Tower killed...

Witnesses say plane gave off loud 'bang' prior to tragic crash BRUNSWICK, Ga. (AP) — The plane carrying former U.S. Sen. John Tower and 22 others gave off a loud bang before diving nose first into the ground and bursting into flames, killing everyone aboard, witnesses said.

The twin-engine Atlantic Southeast Airlines plane did not carry a flight data recorder, and investigators so far have few clues into the cause of Friday afternoon's crash, said Preston Hicks, a National Transportation Safety Board official from Atlanta.

"Some witnesses did indicate that there was a loud bang, and then the airplane nosed over and hit the ground," he said late Friday.

Airline officials had not released the names of the plane's 20 passengers and three crew members by early today. But colleagues and relatives confirmed that Tower, a Texas Republican; his daughter, Marian Tower; NASA astronaut Manley Lanier "Sonny" Carter Jr.; and Dr. Nicholas Davies, the president-elect of the American College of Physicians, were among those killed.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "The hardest part of learning something new is unlearning the old."

Sunday, at 2 a.m., the time will change to Daylight Savings Time again. So be sure to move your time pieces up one hour.

It is surprising the number of clocks and watches that require setting when the time changes each April and October.

We suggest you have the kids do it for you. And if there isn't a first or second grader around your house, borrow one from the neighborhood.

Those digital and electronic time-pieces are a nightmare. Each year, we have to find the owner's manual on our car clock, and each year we think we will surely remember how the next time a change is required. Still, we search for the operating manual.

It's hard to remember, from one time to another, which button to push to get into the time-change mode. Is it one button or two? We get A.M. and P.M. confused with A.M. and F.M.

If you miss it, you have to go all the way around again. If you are lucky, you won't get in the month and day mode, so you don't have to change that feature — if you're lucky.

The twice yearly change of time is discussed and cursed each year as some like it while others don't. Some say the smart people live in Indiana, Arizona and Hawaii as they stay on Standard time all year.

It reminds us of a story about an airline passenger who asked what time the flight would arrive in New York City.

The stewardess said, "We are due to get there at 1:15 unless you have set your watch by Eastern time, which would make it 2:15."

Then of course, if you are going by Daylight Savings Time, it would be 3:15, unless we are one hour and fifty minutes late... which we are."

Research: 1991 season mild

MIAMI (AP) — The coming hurricane season should be mild, but within the next several years Florida may experience a return to the killer storms last seen in the 1960's, a noted hurricane researcher has predicted.

And once they begin, the destructive conditions will last at least two decades, said William M. Gray, a professor of Atmospheric Science at Colorado State University.

This year, weather conditions point to a relatively mild season, with less than 10 tropical storms forming and fewer than six of those becoming hurricanes, Gray said.

Since 1984, Gray has been predicting the number of hurricanes and tropical storms likely to develop during the hurricane season, which runs from June 1 to Nov. 30. With the exception of 1989, Gray's forecasts have been 80 to 90 percent accurate.

In 1989 Gray predicted there would be four hurricanes. There were seven. He predicted that the hurricanes would last a total of 20 days. They lasted 32. He also predicted they would be relatively weak. Hurricane Hugo — the 10th most powerful storm this century — hit South Carolina and caused $7 billion in damage.

Gray went back to the drawing board.

"In a way it was a blessing in disguise," Gray said. "I knew I hunted that forecast and spent the last year and a half trying to find out why."

Gray had made all his previous predictions by measuring wind currents over the Pacific and Atlantic oceans.

Pre-requisite testing set April 11

Pre-requisite testing for persons wishing to gain the American Red Cross lifesaving certification needed for lifeguards will be held April 11 at Western Texas College.

The testing will begin at 7 p.m. at the WTC indoor pool. Students will need to suit out and be ready to swim at that time.

Persons interested in working as lifeguards this summer should be aware that all Red Cross lifesaving certifications expired

Dec. 31, 1990, Mike Harrison, WTC physical education instructor, said. The new course is much more intensive and requires additional swimming skills and certification in Red Cross Standard First Aid/Adult CPR.

Harrison will conduct the pre-requisite testing on April 11 and will also be instructor for a first aid/CPR course and a lifeguard course to follow. The first aid/CPR course will meet on April 26 and 27. The fee will be $25 per person.

The lifeguard course will meet on April 27, 28 and May 3 and 4. The fee is $75.

Harrison will teach a lifeguard preparation class prior to the lifeguard course to help students improve their swimming skills if the class is needed.

A minimum of six students will be required to form the class.

Division moving to Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Exxon Chemical Co. officials announced the company headquarters will move from Darien Conn., to Houston this summer.

"This decision was not an easy one," said H. Eugene McBrayer, president of Exxon Chemical on Friday. "But we do feel it is best for the great majority of our employees, their families and our shareholders."

About 100 employees will be transferred in August to Houston.

Darien is about an hour's train ride from New York City, and some "promising professional and managerial talent" had been resisting moves there, McBrayer said.

"Unfortunately it has been difficult to attract some of these people to Connecticut because of the high cost of living," McBrayer said. "Moving to Houston will alleviate this concern and also will minimize the need in many cases for family relocation as an individual's career progresses."

Employees will work out of temporary offices in the Westlake project near Eldridge.

Desert Storm soldiers visit local history class

Two Operation Desert Storm soldiers spoke to Peggy English's sixth period U.S. history class on April 2 at Snyder High School.

Capt. Andrew Contreras, a former student of Mrs. English, and Lt. Tom Serna answered questions about the military operation in the Persian Gulf. Each also shared their personal reactions to the conflict with the students.

Many students were interested in the weather as well as available food and bathing facilities. Other students wanted to know what the hardest or worst experience of the war was for the two soldiers.

Both men agreed it was the waiting. They arrived in Saudi Arabia on Aug. 7 and the "alert" period of waiting was as hard as the actual ground conflict. Waiting was still tough as the two men wondered how soon they would be able to leave after a temporary cease fire was agreed upon.

Contreras and Serna both said they were shocked to see the condition of the Iraqi soldiers — both living and fighting. This lessened their actual fear of the conflict because they knew the enemy was ill prepared for battle.

They said the Iraqi soldiers captured in battle "had it great because they then had an over abundance of food, water and more than adequate shelter."

The two soldiers spoke of one captured Iraqi who became a kind of "camp pet." He even helped to erect a fence which was designed to keep himself and other Iraqi prisoners.

The Iraqi also helped in other ways — especially by making a bad situation bearable for the Iraqis as well as the U.S. troops.

The students also asked many questions about the women of Saudi Arabia. Since the Saudi women are kept rather isolated, neither Contreras or Serna saw very many of them.

They also said no U.S. women were stationed with their tank division of the calvary. But both said that any military females they encountered were treated exactly as their male counterparts were.

Many students displayed an interest in the military as a career, asking questions about salaries and assignments and how to become an officer. One even wanted to know how someone becomes a general.

Both Contreras and Serna said that getting a good education was of paramount importance and each recommended ROTC for those really interested in a military career.

Contreras said he joined the ROTC at the University in Texas in 1982.

Serna said he did not join the officer training school until after he had been in the calvary five years. So, money wise, he encouraged ROTC.

Contreras told the students that not everyone is "cut out" to become a soldier or an officer. He said one of his greatest concerns throughout Desert Storm was for the men under his command. He expressed great pride in what they helped achieve.

He told of how they all "got along together" in spite of adverse weather conditions, lack of bathing facilities, and other difficulties.

Contreras and Serna both spoke about the supportive mail they received while in the gulf. They said they did not get to watch CNN or any other broadcast once the war began with Allied air attacks.

Contreras expressed much appreciation for Snyder and Scurry County which was so supportive with both mail and packages for the duration of Desert Storm and Desert Shield.

They were disappointed though that they never received the cases of picante sauce and chips etc. which their friends in El Paso had sent them. Both had been stationed at Fort Bliss for their base assignments.

They believe though that these and other missing items mailed to them will eventually reach them at their home base addresses.

Contreras stressed it felt "very good" to be home in both Fort Bliss and Snyder. A 1980 graduate of SHS, Contreras remarked on both the "sameness as well as the numerous changes" which had taken place at the high school during the past decade.

Throughout the past years, Contreras has kept in touch with Mrs. English. He is also interested in becoming a teacher or school administrator someday, but hasn't decided if he wants to remain in the Army the full 20 years or not. Both he and Serna have 13 years apiece to go.

Their visit to Mrs. English's class was called "timely" because students are currently working on World War I and World War II booklets and work sheets as well as studying about the aftermath of these conflicts.

Concluding remarks centered on the important of getting a good education and the students were encouraged to "hang on" to the feeling of patriotism which has prevailed since this conflict began.

They each expressed pride in having personally met Vice President Dan Quayle and Gen Norman Schwarzkopf, commander of the U.S. forces in the gulf.

Contreras said he plans to return to Snyder before Mrs. English retires because he wants to give her class a chance to "brown bag" it — the name given to dried Army rations.

Contreras also visited Northeast Elementary where he attended grade school.

U.S. offers food, clothes to Kurds

NEWPORT BEACH, Calif. (AP) — President Bush, stung by criticism that he abandoned Iraq's Kurds after encouraging them to revolt, said Friday he was ordering U.S. planes to air-drop humanitarian aid in the mountain area where many of them have fled.

He warned Iraq's government not to interfere.

"Beginning this Sunday, U.S. Air Force transport planes will fly over northern Iraq and drop supplies of food, blankets, clothing, tents and other relief-related items for refugees and other Iraqi civilians suffering as a result of the situation there," Bush said in a statement released by the traveling White House.

"The human tragedy unfolding in and around Iraq demands immediate action on a massive scale," he said. "At stake are not only the lives of hundreds of thousands of innocent men, women and children, but the peace and security of the gulf."

He also said he was having Secretary of State James A. Baker III stop in Turkey en route to the Middle East this weekend. Baker will meet with Turkish President Turgut Ozal and assess the refugee situation which includes thousands of people crossing Iraq's borders with Turkey and Iran.

Later, Bush was asked how the humanitarian aid would help Iraqis who are still being attacked by Saddam Hussein's army.

"I'm very much concerned about the violence and I'm hopeful that that will calm down," he replied. But he reiterated that neither the United States nor its coalition partners from the Persian Gulf War planned to intervene militarily.

"It is heartbreaking when you see these families on the road, pushed out by a brutal dictator," Bush said.

Asked if he were prepared to offer asylum to Iraqi refugees, Bush said: "I think every country should do its part, and we certainly would be open minded. But certainly what I think they ought to do is to be able to stay in their own area, their own country."

'Great quake' possible in northwest

SEATTLE (AP) — A gigantic earthquake could strike the Northwest, where the ocean floor is slowly being shoved under the continental plate, said a study published Friday.

The geologist-authors of the study didn't predict when a quake might occur, but their findings lend credence to previous researchers' warnings that major earthquake stresses are building along a 1,000-mile stretch between lower British Columbia and far northern California.

"The data support the 'great earthquake' hypothesis," said Michael Lisowski, who co-wrote the study with J.C. Savage, a fellow geologist with the Geological Survey office in Menlo Park, Calif. Their research was reported in Friday's issue of the journal Science.

Using measurements over an eight-year period, they found that the Olympic Mountains in northwestern Washington state are slowly being squeezed together at the rate of about one-eighth of an inch each year.

Small brass discs were placed on eight mountaintops in 1982 and the distance from mountain to mountain was recorded using laser beams and mirrors.

TRAIN WRECK ...
One of Texas' most spectacular train wrecks occurred in the fall of 1896. The wreck took place on a siding called "Crush" near present-day West. Two Missouri Kansas and Texas locomotives, each pulling six box cars, going at full speed ran head-on. No one was killed and a crowd of 40,000 witnessed the wreck. Miracle? No, "The Great Train Wreck" was a well advertised, staged entertainment affair.

Raiders hand Hogs SWC setback

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Texas Tech's Mark Brandenburg held Arkansas scoreless until the sixth inning to help the Red Raiders to a 4-1 Southwest Conference baseball victory on Friday.

Bubba Carpenter's sacrifice fly sent Allen Williams' home for Arkansas' lone run.

Texas Tech scored one each in the first and sixth innings and another two runs in the eighth.

Arkansas drops to 26-14, 3-7. Texas Tech moves to 34-9, 7-3. Brandenburg pitched a complete game to improve to 9-4 and 2-1. Arkansas starter Matt Wagner falls to 2-2 and 0-2.

Crow may have found new coach

HOUSTON (AP) — Texas A&M athletic director John David Crow has recommended to President William Mobley that Creighton's Tony Barone be named head basketball coach, a Houston television station reported.

Sources told KRIV-TV Friday night that the matter now rests in the hands of the president.

Crow interviewed Barone Thursday on campus and afterward said "We may find one and stop, or we may bring in more (applicants)." Crow has a list of five candidates for the job and Barone was the first interview.

