...Why the Department of Defense says it's already had its share of cuts, Secretary of Defense Caspar W. Weinberger says:

"Today, the prospects for genuine nuclear arms reductions—something that more than a decade of SALT negotiations sadly failed to achieve—have never been brighter. But—as Secretary Shultz warned when he returned from Geneva earlier this month—it will be impossible to gain that agreement if we falter now in our commitment to a stronger defense.

"We all know the temptations to rest on our laurels, and to turn to other challenges. It would be easy, and some say it would be good politics, to halt our rebuilding program now when it is in mid-stream—to freeze defense spending for a year, or to cut it back drastically for several years. But we must make up our defense budget according to the external threats we face, and not by preoccupation with securing a tidy financial statement.

"Any sober look at the Soviet build-up in strategic and conventional weapons over the past 22 years shows that we still have a long way to go to restore fully the military balance.

"Even with the expense and danger of cutting back on

Egg hunt Sunday

The Annual Easter Egg Hunt, sponsored by the Officers' and Enlisted Wives' Club will begin at 3 p.m. Sunday at the park south of the Base Exchange.

Two prizes will be awarded to each of four age groups; one and two-year-olds, three and four-year-olds, five and six-year-olds, and seven and eight-year-olds.

In the event of inclement weather, the activities will be held at the Youth Center.

For more information, contact Shelly Harrison at 745-3084 or Jackie Rausch at 793-8531.

Computer speeds pay

By 2nd Lt. Pat Barnes
Deputy Chief,
Public Affairs Division

What does Reese and all the other ATC bases have in common? Their travel pay sections have just received the new Zenith 100 computer.

The new computer, which will be used for Automated Flat Rate Per Diem (AFRPD), was just put on line for all ATC bases on April 1. In the future the new computer will be implemented Air Force wide. The Zenith system went through its initial testing at Randolph AFB before coming on line.

According to SSgt. Lori Padgett, the new system will greatly enhance productivity by speeding up processing time for travel vouchers turned in by Air Force members.

With his old system, once a person turned in their travel voucher the travel section had to look up various different rates of per diem for various parts of the country, now all that needs to be done is key in the individual's name, temporary base, the date of departure and return and the computer does the rest.

Gone is the tedious job of searching from regulation to regulation to compute the rate of per diem, the computer does it all for you.

"Once the travel section becomes familiar with the new system it should save a lot of time, especially when we process the 'Cross-Country' flights that the student and instructor pilots bring in," said SSgt. Lori Padgett, NCOIC for the travel pay section.

This is just another way that the Air Force is using today's modern technology.

AF updates uniform policy

All Air Force people traveling to bases in the United States must have the proper uniform combinations to meet local policies at their destinations, according to Air Force Manpower and Personnel Center officials.

However, if the member is wearing a uniform while traveling and plans to stop at a base other than the final destination, local wear policies do not apply, officials said.

For instance, if the member is traveling to Blytheville AFB, Ark., and stops at Carswell AFB, Texas and Little Rock AFB, Ark., the traveler does not have to conform to local policies at Carswell and Little Rock, as long as AFR 35-10 regulations are met. Local policies at Blytheville must be met, however.

AFMPC officials explained that many bases throughout the Air Force have local policies that aren't in effect at all bases. For example, Randolph AFB requires wearing a tie with the lightweight blue jacket. This is not a policy at all bases. Air Force members whose final destination is Randolph must be prepared to comply with this policy.

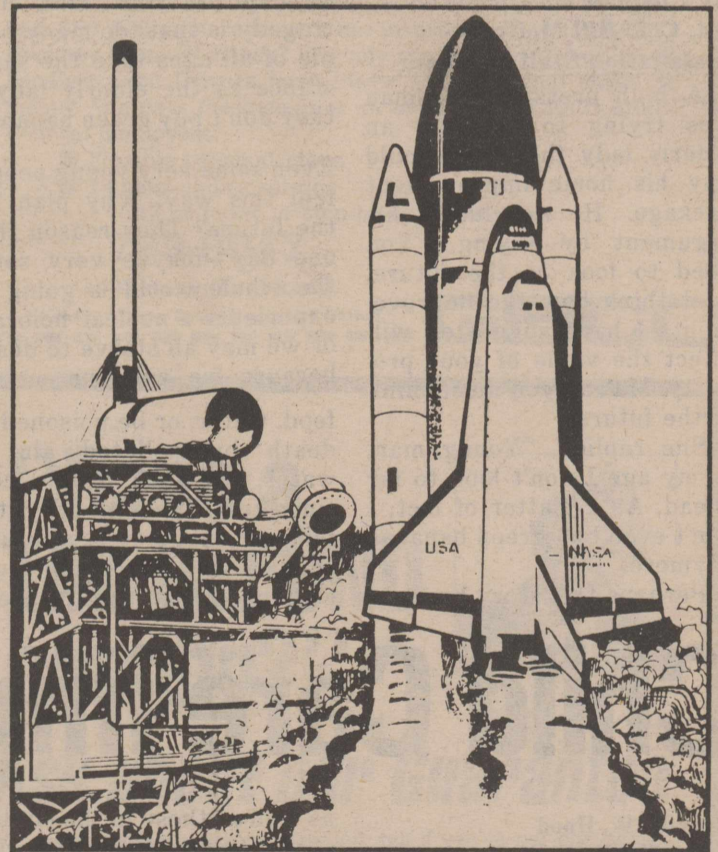

Before leaving their home installation, travelers should check local wear policies at their destination. These policies may be obtained from the Personal Affairs Office or a designated representative of the installation or area commander at the destination.

