Tax relief topic for city council

Snyder City Council members will convene for a special 8 a.m. meeting at City Hall on Monday to consider a possible tax abatement package for Walls Industries, Inc.

Representatives from the community will travel to Cleburne on Wednesday to meet with officials from the manufacturing firm in an effort to keep the sewing factory from closing July 12.

In response to the Wednesday meeting, Scurry County Commissioners will also consider a tax abatement package during their weekly meeting, which has been moved to 8 a.m. Tuesday due to Memorial Day. Snyder ISD trustees will take up the issue in a 12:30 p.m. Tuesday meeting.

On May 14, officials from Walls met with city and chamber representatives to announce the closing. Since the announcement, community leaders have been working to put together a package to encourage the firm to keep the local facility open.

The plant currently employs 106 people, including outlet personnel, with an annual payroll of $1.2 to $1.6 million.

In making the announcement, Walls officials cited rising worker's compensation costs and the recent decline in the demand of the type of garment produced here — insulated coveralls — as key factors in their decision.

Police arrest six; one nabbed twice

Snyder police arrested six individuals Friday, including one 29-year-old man twice as he bolted and ran while being booked into the county jail.

Officers also cleared up a burglary with the identification of a juvenile suspect.

At 9:38 p.m., police stopped a vehicle at 900 Ave. E and arrested Gregory Allen Porter for felony driving while intoxicated. Officers transported him to Scurry County Jail, where he was taken into the intoxalizer room.

As he was being prepared for booking, Porter bolted and ran out the front door of the sheriff's office.

Porter was pursued, but temporarily eluded officers. He was arrested again without incident at 11:51 p.m. at 1908 West Dr., charged with escape, and transported back to the county jail.

Bond was set at $2,000 for the DWI and $5,000 for the escape.

Earlier in the day, officers received a report of three intoxicated people at North Park. Units responded and at 2:09 p.m. placed three individuals into custody. Arrested were a 28-year-old female for public intoxication, making alcohol available to a minor, and possession of alcohol in a park; and two males, ages 19 and 17, for PI and minor in possession.

At 6:11 p.m., officers took a 42-year-old woman into custody at Kmart for Class B theft. One other arrest came at 3:07 a.m. today when officers took a 17-year-old male into custody at 37th and Ave. M for PI.

Police also cleared up the May 1 burglary of Mulligan's Mall with the identification of a 16-year-old male and the recovery of some property. The case will now be referred to juvenile court.

Police also responded to a number of minor complaint calls and domestic disputes Friday and early Saturday, including one at 4:42 a.m. in which two females said they had been assaulted by their estranged husbands, but decided not to file a report.

U.N. evacuation underway as Eritrean rebels advance

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) — The United Nations began evacuating its employees and their families from this besieged capital Saturday, joining an exodus of Ethiopian Jews as fears of civil disorder heightened.

Eritrean rebels captured Ethiopia's second-largest city, Asmara, but Tigrean insurgents Saturday appeared to be holding themselves at bay on the outskirts of Addis Ababa pending peace talks scheduled to open Monday in London.

An estimated 1,500 dependents and employees of 16 U.N. agencies were being airlifted to Nairobi, the capital of neighboring Kenya, in chartered aircraft and planes beginning Saturday.

They joined an estimated 16,000 Ethiopian Jews being flown to Israel in a round-the-clock operation that began Friday as rebels fighting a three-month-old offensive closed to within 12 miles of Addis Ababa from the west and sent patrols probing even closer.

Scattered gunfire echoed through the capital during the night, but it was no heavier than on previous nights and appeared to be the nervous firing of hundreds of militiamen and neighborhood security patrols.

"They're shooting at shadows," said one Western diplomat. "But it's best to be off the streets at night lest it's your shadow they shoot at."

The city has become a camp of armed men since the rebels intensified their advance and tightened the noose around Addis Ababa following the resignation Tuesday of President Mengistu Haile Mariam, who fled to Zimbabwe where he has been offered asylum. Exit-level TEAMS tests are scheduled

The summer administration of the Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills (TEAMS) exit-level test for students in Scurry County will be held July 16-17 at the Region 14 Education Service Center in Abilene.

The center is located at 1850 Albany Hwy. Testing will begin at 9 a.m. each day. The English language arts test will be administered on July 16 and the mathematics test will be administered July 17. The exit-level Texas Assessment of Academic Skills (TAAS) test will not be administered this July.

This July testing is limited to individuals who have completed all requirements for graduation or will do so by Aug. 31, 1991, but who have not passed one or both sections of the TEAMS exit-level examination.

Registration packets have been distributed to each high school campus and district central office in addition to the regional education service centers.

Individuals who are no longer enrolled in a Texas public school and wish to register to retake the TEAMS exit-level English language arts and/or mathematics tests may pick up a registration packet.

Registration forms must be completed by examinees, returned in the pre-addressed envelope, and received in Iowa City, Iowa, no later than 5 p.m. June 21. It is suggested that individuals registering for the test make arrangements with the appropriate postal agent for a proof of delivery notice. The Texas Education Agency and National Computer Systems will not be responsible for registration forms that are delayed or lost in the mail.

From time to time there has been fun poked at us hicks in the sticks. Generally, it's aimed at small-town folks and our small-town ways.

We recently printed a list that would let you know when you're in a small town. The characteristics, we thought, had more positives than negatives.

Now somebody has come up with a list, "You Know You Are in the City When:"

- You don't even know your next-door neighbor.
- You spend an hour or more driving to work in stop-and-go traffic on a six-lane freeway.
- You think a head of lettuce is raised at the grocery store and beans are grown in a can.
- It takes an hour to drive across town to see a friend you haven't seen in six months.

-You fight traffic again on weekends just to get back out to the country.

-You have all the entertainment events you could ever want, but can never go until the country folks come to town.

-You breath polluted air.

-You pay $30,000 for a $3,000 lot to build a $40,000 home that costs $140,000.

-You don't go to church often because it's too far, there are no parking places and you don't know the preacher or anyone else in the congregation.

-You are scared to just walk around the block for fear of getting mugged.

-You go to the zoo to see horses, goats, cows, chickens and rabbits.

-You can't pay for your own public schools, so you want the country folks to bail you out.

Cheney proposes streamlining for COE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney sent Congress a proposal Friday to cut 2,600 jobs from the Army Corps of Engineers and streamline its organization.

Cheney, in a statement issued at the Pentagon, said the changes were part of the overall reductions being made at the Department of Defense because of its declining budget, cuts in manpower, the changes in the international order and subsequent new or changed missions being performed by the military.

Under the plan, the Fort Worth and Galveston divisions would report to the South Central Division office in Vicksburg, Miss., and the Dallas office would be among those combined with another office.

"We concluded that the corps can perform its military and civil works functions with substantially more efficiency if we streamline that infrastructure," Cheney said.

There are 29,000 civilians and 1,000 military personnel that comprise the Corps, which provides engineering services for the federal government and the military in all 50 states and overseas.

The job cuts would primarily affect civilian positions.

A Pentagon spokesman said the plan was expected to take five years to enact and expected to glean $112 million in savings annually.

Under the reorganization plan, which Congress must approve, the boundaries for the Corps' regional offices would be realigned.

The number of Engineer divisions would be cut from 10 to six, while the number of districts would be slashed from 35 to 22. The number of districts doing military design and construction would be cut from 15 to seven.

That means that the staff in many corps offices would be cut back, say from 12 to three, or a larger office reduced to a skeleton staff.

No offices are being closed, a spokesman said.

The plan does not affect the corps' lock and dam offices or its lake offices.

Cheney had first announced his intention to submit the plan for Congress' approval along with his base closure recommendations, but delayed it.

Cheney recommended that Congress enact legislation allowing the department to streamline the corps separately from the base closure process to ensure "prompt consideration" by the lawmakers, the statement said.

If it is approved, the plan would divide the 48 contiguous states into six divisions.

Here are the divisions, along with the offices that would report to them:

—North Atlantic Division, headquartered in New York. Comprised of the Baltimore district, New York district and New England district headquartered in Waltham, Mass.

—North Central division, in Cincinnati. Comprised of the Buffalo, N.Y., district; Huntington, W.Va., district; Louisville district, and Saint Louis district.

—Northwest Division at Portland, Ore. Comprised of Omaha, Neb., district; Portland, Ore., district, and Walla Walla, Wash., district.

—Southwest Division at San Francisco. Comprised of Albuquerque, N.M. district; Los Angeles district, and Sacramento, Calif., district.

—South Central Division at Vicksburg, Miss. Comprised of Fort Worth, Texas district; Galveston, Texas, district; Little Rock, Ark., district; New Orleans, La., district, and Vicksburg, Miss., district.

—South Atlantic Division at Atlanta. Comprised of Jacksonville, Fla., district; Mobile, Ala., district; Savannah, Ga., district, and Wilmington, N.C. district.

Division offices at Omaha, Chicago, and Dallas would be combined to other offices under the plan. The New England Division will be reconstituted as a district under the North Atlantic Division and will remain at Waltham, Mass., the statement said.

The 14 district offices to be combined into other offices are the existing ones at Charleston, S.C.; Chicago; Detroit; Kansas City, Mo.; Memphis, Tenn.; Nashville; Norfolk, Va.; Philadelphia; Pittsburgh; Rock Island, Ill.; Saint Paul, Minn.; San Francisco; Seattle, and Tulsa, Okla.

Actress sued by traffic officer

NEW YORK (AP) — Katharine Hepburn is being sued by a traffic officer who claims the actress attacked her and called her a pig when she tried to ticket a car double-parked in front of Hepburn's house.

Angie Hopkins, 42, alleges Hepburn, 81, and producer-director Anthony Harvey, 60, assaulted her March 1990. Harvey is named as co-defendant in the $4.6 million assault and libel lawsuit.

Joe DePlasco, Department of Transportation spokesman, said the incident began when Hopkins put the $40 ticket on the car's windshield after Hepburn and Harvey implored her to tear it up.

Harvey followed Hopkins to her patrol car, where he closed the car door on her left hand, DePlasco said. Hopkins' lawsuit doesn't state how Hepburn may have assaulted her.

Harvey, who directed Hepburn in "The Lion in Winter," one of her four Academy Award-winning performances, got a summons for harassment.

People For Progress gets grant

People For Progress, Inc. has recently received a $301,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services for the start-up and operation of a Head Start program for Scurry, Mitchell, Nolan and Fisher counties.

Head Start will begin operation in August, with one or two classrooms being provided for each county. This program will be provided at no cost to the participants.

Applications for children age four will be taken from 8:30 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. at Snyder Child Day Care Center, 115 31st St. Applications should be picked up immediately due to limited space. Call 573-7403 for more information.

The purpose of Head Start is to provide children from three to five years of age with a comprehensive program to meet their emotional, social, health, nutritional and psychological needs to prepare them for entrance into public schools. Children receive a complete examination, including vision and hearing tests, identification of handicapping conditions, immunizations and a dental exam. Followup treatment is provided for identified health problems. Head Start children will attend class for six to eight hours per day and will be provided with breakfast, lunch and two snacks per day.

Studies have indicated that Head Start children score higher than comparable non-Head Start children in pre-school achievement tests. The studies also show that Head Start children perform equal to or better than their peers when entering a regular school and there are fewer grade retentions and special placements.

Handicapped children and their families can receive Head Start developmental services, also. In addition, Head Start members work closely with community agencies to provide services to meet the special needs of the handicapped child. Classes and workshops on child development are offered to help parents learn about the needs of their child and about educational activities that can be carried into the home.

Michael Landon leaves hospital

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Michael Landon returned to his 10-acre Malibu ranch after being hospitalized for four days with a blood clot in his leg.

Landon, looking thin and pale, checked out of Cedars-Sinai Medical Center on Friday.

The 54-year-old actor and writer disclosed last month that he has inoperable cancer of the liver and pancreas.

About 70 people — fans, patients and a throng of cameramen — showed up to document the departure. Landon didn't speak to reporters but told one fan, "Thanks for your support."

Financial Focus

Nearly everyone dreams of getting in on the ground floor or a super investment. Many people tout initial public offerings as one way to do this. Are they right?

An initial public offering (IPO) is a corporation's first offering of stock to the public. This means a company that has been operating on borrowed or venture capital offers to sell to the public part ownership of the company.

An IPO is also an opportunity for existing investors and current venture capitalists to make often large and immediate profits because their shares now have a ready market and market value. This market value generally reflects the expectations of future company growth, rather than a more realistic evaluation of the company's present value. The company itself also benefits from an IPO because of the influx of new capital from the sale of stock.

All this is not necessarily bad. New businesses are born and prosper in our capitalistic economy by allowing the public to participate in their growth through stock ownership.

Regardless, investing in an IPO is a risky venture that should not be undertaken without a reasonable understanding of the new corporation. Information on the new corporation can be found in the prospectus that is filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) and is given to prospective buyers of the offering.

Even with this, the history of IPOs during the 1980's was dismal. Here are the results as recently reported by Investment Vision, a national financial publication.

