

Civilian of Year Awards Banquet set

Reese's top civilian employees will be honored at the Officers' Open Mess during the wing's second Civilian Employee of the Year Banquet March 23. The banquet begins at 6:30 p.m.

Tickets to the banquet are $9.50 per person. Deadline for reservations is Thursday. For reservations call Ext. 3972.

The guest speaker at the banquet will be Texas State Senator John T. Montford, 28th Senatorial District.

The 64th Flying Training Wing received many accolades and achieved numerous successes throughout 1984. All of these accomplishments were made possible by the dedication and commitment to excellence of wing military and civilian employees, according to Col. Bob Hullender, commander of the 64th Flying Training Wing.

There are many programs in existence today that offer our military people well-deserved recognition, he added, and the Civilian of the Year Awards Banquet was established to give the civilian employees the same well-deserved recognition.

The banquet was established last year, and five categories were established. This year three categories have been added to the program.

The categories are:

- GS-9 and above
- GS-5 through 8
- GS-4 and below
- WG/WL-9 and above
- WG/WL-8 and below
- NAF-4 and above

• NAF-3 and below • WS

The selection process began after all deputation levels made their nominations. Each nominee met various boards and competitive reviews within their functional areas. The final winners in each category were chosen by a board of the wing deputies chaired by Col. Hullender.

Retention decline under control

By SrA. Barry F. Dillon
Air Force News Service

A recent decline in Air Force personnel retention was anticipated and is being managed, according to the Air Force's top personnel officer.

Lt. Gen. Duane H. Cassidy, deputy chief of staff for Manpower and Personnel, made this clear in an interview with Air Force News Service.

"Retention has peaked out and is starting to come down," he said. "But it's not coming down rapidly. We predicted what is happening and our goal is to manage and control the losses."

Air Force statisticians reported that fiscal 1983 and 1984 were the highest retention years in the service's history. They said that despite the fiscal 1985 downturn, retention is still very good.

Retention trends for the overall force are fairly consistent with enlisted force retention trends, officials said. In fiscal 1980—one of the worst years for enlisted retention—Re-enlistment rates were 36 percent for first termers and 63 percent for second termers. In fiscal 1983, the figures jumped to 66 percent and 83 percent, respectively.

Current retention rates are about two or three percentage points down from the record-high marks, officials said.

"It was very unlikely that we would stay as high," said General Cassidy. "We now have to make sure our losses are in the areas we can handle and we don't lose the wrong people."

The most crucial personnel losses, according to the general, are "the principal part of our combat force, and that's our aviators."

He said aircrew losses are "steeper" than in the overall force, but they are "not alarming and not higher than we predicted."

To keep experienced fliers in the Air Force, General Cassidy said, "I will take whatever actions I can take."

These actions include leadership and management tasks such as "sensitizing our force to all the things that make people get out." To do this, personnel officials will send a retention manual this month to commanders throughout the Air Force. And a manual about leadership will follow.

A management project concerning aviators is being headed by general officers in the Military Airlift Command and the Air Force Manpower and Personnel Center. They are reviewing problems that fliers face and will recommend solutions, General Cassidy said.

In order to keep retention strong, Air Force and Defense Department leaders work with Congress each year to get benefit packages Air Force people deserve. General Cassidy said.

He added it is up to military leaders to present the Air Force's position in an enlightened fashion. He complimented current leaders for doing that.

"We (military leaders) have said (to congress) that our people are most important," he said. "All the airplanes and missiles you build are nothing but space-age tinker toys without the people it takes to operate them."

"The Soviets or any adversary can reverse-engineer hardware, but they can't reverse-engineer the American Fighting Man," he said. "The difference in any combat situation is going to be the American."

Regarding compensation for Air Force people, General Cassidy singled out the retirement system as "The most important thing in the minds of all our people, no matter what age or rank they are."

"It is very crucial that they get the retirement that they have been promised," he continued.

"People in the civil sector do not have to take an unlimited liability, which means giving my life for my country, or moving an average of eight times in a 20-year career. He doesn't have to put up with all that."

"Security is a principle issue," General Cassidy said. "So our retirement system has to provide security and has to be a system congress is not going to tinker with regularly." He assured that all military leaders are committed to protecting the retirement system.

"Our retirement system has served us very well over the years and that's one of the things that brings people in and keeps them with us," he said.

Military leaders also insist that pay and allowances keep up with inflation so members don't lose buying power, he added. Personnel improvements being pursued this year on Capitol Hill involve families. Among the requests will be an increase in family support centers, dependent dental care and increased moving allowances.

"We know that a career decision in the Air Force is a family decision," General Cassidy said. "Families are under more pressure and have more problems than ever before."

To support his claim, the general said there are currently more than 25,000 military couples and more than 8,000 single-parent families in the Air Force. "We've got to find ways to help them out."

