Conservation farmer, rancher named during SWCD banquet

Kent Holmes received the Conservation Farmer Award and Buster Welch received Conservation Rancher Award at the Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District's annual awards banquet Thursday at Reta's Texas Barbecue.

Also recognized were Jady Gilbert as the Conservation Contractor Award winner, winners of the district's poster and essay contests, and recipients of the Conservation Teacher Award.

Borden County farmer Kent Holmes was named as the Conservation Farmer Award winner. Holmes has been a farmer for 27 years and is also a licensed paramedic for Borden County. Presenting the award was Upper Colorado SWCD board member Burl Belew.

Upper Colorado SWCD chairman Charlie Henderson presented Buster Welch with the Conservation Rancher Award. Welch, who was also the featured speaker for the evening, has been involved with the ranching business since the age of 13. He ranches 50,000 acres in Scurry, Fisher and Mitchell Counties with ranch headquarters in the northeast section of Scurry County at the Criswell Ranch.

Jady Gilbert was recognized with the Conservation Contractor

Award. Gilbert, a native of Scurry County, does most of the county's conservation contracting, such as building ponds and terraces and brush clearing. Walter Stirl, the district's vice chairman, presented the award.

Stirl also presented two area teachers with Conservation Teacher Awards. Rural recipient was Clarence Spieker, principal of Hermleigh ISD. Snyder Junior High counselor Kellye Starnes was named the urban award winner.

The teachers were recognized for their enthusiasm in conservation (see CONSERVATION, page 10)

Critics wonder where to find reform money

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bush said he will ask Congress for $690 million, mostly for $1 million seed grants to open a prototype "New American School" in each of the 435 congressional districts plus two others for each state by 1996.

He invited communities to vie for the grants to create the 535 non-traditional new schools, some of which may be operated by private businesses. "I'm here to say America will move forward," Bush declared at a White House ceremony. "Our challenge amounts to nothing less than a revolution in American education, a battle for our future."

But critics voiced a common refrain: where will the money come from? Albert Shanker, president of the National Education Association, said he doesn't know where the money will come from to finance President Bush's proposed "revolution" in the U.S. educational system.

"If the plan is to succeed, it will require a major commitment in terms of resources and will," NAACP spokesman James Williams said Thursday after Bush unveiled his plan. "We question whether the financial resources that have been required are adequate to do the job."

The president called for top-to-bottom school reforms, including a voluntary nationwide exam system, federal aid pegged to academic results and $550 million in start-up funds for "a new generation of schools."

High scores, fast times open annual collegiate rodeo here

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

Swift times and high scores were the order of the day during Thursday's opening performance of the annual Western Texas College NIRA Rodeo.

Top roughstock riders scored over 70 points Thursday with times in breakaway roping falling under the 10-second mark and barrel racers covering the cloverleaf course in under 15 ticks.

The college rodeo will continue with the long-go today at 8 p.m. at Scurry County Coliseum and wind up with finals in all events Saturday evening. An exes rodeo is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

Admission to each show is $4 for adults and $3 for students. Children under 5 get in free.

Following Thursday's crowning of Snyder freshman Brandy Robbins as WTC's 1991 Rodeo Queen, the action began.

Jeff King of Vernon Regional Junior College and Odessa's Joe Dan Brumbelow recorded identical 75s to tie for the lead in bareback riding. Tarleton State University rider Beau Mayo rode his draw, Bells, to a 69 score. edg- (see RODEO, page 10)

Wildflower trail mapped out along Western Texas prairie

Art and creative projects from Scurry County public schools students will be featured in the county museum when it hosts the seventh annual Scurry County Wildflower Day observance on Sunday, April 21, Shirley Leftwich, museum director, said.

Britt Canada, Scurry County Wildflower Committee chairman, will show slides of wildflowers from this area in the museum at 2 p.m. and 3 p.m. as part of the observance. Canada has marked the wildflower trail on the WTC prairie in the area of the museum again this year. Maps of the trail are available at the information desk in the museum. Canada has identified 25 varieties on the first map and will update it as these flowers fade and others bloom.

