americans live in disposable society

By MSgt. Judy Sims
Lajes Field, Azores

It seems we Americans live in a disposable society. Often times we'll buy something, use it for a short time and after it breaks or becomes a bit tarnished, we'll throw it away and buy a new one.

Not long ago, I took a good pair of military shoes, with the exception of the holes in the bottom of the soles, to a repair shop in the states. The man there told me they couldn't be fixed. He suggested I throw them away and buy a new pair.

I kept them instead and brought them with me to the Azores. A Portuguese shoemaker here made them almost as good as new.

I think Air Force supervisors could learn a lesson from the values of that shoemaker. His patience, his pride in workmanship, his investment of time and effort to make something slightly worn, almost as good as new, should be emulated.

As Air Force NCOICs, trainers and first-line supervisors, we are responsible for the growth of our most important resource—our people. We must be willing, like the skilled shoemaker, to invest the time and effort to mold our people, shape them into tomorrow's leaders, and teach them the solid skills of the craft and the values and ethics of the profession.

Our people are priceless. If their gears become rusty, we must polish them and instill the pride upon which Air Force tradition was built. There can be no substitute for the standards of excellence we must uphold.

Our Air Force cannot afford the values of a disposable society.

Taylor to speak at prayer breakfast

Chaplain (Maj. Gen. Ret.) Robert Taylor, former Air Force Chief of Chaplains will be the featured guest speaker at Thursday's National Prayer Breakfast.

The serving line will begin at 6:30 a.m., at the officers' club, and the program at 7 a.m. Tickets are on sale through squadron first sergeants.

Chaplain Taylor retired from the Air Force in 1973 concluding his 33-year tenure of military service.

The Chaplain a Henderson, Texas native, worked to establish plans, policies programs and set requirements for the Air Force chaplaincy.

Entering the service shortly before World War II, his first assignment was to Barksdale Army Air Field, La. Eight months later he was assigned to the 31st Infantry Regiment, Philippine Division as their chaplain.

Then in December 1941, with the onset of war, the division was transferred to the Peninsula of Bataan—the front line.

After Japanese forces overran the peninsula, the American forces there were forced to surrender. Thus, the chaplain and his division became part of the infamous "Bataan Death March." It was a route from Bataan through the streets of Manila to the prison camp approximately eight miles east of Cabanatuan.

During his stay at the camp, he ministered to more than 10,000 patients and even spent time in solitary confinement for smuggling in food and medicine to the camp. Then nearly a year before Japan surrendered, he was taken to Japan on one of the infamous "hellships" which was bombed twice by American fighter aircraft. He was hit in the wrist and leg by bomb fragments, but was not given the Purple Heart; because the wounds resulted from American, not enemy, weapons.

As 1946 began, Chaplain Taylor was made Deputy

Staff Chaplain, Headquarters Army Air Forces Training Command at Barksdale Field.

Twelve and a half years later, Chaplain Taylor earned his first star and took over the position of Deputy Chief of Air Force Chaplains.

August 1962 the chaplain was nominated to become Chief of Air Force Chaplains and less than two months later he was promoted to major general.

Chaplain Robert P. Taylor

When daddy is away . . .

By Brenda Mims
Moody AFB, Ga.

It's nearly unavoidable: one of you is going away. Not for just a week or two, but maybe for as long as 15 months. Whether it's your first long separation or one of several, it isn't a happy time. But there are ways to lessen the strain of a long absence.

While either parent can be absent, it's most often "daddy." The following ideas can help keep the memories sharp while daddy's away.

Before the fact

Tell the kids. Unless they're very small, tell them well ahead of time, emphasizing how much dad will dislike not being with you in person, although you'll be in each other's thoughts. Concentrate on having several especially good family times together to recall with pleasure.

Take pictures of daddy doing ordinary things around the house such as washing the car, sitting in his favorite chair, cooking spaghetti. This is particularly important for younger children with short visual memories. Put the pictures where they can be seen often.

Dad can give a special gift—a scrap book to be filled with post cards, matchbook covers and other mailed mementos.

A matched pair

Purchase two tape recorders, one for dad and one for the family. Many are simple enough for a child to operate, especially if the buttons are coded with colored tape.

Keep a library of tapes of daddy's voice. He can record family stories of books before he goes so he can still "read" the kids a bedtime story. Keep several tapes stashed away for gloomy day surprises.

