Numerous telephones were out of service Thursday morning, due to wet cables. Considerable property damage was caused to homes in low sections, but the loss is not expected to be extensive.

Although no reports had been received Thursday morning from rural areas, no estimate of crop damage from the torrential rains was available. However, since the fall was slow, damage to growing crops and terraces was minimized.

Your Home Town

Willard Jones, one of the best known newspapermen in West Texas, retired recently after selling his Hamlin Herald to Bob Craig of Stamford and associates.

In his "farewell" column of the Herald, the Hamlin newspaper man touched on a subject which has been of major concern to every progressive newspaper as well as civic leaders in every community. Jones wrote:

"As one parting gesture to people generally of my home town of Hamlin—an idea is almost as much a part of our life as our religion—Oh, that people would support their home town that educates their children, protects their homes with police and fire facilities and provides livelihood for most of them! Why, Hamlin would be a city of 10,000 people within five years if people traded at home—it couldn't help it.

"We challenge our friends to stop and consider what proportion of their income they spend to help other towns grow. It just doesn't make any sense to us. At any rate, we prophecy that until people resolve to boost one another, trade at home and work together more, our town has a bleak future, when it has the greatest possibilities on any little town in the country!"

"In God We Trust"

Anybody got a dime? Shiny and new or dull and old, it doesn't matter. Not for a telephone call, but as a reminder of something we're inclined to forget. If you haven't got a dime, a nickle will do. Have a look at the words.

It gives a familiar answer to an old familiar item that has been nagging at us straight through history, from Plymouth Rock right up to today's headlines. To date, no amount of slapping down has eliminated this issue and even the latest mauling failed to finish it off.

The question is blunt and to the point: Are we hanging on to all our freedoms? Notice that all of them are included. Not this particular one nor that, but the whole works. Let one of those freedoms slip and all of them start skidding.

Once more we have to give the same old answer, but this time louder and clearer than ever before. Something like: "Men were endowed by their creator with certain unalienable rights," straight out of the Declaration of Independence. And so that everyone is not likely to forget the idea, just reach into your pocket or purse and get out that nickle or dime. There it is: "In God We Trust."

That trust helped carry this nation from its founding days through its darkest times. That same faith can carry us today through every danger of a world that keeps getting upset one place or another.

And just so we can keep that faith, let's do as the Religion in American Life Program urges and "worship together this week".

People, Places & Things

By A. PATE

There are times when seeing is not believing. Take those one-way plows, for instance, that you've seen in use on scores of Haskell County farms.

While talking to County Judge Jim Alvis and O'Brien School Supt. Elvin Mathis recently, we learned there are not as many one-ways in the county as you might think, matter of fact they're almost extinct.

Insofar as official records are concerned, there is only one one-way plow rendered on the county tax rolls, the county official and the school man said.

There are days when a man is a perfect set-up for a touch. Believes Dr. Frank Cadenhead. And, there's always a gyp artist around to clip a fellow if he has that easy look.

The genial, accommodating doctor has been on the receiving end of almost every kind of gyp racket you can call to mind. But he fell for a new one the other day.

He had gone to his cabin at the lake, and while taking some supplies out of his station wagon a stranger walked up.

Without so much as introducing himself, the stranger explained that he'd had a flat on his car coming to the lake. Using a spare, he had made it to his cabin "right over there," pointing vaguely, just before the spare went flat.

The doctor, listening sympathetically, then got the pitch: The stranger in distress wanted to borrow a spare tire from the doctor, to use in driving to town and having his two flats fixed.

Nothing would please the doctor more, the stranger learned, than to accommodate a fellow-fisherman, and the spare tire (which had never been on the ground before) was quickly taken out of the station wagon, and the stranger lugged it away.

That happened almost two weeks ago, and the doctor is now beginning to think perhaps the stranger has been unable to find a place to have his flats fixed. That's bound to be the reason he hasn't returned the doctor's spare.

