Damage From Heavy Rains Offset By Crop Benefits

This picture, taken last week from the Miller Creek bridge on the Munday-Throckmorton highway east of Weibert, shows the main channel of the creek which is running about 20 feet deep. As can be noted, the creek is out of banks and is about 200 yards wide at this place. Further downstream, other creeks, Squaw, Wildhorse, Antelope and Wolf run into Miller Creek and the flow was much greater before the water reached the Miller Creek Reservoir site, about eight miles below this point.

Record-breaking rains that flooded streets and lowlands in every section of town Wednesday night and Thursday morning of last week left considerable property damage in its wake, but benefits from timely moisture will far outweigh the losses incurred.

This was the view of a majority of farmers and stockmen at the weekend, after they had partially surveyed their fields and pastures and checked damage occasioned by washed-out terraces.

Moisture provided by the downpour practically assures a bumper crop of maize and other grain sorghums, and will send the cotton crop a long way toward a record yield, farmers said. Also, moisture is available for planting late feed, they pointed out.

Rainfall in Haskell Wednesday night was measured at 6.50 inches, followed by .40 more Thursday, to make it the heaviest rainfall in a 24-hour period since June, 1939, and Tuesday, 1.34 inch had fallen, making the four-day total 8.24 inches.

Flood Emphasizes Need for Spring Creek Project

Need for cleaning and deepening the channel of Spring Creek, envisioned in a project advanced recently by the Chamber of Commerce, was graphically illustrated last week.

Inability of the stream to carry off the torrent of flood waters from a six and one-half inch rain, resulted in thousands of dollars in property damage.

Some homes were flooded, and two churches suffered damage from the high waters. Fences were swept away in some areas. Heaviest damage, however was to streets and bridge approaches along the stream. Repairs and rebuilding of these streets will place a heavy burden on the city, but it is something that will have to be done.

In planning these repairs, it seems that this would be an opportune time to include measures that would help prevent a recurrence of this damage in the future.

Deepening the stream channel where needed, and sloping the banks along the small creek in some places would make it possible for property owners to carry on from there by planting trees, shrubs, and grass to beautify the area.

This would remove the threat of any further property damage from flood waters, and would convert the stream from a detriment to an attractive civic asset.

Diminishing Return With A Vengeance

Gasoline taxes, which now average one-third of the cost to motorists for regular grade fuel, may be approaching the point of diminishing return. Charles E. Webber, president of the National Gasoline Association of America, said at the 39th convention of the trade association in Houston, Texas.

The American motorist has become gasoline price conscious to a degree greater than ever before because of increased prices caused by heavier fuel taxes. From 1949 through 1959 there were 62 separate state tax increases, plus a rise of from 1.5 cents to 4 cents per gallon in the Federal tax. This amounted to a jump of 40 per cent. In contrast, the actual price of gasoline at the pump rose only 4.5 per cent, making the rate of gasoline tax increase nine times that of the gasoline itself. So it is taxes that cause the seemingly high price of the product—but the petroleum industry is generally given the blame.

The growth of the compact, economy car this year is accounting for 25 per cent of the domestic automobile industry's production, and it is forecast that there will be 2 million small, economy cars in this country by the end of 1960. Rebellion against tax-included high gas prices is a major reason for this trend. As a consequence, Mr. Webber emphasized, it is conceivable that the total of taxable gallons may drop so far that taxes may have to be raised again to cover the deficit. That would be an example of "diminishing return" with a vengeance.

People, Places & Things

By A. PATE

Attention Ed Steenson, in Los Angeles, Calif., Lake Starnford on Paint Creek has finally filed to the brim.

At 6 p. m. Sunday the reading was 1412.9, while spillway level is 1414.0. Some water was still coming into the lake from last week's rain and it is believed enough will flow in to fill 'er up to the brim.

He may walk out into the street to keep from going under a ladder, or drive an extra block to get around the path of a black cat, but R. V. Black will argue with anyone that 13 is NOT an unlucky number.

And he can prove it, too, in the form of a nifty 1960 model Corvair which he won in a drawing July 4.

The number of the Haskell man's ticket? It was 613.

Instead of leaving fingerprints as clues a burglar who entered Dr. Wm. J. Kemp's Los Angeles, Calif.: Lake Starnford one night last week left footprints—big ones and plenty of 'em.