Barone has led Creighton to three straight 20-victory seasons, including a 24-8 record last season.

Crow is seeking a replacement for Kermit Davis, who resigned last month under pressure. Davis coached the Aggies for one season.

Patrick fans 14, allows just two hits in district victory

By PHIL RIDDLE

The Snyder Tigers used a 14-strikeout, full-game effort by junior pitcher David Patrick Friday to post a 6-1 District 2-4A win over Dunbar.

"I never dreamed he would go the whole way," said Tiger coach Albert Lewis of Patrick's feat.

"He was throwing so well that we just didn't want to take him out."

The Snyder defense also played an excellent game, going errorless for the first time since district play began.

Dunbar drew first blood in the fourth inning when Paul Ramos walked and scored on two wild pitches.

The Tigers answered with a run of their own in the last of the frame as designated hitter Chad Fox was issued a base on balls by Dunbar pitcher Raymond Flores then went around the horn on a walk to Les Rinehart and an RBI single from Mark King.

Snyder came up with two more in the fifth inning.

Second-baseman Brian Crawford smacked a base hit and came home on a John Wright double.

Fox was next up, driving Wright across on a single.

Raymond House, SHS third-baseman, drilled a 2-RBI double in the last of the sixth, then scored on a single by Patrick to insure the victory.

The Tigers move to 6-13 on the season, but more importantly, take a share of second place in the league with a 2-1 mark.

Dunbar slides to 2-15 overall and 0-3 in district battles.

Chet Lemon joined a lot of other high-priced players without a job Friday, when the Detroit Tigers released him three days before the first game of the season.

Lemon, 35, was a three-time All-Star while with Detroit and the Chicago White Sox. He had a .273 career batting average.

"He played in a lot of games," Tigers manager Sparky Anderson said. "Sixteen years. He doesn't have to feel bad about his career. No sir. But, they all end sometime. That's the way baseball's always been."

Lemon is in the final season of a four-year, $3.7 million contract. He will receive $1.1 million in termination pay.

Anderson said the emergence of rookie Milt Cuyler, plus the off-season signing of Rob Deer, made Lemon expendable.

The Tigers claimed infielder Luis de los Santos off waivers from the Kansas City Royals. De los Santos, 24, has played in 39 major league games over parts of the 1988 and 1989 seasons, hitting .220. He batted .280 at Class AAA Omaha last year.

Guillermo Hernandez, the 1984 American League MVP, and Greg Gross, one of baseball's top pinch hitters of all-time, also got cut.

Hernandez was trying to make a comeback with the Philadelphia Phillies. Gross was in camp with San Diego, but was let go when the Padres signed Mike Aldrete. Mike Felder found a spot, too, with the San Francisco Giants.

Keith Hernandez, as expected, was put on the 15-day disabled list by the Cleveland Indians. He will undergo back surgery on Monday.

Hernandez, 37, is in the second season of a two-year, $3.5 million contract. He was limited to 43 games last season because of a calf problem and batted only .200.

The Indians also put John Farrell on the 15-day disabled list. Farrell is recuperating from elbow surgery last October and will miss at least half the season.

The New York Yankees claimed outfielder Scott Lusader on waivers from Detroit, the Atlanta Braves signed Glenn Wilson to a minor league contract and the Houston Astros sent Eric Anthony and Gerald Young to the minors.

Fontenot rips into standings

BIG SPRING — Reeves, La. cowboy Benji Fontenot, riding for Western Texas College, scored top-ten times in three roughtstock events Friday in the second performance of the Howard College Rodeo here.

Fontenot started the night with a sixth-place 58-point ride in saddle broncs and followed in bareback riding with a 63, good for fifth.

He capped off the night by grabbing second in the rodeo's bull riding with a 75.

"I hate to say too many good things prematurely, the way we've been snakebit this year," said WTC coach Bob Doty, "But it looks like, maybe, we're getting some of the things done early in a rodeo that we need to do."

Besides Fontenot's points for WTC Friday, Jennifer Lee of the college's women's team notched a pair of high finishes Friday.

Lee, from Las Vegas, Nev., turned in a 4.0 time in breakaway roping to take fourth position with one show to go.

Her 11.9 clocking in goat tying was good for third with only Saturday's performance left.

Renee Dollar, a WTC cowgirl from Burleson, had her 4.3 breakaway time from Thursday slip to sixth and saddle bronc rider Shawn Tibbs' Thursday 72 dropped from first to second with a 73-point score from Jason Yahzee of Vernon Regional JC on Friday.

The rodeo's final round in the long go was slated for 7:30 p.m. Saturday.

Well, tomorrow's the big day. Following last week's interviews of prospective basketball coaches for the vacant Western Texas College position, the search committee is slated to make their recommendation to the college's board of trustees during Monday's regular board meeting. Candidates for the job, which opened in mid-March when Tony Mauldin accepted the head coaching position at Abilene Christian University, include Lon Morris assistant Dave Shepherd, Frank Phillips head coach Kelly Green and former Salt Lake Community College coach Jeff Menday.

Some parting shots from the NCAA Final Four. How 'bout those Blue Devils. For all who have boo-hoed to me about how lucky the Duke squad was to have beaten the thought-to-be unstoppable UNLV Runnin' Rebels, you just didn't watch the game.

Duke played UNLV's style, physical and intimidating, and came out on top. On a related basketball subject: I wonder if the guy that tossed Dean Smith out of the North Carolina-Kansas semifinal came from the WJCAC.

Smith was wrong, admittedly, in playing mind games with a man with no sense of humor and an already-proven quick whistle. The fact that the stripe-shirt became the only ref to give the thumb to a head coach in the NIT and the NCAA tourney, makes it seem like maybe the man in the zebra suit was looking for a little publicity, himself.

Why else would an official boot a man of Smith's stature in the college game, with only 36 seconds left in a game that was already, obviously over, on such a nit-picky call as being out of the coaches box. I'd be curious to see if the guy gets the chance to call another late-round tournament game in the near future.

Good news and bad news from Big D.

First the good news. Middle linebacker Eugene Lockhart, who was left unprotected on the Cowboys 1991 roster, was approached by several other NFL teams and offered, in his words, "a couple of hundred thousand" more than his current pact with Dallas is worth. He decided, however, to stay with the up-and-coming Cowboys out of loyalty.

"My heart is with the Dallas Cowboys," he told the press. In this day of athletic mercenaries and skyrocketing salaries in sports, it is refreshing to find a player of Lockhart's caliber who has the guts to stay where he wants to be, even if it costs him.

Now the bad news. Pity poor Roy Tarpley, the Dallas Mavericks star that can't seem to stay out of trouble.

Tarpley, who is sitting out this season with a knee injury, said early this week he wanted to be traded to another team because Dallas law enforcement authorities were "harrassing" him.

Just because he was driving drunk, the second time since he was suspended by the NBA for cocaine abuse, and just because he was flying through a 35 mph zone clocked at 63 mph.

Those nasty old Dallas cops wanted to pick on him. Well, Roy, I hate to tell you this, but even if you hadn't been suspended, there's not much of a market for basketball players with bad knees, a worse attitude, a history of drug abuse and a guaranteed eight million-dollar contract in the NBA.

I'm sure the Mavericks are wishing there were about now. The Dallas brass is probably just as tired of reading and hearing about your exploits as the rest of us.

Lady Tigers take meet crown

WALL — Snyder's girls rolled for 106 points and the championship of the Cotton Patch Relays here Friday.

Snyder bested runner-up Wall's 84 points, 66 from Coleman, El Dorado's 55 and 54 from Miles.

The Lady Tigers' strength at the Wall meet was in the field events as Snyder captured first and second in both the discus and the shot put and added a first in the long jump and a second in the triple jump for good measure.

State ranked Vinnie Clay headed the top distance in the discus throw, 114-4 1/2, and was trailed by Katina Brandon's 109-5 in the runner-up slot in the event.

Brandon's 40-2 was tops in the shot put and Clay took second with a 37-2 1/2 effort.

Nicky Riggins' 17-2 was good for first in the long jump. In addition, Riggins notched a 33-10 in the triple jump that earned Snyder second-place points.

Dallas' Tarpley is suspended following last DWI incident

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Mavericks owner Don Carter says the team has considered rebuilding without talented but troubled forward Roy Tarpley.

"The last three years, things have happened to make us say maybe we've got to regroup," Carter said before the Mavericks' game against Utah Friday.

"Everybody was unanimous that the team we had entering this season, we went for it all. You know what happened to that," Carter said. "We may be back to playing entertaining, scrapping ball like we did in the early days. If we get to the point where we throw up our hands, that's the way it's got to be."

Tarpley, 26, was suspended indefinitely without pay for violating his NBA-mandated aftercare program for substance abuse. He admitted having three beers before his arrest last weekend on suspicion of driving while intoxicated.

Because the 7-foot, 245-pound player was already sidelined for the year because of a knee injury in the fifth game of the season, the suspension with 10 games left in the 1990-91 season likely won't affect his playing status.

Tarpley had not been expected to return to the team until preseason workouts next fall. But the suspension definitely will affect his pocketbook.

"Although there are only 10 games left in the season, it's important to realize that Tarpley is paid on a 12-month basis, so the suspension without pay really is unrelated to how many games we have left," said Kevin Sullivan, director of media services for the Mavericks.

Tarpley reportedly earns $765,000 a year, or $63,750 a month.

Tarpley, who has an unlisted phone number, was unavailable for comment.

Dr. Dave Lewis, medical director of the ASAP Family Treatment Program in Van Nuys, Calif., which runs the NBA's anti-drug program, announced the suspension a day after meeting for two hours with Tarpley in Dallas.

Lewis informed the NBA and the Mavericks on Friday of the suspension.

"I'm satisfied he is in violation of his aftercare," Lewis said in a statement released Friday by the Mavericks. "It is a violation of his aftercare contract to use any mind-changing chemicals, alcohol or drugs."

Tarpley will be allowed to continue to work out and rehabilitate his knee at Mavericks facilities, Sullivan said.

"As to when he'll come back, we have no input. Whenever they decide he's got his act back together again, they'll unsuspend him," Sullivan said.

Lewis, who also serves as Tarpley's personal physician, said Tarpley will be reinstated as soon as he is back in compliance with his aftercare program.

"The reason for suspending a player is not punitive, but it is to motivate the player to get back into compliance as quickly as possible."

It marks Tarpley's second suspension by ASAP. After an earlier DWI arrest in November 1989, Tarpley was suspended without pay for 33 games, which cost him $225,365.

Tarpley, a two-time offender of the NBA's anti-drug program, passed a league-administered drug test for cocaine and heroin the day after his arrest. Had he tested positive, he would have been banned from the NBA for at least two years.

Tarpley made himself subject to disciplinary action after his arrest early March 30. Police said they clocked him going 63 mph in a 35 mph zone. They said Tarpley was seen drinking from a bottle of beer and that there were two empty bottles and five unopened bottles in his car.

Western Texas wins second place best overall in contest

The "Western Texan," student newspaper at Western Texas College, won second place for Best Overall Newspaper in Division 3 at the Texas Intercollegiate Press Association (TIPA) convention held March 28-30 in Fort Worth.

WTC's "Aquifer" was named third best overall in literary magazine competition. First place went to Sul Ross State University and second to Midland College. East Texas Baptist University received honorable mention.

In live competition at the convention, WTC's Mark Carroll from Hawley received second place in the news photo contest.

The WTC newspaper received a first place in news page design, third place for an illustration by Chris Bond of Snyder and second place for a computer generated infographics entry created by Paul Davidson of Anson.

Individual newspaper honors went to Glenn Boerger from Gordon, third in sports news; Paul Davidson, third for a single ad; Chris Bond, third for an ad campaign; Mike Avila of Snyder, third for a sports feature photo; and Keitha St. Clair from Spur, honorable mention for an editorial.

Division 3 is for newspapers with circulation under 3,000. Named best was "The Flare" from Kilgore Junior College and third went to the "El Pisano" at Midland College.

In literary magazine judging, Janice Northerns of Snyder received first place for her short story titled "Atonement;" Mary Alice Smith of Snyder received third place for an opinion piece, "Kinfold in the Family of Man;" and third place for the same article judged as an essay; and Kay Carrisales of Snyder received honorable mention for her poem, "The Park."

In 1990, "The Western Texan" was third overall in the TIPA competition.

Colleges wishing to enter the TIPA competition submit three consecutive issues of their newspaper. This year's entries were taken from publications in the 1990 spring semester and the 1990 fall semester.

"The Tempest"

WTC to present Shakespearean play

"The Tempest" by William Shakespeare will be presented by the Western Texas College drama department April 11-15 in the Fine Arts Theatre on campus.

Performances will begin at 8 p.m. on April 11, 12 and 15 and at 2 p.m. on April 14. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for students and senior citizens and can be reserved by calling the box office at 573-8511, ext. 234.

