Scenes of Holy Land Shown at Rotary Club

Slides showing scenes in the Holy Lands with accompanying recorded commentary provided an interesting program at the noon luncheon and meeting of the Rotary Club Thursday.

The introductory scenes centered around Damascus, oldest inhabited city in the world, then portayed places and areas in the Holy Lands familiar to all readers of the Bible.

The collection of slides was from a series of Guided Tours of the World, from the High School Library. Showing was arranged by Bill Ratliff, program chairman for the day.

Club President R. A. Lane announced that because the meeting day came on Thanksgiving, there would be no meeting Nov. 23.

A message on Rotary Information was brought by Roy Johnson, who emphasized that member classifications could be considered as "loans" from Rotary, to be repaid by faithfully carrying out the aims and principles of Rotary.

Thos. B. Roberson led the sing-song, with Mrs. Ruthie Withers as pianist. Recognition was given Lonnie Sturdy, the club's Student Guest for November, and Tom Barfield introduced out-of-town guests and visitors. They included J. L. Hill, L. E. Sunday Sales Ban Has 'Emergency' Clause

Any effective enforcement of Texas' latest "blue law"—an Act prohibiting sale of certain items of merchandise on seven consecutive days—may be stymied by a road block in the law itself.

The law became effective on Nov. 7 and banned the sale of some 42 listed items on Sunday, but of respect for differing religious convictions, the law permitted a merchant to comply with the ban on either Saturday or Sunday, as long as the restricted items were sold six consecutive days only.

Admittedly aimed at the big city discount centers which are open seven days a week, the law's provisions also apply to small town stores as well.

However, it appears that an amendment to the original Act, Sec. 4a, apparently presents an easy "out" and in fact circumvents the purpose of the law in curbing sales by discount stores.

Sec. 4a provides that "when a purchaser will certify in writing that a purchase (of prohibited merchandise) is needed as an emergency... then the Act shall not apply." Only provision is that the certificate signed by the purchaser is retained for one year by the merchant.

The purchaser does not sign the certificate under oath, and no witnesses are required. He merely certifies the purchase is an emergency.

Under Sec. 4a, it appears that any or all of the banned items listed in the "blue law" can be sold if the purchaser merely signs the emergency certificate.

County Attorney Bill Ratliff, questioned as to the new law and its enforcement angles, said that several inquiries had been made by persons regarding its application to local stores.

"The law became effective Nov. 7, but we have had no complaints filed under its provisions to date," he said Friday.

The County Attorney explained that anyone knowing or believing that provisions of the law were being violated, could sign a complaint against the offender and the alleged violation would be thoroughly investigated and prosecuted, if the facts warranted.

A Strange Paradox

It is a strange paradox, points out the Illinois Medical Journal, that the American people are intensely interested in their health, yet they spend more money on smoking and drinking ($16.6 billion) than on drugs, hospitals, and physicians combined ($15.4 billion), according to the U. S. Department of Commerce. In addition, they complain about the cost of medical care but are willing, if not anxious, to spend comparable amounts on their socially pleasant poisons—tobacco and alcohol.

What Good?

A newspaper editor often hears remarks similar to "It would have been better if you hadn't printed the story," or "What good did it do to print such a story?"

It usually is heard when some unfavorable situation develops involving an individual or some event, organizations or even a community.

Usually such criticism stems from the same individuals who seek and expect favorable publicity whenever the occasion warrants and sometimes when it doesn't.

Some say no worthwhile good is accomplished when a respected citizen is drawn into a court test. We submit, however, that it proves that the laws are made for everyone, that nobody rates immunity.

The "unfavorable publicity" charge was heard in previous years during polio epidemics and during floods when some individuals thought the press was doing irreparable damage by reporting the facts.

We believe, however, that an informed public is by far the best policy. There is no greater enemy to rumor and exaggeration.

This newspaper has never been an "all is peachy" type publication which reports only the favorable occurrences and overlooks anything which might tend to be unfavorable to some.

A newspaper is a mirror which reflects the activities of a community and sometimes, perhaps, that mirror will become clouded.

We believe these policies, maintained and fostered through the years, formulate an adequate reply to critics who object to this newspaper publishing some news events as they occur.—So, Sioux City (Nebr.) Dakota County Star.