The Tarzan-type burglar was barefooted, as evidenced by his footprints to and from the clinic for a distance of more than a block across soft ground.

Officers investigating the break-in must have had a feeling akin to that of Robinson Crusoe when he discovered human footprints on his island!

To say the least, officers were surprised when they saw the trail of almost perfect imprints of a large man's feet leading to and from the broken window through which the clinic was entered.

Comment of one officer that the culprit "Must have been a tough-footed son of a gun" caused Emmett Starr to recall boyhood days, back when virtually every urchin went barefoot from the first days of spring until early fall.

After a few weeks a lad's feet would become so toughened that he could travel over the roughest ground without discomfort.

Emmett's dad and his uncle ran a blacksmith and machine shop here, and it was a favorite hang-out for Emmett and his cronies, Marvin Flenniken, Jim Barlow, and others.

One day, as one of the smith's was fitting horseshoes on a mule, the three boys were watching the operation. In fitting the shoes, the smith had to heat them red-hot, then bend them to the proper shape and cut off tips of the metal shoes the fragments of hot metal falling on the dirt floor of the shop.

All at once, Emmett noticed white smoke curling up around Jim Barlow's bare feet.

"Jim, move your foot, you must be standing on a hot horseshoe tip," Emmett shouted to his friend.

Young Barlow looking around casually at Emmett, asked: "Which foot?"

"Dude!" Montgomery, boss of the Ferguson Bros. Scott Fanch is recognized as an efficient cowboy. Give him a good cow horse and he can put a herd of cows or steers anywhere you want 'em.

Now, Dude has developed a new knack of handling 'em. He herds 'em in a motor boat. Lake Starnford is located in Scott Ranch. When last week's torrential rains quickly raised the level of the lake, a number of cattle were marooned on several small islands, some of them a quarter of a mile from shoreline. Discovering the cattle, Dude set out at C. O. Holt's at the WTU pool lake. Johnny Row Jones.

Constable Ace Davis' efforts to coax a squirrel to become an inhabitant of the trees on the courthouse lawn failed. Constable Davis and Office Deputy Tom Holland of the sheriff's department noticed the bushy-tailed little critter frisking around on the lawn one evening recently.

He appeared fairly tame, and Ace concluded he was someone's pet. The constable brought a small quantity of pecans with him next morning, and placed the nuts around the trees where the squirrel could easily find them.

But the squirrel failed to put in appearance again, and Ace and Tom think the little animal had decided to seek quieter surroundings.

Origin and Causes Of Gin Fires In Texas Studied

Every year, Texas ginners suffer sizeable losses as a result of gin fires. In an effort to determine the causes of these fires and the effectiveness of recently developed preventive devices, the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station conducted a study of fires in approximately 10 per cent of the State's gins. Five types of gins were selected to make the reports: those with green boll or rock traps only, those with magnets only, those with rock traps and magnets, those with complete or partial CO2 systems with magnet or green boll trap, or both, and a control group without any of these devices.

Matches were found to be, by far, the greatest cause of fires. This can only be attributed to carelessness on the part of cotton pickers. No device has been developed to trap matches and the only practical means used by ginners to reduce these losses is the distribution of safety matches to pickers.

The gins with no devices at all had one of the best fire loss records. These results could be due to chance, or because of too small a sample or too short a test period.

Complete results of the study have been published. This publication may be obtained by writing the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, Texas. Ask for MP-436.

BY VERN SANFORD

There are plenty of miles in Texas and plenty of coons. But a coon hunter would have to use seven league boots were he to run the varmints as they do in the forests and swamps of the Deep South.

So, resourceful Texans have come up with their own version of this classic night-time sport. Almost any moonlit fall or winter night you can hear the hounds running hot on the trail of some wily coon. And you may be sure, hard behind the hounds, roaring across the pastures, rocketing up and down the dry washes and flattening the scrub growth, will come a jeepload of excited hunters.

Texans call this "jeeping for coons." It's more like a round-up. In one night you can cover five times the distance possible for a man on foot, or twice the territory that even a good horse could hope to navigate.

If you are one of those sportsmen who never has hunted the raccoon, or even if you are a veteran of the orthodox coon hunt, you will get a big kick out of a night spent in the brush, jeeping your way down the ringtail trails.

Ranch families in South Texas, down Westhoff way, have turned this jeeping for coons into an exact science. They each have a pack of four or five good hounds, and a rugged jeep that goes anywhere. They study coon signs by day so they know where to hunt at night.