That wrecked automobile the Jaycees placed on the corner of the courthouse lawn was attracted to weekend drivers attracted plenty of attention, and conceivably could have prevented a serious traffic accident.

Motorists driving along US 277 or State 24 couldn't help but notice the gruesome wreck, as they neared the intersection of the two highways, especially at night.

It was easy to note that the realistic-appearing "wreck" attracted attention. Cars would slow down suddenly as the startled driver saw the "wreck" and then would proceed slowly past the smashed vehicle as driver and occupant craned their necks to inspect the battered vehicle.

A Haskell couple and their children, returning from a two-week visit on the Plains Friday night, were almost startled out of their wits when they drove onto the square and saw the "wreck."

The woman, first to notice the wreckage, had to muffle a scream as she called her husband's attention to the scene. "Someone's had a terrible wreck."

The lady's reaction was perfectly normal. Especially so since she is a Haskell resident and acquainted first-hand with the driving habits of some people!

A teenage friend tells us that Haskell is the "hot rod capital" of West Texas. Although the honors might be dubious, he believes we have more "drag" champions, both teens and adults, than you'll find anywhere around.

According to our informant, any stranger who indicates he might be interested, is quickly challenged by some of our "dragsters." Sometimes these young speed merchants will try to provoke a race by speeding past a car on the highway, then dropping behind and whizzing past again. This performance is repeated several times in trying to coax a race.

Rated high among local hot-rodgers is a youth who drives an old model beat-up-looking pickup. Based on looks, it would be rated a 50-50 chance to hold together until it reached a junkyard. In performance, its souped-up motor hums a tune reminiscent of the Indianapolis speedway. Despite its appearance, the decrepit vehicle has put many late model speed jobs to shame, we are told.

Recent mention of the old-time "runaway" teams recalled for E. W. (Eulis) Hays of Corsicana a boyhood escapade in which he and Jesse Allen, now of Denver City, was involved. Their prank resulted in a rash of runaways over a period of several days.

Sometimes it would be a team of mules hitched to a wagon, at other times a buggy horse would jerk loose from a hitch-rack, and take off. Strangely, all the runaways started around the southeast corner of the square.

The Corsicana man, while here last weekend visiting friends, recalled the happenings and explained the cause of the runaways.

Jesse Allen's father, Crawford Allen, veteran Texas peace officer, was sheriff and he and his family occupied the ground floor living quarters of the jail.

Naturally, the two youngsters played around the jail, and became friendly with most of the inmates in the "cooler" for minor offenses.

A local character who spent about as much time in jail as out, for misdemeanor violations, was a great friend of the two boys and kept them entertained with his tall yarns. The boys would sit on the steps of an outside stairway near a window of the man's cell and listen to him for hours.

One day, the man called the boy's attention to a team of lazy-looking mules hitched to a wagon and tied to a hitch-rack across the street. "If I had an airgun in here, I could wake those mules up and put some life in 'em," he told the boys.

The idea took hold and the boys were soon back with Jesse's nearly-new air rifle which they slipped through the cell bars and then left hurriedly to get a better vantage point and watch the fun.

The jail inmate was correct, a few pellets from the air rifle waked the mules up. Rearing and snorting, the team broke loose and took off down the street.

During the next few days, runaways became frequent as the jail prisoner's marksmanship improved. The fun ended, however, when two or three additional prisoners were placed in jail and the marksman became fearful that one of the newcomers might give him away to the Sheriff.

one end, also is used to determine weeded areas and drop-offs.

A word to the wise... time taken in charting the favorite stream or river really pays off in better fishing later.

'Tis said that he who fishes upstream catches more and larger fish.

By upstream we mean across and up.

Dry fly fishermen use this method successfully. Why wouldn't it work with other fishermen? Some say it does. They suggested a high rod and a constant retrieve in order to maintain a tight line. Also they point out that spinners, wobblers, small plugs and nymphs pay off in larger fish than do floating lures.