Further information may be obtained from Air Force Regulation 35-10, paragraph 1-7A (3).

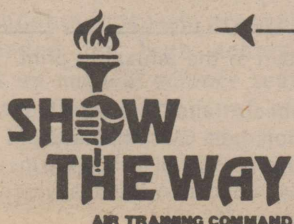

AFMPC officials also said people traveling by commercial bus, plane or train have the option of wearing civilian clothes or a uniform. However, those choosing to wear a uniform must wear the service dress uniform. The appropriate uniform for pregnant women is the maternity smock. (AFNS)

"The military use of space is not sinister, as the myths would have you believe. The military use of space is fundamental, a part of the foundation upon which we build a strong national defense and provide for our national security. To think that we could do otherwise would be a myth, and to take action to do otherwise would be a truly sinister act against our country."

THE ROUNDUP is an unofficial newspaper published under exclusive written agreement with the 64th Flying Training Wing Commander in the interest of personnel of Reese AFB, Texas, of Air Training Command. It is published by Barron Publications, Inc., a private firm, in no way connected with the Department of the Air Force. Opinions expressed by the publisher and writers in this publication are their own and are not to be considered an official expression of the Department of the Air Force. The appearance of advertisements, including inserts, in this publication does not constitute an endorsement by the Department of the Air Force of products or services advertised.

Careline

Ext 3273

The Careline is prepared by Col. Bob Hullender, 64th Flying Training Wing commander, on a weekly basis. All information provided to the Careline will be held in strict confidence. Callers are urged to give their name and duty telephone number so that a personal reply may be made; however, neither are mandatory. Callers should use the Careline only after all possible means to air their views or complaints through the chain of command have been exhausted. The number is 885-(Ext.) 3273.

A member of the supply squadron called about the child care center on base. Her 4½ month old child cannot be accepted until the child reaches 6 months or until more infants of the same age are brought to the center. In this instance, the child care center has governing directives come down from HQ USAF and ATC that set this policy. Although sometimes inconvenient, these directives are to protect you and your children. However, in this case and in many others, Mr. Hernandez at the Child Care Center has and will continue to work with just such special circumstances in mind to help find satisfactory solutions. Adjustments can be made, and I'm asking that everyone work together to make the program work smoothly. Remember this is your center, we earnestly need your support.

Another caller questioned the civil engineers' policy for picking up bulky items that need to be discarded. It seems that this individual called CE's service desk and was given one set of instructions for discarding an old mattress by leaving it beside her dumpster for collection. When the caller followed these instructions he was given a citation for discarding the item improperly. It seems bulky items can be placed beside a dumpster for pickup only on the first Monday of each month. I am sorry for the inconvenience. The CE service desk personnel have been rebriefed to provide complete correct advice next time this question arises. Again my apologies for your trouble.

A sergeant from the communications squadron called to compliment the people who run the Caprock Cafe dining facility for the fine food. I am glad you enjoy the food at the Caprock Cafe. Mr. Les Majors and his staff from Cantu Services do their very best to provide Reese personnel the highest quality service. Thanks for your call!

Another compliment came by way of a gentleman who felt he received special treatment from Mr. Johnson of MWR when the caller went to rent a Bass boat. I am glad you took time to acknowledge the extra effort of another of our fine people in the MWR Division. And by the way, though you didn't catch any fish, you'll always have your memories of the one that got away.

A lady called in reference to a parking ticket she received. She wanted to know what constitutes a no parking area here on base. Once again, Yellow curb markers are no parking areas, a yellow marker with black writing on it is designated parking for the individual indicated. The red curb markers are forbidden parking areas to keep fire lanes open.

My last caller stated his concern that cooks and waitresses at the officer's club were told to work on their free time after having clocked out. I can assure you that this allegation is unfounded. Open mess employees are scheduled for duty with allowance made for "set up" and "clean up" times. The ending time is usually an estimate, because we never know exactly when the last customer will finish. In any event no employee is expected to complete his or her assigned duties outside the realm of the scheduled time. We will adjust our policies whenever necessary to keep it that way. Thank you for your call.

Go Ahead, buy green bananas!

By Chaplain
(Lt. Col.) Bill McGraw
Installation Staff Chaplain

A high pressure salesman was trying to convince an elderly lady that she should buy his home improvement package. He concluded his argument by saying, "You need to look to the future. Just think how the improvements I have suggested will effect the value of your property. Ma'am, you must think of the future."

She replied, "Young man, at my age I don't look to far ahead. As a matter of fact, I don't even buy green bananas anymore.

Perhaps this story brought a smile to your face. The tragedy is that too many people of all ages take the same stance as the elderly lady—they don't buy green bananas.