"Happy Birthday to You." On birthdays, dad can make special tapes, singing and telling anecdotes about the child's birth and when he was "little."

Keep it candid—people are more spontaneous when they aren't actually clutching a mike. Some of your best tapes can be Sunday dinners at grandma's when, in cloak-and-dagger tradition, you tuck the mike in the centerpiece where it would be forgotten.

Keep it handy—a recorder parked on the kitchen table will encourage short messages and comments. Chat while you work around the kitchen and during meals. Another good time is when children burst in from school or play. If it's all "moans and groans" it can be erased, but dad is entitled to share the gripes, too.

Be faithful—you might make a "date" each day to talk.

Misery is an empty mailbox

Write every day—on super-busy days, even a toddler can be enlisted to "write" a post card. Dad will also welcome a short dictated message by one too young to write. In return Dad can make sketches of himself, the place he lives, and what he is doing.

Blow-by-blow—if your child is a toddler, take 15 or 20 minutes and write a diary of activities. You can't do this with a tape recorder, the child will want to listen. But it's essential to keep the children real to daddy, too, and it's the day-to-day scenes he'll miss. These are the things that don't find their way into letters because they're so "ordinary."

Daddy should send private, personal messages to each child from time to time, even if they must be read by mom. They're a great way to stay in direct contact and may be glued into the scrapbooks to be read again and again.

Talk, talk, talk

Talk about daddy a lot—mention his pet peeves, favorite cookies and things he likes to do, "Daddy always enjoys mowing the lawn." Comment if you wear a dress dad especially liked. Bring his opinions into the conversation whenever you can. That more than anything else, perhaps, keeps him real.

When dad finally does return, you'll spend less time getting acquainted. It's nice that after a long separation you can settle into your own places without tense readjustments.

School offers opportunity

What's this all about? What am I doing here attending classes after being out of a formal classroom for eight years? Why did I volunteer to come here anyway?

These are just a few of the questions overheard from Air Force noncommissioned officers in the first day of Air Force Recruiting School.

Along with the questions come unfamiliar tasks, sales, labs, benefits, speeches, learning criteria for enlistment, and filling out Personal Interview Records. These are all part of training to develop professional Air Force recruiters.

As the six weeks of school pass at Lackland AFB, Texas, the NCOs learn and practice skills necessary to begin their "most rewarding tour of duty" as Air Force recruiters.

Approximately one month after graduation students are assigned to a field recruiting unit. Representing the Air Force, recruiters counsel young Americans about Air Force job opportunities, seek applicants and help select top quality recruits to fill the needs of the Air Force. You can spot them at a glance... sharp, knowledgeable and confident.

They tell the Air Force story "just like it really is" and their honesty and integrity are above reproach. Mr. or Ms. Air Force in the community, they are professional recruiters.

Not everyone can qualify. Only the best will don the distinctive recruiting badge. But those who do make the grade will readily testify that this is the most rewarding job in their entire Air Force careers.

Recruiters receive up to $150 a month in Special Duty Proficiency Pay, limited reimbursement for out of pocket expenses, a stabilized tour and some receive assignments near their hometowns.

NCOs interested in learning more about this interesting and challenging assignment can get details by attending the general briefing which will be given at 8:30 a.m. Feb. 4, in Building 920. Spouses are encouraged to attend in order to fulfill the interview requirements for NCOs who decide to apply.

Changes affect housing rates

DENVER (AFNS)—Active duty Air Force members will notice new variable housing allowance rates on January leave and earnings statements, according to accounting and finance officials here.

They said the new rates, which took effect Jan. 1, could change allowances for service members assigned to state-side locations and living off base.

Officials also said Congress made two other major changes to VHA.

The first eliminates payment of VHA for authorized travel days between duty stations when moving to a new assignment.

Under the second, members assigned to single-type housing, such as barracks and dormitories, who are currently drawing the quarters allowance at the with dependent rate because they are paying child support, will no longer be entitled to VHA.

Officials said the original VHA law, which began Oct. 1, 1980, specifies that any military member entitled to basic allowance for quarters is entitled to variable housing allowance whenever assigned to duty in a high-cost area of the continental United States.

A member also receives VHA when on an unaccompanied overseas tour while dependents live in an area eligible for the allowance.

Officials said rates are determined by a committee of 12 analysts representing the various services. The group uses surveys completed by military members to analyze housing costs in different areas.

Under a new formula that took effect this year, when a military member's housing costs exceed 80 percent of the national average for members of the same pay grade and other conditions are met, the member is entitled to VHA.