All of us cannot be so exact, but you can scout around among the coon-hunting families in your neighborhood and almost surely in the process of getting acquainted, at least one family will invite you to go along on a hunt. If there does not happen to be such a respectable family nearby—and you don't own any land of your own—your next best bet is to interest a landowner in this new sport.

Even if you have to "lease" hunting privileges it is money well spent.

Most likely though, friendly as these country folk generally are, the landowner, though he may not hunt himself, will welcome any responsible person who wants to trim down the and coon dogs are more rugged and easier to keep. Many ranchers and farmers will cooperate with you on a deal like that.

Next, you and your friends should get a jeep. If not a jeep, some old, high-axled car. Do not worry about how battered up it may be if the engine and tires are good, for it will get rough usage.

Finally, outfit yourselves with warm clothing, a good spotlight torch, hot coffee in a thermos bottle, stuff for a mid-night snack, and one or two good 22 rifles or pistols.

Once your equipment is packed in the jeep and your dogs are settled in the back, you are ready to leave the ranch house for the starting point of the hunt.

If you don't know the country it might be wise to ask your host to go with you the first time or two.

When you turn the dogs loose at the pre-selected spot, they will vanish quickly into the brush. But there is no need for you to follow them. Wait until they pick up a hot trail. They will let you know when they need you.

When you hear the first "rump-rump" of your hounds, that means they have found coon signs.

Locate the direction carefully, turn off the road, step on the gas, and head across the country toward the action. Keep driving until you spot your hounds, or find that they have lost that particular trail. If the latter, then beep your horn button for them to come back and start all over. (When jeeping coons the car horn replaces the old cowhorn of a former day.)

Right here it might be well to mention that there are two ways to kill a coon, after the dogs have treed him.

Some coon hunters, once they have their varmint treed and spotted bring him down with a well-placed slug. Other hunters "jump" their coon out of the tree and let the dogs finish him off. They claim this method is more sporting.

The oil industry uses some nine and one-half tons of steel for every 1,000 feet of hole drilled.

GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

There Are a Lot of Little Expenses That Make a Big Difference in Your Budget

---TRADE IN HASKELL--- TEACH YOUR DOLLARS TO HAVE More Sense "Cents"

YES, YOUR MONEY IS GONE FOREVER WHEN YOU SHOP OUT OF TOWN!

That great big saving you were going to make by buying in another town evaporates into ether when you've taken off the additional expense of travel such as gasoline, eating out, etc. About the only thing you've accomplished is to deny the Haskell merchant a dollar which might have eventually found its way back into your pocket.

Trading in Haskell is one way to teach your dollars to have more sense (cents) and utilizing every penny of their value. After all, it's out of those home trading dollars that the tax money comes to pay those who teach our children, fill our March of Dimes quota, and a hundred other things which make the commun- ity progressive and worth living in.

All of us spend a buck out of town occasionally because we have to or perhaps just because we are away visiting. However, let's don't try to pretend that is the economical thing to do consistently. Quite the opposite in fact.

If any of the out-of-town traders had grown rich in recent years through thier frugal, far away buying, it would still be foolish to take our business elsewhere. However, none of these people seem to have accumulated any vast hoard of wealth while risking their necks on the highways. All they've done is to hurt their friends and their community.

Commissioners Face Big Road Repair Job

Damage to Haskell County roads from mist week's heavy rains and high water will amount to multiplied thousands of dollars, in the opinion of County Commissioners Claude Ashley, Leon Newton, Louie Kuentler and Francis Blake.

In Precinct 1, Commissioner Ashley said that practically all his roads had been cut and damaged by flood waters, especially in low "draws" or where overflowing barrow ditches had cut across roadbeds.

Much of the fill around culverts will have to be replaced, and roadway shoulders will have to be built up again.

A new stretch of F.M. road under construction was heavily damaged by the torrential rains, Commissioner Ashley said.

Commissioner Newton of Precinct 2 said his roads had taken their "worst beating" in years. Two big bridges went out on Miller Creek, and another bridge on Lake Creek was left in bad shape, he said.

He mentioned the old Benjamin Road as an example. The once smooth farm road is now barely passable as the result of erosion and washing away of the road surface by flood waters. Commissioner Newton said other roads in his precinct are as bad, some may be worse than this stretch. He added, "All I can say is, we've got a lot of bridge repair and road building to do."