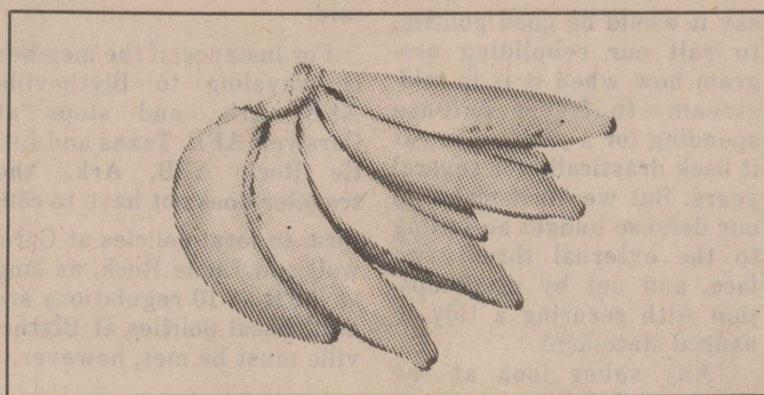

Even some very young people feel this way. Why plan for the future? They reason that one day—maybe very soon, the whole world is going to experience a nuclear holocaust or we may all starve to death because we will run out of food, water, or be poisoned to death by polluted air or water. As such people continue to list reasons why it is folly to think of the future, they become more and more convinced that buying green bananas may be sheer stupidity.

If I could get the ears of young men, young officers and even the ears of more senior persons, I would say, "Go ahead. Buy some green bananas. There is a future for those who have eyes to see. And the bananas you buy will ripen. Once you have eaten them, you can buy another bunch of green ones. That's the optimistic view of life."

A historical perspective is great. Making full use of the present is recommended. But to be fully alive and alert is to be able to work, dream and plan even greater things for the future.

Go ahead! Buy lots of green bananas and believe that you will be able to see them all turn into golden yellow.

A Reese reunion day would be unthinkable if those who preceeded us had failed to buy some green bananas. June 14 will be a memorable day because wise leadership at Reese were willing to believe in a future filled with promise.

Child Care important to military child

By Jack W. Hood
Chief, MWR Division

For many years, the benefit of child care programs focused on the contribution that such services provide to the children enrolled. Nursery schools and day care centers were discussed in terms of what they offered to children and their effect on children.

In the last few years, there has been increased recognition that child care centers and preschools, these operated by the military services, as well as those in the civilian sector, contribute to the productivity of employees and the quality of life of families.

The Air Force is one of the leaders in employee-sponsored child care, operating over 120 Child Care Centers and 100 preschools worldwide for children of Air Force members.

Several research studies have documented that the availability of child care increases productivity by reducing tardiness and absenteeism and job turnover. It also reduces the possibility that parents will be distracted by concern over where their children are and if they are safe. The availability of child care is especially important in the Air Force where reporting to duty and attention to the job are crucial in mission accomplishment.

Over 30 percent of the children served in Air Force Child Care Centers and preschools are children of single parents and military couples who rely heavily on Air Force centers to support them in their role as parents. Most of the families that Air Force centers serve contribute two persons to military work force—an active duty member and a DoD civilian. Over 65 percent of the second parents work on base in CONUS and 95 percent overseas.

During April, Air Force will celebrate the month of the Military Child. A variety of activities will be conducted as part of this celebration. The Reese Child Care Center and Preschool program will have a parade which will start in front of the Child Care Center at 12:30 and end at 1:30 April 12.

Also, we will be having an open house picnic April 18 at 11 a.m.

All base personnel are invited to attend.

Air Force child care programs operate under the auspices of the directorate of Morale, Welfare and Recreation, HQ AFMPT, Randolph AFB, Texas.

Can Ivan really think?

By Col. James Thomes
Keesler AFB, Miss.

Nine years ago, Lt. Viktor I. Balenko flew a MiG-25 Foxbat across the Soviet border to Japan. He sought political asylum in America.

At that time, the Foxbat was the hottest plane in the Russian skies. Western intelligence analysts were eager to examine it and exploit what most thought to be somewhat esoteric and mystic Soviet high technology.

They were disappointed. The aircraft was built of steel, not titanium, welded and riveted by hand. A 3G turn would rip off the wings, Lieutenant Balenko verified. The engines were enormous, but primitive, and gulped fuel at an incredible rate. (Of the 14 tons with which Lieutenant Balenko started his 500-mile flight, only 52.5 gallons remained.) All of the avionics equipment used vacuum tubes.

The aircraft was fast, but it lacked the technology of even our most primitive combat fighters.

Today, we read that the Soviet KGB has published a "wish list" of technology they want to steal from the United States. The items range from children's toys to our most sophisticated weapons delivery systems. The Soviet Union has recently established important contracts with reputable firms in Switzerland, West Germany and the United Kingdom to purchase high technology through a third party.

They'll take it any way they can get it.

Look at Soviet military and civilian aircraft. Note the similarity to U.S. aircraft. The swing-wing technology of the MiG-23 was introduced in the 1960s on our F-111. The An-72 Coaler is a dead ringer for the Boeing YC-14 prototype. The Il-76 Candid bears a striking resemblance to our C-141 Starlifter. The Russians don't currently have an aircraft which looks like our A-10 Thunderchief II; however, the Northrop's A-9 prototype which lost the fly-off to the A-10 reappeared as the Su-25 Frogfoot close air support fighter. And most recently, the YAK-36 Forger incorporates the technology of the 10-year-old AV-8 Harrier. Why?

Why can't the Soviets develop high technology themselves? The riddle becomes even more puzzling when one considers the Soviet state-sponsored programs to educate their youth.

As far back as 1917, Lenin realized that the Soviet Union would have to become technologically superior to the West in order to achieve the communist goal of world dominance. To achieve this superiority, the Soviet Union embarked on a massive educational program to produce engineers.