"Don't just look at earnings for tomorrow, but look at earnings over a lifetime. Look at the camaraderie of our people and look at the job you have and knowing that whatever we do is going to have an effect on mankind, not just one man—myself."

Air Force recognizes top suggesters

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—Four people whose suggestions saved the Air Force $10 million were recognized by the service's top military and civilian leaders March 1 at a Pentagon ceremony.

Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Charles A. Gabriel and Secretary of the Air Force Verne Orr praised the leading participants in 1984's suggestion award program. The four were presented plaques at the ceremony. They received cash last year when their awards were accepted.

Those honored March 1 were retired CMSgt. Donald H. Holloman, Ralph G. McNamara, MSgt. Gary A. Lynch and Army CWO Ronald G. Howell. Mr. Howell is the first person from another service to win top Air Force honors.

Mr. McNamara, A GM-13 at Hill AFB, Utah, saved the service nearly $4 million with his idea changing the way Mark-82 bombs are made. The 500-pound bombs are used for target practice by the Air Force and Navy. Because of his suggestion, practice bombs are no longer made with complete internal components or heat treated like "live" bombs. He was awarded $10,000 for the idea. Fourteen of Mr. McNamara's suggestions have been approved by the Air Force during his career, saving an estimated $15 million.

Sergeant Lynch saved about $2.5 million with his contribution and received $16,000 for it. His effort led to a change in the disposal procedure for damaged keel duct assemblies on F-4s. He found that the aircraft parts can be repaired instead of always being replaced with new parts. Now the damaged equipment is inspected and must be unreparable before being thrown away.

Sergeant Lynch, stationed at Ramstein AB, West Germany, submitted the suggestion while stationed at Seymour Johnson AFB, N.C.

Mr. Howell's idea also saved about $2.5 million. He recommended modifying generator trailers used in mobile communications. While stationed at a joint-service unit at MacDill AFB, Fla., he discovered that trailers could be modified to suit larger generators the unit was receiving. The modification eliminated the need for larger trailers and reduced airlift requirements. He was awarded $15,000. Mr. Howell has since moved to Detroit.

Chief Holloman, before retiring and taking a Civil Service position at Fort Bragg, N.C., submitted a suggestion that will save about $1 million in one year. While at Tyndall AFB, Fla., he recommended that the Air Force double the concentration of liquid used to fight petroleum fires. As a result, storage space and shipping costs for the liquid were halved and fire-fighting capability was doubled.

The Air Force suggestion program last year received more than 100,000 ideas that are expected to save about $49 million according to General Gabriel.

Careline

The Care Line is prepared by Col. Bob Hullender, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, on a weekly basis. All information provided to the Care Line will be held in strict confidence. Callers are urged to give their name and duty telephone number so that a personal reply may be made; however, neither are mandatory. Callers should use the Care Line only after all possible avenues to air their views or complaints through the chain of command have been exhausted. The number is 885-Ext.)

A caller inquired about individuals wearing 'Walkman' type radios while driving on the flightline. Not only is this practice unsafe, it's against the law.

Texas law applies to the base, and in an amendment to the Texas State Motor Vehicle Code, these headphone type radios have been outlawed while driving.

People always need to be attentive when they drive, and even more so on the flightline, since there are people walking around and an abundance of aircraft. I appreciate the caller's concern for the safety of our personnel and resources. Thank you for the call.

A caller questioned a hospital policy requiring each child taken to the pediatrics clinic be accompanied by an adult.

This policy is intended to enhance physician efficiency, and parent-physician communications, as well as maximize child safety. When an adult is forced to watch a second child during an examination, they can be distracted from hearing the physician's instructions and recommendations. Also, it is not advisable to expose a child who is not sick to other children in the clinic who are.

If both children are ill, every attempt will be made to accommodate both children if only one parent is available, and on short notice when on one can watch the second child.

However, routine followup appointments can be scheduled in advance allowing time for a second adult to be found to take care of the other child.

Pilots receiving their small arms training in a timely manner was a concern of another caller. Training pilots is the mission of this base, and part of that mission includes giving the new Air Force pilots small arms training.

Since Jan. 1, the Combat Arms Training and Management Branch has qualified 244 people on the M-16 rifle alone. The total number of personnel trained in all of 1984 was 367. This has all come about as a result of an increase in mobility slots we have to fill here.

Currently, the small arms training branch is operating on a six day a week schedule. They should be finished with the overload soon, and scheduling should then become more flexible in this area. Until then, thank you for your patience.

A caller felt his unit was left out of the recognition process when the Rex Riley award was presented.

The Rex Riley Award was presented to the base honoring all individuals and agencies dealing with transient aircrews and visitors. While one individual from Base Operations officially accepted the award at a wing staff meeting, it was presented honoring all Reese personnel responsible for supporting transient aircrews. These people include, but are not limited to, TA representatives that meet, service and launch the aircraft, Base Operations dispatchers, Weather personnel, the Fire Department's Crash and Rescue force, and the billeting representative assigning rooms for the night.