- (1) Of 3,186 IPOs issued, 40 percent no longer trade on the national exchanges.
- (2) About half of the remaining 60 percent of IPOs have lost money.
- (3) Three-quarters of the remaining 60 percent have underperformed the S&P 500.

These are not good odds. In fact, even the investors who profited from IPO investments would have fared better by buying U.S. Treasury bonds during the same period.

Investing in the IPOs of small or untested companies through common stock can be profitable if you do your homework. Otherwise, the record shows that the odds are generally against you.

Trustee indicted

MIDLAND (AP) — An Odessa College trustee has been indicted on several federal bank fraud charges involving a defunct New Mexico thrift, a newspaper reports.

William Michael Furman, 54, was arrested by the FBI in Midland Friday, but released later that day on $100,000 bond set by U.S. Magistrate Robert Sykes, the Odessa American reported.

The indictments involve Liberty Federal Bank, a savings and loan institution in Albuquerque. The Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. closed Liberty Federal in 1988, according to court records.

The federal indictment issued by a New Mexico grand jury, charges Furman with four counts of bank fraud, two counts of aiding and abetting, two counts of misapplication of funds and five counts of improper participation in loans, according to a prepared FBI release.

U.S. Attorney Bill Lutz in Albuquerque, who is in charge of the case, could not be reached for comment Friday.

Furman, an Odessa College trustee since 1973, declined an interview with the Odessa American Friday regarding the incident.

Furman has served as president of Liberty Trust Co. in Odessa, which filed for Chapter 11 reorganization protection in December 1986.

Legislature oks bill allowing beer sales at Texas Stadium

DALLAS (AP) — With little fanfare, legislators quietly approved a measure allowing alcohol sales inside Texas Stadium, outraging Irving city officials, who have been fighting Dallas Cowboys owner Jerry Jones to keep beer sales out of the arena.

Without any discussion, the Texas House agreed with a Senate amendment to a bill that supersedes Irving's zoning ordinance restricting wine and beer sales inside the Dallas Cowboys' arena, The Dallas Morning News reported in Saturday editions.

Irving officials say they knew nothing of the amendment, approved 140-0 by the House Friday, and may ask Gov. Ann Richards to veto it.

"I don't like it one bit," said Irving Mayor Roy Brown. "But the city owns the property where the stadium is located and we are the landlord. That leaves me some options that I'm not prepared to talk about now."

Rep. Gwen Shea, R-Irving, said was told to watch for the bill Friday, but was in a meeting when it came to a House vote at 5 p.m.

"I do not approve of the state resolving local issues in Austin," Ms. Shea said. "We were kind of in a Scud missile attack here today. We're trying to find our Patriots now."

The amendment states that "no provision of the a city charter, zoning ordinance or regulation will restrict alcohol sales by a stadium licensed by the state to sell liquor."

The amendment's author, Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, could not be reached for comment by the News.

The bill's House sponsor, Rep. Eddie Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi, said he didn't know the Senate measure would allow alcohol sales at Texas Stadium.

The Texas Stadium Corp., which operates the stadium, filed suit against the city April 24 claiming the local ordinance

Larry King, wife want a child

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Talk show host Larry King and his wife, Julie, who ended an acrimonious separation just days ago, have decided they want to have a child.

Mrs. King, 43, broke the news at a Graduate Hospital Auxiliary lunch on Thursday. "My husband and I are trying to have a baby," she told the gathering of 75 women.

She also said she'll leave her placement agency in Philadelphia to be with her husband in Washington, D.C.

The couple, married 20 months, have commuted, and in their court fight over spousal support Mrs. King testified she was able to spend less than half of her time with King.

violates the Texas Alcoholic Beverage Code.

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones, who owns the controlling interest in Texas Stadium Corp., could not be reached by the newspaper Friday for comment.

Earlier Friday, the corporation's attorneys asked a Dallas district judge to strike down the Irving ordinance.

Texas Stadium visitors may bring alcoholic beverages into the stadium in coolers, but liquor sales are not permitted inside the sports arena even though city residents voted a decade ago to declare the city "wet."

Dallas Cowboys Vice-President Mike McCoy said he knew about the bill, but denied the team organization actively lobbied for it.

"My understanding is that it exempts large arenas from existing laws. That's all I know about it," McCoy said. "The Cowboys were aware of the bill, but we didn't sponsor it or anything like that."

Columbia... NASA to restart countdown

WASHINGTON (AP) — NASA says it plans to restart the countdown for the nine-day flight of space shuttle Columbia on Tuesday after removing or replacing sensors that might have harmed the shuttle on liftoff.

Three of nine sensors on the shuttle's inlet pipes were replaced with dummy plugs when engineers decided the instruments were no longer needed. The other six were being replaced Saturday.

The shuttle was scheduled for liftoff last Wednesday from Cape Canaveral, Fla., but the attempt was canceled when shuttle builder Rockwell International warned NASA that some of the sensors might break off with potentially catastrophic results.

Rockwell based its warning on a report by the RDF Corporation of Hudson, N.H., that a sensor removed from the shuttle last September could get loose and be drawn into an engine.

After receiving the pencil-like part last year, Rockwell apparently sent it to the wrong subcontractor for testing, explaining part of the delay.

RDF said it did not receive authorization until late February to test the device in non-destructive ways and that it sent a report to Rockwell in mid-March that included an "indication of structural damage." Not until the first week in May, said RDF, was it given permission to continue with a metallurgical analysis.

Open container bill 'dead'

AUSTIN (AP) — A bill that could have suspended Texas driver's licenses for 90 days upon arrest for a drunken driving offense or for having an open alcoholic container in their vehicle was declared dead by a state senator Friday.

Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, said he wouldn't ask his Senate State Affairs Committee to consider the House-passed measure.

Glasgow said the bill had too many problems to be considered in the Legislature's final days.

"A majority of my committee had come up and asked me, as chairman, not to lay that bill out, that they thought it was a horrible bill and they didn't want to vote on it. And I'm not going to," Glasgow told reporters.

Rep. Ted Kamel, R-Tyler, who sponsored the open container ban as an amendment to the DWI bill, blamed liquor lobbyists for killing the measure.

"I don't believe the people of this state really, truly understand how powerful the lobby and special interest groups are," Kamel said.

"I believe we showed that the other night on the House floor (when the open container ban was approved) for years, the will of the House has been circumvented, where this particular piece of legislation was tied down in committee. And we showed how courageous we could be," Kamel said.

Glasgow said the bill was riddled with problems.

He said it would have allowed the Department of Public Safety, not a judge, to suspend licenses. And he said it would strip licenses from people who may only have driven drunk once.

"A driver's license in Texas is a necessity. How do people get to work and back in downtown Dallas, downtown Houston? We don't have mass transit and rail service in Texas. How do mothers take their children to school and back?" he asked.

"Everybody that has a minor offense with the law, driving while intoxicated, is not a drunk that's going to continue to drive upon the streets of Texas."

Glasgow also said he was concerned about "turning over the (license) suspension process to the DPS ... It just simply takes the court out of the system, and it is a horribly abusive bill."

Bob Hope will turn 88 May 29

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A ceremony to rename a Hollywood health center in honor of entertainer Bob Hope turned into a birthday tribute for the comedian, who turns 88 on Wednesday.

Actress Janet Leigh and film producer Walter Seltzer joined the guests, who sang "Happy Birthday" to Hope Friday at a ribbon-cutting ceremony.

Hope donated $1 million to the Motion Picture and Television Fund, and the non-profit organization decided to rename its Hollywood Health Care Center in tribute to his generosity.

The entertainer said he hoped the Bob Hope Health Center would help young people starting out in show business.

Lakers up, 2-1...

Divac guides L.A. to victory

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Vlade Divac didn't play very well in the first two games of the Western Conference final, but he made up for it with an inspired six minutes in Game 3.

"Vlade was very active; he was a spark on both ends of the court," the Lakers' Magic Johnson said. "He was very aggressive."

Divac scored 10 points, blocked three shots and had a steal during a third-quarter run Friday night as the Lakers pulled away to beat Portland 106-92 and take a 2-1 lead in the best-of-7 series.

"I was a different player in this game," said Divac, who finished with 16 points, seven rebounds and three blocks after totaling just 21 points and four rebounds in the first two games.

"I played soft in Game 2. In this game, I concentrated and did a good job."

"Vlade has a lot of heart and desire and he's the most resilient player I know," Los Angeles coach Mike Dunleavy said of Divac, who had drawn some criticism for his play in the first two games.

Dunleavy said it wasn't fair to blame the Lakers' Game 2 loss on Divac, saying, "We lost as a team, not as Vlade Divac."

The coach added, however, that he thought his players were determined to be more aggressive in Game 3.

"They took it to us in Game 2 and I don't think our guys liked it," Dunleavy said. "They had to read about it, and basically it was the truth."

Portland coach Rick Adelman said the Trail Blazers, who shot just 37 percent from the field to the Lakers' 49 percent, simply had an off-night.

"We were missing wide-open shots, everything," Adelman said. "It just seemed to happen to everybody at once."

"I can't remember when we shot so poorly," Portland's Terry Porter said.

Rangers rock Mariners, 7-3

SEATTLE (AP) — The Texas Rangers extended their club-record winning streak to 11 games Friday night, defeating the Seattle Mariners 7-3 as Steve Buechele hit a three-run homer in a five-run third inning.

Texas' winning streak is the longest in the major leagues this season. The Rangers have had at least five runs and nine hits in each game of the streak.

Kenny Rogers won his fourth straight start, allowing nine hits in seven innings, striking out three and walking two. John Barfield pitched two perfect innings for his first save this season and the second of his career.

Brian Holman (4-5) allowed six runs and seven hits in three innings as the Mariners lost for the fourth time in five games.

Double Trouble 15, Radical Rascals 10

Double Trouble scored five runs in the first inning, five in the third and five in the fourth to take the Division I UGSA win Thursday.

Leslie Garcia hammered a double and two singles, Jessica Blevins was credited with two hits and Linsey Franks slapped a hit for the winners.

Rebecca Digby and Michelle Wilkins each singled for the Rascals.

Double Trouble 13, Pink Panthers 12

Double Trouble won their second game in two days Friday behind a Leslie Garcia triple, a two-sacker from Priscilla Rodriguez and base hits by Carcie Posey, Linsey Franks, Kim Moore and Chasity Perales.

The Pink Panthers were led by Miranda Hackfeld's two homers, a round-tripper, a double and a single from Jennifer Newman and Emily Blocker's double.

Rena Geiger and Cristina Dunham each singled twice and Rachel Fritz banged a base hit.

Division II

Rock-N-Roll Express 9, Red Hots 8

Shauna Huddleston tripled twice Friday to lead the Express to a Division II softball win.

Shawna Mills and Veronica Ortegón each slapped a single and a double, Laurie Huddleston and Laurie Kerley drilled two hits apiece and Joni Williams and Linky Rinehart each singled.

Red Hots hitters included Vanessa Britton and Erica Garvin with two singles each and Velda Simmons, Shanna Fisk, Amber Lyle and Starla Davis with one hit apiece.

1990-91 is a successful sports year at SHS

Tiger football, volleyball, tennis, golf and track advance to post-season competition

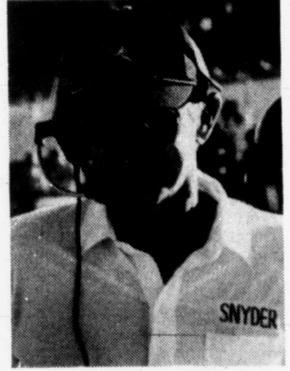

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

To many Snyder High School sports fans, the 1990-91 school year will be the year of the Tigers' District 2-4A football championship.

While the SHS gridders did make history for Snyder athletics, other sports were well-represented, also.

Snyder's Lady Tiger volleyball squad wound up in the Class 4A playoffs after a second-place finish in the district, the Snyder tennis team claimed a district title in the fall and sent three members of the squad to the regional tournament in spring competition, Lady Tiger golfers sliced through their 1991 loop season as champs and went on to the regional tourney and the baseball Tigers went down to the last game of the season before being eliminated from the playoff picture.

In addition, Snyder track teams sent three competitors to Austin for the state meet.

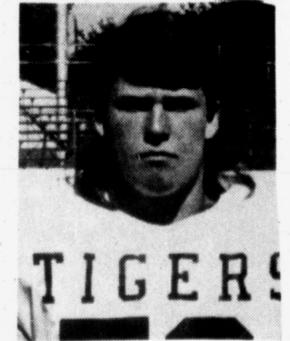

COACH DAVID BAUGH

The year started with the "Miracle on Deep Creek" football season which saw the Tigers, led by a stingy, hard-hitting defense and a hard-nosed run-oriented offense, forge a 9-3-1 season record.

The season was Snyder's first winning one since 1979 and marked the first time the Tigers had claimed a district crown since 1978.

The second round of the playoffs saw Snyder's first win of any kind over Sweetwater in 11 years when the Black Attack claimed a 17-3 Area win in Mustang Bowl.