The Accounting and Finance Office has additional information.

Services: Past builds for future

"You've come a long way," could be the motto of Reese's Services Division, but division members are looking to the future for improvements in base living and dining facilities.

"1984 was a banner year for Services," said Capt. Robert Rush, division chief. "But '85 promises to be even better."

The biggest project planned is the complete renovation of the Caprock Cafe, the wing dining hall. Work, which is scheduled to begin this summer, will include completely refurbishing the facility. The north dining room will have a formal decor, and a contemporary decor will be used in the south dining room, where a raised seating area will overlook a terrace for outside dining.

New serving lines will have state-of-the-art equipment, but the kitchen will not change much since the equipment there is still good, said Captain Rush. "We did a lot to improve food services last year," he said. "Now, the renovation will make the atmosphere much more enjoyable for our customers." The division received Air Training Command's "Most Improved Food Services Award" last year.

Reese's Visiting Airmen's and Visiting Officers' Quarters will also get a facelift this year. All suites will get new furniture, carpet and drapes, and the base will add two new senior NCO suites.

Residents of enlisted dormitories 220 and 420 will also get new furniture, which will mean all dorms will have the high country oak style furniture.

Although the 1985 renovation of facilities managed by Services Division will be highly noticeable by Reese people, there's been a lot of change and improvement in facilities this past year, said Captain Rush.

Visitors and newly assigned people will get a better first impression of the base since the Billeting Office lobby has been upgraded. New carpet, wallcovering, furniture, and a hotel-type desk

Ann. Dave Deyarmin checks in a billeting customer give the office a much more professional appearance, said the captain.

"There's an old saying about help being given to those who help themselves," said Captain Rush. "So we took that to heart and did some extensive self-help projects in 1984." Those projects included building counters and painting the Central Dormitory Management office, and even building a wall in the Services Division office. Linen Exchange was also collocated with Central Dorm.

"We're proud of all the improvements made in our facilities this past year," said Captain Rush, "and we'll have the perfect opportunity to show off next week." The Headquarters, Air Training Command Services Assistance Team will evaluate the unit next week in competition for several awards, including Outstanding Services Division of the Year.

Weinberger speaks to defense industry

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—The industrial-military base must be expanded to meet the specialized and highly vital needs of American defense, Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger told a gathering of the National Security Industrial Association.

DOD needs industry's help to eliminate overpricing, increased competition and ensure that America maintains its technological edge, the secretary told industry executives in Washington late last year.

He said that industry has begun responding with improved buying practices, better pricing, direct purchases and shipments and consolidation of orders.

He added that DOD is doing its part in this area, too.

Several major Defense Department management improvement practices in three areas are being instituted, the secretary said.

DOD has improved its in-house management with centralized direction and decentralized execution, said Secretary Weinberger. "Our participatory management gives more responsibility and accountability to the people closest to the problems," he explained.

DOD has strengthened the role and authority of the civilian secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force to enable them to manage more effectively. "For years, I have favored giving greater authority to those in the field who must do the job, but at the same time, they need centralized policy formation and close review of their work," he said.

The second area is the detection and reduction of fraud, waste and abuse, particularly in procurement. "We have had remarkable success in fighting waste and wrongdoing. Most of the 'horror stories' were cases we uncovered," he said.

"We are working hard to correct ineffective policies, to replace contracts that permitted and encouraged overpricing and to provide incentives for cost-awareness."

The defense acquisition improvement program is one major initiative in this area, Secretary Weinberger said. "It seeks to shorten the acquisition process, increase readiness, save money and strengthen America's industrial base."

The Secretary said progress has been made to ensure that logistics support is given a high priority in the acquisition process. "We are setting goals and allocating the funds necessary for support and logistics for major programs to ensure that readiness requirements are met. America's forces are not only stronger, but also more ready than they were four years ago."

The final element of DOD's reform is increased competition. "We are pursuing policies to secure the benefits of competition," he said, "while promoting a healthy national industrial base."

The secretary noted that there are difficult and unavoidable tradeoffs in acquisition management. "The goals of sound management are clear: cut acquisition time, cut costs, cut the risks of a program going awry," he said.

"To some Pentagon watchers, any failure to achieve all three goals reflects ineffective defense management. The reality is that progress toward one goal can degrade our performance on another goal."