"The wildflower path provides visitors with an opportunity to see many of the area's native wildflowers in the natural setting," Canada said. "We hope this will provide an enriching and rewarding educational experience. The two southern-most sections of the WTC prairie are designated as Wildflower Management Areas. These areas are mowed twice a year, generally in June and October. This allows the wildflowers to bloom and produce mature seeds, thus allowing for natural reseeding."

"Most individuals allow 20 to 30 minutes for the walk. We urge visitors to step around blooming plants and not to pick any flowers."

Those taking the walk are urged to watch for traffic because the trail crosses the road.

Photographs by Shirley Crawford of Sweetwater will be featured along with the student work.

The students' work will remain on display through May 21. The photos will be on display through May 31.

There is no charge for admission to Sunday's activities in the museum.

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

O.G. Nieman, in the Hereford Brand, said the recent athletic shakeup over at nearby West Texas State University in Canyon reminded him of a story about a conversation between a college president and a head football coach.

The college president was lavishing the coach with praise for his winning season. The president told the coach that he was the best friend he had on campus.

The coach listened and then asked, "Tell me, would you be this friendly if we had lost all our games instead of winning 'em all?"

The college president thoughtfully said, "Of course you would still be my friend, but I sure would miss you around here."

Larry Crabtree, in the Vernon Daily Record, told about a motorist who was exceeding the speed limit in Wilbarger County.

He quickly pulled over to the curb and realized that he did not have his seat belt fastened. He grabbed frantically for the strap, fastened it, and then opened the window to talk to the trooper.

The patrolman looked at him for a moment and then asked, "Tell me, sir. Do you always drive with your seat belt threaded through the steering wheel?"

The patrolman was so amused that the motorists got off with a warning.

IRS sells Willie Nelson's fishing camp

Astro-Graph
By Bernice Bede Osol

April 20, 1991

AUSTIN (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service sold off another of entertainer Willie Nelson's properties, but nearly a score of his Hill Country real estate packages are still on the auction block.

Nelson's Pedernales River fishing camp was sold in a sealed-bid auction Thursday to a Houston couple looking for a retirement home and a place to take their 16 children and grandchildren fishing and boating.

The IRS last year seized Nelson's properties in several states to try to recoup some of the $16.7 million he owes in back taxes and penalties.

Officials have had little luck selling several of his Texas properties, most of which are located some 30 miles west of Austin near the singer's Pedernales Country Club, 9-hole golf course and recording studio.

Mary and George Larson bought the 22-acre fishing camp with a bid of $86,100, some $800 over the only other bid tendered and $4,600 over the IRS asking price of $81,483.

The minimum sought for the camp at a January auction that brought no bids on any of Nelson's properties was $84,442.

The camp, nestled in a wooded, hilly bend of the Pedernales

River, includes a store and restaurant known as Mona's Yacht Club, a boat launch and dock and a one-story house.

Mrs. Larson said her children and those of her husband of 10 months had boated and water skied at the site in the 1970s.

"It's lovely, it's beautiful. We had camped out there for the first time last year, and we fell in love with it and that end of Lake Travis. We had searched and searched for a property in our price range, and they're hard to come by," she said.

"We did not buy it to make a ton of money. We bought it strictly for family pleasure," she said. Mrs. Larson said she wanted to consult with the people who work at the camp before she and her husband make any changes. No bid was submitted

Thursday on Nelson's 638-acre spread with a 2,800 square foot hilltop cabin and Old West movie set, where films such as "The Red-Headed Stranger," "Honeysuckle Rose" and "Lonesome Dove" were shot, the IRS said. The property has been appraised by the IRS at $1.4 million.

The minimum required bid was $99,093, a steep drop from the January asking price of $341,640. The package also includes a $554,000 lien for which the purchaser would be responsible.

Seventeen of Nelson's other properties, including vacant lots, town homes and condominiums valued at a total of about $123,000, also received no bids Thursday.

The IRS now has the option of trying to sell the properties again, buying them for the federal government or giving them back to Nelson, said IRS spokeswoman Valerie Thornton.

In January, a sale of personal items from Nelson's country club and recording studio raised about $68,000.

Nelson real estate that has been sold includes his 44-acre ranch and house in Dripping Springs, auctioned for $203,840 in January; and his golf course, country club and recording studio, bought for $117,375 by former UT football coach Darryl Royal at an auction held by the property's lien holder last month.