Directing "The Tempest" has been an aspiration of director Jim Rambo since he performed in the play as a student at Abilene Christian University in 1971. The WTC students available to cast the play at this time gave him the opportunity to fulfill the long-held ambition.

"The Tempest" is one of the most popular of Shakespeare's plays. It has always been a favorite with poets and lovers of Shakespeare. Written in 1610 or 1611, it was Shakespeare's last play and many critics feel that it was his farewell to the stage.

"It combines elements of pageantry, comedy, mystery, romance, a struggle for power, and wonderful love scenes and spirit scenes," Rambo noted. This will actually be the first traditional Shakespeare production at WTC, he added, and an elaborate set designed by Galen Price will add to the show.

In "The Tempest," Prospero, the Duke of Milan is deposed by his brother, Antonio. It is Prospero who delivers one of Shakespeare's famous quotes: "We are such stuff as dreams are made on..." Richard Lack of Snyder has been cast as Prospero.

Miranda, Prospero's daughter, is played by Amber Adams of Snyder. Frank Romeo of Roby is Antonio. Wade Freeman of Snyder is Alonso, king of Naples, and Coy Berryman of Snyder is Ferdinand, Alonso's son.

Caliban, a savage and deformed slave, is portrayed by Jeff Hicks of Muleshoe. Tommy Reeves of Snyder is Gonzalo, an honest counselor and Brad Vincent of Snyder is Trinculo, a jester. Jerry Vizena of Thorndale is the airy spirit Ariel. Kenn Kern from Hurst is cast as Stephano, a drunken butler.

Others in the cast are Sherry Cribbs of Hawley as Iris and Jennifer Hatley of Vernon as Ceres.

Romeo and Freeman will be other spirits attending on Prospero.

Art work for the program and posters was done by art students Kerri Carter and Kristi Carter of Ira.

Efforts to free hostages have reached dead end, Iran says

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran's foreign minister said Friday that efforts to free Western hostages in Lebanon were at a "dead end" because their captors have gotten nothing for releasing captives in the past, Tehran radio reported.

The radio, monitored in Nicosia, said Velayati was speaking in an interview with two U.S. television networks.

from a visit to Tehran on Thursday, said the Iranian government was working to secure the release of Western hostages.

Dutch Foreign Minister Hans van den Broek, who returned

"Iran is ready and already making efforts" to win freedom for the captives, he said.

Repeating previous conditions for the release of the hostages, Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati said that hundreds of Arab prisoners must be freed by Israel and its proxy, the South Lebanon Army militia.

Velayati also said relations between Tehran and Washington, severed in 1979, could improve only if billions of dollars of Iranian assets frozen in the United States were released.

But he did not link that issue to the hostages. Iran denies any involvement with the kidnapers, saying it only has influence with

Financial Focus

Today there are hundreds of investment newsletters available. Some are large, established publications; others are small, low-budget publications that are long on promises and short on returns.

If you're looking for a newsletter to help guide your investing, how do you separate the wheat from the chaff?

1. What are my specific needs? Are you interested in conservative, blue-chip stocks with large capitalizations or low-priced penny stocks that enable you to speculate on emerging companies?

2. How long do I plan to let my money work? Some market letters stress in-and-out trading; others emphasize buying stocks for long-term growth.

3. Am I concerned more about general market trends or about market timing? There's a big difference between buying quality stocks in a poor market environment and trying to "time the market" as to the ideal buying opportunity.

4. What is the track record of this market letter? Don't be misled by advertising and promotion. There are a number of publications that rate market letters by how well or how poorly their recommendations compare to other market letters. These include HULBERT FINANCIAL DIGEST, TIMER DIGEST, and SIE PERFORMANCE REVIEW AND TIMER DIGEST.

5. What is the size of the market letter's circulation? Those with large circulations are generally more conservative. In an effort to avoid the potentially harmful impact of their recommendations on smaller markets, they focus on larger corporations. They are also more conservative in forecasting market trends. Small market letters, on the other hand, may call it as they see it, right or wrong.

6. What is the investment philosophy of the author? Study his or her fundamental and technical approach. Regardless of the quality of the publication, you must be comfortable with the recommendations.

Because of the numerous recommendations made by the authors of a market letter, their success statistics can be deceiving. Keep in mind that few investors can follow each stock recommendation. In addition, commissions must also be added to the cost of trading, which affects your profit or loss.

All things considered, unless you are experienced and willing to invest time and money, market letters can be a costly path to success.

Sausage festival preparations enter final seven days

Preparations are entering the final week for the fourth annual St. Elizabeth Sausage Festival slated for Sunday, April 14, at the St. Elizabeth Parish Center, 30th at Avenue A.

Serving hours will be from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. An "all-you-can-eat" sausage dinner complete with all the trimmings will be served.

Tickets are $5 for adults, $3 for children six through 12 years of age, and $1 for children 5 and under. Tickets may be purchased at the door or in advance at G&G Glass or Lang Tire.

Takeout orders will be available as well as sausage sold by the pound. Prices are $2.75 a pound uncooked and $3 a pound cooked.

In addition, game booths and a country store will be available and items will be given away in exchange for donations. These prizes include first prize, cedar chest donated by John Bane; second prize, afghan donated by Muriel Mapes; third prize, painting donated by Helen Wadleigh; fourth prize, decorative mirror donated by G&G Glass.

Richards wants Senate to restore bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators can expect a call from Gov. Ann Richards, who wants them to restore a hazardous waste dump moratorium bill that was gutted by a Senate committee.

Richards supports a bill stalling construction of hazardous waste dumps until strict state rules are developed. But the Natural Resources Committee amended the bill to allow permit applications filed before the bill's effective date to be judged under current regulations.

"I expect I'll be talking to some members. I don't think it'll come out of the Senate with that amendment," Richards said Friday.

But she added that she expects the bill to have "tough sledding" in the House. The chemical industry has voiced opposition to the moratorium.

Do You Want To Save Money And Conserve Energy While At The Same Time Receive Up To $500 In Cash?

If So, Read On!

Dear Homeowner:

If your cooling system is over six years old, it could be costing you a small fortune in utility bills.

But there is a way for you to gain control of some of your expenses, by replacing your old inefficient system with a new state-of-the-art high efficiency Lennox system. The savings can get as high as 30-40% on your monthly cooling and heating bill. That savings alone can pay for your new system in as little as four years.

Why Buy Now? My old system is still operating!

Why would you want to purchase a new system when your old one is still operating? Because you can take advantage of a limited time special offer from Snyder Heating & Air Conditioning and Lennox that will dramatically reduce the cost of your new system. For a limited time, Snyder Heating & Air Conditioning and Lennox will give you up to $500 cash back when you replace your old system with a high efficiency Lennox cooling system.

So, it sounds good. Now what's the catch?

There is no catch. The energy savings are real and so are the rebates. This offer is being made available to you by Snyder Heating & Air Conditioning, the contractor that has set the standard for quality in the Snyder area. Our heating and air conditioning specialists are available for an appointment at your convenience.

To learn more about this opportunity and receive your rebates call 573-1753 today for a no cost, obligation free estimate of your actual energy savings with a high efficiency Lennox system.

Sincerely,
Don McMillon

Atlantis sets off on quest for science

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Atlantis set off on a new quest for science Friday, climbing 286 miles through sunshine and clouds to put the second of NASA's Great Observatories to work snaring elusive gamma rays from the universe.

"Hey, thanks a lot. It was a great ride," shuttle commander

Steven Nagel said when Atlantis was comfortably in orbit.

A rookie astronaut, Jay Apt, was rhapsodic about his first view from space. "You won't believe how beautiful Hawaii just looked," he said. "I can see Mauna Kea. It had some snow and it was clear."

Crowds of Easter-week vacationers and young people taking their spring break camped out for days waiting for the spectacular liftoff of the shuttle and its crew of five. Their cars, campers and recreation vehicles filled every available foot of riverbank, roadside and parking lot with a view of launch pad 39B.

Traffic was backed up for miles on roads leading to the Cape Canaveral area. For some veteran space watchers, it was almost a throwback to the old days when crowds were probably estimated in the millions.

The launch disappointed no one. It proceeded without pause, except for a five minute-weather hold, and launch director Bob Sieck said "it's got to be one of the best, if not the best." The shuttle rose at 9:23 a.m. from its pad trailing twin jets of fire from its rocket boosters, turned, and headed out over the Atlantic.

During their five days in space, the astronauts will set the giant Gamma Ray Observatory adrift in orbit, do a two-man space walk rehearsing techniques of moving about in the space station.

Class needs addresses

The planning committee for the 25th reunion of Snyder High School's class of 1966 will meet at 3 p.m. Sunday at Stanfield Elementary School Library to make plans for the reunion set for July 5-7.

The group is seeking addresses of fellow classmates according to Brenda Benton Lee. She asks anyone having information about the following persons to call her at 573-2176.

Others are Carolyn Lane, Laverta Lovell, Brenda (Marsh) Gillespie, Carroll Marsh, Lowell

Police arrest two

Snyder police made two arrests and worked a minor accident in a 24-hour period beginning at 7 a.m. Friday.

A report for Class C theft was taken at 12:35 p.m. at McDonald's where an employee advised that four subjects had taken several plastic balls from the play area at the business. The subjects were later located at 38th St. and Beaumont and returned the balls. No charges were filed.

A 32-year-old male was arrested at 1:52 p.m. at Kingswood Apartments on a warrant for burglary of a vehicle. Roger Wayne Barnes was charged with the April 3 burglary of a vehicle belonging to Krystal McCarter in which a purse was taken.

An officer was requested at a minor accident at 5:53 p.m. in the 400 block of 20th Place. Involved were a 1987 Lincoln driven by Elizabeth Graves Brinner and a parked 1982 Chevrolet pickup owned by Lee Garza of 2301 Ave. E.

A 23-year-old male was arrested in the 2000 block of Huffman Ave. for public intoxication and disorderly conduct.

Former Senator John Tower will be mourned

DALLAS (AP) — Friends and opponents alike described former Sen. John G. Tower as a tough fighter who earned their respect while he battled for his beliefs.

"John Tower and I did not agree politically, but he worked hard for this state, and I mourn his death," said Gov. Ann Richards, a Democrat.

U.S. and Texas flags on the Texas Capitol were lowered to half staff moments after confirmation came that Tower and his daughter Marian had been killed in a Georgia plane crash.

"I'm deeply saddened by the loss of John Tower, a tough, able friend and patriot," said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas. "He was intelligent and had independence of judgment."

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, who replaced Tower when he retired, said the deaths were a "monumental personal tragedy."

"All his life, John Tower stood tall for Texas and America," said Gramm. "His passing leaves a void in the hearts of those who knew and loved him, and America will be that much poorer without his leadership."

"John never wanted anything so much as to serve the country he loved."

"He was one of the most important Republicans in Texas history. He will be missed by Texas for his leadership," said State Treasurer Kay Bailey Hutchison, a Republican.

"It is extremely difficult for those of us at the Republican Party of Texas to imagine life without John Tower," said state chairman Fred Meyer.

"For many years, John Tower was the Republican Party of Texas and he has continued to be one of the first people we look to whenever we need guidance leadership and direction."

"His legacy will live through the many bright men and women he groomed who are now serving in important leadership positions throughout the country," Meyer said. "He inspired all of us to work for good government."

Rep. Larry Combest, who worked for Tower from 1971-1978, said Tower should be given much of the credit for the success of Operation Desert Storm because of his efforts on behalf of the military buildup in the late 1970s and early 1980s.

"He is one of a select few who had the grasp (of military and defense matters) that he did. Unquestionably, it's a national tragedy," Combest said.

"I'm in Congress today because of him," said Combest, who worked for Tower in Texas and Washington.

Larry Nelson, a partner in John G. Tower and Associates investment consulting firm, said the former senator had defeated cancer three times and had recently begun a fitness regimen. "Three months ago he hired a trainer and was lifting weights three times a week and walking and jogging the other mornings," Nelson said.

"He had proven to all he had the dynamic as well as the discipline to rise above setbacks I think would have crippled most people."

Tower was headed to the resort of Sea Island, Ga., to promote his book "Consequences: A Personal and Political Memoir."

The book, published last year, was Tower's response to the Senate's refusal in 1989 to confirm him as President Bush's pick for defense secretary, the first time in three decades a cabinet nominee had been rejected.

In the book, Tower denies the allegations of womanizing and drinking that undermined his confirmation.

Tower taught history and government at Midwestern State University in Wichita Falls from 1951 until he was elected to the Senate in 1961.

A.G. Edwards, Tower's mentor at the school, said he kidded Tower about becoming a Republican after the World War II-era Dixiecrats faded.

Edwards, 101, said he wasn't surprised by Tower's political success. "He was one of best speakers I ever heard," he said. "We were good friends all the way," Edwards said.