Students in Russia are well-rewarded for high achievement on natural science tests and are financed through college by the state in an effort to proliferate engineers and scientists.

And yet these young men and women, despite all the benefits of a free, state-sponsored education, cannot keep pace with the creativity of their American counterparts. Those dour and serious students seen in communist propaganda seemingly can't hack it in head-to-head competition with what is portrayed as the fun-loving, beer-drinking hell raisers on American campuses.

The question "Why can't Johnny read?" is more accurately, "Why can't Ivan think for himself?"

I believe the answer is simple and found right in the constitution of the United States which provides for "life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness." High technology emerges from the well-spring of creativity, and creativity can only flourish in free minds living in a free society.

Dictatorships cannot force a man to be creative. The American society which allows us to choose to become a historian or a computer scientist, a physical education major or an electronics engineer, is fundamentally different from the Soviet bureaucracy, which forces its youth into an occupation which best suits the state's interests.

Where as the freedom to choose one's occupation is the framework for Western creativity, the capitalist 'profit motive,' which the communists are so fond of defaming, is the engine—the moving force that turns creativity into creation.

I witness this every day. When you're in the field of computers, you're in the 'big leagues' of fast technological development. If you're not moving ahead, you're falling behind. Success demands developing new technology and getting it on the marketplace before your competition.

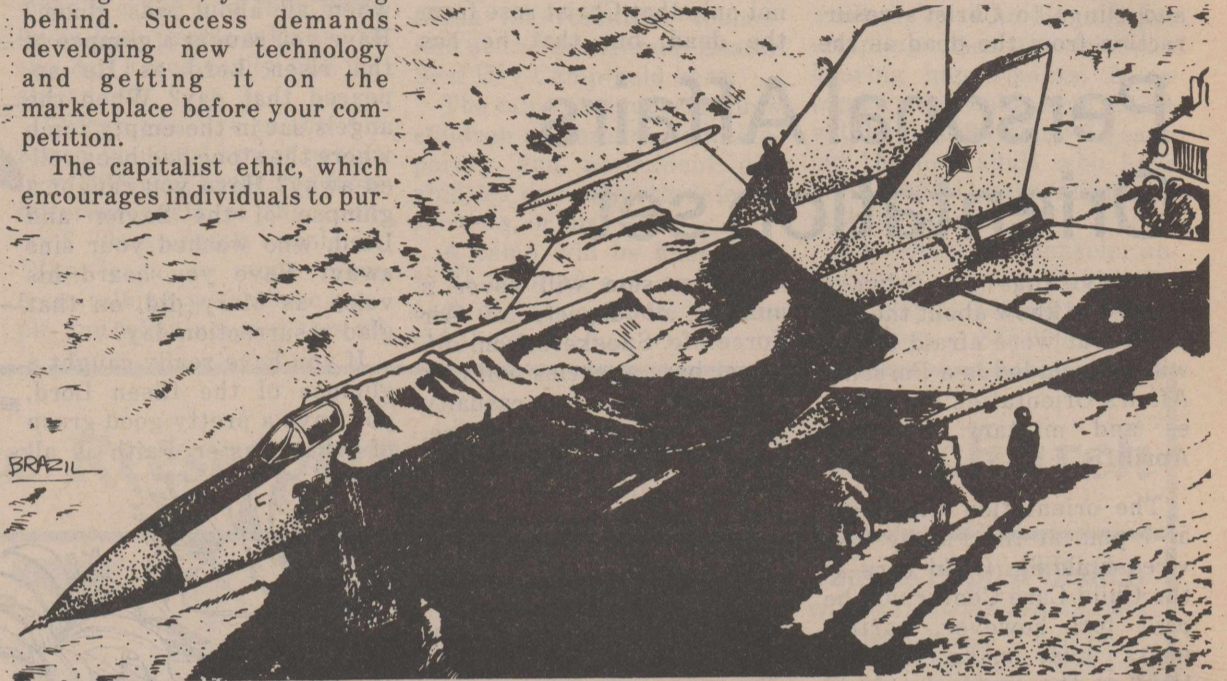

The capitalist ethic, which encourages individuals to pursue happiness by making more money, is opposite to that of the Soviet Union, and perhaps even some Western organizations where the pursuit of happiness is suspect.

In the book "MiG Pilot," by John Barron, Lieutenant Balenko told of the repressive society he left. The stifling atmosphere served bureaucracies well by suppressing individuality and assuring conformity merely for the sake of conformity and little else.

So I believe that the life, liberty and pursuit of happiness guaranteed us by the Constitution have resulted in a thriving economy and a wellspring of technological growth that are the envy of our potential adversaries. As Thomas Paine once said, "Democracy is the last, best hope of mankind." (Courtesy of Keesler News)

The real meaning of 'Easter Faith'

By Chap. (Lt. Col.) Bill McGraw
Installation Staff Chaplain

What is Easter Faith? It is more, much more, than the acceptance of Christ's resurrection as in historical fact. It is the trust of the heart in Christ himself as the one "who was put to death for our trespasses and raised for our justification." (Rom 4:25).

Easter Faith understands and clings to Christ's resurrection from the dead as the grand climax of our Lord's conquest of devil, sin and death for me and my salvation. Such Easter Faith is not "empty" or "futile", but our cause of joy and basis for hope precisely because the real event of Christ's resurrection from the dead means that we are not still "in our sins" (I Cor 15:17).