The following week the Tigers fell in the regional semifinal round to Stephenville, 34-13.

CLINT HAYWOOD

A total of 15 SHS gridders were honored by all-district selection at the conclusion of the season.

Junior defensive end Hayward Clay, senior nose tackle Damien Haywood, senior guard-defensive tackle Clint Haywood, junior tackle Chad Fox and senior fullback-punter Bryan Brunson were all placed on the first-team roster.

Snyder players who made the all-loop second-team included senior linebackers Blair Williams and Terry Stephens, junior defensive end Will Clay, senior center Jeff Black, junior tight end Hayward Clay, senior tailback Paul Anderson and senior quarterback Ed Rios.

Additionally, head coach David Baugh was named the district's Coach of the Year.

Before classes had even started coach Patty Grimmer's volleyball squad had started workouts.

The Lady Tigers wound up the regular season with a 10-10 slate, including a 5-3 mark in District 2-4A tilts, that was good enough for runner-up status to state-ranked Lamesa, and a trip to the playoffs.

Snyder fell in the bi-district round of post-season play to another state-ranked team, Dumas, 15-8, 15-10.

LIZ GREATHOUSE

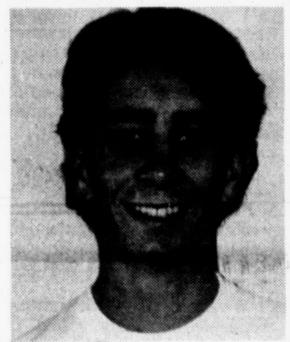

At the conclusion of the season senior middle blocker Katina Brandon and senior hitter Liz Greathouse were named to the all-district first team.

Camille Thompson, a senior setter, and senior hitter Daisy Brazier received second-team recognition.

Giving Snyder a fall-sport clean sweep with playoff teams, was the Tiger tennis squad.

Tigers netters went through the fall team-tennis season undefeated in district matches earning the league crown.

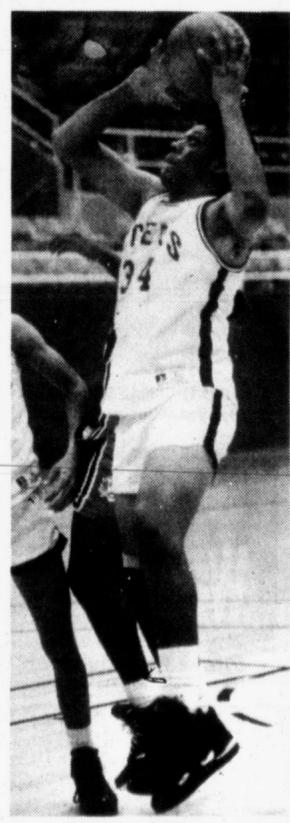

Later in the year, during the spring campaign, Coach Charlie Chrane's Marcus Best advanced to the regional quarterfinals in boys' singles.

MARCUS BEST

The SHS girls' doubles team of Rachel Wilson and Gayle Henderson also made the regional tourney in San Angelo.

All-district performers for the Tigers in tennis included Best, Wilson, Henderson, Kevin McMillan, Damon Kennedy, Jason Warren Michael Hess Kiron Kemp, Kathy Ogburn Leslie Sandoval, Christina Gon-ales and Robin Cave.

HAYWARD CLAY

Basketball season, for both the boys' and girls' teams, began with new coaches.

Coach Bud Birks Tiger squad worked to a 17-14 season record, and a 3-7 mark in 2-4A games to finish fourth in the district.

Oddly enough, the Tigers' season highlight was a loss.

Snyder played No. 5 rated Lamesa, eventual district champion, to a 61-all tie at the end of regulation at Scurry County Coliseum before losing in overtime, 71-69, in a heart-breaker.

Senior forward Ed Rios was named one of three district Defensive Players of the Year, as well as to the all-loop first team.

Teammate, Hayward Clay, a junior post, was also named to the elite squad's first team. It was Clay's second straight all-district selection in basketball.

Coach Laurie Welch's girls' team didn't have quite the luck the boys' crew had.

They struggled to a 5-19 season record and were winless in 10 district games.

They did come close toward the end of the season when they took Frenship to overtime before falling, 51-49.

State Class 4A champion Levelland, which finished the year with a 30-3 slate, took the loop crown with a 9-1 mark.

SHS point guard Liz Greathouse was named all-district honorable mention for the Lady Tigers.

Coach Milton Ham of the Snyder girls' golf team led his girls to an undefeated District 2-4A campaign.

Snyder's Lady Tigers, defending Class 4A runners-up, were led by loop medalist senior Amy Armstrong and won the district title by 164 strokes over second-place Levelland, 1509-1673.

Armstrong led a group of six Snyder girls to be named to the all-district team.

AMY ARMSTRONG

Kim Duncan, Wendy Miller and Stacie Cline all joined Armstrong on the first team while Amy Steakley and Ginney Fenton represented Snyder on the second team.

Besides winning district, the Lady Tigers claimed fourth at the regional tournament in San Angelo in early April.

Andrews' girls, who eventually captured their third consecutive state title, ran away with the regional crown with their 680 score. Hereford took second place and the region's second state berth with a 771. Snyder players combined for a 797 tally.

The SHS boys' squad turned in a third-place 1353 total in District 2-4A golf for 1991.

They wound up the season trailing loop champ Lamesa's 1321 and a 1327 from Levelland.

Sophomore sensation Chad Jacobi advanced to the Region I tournament by virtue of his season-total 317, that was just one stroke back of district medalist Lance Patton of Levelland.

CHAD JACOBI

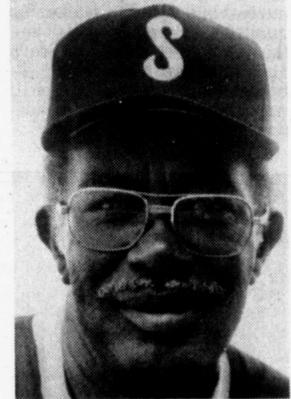

Jacobi shot a 170 at regionals on rounds of 88 and 82. Patton's 158 trailed event medalist Steve Ward of Monahans (76-74-150) by eight strokes.

The Tiger baseball team, which started the season with a disappointing 4-12 non-district schedule mounted a playoff challenge that just fell short.

A two-game season-ending losing streak ended the Black and Gold's post-season hopes.

The Tigers, who finished in a tie for third position in the loop with Lamesa with a 5-5 record, went on a 3-game winning tear in the middle of the campaign, knocking off Lubbock Dunbar, No. 6 ranked Frenship and preseason playoff favorite Lamesa, consecutively.

Six members of coach Albert Lewis' 1991 Tigers were honored by making the all-district first-team roster.

COACH ALBERT LEWIS

The names of the honorees may not be released until both District 2-4A playoff teams, champion Estacado and runner-up Frenship, are finished for the season.

Snyder's girls' track team, coached by Patty Grimmer, won four firsts at meets in the regular season and sent two members, seniors Katina Brandon and Vinnie Clay, to the state meet in Austin.

Brandon wound up the season with a fifth place 118-7 toss in the discus at the Class 4A gathering.

Clay's 35-10½ in the shot put was good enough for seventh in Austin.

Senior Ed Rios, who represented coach Joe Granato's Tiger track squad, wound up his SHS athletic career at the state meet with a 6-4, seventh-place leap.

For some Snyder athletes and coaches, the 1990-91 school year was a year of long-awaited success. For others it was a case of "wait 'til next year."

Last Cuban soldiers leaving

LUANDA, Angola (AP) — This weekend, Cuba is expected to withdraw the last of the military forces it sent to Angola 16 years ago to support the government against guerrillas and South African invaders.

Defense Minister Pedro Maria Tonha said some of the nearly 2,000 Cuban troops left in Angola were to leave Friday on a Havana-bound ship. The rest will fly home Saturday, Tonha was quoted by news reports as saying.

If they go as planned, the Cubans will leave five weeks ahead of a deadline set by 1988 peace accords signed by Angola, Cuba and South Africa in New York.

The treaty also eased tensions between the United States, which supported the rebels, and the Soviet Union, which backed the Angolan government.

In Washington on Friday, State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said the United States welcomed the Cuban decision.

"The departure of Cuban forces ... will mark the end of three decades of Cuban military involvement in Africa," she said. "This positive development will contribute to the end of international ideological tensions in Africa, and help promote further conflict resolution in the region."

The Cubans will also leave one week before the Angolan government and the UNITA rebel movement are scheduled to sign a treaty, ending one of Africa's longest and bloodiest civil wars.

Under the 1988 accords the 50,000 Cuban soldiers then in Angola were due to complete a phased withdrawal June 30. A small United Nations force has monitored the pullout.

In return, South Africa granted independence to Angola's southern neighbor Namibia in March 1990 and pledged to halt aid to UNITA.

South Africa Foreign Minister Pik Botha applauded the Cuban decision. "Angola, Cuba and South Africa, have opened a new era of cooperation in southern Africa."

Drug war produced Hawaiian pot; costs more than gold

HONOLULU (AP) — The high times may be over for Hawaii's marijuana growers.

Government efforts to wipe out the Hawaiian pot crop have been so successful that many growers have abandoned the lucrative business, or have taken to importing mainland marijuana and trying to peddle it as Hawaiian grass.

The retail price for top-grade Hawaiian marijuana has skyrocketed in the last three years, from about $150 an ounce up to $700 an ounce in Honolulu. In other words, Hawaiian marijuana now costs twice as much as gold.

The all-out assault on marijuana — a drug-war campaign that has even involved the military — has been a radical development in a state known as the producer of the world's best buds.

"That is very significant," said Roger Christie of the Hawaiian Hemp Council, which promotes use of the hemp plant for more than its marijuana capabilities. "Using the military is a dramatic new turn, and a dark turn, in the war on marijuana."

Armed with helicopters, infrared sensors that can see inside homes and equipment that pinpoints herbicide spray onto marijuana patches, the government appears to have gained the upper hand.

"We are reducing the number of people exporting," said Lt. Charles Chai, head of the Hawaii County Police Department's vice division. "We are having quite an impact."

The point is illustrated by the arrests last week of five Maui residents in Los Angeles for allegedly trying to buy 50 pounds of pot. The deal was for $165,000, more than $3,000 a pound. In December, an Arizona man was arrested for allegedly trying to smuggle 54 pounds of grass into Hawaii.

While the amounts aren't large, the arrests are significant because it shows that people are trying to import marijuana to Hawaii.

"Way back when marijuana was hot and heavy here, we didn't have this importation," said Assistant Maui Police Chief Ken DeLima.

Laws that permit seizure of assets used in drug dealing, combined with interdiction efforts, have scared many people out of the business.

Officials claim that 85 percent of last summer's crop was destroyed. That compares with the 15 percent success rate claimed in years past.

Less pot is being grown now, however, because the pressure has prompted growers to scale back their cultivation, sometimes just growing enough for themselves and friends.

Texan says...

Moon, not Mars is place to go

AUSTIN (AP) — A Houston businessman who believes the future of space development should center around the moon, not another planet, has launched a campaign against the idea of spaceflights to Mars. To help, he hired an Austin public relations firm that began the anti-Mars attack Friday with the slogan: "Let's all get angry at the red planet." "Certain things are just a waste of money. Bomb shelters. Eight-track tapes. The movie 'Ishtar.' Now, some folks are considering a manned mission to Mars. And that should get most clear-thinking scientific types pretty darned steamed," says an anti-Mars flyer prepared by the firm of Smith-Williams. "Who wants to spend one-half trillion dollars and three years' travel time for two suitcases of dirt, some new lawn furniture for NASA and a couple of neat astronaut stories?" the flyer asks. Monte Williams said his firm was hired by Bill Agosto, a former Lockheed engineer and space technologist, who heads the Houston-based company Lunar Industries. Agosto wasn't immediately available to comment Friday. An answering machine at his office said he was attending a space development meeting in San Antonio. As one of his goals for NASA, President Bush has said he would like to establish a colony on the moon and launch an expedition to Mars. Williams and partner Glenn Smith, both of whom worked in Gov. Ann Richards' 1990 election campaign, distributed a written statement in which Agosto explained his theory that lunar bases should be used to help solve Earthly problems rather than spending money on Martian exploration.

Senate tentatively oks bill

AUSTIN (AP) — The Senate tentatively approved a sweeping insurance bill Friday aimed at stabilizing rates and protecting consumers from fraudulent insurers. Sen. Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur, and a co-sponsor of the bill, said the legislation will help control increasing insurance premiums, but not reduce them. "We will have a better chance of preventing companies from getting in financial trouble... and companies will be held accountable to do what they have promised to do," Parker said. "This legislation is a good reform piece of legislation," said Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, also a co-sponsor of the bill. The Senate adopted the measure on a voice vote after about three hours of deliberation, but held off taking final action until Saturday so that dozens of approved amendments could be added to the 500-page bill. If given final Senate approval, the legislation will go to the House to consider the amendments. If the House refuses to agree to the changes, the measure will go to a House-Senate conference committee. Parker and state Rep. Eddie Cavazos, D-Corpus Christi, author of the House bill, said they were confident the Legislature will produce a bill to regulate the $27 billion-per-year insurance business in Texas before the regular session expires at midnight Monday. The Senate bill would place the burden on an insurance carrier to provide evidence supporting its decision not to pay a claim.