China to Pakistan...

U.S. trying to head off sale of missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is trying to stop China from selling Pakistan new missiles that may be capable of carrying nuclear and chemical warheads, U.S. officials said Friday.

munization record should also be presented. All children must be immunized for polio, DPT, Rubella, mumps and measles (Rubeola) before than can enter school in the fall of 1991. Please contact the appropriate agency or office as soon as possible if your child does not have a valid birth certificate or required immunizations.

Parents of children in the four-year-old program also need to bring verification of current income or their food stamp card.

Spring Roundup pre-registration will be held from 8:30 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. each day at the First Baptist Church multipurpose building, 1701 27th St. Please register on the day that corresponds with your school attendance area: Monday, North and West Elementary; Tuesday, East and Northeast Elementary; and Wednesday, Central and Stanfield Elementary.

Parents who cannot register on the corresponding date may register on one of the other days.

Anyone having questions concerning Spring Roundup should contact Janice Brown or Barbara Granato at 573-9364.

The Chinese, cautioned by the Bush administration not to go through with the sale, "said they will be prudent," one official said. He added that the administration would "continue to make our views clear" to senior Chinese officials.

The missiles are now in the research and development stage. But if they eventually are delivered to Pakistan, the administration would be obliged under recent congressional legislation to impose sanctions on China.

One of the missiles, known as the M-11, is expected to have a range of about 300 kilometers, or about 187 miles. The other, the M-9, would be able to fly about twice the distance.

president; Earnest Salazar, chaplain; Manuel Salazar, community vice president; Daniel Salazar, membership vice president; Stephen Parker, individual vice president; Zulema B. Gonzales, treasurer; and Sylvia Engle, president.

Directors are Isreal Ortegon, Elena Chaidez, Sherry Spells, Maggie Collier, James Wallace, Ruben Trevino, Sylvia Trevino, Rachel Wallace, Diana Rodriguez and Mack Williams.

"The missiles are bad news," the U.S. official told The Associated Press. "Someone some day will be able to put a nuclear or a chemical warhead on them."

Under the new international Missile Treaty Control Regime, several nations — but not China — agreed not to sell missiles with a range beyond 300 kilometers.

The M-11 missile evidently falls right on the borderline while the M-9 exceeds the ceiling. The range of the missiles could be increased with lighter payloads.

"Right now, they cannot fly straight," said the U.S. official, demanding anonymity. "But in six months or nine months they could be a serious problem. And there could be elements in power in China willing to make a deal, particularly if our relationship is very bad."

Brunswick, crashed about three miles short of the Glynco Jetport. The pilot had not reported any difficulty, Beiser said.

The plane crashed into a thicket of trees, narrowly missing a mobile home park about a mile away. Rescuers had to bulldoze a 150-yard path to reach the flaming wreckage.

Intense fire made rescue attempts hopeless, said James Griner, a nearby resident.

"I saw the plane when it was in trouble. It started in on its nose and I knew it was in trouble," he said.

"I went to the plane but I couldn't get to it because of the fire. ... When I got to it it looked compacted, it was a mess. I looked for survivors around the plane and I couldn't find a soul."

The accident came a day after U.S. Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., and six others were killed in an air collision over a Philadelphia suburb.

Iraq accepts resolution ending war

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Iraq on Saturday accepted a tough Security Council resolution calling for a permanent end to the Persian Gulf War, Iraqi diplomats said.

The diplomats said the acceptance came in a 23-page letter from Iraq's foreign minister, Ahmed Hussein Khudayer al-Sammaraei, to Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar and the president of the Security Council.

"Iraq has found itself facing only one choice, that it must accept Resolution 687 (the ceasefire resolution)," said one of the diplomats, who translated the letter informally from the Arabic.

But the letter also complained the resolution was unduly harsh, and listed numerous objections, ranging from the settlement of Iraq's borders to disarmament in the region, the diplomat said.

Iraq also urged that all sanctions be lifted at once, the diplomats said.

No immediate explanation for air collision determined

MERION, Pa. (AP) — Pilots for U.S. Sen. John Heinz III had been told twice their landing gear was OK when the crew of a helicopter took a third look and the aircraft collided, killing seven people, a federal official said Friday.

Susan Coughlin, National Transportation Safety Board vice chairman, said there was no immediate explanation for the decision by the helicopter pilots to look again. There also was no preliminary indication of what caused the collision, she said.

The senator, his two pilots and the two pilots in the helicopter were killed. Two children on a school playground also were killed by the burning wreckage.

Residents of the area questioned why the two aircraft should have been allowed to fly close to each other over a residential area. "If they had just waited a few minutes, it could have been done over the airport, or the Delaware River, or someplace that would not have endangered the lives of residents or schoolchildren," said William Parry, an attorney whose backyard is next to the schoolyard.

The twin-engine plane with Heinz aboard was on its final approach to Philadelphia International just south of Philadelphia on Thursday when the pilots reported indicator lights in the cockpit showed the nose gear was not in place, Ms. Coughlin said.

"The air crew made a decision to fly by the tower for inspection purposes," she said. "The tower said it appeared the gear was down."

The plane was sent around and set up for a final approach again.

The crew of the helicopter, on the same radio frequency, "heard the no-gear situation and offered to join up with the Piper to perform a visual inspection," Ms. Coughlin said.

Air traffic controllers helped the two aircraft fly into close formation and the helicopter crew looked once and said the gear was in place.

"It was during a second inspection that separation of the two aircraft was lost and the collision occurred," Ms. Coughlin said.

The senator pilots were identified as Trond Stegen and Rick Shreck, both 30. The helicopter pilots were identified as Charles J. Burke, 42, and Michael Pozzani, 43.

The wreckage fell into the Merion Elementary School playground, killing Rachel Blum and Lauren Freulich, both 6.

By Shirley A. Gorman

Construction work runs in the McKinney family.

Charlie McKinney, before his retirement, helped build many a business and residence in Snyder. He learned much of what he knows from John Cole, his father-in-law, who died in 1954.

John McKinney has followed in his father's footsteps and has worked on such local construction projects as the Price Daniel Unit. Today, the younger McKinney does a little bit of everything from repairs and new construction to carpentry work, brick laying, painting and custom made stepping stones.

As a young boy, John helped his father on various construction projects but he didn't really get interested until he was older.

In past years, he worked on several local construction projects including the prison unit, the Pizza Hut, Golden Corral, Wal-Mart and two residences.

Today, John concentrates on his "handy man" skills and is often employed for various projects. One of his favorites though, are custom made stepping stones, which he will make according to the buyer's specifications. A recent project involved creating several stepping stones with a southwest theme for display around a yard.

Another favorite is one with the Texaco Star emblem which he made for his wife's father, who is employed by Texaco.

John, who has a natural ability to draw, first cuts the patterns out of pieces of wood, and then pours cement. While the cement is drying he puts the impression into it. For that special touch, he often uses colored aquarium rock or dyes the cement whatever color he needs.

After the cement dries, John brushes away any loose pieces. Then he pours Muratic acid over the surface. This acid not only enhances the beauty of the stone but helps preserve and protect it.

While beautiful, the stepping stones require several hours to complete. Depending on the time needed for drying, one stone can take up to a day to make.

John has always been influenced by the work both his father and grandfather have done. His grandfather made an outdoor bench and mailbox out of petrified wood which are still used today. Surprisingly though, John said he never took their work seriously until he was discharged from the service.

A civilian again, John started drawing pictures on his own while he would "camp out." Everything has blossomed from that moment in time.

John and his wife are currently remodeling their home, as time permits. In addition, he has invented his own recipe for Pin-cante sauce which he says is better than the commercial kind. He takes orders for the sauce, but never divulges his recipe.

John was born in Scurry County and has lived here most of his life, but his dad came to Snyder at the tender age of two years. That was in 1919 and he's been here since.

Charlie was raised on a farm and he well remembers the 5 a.m. stock feedings that were his responsibility as well as plowing from "dawn to dusk."

He attended Crowder School and on weekends often joined other children swimming in the creek or riding horses. Getting bucked off wasn't unusual, he said. You just got up and tried again.

He remembers the time when horses were tied to a hitching post at the courthouse on the square and riding in a two-seated surry. Riding the "drag" in those days means riding in a buggy and going around the square.

FROM FATHER TO SON — John McKinney, left, learned much about construction and brick laying from his father, Charlie McKinney, who in years past built many homes and businesses in Snyder. Both were also influenced by John Cole, John McKinney's maternal grandfather, who made this bench from petrified wood. Another family treasure is a mail box also made by Cole out of petrified wood. Cole died in the 1950s, Charlie McKinney is now retired, but John is still doing a variety of jobs including custom made stepping stones. (SDN Staff Photo)

Charlie's dad was a cotton farmer mainly, but as Charlie grew older he began to take other jobs and gradually "moved away from farming."

Pay as a farm and ranch hand was only $30 a month.

He married in 1939 and in 1941 received $15 a week to break rocks for the Lamesa Highway which was then under construction.

In those days, Charlie remembers a week's supply of groceries costing around $5.

Eventually, Charlie began working for his father-in-law who was then a "one-man contractor." In years past, one of his jobs was surrounding the courthouse with "rock worth."

Eventually, he branched out on his own and some of the local jobs he did included "millions of homes in Snyder," the brick and tile work for the present post office building, and the red brick building on College Avenue which now houses the county's tax appraisal district and the West Texas State Bank building.

In 1979, Charlie all but retired from concrete and construction work except for a few "little jobs."

Charlie said he found himself quite busy after the oil boom of the 1940s swelled the town to many more than the around 3,000 people who then lived here. And he said business stayed good until the downturn of the early 1980s.

He remembers the changes which took place during the increase in population and that it "kept him laying brick all the time."

He said he approached each job the same way — by just "wanting to do a good job."

Charlie didn't have a lot of free time when he was working full time but he did like to go hunting as often as he could.

In addition to John, he has another son, David McKinney, who currently serves as a prison guard for the Price Daniel Unit, and a daughter, Betty Haase, who lives in Midlothian.

Penwomen read work

The Scurry County Penwomen met in the Dermott Schoolhouse for their recent meeting with Jean Everett hostess.

The program, readings of cowboy poetry, was presented by Jackie Greene. He said that cowboy poetry was principally written in ballad meter. He noted that cowboy poetry meetings started in Utah 100 years ago, but the most interesting subject at the meetings is cowboy stories.

Greene recited the first cowboy poem he learned, "Reincarnation."

He also gave his rendition of "Lonesome Nights," by contemporary poet Melvin Whipple; "The Golden Wheel," author unknown; "You Never Told That," by Bruce Kissaddon; and "Tribute To Tornado and Freckles Brown," by Ron Pruitt.

Some books he suggested reading are "Cowboy Poetry Gathering" and "Songs of the Cowboy," by Thorp.

The Penwomen welcomed two new members, Bertha Warren and Schooler-Samikawa, both from Rotan.

In the reading session, members read their own work. Janelle Burk read her poem, "Campground Serenade," and "Listen to the Land." Betty Boyd read two poems, "Night," and "Young Poet."

Also, Samikawa read "Nature's Army," and "My Love." Garnett Quiett read "Butterflies Are Fickle," and Everett read a chapter of her book, "Ruthy," a story about Ruth Davis, a Scurry County resident who lived to be 101 years old.

The hostess door prize was won by Mary Westmoreland, and Christine Killgo gave a word of encouragement from "Nutshell Messages." She read, "No one ever stands so tall as when he stoops to lift another who has fallen," based on Proverbs.

The next meeting will be at 1:30 p.m. April 17 at the Martha Ann Woman's Club with Betty Kellum as hostess. Writers and visitors are welcome to attend.