The "miracle" of Easter is not only that Christ rose from the dead, but that he has redeemed all mankind.

Dessie M. Bridges said it well: "Have you caught a glimpse of the Crucified One, who died to set you free? With nail-pierced hand and thorn-pierced brow, as He suffered on the tree? Have you caught a glimpse as they lead Him away in the grave beyond the tomb? Enshroud in linen by tender hands, when all about was gloom? Have you caught a glimpse of the risen Lord as He appeared that day? When the angels sat in the empty tomb where the stone had been rolled away? Have you caught a glimpse of the Savior and Lord, who washed your sins away? Have you heard his voice, as Mary did, on that glad resurrection day?"

If you have really caught a glimpse of the Risen Lord, you have a pretty good grasp of what Easter Faith is all about.

Personal Affairs Orientation set

Everything you always wanted to know about the Air Force but were afraid to ask will be included in a Personal Affairs Orientation for spouses and military members April 15.

The orientation will begin at 7 p.m. at the Family Services building. Child care at the Child Care Center will be paid for; however, participants must make reservations at the center by April 12.

The session will cover a number of aspects of Air Force life. Speakers from different base agencies will talk about such topics as casualty notification and assistance, the CHAMPUS and DEERS programs, disaster preparedness, legal services, medical benefits, and educational assistance. A question and answer period will follow.

For more information, call Family Services at 885-3306 or Personal Affairs at 885-3482.

Survey reveals children's attitudes

Parents who may have wondered how life in the Air Force will affect their youngsters may be encouraged by the positive answers six Pease AFB, N.H., sixth-graders gave to the question: "How has being raised in the Air Force affected how you see people and the world around you?"

The brief survey was conducted by the Seacoast Flyer, base newspaper at Pease.

"Once, after we had been on vacation," James Furtaw remembers, "we came through the gate and saw all these people walking around carrying signs. They were saying bad things about the Air Force and I couldn't understand."

"They don't know what's going on. I know what SAC does, I know that the Air Force is here to protect us. I try to help my friends who aren't in the Air Force understand what it's all about."

One of his classmates, Sandy Maple, added, "When your dad's in the Air Force, he works every day. Sometimes I don't see him for a while and I have to learn to be patient. He's going to be retiring soon and while he's been in, we've gone to alot of places. I think I've made alot of friends while we've been traveling and it has taught me a lot about myself."

"I've had the chance to meet people from many different places and listen to the stories they tell about where they come from," says Brien Peeler. "I've learned a lot about how other people live. I might need to know that information some day if I should go to those places or even if I need to do something for school."

Leticia Hernandez says, "I think being associated with the Air Force taught me a lot about what the Air Force really does and about the many kinds of people in the Air Force."

"Some of my friends, kids whose parents aren't in the Air Force, don't understand what it's like and they don't know how people who are in the Air Force really like it," she added.

"When you live in the Air Force, you get to meet people from different bases and from different parts of the country," Tara Ariola explains. "You learn so much more from talking with these people and when you put this all together you know a lot about our country."

Friends are important to Matt Waakles, who says, "I've made a lot of friends while living in the Air Force, more than if we had only lived in one place. My dad explains what's going on to me and I think I understand better because we have been so many places."

Camp volunteers needed

Applications are now being taken for volunteer counselors at the 6th Annual Easter Seal Day Camp held here.

The camp attendees include children and adults with temporary and permanent disabilities due to birth defects, accidents, or disease.

A camp will be held June 17-21 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day for campers 7 years old through adult who are in rehabilitation from accidents, strokes, or who have other crippling diseases, vision, or hearing impairments. A second camp, held June 24-28, will be held for those 7-years-old through adult who have mild mental retardation and multihandicaps.

For volunteer counselor applications, contact Debbie La Frombois at 885-3691 or Earl Hutchings at 885-3006.

critical weapons, a defense freeze or drastic cut in defense would not help very much to overcome the federal deficit. For we must remember that for every one billion dollars that is cut from the defense budget we would eliminate 35,000 jobs—and we would lose taxes those American citizens pay. And since many of them would not find new jobs at once, all of the governmental costs associated with unemployment would go up. In fact, if you cut defense spending by one dollar, you only reduce the deficit by about 50 cents.

"The real cause of the deficit of the 1980's is the overspending on domestic programs during the 1970's. Real spending on those non-defense programs more than doubled during that decade, while defense spending fell by 20 percent. President Reagan has restored a more realistic balance between defense spending and social spending. And right at this point, I'd like to try once again to dispel a very popular, and very wrong, myth that has been sent around the country: You will hear almost every day that we can never get domestic spending cuts unless defense is cut too—or that defense has not contributed to deficit reductions. Let me try to explode those myths that are routinely repeated to demagogically, with a few facts.

"Four years ago President Reagan laid out an investment plan to rebuild our defenses, projecting for the congress how much we would need each year through 1986. The defense budget we presented to the Congress already has been cut $53 billion below that 1981 projection. And each of our defense budgets of the last four years was also lower than the 1981 estimates—by an average of $24 billion each year.

"During 1984 we tried to settle on a firm number for our Fiscal Year 1986 budget, so we could restore stability to our defense program. In May, President Reagan agreed to a compromise that would cut his 1986 defense budget by $25 billion below the January estimate. Again when we completed work on this 1986 budget in early December, we cut another $11 billion on top of that $25 billion less than Congress itself approved for 1986, just four months ago.