Ms. Thornton said IRS officials still were deciding whether to redeem the club from Royal and try to sell it again for an amount closer to the original asking price of $575,478.

Bureau says...

1990 count may have missed more than half million Texans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Census Bureau says it may have missed more than half a million Texans when it counted the state's population last year.

Officials say the Census Bureau's new numbers for Texas could swing millions of federal dollars into the state and shift substantial political power to minorities at city halls, county commissioners courts and legislative offices around the state.

The bureau said Thursday that it may have missed as few as 236,490 or as many as 632,490 Texans when it counted 16.9 million people living in the state last April.

Texas officials said the figures validate their claims that thousands of people in the state were missed during the 1990 head count.

Rep. Martin Frost, D-Dallas, said the preliminary survey results released by the Census Bureau also reinforce his call for an adjustment in the 1990 census to account for thousands of blacks and Hispanics who were apparently overlooked.

"This is a pretty significant admission by the Census Bureau that they've missed a lot of people, even if you use their low figures," Frost said.

The Census Bureau survey said its low estimate puts the Texas population at 17,223,000, while the high estimate shows the state may have had 17,619,000 residents last year.

Frost said the new numbers, if adopted and used to draw new political boundaries, could result in significant shifts in power to minorities at the local, county and state level.

"It's not just money but political power," said Frost.

"There's a real prospect for a shift in power; of additional minorities elected to city councils, county commissioners courts and to the Legislature, all over the state."

While Texas will get three new congressional seats under the 1990 count, Frost and other officials said it's not clear whether an adjustment would give the state its 31st seat in the House.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales has joined New York and several other cities and states in a lawsuit that seeks a statistical adjustment of the 1990 census to make up for any undercount. The bureau is considering whether to correct its count and is expected to decide by July 15.

Morales said he was encouraged by the bureau's findings Thursday, saying the agency appears "to be arriving at a statistical count roughly parallel to our own estimates of approximately 17.5 million to 17.75 million people living in Texas in 1990."

Developer talks about school finance and real estate issues

DALLAS (AP) — Developer Trammell Crow says that if you don't have good schools, you don't have a good state.

"In my opinion, education is more important than tax levels," Crow said Thursday night when asked about ways of paying for school finance reform.

He added that it would hurt Texas to have real estate taxes go too high.

"Real estate taxes will be cycled into the rent," he said, adding that he also has a natural aversion to income taxes.

But, if that's what it takes, in my opinion it would be better to have income taxes than not have good schools," Crow said in a small news conference before receiving the 1991 Business Statesman Award from the Harvard Business School Club of Dallas.

Crow, 76, the nation's largest commercial developer, also said real estate is gradually rebounding from the recession.

House oks pollution measure

AUSTIN (AP) — A plan to increase annual vehicle inspection fees by $2 to help pay for sweeping changes in the state's regulation of air pollution was approved by the House without debate.

State Rep. Robert Saunders, D-LaGrange, chairman of the House Environmental Affairs Committee, said Thursday his bill is designed to bring the state into compliance with recent changes in the federal Clean Air Act.

Saunders described the measure as a "delicate balance" between the interests of industry and environmentalists.

Despite the far-reaching changes under the bill, the House sent it to the Senate on a non-record vote.

The bill would tighten compliance of vehicle tailpipe emission laws, increase the number of inspections of industrial polluters, and provide criminal penalties against persons convicted of deliberately breaking air pollution laws.

Saunders said without these changes, the federal Environmental Protection Agency could take over air pollution enforcement in Texas.

"What we have to do is improve our program on air emissions, for industry, and also for motor vehicles," he said.

Ken Kramer, of the Lone Star Chapter of the Sierra Club, said one of the best parts of the bill is that it will beef up the Texas Air Control Board.

The regulatory agency's budget would nearly double — from $16 million to $30 million — during the two-year fiscal period that starts Aug. 31. By the mid-1990s, the agency will require a budget of around $60 million.

"There's enough consensus that the bill should go forward, but there still is work going on some of the provisions," Kramer said.

In other business, the House tentatively approved a bill that would require grand jury panels be chosen at random from lists of registered voters.

Luxury homes seized from family of entrepreneurs

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service seized three luxury cars from a family owning many liquefied natural gas companies in the United States, Mexico and Central America.