By Phillip Alder

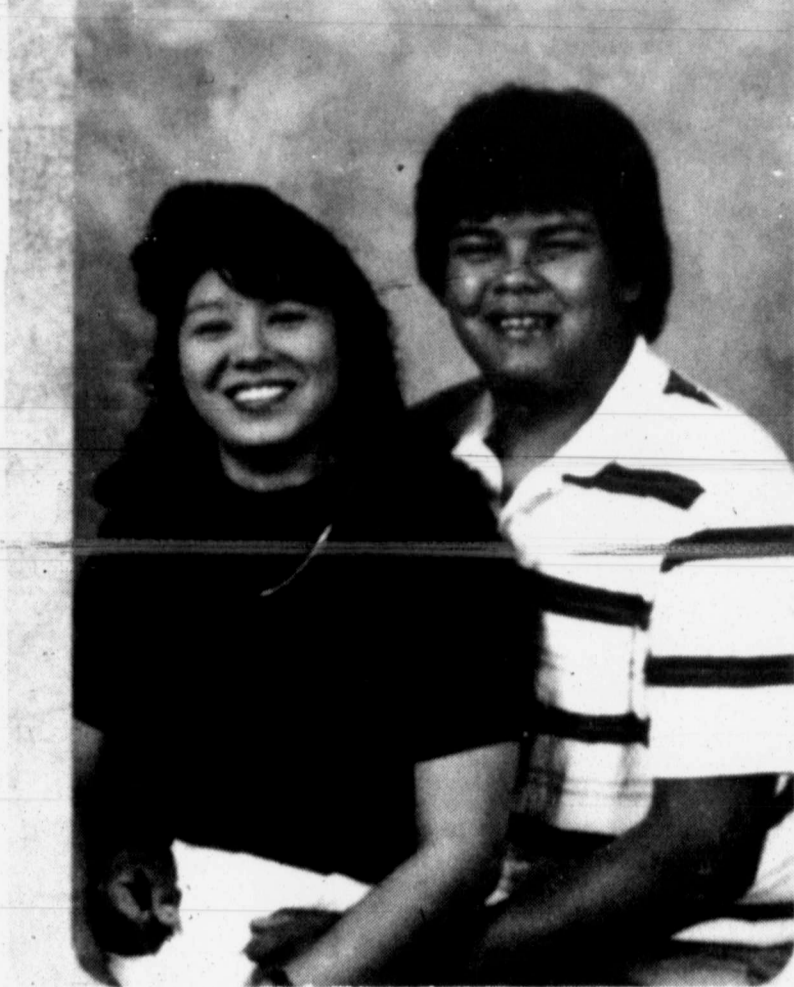

There are times when your bidding will come off the rails. True, it is bound to be your partner's fault, but when the dummy comes down and you see what a fine mess he's gotten you into, don't despair. Buckle down and concentrate on trying to make your ludicrous contract.

Cover the East-West cards in the diagram and decide how you would play in six — yes, six — spades against the lead of the two of clubs.

True, South is a trick light for his four-spade opening bid, and North could have tried a cue-bidding sequence to check whether his partner had a heart control (presumably a singleton). But his actual decision to blast into six spades, not giving anything away, was not so unreasonable.

West, hoping his partner had the club ace, led his singleton. Declarer was faced with two potential lines of play: run the lead to his jack, hoping West had led away from the queen, or play to establish dummy's fifth diamond.

If there is no indication from the bidding, before the play begins it is 50-50 that an opponent will hold a specific card. But the chance of a 4-3 diamond split is just over 62 percent. So playing for the split is the right approach. Win the first trick with dummy's club king, cash the diamond ace, ruff a diamond, draw two rounds of trumps ending in the dummy, ruff another diamond, cross to dummy with a club and cash the K-7 of diamonds, discarding two of your three losers. Contract made; maybe you can even say "Nice bid" to your partner.

Mexican cookery program topic

The Honey-Do's Extension Homemakers met for their regular meeting March 21 with Patsy Burleson presiding. "Cultural Arts—Mexico" was the program given by Kathryn Roberts, extension agent.

The meeting was held in the Robert's kitchen where she demonstrated making fajitas and flour tortillas which she served with Mexican coffee, chili con queso and chips. Dessert was shortbread and Mexican wedding cakes, furnished by the members.

During the business, discussion was held concerning the progress of the Extension Homemakers' cookbook. Roberts announced the upcoming bazaar, "Holiday Crafts," to be held Oct. 26 in the park, and the last of three quilting workshops will be held April 11 at the Senior Center. Members discussed the trip to Boys Ranch in Abilene on April 6. She reminded members of the District TEHA meeting in Seminole on April 20.

Easter decorations included favors of wooden bunnies for the five members attending, Virginia Fogle, Karen Walker, Mary Vaughan, Shirley Bullard and Burleson.

Recipe Box

NEW YORK (AP) — Applesauce is a nutritious addition to any meal — and a quick and easy snack.

A 1/2-cup serving of natural, unsweetened applesauce has only 50 calories, is low in sodium, and contains no fat or cholesterol. It also contains vitamins, minerals and pectin, a dietary fiber.

Applesauce is versatile. It can be used as a filling for crepes or as a topping on pancakes and waffles. It can be served with ham or pork, mixed with barbecue sauce, or added to muffins, cookies or cakes.

Applesauce comes in many flavors and sizes, from smooth to chunky to sweetened or natural, and in combination with other fruits, including peaches, pineapples and strawberries. To celebrate April is Applesauce Month, the Western New York Apple Growers Association offers these serving suggestions:

— Mix grated orange rind and chopped nuts with hot applesauce and use as a topping for French toast, waffles or pancakes.

— For a quick snack, spread chunky applesauce and peanut butter on toast.

— For dessert, fold applesauce into whipped cream or custard. Garnish with apple slices.

— For a tangy meat sauce, combine applesauce, barbecue sauce, mustard and brown sugar. Serve on ham or pork.

APPLE ALASKA
For the cake:
1/4 cup butter
3/4 cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup applesauce
1 teaspoon vanilla
3/4 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
1 cup all-purpose flour
In a large mixing bowl, cream butter with sugar. Beat in egg. Add applesauce and vanilla. Set aside.

In a separate bowl, combine baking powder, baking soda, cinnamon, nutmeg and flour. Stir into applesauce mixture just until blended. Spread batter into a lightly greased 8- by 8-inch pan. Bake in a 375-degree F oven for 30 minutes. Remove from pan and cool completely.

For the meringue: Place 1/2 cup sugar and 4 egg whites in the top of a double boiler. Beating constantly with a whisk, heat the mixture until it feels warm to your finger. Remove from heat.

Beat in the double boiler with a portable mixer or egg beater, or place the mixture in a mixing bowl and beat on high. Continue beating until thick and cool.

To assemble:
Place the cooled cake on an oven-proof dish. Remove 1 pint hard, frozen yogurt, or 1 pint fat-free frozen dessert, from its container. Don't use soft-frozen yogurt. Slice the frozen yogurt into 2-inch pieces to fit the top of the cake. Place the cake and frozen dessert in the freezer for at least one hour before serving. Cover the dessert with meringue.

Just before serving, place the dessert in a 350-degree F oven to just brown the peaks of the meringue. Slice to serve. Makes 8 servings.

Warrior harassed

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — Francis Marion, a military leader in the Revolutionary War, was known as "the Swamp Fox" for his daring guerrilla raids against the British.

As brigadier general of the South Carolina militia, Marion commanded a small band of troops who constantly harassed British supply depots, then vanished into woods and swamps. From his secret base, never discovered, Marion kept pressure on the British, and in 1781 helped capture Fort Watson.

After the war, Marion served in the South Carolina Senate several times. He died on his plantation at Pond Bluff in 1795.

Researchers ID gene that governs sense of smell

NEW YORK (AP) — A nose knows a rose when it smells one thanks to a newly discovered family of genes, biologists reported.

They have identified what they believe are 18 of the genes that enable the nose to latch on to the fragrant oils of the rose and distinguish them from tens of thousands of other smells.

"It's a bombshell," said Charles Wysocki of the Monell Chemical Senses Center in Philadelphia. "It's something that was not expected for many years."

A report of the discovery, by Linda Buck and Richard Axel of Columbia University, appears in today's issue of the journal Cell.

"These molecules will serve as useful tools" for solving a variety of important scientific and practical problems, Buck said.

She said the discovery could be the first step toward understanding how the brain's nerve cells are wired together. It also could have practical applications in such areas as insect control, she said.

Strong-smelling substances called pheromones play a role in insect behavior and reproduction. Learning how those substances are detected could lead to new means of inhibiting insect reproduction, Buck said.

Before this study, researchers had disagreed about whether smell was governed by a few genes or a large number. The study suggests that 100 to 200 genes may be involved, Buck and Axel said.

"The number of genes, if it holds up to be true, is phenomenal," said Wysocki, an authority on the biology and psychology of smell. "It makes it now one of the largest related families of genes that's been identified."

He said the research is "literally going to open up whole new fields. It's going to draw people who never even thought of doing work with the sense of smell."

Odors are detected by tiny tubular extensions on nerve cells high in the nasal cavity, Buck said. Those extensions, called cilia, are believed to be the location of molecules called receptors. Odor molecules are believed to slip into certain receptors as a key slips into a lock.

The newly identified genes are almost certain to carry the blueprints for those receptors, Buck said. Experiments now in progress are expected to confirm that, she said.

Isolation of the genes and determination of their genetic code will allow researchers to construct laboratory cultures of cells that can detect, or "smell," a single odor or group of odors, Buck said.

"We want to answer very basic questions about how a sensory system receives information," Buck said.

"My idea was if you could identify the receptors for odors you would have a way of knowing what was sent by individual neurons" to the brain, she said.

"And if you could follow the connections into the brain... you might see patterns of connections that would allow you to understand the logic of the connections."

The genes were identified using a technique called polymerase chain reaction, or PCR, which allows researchers to remove minute quantities of the genetic material DNA for study.

Actress works in front of, behind TV cameras

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For actress-producer Victoria Principal, working in front of and behind the cameras is the only way to go.

"If that means I'm ambitious, that's OK. I am ambitious," Principal said. "I've always been very candid about my ambitions."

Principal, perhaps best known as Pamela Barnes Ewing on the nighttime soap opera "Dallas," left the show in 1987 to pursue other projects, including producing the movies "Naked Lie" and "Blind Witness."

Her latest production, "Don't Touch My Daughter," in which she also stars, is to air Sunday on NBC-TV.

In 1935, a jury in Flemington, N.J., found Bruno Richard Hauptmann guilty of first-degree murder in the kidnap-death of the infant son of aviator Charles Lindbergh. The verdict carried an automatic death sentence.

Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor of the telephone, tolerated no telephone in his study.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Please correct me if I'm wrong, but isn't it rude to shorten someone's name without his or her permission?

I'm so tired of introducing myself as "Elizabeth" only to be called "Liz." This happens to me often. I have tried correcting people who do this, but it doesn't do any good — they go right on calling me "Liz."

I just can't understand why so many people believe it's OK to take a "shortcut" with someone's name, can you?

ELIZABETH (NOT LIZ) IN DALLAS

DEAR ELIZABETH: Most people who take a shortcut with someone's name do so in the spirit of friendliness. However, it may be perceived as undue familiarity, so unless he/she feels certain that it will be well-received, it's better to go the longer route.

No one would presume to call Queen Elizabeth "Liz" — while Mrs. Thatcher responds good-naturedly when she's called "Maggie," I would not recommend calling Henry Kissinger "Hank," but Hank Greenberg would be puzzled were he to be called "Henry." Although former California Gov. Brown's name is really "Edmund Gerald," everyone calls him "Pat" for short, and he wouldn't have it any other way.

I have heard from many Barbaras who detest being called "Barb" and Richards who do not care for "Dick."

Bottom line: It's always wise when meeting a person to ask, "And what shall I call you?"

DEAR ABBY: My grandson and his wife have two darling children whom I love dearly. (They live out of state.) Every birthday and Christmas, I shower them with loads of gifts, but I have never had a word of thanks, nor even heard whether they received the packages.

I'm not looking to be thanked, but

I think the least they can do is let me know my gifts were received. How can I politely tell them I'd appreciate a call or a note telling me they received the gifts I sent?

BUGGED GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: You don't say how old your great-grandchildren are, but if they are old enough to hold a pencil or crayon, they are old enough to scrawl a "thank-you."

Don't blame them — it's the fault of their parents who have failed to guide their little hands to the task.

Tell your grandson, or his wife, what you have told me. It would be a kindness.

DEAR ABBY: Please tell your readers that any female employee who gets involved with her boss is out of her mind. I speak from experience.

I was 23 and he was 48. I was married at the time and so was he. He told me he loved me. I was pretty and blond — 5-foot-4, 36-25-36. He said I was "perfect," but when my measurements changed, so did he. This is all ancient history now, and thanks to heaven and an understanding husband, my life was not ruined. (I had an abortion, but that's another story.)

Abby, please tell those young girls who are tempted to have an affair with their bosses to back off. It's never a secret. Their wives eventually find out and it's a no-win situation, but I suppose it's better to have...

LOVED AND LOST

DEAR L. AND L.: With all due respect to Alfred Lord Tennyson, when it comes to adulterous affairs, it's not better to have loved and lost than never to have loved at all.

Thank you, wise lady, for sharing your costly and painful experience.

DEAR ABBY: My grandson and his wife have two darling children whom I love dearly. (They live out of state.) Every birthday and Christmas, I shower them with loads of gifts, but I have never had a word of thanks, nor even heard whether they received the packages.

I'm not looking to be thanked, but

Cave camaraderie guaranteed rescue

CARLSBAD (AP) — A tradition of spelunker camaraderie assured that Emily Davis Mobley would safely get out of the nation's deepest cave after breaking her leg, the hospitalized woman said.

The stretcher-borne Mobley was rescued early Thursday from the 1,565-foot-deep Lechuguilla Cave, where a falling rock broke her left leg Sunday during a cave-mapping expedition at a depth of 1,000 feet.