CAMEL COUNTRY ...
 On May 13, 1856 U.S. Army Major Henry Wayne unloaded 34 African camels at the Texas seaport of Indianola. Jefferson Davis, Secretary of War, considered camels the ideal beast-of-burden for the Army in the arid Southwest. The Camel Corps was stationed at Camp Verde, near present-day Kerrville. The camels proved themselves worthy, but the outbreak of the Civil War ended the Camel Corps.

Also, Michelle Brasher and Kay Abrahams will continue preparing souvenir packets for local Desert Storm soldiers. Jews should stop

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jews should stop allowing others to treat them as second-class citizens, Harvard University Professor Alan Dershowitz argues in his new book, "Chutzpah."

Jews are still subject to discrimination and behave as though they are guests in this country, the law professor said during a recent appearance on a local radio program. He said Jews often do not exhibit enough chutzpah, Yiddish for audacity.

"Despite the stereotype, we don't demand enough for ourselves," he said.

Negotiations can begin on trade agreement

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. trade negotiators can start working out an agreement with Mexico to eliminate tariffs between the two countries now that Congress has given President Bush the go-ahead he sought.

"We are going to move very rapidly in negotiations," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, shortly after the Senate agreed Friday to extend Bush's so-called "fast-track" authority for two years.

The Senate's 59-39 vote followed by a day a similar House decision. Bush said he needed the fast-track authority to start talks with Mexico and other trading partners. His opponents had argued that fast-track — and a free trade zone with Mexico — would cost the United States jobs.

"I am very, very happy indeed," said Bush, who had lobbied intensely for the negotiating power.

Bush called Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari and told him he "was very pleased" by the Senate vote that completed congressional action on the matter, said his spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater.

Under the fast-track concept, trade negotiators complete agreements with foreign countries and submit the full package to Congress. Lawmakers have one take-it-or-leave-it vote; they are prohibited from changing individual sections.

Friday's vote was actually on a motion to end that arrangement. The president's authority will remain in place until June 1993 because Congress did not eliminate it.

Although trade officials from the United States and Mexico have held informal discussions, they have not formalized the process. That will come soon, Gramm predicted.

He said a pact could be in place by the end of 1992. That time frame compares with the decade it took for the United States and Canada to negotiate a free trade zone. It was finally approved in 1988.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and a key Bush ally in the trade fight, said the Senate action reflects the growing importance of Mexico.

"The doubling of trade with Mexico in the last four years is just the beginning of greater expansion of trade that I think can increase jobs on both sides (of the border)," Bentsen said.

Supporters of a free trade agreement said a North American free trade zone would create the largest consumer market in the world, with an annual output of $6 trillion.

But opponents — including labor unions, environmentalists and consumer groups — predicted job losses and degradation.

Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., led the opposition, saying such an agreement will destroy the ailing textile industry in his home state as companies flock south of the Rio Grande where labor is cheap.

"This U.S.-Mexico free trade agreement is really a jobs program for Mexico," said Sen. Don Riegle, D-Mich. "What is clear, the United States needs a jobs program for this country."

neighborhood security forces joined soldiers and army defectors from the western front in roaming the streets.

The U.S. Embassy on Friday advised American residents in the capital of 3 million to "stay indoors and keep their heads down," although a spokesman said that army deserters, rather than rebels, posed the more immediate threat.

The U.S. Embassy said the armed deserters' presence "could lead to looting, robbery and other problems."

Food scientist creating low-flour bread

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — If the Army still travels on its stomach, a University of Massachusetts food scientist is trying to develop a new kind of low-flour, compact bread to help lighten the load.

"It could be a totally new type of bread. I don't know if the (U.S. Food and Drug Administration) will accept that definition of bread or not," said Pavinee Chinachoti. "But it looks like bread and tastes like bread."

A military research laboratory has awarded Chinachoti $200,000 over the past 2½ years to search for a more compressible bread to feed U.S. troops in the field.

The military is interested in a more compact bread because it would save on storage and transportation. Chinachoti's goal is to develop a bread that can be compressed by nearly a third and spring back to almost 100 percent of its initial volume. Normal bread recovers only about 50 percent of its volume after compression.

Chinachoti said she thinks she has found the right ingredients, but has yet to reproduce her discovery on a large scale.

A year ago the armed forces began replacing the crackers that American GIs long crunched in their daily ration with "shelf-stable" bread as part of their ready-to-eat meals.

The soldiers sent to the Persian Gulf consumed those meals at the rate of 25 million a month during the war.

"We know it's do-able, because we did it a couple times," Chinachoti said in an interview Friday at her campus laboratory.

Besides making the bread more compact, she also wants to make it last more than a year without refrigeration.

That may be harder, as she noted it has yet to be seen if a bread can be produced "that not only compresses and recovers immediately, but also with a very prolonged shelf life and retarded staling."

The Army wants to shrink the bread and keep it fresh — rather than simply replace it with another food item — because officials say there is just not a decent substitute.

"You wouldn't want to eat smoky frankfurters without having something that's similar to a hot dog bun. You wouldn't eat it with crackers; it just doesn't go over," said Irwin Taub, chief of technology acquisition at the U.S. Army Research Center in Natick.

"They could give them crackers or cookies," Chinachoti said of the troops. "But having bread has some meaning. ... It in some ways is making the person feel more at home."

Chinachoti's recipe calls for eliminating some or all wheat flour and adding wheat protein powder. She calls the powder the "key elastic component."

She also gains squeezability with unconventional starches like rice and tapioca.

But how does bread made out of that stuff really taste?

"It's not bad, actually," Chinachoti said. "I would imagine if I was a soldier — a hungry soldier, especially — this wouldn't be a problem."

Cat rescued from tree after nine-day incident

AUSTIN (AP) — For nine days, Pumpkin the cat's future was very much up in the air. There she was, perched more than 30 feet up in a 40-foot Arizona ash tree.

And as the days had passed, it had become obvious in the northeast Austin neighborhood that there is no truth to the assumption that all cats stuck in a tree will eventually get hungry and climb down.

But early Friday afternoon, a 25-year-old sign company employee plucked the cat out of the tree.

It ended a drama that had virtually stopped all activity along a stretch of the street near where Pumpkin lives along with Caroline Lemburg, 24, and her sister, Debbie Lemburg, 19.

There had already been a number of attempts to help Pumpkin, beginning with simple temptation. Neighbors had put tuna and kitty food below the tree in an effort to lure her down.

Two friends of Caroline who are experienced mountain climbers came within a foot of the cat on one rescue try, only to have the cat refuse to acknowledge their helping hands.

In the end, Pumpkin was brought back to earth by Frank Mayo, who used an aerial ladder to rescue Pumpkin.

On his third attempt, Mayo was able to grab the cat, who protested loudly and scratched his cheek.

Mayo shrugged off his heroics and the scratches when he reached the ground. "I have a cat myself," he said. "I know cats will do what they want to do."

Many U.S. firms cheer Bush trade authority

NEW YORK (AP) — Most major U.S. companies cheered the approval of "fast-track" authority for President Bush to negotiate a U.S.-Mexico free trade agreement. But labor groups and some companies remain concerned a pact could lead to a loss of U.S. jobs.

"The extension of fast track is a vital step in the continuing process of opening markets for U.S. goods and services around the world," American Express Co.

Robinson spoke on behalf of the Business Roundtable, a group of chief executives of more than 200 major U.S. companies. The group strongly supported the extension of Bush's streamlined bargaining power on trade agreements, which was approved Thursday by the House and Friday by the Senate.

Though Bula Richardson and Eula S. Williams have retired from the nursing profession, they still get "that itch to get back to work" whenever they visit a hospital.

The two women, twins and long-time Snyder residents, began their nurse's training during the Depression, and both have long associations with Cogdell Memorial Hospital. In addition, Eula was the first school nurse hired by the local school system in 1948.

Also, each also served as a camp nurse in the 1950s after Camp Boothe Oak in Sweetwater was opened. In fact, Bula was the first camp nurse at the Girl Scout facility.

Eula had been employed by the now closed Snyder General Hospital in 1948 when the state Legislature passed the Gilmer-Aiken Bill which made it possible for school systems in Texas to hire school nurses. She was a director of nurses then, but wanted to become a school nurse.

She lobbied trustees hoping they would give her the job. And she always wore her nurse's uniform to the interviews.

After she was hired by the school board, Eula continued to work at the hospital until the next school term opened. That first year, Eula treated scratches and abrasions and conducted a few health screenings.

Nova Henderson of Fluvanna was later hired as the school nurse for both Ira and Hermleigh schools. Eula was not allowed to dispense medication, but she did instruct children in health prevention.

Vaccinations then consisted of DPT, polio and smallpox and could not be given without parental permission. The smallpox vaccine was sent from Austin and Eula and Nova vaccinated students, with their parents' permission.

When Eula was employed by Snyder ISD, she said her office was located where the county jail is now. Since Snyder was then experiencing the oil boom, new elementary schools had to be built to accommodate the rapid growth.

More nurses were also hired. Eula primarily served the high school but as the population grew and more elementary schools were being built, her work load increased.

Eula helped organize the school nurses division of Texas State Teachers Association. Her first step was to secure permission from the head of TSTA, whose office was in Abilene.

Eula stayed with Snyder ISD until 1972 when she became the night supervisor at Cogdell. Prior to that, she had been working part-time at Cogdell, weekends and evenings.

During her 23-year tenure as a school nurse, she saw her duties gradually evolve toward health prevention as more health screenings were added and a greater effort was made to educate children in health-related matters.

Since Bula had already moved to Snyder in 1964 to take a job at Cogdell, the sisters both worked for Cogdell, but on different shifts.

That didn't stop complaints. See FOLKS on page 4B.

VETERAN NURSES — Bula Richardson and Eula S. Williams, long time Snyder residents, enjoyed careers as nurses before they retired several years ago. Both worked at Cogdell Memorial Hospital and Eula was the first school nurse hired in Snyder. Both also volunteered to be nurses at Camp Boothe Oak in Sweetwater during the 1950s. Though retired for several years, Bula and Eula still miss their profession. (SDN Staff Photo)

Ceremony unites couple

ROTAN — Andrea Diane Lee became the bride of Calvin Kyle Nazworth in a double-ring ceremony at 4 p.m. April 13 in the First Baptist Church in Rotan. Speedy Hart of the Roby Church of Christ officiated.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Terry Neepor of Rotan and Mr. and Mrs. Benny Lee of Perryton. The groom's parents are Barbara Nazworth of Snyder and the late Roy Nazworth.

The church was decorated using the bride's colors of mauve and country blue. The altar was decorated with a golden arch covered in English ivy. White mums trimmed in mauve sat at the foot of the arch. Mauve roses and country blue tiger lillies and ribbon also decorated the arch. A crocheted angel was used as part of the decoration in honor of the groom's father, the late Roy Nazworth. The angel was crocheted for the occasion by Pauline Wimmer of Snyder.

The couple's mothers gave the bride and groom a lighted candle which they used to light the unity candle.

Floyd Garcia of Rotan was pianist.

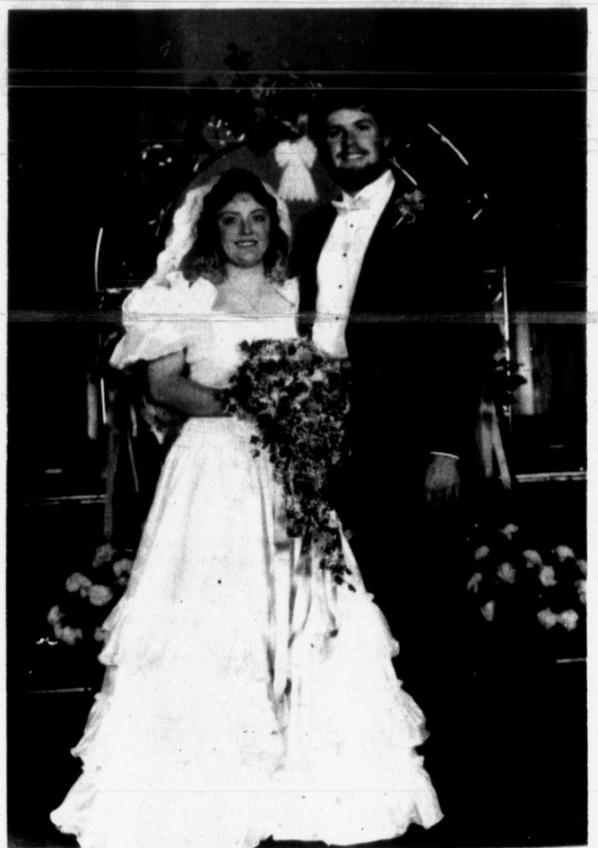

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Travis Lee of Rotan, was attired in a gown of bridal satin featuring a portrait neckline and large ruffled short sleeves. Her pleated bodice, adorned with pearls, was attached to a skirt below the waistline. The full gathered skirt was enhanced with three large ruffles swinging up in back, meeting in center back and formed a large bow, decorated with pearls. Her fingertip veil was attached to a caplet adorned with lace and pearls.