Each of these agencies and their services were evaluated by the team who chose Reese for this honor. All can take pride in the award. It was a team effort that once again demonstrated the outstanding quality of all our people, both civilian and military, and their unwavering commitment to a tradition of excellence.

The orientation flight policies for civilians was the subject of another caller. This category of flights had been left out of the Care Line when we outlined the Wing orientation flight policy.

There are no locally allocated slots for civilians because they are all handled through HQ ATC Public Affairs. Flights for civilian personnel are submitted through the chief of Public Affairs, reviewed by the Wing Commander, and then forwarded to HQ ATC Public Affairs for approval. These flights are approved on an individual basis and are always above and beyond the quota established and controlled by the wing. A civilian orientation flight is never at the expense of a military incentive flight.

Orientation flights are a very important program throughout the Air Force. Individuals considered under this program are normally well known community leaders who work hard on behalf of both the Air Force and the base. They actively and routinely support the Air Force, its programs and recruiting, and provide outstanding public relations and advertisement for the Air Force and acceptance of Reese personnel into the local community.

Making Air Force programs visible to key members of the local community like merchants, bank presidents, mayors, police chiefs, and news reporters, etc...is an important way of showing the nation what their tax dollars buy. It promotes sound community relations and active support from the local community—assets well worth cultivating.

God's last name isn't 'damn'

By Chaplain (Lt. Col.) Bill McGraw
Installation staff chaplain

At another base I spoke with personnel at Social Actions about the use of profanity. I told them that, in my opinion, people who revere God are just as offended when his name is used in vain as others are by racial slurs and ethnic jokes which degrade national origin.

God's last name isn't damn, even though many people seem to think so. Many people who would not think of saying Buddha damn, Muhammed damn, or Allah damn, add "damn" after God. This is very offensive to those who feel that his name should be used only in prayer and praise.

To irreverent use of God's name may lead to what I call "language pollution." Conversation in many areas has degenerated to gutter language. Words are even used on TV programs which used to be confined to trashy novels and bathroom walls. Have you checked your language gauge lately? I hope that you don't find that you have limited your vocabulary to ugly four letter words that used to be called vulgar and obscene.

The Bible says, "let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight. O Lord, my strength and my redeemer" (ps. 19:14). The Apostle Paul said "...whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things" (Philippians 4:8).

Using Paul's guidelines as a criteria, we could do away with language pollution. A good place to begin is the elimination of "damn" in connection with God's name.

Child Care Center does good job

By SrA. Heather Barnard
Mother

Have you experienced the ultimate in child care? If not you haven't tried the Child Care Center.

The staff, under the excellent direction of Mr. Jim Hernandez, are professionally trained in all areas of child care and will be happy to serve you and your child.

They provide nutritious, delicious meals and a happy, healthy, and active environment for your child. There are also preplanned, fun and educational activities and during good weather, outdoor excursions. There are also restful naptimes to help keep your child happy and energetic. They assist in helping teach the children with weaning to a cup and for potty training. Their constant supervision and involvement provide adult contact for the children.

The staff is qualified for emergencies in CPR and first aid as well as for administering prescribed medication and insuring immediate medical attention.

Their hours and location are especially convenient for parents working on base. They are open from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. during the week. If there is enough participation, they will open on weekends at specified hours.

They are located in Building 341, next to the Arts and Crafts Center.

Their prices are very reasonable. The weekly rate is $35 and drop-ins are $1.40 an hour. Children six-weeks to six-months old are $50 a week.

As a parent of a sixteen-month-old, I have been extremely happy with the care my child has received and I thank the whole staff for their help and attention. I highly recommend checking out the advantages they offer or if you have any questions contact them at Ext. 3541.

Thank you

Sincere thanks for everyone's generous support in loving memory of my wife.

Reese Reunion set for June

By Col. Bob Hullender
Commander, 64th Flying
Training Wing

Reese Reunion 1985...have you heard about it? If you have not, you will.

The reunion is set for June 14, which is also Flag Day—a very special day across the United States. This is a day we pledge allegiance to and honor our flag, and for what it stands...the liberties and freedom we enjoy as Americans.

Former military and civilian leaders of Reese and the local community will be invited to join us in this day of honor and recognition, as well as state and Air Force leaders. These include the governor of Texas, the commander of Air Training Command, the mayor of Lubbock and state senators and congressmen.

The reunion will honor and recognize the contributions of the great state of Texas and the city of Lubbock in support of our nations' freedom. The focal point for the reunion will be a dedication ceremony of two new flag poles, that will proudly fly the state of Texas and city of Lubbock flags. This ceremony will be held in conjunction with a parade and fly-bys of aircraft previously and presently stationed here.

In addition to the ceremony, numerous other activities are planned that day. These include tours of the base and flightline, briefings and TAC Day...the day aircraft and crews from Tactical Air Command visit Reese and our student pilots. The finale will be a dining-out at the Officers' Open Mess.