"I worried that it might take five or eight days rather than three or four, but I was never worried that I wasn't going to get out," Mobley told The Associated Press in a telephone interview Thursday from Guadalupe Medical Center.

She said the precision of the rescue was more noteworthy than her own injury. "It was smoother than I could possibly have imagined it would have been. It was almost frightening how smooth it was," she said. "It was like the parts of a machine all falling into place."

Several rescuers cited unmatchable teamwork in the operation they jokingly called "Emily's spring break."

Doctors at Guadalupe Medical Center scheduled surgery on Mobley's fractured left leg at noon today, nursing supervisor Katie Hardin said.

Mobley, 40, of Schoharie, N.Y., told the AP that doctors planned to put a pin in her leg and would consider whether a bone graft was necessary.

She predicted she'd be caving again by July. Mobley said her accident could have been much worse: If she hadn't twisted her body at the last moment, the 80-pound to 100-pound rock would have hit her directly in the chest, instead of the leg.

"I was lucky," she said. Rescuers had to stretch rope across chasms and weave them through pulleys up steep slopes, including one called the Great White Way, during the rescue.

Mobley said there were a few bad moments.

"The first day I was in the stretcher for a long time, I think almost 12 hours," she said.

When the rescue team bivouacked for the night and she got out of the stretcher, she said, "all my muscles went into spasm, the muscles in my leg, because they hadn't been moved."

She said her rescuers "dived right in" with massage.

"And hanging on rope in the Great White Way — it took almost two hours. It was extremely tiring."

She said rescuer Don Coons "was hanging from the litter basket with me, and he helped me keep my sanity."

She said the entire experience was "dreamlike in the fact that it just flowed so beautifully."

At one point in a narrow crevice strewn with large boulders and gaping holes, rescuers had to lie on their backs and pass Mobley's stretcher across their bodies from one person to another.

The cave in a remote area of

DEAR ABBY: I am a 24-year-old guy who recently faced a big decision. Two years ago, I decided to move away from home and start my own life away from my parents. This was the most fun time of my whole life — dating, parties and the general good time that comes from living with friends. Well, things started to change shortly after I moved. I was not really prepared financially at the time I moved out. I went deeper and deeper into debt.

I will not give you the exact amount except to tell you that it went well above $10,000, not including my car loan. I asked myself over and over again, "How did I let this happen?"

There were no answers. It was plain stupidity. I considered bankruptcy because I couldn't pay all of my bills with my salary, and it seemed like a good way out.

My parents wanted me to move back home with them and pay my bills back. Abby, bankruptcy seems so simple — an easy way out. The bankruptcy lawyers will tell you that it will be on your record for only 10 years. But this is not the whole truth. When you fill out a credit application, it asks, "Have you ever filed bankruptcy?"

If you say, "Yes," you really don't have too good a chance. If you say "No," that's fraud.

Abby, please help me tell other young people that they shouldn't file Chapter VII. Tell them, instead, to swallow their pride and go back home if they can, because the long-term effect on their credit rating is devastating.

HUMBLED IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR HUMBLED: I am printing your letter because I think the message it carries could be valuable to everyone, regardless of age. Credit counseling is available for people who find themselves in over their heads. For the location of a local credit bureau, people with a debt and budgeting problem should send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: The National Foundation for Consumer Credit, 8611 Second Ave., Suite 100, Silver Spring, Md. 20910; or call the toll-free number at (800) 388-CCCS.

DEAR ABBY: A relative has informed my husband and me that from now on, her gifts to us will be a donation to charity (one she picks). It would be fine with me if she gave us no gift at all because I know it's hard for her to shop, and if she gave us nothing, we wouldn't love her less.

However, I think the idea of giving to charity (no matter how good the cause) and calling it a "gift" is ridiculous! We give 10 percent of our gross income to charity, and when we give a gift, it's a gift.

For our wedding many years ago, someone made a donation to charity in our honor, and I honestly felt cheated and hurt. It wasn't much of a gift to be advised that $20 had been given in our name to some church group we had never heard of.

What do you think of gifts like that?

CANT UNDERSTAND

DEAR CANT: If one wants to make a charitable contribution to honor another, I think it would be more gracious and charitable to make the contribution to the favorite charity of the recipient. And if the giver isn't certain which one, the giver should ask.

Everything you'll need to know about planning a wedding can be found in Abby's booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." To order, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Abby's family recipes are included in her cookbooklet! Send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Students do their bit to clean up Mother Earth

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Abilene High School Ecology Club members are fighting to stay off the endangered species lists — teen-agers concerned about the environment.

The dozen students active in the first-year club are pecking away at their classmates' conscience, opening apathetic minds to the importance of conservation and recycling.

Meanwhile, club diehards battle among their own ranks the discouragement generated by that calling.

"It gets to me," sophomore Heather Pena admitted. "They're not thinking that this garbage is piling up and that it doesn't biodegrade. They think in the short term."

Club president Jimmy Chaikong added, "It's hard on the people involved. You think you're only one person and what's the use."

"It's one of these gung-ho things," the senior continued. "Everyone gets gung-ho about getting a girl stuck in a hole out, or about America during the war. Now, it's the Earth that's in trouble. Everyone cares about the planet. It's just the ignorance and time that combat that."

Biology teacher Donna Hollowell, who occasionally reminds her young charges of the difference between interest and commitment, formed the club in September at the behest of a student no longer in the district. She relented on her vow to never again sponsor a club when she realized the Ecology Club could provide an outlet for her interest in the environment and possibly make a difference.

For instance, the club's campus collection stations have attracted a stack of telephone books and thousands of pounds of used paper for recycling, saving several dozen trees.

"You don't make a lot of money on paper," Hollowell said, "but that's not the point. It's awareness."

Club members said they joined to learn more about saving the environment for themselves and future generations.

"The best way to help people is to help where they live," said Chaikong, sporting the club T-shirt he designed featuring Earth dripping down from the top of an hour glass. "I thought this was my opportunity to get involved."

The club's main project in its inaugural semester was a "kids' corner" featuring shows about various ecotops at an areawide environmental fair.

More recently, the club distributed a five-page packet outlining facts about conservation, endangered species, recycling, water and rain forests, to every teacher in the district to incorporate in their lesson plans.

Among the tips and tidbits included in the packets are:

Substituting a compact fluorescent light for a traditional bulb will keep a half-ton of carbon dioxide out of the atmosphere over the life of the bulb.

More than 500,000 trees are used to produce the newspapers Americans read in one Sunday.

The energy saved by recycling one glass bottle could operate a television for three hours or light a 100-watt bulb for four hours.

Only 1 percent of the world's vast water supply is fresh and accessible for human use.

Recycling a can saves 90 percent of the energy used to make new aluminum, and eliminates 95 percent of the associated air pollution.

"Teachers don't have enough time and materials," Hollowell said. "I put this together so it would be easy to use without excess preparation, and so they can teach ecotops. I think it's usable at every grade level."

On April 19, the last day of Abilene ISD Earth Week, the club will plant a tree on every campus. Throughout the week, the environmentally aware teens will speak at elementary school campuses, and include an "Earth Tip" in morning announcements.

Club members agreed, however, that their biggest success has been the influence they've peddled among their peers.

Wrong turn changes one female soldier's life

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — One wrong turn changed Army Spc. Melissa Ann Rathbun-Nealy's life. It would bring five weeks of horror and a lifetime of fame and possible fortune.

It also made her the first female U.S. prisoner of war since World War II.

In her first public statement since her March 6 release by Iraq, Ms. Rathbun-Nealy, 20, described during a Thursday news conference how she and Spc. David Lockett were captured. The two are assigned to the 233rd Transportation Company at Fort Bliss.

Ms. Rathbun-Nealy said she and Lockett were returning from Dammam in northeastern Saudi Arabia with seven other soldiers driving empty heavy-transport vehicles during the second week of the war.

"We had picked up two M911 heavy-equipment transporters that had been repaired. While going through a detour, we were separated from the lead vehicle and missed the turn," she said.

Instead of heading west to a transportation-company site, she and Lockett, in one truck, and soldiers in a second truck ended up heading north toward the coastal Saudi city of Khafji, near the border with occupied Kuwait.

As they approached the city, Iraqi soldiers opened fire, disabling the truck's steering and wounding Ms. Rathbun-Nealy, she said. She did not elaborate.

"Because we were the lead vehicle, the other truck was able to escape and get help. We tried to escape, but were surrounded by the Iraqi soldiers," she said.

They were taken through Kuwait to Basra, Iraq, and then to Baghdad, where she was held until Iraq was defeated, she said.

"My captors treated me well. I was not harmed in any way," Ms. Rathbun-Nealy said as she read from a prepared statement during a Fort Bliss news conference, her first public appearance since a ceremony March 13 at Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington, where she was awarded a Purple Heart.

"Throughout my captivity, my faith in God never let me lose hope. I always knew in my heart that I was coming home," she said.

Since her return, Ms. Rathbun-Nealy has been showered with book and movie contract offers, interview requests and invitations to throw out the first ball at two opening-day major league baseball games, said Capt. Ruth Cartagena-Nutter, who was assigned by the Pentagon as Rathbun-Nealy's media coordinator at Fort Bliss.

"Basically, she will be permitted to select which engagements she wants to make and which ones she wants to turn down," Cartagena-Nutter said.

A Fort Bliss military attorney will be assigned to advise her about what types of fees she may accept while a soldier.

Since her return, she has been on convalescent leave and has turned down opportunities to throw the first baseball in the opening games of the New York Mets and the Oakland Athletics, said Ms. Cartagena-Nutter.

She also turned down an opportunity to appear with President Bush and former Presidents Ronald Reagan and Gerald Ford, Defense Secretary Richard Cheney and Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Gen. Colin Powell at a televised "Salute to the Troops" bash in Los Angeles.

She turned down those celebrity opportunities because she needed to use the two-week convalescent leave to "get her personal matters taken care of," said Ms. Cartagena-Nutter.

Among other interview requests, she has been invited to appear on the "Today Show" and "CBS This Morning."

In 1933, President-elect Franklin D. Roosevelt escaped an attempt on his life in Miami, when shots fired at him by an assailant missed. However, Chicago Mayor Anton J. Cermak was killed.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

Okay, This is for all you Yuppies and Yippies and Bippies and Buppies and Hippies who've stood up on soap boxes waving your fists and shouting—for the last 20 years—"Here we are world—the Baby Boomers! Take or leave us!"

Gosit down. I've waited for 20 long years to say that. For two decades I've waited for someone to come down the pike with whom I, a bona fide Boomer, can identify. Someone whom I can holler and cheer about and say, "Here we are! Right here! At long last, a real live Baby Boomer who can MAKE US PROUD!"

All these years I've watched TV with my parents' generation and cringed, saying, "No, no that's not us. That's the lunatic fringe. Just wait. One of these days, you'll see one of us."

And—thank you, Lord—FINAL-LY, we have a TRUE SPOKESMAN. Though, typically, he doesn't think of himself that way.

His name? Kevin Costner. I spotted him as One of Us immediately, years ago, when I saw the little Steven Spielberg sleeper "Fandango." I jumped up with little happy tears in my eyes and cheered. "Hey!" I shouted, "I KNOW these guys! I went to school with them! We used to do crazy wild stuff like that all the time! That's us!"

Kevin Costner, like the vast overwhelming majority of Boomer children, grew up solidly MIDDLE class, not "upper middle" class. His dad was a lineman for Southern California Edison and, like many of us Boomer families, they moved around a lot. He went to a state university, pledged a fraternity, and majored in business.

I KNEW that guy. I dated him and hung out with him. Maybe not HIM, specifically (too bad), but plenty of fine young Boomer men just like him. They never smoked dope. They took showers every day. They wrote their moms on Sunday. And they had dreams.

When Costner was 18, he built a canoe, strapped it to the roof of his car, and retraced the water routes of the Lewis and Clark Expedition, where he first saw and fell in love with the great American West. Uh-huh. I knew lots of Boomers who did stuff like that. I drove across country once, by myself. We're an adventurous lot, us Boomers.

Costner married (and stayed married to) his college sweetheart, who must have known early on that they weren't going the picket fence route in spite of her frat rat business major guy. His senior year, Costner auditioned for a play, "Rumplestiltskin," and it changed him forever.

He got an agent and made some truly bad movies. "I don't apologize for them," he says with his trademark crooked grin most women find irresistible. "Working was very important to me in those days." Yup. Tell me about it.

For six long years, Costner was known as the "King of the Cutting-Room Floor." He was working, all right, but nobody was seeing his work. His most famous non-role was as the dead "Alex" in the landmark Boomer movie, "The Big Chill." Every scene in which Costner appeared was cut except one: the dressing of the corpse.