Learn your water and fish upstream for more and bigger fish, they re-emphasize.

No matter how shallow the water, there is ample concealment in weed beds or lily pads says one tipster. He adds: Often fish lurk quite far back and do not see lures cast at the edge of weed beds or pads. In such instances a silent cast is not effective. Don't be afraid to let your lure drop with a loud splash.

There always is danger of a hang-up. That's when a heavier leader line comes in handy. There is no reason for not attaching a leader to a spinning line—just so long as it is short enough not to enter the spool. It sure does add a safety factor... and makes it a little easier to change lures.

It's well to know the depth of the water in which you are fishing. Next time you fish in deep water let your lure down alongside the boat and count slowly until it reaches the bottom. Then when you cast out, start your count when the lure hits the water. Allow the lure to sink freely. But start your retrieve with a short, hard hook-setting motion the moment your count indicates bottom depth. Many times the lure is picked up by a curious fish on its downward float—and he may still have it in his mouth.

As spin-fishing grows increasingly popular the use of monofilament line becomes more general. It is true that monofilament offers many advantages. But there are disadvantages too. Perhaps we should say handicaps.

A knot points up its biggest weakness. In fact if you want to break monofilament line at a specific place, just tie a knot there and jerk. The line will break at that exact spot. This brings up these two facts:

1. When you find a knot in your monofilament line either untie it (which is almost impossible) or break the line then and there. Otherwise some lunger will do the job for you—and you will lose a nice catch.
 2. When you tie monofilament to a swivel (or direct to a lure) follow this tie-down tip and you will avoid use of a line-breaking knot.
- First, run the end of the line through the eye of the swivel. Next, pull through about eight inches of the line. Then, instead of tying a knot as you would with braided line, wrap the short length of line around the line proper—seven or eight times. Now comes the important part—run the end of the line through the loop that formed immediately above the eye of the swivel. All that's left to do is to pull slowly but firmly on the line itself and the wrapped-around portion will slide down the line to the swivel to form a vise-like grip.
- Just be sure you pull the line tight and hard, and check to see that the swivel is firmly attached. If you have not pulled hard, then the end of the line may slip back through the loop. In that event you will have to repeat the entire operation. Until you learn the trick you may have to hold the tag end of the line to keep it from slipping through. However, after a few trials you'll find this tying method can be performed quickly. Also you'll discover that this is the safest and surest way to tie on a swivel or lure. Actually it's known as the clincher knot.
- Finally, if you want to be doubly sure that the end of the line doesn't slip through—just strike a match and burn the tip of the line lightly. The monofilament will burn until a small but hard ball forms. This ball, on the end of the line

Salt From Three Small Streams Pollutes Brazos

AUSTIN—The problem of what makes the Brazos River salty has led engineers to three small creeks in Kent, King and Stonewall Counties.

There they have found that groundwater beds of salt and gypsum boil to the surface as springs and seeps, under high hydrostatic pressure, and there evaporate into salt and gypsum beds. When heavy rains come, the salts are washed down

Dove, Cotton and Short Cotton Creeks into the Salt Fork of the Brazos itself, causing troubles down to the Gulf of Mexico where rice growers and industrial plants use the Brazos water.

West Texas Member Otha Dent of the State Board of Water Engineers and his Chief Ground Water Engineer L. G. McMillon, visited ranchers in the area in an effort to get permission to drill core wells into the underground mineral beds, to study what can be done about it.

A three-agency study is underway, financed by the U. S. Geological Survey, the State Board of Water Engineers, and the Brazos River Authority. Engineers have made tentative recommendations that the salt be disposed of in one, or both, of two ways. One, to drill wells connecting the salt water formation with deeper porous formations into which the brine could be fed. The other is to bring it to the surface in controlled areas away from creeks which feed into the Brazos, and there evaporate the water and leave the salt and gypsum safely on the surface where it can't get into the streams.