Unexpected Boost

(Wichita Falls Daily Times)

The payment of poll taxes required for voting in 1962 gets an unexpected boost in the novel situation faced in the special congressional election.

While 1961 poll taxes now current are good through the end of January, 1962, and will be usable in the Dec. 16 special congressional election, a runoff election if required may be held after the expiration date of the present poll tax list.

It should be pointed out, for clarification, that new, 1962 poll taxes now being issued do not qualify a voter to participate in the December election. Eligibility was established in the poll tax lists compiled after the deadline for payment last Jan. 31.

The possibility of a runoff election to decide the congressional post will, of course, depend upon whether any of the candidates is able to muster a majority in the first election.

Next year is a regular election year anyhow and an upsurge in poll tax payments could be anticipated. The situation regarding the congressional post, however, serves as a special reminder that there are only two and a half months left to qualify for the voting privilege next year.

People, Places & Things

By A. PATE

In a recent column we committed the newsman's unexcusable error of quoting a name from memory instead of verifying it from our written notes.

And, as always the case, we got our hand called.

We wrote about the unusual initials of B. Q. Furrh of Welford and B. Q. Cooper of Stamford, how the two men first became acquainted as a result of having identical initials, and learned they were both named after the same man.

We identified the namesake as a prominent Greenville lawyer, B. Q. Henderson. If we had checked our notes it would have been written Evans instead of Henderson.

The mistake was called to our attention last week by H. E.

(Elmer) Wall of Knox City, who grew up in Greenville and went to school with a son of Greenville Lawyer B. Q. Evans.

Luckily for us, Elmer is an ex-newsman himself, having started out in the newspaper business as a young man. Probably feeling a kinship to the fraternity, Elmer didn't criticize, merely set us right on the name.

Shirley Payne, the red-haired waitress at the Texas Cafe, caught us off base the other day with a query for which we haven't yet figured out a suitable answer. But we will. She wanted to know why we charged a dime for a copy of the paper when it plainly said "Free Press" in large letters on the front page.

A number of deer hunters have returned to Haskell, all reporting successful hunts. H. M. Smith and Sam Roberts each got their limit of two deer in Llano County; Paul Zahn and Henry Atkinson brought back three deer from Comal County; Dr. L. F. Taylor and J. W. Gholson brought back one deer each from Gillespie County; E. B. McDonald, R. B. Guess and Frank Reynolds each killed a deer, and another member of their party, George Neely, bagged a turkey gobbler on their lease near Harper. Jerry Irby, who is working at Childress, is visiting his mother, Mrs. Ethel Irby.

With the exterior work virtually completed and rapid progress being made on the interior, Haskell County officials are preparing to move into the new courthouse by Jan. 1. Strictly speaking, the new official home results from the addition of new east and west wings to the old building erected 41 years ago (1890) which is being thoroughly modernized and fireproofed throughout. The work has been financed through a warrant issue of $115,000. Constructed of native limestone, the building is three stories in height with a basement underlying the east wing.

The home of Monroe Howard, a six-room structure about six blocks south of the square, was destroyed by fire of unknown origin about 3 a. m. Sunday. The family was away from home and the fire had gained rapid headway before being discovered. While firemen were still fighting the fire at the Howard home, the Assembly of God Church, a small wooden structure a few blocks west was discovered on fire. Since all fire department equipment was at the residence fire, the church building burned to the ground before firemen could move fire-fighting equipment to the second blaze.

J. W. Bogard's family arrived Tuesday night, and he now feels more secure in their new home.

Miss India Bailey of Gonzales arrived last week and is visiting the family of her cousin, J. A. Bailey.

McCollum & Cason, the enterprising hardware, implement and furniture men, have added an extension of 58 feet to their already commodious building, which gives them a total length of 158 feet. This gives them ample room to display their several lines of wares and makes their store the largest and most complete in town.

J. A. Bailey left Thursday for Motley County with about 1,000 head of stock cattle which he has arranged to pasture during the winter on the Matador Ranch.