Solutions can be good, fast or cheap, but rarely all three, said the secretary. "Our defense managers, who cannot escape reality, seek an optimum balance of time saving, cost cutting and risk reduction."

He emphasized that DOD and the nation need American industry's help to ensure the United States maintains its technological edge over potential adversaries.

"We need industry to work closer with universities to provide the number of high quality scientists and engineers that will ensure us a technological lead for years to come," he told the executives.

Another area in which America's defense needs more help is productivity and quality, he said. "These are critical elements in enhancing our defense posture and reducing acquisition costs."

He said that the major responsibility for these improvements lies with the defense industry.

"There is much that both of us need to do to get the most out of our defense dollars," he said. "And we must recognize," he added, "that any basis for criticism, any ammunition we may give our opponents, will be used in every way they can to stop the investments we must make to keep the nation strong and free."

Officials discourage last-minute spending

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—Air Force officials are encouraging members to plan ahead and avoid an end-of-year rush to spend fiscal 1985 money.

Chief of Staff Gen. Charles A. Gabriel and Secretary of the Air Force Verne Orr wrote in an action memorandum that those who manage programs and administer funds must spend resources wisely and avoid hurried and unnecessary end-of-year procurements.

The two leaders said the Air Force's fiscal 1984 procurement record was enviable, thanks to supervisors at all levels who vigorously monitored their programs.

They said members should follow 1985 budget execution guidelines to ensure that fiscal 1985 resources are spent just as wisely. These guidelines include:

- Contacting base contracting officials by Feb. 1 with expected workloads and the times in which work must be completed, and taking steps to have funds released early from higher headquarters.

- Preparing contracts and legal paperwork before funds are available and trying to award all major contracts before Sept. 1.

- Ensuring that contractors understand the Air Force's "bona fide need" policy for annual appropriations. The policy states that contractors should begin work later than Dec. 31 for fiscal '85 contracts.

- Reducing "holding" of management reserves for emergencies future needs.

- Identifying contracts that will expire by Sept. 1 and making special efforts to monitor expiring funds. Funds should be allowed to expire rather than be obligated just to be used.

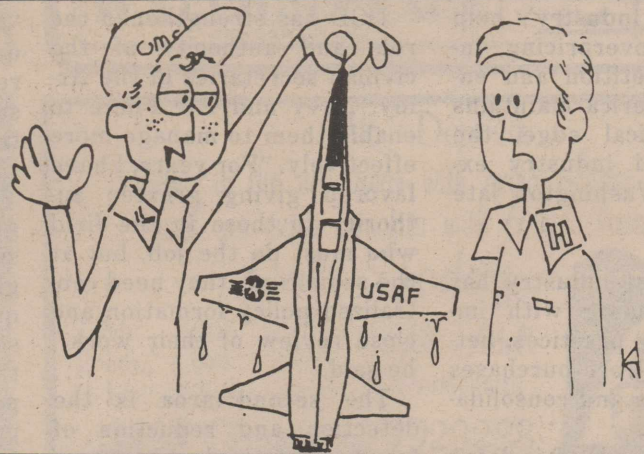

- Announcing contract awards on a daily schedule rather than "batching" announcements.

- Using Air Force regulations 170-8 and 177-16 to help contract administrators understand the need to properly identify and cite funds to specific defense appropriations.

General Gabriel and Secretary Orr emphasized that these procedures must be started early in the fiscal year to avoid arriving at the end of the year with large amounts of funds that could encourage wasteful practices in the rush to clear the books.

Strategy books available

The U.S. Government Printing Office is offering three new books on defense planning and strategy.

"Defense Planning for the 1990's" focuses on South and East Asia, a manifestation of growing interest in these regions and such problems as Indo-Pakistani tensions, nuclear proliferation, and improved Sino-American relations. A striking example of new perspective is the possibility of normalizing relations with Vietnam—a subject which could not have been discussed seriously in 1974, according to the book. The 328-page book, stock number 008-020-01007-3, can be ordered for $8.50.

"Intelligence Preparation of the Battlefield" describes the Intelligence Preparation of the Battlefield (IPB) process of preparing for the next battle. IPB builds, during peacetime, an extensive data base for each potential area in which a unit may be required to operate, and analyzes this data base in detail to determine the impact of the enemy, weather, and terrain on the operation and presents it in a form that can be easily understood and used. The process is more fully examined in the 106-page book, stock number 008-020-01008-1, which sells for $4.25.