That's right. A whole millions of bunches of us Boomers were out there working our hearts out for our dreams during the late seventies and eighties, going broke and getting rejected. We weren't ALL making fortunes on Wall Street by lying and cheating, or competing to see if we could be the first ones on our block to drive a BMW.

They say Hollywood first sat up and noticed Costner when he played "Crash Davis," a down-and-out baseball player in the film "Bull Durham." (I challenge any female to stand there and tell me that she did not go to see a baseball movie just to hear Kevin Costner say, "I believe in long, slow, wet kisses that last for three days.")

But for me, Costner established (see COUNTRY LIFE, page 10B)

Volunteer protect neighbors

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Most of the time it's a thankless job, but South Ector County Volunteer Fire Department Chief Dave Felice takes pride in protecting his neighbors from ravaging West Texas fires.

When they aren't battling grass fires or structure blazes, the unsung and unpaid firefighters in Ector County's five volunteer units spend long hours upgrading equipment, raising funds and improving their training.

Felice, who lives in the Pleasant Farms community in south Ector County, has been a volunteer firefighter for eight years and a full-time firefighter with the Midland Fire Department for a decade.

"I feel I want the best fire protection out where I live, and feel the community deserves it also," Felice said. "I guess if you're proud of your profession you'll strive to help others any way you can."

Each volunteer fire department receives an annual appropriation from Ector County's general fund. The departments accept donations and organize fund-raisers such as barbecues and spaghetti suppers to stretch their budgets.

Ector County Precinct 1 Commissioner Jack Crider praised the West Odessa VFD recently after the department provided photos to the Commissioners Court showing the newest addition to its fire station — a 1979 Chevrolet truck that unit members transformed into a firefighting vehicle.

"These people deserve to be commended," Crider said. "People in West Odessa certainly appreciate the peace of mind knowing they're there when they need them."

Lyndon Smith, assistant fire chief for the West Odessa VFD, said his department has responded to 142 fires since October 1990.

Being the volunteer department that serves the largest county population, Smith said they are seeking new members to add to its 30-member roster.

"I enjoy it, I really do," Smith said. "It's something that gets in your blood, and you can't get it out. I think most of it is you are helping other people and you get appreciation back."

A West Odessa firefighter for seven years, Smith said his department opened up a second fire station at Whirlaway Drive and War Admiral Drive during his first year of service. The main station is located at Tripp Avenue and Albert Drive.

The second station was prompted when two young girls died of injuries they suffered in a fire in the west Ector County neighborhood of Knox Village about seven years ago, he said. The incident worried Knox Village residents that one station wasn't enough fire protection, thus residents and fire volunteers scraped up enough cash and donations to open the far west station.

The new station got plenty of use, especially in 1989 when the department responded to 931 fire calls.

"That year we really got in a bind," he said. "We lost some people because they got tired of fighting fires at day and night, and then spending part of the night fixing vehicles."

Some volunteers — most of whom have full-time jobs in addition to their volunteer service — dropped out after that fire-plagued year, Smith said.

Felice said recruiting volunteer members who will remain active is difficult at best. Volunteer firefighters also must be willing to spend more time at home where they can be reached.

"When you get a (fire) call, you don't always know how many people are going to be home. Two months ago I fought an oil well-service truck fire all by myself," he said.

The 15-member South Ector County department, located about 12 miles south of Odessa off U.S. 385, has three fire engines, two tankers and a vehicle equipped with medical and rescue equipment. It also assists in fighting fires in Crane County, and parts of Upton and Midland counties, Felice said.

Notrees VFD Chief Monte Oglesby said the sparse population in his Ector County community two miles east of Winkler County means they fight grass fires 99 percent of the time.

"Right now we have 10 members who either live or work in the area. The people who work here can fight fires during the day when a lot of people aren't around," Oglesby said.

About half of Notrees' members are women who hold their own when fighting grass blazes, he said.

"As far as grass fires go, they have always proven themselves."

Oglesby first joined the volunteer department for what he thought would be stimulating work.

"It's exhilarating at first. But after you spend six hours fighting some grass fires, it's not as exciting," Oglesby said.

The Notrees department's vehicles are old, light and tough, the kind of trucks you need to plow through brush and sand to get to big grass blazes, he said.

"First of all you don't want to spend $125,000 to $150,000 on a fire truck that's going to drive through the brush," Oglesby said. "With all of our trucks you can drive at the same time you're pumping water. If something were to happen to the truck, you can still pump water."

With fewer than 100 residents in Notrees, the department depends on donations from oil and gas companies for most of its equipment costs, he said.

In the city of Goldsmith — a town of less than 400 residents 18 miles northwest of Odessa — women also can be seen battling grass and structure fires.

About five of the 25 members in the Goldsmith VFD are women, two-year department member Lesley Sredanovich said. The department has two ambulances and three fire trucks, she said.

"I've been on house fires and grass fires — some really bad grass fires," Sredanovich said. "About any fire you go to is dangerous, but if you know what you're doing it's OK."

Sredanovich said she couldn't resist joining the department (see VOLUNTEERS, page 9B)

Debate heating up over role of church throughout Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Aristeo Trinidad Baca won't be able to vote in upcoming elections in his state of Chihuahua, since the Federal Elections Institute annulled his registration, accusing him of fraud and treachery for even signing up.

Trinidad Baca is the priest at San Lorenzo Church, and his actions have reactivated the touchy subject of the Roman Catholic Church's role in Mexico and the constitutional provisions that ban official recognition of it and keep priests out of politics.

"We are still being treated as second class citizens," said Msgr. Genaro Alamilla, spokesman for Mexico City's Episcopal Conference. He said the constitutional provisions reining in church activity are "anachronistic and obsolete."

The issue is symptomatic of a broader complaint by many Mexicans, especially those in the opposition: that aspects of the revolutionary, land-oriented constitution do not reflect the reality of today's more modern, more industrialized Mexico.

The archbishop of Chihuahua, Msgr. Adalberto Almeida, supports Trinidad Baca and says the church will not interfere if some priests try to get a voting card if it appears they are doing so only to exercise the rights of other citizens.

He noted that when Trinidad Baca applied for his card he wore clerical garb to stress that he was not trying to fool anybody.

Mexico is overwhelmingly Roman Catholic but the Constitution of 1917 separates church and state, and bars priests from voting or political activity.

Mexico is the only country in Latin America that has no official ties with the Vatican.

The breach dates from the Mexican Revolution of 1910-1917, during which the church supported the conservatives. The conservatives lost, and the new government took its revenge by seriously cutting back church activities and confiscating church lands. Since President Carlos Salinas de Gortari took office in December of 1988 steps have been taken toward more normal church-state relations.

Salinas, in a move that angered some hardliners in his Revolutionary Institutional Party, invited members of the clergy to his inauguration, something unheard of in recent decades.

In January, 1990, he named a "personal representative" to the Vatican, as opposed to a Mexican ambassador, a move that brought hope in many church sectors that better relations were nigh.

But Interior Secretary Fernando Gutierrez Barrios said the naming of the personal envoy did not mean formal relations with the Vatican are imminent or that the constitution was about to be modified.

"The idea was to maintain ties for a permanent dialogue on matters of common interest," he said.

Emilio M. Gonzalez, president of the Mexican Senate, which must approve any constitutional change, however, noted that the ban remains in effect and said "things are fine the way they are."

That aside, Mexican presidents usually get their way in the Senate, and the fate of Article 130, which contains the meat of the restrictions on church activity, is being examined in Mexico as never before.

While it remains on the books, aspects of it are selectively enforced, if at all.

As recently as 1979, during the pope's first visit to Mexico, special legislation was passed so he could wear his clerical robes in public. Today it is not uncommon to see priests and nuns on the street in their robes, especially in the capital.

Nothing today comes close to the active persecution of the church by the government during the 1930s.

The era of talking pictures arrived Oct. 6, 1927, with the opening of "The Jazz Singer," starring Al Jolson.

Corpus Christie receives late mock trial title

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The scenario played out in a federal courtroom in Dallas was a classic environmental drama, pitting a passionately committed conservationist against the demands of corporate leaders in the fictional state of Texoma.

The case of defendant Jessie Goodall, charged with inciting a riot during a protest at a proposed toxic-waste site, was argued fervently by student would-be attorneys in the Earle Cabell Federal Court Building, with Judge Jerry Buchmeyer presiding.

When the jury returned from deliberations, they found in favor of Goodall's defense, as portrayed by the seven-member King High School mock trial team — a decision that earned the team the Texas High School Mock Trial State Championship.

The students advance to the National High School Mock Trial Championship, scheduled for May 10-12 in New Orleans.

King students have been named regional champions six times in the past nine years; it is their second state championship. In 1985, the King High School team also won the national championship.

"I'm really excited about it. In the three years I've been here at King, we've made it to state. Now the kids finally went all the way," said Michael Ray, coach-sponsor for the mock trial team.

Ray teaches drama and debate at King High. "It's pretty exciting. They've worked very hard, and they've had a lot of help from the attorney advisers. (Mock trial) is a nice combination of drama and debate," he added.

Ray said the team consisted of two lawyers, senior Lara Hamerick and junior Daniel Nelson; four witnesses, seniors Aimee McCormick and Rich Henderson and juniors Murray Rhodes and Robert Pearse. Freshman Mike Jordan was alternate and timekeeper. The team was chosen before Christmas and the attorney-advisers began working with them in January.

Attorney-advisers were Mikal

Watts, a Corpus Christi attorney with David L. Perry and Associates, and Ruth Tomlin, court coordinator for 117th District Court Judge Robert Blackmon. The two practiced nightly with the students for three months, Watts said.

In the competition, students acted out a trial in which the fictional state of Texoma prosecuted an environmental activist for inciting a riot during a protest of a hazardous-waste-treatment facility.

The students, depending upon the side they represented in each trial, argued the relative merits of law and order vs. the First Amendment, Watts said.

When the King team was on defense, it portrayed Goodall "as an earth puppy. She was real back to nature — a pacifist," Tomlin said. "When we were on prosecution, we portrayed her as a radical activist who would do anything for the advancement of mankind ... and to advance herself through the ranks politically."

Watts, who was a student at torney on King's national championship team in the 1980s, praised the students' performance in the final round, where they were selected as winners of the state competition.

"Daniel and Lara dominated the final round with incredible performances and our witnesses, Aimee and Rich, never gave the other side a chance to win," Watts said.

"They're an incredibly talented team but it was their hard work, extensive preparation and unflagging determination that took them to the top," Tomlin said.

Tomlin said she and Watts also will help coach the team for the national competition. Ray said the students in the state competition act out the same trial, which is prepared by the Dallas Bar Association and distributed to schools through the regional Education Service Center. The students are preparing a new trial for the national competition.

after watching her husband Steve run out the door to respond to emergencies.

"I like the grass fires, I enjoy those the most. But I also like going to (car) wrecks to help out," she said. "It gets your adrenaline pumping, and you get excited. You definitely want to put that fire out so you can protect people."

Gardendale VFD Chief Brad Hocker, who also serves as a reserve deputy in the Ector County Sheriff's Department, got talked into becoming a volunteer fireman two years ago in his north Ector County neighborhood, he said.

"It's something the community needs. We're out there striving for one goal, and that's to serve the public and save lives. It takes a special breed," Hocker said.

The Gardendale department's fund-raising efforts to transform a former county senior citizens' transportation van into a rescue vehicle have proved successful, with $1,150 raised thus far.

The vehicle had little but ambulance-type decals and paint on it when Hocker's father, Kenneth Hocker, wound up needing an ambulance last month.

Hocker's 51-year old father, who had been suffering for a few days of a respiratory illness, was pronounced dead at Medical Center Hospital after Odessa Fire Department paramedics transported him there.

Hocker said then that if the VFD's vehicle had been equipped with oxygen, his father might have been saved in the time it took for paramedics to arrive.

Donations increased dramatically after the Hocker family set up a memorial fund to benefit the rescue van project early this month.

"We recently bought a whole bunch of rescue equipment, enough to stock the van and provide service. We're looking at having it ready by the middle of April," Hocker said.

The Ector County Commissioners Court approved the following budget appropriations for the 1990-91 fiscal year: South Ector County VFD, $16,000; Gardendale VFD, $15,000; West Odessa VFD, $23,000; Ntroes

VFD, $5,500; and Goldsmith newly acquired rescue vehicle, a tanker, a grass-fighting truck

The department has about 20 members and four vehicles — a truck and a structure firefighting truck.

Dr. Gott By Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

Dr. Ethan Mergatroyd hadn't been in practice very long before he realized that his professors and mentors in medical school had been derelict in teaching him how to succeed. Private practice torpedoed his conviction, so lovingly nurtured during his training, that knowledge and skill were the two most valuable assets a practitioner could possess. This fantasy, he reflected, exploded early in his career when he pulled a patient through a complicated heart attack, only to have the woman change doctors because, she said, he had not been "caring enough."