Reese Reunion 1985 promises to be the biggest and most important day in Reese's history. It will honor base, city, state, country, and former Reese people and recognize this base as an integral part of Lubbock and the state of Texas. We'll have many distinguished visitors, the kind that can support us as we continue our efforts to train the best pilots in the world and improve the quality of life for Reese people. So, Reese people now and those to follow us, have a great deal to gain in Reese Reunion 1985.

We want to look our best for this important event. Our facilities, inside and out will need "sprucing up." Self-help projects to improve the outside appearance will be the name of the game. Be inventive. Be innovative. Flower beds, shrubs and paint are easy to do and can make a big difference.

Yes, Reese Reunion will be a big day, but it will also be a fun day...a day we can all take much pride in. There are 97 days left until it happens...let's start getting ready now and if you need help, give me a call.

New leave policy announced

Air Force will implement new leave procedures April 1, to cut down on the number of times leave forms must be processed, according to Accounting and Finance officials in Denver.

Officials said that the procedures include a new four-part leave authorization form and routing procedures.

They explained that part one of the current form is sent to base Accounting and Finance offices immediately and posted when the member returns from leave, part three of the form is sent to finance and again posted.

Under the new procedures, part one will still be sent immediately to accounting and finance, but part three will remain in the member's unit of assignment, and part four will be kept in the duty section.

However, if a member returns from leave and there is a difference between the number of days requested and the number of days taken, part three of the form will also be sent to Accounting and Finance so records can be corrected, officials said.

Members can ensure that forms will not have to be processed twice by accurately forecasting leave and taking the number of days projected, they added. (AFNS)

T-46 boasts many improvements

By William P. Schlitz
Senior Editor
Air Force Magazine

The Fairchild Republic Company's T-46A Next Generation Trainer will replace the Cessna T-37 "Tweet." In addition to meeting, the T-46 will exceed the performance capabilities of the T-37.

The T-46A is to retain the twin-engine and side-by-side seating features of its predecessor T-37, but will also incorporate cockpit pressurization—an important improvement.

Side-by-side seating in a primary trainer is a well-established concept. "With the actions of the student pilot in full view of the instructor, they can be immediately corrected or encouraged," says Alex Zakreki, Fairchild's Washington manager for government programs. "Also, despite fluency in English by foreign students, some language barriers have to be overcome, and side-by-side seating helps in this."

The pressurized cockpit will allow the T-46A to operate up to 45,000 feet, says Lt. Col. David L. Heitz, T-46A program monitor at the Pentagon, which is 20,000 feet above the T-37 operational ceiling. "In this era of increasing competition for airspace with commercial and general aviation, the higher operating altitudes will provide more maneuvering room, plus the added safety factor."

Cockpit pressurization also will provide more comfortable working conditions for aircrews, both on the ground and in the air, and in either hot or cold weather.

Another cockpit improvement over the T-37 is the modified ACES II ejection seat in the T-46A. By incorporating this state-of-the-art ACES II ejection seat into its cockpit design, Fairchild is applying the Air Force's formula for standardization and simplified procurement. Graduates will thus be familiar with ejection procedures for ACES II, which is already standard equipment in F-15s, F-16s, A-10s, and the B-1B.

As to cockpit accessibility and control feedback, Charles R. Fraime, Fairchild Director of technology management, says that the T-46A is the first aircraft to be designed to accommodate women pilots "as well as 230-pound-linebacker types. The aircraft is also designed to demand of student pilots the acquisition of certain skill levels. It will be forgiving, but will provide a challenge without being dangerous," he said.

The Air Force demanded that the 'Next Generation Trainer' have better spin and stall recovery than the T-37. Deficiencies in the flight characteristics of the T-37 had been noted in spins and has been pegged as the probable cause of several aircraft mishaps. In primary flight training, student pilots are taught to recognize spin and stall entries, and how to prevent and recover from them. Fairchild built and flew a radio-controlled model of its NGT to demonstrate that these criteria had been met and to confirm the tests conducted in the vertical wind tunnel at NASA's Langley Research Center, Hampton, VA.

Other deficiencies of the T-37 will be corrected as well.

For the NGT's average mission, the Air Force required that the aircraft be able to launch, fly an hour-and-a-half training sortie, return to base, loiter for five minutes, and then—in the event of unacceptable landing conditions—climb and fly 300 nautical miles to an alternate airfield. With its longer range (1,150 nm vs. the T-37's 350 nm) and such features as windshield defrosting and engine inlet anti-icing, the T-46A will be capable of operating in weather that would ordinarily ground the T-37.

GREATER LUBBOCK AREA CRUSADE

LUBBOCK MEMORIAL CIVIC CENTER

MARCH 3 - 8 7:30 P.M.

'Enemy in the mirror' theme of road show

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (ATCNS)—“A pilot is his or her own worst enemy—far worse than any battle foe.”