At the recent Methodist Conference Rev. R. B. Young of Munday was assigned to the pastorate of the Methodist Church at this place, for the ensuing year. We learn that he probably will preach here on Sunday. Rev. Thomas Hank was appointed to the Haskell circuit. Rev. J. H. Wiseman remains presiding elder of this district.

Frank Vernon made a tour of Stonewall and Knox Counties this week.

The San Antonio Express says that about 500,000 sheep are being fed on a lot in that section and will be marketed for mutton next spring. It states that on account of the low price of wool, the increasing price of land and the depredations of coyotes, a good many sheepmen are planning to go out of the business.

G. J. Miller, who came in a few days ago from a trip around the county and extending into Stonewall and the southern part of Knox County, says that although he has been farming here several years and ought to know the country well by this time, every time he goes around and looks it over, he likes it better than before.

The motto of the postal service which starts out with "Neither rain nor snow . . . etc." could well be amended by adding "nor wasps nor biting dogs" believes barber David Josselit, a part-time city carrier out of the local post office, in listing the hazards over which the mailman must prevail in making his appointed rounds.

David was making deliveries in the residential section recently when a dog casually approached from behind, closed in suddenly and clamped his teeth into an ankle. As a result, David limped for several days.

Then, one one of those warm days recently when wasps are more commonly known as "yellow jackets" were swarming, the friendly mailman was a victim of one of the irate insects.

David was walking along the sidewalk on the east side of the square when an angry "yellow jacket" dive bombed the target area being the back of David's neck, where the poisonous stinger raised a welt almost the size of a pigeon egg.

Now, David is wondering what will happen next as he continues his mail carrying rounds.

When Haskell was having growing pains back in the period from 1907-10, two enterprising brothers, George and Y. L. Thomason, built an opera house and swimming pool which did a thriving business here for a number of years.

Development of the movies dealt a body blow to the opera house, and the small swimming pool finally lost its attraction as a recreation spot. However, swimming pools had a high-sounding name in those days. They were called a "natatorium."

The combination opera house and pool was located between Spencer Lumber Company and the Wilfong Service Station. Facing north, the building extended almost to the alley on the south, with the stage and dressing rooms in that end of the building.

The "opera season" was in the fall of the year, generally the only season of the year when there was any flush money in the country.

Travelling stock companies, some of them advertised as "direct from Broadway" were booked at the local showhouse almost every week during the fall months. As a rule a packed house greeted every new play. Occasionally tickets were at a premium when the opera house booked a Musical Comedy, as they were advertised the 1910 version of a burlesque, or girle show. . . .

Is the spring, the center section of the opera house floor was removed, revealing the concrete pool of the "natatorium." Deepest part of the pool was at the south end, where the water stood about eight feet deep.

A diving board was located there, where the young blades of the town would display their diving skill.

Since the diving board was located directly in front of the south entrance door into the opera house, it wasn't long until small fry discovered its potentialities. Divers making their way out on the springboard made tempting targets for the slingshots and "nigger-shooters" of the youngsters. Standing in the alley, two or three could let go their pellets simultaneously, with the result that many a surprised diver left the springboard unintentionally as he slapped wildly at his posterior region.

However, that fun was soon cut short for the youngsters when a hail-screen door was installed.

The heavy screen was placed none too soon, as one victim of the pranksters was badly strangled and could have drowned if friends had not pulled him from the pool.

This particular incident happened one warm summer night when an older boy was with the youngsters when they scouted the pool to see if the rear door was open.

During the day, roofers had been working on a nearby building, and left their rat pot in the alley overnight.

The older boy had molded a hunk of warm tar into a missile about the size of a golf ball. Approaching the open door of the swimming pool building as one swimmer had walked out on the diving board, the boy saw a perfect target. He wound up and let go, the ball of tar striking the swimmer squarely in the back of his head. Stunned, he tumbled into the pool, strangling when he hit the water. He managed to flounder enough to keep afloat until pulled from the water, still dazed. Needless to say, a group of frightened youngsters scattered to all parts of town.

Two Indians with an English accent deserve much of the credit for the first Thanksgiving in America.

They taught the Plymouth colonists how to make a home in the New World and helped them establish a peace that lasted for more than 50 years.