Eduardo and Dagmar Zaragoza Fuentes owe about $22 million in personal taxes dating from 1984 through 1988, said Bob Branson, an IRS spokesman in Austin.

Federal agents seized a 1982

Rolls Royce, a 1987 BMW and a Mercedes-Benz Wednesday. The vehicles were parked at the Zaragozas' lavish west El Paso home.

On Tuesday, federal agents seized a $1.5 million private jet, eight tractor-trailer rigs that haul liquefied petroleum gas and three trailers, Branson said.

Branson said he could not disclose the income claimed by the couple on their tax returns.

Don't cover an honor

By Phillip Alder

When you began playing bridge, you probably learned the maxim "Cover an honor with an honor." Like many bridge maxims, this one is practically useless without elaboration. In general, you should cover only the last of touching honors, and even then only when it might generate an extra trick for your side.

True, sometimes declarer will fail to take advantage of a defensive error — but not always. Today's hand cropped up in a pairs event. Every pair reached six hearts, usually following a Jacoby transfer bid. It was an easy contract to make, but the declarers who could bring home the overtrick would get the good match-point score.

Some declarers drew only two rounds of trump before playing on diamonds; others drew all the hearts before turning to the diamonds. But when the queen of diamonds was led from the dummy, the spotlight was on East. The inexperienced defenders covered immediately with the king. Ironically some of them got lucky. A couple of declarers won with the ace of diamonds and returned the nine of diamonds. This was covered by the 10, and they had to lose either a diamond ruff or the fourth round of the suit to East's seven. The better declarers led back the six of diamonds, planning to finesse dummy's eight. The appearance of the 10 ended all problems.

When the queen of diamonds wasn't covered by the king, the declarers had to guess. Did West have 10 doubleton or did East have king doubleton? Those who guessed correctly succeeded in collecting the overtrick; those who didn't, didn't.

Women Share Notes on Their Obsession With a Professor

DEAR ABBY: I would like to respond to "My Secret," the married woman who is still pining for "Father F.," the Catholic priest who was her college professor.

I experienced a similar obsession for many years. The man of my dreams had also been my college professor, and I was convinced that had I been a different kind of person, we would have had an affair.

After graduating from college, I moved to another city and married a wonderful man. Even though my marriage was a happy one, I continued to fantasize about meeting "him" again in some romantic place. I felt certain that during those times when I thought so intensely about him, he was having those same feelings about me.

Some years later, while visiting my hometown, I ran into him one afternoon in a busy mall. All those memories came flooding back and I was thrilled to see him. With outstretched arms, I shouted excitedly, "I can't believe it's really you!"

He stopped, and, Abby, he didn't even remember my name. I felt like a fool!

Quite often, especially when life gets rough, we recall special people in our past as still being there where we left off — frozen in time — waiting for us to come back and pick up where we left off. The sad truth is that time marches on for everybody.

You wisely advised the woman who was still carrying the torch for "Father F." to get rid of her fantasies. Others who are inclined to dwell too long on the past would do well to follow that advice.

A FAITHFUL READER
FOR 30 YEARS

DEAR FAITHFUL READER: How wise you are. Read on for a letter from a younger soul sister who is also very wise:

DEAR ABBY: My heart stopped when I read the letter signed "My Secret." I could have written that letter. I am currently attending a Catholic university and would give anything for a relationship with my philosophy professor who happens to be a priest. Richard Gere he's not, but his intelligence, wit and personality make him the kind of guy most girls would kill for.

The way I look at it, I plan to take advantage of my time as his student and reap the benefits of his skill as an instructor. Like a flower making use of a spring rain shower, I want to soak up every bit of his wisdom so I can be the best person I can be. I will place him high on the list of professors who have had an impact on my life, then file that list with the rest of my college memories, and move on.

My advice to "My Secret": As for leaving your husband to be near "Father F.," forget it. Life is a continual journey; don't waste your time going down a dead-end street. Instead, emulate "Father F." and honor the vow you made, just as he must honor his. Having you hanging around nearby will only make things more difficult for him if he is to remain true to his calling. Priests are only human, after all, and they probably don't relish the celibacy part of their commitment. I know exactly how you feel, but don't be the straw that broke the camel's back.