The bride wore earrings belonging to the groom's mother for something old; something new was her necklace given to her by the groom; something borrowed was a ring from her husband's family; and her garter was blue. She carried a cascade of mauve roses, country blue tiger lillies, English ivy and baby's breath, tied with lace ribbon of mauve and country blue falling into streamers.

The groom was attired in a black tuxedo with tails, blue cummerbund and tie. Best man, Deon Nazworth of Dallas, brother of the groom, wore a black tux with mauve cummerbund and tie. Ushers Kyle Cox and Mark Nazworth, the groom's cousin, and the ring bearer wore black tuxes with mauve cummerbunds and ties.

Maid of honor was Missy McKinney of Rotan. She wore a tea length dress of country blue and mauve floral featuring a white collar. She carried a nosegay of mauve roses, country blue tiger lillies and baby's breath.

Flower girl was Meagan

MR. AND MRS. CALVIN NAZWORTH

Carillo of Rotan. She carried a white basket, decorated with ribbon of the bride's colors, containing mixed flower petals. Ring bearer was Cody Leinen of Stinnett, cousin of the groom.

Christie Marshall of Fairbanks, Alaska, cousin of the groom, attended the registry.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. The bride's table was draped with a floor length mauve cloth and an overlay, hand crocheted by the groom's great-grandmother. A satin ribbon circled the table with bows attached. Silver and antique white milk glass appointments, mints and nuts and punch were served. Several pieces of the antique milk glass belonged to groom's great-grandmother.

The bride's table featured a three-tiered wedding cake assembled on white Grecian pillars. Each layer was separated with cascading flowers in colors of country blue and mauve. The cake's lattice design, buttery flavored frosting, was encircled by a delicate ruffle. Roses accented the entire cake which was made and designed by Reta Graham of Snyder. Serving were Tamara Nazworth of Dallas, cousin of the groom, and Karlanne Holmes of Dallas.

The groom's table was covered with a blue cloth and a floor length overlay. Ribbons and bows completed the table decor. It held the groom's ambulance shaped chocolate cake, baked by Mrs. Graham, and gold appointments. Serving were Christie Marshall, cousin of the groom, and Sharmin Estep of Panhandle, aunt of the groom.

Mandy McKinney and Jennifer Underhill, both of Rotan, presented guests with rice bags.

Following their honeymoon trip to Jacktar Village Resort, Nuevo Vallarta, Mex., the couple are at home in Decatur where the groom, a 1987 graduate of Snyder ISD and certified paramedic, is employed by Wise County Ambulance Service.

Pop corn legend

According to a Native American legend, the pop in popcorn came from a demon hidden inside. Whenever the corn was heated over a fire, the demon got mad. As the corn got hotter, he would blow his top. Pow! The popcorn exploded, and the tiny demon was gone.

But there isn't a "kernel" of truth to this legend. The real secret is water. Without water, your popcorn would just sit there, instead of popping all over the place. There is water in the center of every kernel of corn. It is hidden within a tiny blob of soft starch.

When you heat the corn, the water gets hot, too. Heat causes things to expand, or spread out. The heated water turns to steam. Pressure inside the kernel rises until it explodes and releases the steam.

All that's left is the blob of starch. It gets stretched as the kernel blows open. Soon it hardens with some air inside. And you've got a fluffy bit of popcorn. Now pass the salt.

LAWN EXERCISE
Sales of old-fashioned manual lawn mowers are rising. They are less expensive - less likely to break down - require no fuel - and do not pollute the air. Gasoline mowers burn fuel inefficiently and are prime air polluters. Manual lawn mowers provide good exercise. Pushing a manual mower burns about 450 calories an hour - as many as an hour of tennis.

Gross and Gary Mugford from Brampton, Ontario, found the key plays: Gross (East) returned her low spade and Mugford ruffed with the ace of diamonds. Mugford cashed the ace of clubs, and Gross had to win another trump trick to defeat the contract. Nicely done!

Note that if West doesn't ruff the third spade, declarer leads a trump, and West's ace falls on empty air. West continues with, say, the ace of clubs and another club, but declarer can draw trumps and then run the heart suit. He collects nine tricks via one spade, four hearts, three diamonds and one club.

Girl Scouts have outdoor summer

SPECIAL EDITION Outdoors: Girl Scouts By The Associated Press

A teen-age girl chisels and dusts a rocky square on Egg Mountain, in the foothills of the Montana Rockies. Working alongside experienced scientists, she is learning more about how Maiasaura peeblesorum nested and reared their young during the age of the dinosaurs.

Another girl visiting a primitive village in the interior of Mexico counsels one of its inhabitants about a vegetable garden.

Both girls are spending their summer trying to widen their experience and knowledge of the world. Both are Girl Scouts.

"Wider Ops" is the operating title of a program that will enable 2,600 girls to participate in 27 events this summer, exploring caves in West Virginia, panning for gold in Nevada, riding in a covered wagon across North Dakota, or traveling to other parts of the world — all far different from traditional summer camp.

The Girl Scouts organization says that it recognizes that not all girls are interested in the same things in an outdoor summer break.

Participants, chosen from Cadette and Senior Girl Scouts, are picked according to their skills and interests. Costs run from $175 (for a three-day outing to Philadelphia) to $650 (overseas travel, supplemented by financial assistance from the Juliette Low World Friendship Fund). All Girl Scout members between the ages of 11 and 17 receive a "Wider Ops" catalog with application instructions.

"Hope and Help for Chronic Fatigue Syndrome," by Karyn Feider.

Chronic fatigue syndrome represents a major public health problem for the 1990s. A complex, multisymptom disorder, it can lead to a wide array of health problems, including relentless fatigue, headaches, muscular pain, insomnia and depression. Victims must often cope with the illness itself while the medical community refuses to recognize the suffering it can cause. A practical, creative, step-by-step approach to overcoming this devastating illness is presented very clearly in this book.

Soft drinks are automatic in Japan

NEW YORK (AP) — Some 2 million automatic vending machines account for more than 40 percent of all soft drinks sold in Japan, according to a report by an international beverage publication.

Besides vending machines, says Beverages Magazine, which tracks the worldwide beverage field, major sales outlets include Japan's 3,000 national and regional supermarkets, and 35,000 convenience stores. Japan's 160,000 liquor stores, traditionally tied in with breweries, are also soft-drink outlets.

Unlike in the United States, the nationwide demand for carbonated drinks has been dropping with non-carbonated drinks showing strong growth.

Time the play of the ace

Assuming no one revokes, there is only one card guaranteed always to win a trick: the ace of trumps. And it is often written, correctly as it happens, that winning a trick with the ace of trumps at the right moment can make the difference between defeating a contract and letting it make. That was the case in today's hand from the Open Pairs at the Spring North American Bridge Championships.

East-West can be held to nine tricks in clubs if North leads off with his top hearts, South overruffing the dummy on the third round. Best defense restricts North-South to seven tricks in hearts, West getting two diamond ruffs.

After a natural start to the auction, North doubled two clubs to show a strong red two-suiter. Having shown his extra values, North might have passed over two diamonds.

West led the king of spades and another spade to his partner's ace. At this point the defenders, Marilyn from people who said Eula was spending all her time at the hospital and was neglecting her school responsibilities. Not knowing that Eula had a twin caused the misunderstanding. But the hospital administrator helped clear up everything by having a picture taken of the two nurses which was published in the SDN.

Bula served as house supervisor at Cogdell from 1964-1978. Prior to taking the job, she came to Snyder for a week to work at Cogdell to see if she would like it. She did.

She had been working in a doctor's office.

The sisters decided they wanted to take things a little easier for a time, but their short-lived retirement ended after four months.

Bula accepted an offer to teach a nurse's aide course for two weeks and because she "had more fun" doing that she went back to work full time — as the charge nurse.

After Eula's husband, Raymond, died in 1975, she also came back to work full time — this time in the emergency room.

Bula always liked hospital work better while Eula preferred being a school nurse. But she said she felt her work in the hospital "always benefited her job with the schools."

Bula liked nursing so well, that in addition to taking a week's vacation to spend at Cogdell before taking the job here, she also decided once she was hired that she wanted "to learn all about the equipment."

So, in the days before in-service, she paid her own way to the first school held in Lubbock on the subject of cardiac care. She studied about critical care patients in Parkland Hospital in Dallas and took numerous other short courses over the years.

Bula served as president of District 15 of the Texas Graduate of Nurses and was secretary-treasurer for two years.

Eula moved to Snyder in 1947 with her husband who was then employed as manager of Burditt and Lingo Lumber Co., located where Nix's Auto and Tire Service is now.

She experimented one summer with working in a doctor's office, but decided she didn't like it.

Though both sisters started out wanting to become teachers, they entered nursing training during the Great Depression because that was the only chance they had.

Neither regrets it. "I feel the Lord directed us into nursing," Bula said. "I've thoroughly enjoyed it. It was a great joy for me to see people improve at the hospital."

"I've met some very nice and wonderful people," she continued. "I even had one patient send me a $100 bill every Christmas as long as she lived."

Both said they worked with some very good doctors.

Bula and Eula began their nursing training on July 4, 1930, when they were employed as student nurses at Sealy Hospital (now closed) in Santa Anna.

In the beginning, they received $12 a month, plus room and board, and they could get their uniforms cleaned at the hospital.

Their allowance was later cut to $5 a month due to the Depression. They had to purchase their own books, but since they studied together they saved money by sharing. They also saved money by sharing clothing. Since they worked different shifts at the hospital they took turns wearing their uniforms and regular clothes.

Because patients had little money to spend on medical care, both Bula and Eula said the hospital sometimes received food in lieu of money which was shared with the student nurses. The hospital received lots of figs, milk, eggs, butter and goat meat and to this day Bula still remembers how much she disliked the flavor of goat meat.

At this time, others in their family were already nurses and two cousins began the training but never completed it.

They also studied pediatrics at the Robert B. Green Hospital in San Antonio.

They said they had to go to there for pediatric training because West Texas, at that time, did not have enough sick children for nurses-in-training to learn from.

They practiced giving hyperdermic needles by sticking oranges, but since Bula was having trouble with the first one she had to give she asked her twin to do it for her.

Two weeks before graduation, Bula came down with the mumps and almost missed graduating with her twin, but because they had done everything together from the beginning, the hospital made an exception and allowed her to graduate too.

After graduation, both were employed as private duty nurses — which was then used more than hospitalization. Due to the Depression, people had little or no money to spend for medical care. As a result, nurses weren't usually called in until a person was very sick. Naturally, Eula who had envisioned herself as being a very good and efficient nurse, took it hard when her first four patients died.

Eula never collected for her first job and Bula's second patient's wife sent her home because "she was too young."

Since neither has intensive care training, they handled private care patients.

A 20-hour shift earned $5 and the nurse got to sleep in the room on a cot. For $12, a nurse worked a 12-hour shift.

Much has changed in the nursing profession since the twin sisters first donned their caps and gowns.

In 1934, Eula's $50 a month salary for her night supervisor job was then a lot of money. By 1964, Bula's hospital salary was $375 a month.

A shampoo and set cost $1.50 in 1935. For 25 cents women who washed their own hair could get "finger waves."

After surgery or childbirth, women no longer remain in bed for two weeks. More diagnostic tests and medicines are available today. Heart patients now can take digitalis as opposed to strychnine which used to be dispensed during pneumonia to "strengthen a person's heart."

Typhoid fever used to last six weeks and patients often took from seven to 11 days to begin to recover from pneumonia.

Instead of IVs, today's method, patients were given medication through hypodermic clysis which meant inserting a needle under the skin in the chest of adults, below the breast bone.

Recently, both were in University Hospital in Denver where they said nurses wore jeans and tennis shoes instead of the traditional uniform.

Bula used her summer vacation to serve as camp nurse for the first session following the opening of Camp Boothe Oak "because she wanted to be with her daughters. One was old enough to attend as a Girl Scout but the other one didn't quite meet the age requirement but was allowed to attend as a "Pinkie."

At that time she worked as the office nurse for Doctors J.N. and Tom Burditt, who were ob/gyn specialists. For a total of three years, Bula gave up her vacation time each summer to serve as camp nurse.

She decided to quit because she wanted her daughters to be able to enjoy their annual camp experience without having their mother around, she said.

Eula also volunteered to be a camp nurse for one session during the early 1950s. Bula and her oldest daughter, Barbara Leonard of Garland, both enjoyed the experience, but neither Eula nor her daughter were able to adapt to that way of life as well as others had.

Bula's other daughter is Eula Marie Collins of Collins. She also has three granddaughters and one great-granddaughter.