Some 3,500 ATC instructor and student pilots will hear that message this year during ATC Safety Road Show briefings around the command. “Enemy in the Mirror,” is this year’s theme.

“ATC had the lowest Class A aircraft mishap rate in the Air Force in 1984,” said road show briefer Maj. Roger M. Cude. “But ATC’s three Class A mishaps could have been prevented by the pilot. Our pilots need to learn that the person in their cockpit mirror could destroy them.”

The major said some of the things pilots need to watch out for include fatigue, over confidence, improper diet and self medication. “Any one of those factors could put a pilot into the middle of a ‘smoking hole,’” he said.

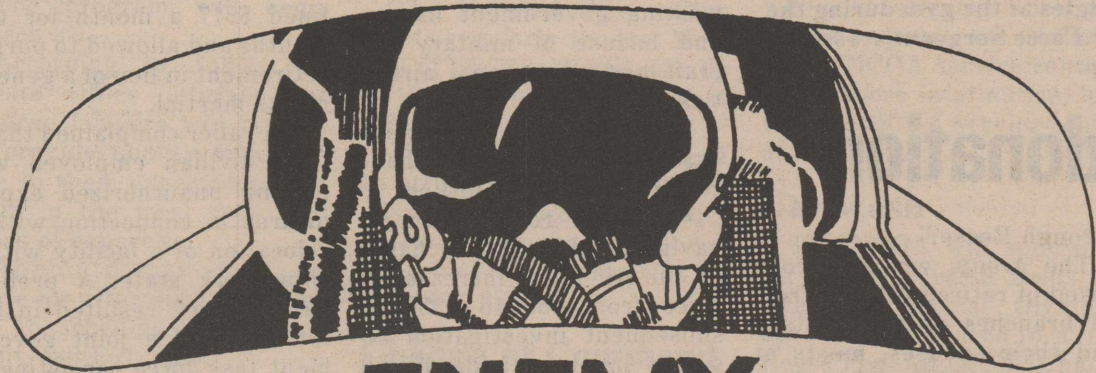

Major Cude teams up with fellow ATC headquarters flight safety officer Capt. Donald D. Hall in giving the 30-minute multi-media briefing to the command’s nine flying units.

The major plays and dresses the part of a mid-1960s flight safety officer who suddenly appears in the present to confront the pilots. He asks his audience why there are pilots needlessly losing their lives for the same reasons as they did 20 years earlier. “Haven’t we learned from our mistakes?” he asks. The briefing includes film footage of actual pilot-caused aircraft crashes.

This is the second year for the ATC Safety Road Show. Last year’s theme was “Air Discipline.”

“Enemy in the Mirror” was briefed to ATC pilots for the first time this year on Feb. 21 at Williams AFB, Ariz. The next briefing is set for March 20 at Vance AFB, Okla. Reese pilots will receive the briefing in July. The date will be announced in June.

Chiefs vs. Eagles

Hard aggressive play helped the Chiefs into a 23-17 win over the Eagles at the gym during the Eagles vs. Chiefs game Feb. 22. The game was sponsored by the Air Force Sergeant's Association, who raised $259 for Camp Blue Yonder, a local summer camp.

Family Services receives donation

A group of retired military officers is helping to make car travel safer for children here.

The Lubbock chapter of the Retired Officers Association has donated $150 for new car seats to Reese Family Services. Family Services loans both infant and toddler car seats, as well as other essentials, to military personnel and their dependents.

"I think it is just wonderful," said Barbara Janosick, Family Services coordinator. "We really needed some more car seats."

Ernest Morrison of TROA called Reese the group's "lifeline. Our overall objective is continued strong support of our armed services through Reese."

The group, which is composed of retired officers from all branches of the military and their spouses, meets at the officers' club on the first Tuesday of each month.

TROA president for 1985 is Dr. Lawrence L. Graves, retired dean of the College of Arts and Sciences at Texas Tech University.

Defense Hotline pays

A senior naval officer is restricted to his quarters for 15 days and given a letter of reprimand. An Air Force officer is allowed to "pursue retirement" in lieu of general courts-martial. A civilian DOD employee's $500,000 home is attached by the government. These are some of the many results of people reporting suspected wrongdoing on the Department of Defense Hotline.

Since the Hotline was established in June 1981, more than 23,000 calls or letters have been received. About one-third of them have led to inquiries and further reviews. Presently, Hotline reports are being received by the Defense investigation Service at a rate of about 880 per month.

The kinds of wrongdoing being reported include overpricing, misuse of authority, wasting government money, and misuse of military aircraft and commercial airline tickets.

Following are some specific examples of cases which have resulted from the Hotline:

- A caller reported that a navigational light purchased by the Air Force increased in price from $35 to $283. A subsequent investigation resulted in the standard unit price of the light being reduced to $52 and the contractor refunding to the government more than $30,000.