Five selected essays, published under the title "Essays on Strategy" address issues and choices confronting western strategies. "Operation Barbarossa" examines basic military strategy and delineates certain characteristics of the Soviet soldier by reviewing Germany's 1941 invasion of Russia. The four remaining essays examine chemical weapons, "Deep Attack" in defense of Central Europe, NATO and Persian Gulf security, and Indian Ocean security. These essays emphasize the value of intelligent and open debate on national security issues. This 132-page book, stock number 008-020-01002-2, is available for $4.

These publications are available by writing the U.S. Government Printing Office, Dept. SSMS, Washington D.C., 20402. All orders should be accompanied by payment in the form of check or money order made payable to the Superintendent of Documents. Payment may also be made by using VISA or MasterCard, and furnishing the expiration date.

Pest control residents responsibility

Village residents have recently been given the responsibility of controlling minor pests in their quarters under a new Department of Defense directive.

According to a directive to Air Force Regulation 91-21, housing occupants now have the responsibility to control such minor pests as cockroaches, ants, silverfish, mice and flying insects with general use pesticides that are readily available to the public.

Persons in need of pest control items should go to the Base Housing office to receive detailed instructions on pest elimination.

Occupants may then be issued any or all of the available pest control items. Such items include a can of insecticide, up to twelve bait stations, up to four mouse traps, and a flyswatter.

Housing officials say the implementation of this program should not only be more economical, but also more convenient for residents since they can determine their own pest control schedule.

For more information, contact the Base Housing Office, Building 6100, Ext. 3601.

T-46 to be discussed

The incorporation of the T-46 Trainer into the Air Training Command force and the ramifications of Specialized Undergraduate Pilot Training will be topics of Brig. Gen. Chris O. Divich when the Order of Daedalians meet Thursday. General Divich is the deputy chief of staff operations, Headquarters Air Training Command.

The meeting at the officers' club, is open to everyone. For reservations, call Ext. 3385.

Falcons place teams in top 20

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AFNS)—Two of eight Air Force Academy varsity teams finished in the top 20 nationally during the fall sports season.

The men's water polo team finished 14th in the National Coaches' Poll and the women's volleyball team was 18th in Division II.

Six varsity teams achieved winning records, while the eight teams won a combined 61 percent of their contests. Varsity athletes completed the fall season with 63 wins, 40 losses and four ties.

The men's cross country team finished seventh in the Western Athletic Conference while the women's team captured third in the NCAA Division II Central Division Regionals.

In women's golf, the team finished eighth in the Weber State Invitational.

The football team went 8-4-0 and won its third-straight bowl game, 23-7, over Virginia Tech in the Ninth Annual Independence Bowl.

The water polo team finished with a 10-12-0 record, good enough for 14th in the national rankings.

The academy soccer team went 10-5-4 for the season, finishing third in the Rocky Mountain Intercollegiate soccer league.

The women's tennis team managed a single win against four losses. The women's volleyball team took 18th place nationally with a 33-16 record.

During the day, the civil engineers will discuss manpower issues, engineering and contracting interface, project priorities, common concerns and Civilian personnel matters.

Participants will begin arriving here Monday afternoon.

EOM sponsors 'Farewell'

The Enlisted Wives Club will sponsor a 'farewell' to Janie Rohatsch at their regular meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the enlisted club.

She will move to Randolph AFB, Texas when her husband, Col. Bob Rohatsch, takes command of the 12th Flying Training Wing there, Feb. 5.

All members, and any interested wives are encouraged to attend.

The EWC meets the last Monday of each month.

Hospital appointments can be cancelled

The Hospital's appointment desk has a telephone recording device, which, after duty hours, can be used to cancel hospital appointments.

Ext. 3245 can be used to make or cancel appointments during duty hours.

Hospital officials say that when people make an appointment and don't show up, that appointment time is wasted. Cancelling the appointment allows the possibility of re-filling the time.

Reese dependent is Star

Nancy Clees will portray Annie Oakley in a First Methodist Church production of "Annie Get Your Gun" Feb. 15-16, at the Lubbock Civic Center.

Clees is the wife of Reese IP 1st Lt. Charles Clees, of the 35th FTS.