In Precinct 3, Commissioner Kuentler said that Mule Creek, Buffalo and Paint Creek all went on a rampage, with consequent damage to bridge approaches and roads. As far as he knew Monday, only one bridge was washed out, a small one in the Ericdale section. Numerous small branches and draws overflowed and the floodwaters, pouring into a road would turn it into a miniature river, carrying away much of the roadbed. Several farm roads in the precinct were impassable following Thursday's "flood," but by Monday it was possible to get over most of them.

"Our biggest job is going to be hauling dirt to fill in and rebuild the badly washed stretches," Commissioner Kuentler said.

In Precinct 4, Commissioner Blake said most of his roads were "all to pieces" as a result of the tremendous amount of water coursing down and over the graded roads. "It was the most flood water I've ever seen, and I doubt if there's a foot of dirt road in my precinct that doesn't show the effects from the heavy runoff," he declared.

Precinct 4, taking in the southwest quarter of the county, is criss-crossed by numerous streams and draws and has a good many bridges and culverts as a consequence. Approaches were washed out and other damage resulted at every bridge of any size.

Indicating the conditions of the roads following the flood, Commissioner Blake said that a mail carrier in the Sagerton area had to go 70 or 80 miles out of his way to cover his normal route.

Floodwaters in that area also caused heavy livestock losses, with grown cattle being drowned. One man lost five head of cattle that he knew of, Commissioner Blake said.

Commissioners were unable to venture an estimate on cost of rebuilding roads and repairing damage caused by flood waters. They agreed that $20,000 or $25,000 might be considered as the minimum cost.

Of one thing they were certain: They face the job of repairing the most extensive road damage Haskell County has had in years.

City Council—

School several blocks south of the square.

The City has no ordinance covering a venture of this nature the men were told and Council members voiced no objections. However, Alderman Nanny suggested that residents in the immediate vicinity be contacted in order that the matter "would be all right with them." Several residences are located across the street from the track site, and a convalescent home for elderly people is a block away.

Promoters of the track expressed willingness to pay an occupation or franchise tax, and an ordinance will be prepared covering this type of entertainment and levying a tax, possibly in the form of a levy on gross receipts.

Alderman Myron Biard called attention of Council members to a condition existing in the area of a building on the east side of the square. Possibility that a broken or open sewer line under the building creates a health or fire hazard is to be checked by city officials.

Discussion of a few minor items of business concluded the night's session.

Council members present were Mayor Walling, City Secretary Arubckle and Aldermen Nanny, Bob Stephenson, Biard and Barney Frazier.

Heavy Rains—

almost the entire area of Rice Springs Park was under water from one to five feet most of the day Thursday.

Overflow waters from low-lying fields north of town sent almost a solid sheet of water into the Lindsey Addition area in Northwest Haskell, posing a flood threat to several homes in that area.

In Northeast Haskell, particularly in the area along the Fort Worth & Denver tracks, many homes of colored residents were isolated, in some places by knee-deep water.

Heavy damage resulted to streets in all parts of town. Streets crossing Spring Creek south of the square were practically washed out and will have to be completely rebuilt in numerous instances.

Despite the extensive damage to city streets and the property damage in flooded areas, the loss would have been much greater if additional rains which threatened for a time Thursday had materialized.

Some livestock losses by drowning were reported. These occurred in areas where pasture land was traversed by creeks and small branches.

Ralph Weaver, who lives south of Haskell, lost several head of cattle, it was reported. Other stockmen in the Miller Creek watershed northeast of Haskell lost animals that were trapped in overflow areas.

Runoff Fills Lake
Runoff from the torrential downpour overflowed surface tanks and reservoirs, and sent Paint Creek on a rise that filled Lake Stamford almost to the spillway level for the first time in the lake's history.

The lake caught almost six feet of water from the heavy rains. Level of the lake was measured at 1408.7 feet above sea level prior to last week's rain. At 6 p. m. Sunday, the reading was 1413.9—or virtually spillway level which is 1414.0 feet.

Body of water shown here is overflow from Miller Creek, on the C. P. Eaker farm on the Throckmorton-Haskell County line 12 miles east of Weibert. Main channel of the creek is 1-4 of a mile in the background, where the rows of trees can be seen. The overflow waters covered several hundred acres of pasture and some fields in the area.