- A naval officer performing duties as a contracting officer directed the prime contractor to award two $22,000 contracts to a subcontractor. The subcontractor then further subcontracted the work to another firm of which the naval officer was the sole director. The officer pleaded guilty to two counts of conflict of interest and one count of unlawful acts affecting a financial interest. He was sentenced to two years imprisonment with 18 months suspended, and he was also fined $6,000. The Navy is seeking civil recoupment of the $44,000 initially awarded.

- Another caller alleged that an Air Force officer was conducting personal business while on duty. An investigation disclosed that the officer was a representative to two retail firms and spent duty time selling these firms' products to subordinates and other personnel. The officer received an Article 15, was fined $817 a month for two months and allowed to pursue retirement in lieu of a general courts-martial.

- A caller complained that a DOD civilian employee was making unauthorized expenditures in connection with a relocation of a facility within New York state. A preliminary inquiry resulted in the formation of a joint government task force consisting of teams from four federal organizations. A senior civilian pleaded guilty to more than 170 counts. The government has attached the defendants home which is valued at more than $500,000.

A flea-market, sponsored by the Enlisted Wives' Club, will be held at the Mathis Recreation Center March 16, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

There is still some space available for persons who wish to get rid of items "laying around collecting dust." Persons who wish to reserve space should contact Linda Prince at 885-2257.

As in any flea-market, there will be some special buys on some items you couldn't find anywhere else. For those with children, free child care will be provided.

Local law

Army reserve lawyers who have private practices in the local area will render assistance to any active member, dependent or retiree on the first and third Thursdays of each month.

The program will begin March 21.

According to Judge Advocate Office officials, the reserve lawyers will be able to provide quality legal aid, due to their experience, contacts in the local area, and areas of expertise.

Appointments may be made for after duty hours only. To schedule an appointment, call Ext. 3505.

Tele-tax helps taxpayers

Taxpayers with tax questions can call Tele-Tax and listen to recorded tax information provided by the Internal Revenue Service.

The recorded information service offers more than 150 information tapes on tax subjects such as filing requirements, itemized deductions, tax credits, dependents, and adjustments to income.

For users of push-button (tone signalling) phones, Tele-Tax is available year-round.

Changes to Improve

OER Accuracy

Air Force is changing its officer effectiveness report policy to require that the person who rates the evaluator sign the effectiveness report as additional rater.

Manpower and Personnel Center officials here explained that requiring comments from the two people who are working closest to an officer should make OERs more accurate and help Air Force leaders identify officers who should be given more responsibility and promotions. The change will affect OERs closing on or after April 1.

Air Force regulations currently allow the additional rater to be several levels removed from the person being rated, which prevents direct observation.

Under the new policy, evaluators will still be able to decide the final level of endorsement, officials said. (AFNS) ceremony for Class 85-7, will be held Thursday at the Enlisted Open Mess at 2 p.m.

Commanders, first sergeants and base personnel are strongly encouraged to attend.

Soviet awareness

Tickets are now available through unit Soviet Awareness liaisons, for the Soviet Awareness Briefing March 21 and 22.

The briefing, given by the Soviet Awareness Briefing Team, from Bolling AFB, Washington, D.C., will run from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. each day. Each day is a complete briefing.

The briefing is classified "secret" and therefore only those with secret clearances will be able to attend. The briefing is free.

Enlisted Wives Club

The Enlisted Wives Club meets regularly the last Monday of the month and usually at the Enlisted Open Mess at 7:30 p.m.

Members are encouraged to attend and any interested wives are welcome. Contact Beverly Sheppard, president, for more information, at 885-4962, 885-4721.

Change of Command

Lt. Col. John Lattig will assume duties as commander of the 64th Student Squadron today at 3 p.m. in front of 24 hours a day, seven days a week. These taxpayers call the local Tele-Tax number found in the tax package, Tele-Tax brochure, and in the free IRS Publication 910, Taxpayer's Guide to Information, Assistance and Publications. By pressing the appropriate numbers on the phone, the taxpayer hears the tax information message he or she wants.

For rotary (dial) or push-button (pulse dial) phone users, Tele-Tax is available year-round during normal weekday business hours. These taxpayers should call the special dial telephone number listed in the previously mentioned publications and tell the IRS operator the number of the tape or topic he or she wishes to hear.

Tele-Tax has been expanded this year to include Automated Refund Information at selected locations. If it has been ten weeks since you mailed your 1984 tax return, we will be able to check the status of your refund.

All tax packages, Publication 910, and the Tele-Tax brochure (Publication 1163) also have lists of topics covered by the tapes. Publication 910 is available by using the order form in the tax package, or by writing or calling the IRS. The free Tele-Tax brochures are also available at many local banks and libraries, or it may be ordered from IRS.

If a taxpayer calls from outside the local dialing area of any Tele-Tax number, there will be a long distance charge. (AFPS)

Building 800. He replaces Lt. Col. Clarence Uptagraph.