Tickets for either of the 8 p.m. performances are $5, $6, and $7. They are available at the church or by calling the music office at 763-0781, Monday through Friday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Notice to civilian employees

In accordance with section 7114 (a) (3) of Title 7, 5 U.S. Code, and Article 3, Section F, of the Memorandum of Agreement between Reese AFB and Local 1810, you are informed of the following: A representative of the Local shall be given an opportunity to be present during any examination of an employee by a representative of the agency in connection with an investigation if: 1. The employee reasonably believes that the examination may result in disciplinary action against the employee, and 2. The employee requests representation.

Any questions should be directed to the Civilian Personnel Office, Fred A. Flewellen, Labor Relations specialist, Ext. 3974 or Ext. 3803.

NCO Leadership school graduation set

Noncommissioned officers leadership school graduation ceremony for Class 85-C will be held at 7 p.m. in the enlisted club Feb. 8.

All commanders, first sergeants, and base personnel are encouraged to attend.

The guest speaker will be Lt. Col. Harry C. McMillin, deputy base commander.

Reserve your seat by calling the Professional Military Education center by Feb. 1, at Ext. 3147.

Luncheon observes Black History Week

In observance of Black History Week, the Reese Child Care Center will host a Luncheon for all parents and volunteers of the center, Feb. 7 from 10:50 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the center.

The advance ticket cost is $1. For more information contact the center at Ext. 3541.

Plan ahead for TDY

Persons going TDY should contact the billeting office at the TDY location in advance to request a reservation, according to Shirley A. Van Cleave, base housing manager.

"This way you will either be assured of having government quarters when you arrive or you will be given current information on the availability of off-base quarters so you can plan accordingly," she said.

Advisory council to meet

The Affirmative Employment Advisory Council will meet Wednesday in the Wing Conference Room, Building 800, at 10 a.m. The meeting is open to all interested employees.

Prayer breakfast set for Thursday

Reese will join men and women of the armed forces throughout the world in the National Prayer Breakfast activities.

The breakfast here will begin at 6:30 a.m. with the serving line, and a program, featuring retired Chaplain (Maj. Gen.) Robert P. Taylor, will begin at 7 a.m.

Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger explained that the National Prayer Breakfast is traditionally a time when the president, members of congress and other government leaders gather to reaffirm the nation's spiritual heritage and seek divine guidance.

"As we pray together this year, may we be reminded that the struggle for freedom and peace is costly," said the secretary of defense.

"You, the dedicated members of our armed forces, blessed with talents and abilities, have willingly pledged to use those gifts in preserving the values enunciated by our founding fathers," said Weinberger.

He reminded military members that oppressed and persecuted people look to them as their hope.

"We cannot shrink from the challenge," he said, "With faith in our ideals and courage to face the task, may we ask God's help and blessing that all may be free."

Tickets for the Reese breakfast are available through squadron first sergeants for $3.75. (AFNS)

Package store prices to increase

Prices at the package store will go up 2 percent Feb. 1, to meet local open mess costs say base officials.

Base officials expressed reluctance in increasing prices, but no other alternative existed, they said after the Air Force Welfare Board recently directed an increase in the assessment on package store sales.

Previously, all bases contributed 4 percent of the gross sales directly to the board. This percentage has been raised to 7 percent to provide additional funds to improve package store facilities Air Force-wide.

In directing the increase, the board suggested bases increase package store prices by 3 percent, to off-set the loss of local revenue.

Base officials had hoped to generate enough revenue to prevent putting this increase into effect, however, in order to meet local open mess capital expenditures, some increase was found to be necessary.

Both open messes depend on this revenue to plan and fund club upgrades, including facilities and equipment.

Officials pointed out that even with the increase, local package store prices were still less than off-base.

Prep course graduates 17

Seventeen students of NCO Preparatory Course Class 85-4 graduated Dec. 6, in a ceremony at the enlisted club.

SrA. Roxanne Pazora, USAF Hospital Reese, was the class' Levitow award winner.

Other members of the graduating class included: Senior Airmen Steve Davenport, John Like, Timothy Lewis, Airmen First Class Michael Gray, Glen Blackman, Carrol Parsons, Peter Melby, and Tony Megliorino from the 64th Organizational Maintenance Squadron; Senior Airmen Jimmy Brown, Michael Lango, Airmen First Class Jeffrey Wuertley, Joe Salinsa, John Dibble, and William Pollock from the 64th Field Maintenance Squadron; SrA. Daniel Mills from the 64th Supply Squadron; and SrA. Jesus Espejo from the 64th Civil Engineering Squadron.

CMSgt. Joe Dykes, NCOIC, Maintenance Control was the guest speaker at the graduation ceremony.