The first to approach the colonists reports World Book Encyclopedia, was Samoset, chief of the Pemaquid Indians. He walked into the colony one day in March, 1621, and unsettled the settlers by addressing them in English. Samoset, it turned out, had earlier met some English fishermen along the coast of Maine and learned some of the language from them.

Two weeks later Samoset dropped in with his friend Squanto, a well-traveled brave of the Pawtuxet tribe. Squanto had been to England twice, once after having been kidnapped and sold as a slave in Spain by an English sea captain. He had returned to America in 1619.

Samoset introduced the colonists to Massasoit, chief of the Plymouth area. With Squanto acting as interpreter, the chief and the Pilgrims concluded a treaty of friendship that lasted until Massasoit died in 1661.

Meanwhile Squanto went to live with the colonists, teaching them how to plant corn, pumpkins and beans and showing them where to fish.

That year the Pilgrims had a bountiful harvest and Gov. William Bradford declared the celebration that became the first Thanksgiving.

Mike Campbell, a former co-worker, now a retired linotype operator and newspaperman, furnishes PPT the following gems:

it won't work without water!

How long could you go without washing your hair? You may find out if your town ever runs short of water!

Many of us have come to depend on water for much more than the simple necessities of life. People are buying more dishwashers, air conditioners, swimming pools. Yet hundreds of communities, today, are short of water even for the basic needs of health, sanitation and effective fire protection.

By 1980, there will be more than 200,000,000 city-dwelling Americans. They are expected to be using 28 to 32 billion gallons of water every day. That's nearly double the amount now being used in our cities and towns.

The need for new water sources, new treatment, storage and distribution facilities is urgent. Legislators, national and local, are vitally concerned with long-range planning. But meeting the needs of individual communities requires the active operation of every interested citizen.

You can help by supporting plans for expansion and improvement of your water system. See your friends and neighbors understand the Support bond issues and other water legislation.

Engineers from your nearest Portland Cement Association office will be glad to help. An important part of their job is providing assistance to planners in setting up water improvement programs, supplying information on current use of concrete for modern water facilities. Contact them at the address below, or your own water utility manager, for more information.

Farm Bureau Has Eight at State Convention

The Haskell County Farm Bureau had eight members in attendance at the Texas Farm Bureau state convention in Galveston Nov. 12-16.

Composing the local group were Mr. and Mrs. Gene Tonn, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kripling, Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Hagie, and Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Hammer.

They reported the Galveston convention was attended by between 1200 and 1500 members from over 200 organized county bureaus. Among the highlights of the convention were talks by Charles Shuman, president of the American Farm Bureau, and Gov. Price Daniel. Both addressed the convention Monday. James A. Turman, Speaker of the House of Representatives, also gave an interesting talk. A Farm Bureau "Queen Contest," a banquet and dance were other convention highlights.

Several county resolutions were carried by the state delegation to become Texas Farm Bureau policies. These included the recommendation that the service area granted to a telephone company be revoked if the entire area is not supplied telephone service within two years; a recommendation that repair parts for farm machinery and all other items used in agricultural production be exempt from any state sales tax; and that a stricter enforcement of weight limits be made on Farm-to-Market roads.

At the recognition program meeting, C. G. Hammer, vice president of the local Farm Bureau carried the "Made Our Quota" banner, with the local organization ending this year with 587 members.

 He was born Jan. 6, 1882, in Roane County, Tenn., and came to Texas and the Bonham area with his parents in a wagon when he was five years old.
 Rayburn worked while in college and was elected to the Texas Legislature when he was in his 20s. He entered the U. S. Congress March 4, 1913.
 As news of Rayburn's death was flashed to the world, the flag at the nation's capitol was lowered to half mast. This tradition was followed at public buildings and schools throughout the nation.
 Funeral for the veteran legislator was held at 1:30 p. m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church in Bonham. Burial was in the family plot near Bonham.

Final Rites Held At Rochester for J. D. Speck, 80

October Bond Sales $20,844 In County
 "Savings Bonds sales for the first 10 months this year in Haskell County totaled $20,844, of which $20,844 was purchased during October," states J. M. Crawford, Chairman of the Haskell County Savings Bonds Committee.
 Sales for the year through October represent 98.6 per cent of the 1961 goal of $270,000 in sales.
 Bond sales in Texas for the month of October totaled $12,460,000. Sales for the first 10 months of the year were $132,423,000, which represents 80.2 per cent of the Texas 1961 sales goal.