Like the prayer says, "Lead us not into temptation." Just sign me ...

Jr. Olympics raises over 2,000 dollars

The second annual Junior Olympics Festival, sponsored by the West Elementary Parent Council Organization, gave over 500 children a chance to compete in seven events plus inter city relays and raised over $2,000 for improvements for the school.

Students — 517 in all — participated in 137 races plus the "buddy" shuttle relays. Ribbons were awarded to the top three in each heat for each event.

Track meet events included the running broad jump, softball throw, 50-yard-dash, 100 yard dash, 200 yard dash, 400 yard dash and the inter city relays which had students from local elementary schools competing for ribbons.

Pair indicted for officer slaying under new drug law

TYLER, Texas (AP) — Two Edinburg brothers have been indicted in the first test of a federal law allowing the death penalty for killing an officer in the midst of a drug trafficking operation.

Baldemar Sambrano Villarreal, 29, and Reynaldo Sambrano Villarreal, 24, were indicted Thursday by a federal grand jury in connection with the Jan. 23 beating and stabbing death of Nacogdoches County constable Darrell Lunsford.

A third suspect, Jesus "Jesse" Cortez Zambrano, 22, also of Edinburg, pleaded guilty April 11 to the new federal murder statute. But Department of Justice officials said Zambrano will not face a death sentence. Instead, he will be sentenced to between 20 years and life in prison and a $250,000 fine for his role in the officer's death.

Lunsford, 47, had stopped a car near Garrison, Texas. A videotape camera mounted on Lunsford patrol car and used primarily to get scene footage in drunken driving cases recorded the officer's killing.

The three men had been charged with capital murder and held without bond in a state case. The federal government later charged the trio with conspiracy to distribute marijuana after 25 to 30 pounds of the drug and Lunsford's wallet were found near the abandoned car photographed in the videotape.

Then federal officials involved in the investigation opted to try for the new indictment.

The indictment, which requires the personal approval of U.S. Attorney Dick Thornburgh, eliminates the possibility of parole for convicted offenders.

"Congress gave us a tool to prosecute drug dealers who take the lives of local, state and federal officers and we're going to use it," said U.S. Attorney Bob Wortham of Beaumont, who will try the case along with Assistant U.S. Attorneys Jim Middleton and Wes Rivers.

Author Edgar Allan Poe died in 1849 in Baltimore, Md. He was 40.

Taxes exceed expenses

AUSTIN (AP) — Pari-mutuel horse and dog races in Texas has shown a profit for state government for the first time since being legalized, the Racing Commission says.

Dave Freeman, the commission's executive secretary, said that pari-mutuel wagering now has generated more revenue for the state than was spent in supporting the racing industry since the commission was formed in 1988.

"For the first time since the voters approved pari-mutuel wagering, the state has taken in more money than it has spent on racing start-up and subsequent regulation," Freeman said Thursday.

Since the commission was formed, revenue generated for the state totals $10.35 million. That money was raised through racetrack application and licensing fees, fines, uncashed winning tickets and the state's tax on wagers. The state collects a 5 percent tax on each dollar wagered on horse racing and 6 percent on dog racing.

The commission's total expenses since 1988 total $8.05 million, and another $2.29 million was spent by the Department of Public Safety in enforcement of racing laws and on background investigations.

"This is an exciting time for the commission because the pari-mutuel racing industry is now generating more direct revenue for the state than it costs to operate the commission," Freeman said.

Chapman says Army wants to mothball Karnack Plant by '94

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Jim Chapman says the Army is moving ahead with plans to mothball an East Texas ammunition plant despite a new law designed to prevent base closings without the approval of an independent commission.

Chapman, D-Sulphur Springs, said he learned Monday that the Army still planned to mothball the Longhorn Army Ammunition Plant in Karnack by 1994, reducing the work force from approximately 900 to about 70.

The Army's plans come despite legislation, co-sponsored by Chapman, which requires base closings involving more than 300 workers to be approved by an independent base-closure commission, the president and Congress.

Chapman said the Army claims the ammunition plant isn't covered by the new law because it has only 31 government employees, and that the rest work for a private contractor, Thiokol Corp. of Ogden, Utah.