"So much for those who say that defense has not taken its share of cuts.

"Now what has happened in these four months, since Congress approved its figures for 1986, that would warrant the massive additional cuts in defense that are being preached by so many? Has the Soviet threat somehow magically gone away? Clearly not.

The Soviets have returned to the negotiating table to talk, but they will test our willpower and strength of purpose by watching to see if once again America will decide to cut back on defense investment. And if we do, there will be no incentive for the Soviets to agree to any real reductions themselves.

Why should they, if we reduce our defense programs before any agreement is made?"

Duty is difficult

By Capt. Kevin L. Reinert
3051st Air Force Recruiting
Group Headquarters
Hanscom AFB, Mass.

My heart began beating at an incredible speed, my legs started to shake and my voice nearly cracked as I spoke the words, "I regret to inform you of the death of your son..."

I had been called at 10 minutes to 6 this gray and frigid Saturday morning. The mortuary affairs officer at Westover AFB, Mass., had a duty for me. I was to drive to the home of an airman and inform his parents that their son was dead.

Her screams still echo in my ears.

Somehow, as I continued to read the message, the parents seemed to hear every word. The message said so much, but not enough. As the parents regained some of their composure, they bombarded me with questions I couldn't answer.

The airman had been killed the night before, his motorcycle struck broadside by a car. He had run a red light. Witnesses said the motorcyclist had been hotdogging through traffic.

For a few moments the father cursed his dead son's motorcycle. He told me he hadn't wanted the boy to have one because they were too dangerous.

Once I was sure the initial shock had passed, I left. It was a difficult drive home—my busy mind couldn't concentrate on the road. My mind kept going back to the scene when I first arrived.

The father was working on his car in the driveway. Inside the white frame house, the mother was tidying up the breakfast nook and four children were playing.

That all changed abruptly when I, in my crisp service uniform, asked to speak to the parents alone.

Memories of that Saturday have haunted me. Whenever I see a motorcycle rider taking an unnecessary risk, I wonder why....

I'm not the first officer to go on casualty notification and I certainly won't be the last.

My time may come again, but if everyone drives a little more carefully...Please be safe! (AFNS—courtesy of the Silver Wings, Columbus AFB, Miss.)

AF to collect on student loans

DENVER (AFNS)—Time has run out for Air Force people who owe money on school loans to the Department of Education, according to Accounting and Finance Center officials here.

The Department of Education has asked the Air Force to collect from 1,879 Air Force people who have defaulted on their education loans. Of that total, 762 are active duty, 532 are retirees, 325 are reservists and 260 are civilian employees.

Officials said letters are to be sent to everyone affected by the collection. The letter will specify how much is to be withheld, when the deduction will begin and any changes to allotments needed to satisfy the entire amount.

Under federal law, the officials explained, the Air Force is required to deduct 15 percent of the employee's pay, after taxes and other deductions, until the debt is paid off.

The Air Force cannot adjudicate, negotiate, resolve or cancel the debt, officials emphasized. Questions should be directed to the Department of Education, Student Loan Collection Task Force, Room 3661, ROB 3, 400 Maryland Ave. SW, Washington, D.C. 20202.

The officials added that withholding should begin in mid-April.

NCOA installs new officers

Col. Robert Dale recently assisted the Windmill Chapter of the Noncommissioned Officers Association in administering the Oath of Office to the organization's newly elected officers. MSgt. Frank Berg took the oath of office of Chapter Chairman, and SSgt. Michael Boyle took the oath of office of the Vice Chapter Chairman.

For his continued support for the organization, Colonel Dale was made an honorary member of the NCOA. Making an officer an honorary member is rare, according to NCOA officials.

Sergeant Berg hopes to increase membership participation. "I want the NCOA to be a prominent association and this can only be accomplished through maximum participation from the general membership."

Also, Sergeant Berg is interested in community support and has spent many hours raising funds for the Texas Special Olympics. "I am glad to be a part of this association and hope to see the NCOA's annual donation to the Area 17 Special Olympics exceed $3000."

Sergeant Berg intends to work closely with the chairman to fulfill and meet his goals for the organization. Prior to being selected as the vice chairman, he was the committee chairman for public relations.

Hurlburt records record bust

HURLBURT FIELD, Fla. (AFNS)—Hurlburt Field made its largest drug bust ever in March while participating in the vice president's south Florida joint drug task force, known as Operation Bahamas and Turks.

The bust netted 1,800 pounds of cocaine, an aircraft and two people. The street value of the seized cocaine was estimated at $300 million.

"Cooperation and coordination are the main factors in achieving a bust, no matter how large or small," said a pilot with the 20th Special Operations Squadron here.

The squadron provides transportation for the Bahamian strike force, the Criminal Investigation Division and drug enforcement agents.

"Most of the flying is done at night using night vision goggles simply because the drug traffickers are using them too," the pilot said.

"Everyone down there is a professional. Many a time, the basic plan has to be changed after you're in the air because of the situation. With our training in special operations techniques, these changes seem routine. Every crewmember gives input concerning the situation; it's not just my decision," he said.

"Since our participation in operation Hat Trick during November and December, the drug trafficking seems to have slowed down through the Bahamas. It is starting to pick up again as seen by these seizures," said Lt. Col. Warren Hubbard, assistant operations officer for the 20th SOS.