Intensive Drive Planned to Curb Traffic Deaths
 AUSTIN—Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, announced today a stepped-up traffic law enforcement program is being launched in an all-out effort to stem the tide of traffic deaths during the remainder of the year.
 "We find ourselves confronted with the alarming fact that statistics indicate some 425 persons will be killed in traffic crashes in Texas in the short period of two months, November and December," Garrison said.
 "Indications at this time are that the total number of motor-vehicles for the year 1961 will be 20 to 25 greater than the total for 1960, for an increase of about one per cent.
 "But we feel confident that with an accelerated enforcement program and, most important, the active support and cooperation of the driving public—the statistics can be made to lie. And that is exactly what we propose to do.
 "We feel that the traffic death tragedy cannot be over-emphasized. When it is considered that during last year alone, there were 2,254 violent deaths on the streets and highways of our state caused by colliding motor vehicles, it can readily be seen that concerted action on the part of everyone concerned is in order."
 The DPS Director said the new emphasis program on the part of the department is being geared to the proposition that in almost every case, fatal motor vehicle accidents are caused by at least one violation of the law.
 Therefore, he continued, these factors will comprise the program:
 1. Field personnel throughout the state are being instructed to redouble their efforts to remove reckless and dangerous drivers from the highways.
 2. Six new patrol sergeants authorized by the last session of the Legislature have completed their training and are being given their respective assignments. This will result in closer supervision and coordination of the work of the patrol.
 3. Field personnel throughout the state are being ordered to step up their programs of stopping motorists to check their driver licenses.
 4. The use of radar will be greatly increased throughout the state by the addition of numerous new units which will augment the radar equipment already in use.

 The new radar units, one of which has been used very successfully in several areas, are much more efficient than the older type in that they are mounted on the patrol car and require only one operator. This also enables the operator to change positions frequently simply by driving down the highway to another location when it becomes apparent that his operation is becoming ineffective.

 And, since only a single operator is needed, this means a number of officers will be released for other patrol efforts, thereby broadening the total patrol coverage.

For Lands Sake, Cover It, SCS Admonishes

HINDS A. MCGOWEN, JR., Soil Conservationist, SCS
 Protect your soil from damaging winter and spring winds by leaving crop residues of maize, forage sorghums and other high residue crops on the surface of the soil until the last of March.
 There are two sound reasons for properly managing crop residues this time of year. First, to prevent soil loss by wind erosion, and second, to increase the moisture penetration of the soil. Many farmers of the California Creek and Wichita-Brazos Soil Conservation Districts leave 12-18 inches of sorghum residues standing in their fields to protect their land from blowing. Fields which have good stubble will catch and hold snow.
 We are going into the winter with good moisture in the soil. However, if it turns out to be a dry winter the few snows we might get will mean a lot to next year's crop production. Satisfactory results will depend strictly upon the amount of residue left on top of the soil.
 Residues can be left on the surface of the soil until the last of March and still give plenty of time for spring land preparation. Leave the residues on top and save at least one bedding operation. This will cut the cost of producing the next crop. This means more dollars in your pocket. The dollar saved is a dollar made.

You Can Have Your Cake and Eat It, Too

BY J. C. YEARY, JR., SCS Work Unit Conservationist
 In a very few instances we can contradict the old saying, "You can't have your cake and eat it, too." Grazing is a rare exception to the rule. A great many people that depend on native grasslands for their income fail to recognize the possibility of modifying this rule to their benefit. Many people believe that they must keep their cake (grass in this case) to beautify the countryside. Many believe that they have not grazed their ranges until all grass is gone. When all the grass is removed by livestock, the land is likely to blow.
 With winter here, and our grass dormant, don't let the livestock take away all the protective cover that grass affords. Just because the plant is dormant doesn't mean that all of the grass can be grazed off. The soil needs about one-half of the grass left at the end of winter to protect it from blowing or washing.
 Keep an eye on things during the winter and early spring. Let your stock remove only half of the grass. Operating at half capacity, the grass comes out earlier and stronger next spring. More and more rainfall gets into the ground during the winter. Next thing you know, you are in business.
 However, good and proper use of grazing land is not that simple. A great deal of thought and planning must go into a sound grazing program. Weather and other factors come into the picture. But the principle is constant. You can't have your cake and eat all of it, but you can dine royally and still keep plenty for a droughty day. In the long run you will come out with more grass than you started with.
 So watch your pastures this winter. Don't let the livestock eat all their cake. Keep some for another time. Give the pastures a chance. If you do, they will pay rich dividends.