Chapman says he learned of the Army's plans on Monday, just three days after the Pentagon submitted a list of recommended base closings to the Base Closure and Realignment Commission.

"I was pleasantly surprised not to see it on the list, and then disappointed and surprised to find out the Army's position that it didn't have to be on the list to be shut down," Chapman said.

Chapman said the Army has taken the position that at government-owned, contractor-operated facilities, only the government employees are counted toward the new base-closing threshold.

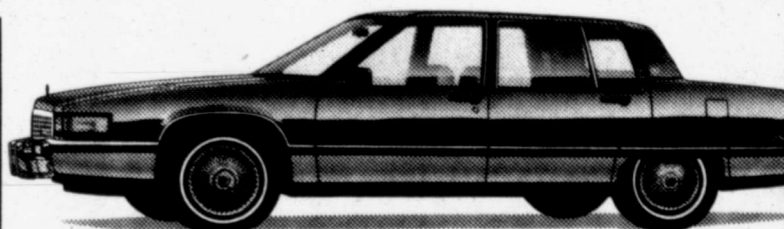

Cheney announced in January 1990 that he was seeking to mothball Longhorn and several other ammunition plants as part of a national base-closing plan. The list, however, was scrapped amid charges that most installations were in Democrats' districts and Congress adopted the new procedures in its place.

"I always believed that Longhorn was at risk, but I also believed that the (new) base closure law applied, and that we would be notified," Chapman said in an interview.

Instead, Chapman said he learned of the Army's intentions Monday, when he obtained a memo from the Army to Longhorn detailing its plans to mothball the plant.

Report praises Comanche Peak

GLEN ROSE, Texas (AP) — Several citizens groups that have opposed Comanche Peak are critical of a Nuclear Regulatory Commission assessment giving TU Electric high marks for operation of the facility.

Lon Burnam of Texas Citizen Action, a consumer and environmental advocacy group, said the report is "pretty much a whitewash, which is what we've come to expect."

Betty Brink of Citizens for Fair Utility Regulation agreed.

"A lot of things were omitted," she said. "Comanche Peak has had so many shutdowns, and the NRC is not addressing it."

But NRC spokesman Joe Gilliland said Thursday the report rated operational safety in several areas.

"The report doesn't really address how many shutdowns you have. The number of shutdowns may be an operational inconvenience, and may lead some people to question its reliability, but a shutdown may be exactly the action that needs to be taken at the time from a safety standpoint," Gilliland said.

Iraqis said exposed to ideas of freedom

SAFWAN, Iraq (AP) — In a town divided by hate and fear, U.S. soldiers are leaving more than a rebuilt clinic to the Iraqis they have worked with since end of the Persian Gulf War.

Saddam Hussein and refugees, most of whom flocked to the U.S.-occupied zone to escape him.

"The Iraqis here have seen a different way of life, they've seen equality," said Chief Warrant Officer Joseph Hatch of Hamburg, New York. "We demonstrated freedom — we didn't force it on anybody.... This is a gift from the American people."

Dr. Gott
Peter Gott, M.D.

For more than a month, Hatch and another physician's assistant, Chief Warrant Officer Ben Beouli of San Antonio, worked with army medics saving babies and patching up children injured by stray explosives. They even helped an Iraqi soldier escape vengeful — anti-government refugees.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a husband who complains constantly of being tired. He has a cabinet filled with fish oil, vitamins from A to Z and all the B vitamins you could imagine. He thinks the more he takes the better he feels, and I simply cannot educate the man. Would you please comment so I can simply hand him your response?

U.S. Army-supplied equipment and medicine enabled Safwan's small hospital to reopen after it was ruined by shrapnel and looters. Last weekend, as the U.S. Army prepared to withdraw, they turned the clinic back to the Iraqi staff.

DEAR READER: Your question really has two components: the issue of chronic fatigue and the role of megavitamin therapy. Lassitude and fatigue are frequently the earliest and most troublesome indicators of ill health. Such symptoms often reflect the presence of disease: anemia, cancer, hidden infection, diabetes, thyroid disorders and depression, to mention a few. In fact, fatigue is part and parcel of many chronic ailments.