So, being a survivor, he adapted. Over the years, he took pains to dress impeccably, sympathize with the most aggressively neurotic patients, and make himself available at the most outrageous hours — long after other doctors had turned in for their beauty rests. (His colleagues regarded him as a sucker and a soft touch but exploited him nonetheless.)

He committed himself to establishing an image: a polished sparkling persona radiating competence and empathy. His skills slipped, of course; medical knowledge is an insatiable beast whose appetite is never satisfied. As fast as Mergatroyd mastered new tests and treatments, the medical profession devised even newer challenges: more facts to remember, more innovative drugs — in short, more problems. This required an investment in time and effort, neither of which he could spare.

On the other hand, he discovered, some things never changed. He could be completely over his head in some maddeningly complex medical matter, really out of touch, unsure how to proceed. Yet, if he faked it, if he pretended to be competent, patients never seemed to recognize his inadequacies. He didn't have to be GOOD, he just had to be NICE. He could administer suboptimal care but if, simultaneously, he was attentive, took time with bereaved relatives and promptly completed his paperwork, he was perceived to be capable.

Mergatroyd's beautiful bubble lasted for years. He enjoyed all the perquisites modern healers have come to expect: a leased BMW, Caribbean vacations, real estate investments and gold chains (worn with open-neck silk shirts). Next to basking in the sun at the country club, his greatest pleasure was basking in the warm adulation given him by hopelessly senile patients in nursing homes. He cultivated patients who were independently wealthy. By all criteria, he was a success, living proof that 90 percent of medical practice is in the packaging.

However, like all bubbles, this one couldn't last. The deflation began when Mergatroyd rashly decided, on a mid-life impulse, to get real. The charade had gone on long enough. He owed himself the luxury of being himself before he was too old to enjoy life. Consequently, he became slightly more human.

He wasn't afraid to profess ignorance. He learned to say "no," a characteristic he'd repressed since childhood. When patients called him at night, demanding inconsequential services, he was cantankerous and brusque. Nor did he hide his irritation when they groused about his modest fees; after all, if they couldn't understand the insurance companies' explanation of benefits any better than he, was that his concern?

Mergatroyd's new found self-honesty and frankness coupled with his roles as a flawed realist and a venerable but vulnerable practitioner, severely tested his supporters and delighted his loyal detractors. Some friends thought he'd gone overboard when he got tattooed, wore a diamond post in his left earlobe and grew a discreet ponytail. But, that's life, baby.

Although demand for his services dipped, he felt exonerated by his belief that only by being honest could he achieve personal growth. Still, he recognized that personal growth was probably an anachronism. In a profession traditionally governed by marketing techniques, there was little regard for the heresy of self-awareness, unless it maintained the M.D.'s image as a perfect people. Well, he sighed, if this doesn't work out, I can always switch back, become an emergency room doctor — or, better yet, take a position as an administrator.

Carpe diem, he concluded.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In the past you wrote a health report titled "Living With Chronic Lung Disease." I've had chronic bronchitis for many years, and my doctors say they can't cure me. You say chronic bronchitis is curable. Please advise.

DEAR READER: Chronic bronchitis is curable; its major complication — emphysema — is not.

To a large extent, the degree of cure depends on the definition of the disease. In England, chronic bronchitis is often lumped together with emphysema; therefore, treatment is rarely curative. In the United States, however, chronic bronchitis is defined as a lung disease associated with bronchial irritants (such as infection and pollutants), marked by excess mucus secretions and bronchial inflammation, leading to thickening of bronchial walls and persisting cough with sputum.

In the Western world, chronic bronchitis is almost always due to cigarette smoking or the inhalation of industrial pollutants, such as smog, smoke and soot. Once the bronchial lining is irritated by these substances, it is more susceptible to infection.

If a person with chronic bronchitis stops smoking, avoids air pollution and obtains antibiotics for infection, the condition can be cured: Mucus secretions lessen, cough disappears and breathing becomes more normal.

Obviously, as untreated bronchitis progresses, structural lung damage, which is incurable, results. This includes airway obstruction from permanently thickened bronchial walls and, in severe cases, actual destruction of lung tissue.

At this point, patients are said to suffer from chronic obstructive bronchitis or, in the latter stages, chronic obstructive emphysema. The term "emphysema" refers to irreversible alterations in pulmonary tissue, including loss of alveoli, the tiny air sacs where oxygen and carbon dioxide exchange takes place.

I assume from your comments that your long-standing chronic bronchitis has progressed to obstructive bronchitis/emphysema. Therefore, your doctors are probably right: Your condition is incurable. However, it is certainly treatable. Most authorities agree that chronic obstructive bronchitis/emphysema can be improved by as much as 30 percent if patients stop smoking and avoid air pollution.

Had you arrested the course of your chronic bronchitis years ago, before structural damage occurred, you could have been cured; now, you'll probably have to be content with improvement, not cure. Nonetheless, it's never too late to address the issue of your respiratory health. Follow any suggestions and your physician's advice; you may be pleasantly surprised at how much better you'll feel.

You have read my health report on "Living With Chronic Lung Disease." Other readers who want a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

himself as the Boomer who dreams the impossible dream in the unforgettable film "Field of Dreams." (A movie, by the way, which was dedicated at the end, "to our parents.")

For Kevin Costner had a great dream of his own. He COULD have marched in the streets and waved placards about a subject he cared passionately about; instead, he decided to do what he does best: make a movie.

Hollywood laughed. A WESTERN? Three HOURS long? With SUB-TITLES? A first-time director, directing HIMSELF? Using a screenplay written by a NOVELIST, adapting his OWN novel?

Ha-ha-ha. And HA! Not one of the major studios would touch it. They called it "Kevin's Gate"—a derisive reference to another long Western, "Heaven's Gate," that was such a miserable box office flop that it was pulled from the theaters after only two weeks.

Putting up $2.5 million of his own money, Costner finally persuaded Orion, a small company teetering on the brink of bankruptcy, to back the film.

It took four nerve-wracking years to make. (Costner took his whole family to South Dakota for the filming—including his parents and his business manager brother.) At the premiere, "Dances With Wolves" broke in the middle. "People" magazine called it "a failure."

And then...the people started going to see it. Millions of them. Other critics, surprised all over their faces, began to sing its praises. It became a box office smash. Awards began flooding in. The Lakota Sioux made Costner an honorary member of its tribe. And then the Oscar nominations. Twelve of them.

"Dances With Wolves" won seven Academy Awards: for Best Sound, Best Editing, Best Original Score; that novelist, Michael Blake, won for Best Screenplay Adapted from Another Source. And Kevin Costner won for best director. He brought his parents to the ceremony (we didn't ALL rebel against our folks) and said, "I'm so glad we both lived to see this."

And when "Dances with Wolves" won Best Picture, Kevin Costner, his hand trembling and his voice breaking, said, "I will never forget this day. My family will never forget this day. The people I went to school with, will never forget this day."

And all us Boomers who ever grew up in middle class homes, loved our parents, raised a little hell at state universities, struggled in oblivion for years, and fought to see a dream come true, well, when we saw One of Our Own, finally, at long last, up there on that TV screen...We cheered. And then, we wept.

Hickory seeds may be useful

WASHINGTON (AP) — A team of Agriculture Department scientists has returned from Vietnam and China with hickory seeds they hope will help protect domestic pecan trees from pests and disease.

Pecans are the most popular nut of the Carya, or hickory, species and are one of the few crops native to North America. U.S. growers harvested 251 million pounds, valued at $179 million, in 1989.

Jerry A. Payne of the department's Agricultural Research Service headed the three-member team that searched for Asian hickories. They brought back two species from Vietnam and two from China.

Payne, acting director of the agency's fruit and tree nut laboratory in Byron, Ga., said in a report that the researchers want to see "if there are genetic traits in the Asian hickory species...that may strengthen the North American species."

Putting on weight was an accepted — indeed, expected — mark of Victorian success, says National Geographic.

Senior runs for Waco School Board

WACO, Texas (AP) — Patricia Sappenfield wants a seat on the school board for her birthday.

She turns 18 on Saturday, but she won't know about her birthday wish until the May 4 election.

"I've always been interested in education," said Miss Sappenfield, a Waco High School senior. "I've always wanted to help people who have not understood things that sometimes I have understood."

But she will have some opposition for the at-large seat.

Terry Irwin, the incumbent, said Tuesday that he plans to run again and facing a young upstart is nothing new to him.

"The first school board race I ever ran for, in Hurst, had an 18-year-old on it," he said. "And I won."

Charles Thornal, Waco Independent School District's community liaison, said he believes Miss Sappenfield is the youngest school board candidate in the history of the district.

However, Miss Sappenfield does not consider that a disadvantage.

"I'm still here, and I see all the things that go on during school during the day," she said. "Right now I am living it. I am living the decisions that the school board has made previously and I know the teachers' problems and I understand the students, so I feel that that's a big advantage to running."

She said she hopes she can convince those who question her credibility and experience.

"For those people, I hope that I can prove them wrong, and I hope that they can see through all that and see me for just another candidate and not see me for my age difference because I could bring a lot of fresh, new ideas to the school board," she said.

And what are those new ideas? "I like the year-round school idea, and I hope it can become part of the regular system here in Waco," she said. "I see that as a big advantage, while students who are not as educationally mature as myself would see that as a problem because they won't get the three months off all together."

She said she sees good and bad points in two proposals now before the board that deal with, among other things, neighborhood schools and open enrollment, which allows parents to choose their children's schools.

"I think it's a good idea, just a little, but some of the things I still think I see some negative consequences," she said of open enrollment. "I feel that there might be some racial segregation because all the Hispanics will want to go to one school and all the blacks will want to go to another school and all the whites... I just don't feel that it will be an integrated school system anymore."

Miss Sappenfield says she is committed to education, but she does not plan on a teaching career. During the summer, she will begin work on a physics and engineering double major at Baylor University.

One-handed man can now play guitar

TEXAS CITY, Texas (AP) — Michael Cooper plays "Dueling Banjos" on his guitar with great intensity — and only one hand.

For four years after a 1986 motorcycle accident left his right arm paralyzed, Cooper tried to play the instrument he had loved and played every day since he was 6 years old. He found he could not. He even experimented with using his toes and mouth to replace the injured hand.

"I felt real lonely inside because I couldn't play guitar. I always used to play guitar, every day," said Cooper, 25, an Amoco Oil Co. project engineer. His frustrations grew. Then resourcefulness took over.

He designed a device he calls the Plectrum, with foot pedals to do the strumming and picking. Cooper is playing the guitar again.

Today, his frustrations focus on trying to play at the level he once did.

"I'm getting better all the time," he said. In fact he regularly plays at the Church of the Living God in Galveston, where he is a member.

The idea for the Plectrum came as Cooper and a friend were driving around Kingsville, where both were students at Texas A&I University.

"I was telling a friend of my frustrations about not being able to play the guitar. I tried putting the pick in my mouth and playing with my feet. I was really frustrated. I told her I wished one of these engineers would design something for me.

"Then she turned to me and said, 'You're an engineer, you design it.' Within a matter of seconds, I had an idea in my head and I went and wrote it down."

The concept for the Plectrum is simple and the instruments needed to make the device are common — 10-speed bicycle derailleur cables, Plexiglas, springs, door hinges and a guitar pick.

His original idea has been slightly modified, but the concept remains the same.

He and two fellow mechanical engineering classmates built the project as part of a senior design class last spring. The project earned Cooper an "A" and a second place in an American Society of Mechanical Engineers contest, said his design class professor, Younsri Elkassabgi.

Elkassabgi said students usually are given a list of potential projects to do as their senior design project.

Baylor grad makes mark selling cars

WACO, Texas (AP) — Russell Giles doesn't fit the mold for used car dealers.

She's a 26-year-old woman with a degree in English from Baylor University.

She doesn't have family in the car business, and when she first started selling cars in the early 1980s, she barely knew how to change her oil.

But Giles apparently has what it takes to make it in the traditionally male world of car dealing. She's aggressive, a quick learner, has a great sense of humor, and, most of all, is a seller extraordinaire.

Saturday, Giles will have a grand opening at the second Giles Motors in Waco.

Monday — the first day she put cars on the new lot at 1915 N. 19th St. — the business sold five cars.

Last month, the first Giles Motors at North 18th Street and Maple Avenue had record sales of 175 cars, which includes cars sold wholesale to other dealers.

Her success comes at a time when many car dealers are reporting hardships.

Giles says her attitude toward her customers has given her an edge.

"I want them to think they are somebody special, even if they don't have $200 to put down on a car," she said. "I have one lady who's bought seven cars from us — she says she won't go anywhere else."

"My mom told me, 'Civility doesn't cost you anything,'" and that, says Giles, has become her philosophy.

Originally from Brownwood, Giles came to Waco in 1983, when