Eula's daughter, Elizabeth Conger, teaches third grade in Snyder and a son, Fred Williams, lives in Melbourne, Fla., where he is employed by a consulting company.

Ironically, the following summer after Bula resigned as a camp nurse, her oldest daughter was stricken by appendicitis and had to be taken to Hendricks Hospital in Abilene.

Neither woman treated any emergencies while at camp, but they carried standard medical supplies just in case.

Mostly they treated scratches, sunburns and sprains.

Eula, in particular, treated a lot of sunburned Girl Scouts the summer of 1954 because that was the year the camp opened a swimming pool.

They kept aspirin available for the girls to use if they wanted to, but they could not prescribe it themselves.

Eula told of a girl who was so homesick she cried all the time and finally had to be taken home by her parents.

Girl Scouts who opted to stay for either one or two weeks had to do their share of the chores, which included kitchen duties and tent cleanup.

During the first years the camp was open the girls lived in tents with earthen floors. As camp nurse, both Bula and Eula were to inspect the living quarters and render judgment accordingly.

Bula liked this duty but Eula said it made her feel "like a tattletale."

Eula may not have liked camping out as much as her twin sister did, but she certainly enjoyed being with the Girl Scouts.

Other volunteers prepared the meals during the camps. Both Eula and Bula often played games with the girls, some of whom were experiencing their first outdoor adventure.

"Hide and seek" was a favorite game. The leader hid and the girls came to look for them. One day Bula was hiding under a bed when one of the Girl Scouts jumped on it, not realizing that anyone was underneath.

Another time, Eula thought she had found the perfect hiding place, but the next morning a rattlesnake was found where she had hidden the night before.

Bula liked meeting the new girl friends her daughter was making. She still likes to reminisce about her experiences at Camp Boothe Oak.

During her first summer, Bula said the showers were located in the mess hall building.

Several years later she said a pioneer group was organized consisting of girls who had camped out before, but who wanted to get more "into it." They ate only one meal in the kitchen and the rest they prepared out of doors. They dug their own pit, filled it with coal and cooked their food.

"I think all the girls at camp had such good fellowship," Bula said.

Since mail call was so important to the girls at camp, Bula said that when her daughters attended camp by themselves she made sure to always write them a letter.

Neither Bula nor Eula have any regrets for having devoted most of their adult lives to the nursing profession. Instead, both would like nothing better than to don the traditional cap and uniform and get right back to work.

It was not that unusual for them to have been born twins since 17 sets of twins have been born on both sides of their family.

Their father could not tell them apart but their mother could.

Even though both are now retired, they still fill their days with so many activities that they said they do not have time to visit the Senior Citizens Center.

Bula and Eula likes to sew and Bula also does machine embroidery.

They both enjoy living in Snyder very much and throughout the years of their residency have marveled at how it has grown.

They may have been born in Coleman County but Snyder is where they call home.

Polly's Pointers by Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — Could you please repeat the directions for the bleach mixture that takes out any stain? — MRS. B.E.

DEAR MRS. B.E. — Well, it doesn't take out any stain, but it is helpful for removing tough stains from white and chlorine-bleach-safe colored fabrics.

Here's the formula: Mix together 2 gallons hot water, ½ cup chlorine bleach and ½ cup automatic dishwasher detergent in a plastic bucket or your washing machine. Soak white cottons and synthetics that can be washed in hot water and bleach for 2 hours (more if heavily-stained). Color-fast colors that can safely be chlorine-bleached can be soaked for 30 minutes, after allowing the mixture to cool. Always test this mixture on colored fabrics in a small hidden area before soaking them in it. After soaking in this presoak, launder as usual.

I'm sending you a copy of my newsletter, "Homemade Soaps and Cleaners," which includes this heavy-duty presoak formula, as well as a gentler one for delicate fabrics. It also includes formulas for making your own household cleaners and furniture polish, even your own hand soap and laundry soap! Others who would like a copy of this issue should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope for each copy to POLLY'S POINTERS, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 93863, Cleveland, OH 44101-5863. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — When dusting, I'm always picking up misplaced toys and finding that my hands are full before I get to the toy box. So, I now wear an apron with large pockets and put the misplaced items in the pockets.

I use the plastic measuring spoon from a dry soft-drink mix to fill cupcake pans with batter. — DENISE

DEAR POLLY — Always empty the bottom rack of the dishwasher first. This prevents drippings from cups and glasses on the upper rack from falling on the clean dishes below.

You get exactly the same results from using half a softener sheet than you do from using a full one in the dryer. Saves money, too. — BETTY

Ashley to end 27-year reign as SJHS librarian

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

Between end-of-school activities and summer vacation plans, Snyder Junior High School students probably aren't thinking about next school year just now, but come fall big changes will have been implemented including a new principal and librarian.

Yes, after 27 years, long-time librarian, Jo Ashley, won't be at her usual post behind the library's checkout counter. Instead, she and her husband, Carl — also retired — will be deeply involved with whatever plans they have made.

After 30 years in all, three at located where the snack bar is now. The present library facility was added to the school in 1974. She remembers the somewhat slow process of moving all the books "one truckload at a time."

For many years, Ashley worked with an assistant librarian, but budget cuts in recent years eliminated that position. For a time student volunteers assisted Ashley with some library duties, but that policy too was dropped in favor of students using study period for daily lessons.

Since then she has been the sole librarian for the school. Working without assistance has kept Ashley working behind the desk more than usual. As a result she chase decorations or additional materials or books for the library.

At one time she said they considered doing away with the fine all together, but elected to keep it instead since "it helps to make students learn responsible behavior."

To encourage students to read she said she always sought to purchase books and magazines which would be of interest to them. Early on though, she said she discovered that students shyed away from regular hardback books in favor of "perma bounds" and, in later years, paperbacks. Ashley theorized that the mysteries or science fiction.

Poetry and short story collections are also available, but Ashley said she has tried "never to direct a student's choice to a particular book." If asked, she does recommend a particular book as being "good" but students are free to make their own choices.

Jóan Lowery Nixon is a current popular author among junior high age students.

Ashley particularly likes the new Fearon Dictionary because it lists only a few meanings for words.

While Ashley might have some difficulty in choosing the right books for her students, she has no problems in dealing with this age group. In fact, she said she enjoys them very much.

She said she chose to become a librarian because her own high school "librarian" inspired her. She finished her degree in three years by working straight through until she graduated. She attended North Texas State University on a scholarship.

At 19, she was hired by the Garland ISD, but that job proved to be "little more than a baby sitting service" as the students took study halls in the library, Ashley was surrounded with students who were not prone to listen to her due to her age. Even though she turned 20 during that school year she decided that job wasn't for her. She wanted to be a real librarian, not just a study hall monitor.

In addition, the library at Garland was shaped like an "L" and all students couldn't be seen unless she stood in a certain spot.

After she and Park married, they moved to Snyder in 1949 during the oil boom.

During those first years, Ashley substituted as a teacher part-time, but when her husband died in 1961, she went to work full time because she then had three sons to rear.

In 1969, she married Carl Ashley.

Ashley's three sons are, Charlie Park of Aptos, Calif., Barry Park of Baytown and Paul Park of Austin. She has two grandsons, one 19 and one three.

Ashley, who says she loves people, intends to keep active during her retirement. Other interests include reading, walking, playing bridge and knitting.

The Ashleys also intend to travel, but no definite plans have been made yet. But on the drawing board is a trip to Denmark to visit the native country of one daughter-in-law.

Ashley is from Kauffman originally and plans to attend its 50th high school reunion this summer.

NBC will revamp 'Today'

NEW YORK (AP) — "Today" co-host Bryant Gumbel predicts NBC's revamped morning show will be back on top by January.

ABC's "Good Morning America" has been first in the ratings among the networks' morning news shows for 72 weeks.

"We'll celebrate our 40th anniversary in style — as No. 1," Gumbel told NBC affiliates and advertisers Thursday. "Today" began on Jan. 14, 1952.

Gumbel's opinion was seconded at the meeting by NBC News President Michael Gartner, who last year admitted "we screwed up the 'Today' show" with personnel changes that involved the departure of Jane Pauley.

Pauley was succeeded in January 1990 by Deborah Norville, and "Today" dropped out of first in the ratings. The show began rebounding after Norville left in April. She was succeeded by Katie Couric.

Last week's A.C. Nielsen Co. ratings gave ABC's morning show a 4.4 average, "Today" a 3.6 and regularly third-place "CBS This Morning" a 2.4. Each ratings point represents 931,000 homes.

Thomas Jefferson was appointed minister to France in 1785, succeeding Benjamin Franklin.

THREE DECADES — After three decades as a librarian in the Snyder school system, Jo Ashley will retire at the end of the current school year. For the past 27 years, she has been librarian at the junior high. She was at West three years prior to that.

West Elementary and 27 at SJHS, Ashley will retire at the end of the current school year.

After serving one year as the Garland High School librarian, Ashley and her first husband, W.W. "Woodrow" Park, moved to Snyder where she worked three years as the West librarian before transferring to the junior high.

At the time of her employment by Snyder ISD, Ashley said no librarian position was then open so she was in the process of "taking a refresher course" so she could teach the fourth grade at North.

But, at the last minute, the West librarian resigned and Ashley was given that position instead. Three years later she transferred to the junior high.

In 1964, the year she started at the junior high the library was said she cut back on a few extra services she used to provide teachers with such as a list of news books etc.

As librarian, Ashley said she has always tried to enhance the library skills teachers teach their students. She has the space to work with up to two classes at one time. Besides being exposed to reference books, encyclopedias, paper back books, fiction and non-fiction books, and periodicals, students also learn how to use resource material when locating information for an assignment.

She assists reading classes once a week usually, but more often when a research paper is due.

Ashley has also been responsible for purchasing books and magazines for the library. A fine of five cents per day — with a $1 limit — is charged for late books. Funds from fines are used to pur-covers on hardback books did not appeal to students because they gave no indication as to what the contents inside were.

To counter this, she first purchased the "perma bound" books which featured more attractive plastic covers.

Early in her career as librarian, Ashley never bought paperback books "because we learned in library school not to."

She explained that the reason for this was that the early paperbacks did not have a good reputation. But as the cost of books continued to rise and as more and more types of books were being published in the paperback format she decided to change her policy.

She said the junior high age was difficult to purchase books for because of the diversity of interest among students. Girls usually like romance novels while boys seem to prefer

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

It is a fine, high, hot spring day, when the sun lies yellow on the face of a 13-year-old boy and his pal—and, the countryside whispers secrets to be explored. The wind, ancient and wise, sighs through the grass and seems to murmur, "Come hither," for it knows that this has been the way of country boys since the beginning, and always will be.

They have nothing to guide them but their young strong bodies and their own freedom, which is as it should be, for they want no guidance. They gallop through the house like yearling colts, rangy and leggy and full of spirit, gathering up essentials for the journey (all of which below to the same boy, but he happily shares): a prized belt once picked up at an Army-Navy supply store which holds a canteen of water, a fishing vest filled not with tackle but with treasurers for more valuable: a Swiss Army knife which once belonged to Granddaddy Francis, a gen-u-ine and very sharp keepsake American Eagle knife given to the boy by a childless uncle when the boy was four, a leather strap (for who knows when you might need one of those), and an almost brand-new pair of binoculars (thank goodness for Christmas). On their heads they proudly sport two more true treasures: a jungle boony cap complete with spent grenade pins worn by the boy's father in Vietnam, and an Australian bush hat. Of course the boys don't leave the house unarmed. They carry a bow and arrows and a BB gun. (The owner of the gun is too tender-hearted to hurt animals, but most mesquite tree limbs in the area are endangered.)

Their energy generates its own wind, and it blows them tumbling out with a clatter and a banging screen door, into the wild. The boy (who knows the land like the perimeters of his bedroom), leads his friend out into the Snakes Pasture and skirts the Chinaberry Grove and the Spring (for why waste time on something so piddling close) and up onto the high corner point of the farm which overlooks a neighbor's scenic valley. Under the barbed-wire fence they duck and on to King's Mountain, where they survey critically a fort which was constructed last summer. From there, they goat-leap their way down the canyon and through on to the Maze, which, through long since mastered, has never lost its charm on boys—at least, not yet.

This is as far as they've ever gone, but it is a fine, high, hot spring day and they want to know what lies beyond the next hill. Startled quail flutter in a tumble-rush of wings while scarlet cardinals argue for space and roadrunners dash out of the way of a lumbering armadillo. Recent rains have washed the dust away and the grass is rich and green, sprinkled lustily with yellow hysache daisies and lavender verbena and crimson Indian blanket. It's too hot for the delicate evening primroses to peep out, but the prickly pear cactus blooms tough and bright yellow-orange. The air smells wild and their blood courses free through their veins. They are fiercely proud to have ventured so far from home.