Americans at Safwan are among only 18,000 remaining in Iraq to protect a thin buffer zone between Iraq and Kuwait until 1,440 U.N. peacekeeping troops are deployed in the next few weeks.

Therefore, rather than relying on vitamins and minerals to combat his fatigue, your husband needs to see his family doctor for a diagnosis. The physician will perform a thorough medical examination, followed by blood tests, to determine the cause of the complaint. More often than not, the basis of chronic tiredness can be identified and treated.

The clinic is still a mess — broken windows and toilets, no running water — but Hatch described it as a success story.

Megavitamin therapy is not an effective treatment for fatigue nor should it be used to treat undiagnosed ailments; this therapy has not proved appropriate for tiredness, loss of stamina or other symptoms of poor health. Moreover, some vitamins — notably A and D — can be exceedingly dangerous when taken in large quantities because toxic levels may affect many of the body's organs. Of course, in rare cases a patient may have a specific vitamin or mineral deficiency that can easily be corrected by using supplements containing vitamins at or near the Recommended Daily Allowance. However, massive doses, in amounts far exceeding the body's requirement, should be discouraged.

The clinic has been a place of even-handed treatment in a city divided between permanent residents loyal to Iraqi President

My answer to your husband is: Stop playing doctor; find an M.D. who can diagnose the problem and suggest sensible therapy.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Fads I — Vitamins and Minerals." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

WTC adds two new courses

Two biology courses of special interest to nursing students have been added to the summer schedule at Western Texas College.

Biology, 241, human anatomy and physiology, will meet from 8:45 a.m. Monday through Thursday with lab time to follow from 9:45-12:15.

Nutrition 231, nutrition and diet therapy, will meet from 6-10 p.m. on Thursday.

Joe Carter, professor of science, will be the instructor for both courses.

Registration for summer classes at WTC will be held on June 3 and classes will also begin on that day. Call 573-8511 for more information.

HYANNIS, Mass. (AP) — The magazines and newspapers blaring headlines linking a Kennedy family member to an alleged rape aren't selling well at the Ways Center News store in this family summer spot on Cape Cod.

This is Kennedy country, after all. Friends and detractors alike say they have taken a wait-and-see attitude after years of watching the political dynasty deal with tragedy and scandal.

"People make comments but they don't buy the things," said Mike King, who runs the Ways Center News store. "They say it's the same old thing."

The latest Kennedy drama stems from a woman's allegation that she was raped by William Kennedy Smith, nephew of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, at the family's Palm Beach, Fla., estate last month.

The woman told police she went to the estate after having drinks at a local bar with Smith, the senator, and the senator's 23-year-old son, Rhode Island Rep. Patrick Kennedy.

Palm Beach police have said Smith is a suspect in the case, but no charges have been filed.

The police investigation has generated a flurry of media attention in much of the United States and Europe, but people in Massachusetts and Rhode Island seem to be withholding judgment.

"There's a lot of things that will have to come up before you can say, 'Yeah, you dirty rats,'" said 73-year-old Joseph Mattia, one of Patrick's constituents.

Patrick Kennedy so far seems little scathed, but several people said the incident has tarnished his father's reputation.

Another woman who said she was at the house the night the assault reportedly took place said she saw the senator wearing only a shirt.

"For a guy that's a senator, he should have a little more brains," Mattia said.

Doris Kearns Goodwin, who chronicled the family's history in "The Fitzgeralds and the Kennedys," said the incident may embarrass Edward Kennedy, but people will feel "a sort of bemusement, rather than a sense of anger."

Bob Thomas, a 53-year-old roofing foreman from Providence, said the handling of the rape case is more damaging to the family's image than the allegation itself.

"It'll all get swept under the rug," he said.

Outside St. Francis Xavier Church, a simple white clapboard building in Hyannis that has been the site of Kennedy family weddings and christenings, 79-year-old church usher George Conley defended Edward Kennedy and his family.

Some disagreed, but many of the critics would not be quoted by name.

LOCAL APPEARANCE — The Texas Lutheran Choir performed in concert last Sunday at Grace Lutheran Church for a combined service with St. John's Episcopal Church. Lee Boyd Montgomery Jr. is the director. The choir also performed at Western Texas College. (Church Photo)

Equipment purchases increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although some farmers may be a bit leery about taking on more debt, the Agriculture Department says many will be buying new tractors and other machinery this year.