Run for heart

Saturday morning the Old Style American Heart Classic five and one mile fun runs will take place here.

The races will begin at 10 a.m. and start and finish at the picnic area.

Registration fee is $7, each entry will benefit the American Heart Association. You may pick up your packet today at the First National Bank, New Account Department, 1500 Broadway and on race day at the picnic area, Reese Air Force Base from 8:30-9:30 a.m.

For more information, contact David Jackson (806) 763-6700, or Chip Gilmour at (806) 765-8861.

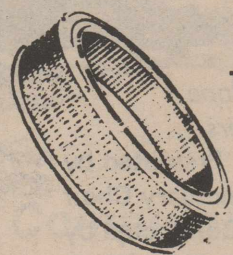

First place overall male and female winners will receive a commemorative stein and winners in various age groups will be awarded.

Lubbock Softball

Reese AFB has three teams participating in the recreational softball leagues in downtown Lubbock. The teams include the Reese Women, Reese Rattlers #2, and Reese AFB.

Airman doesn't budge Just for laughs

By TSgt. Buddy Garrett
314th Tactical Airlift Wing
Public Affairs Office
Little Rock, AFB, Ark.

"Why don't you move?"
The driver really didn't say anything, but you could see it in his face. After all, I was stopped dead in the middle of the road and I wasn't about to budge.

Why? Because the national anthem was playing.

I can't tell you how many cars passed me while I waited at attention. Maybe they didn't hear the music. I wondered if they were blind as well.

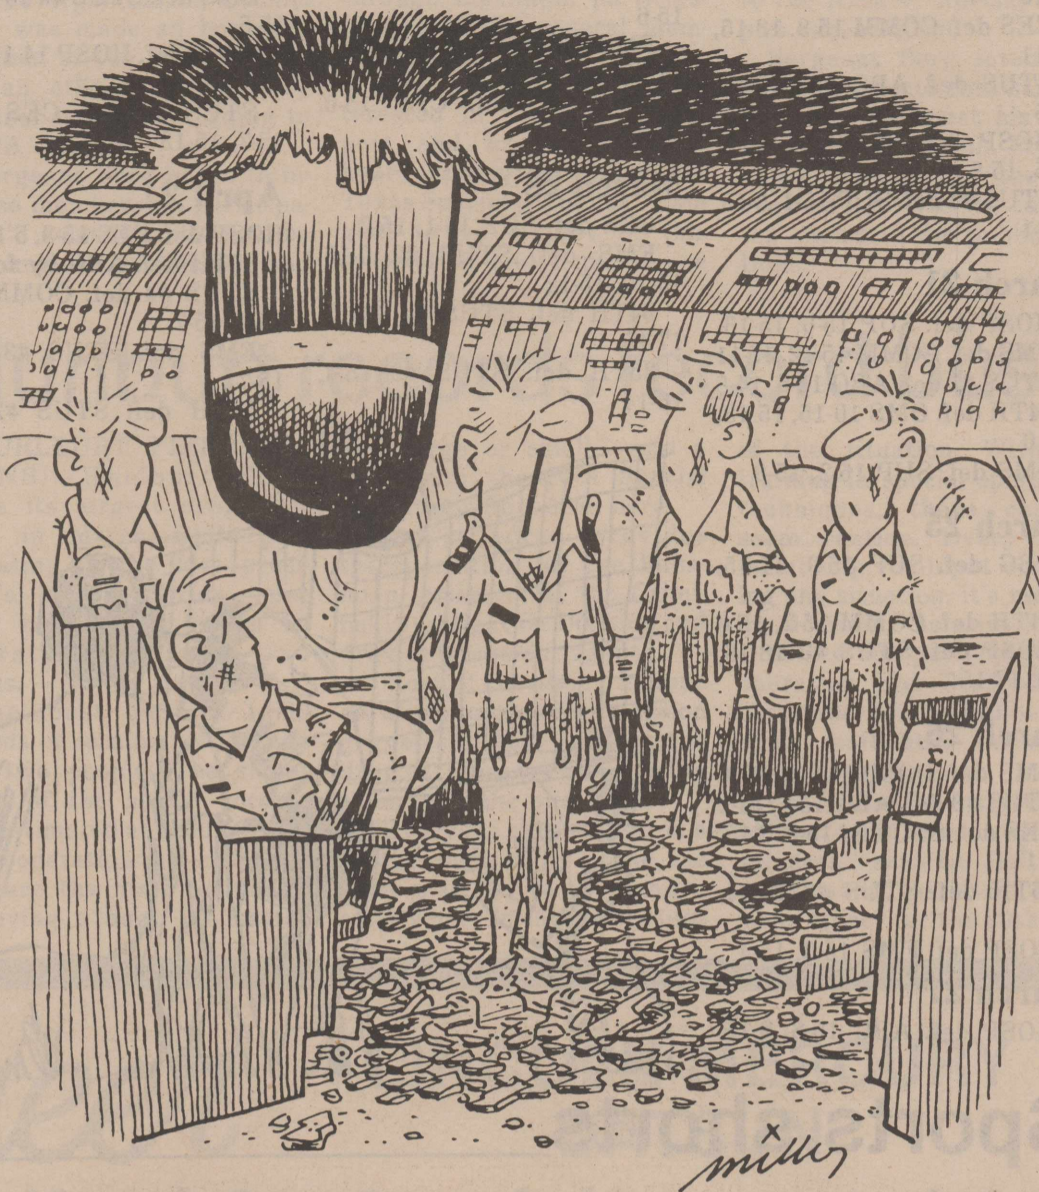

Just a few yards in front of me was a white car with blue stripes that wouldn't budge. The driver stepped out and smartly saluted.