EVERYONE BLUE AT TIMES . . .

Feeling Low? Simple Hints Tell How to Cultivate New Attitude

Do you often feel lonesome and "left out of things"? Do you feel blue and rejected and wonder if life is worth living? Everyone does now and then. Sometimes loneliness, even in the midst of family and business associates and acquaintances, can become an acute psychological problem. All of often think that other people don't like us, and this makes us more or less shy. We are unhappy. Everyone wants to "belong," to be a part of a group and to do things along with others who share our interests, our aims. Membership in groups with useful purposes is of great value to our own personality. Making friends is easy for some persons; others have to work at it. Those who have no friends often are the ones who most like to have them, but do not know how to do it. Shyness and timidity is a habit that can be overcome. The American Medical Association offers a few suggestions that have helped many people, of all ages, to overcome loneliness.

Try to concentrate on your assets and, for the time being, pay little attention to your shortcomings. You are not alone in doubts and insecurities. Everyone has them. Cultivate a cheerful attitude. Say "Good Morning" to the other folks in the office. Life is pretty complicated at times, but it is interesting and challenging. Approach your problems as a challenge that can be met.

Try to develop your sense of humor. People who become offended easily generally do not attract friends. If someone snaps at you, reply with a smile, and, often as not, the anger will melt.

Make people feel important as much as you can. If a compliment is deserved — on appearance, on effort, on achievement — don't fail to give it. For men: Always make a favorable comment when a lady changes her hair style. This can be highly important to feminine morale.

Remember the old saying: "To have friends, you must be a friend." Invite a neighbor over for coffee. Send cards to the sick and on birthdays and anniversaries. Do the little things that show other people you are interested in them. In turn, they will be interested in you.

At first, learning to make friends may make you self-conscious and uncomfortable, but with patience and practice it will come more naturally. At the heart of friendship is a genuine interest in other people. This can be cultivated if you will just give it some thought and effort now and then.

Entrance Tests Scheduled for Peace Corps

Postmaster Harold Spain announced today that the entrance test for the Peace Corps will be given on Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 28 and 29, 1961.

Within a few days information showing the place and time for the examination in your area will be posted on the bulletin board of the local post office, including stations and branches.

If you are interested in taking the test, be sure and watch for complete information at your post office.

Postmaster Spain added that he would inform the press when the information has been received.

An Australian going camping might say he will sleep in a wurley, gunyah, goondie or humpy. All are slang terms for casual shelter.

ACC Homecoming Is Scheduled This Weekend

A musical production and a football game share feature billing at the 1962 Abilene Christian College homecoming celebration, Nov. 23, 24, 25.

The famous Rodgers & Hammerstein musical, "The King and I," presented in ACC's Sewell Auditorium next Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights (Nov. 23-25) is expected to attract high school dramatics and music students and teachers in the West Central Texas area.

College officials expect between four and five thousand persons, with good weather, to attend the activities on campus, with twice that many likely for the Saturday football game between the Wildcats and inter-city rival McMurry.

More than 25 colorful displays welcoming ex-students and friends will span a two-block area along the front of the campus. Various social and geographical clubs have been working for several weeks planning and building exhibits on a theme combining the oriental flavor of the musical with a spur to a victory over the Indians.

O'Brien Wins Bi-District Title With 58-12 Defeat of Divide

The powerful O'Brien Bulldogs advanced to the regional round of the Six-Man football playoffs by smashing the Divide Trojans, 58-12, at Indian Stadium here Thursday night.

The victory over Divide advanced the Bulldogs to the regional playoff.