The department's Economic Research Service said Thursday in a preliminary monthly outlook report that several factors indicate "a sustained increase" in farm machinery investment and that sales may rise an average of about 4 percent from their 1990 level.

"These include the strengthening of farmers' financial positions, lower cost and expanding availability of credit, an aging stock of capital equipment and higher real rates of return of farm assets," it said.

But economists cautioned that "equipment purchases may be limited by fewer acres eligible for government payments" under the new farm law. Also, many farmers may be cautious about assuming new debt.

The agency continued to forecast 1991 net cash income of farmers at $53 billion to $58 billion, compared with about $58 billion last year.

As used by the USDA economists, net cash income "measures the value of commodities sold in a calendar year plus government payments, less out-of-pocket costs." Some commodities sold actually may have been produced in earlier years and stored until marketed.

Husbands, wives can qualify separately now

WASHINGTON (AP) — A final decision has been made so husbands and wives can qualify as separate persons under federal farm program payment regulations, Agriculture Secretary Edward Madigan says.

The new regulation announced Thursday carries out a "discretionary authority" provided by the 1990 farm law to allow spouses to be considered as separate persons in determining limits on farm subsidies.

Clayton Yeutter, Madigan's predecessor, announced on Jan. 7 that he intended to carry out the authority to change the payments rules for spouses.

The Supreme Court a year ago rejected without comment a challenge to the Agriculture Department regulation that treated a husband and wife as one person when they apply for the payments.

3 more African countries added to eligibility list

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three more African countries have been added to the Agriculture Department's eligibility list for sales of U.S. wheat at subsidized prices.

Acting Undersecretary Ann Veneman said Thursday that Botswana, Lesotho and Namibia may buy the grain under the department's Export Enhancement Program.

A total of 20 countries in West and Central Africa now are eligible to buy U.S. wheat under the program.

Book gives reason for Vietnam war

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — Lyndon B. Johnson was an insecure man who thought that acting like President John Kennedy would bring glamour to the White House and endear him to the American people, a Bowling Green State University history professor says.

Though envious of Kennedy's alleged sexual exploits and war bravado, Johnson was vulgar in his attempts to imitate his predecessor, Paul Henggeler said in his newly released book, "In His Steps — Lyndon Johnson and the Kennedy Mystique."

Henggeler called Johnson a "closet Kennedy."

"I think I show just how much Johnson sought to mimic himself after Kennedy after he became president. He constantly tried to pattern himself as an intellectual and, to some degree, to mimic Kennedy as terms of being stylish and a trend setter," Henggeler said Thursday.

Johnson's efforts to imitate Kennedy's style made him seem oafish, the book said.

Henggeler pointed to the time Johnson posed for the cover of Gentleman's Quarterly magazine.

"When Johnson became president, he received a memo from press secretary Bill Moyers saying John Kennedy once posed on the cover of GQ in a business suit and it set a fashion trend for business suits. Moyers suggested to Johnson that he pose for the cover of GQ," Henggeler said.

"He liked the idea and it was suggested that he would be able to fashion himself by wearing Western garb on the LBJ ranch in Texas. But Johnson, when he shows up to have the picture taken on the front porch of his ranch, is not wearing Western garb but a business suit, much like the one John Kennedy wore. So it becomes a sort of comical appearance."

But Henggeler also paints a sympathetic picture of Johnson.

"Other biographers have sort of one-dimensional perspective of Johnson. They see him largely as a political operator, one who is selfishly in pursuit of his own ambitions. The approach that I took was to see Johnson as a bit more sympathetic, particular in terms of how he was caught in the dilemma of the Kennedy mystique," Henggeler said.

The book said that Johnson prided himself as a ladies' man, but never achieved the level of Kennedy's reputed conquests. Instead, Henggeler said, Johnson kept detailed records of other politicians' affairs to use against them.

Henggeler and other authors have said that Johnson had extramarital affairs, swam nude in the White House and defecated in front of aides.

In the late 1930s and early 1940s, after his marriage to Lady Bird, Johnson had an affair with Alice Glass, the wife of Charles Marsh, a wealthy businessman who was instrumental to Johnson's career, the book said.