And they are rewarded. A lake! (Or maybe a stock pond, but it LOOKS like a lake!) And it's cool and murky and draws strong, sweaty young boys like a siren's song. They stumble out of their clothes and canteen belt and fishing vest and drop the BB gun and the bow and arrows like so much in-the-way junk—and plunge into the velvety sweet cool depths of the water and they know—even at thirteen—they know that life will never get any better.

On the way home tired boys make camping plans. There are a few obstacles—getting the neighbor's permission, for one, and not building a fire, for

Dear Senator Carriker:
Walls Industries, Incorporated has been in business in Snyder, Texas, since August, 1976. Walls currently employs 106 employees with an annual payroll of $1.2 million to $1.5 million and they have just announced they are closing their doors.

One of the reasons Walls cited

A simple Thank You really does not sound adequate but as District Governor I really do appreciate everything and everyone for all that was done for the Lions. Thank you again very much and may God bless each and every one of you.

Our Language

By Jeffrey McQuain

GRATIS means "free" or "without charge." For a free spelling tip that never grates, change the E of GRATES to I for GRATIS. Silly or stupid behavior may be described as ASININE. You can count on this adjective. ASININE ends with NINE.

Q. Is there a word to describe things that contain apples? (There seems to be a word for everything else!)

A. You're right; the language does not seem to lack for words. The adjective you're searching for is the golden POMACEOUS. Meaning "of or like apples." POMACEOUS comes from the Latin POMUM, originally "fruit" and later specifically "apple." Pronounce this tasty modifier "poh-MAY-shus," and expect blank stares if you offer anybody a piece of "pomaceous pie."

INURE makes accustomed to something difficult or painful. Take pains to pronounce the verb INURE correctly: "in-YOOR."

SHANK refers to the lower part of the leg. If you've been meaning to check SHANK in a dictionary, shake a leg.

Q. What makes a person AVUNCULAR? Is that supposed to be good or bad?

A. Uncles will like this adjective. AVUNCULAR, in fact, means "like an uncle," from the Latin AVUNCULUS, "brother of one's mother." Whenever you need a word for an uncle's help or friendly advice, you'll find that AVUNCULAR is a term well worth relating.

Something that's LATENT ("LATE-unt") exists but lies hidden or undeveloped. Patent this spelling clue: LATENT ends like PATENT.

—OPULENT can describe somebody who has great wealth or riches. The adjective OPULENT may come in handy after you win a lottery.

Q. An article about a car accident said that one driver was "devoid from responsibility." That sounds wrong to me. Is it?

A. Yes, it is wrong. The expression for "being without" is DEVOID OF, not "devoid from." Choosing the proper preposition can sometimes be difficult, but in the battle for proper English, none of us should consider ourselves devoid of responsibility.

Remotes still have a long way to go

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

More and more, manufacturers design TV sets, VCRs and other electronic components as streamlined, sculptural objects meant to stand in a room and add to the elegance of the living room. To enhance that elegance of line, the designers eliminate buttons and knobs on the components themselves and relegate their functions to a remote control. But very often, that device is cluttered, awkward and difficult to use.

Unfortunately, the perfect remote has yet to be invented. But manufacturers are beginning to understand how much a well-thought-out remote contributes to overall consumer satisfaction with a particular component or system. Some companies — RCA, for one — have clearly made it a priority to craft remote controls that are appealing and easy to use. They've done commendably, as Consumer Reports has noted over the past few years of testing RCA TVs and VCRs. Panasonic and Mitsubishi are also paying attention to at least their TV remotes. On the other hand, some remotes, such as those from Sharp, show little regard for the user.

With the infrared remote now standard on TVs, VCRs, receivers, CD players and showing up even on some speaker systems, the equipment Consumer Reports purchased provided plenty of material — altogether, more than 80 devices — for checking out the present state of the remote control. There were examples of the good, the bad, and the mundane.

As a group, television and VCR remotes show the most careful design. Remotes for audio/video receivers are the most overwhelming, some hold more than 50 look-alike buttons.

"Unified" remotes operate at least one other product of the same brand, but often only in a rudimentary way. Receiver remotes, for example, tend to have lots of buttons for speaker balance, but only on/off, volume and channel selectors for a TV.

Today, only low-end TVs, VCRs or receivers come with a remote that cannot control more than a single component. (Remotes for cassette decks, CD players, and laser-disc players are generally product-specific.)

Programmable, or "universal," remotes operate products from different manufacturers. They come with many of the fancier TVs and receivers, but can also be bought separately. (Some universal remotes packaged with TVs may not be truly universal. The RCA and Philips remotes that came with the 27-inch sets tested work fine with other brands of components, but only with RCA and Philips TVs.)

Much about a remote's design can be judged by looking and handling. But good design extends inward, too. The design of the software controlled by the remote determines how much fiddling you'll have to do to execute commands. It's the difference, say, between punching in a single digit to access channel 2 or having to press three keys, "0," "2" and "Enter." Remote controls for TVs and VCRs commonly use menus shown on the TV screen. The device may look nice and simple, but a poorly designed menu structure can force you to move tediously through screen after screen to adjust an often-used setting.

Before you buy electronics gear, take a moment to consider the remote control. After all, it will be the part of the system you'll have most contact with. Getting your hands on the device might take some doing, however. Few stores display remotes along with the gear.

If you can try out a remote, consider the size and shape of the buttons, how they're placed, and how easy they are to press. Consider how the remote feels in your hand.

A universal remote would be a good choice to simplify everyday use of a home-theater system. It's worthwhile looking for if you're buying a new TV or VCR. But don't throw away the individual remotes for the rest of your equipment. Universal remotes, at least as they presently exist, still cannot conveniently perform all the advanced functions of individual remotes.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're presently in a good cycle to finalize situations that have been left dangling. However, don't attempt to do too much at once. Give quality precedence over quantity.

On transportation system...

Drop in grain exports eases pressure

WASHINGTON (AP) — Grain exports are down, but the Agriculture Department says the decline has helped ease pressure on the U.S. transportation system.

Moreover, rains have replenished much of the river system that serves the main grain areas. Stream flows were reduced sharply by drought in recent years.

"The return of normal navigation conditions on the Mississippi River system has allowed barge shipments to increase seasonally," the department's Economic Research Service said Thursday. "Rail and barge equipment should be adequate for wheat and coarse grain harvests."

Although fuel prices are down from year-ago levels, operating costs for all transportation modes have increased. However, the report said, competitive pressures have limited rail increases and held barge rates down.

Coarse grains, called feed grains in the United States, are mainly corn but also include sorghum, oats and barley. The report analyzed the supply and demand situation for those, along with hay and pasture conditions.

Global production of coarse grain in 1991-92 has been projected by USDA at 830.6 million metric tons, up about 6 percent from 1990-91, due to larger U.S. crops expected this year, while foreign production is expected to drop 4 percent.

USDA projects total U.S. feed grain output this year at 240.4 million tons, up about 10 million tons from last year.

Department officials caution that the 1991 projections are highly tentative and are based primarily on yield trends and assumptions that weather patterns will be normal.

USDA's first "all crops" estimates for 1991 production of corn, soybeans and many other important commodities will be issued in August.

A metric ton of is about 2,205 pounds and is the unit favored in international trade and in reporting total U.S. feed grains. One ton is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn or sorghum, 45.9 bushels of barley, or 68.9 bushels of oats.

World trade in feed grains is expected to be 96.1 million tons, up from 92.3 million tons in 1990-91 — which is the lowest in three years.

Looking at hay prospects, the report said farmers indicated in March they would harvest hay from 61.4 million acres in 1991, down about 150,000 acres from 1990.

The stockpile of hay at the beginning of the 1991-92 marketing year on May 1 was estimated at 27.1 million short tons of 2,000 pounds each, the same as a year earlier. "In early May, pasture and range conditions in most of the country were equal to, or better, than a year earlier," the report said. "However, conditions were significantly below a year earlier in Kansas, Montana, Oklahoma and Texas."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mohair producers will vote in an Agriculture Department referendum next month on whether to continue a market promotion and improvement program.

The proposed program is similar to the current one approved in 1986, which authorizes deductions from USDA price support payments to producers.

A majority of those voting is needed for approval, or by a majority of the total volume of the mohair represented in the referendum, officials said.

Environmentalists: Forest Service has lost money

DALLAS (AP) — The U.S. Forest Service could save costs of bulldozing, burning and planting if it shifted from harvesting practices such as clearcutting to selection management, environmentalists say.

Edward C. Fritz, chairman of the Texas Committee on Natural Resources' forest task force, says the Forest Service lost more than $3 million on Texas timber sales last year.

The TCNR said the Forest Service's own report that it made money in timber sales did not include some expenses related to clearcutting and logging.

Country Life Cont. From 6B

another; small prices to pay for a secret, starchy, prairie night when the summer lies endless before them. (The neighbor would be surprised to hear that he has a Maze and a King's Mountain on his spread, for these are names beknightsed from the lips of young boys and not to be found on any map.)

But he will smile when they ask permission, for his heart will remember when life strained at the bit to run free and be lived, when all the world beckoned, and when true happiness could be found in a cool stockpond, on a fine, high, hot spring day, when the sun lies yellow on the face of a boy.

But the agency said the environmental group's opposition to clearcutting, in which all trees within a given area are cut down at the same time, is the real reason that the revenues were challenged.

Such costs, which run about $200 per acre, are not necessary in selection management, where loggers periodically thin out acreage but do not reduce them to a few trees, as in even-age logging, said Fritz.

The National Forests in Texas had a gain of $3.2 million in 1990, with about $2.2 million of that paid to governments in 15 counties where the forests are located, said Gay Ippolito, a Forest Service spokesman in Lufkin.

She reported $8.6 million in revenues from timber sales last year, with $5.4 million in expenses. The environmental group, by contrast, said the government agency had $10.1 million in total forest expenditures.

DENNIS THE MENACE

"I'M SURE GLAD YOU NAMED ME DENNIS, BECAUSE IT'S THE ONLY NAME I KNOW HOW TO SPELL."

Major decisions await Bush

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even as he tries to come to grips with a nagging thyroid problem and the side effects of medication, President Bush faces a growing number of major foreign policy decisions that in the best of times would try any chief executive.

They range from a request from Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev for economic assistance that could run to $100 billion or more to whether he should try new tactics to jog Israel and the Arabs into negotiations.

Even before his illness, Bush was not one to make quick judgments on such issues. His decision last year to force Iraq out of Kuwait was an exception. Otherwise, he has tended to be a cautious decision-maker.

At the outset of his presidency, for instance, Bush moved slowly in responding to a range of Gorbachev initiatives, including proposals to reduce tensions in Europe and to slash weapons arsenals.

His initial response to appeals for assistance from Eastern and Central European countries seeking to shake off Soviet controls was modest. And Bush did not move to mediate the Arab-Israeli dispute until his third year at the controls.

Eventually, though, he came around to accepting Gorbachev as genuine, advanced his own plans for weapons cutbacks, provided with prodding from Congress generous assistance to Poland and Czechoslovakia and sent Secretary of State James A. Baker III to 36 days of shuttle diplomacy in the Middle East.

But the world keeps spinning, even when an American president has a medical condition along with the mental fatigue commonly associated with treatment for an overactive thyroid.

Bush said Thursday he had been tired because of the treatment but that now he was back "100 percent."

And yet, he did not seem sharp in a joint news conference with German Chancellor Helmut Kohl on Monday. His personal physician, Dr. Burton Lee, was quoted as saying Wednesday that Bush was "aware that he was making mistakes."

In any event, there is enough on the president's plate to test his stamina.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

No more "meter maid" — meter attendant is correct. An "authoress" is simply an author.

A "housewife" is now properly called a homemaker.

Perhaps it won't surprise you that these updated terms come from "The Practical Guide to Non-Sexist Language," courtesy of the National Organization for Women in St. Louis, Mo.

While the titles "Miss" and "Mrs." originally were used to distinguish female children from adult women, the titles identify marital status: A "Mrs." is married, a "Miss" is not.

The dissatisfaction of many women with this labeling system led eventually to the use of "Ms." (The American Heritage Dictionary defines "Ms." as "a title of courtesy used before a woman's surname, without regard to her marital status.")

A woman's professional or academic title takes precedence over a social title: Chancellor Jane Roe, or Jane Roe, Ph.D., not Ms. Jane Roe.

And when writing a memorandum to one's office staff, it is correct to say, "Everyone is expected to do the (not his) job well."

Finally, as the guide notes, "Neither sex has a monopoly on jobs, with two exceptions: wet nurses and sperm donors."

DEAR ABBY: My 3-year-old grandson hits almost everyone he associates with, especially his father! His baby brother is now 4 months old, and "Big Brother" has become more abusive since the baby arrived.

My daughter and her husband do not hit him back; they try to reason with him, but they are afraid he will harm another child with a stick, etc., which he likes to have in his hands most of the time.

In my day, I would have sat him in a chair and delivered a firm lecture, and I would have forbidden any "weapons" for him to play with until the hitting stopped. But this advice does not seem to fit into "today's" upbringing.