*Dear Home Buyer,
I have new, 3-bedroom homes very close to Reese that I must sell in a hurry. They are perfect for young couples, roommates, or singles.
These homes are loaded with class... and priced to sell. They include washer, dryer, microwave, refrigerator, and miniblinds.
Payments start at $570 and you will need very little down.
But the best part is that I will buy your home back from you if you cannot sell it when you PCS to a new duty station.
Now that is a fantastic housing opportunity.*

Spirit of generosity alive

By Gen. Andrew P. Iosue
Commander, Air Training Command

We in the Air Force pride ourselves on taking care of our own. Over the years, I've seen the caring, concern and commitment Air Force members have shown one another. To borrow from a popular song, "We are family."

This spirit of generosity is most evident during our annual Air Force Assistance Fund Drive. Last year, Air Training Command men and women contributed more than $950,000 to the AFAF. Two of the three activities supported by your contributions are Teresa Village, the Air Force Enlisted Men's Widows and Dependents home in Fort Walton Beach, Fla., and the Air Force Village in San Antonio, Texas, for officer dependents and retirees.

These senior citizen complexes offer security and health care to retired Air Force members and their loved ones. They receive no tax dollar support and have a combined waiting list of more than 2,000. Expansion plans have been made, but our continued support is necessary to sustain these facilities.

The third AFAF activity is the one you are most likely to use—perhaps you have already. The Air Force Aid Society is the official charity of the Air Force. Last year it helped about 38,000 Air Force people and provided more than $17,000,000 in emergency financial assistance. Each dollar you contribute is used an average of six times over a five-year period in the form of interest-free loans.

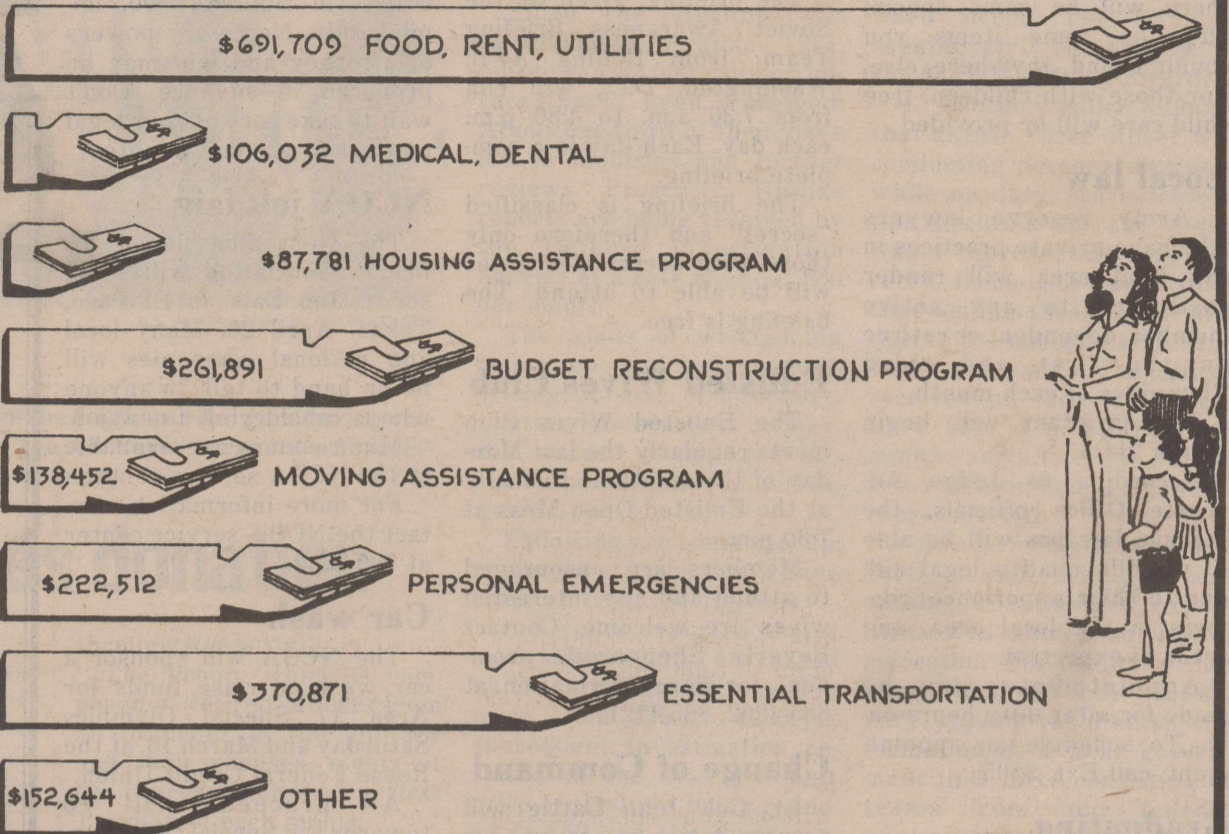

Also, in the past six years the aid society has provided through lender banks more than $106,000,000 in educational loans to Air Force members and their families.