Halfback Larry Gibson led the O'Brien scoring with four touchdowns.

O'Brien, which had won eight straight regular season games and represented District 6, jumped into a 6-0 lead on Gibson's one-yard run early in the game but Divide, with Thomas Hyde sprinting 13 yards, tied the game up going into the second quarter.

O'Brien scored 22 points in the second on a six-yard smash by Gibson, a nine-yard dash by Jerry Wilcox and a one-yard blast by James Duncan. Duncan kicked good after two of these TD's.

Gibson then traveled one and seven yards in the third for two more O'Brien scores with Duncan kicking good after each.

Quarterback Jimmy Johnston rambled 17 yards early in the fourth for another Bulldog TD and Duncan added his second score of the night on a seven-yard scamper and kicked good after both TD's.

Hyde finished out the scoring for Divide in the fourth on a two-yard run.

Divide of District 5, wound up its season with an 8-3 record.

American Citizenship Studies Discussed at Teachers Meeting

"How to Organize a Program in American Citizenship Studies" was discussed by the speaker at the In-Service Training meeting of Haskell County teachers, held at Rule on Nov. 20, at 2:30 p. m.

The speaker of the occasion was Edward L. Kirk, a teacher of Abilene Christian College who is co-ordinator of the West Texas Schools American Heritage Project. This is an organization of schools in a number of counties surrounding Abilene, working together to increase the school child's appreciation of his American citizenship.

"No change of curriculum is advocated," said Mr. Kirk, "no special course in Citizenship is urged, no idea of indoctrinating the pupil politically is entertained." On the other hand, he emphasized the duty of every teacher to teach responsible citizenship with whatever subject he is teaching.

Areas of emphasis in an American Studies program, as mentioned by the speaker, included the following: "Importance and Freedom of the Individual," "Dignity of Work," "Private Ownership of Property," "Free and Open Competition," "Thrift and Individual Responsibility," "American Symbols," "Belief in and Respect for God," and "Government as a Protector and not as a Provider."

Following the discussion, the speaker showed some slides which were taken in the various schools, showing their bulletin boards, posters, and other displays which emphasized our American heritage.

Teachers from the rural schools, and from Rochester and Rule were present. Refreshments of coffee and cakes were served by Rule teachers, as the visitors entered the school cafeteria where the meeting was held.

State Plans to Spend $196,000 On County's Highways in 1962

The Texas Highway Commission has approved the expenditure of $196,000 for highway safety and betterment in Haskell County during 1962. District Highway Engineer J. C. Roberts of Abilene announced recently.

He said a total of 14.4 highway miles in the county will be involved. The work will be under the supervision of F. N. Shave Sr., resident engineer of Hamlin.

The following improvement projects are scheduled in the county:

On US 277, inside the city limits of Weirert, construction of shoulders for a distance of 2.8 miles at estimated cost of $10,000.

On US 277, from Haskell to the Jones County line, construction of shoulders and widening structures, covering a distance of approximately 13.6 miles at estimated cost of $186,000.

This work is part of the 1962 State Highway Safety and Betterment Program just authorized by the Highway Commission.

Under this program, a total of 2,433 miles of U. S. State highways will be improved. Work will be done on 378 projects in 156 counties.

Purpose of the annual program is to continue the improvement and modernization of U. S. and State highways for increased safety and convenience of travel.

The annual Safety and Betterment Program is one of the prime factors responsible for a significant 26 per cent drop in the number of traffic deaths on primary highways during the last seven years, the Commission said.

"Together with programs for new construction and careful maintenance, the Safety and Betterment Program has helped achieve a meaningful reduction in traffic fatalities on the highway system," said Herbert C. Petry, Jr., Chairman of the Highway Commission.

Petry termed the Safety and Betterment Program as "not only desirable but essential for the safety and comfort of people who travel Texas highways in record numbers."

"The program, he said, will perpetuate and protect the taxpayers' investment of well over $2-billion in the Texas highway system."

Highways are due for improvements such as surface widening, bridge widening and replacement, base strengthening, and rebuilding of shoulders.

District Engineer J. C. Roberts said a total of 21.0 miles in this highway district would be involved, at a total cost of $827,400.