I live 1,000 miles away from them, so I'm not around enough for my feelings (or any part of my body) to be hurt from my grandson's aggression. But I sure would appreciate a solution. Thank you.

FLORIDA GRANDMA

DEAR FLORIDA GRANDMA: "Big Brother" is acting out his feelings of jealousy with regard to the new baby, which is only natural. But your daughter and son-in-law should take a lesson from you and nip the child's aggressive behavior before it gets out of control.

And if the aggression persists, the parents should consult a professional for guidance.

People are eating them up! For Abby's favorite recipes, send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

DEAR ABBY: Sometimes I get so mad at some of the disgusting commercials on TV, I could scream. Whatever happened to common courtesy and decent table manners? Why must we viewers be subjected to a bunch of ill-mannered pigs slurping, gobbling and chomping everything from breakfast cereal to crunchy apples? How can we teach our children to eat quietly with their mouths closed when they see people eating like animals on television?

Do the dimwits in charge of advertising really think such commercials will sell their products? If so, I have news for them. I make mental notes of the commercials I find offensive, and I never buy the products.

SOUNDING OFF IN ILLINOIS

DEAR SOUNDING OFF: Ad agencies are paid big bucks to come up with these TV commercials, so if you find them offensive, fire off a letter of protest to the chairman of the board of the company that is selling the product, and tell him that you will not buy it. (Hit 'em in the pocketbook. It's more effective than a jab in the solar plexus.)

DEAR ABBY: To all the "flickers" out there:

Going out to the movies these days is costly, you must note — But at least in a movie theater Your husband can't flick the remote!

ARLINE CLARKE, CARMICHAEL, CALIF.

DEAR ARLINE: Please don't assume that every husband is in charge of the remote and therefore has total say about what he and his wife will watch on TV.

In some homes, hubby says, "Honey, are you interested in this? If not, let's see what else is on."

Also, almost every home has at least two TV sets, so when the man of the house is watching the Padres clobber the Dodgers, his wife can watch an old Katherine Hepburn and Spencer Tracy movie, if that's her preference.

DEAR ABBY: This may seem like a small problem to you, but it is straining my marriage. We recently bought a used car from a woman. Two weeks later, my husband discovered $42 in cash in between some papers in the glove compartment.

I think we should return the money to the woman, but my husband is adamant about keeping it. He says, "We bought the car 'as is,' and I say, 'We know it's hers, and it would be dishonest to keep it.'"

Abby, we have agreed to go by your decision. Until then, sign me ...

DILEMMA IN ANCHORAGE

DEAR DILEMMA: Return the $42.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing in response to "Formerly Fat Phyllis," the woman who almost lost her husband because she "let herself go."

I am a married woman, 5 feet 4 inches and weigh 110 pounds. Obviously, I have not "let myself go," but my husband is gone. And for your information, he left me for a woman who's not only a year older than me, she's anywhere from 50 to 60 pounds overweight. Sign me ...

"How to Be Popular" is an excellent guide to becoming a better conversationalist and a more attractive person. (Postage is included.)

DEAR READERS: Most occupational and public office titles originated when only men performed these jobs. Today, women are involved in all occupations, making sex-labeled titles discriminatory.

Occupational titles should describe the job — not the person doing the job. Some examples:

Forget "lady doctor" — she is a doctor (who happens to be a woman).

No more "woman lawyer" — she is a lawyer.

Forget "waitress" — the correct form is waiter or server.

Timing of surgery said important

LONDON (AP) — Thousands of lives could be saved each year if women with breast cancer had surgery in the second half of the menstrual cycle, researchers reported in this week's Lancet.

While there was no evidence indicating why timing breast surgery to the menstrual cycle affected its success, researchers speculated it had to do with the delicate balance of the female hormones estrogen and progesterone.

"By changing the time of surgery, if our results are true, it would save 600 lives a year in Britain and 2,400 lives a year in the United States," said Dr. Ian Fentiman, deputy director of the Imperial Cancer Research Fund's Breast Unit at Guy's Hospital in London.

Fentiman, an author of the study, said he was "amazed" by the findings. He said Guy's Hospital was now recommending all breast cancer operations be timed to the menstrual cycle.

His study reviewed 249 breast cancer operations at Guy's Hospital from 1975 to 1985. It found that women who had surgery either in the first two days of the menstrual cycle or from days 13 to the end of the monthlong cycle, had an 84 percent chance of surviving 10 years.

By contrast, women operated on from days three to 12 had only a 54 percent chance of surviving 10 years.

The study included only premenopausal women; the disease is far more likely to develop in older women.

According to a 1982 report published by the American Cancer Society, the incidence of breast cancer is 5 per 100,000 among 25-year-old women, 150 per 100,000 among 50-year-old women, and 200 per 100,000 among 75-year-olds.

Dr. Jay Harris, the clinical director of Harvard University's Joint Center for Radiation Therapy, said he was neither surprised nor convinced by the British researchers' findings.

"For people in the field, we have viewed this skeptically, because it's not obvious why this might be true. It's a very fascinating possibility, but it will take more evidence to make this a widespread recommendation," Harris said in a telephone interview.

House is left on Hope's property

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — It's no joke: Somebody left a two-story house on Bob Hope's property.

"I went by there and said to the guy, 'What are you doing?' and he told me he just wanted to leave it there for 20 minutes or so," the comedian said Wednesday. "But come to think of it, that was a month ago."

Hope's attorneys have told house mover Al Hampton to remove the 22-foot-high building from the vacant lot, but Hampton hasn't complied.

Hampton wasn't available Thursday for comment, said a woman who answered the telephone at his home.

Hampton's company was moving the house on April 19 when it got mired in a flower bed. City authorities let him put the building on Hope's property. It was the only vacant land in the area and the house was blocking the road.

"Our position is it's got to get moved, but it's a unique situation," said City Attorney Joe Fletcher. "It's the property owner's responsibility for keeping property clear, but obviously (Hope) didn't put it there."

Dr. Gott By Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In 1988 my doctor prescribed radioactive iodine to control my over-active thyroid. I'm presently taking Synthroid daily. Can anything be done to prevent my eyeballs from bulging?

DEAR READER: Based on the limited information you provide, I conclude that you had Graves' disease (prominent eyes associated with an overactive thyroid gland) that was treated with radioactive iodine in 1988; this was followed by an underactive thyroid condition for which you have been prescribed thyroid hormone (Synthroid).

Hyperthyroidism (thyroid overactivity) is treated in three ways: radioactive iodine (which destroys over-functioning thyroid tissue), surgery (which removes part of it) or medicine (which prevents the excess formation of thyroid hormone).

The first two methods are quite effective — but they are permanent. Also, it's often difficult for the doctor to judge how much radioactive iodine to administer or how much of the gland to remove. Thus, a major complication may be over-treatment, which leaves the patient with hypothyroidism (thyroid under-activity) that must be indefinitely treated with supplemental thyroid replacement.

To make matters worse, the eye symptoms of Graves' disease may worsen after successful treatment. The reasons for this are not precisely known and there is no test to determine which patients will experience this unpredictable, iatrogenic (physician-induced) complication.

On the other hand, therapy with medicine is not necessarily permanent; in fact, the dose of medication (such as Tapazole) can be altered to prevent increased exophthalmos (eye-bulging). This is why I never recommend surgery or radioactive iodine in patients with Graves' disease until I am sure that the exophthalmos doesn't increase after drug therapy.

There are two possible reasons for your problem: Either you have post-treatment exophthalmos, as I mentioned, or your hyperthyroidism was not brought under control with the radioactive iodine.

You should have blood tests to evaluate your thyroid function. If the tests indicate your thyroid is overactive, you should stop the Synthroid and undergo further therapy for Graves' disease.

If, on the other hand, the tests confirm normal thyroid function, attention can be directed to your eyes. In this instance, the temporary use of cortisone often reduces the exophthalmos — but you will need close supervision by (and advice from) an eye specialist.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Medical Specialists." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Your health report on the prostate gland provides a great deal of information. However, it doesn't discuss balloon treatment as an alternative for TURP in the treatment of mild prostate hyperplasia. Can you provide the missing information?

DEAR READER: I don't mention balloon dilatation in my health report on the prostate gland because, with due respect to my urological colleagues, the technique is not yet considered to be standard and it is not performed by the majority of urologists.

As men age, their prostate glands slowly enlarge. Called benign prostatic hyperplasia, the condition is universal. The prostate gland, which supplies seminal fluid, surrounds the urethra (the tube leading from the bladder). As the gland enlarges, it causes progressive difficulty emptying the bladder. Therefore, the cardinal symptoms of BPH are difficulty voiding, urgency, dribbling and nocturia (increased urination at night) — symptoms that will be recognized by most men over 60.

Unless there is a chance of prostatic cancer causing the overgrowth, surgeons usually prefer to do nothing until the symptoms become so annoying that they interfere with normal living. (Prostate cancer can be discovered during the rectal examination, when the gland feels unusually lumpy and hard. Diagnosis is made by biopsy.)

Symptoms of prostatic obstruction can progress to the point where men are completely fed up with the inconvenience — or, in severe cases, find that they cannot urinate. Then, they need help.

Traditional surgical treatment for BPH is called a transurethral resection of the prostate. The TURP is performed with a device, like an apple corer, that is passed through the penis, into the urethra. Portions of the prostate gland are then pared or cored away to relieve the obstruction, which usually does not reappear for many years.

Because the operation is painful, it requires anesthesia. It also requires several days of convalescence, a temporary catheter in the bladder to drain off urine while the urethra heals, and a good deal of discomfort. In short, if the TURP weren't necessary, most men would willingly forgo it.

Several years ago, investigators discovered that they could use a balloon to relieve the obstruction of prostate hypertrophy. The deflated balloon is passed on a catheter into the urethra. When the instrument is in the vicinity of the enlarged prostate, the balloon is inflated. This causes pressure that expands prostatic tissue, re-establishes the bladder opening and obviates the need for surgery. Thus, no tissue is removed; it's simply stretched. There is minimal discomfort after the procedure and no bleeding. On the surface, the technique sounds ideal. However, it has two major drawbacks.

1.) Unlike a TURP, the balloon dilatation does not permit the urologist to obtain tissue for analysis. Therefore, an unsuspected cancer can be missed. 2.) Since no tissue is removed, the prostate grows back (or expands) more quickly. Thus, the balloon procedure may have to be repeated, whereas the TURP lasts longer.

My urological consultants tell me that balloon dilatation will probably become standard therapy in the future but, at present, it is not. While the balloon is interesting and promising, I believe most men with BPH will continue, for the time being, to require the more traditional approach.

Other readers who want to know more about the prostate gland can order my Health Report "The Prostate Gland." Send your check for $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

W-w-where's Johnny? Carson to resign in '92

NEW YORK (AP) — After years of saying maybe, Johnny Carson has made it official. He has told NBC affiliates that in next May he'll end what will have been a 30-year reign as host of the "Tonight" show.

NBC spokesman Curt Block declined Friday to comment on speculation that Jay Leno, 41, Carson's permanent substitute host on the late-night show since June 1987, will succeed the silver-haired Carson.

In April, Carson, 65, signed a one-year extension of a multimillion-dollar contract that gives him 15 weeks of vacation every year. In recent years, he has been host of "Tonight" only three nights a week.

He also has been ambigious about when and if he'll leave the show, but had said in an interview with the Los Angeles Times last month that "I think I would be hard put to go beyond 30 years. I can't imagine going any farther than that."

Thursday afternoon, he made it official at a meeting of NBC affiliates at Carnegie Hall. He told the executives from 209 stations that "This will be my last year I'm doing the show. My final broadcast will be on May 22, 1992." The New York Post said in Friday's editions that Carson's sidekick on "Tonight," Ed McMahon, would also retire next year.

Carson first appeared as host of the show as a guest host in 1958, sitting in for Jack Parr. He became permanent host in October 1962.

Bill Murray to enter Arkansas

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Murray is ready to cross the final frontier: Arkansas.

The state is the only one he has yet to set foot in, but he's planning to head there next year, the comedian says in the upcoming USA Weekend magazine.

"When it's the last one, it's more mysterious than ever. How can I possibly not go there?" said the former "Saturday Night Live" comic.

Record judgment

AUSTIN (AP) — A state district judge has ordered a Denver-based company to pay more than $11 million in restitution and civil penalties in the largest judgment ever obtained in Texas against an unauthorized insurer.

Austin Judge Joe Dibrell on Thursday also ordered Equity Med-Kare Plan Trust not to sell insurance in Texas.

Dibrell directed the company to pay $1.3 million in outstanding medical claims. In addition, Equity Med-Kare, which was selling health insurance without a license, was ordered to pay $7 million in penalties.

From August 1989 through

February 1990, the company sold health coverage to more than 450 Texas employers with 10,000 employees, according to the State Board of Insurance.

"This judgment should serve as a warning to insurance fraudsters to stay out of Texas," Insurance Board Chairwoman Claire Koriath said.

Attorney General Dan Morales said he hoped the case would show that Texas "will come down hard on the agents who take advantage of their neighbors for quick personal gain."