Even though I couldn't see his face, I knew his fingers were rigid, the tips proudly touching the blue beret he wore.

I was glad it wasn't just me. There are younger folks around who are proud to show their patriotism. Forget that the book says you have to stop—do it because you want to.

As for the guy behind me... I've got news for you, fella—This old airman ain't gonna budge. (AFNS—courtesy Air Scoop, Little Rock AFB)

"Congratulations! That launch was straight as an arrow. Now let's try for accuracy!"

Group announces plans

The Singles Sharing Together are preparing for a weekend camping trip to Possum Kingdom Park, May 4-5. Twenty or more single Reese persons will enjoy a weekend of fishing, swimming, picnicing, and relaxation. To help finance the trip, the group will conduct a car wash April 13.

During the past seven months the group has enjoyed weekends at Six Flags Amusement Park and Sierra Blanca Ski Resort. The group enjoyed numerous local picnics and outings last summer, as well.

The group is continually looking for new members. The next function is an after-work barbeque, April 12.

Persons interested in joining the Singles Sharing Together should contact Chaplain Oberheide at the Chapel.

Pastors to visit

Several pastors of Lubbock will visit the base April 18 for Clergy Day.

Scheduled is a luncheon in the Fellowship Hall of the Chapel, and a film entitled, "The Air Force Community," which gives an overall view of the Air Force Chaplaincy.

Following the film, clergymen will tour the base.

Top civilians named

By 2ndLt. Pat Barnes
Deputy Chief,
Public Affairs Division

On the night of March 23, Reese recognized its top civilian workers for the work they did over the past year. The annual event was highlighted by the announcement of eight different winners and guest speaker, Senator John T. Montford from the 28th Senatorial District of Texas.

During the banquet each winner was presented a plaque from 64th FTW Commander Colonel Bob Hullender. This year's winners are:

GS 1-4, Frank Wyatt, a supply technician from MA.

WL & WG 1-8, Rocky Shaw, Warehouseman from 64th ABG.

NAF 1-3, Sheryl Morris, Child Care attendant from the MWR Division.

WL & WG 9 & below, Richard Bratton of OMS and Pedro Pina of FMS.

GS 5-8, Elaine Saylor from DO.

NAF 4 & below, Glynda

Williams, Restaurant Manager. GS 9 & above, Sam Lanham, and Pauline Reed.

Wage Supervisor, Apolinar Garcia, Fuels distribution. System Foreman, Supply Squadron.

Also, a plaque was presented to Art Bullock for his services and a picture of a T-38 presented to Senator Montford.

Personality features on all of the winners will be featured in upcoming issues of the Roundup.

Perspective needs changed

By Lt. Col. Phillip Litts
Det.17, Site Activation Task Force
Loring AFB, Maine

As a child, I occasionally didn't want to finish a meal or eat a particular dish my mom had set before me. Her initial approach to this situation was to say, "Think of the starving children in China."

This worked until the day I unwisely retorted, "Name two." Sitting was not a fun thing for a day or so after what I thought was a very witty and clever comeback.

The productive part of this little experience was the ensuing conversations we had about those less fortunate than us. And something happened recently that took me back to those talks mom and I used to have.

The other day as I was eating breakfast and watching the early morning news, I saw a story that caused a variety of emotional reactions—humor, surprise, incredulity, sorrow, anger, fear, bewilderment, frustration and helplessness. Not bad for a two-minute news segment.

It appears that somewhere in the Midwest a national motel chain sponsored a weekend retreat for Cabbage Patch dolls! What began as a comment made in jest on a local radio station ended with a group of individuals running a "Getaway Weekend" for a paltry sum of $6 a day. The weekend was a huge success.

While I'm not going to condemn anyone for this weekend, do you see anything ludicrous about this story?

I can't fault the disc jockey who planted the idea in someone's mind, or the individuals who planned the retreat, or the motel for wanting to turn a buck, or the doll owners who participated. But somehow, somewhere, someone has to put things in proper perspective.

For weeks and months, we, the American public, have been bombarded with the plight of the drought and famine victims in Africa. We are aware that people in India, Bangladesh and other sub-Asian countries are also in similar straits.

There are people in the good old United States of America that go to sleep hungry. And yet we're able to support a Cabbage Patch doll retreat!

I don't have the answers—just the questions. I, like millions of others, have contributed money to aid the famine victims. But sometimes I honestly feel my drop in the bucket only forestalls the inevitable.

Maybe Sally Struther's approach of adopting a starving child is a valid answer—maybe volunteering your free time to help the needy, or joining the Peace Corps, maybe community projects to send packaged food stuffs, maybe prayer, maybe...

For those of you waiting for and expecting the definitive solution, I'm sorry, I don't have it. I'm writing this because I don't know what else to do.

Everything I've done as an individual or with my family hasn't changed the current situation. But maybe, just maybe, someone will find the answer soon.

So we all have to keep trying. I do know one thing for certain—as individuals, as families, as nations, we need to start putting things in proper perspective. (AFNS—courtesy of Limelight, Loring AFB)