With your strong support, which last year saw ATC members contribute more than double the command's goal, we can actively continue our commitment to caring.

One way or another, we will always be there for each other. We are Family. (ATCNS)

Supply claims IM trophy

The 64th Supply Squadron overcame a come-back attempt by the 54th Flying Training Squadron to take top honors as this years Intramural Basketball Champions.

In the final game of the playoffs, Supply took an early lead over the 54th and never let up.

In the last quarter of the championship game, the 54th made a final attempt at the top trophy, coming within two points of it, 65-64.

In their first game of the playoffs, Supply downed the Hospital squad 42-40, and in their second game, took out ABG, 43-36. In their third game of the playoffs, they beat FMS 40-37, and were on their way to the championship.

64th Air Base Group Commander Lt. Col. Harry McMillian presented the trophy to the Supply squad following the game.

Intramural Volleyball

Intramural volleyball gets underway Monday at the Gym. This year, 15 teams will make up two leagues.

The National League is comprised of: ABG, OMS #1, HOSP, STUS #1, STUS #2, STUS #3, COMM, 35th.

The American League is comprised of: FMS, SUPPLY, 54th, CES, STUS #4, STUS #5, OMS #2

ATC Volleyball

ATC volleyball will be held March 15-17. The men will travel to Chanute AFB, Ill., and the women will go to Laughlin AFB, Texas, for the competition.

Racquetball Tournament

A "play-off" racquetball tournament at the gym March 23 and 24, will decide who will represent Reese in the ATC racquetball tournament at Chanute AFB, Ill., April 20-23. This tournament is open to military persons only.

Gun Club

The Reese Rod and Gun Club has announced several activities slated for the next two months.

The Ides of March Skeet Tournament is set for March 30, at the local range. The double elimination, draw-partner event will begin at 9 a.m. The cost is $4 for members and $5 for non-members. Shells may be purchased at the range the day of the event, and shotguns will be available for use.

The Spring Bass Tournament at White River lake is set for April 13. The tournament is in conjunction with the Military Base Anglers Association Tournament.

A rabbit hunt is slated for April 27, pending approval, at Terry County Auxillary Airfield. The hunt is free to club members.

The next meeting of the Rod and Gun Club will be at 7 p.m. in the enlisted club, March 21.

You may be saying to yourself that it can't be cheaper to write checks because of the high service charge that financial organizations charge or the high minimum balances required. It's possible that you're right—but you should check it out yourself.

Many of us make decisions we think are cost effective without actually figuring the relative cost. Take the time and list for yourself the bills you would normally pay in a month. Now consider what it costs in loss of productivity, personal time, money order charges and other related costs and compare that to the costs of writing and mailing a check.

Often you compare the costs, consider the advantages of writing checks. Checks are an excellent source of proof for payments made. Sure, you can get copies of paid money orders but its usually time consuming and inconvenient. Check records are also a great way to look back at expenses for tax purposes.

Now, ask yourself if a checking account is for you. If you think the answer is yes, look at several financial organizations to find the type of checking account best suited for your needs. If you write a few checks, one offering a low service charge per check might be better for you than one offering a fixed service charge. If you write a lot of checks, the opposite may be true.

When you decide which financial organization to use, consider getting overdraft protection so that an accidental check written without money to cover it doesn't get returned for insufficient funds.

Major tobacco companies have announced price increases for cigarettes sold in Army and Air Force Exchange Service outlets. The increase will only apply to tax-paid cigarettes in the 50 United States.

Tax-free cigarettes sold in overseas exchanges are not affected. The price of tax-paid king and regular size cigarettes will increase from $7.30 to $7.50 a carton and the price of 100 and 120 mm cigarettes will be raised from $7.50 to $7.75.

Sunset Seeks To Serve The Citizens of Lubbock and the South Plains

Sunset Church of Christ has served Lubbock and the South Plains for 32 years from its location at 34th Street and Memphis Avenue. During the month of March, Sunset is recommitting herself to service by offering special opportunities for Lubbock citizens. Detailed information on these events will be provided for anyone who calls 792-5191 or who writes to Ken Miller, Sunset Church of Christ. You are invited to attend any or all of the events listed below.

The film, THE SILENT SCREAM, will be shown at 6:00 p.m., Sunday, March 10, in the Sunset Auditorium (worship service is at 5:00 p.m.).

The modern technology of ultrasound now reveals the actual responses of a 12-week-old fetus being aborted.

As the unborn child attempts to escape the abortionist's suction curette, the child's motions can be seen to become agitated and the heart rate doubles.

The abortionist's procedure is explained in scientific terms by Dr. Bernard Nathanson, who earlier in his career ran the world's largest abortion clinic. Now ardently pro-life, Dr. Nathanson is dedicated to exposing the truth about "abortion on demand."