But Judge Dent reported that the ranchers want assurances that their fresh water wells will not be polluted by the core wells to be drilled. This may mean both casing the core holes and cementing them when they are through. He returned to Austin with no agreement in sight.

Cattle Owners Warned of New Highway Law

The Texas Department of Public Safety reminded Texas cattle owners today that a new law went into effect July 1 aimed at controlling livestock on designated U.S. and state highways.

The new law makes it illegal for a person knowingly to permit his domestic livestock to roam at large and unattended on state and federal highways. It applies regardless of whether or not the highway right of way is fenced. Maximum fine for such violation is $200, and each day the violation occurs may be considered a separate offense.

Farm to Market roads are excepted from the law. The new law also gives law enforcement officers authority to have such livestock picked up, when unable to locate the owner, and turned over to the sheriff or constable in the county.

The law does not prohibit the driving or herding of livestock across or along highways. It gives peace officers the authority to enforce provisions of the act without a warrant.

Col. Homer Garrison Jr., director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said state patrolmen will enforce provisions of the law in an effort to reduce the traffic hazard caused by animals on designated state and U.S. highways. He said that during the year 1957 a total of 1406 rural traffic accidents occurred in Texas involving animals of all types. In these accidents 216 persons were injured and four persons were killed.

Tickets on Sale Here for Shrine Game in Abilene

Reserved seat tickets for the first annual West Texas Shrine Bowl professional football game in Abilene Aug. 20 are now on sale in Haskell at the W. I. Coggins Insurance Agency.

The tickets are $5.00 each and are also being sold in Abilene at the Eagle Gym headquarters and in 26 other area cities. The Abilene Shrine Club officials, sponsors of that city's first pro football game, have distributed equally good tickets to each of the West Texas cities. Mail order tickets may be purchased by sending check or money order to P. O. Box 2334 in Abilene, adding 25 cents to each order for postage and handling.

The Shrine Bowl game matches the Dallas Texans against the New York Titans in an American Football League exhibition contest. The game will begin at 3 p. m. in the new Public Schools Stadium east of the city on the fair grounds. The stadium seats 15,042.

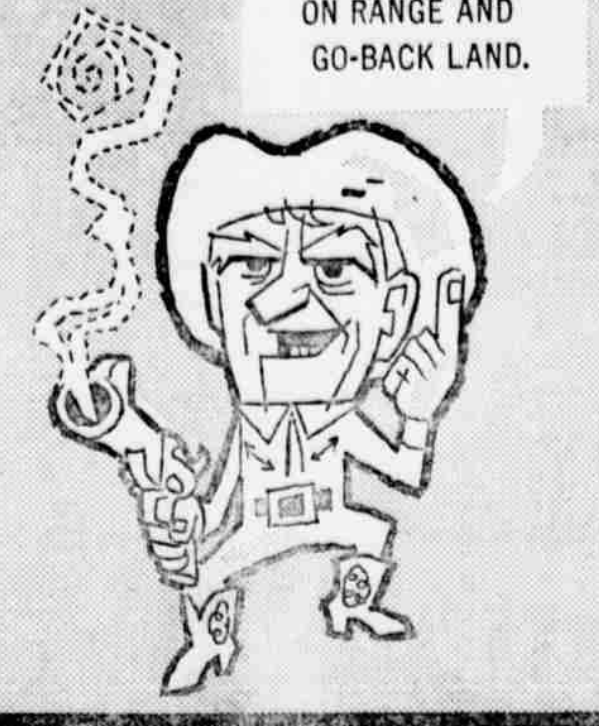

Many of the football players on both teams will be familiar to the West Texas football fans. Almost 60 per cent of the Texas squad is composed of Southwestern players while the Titans have close to 25 per cent of their squad from Texas.

Slingin' Sammy Baugh, former Hardin-Simmons University head football coach, is the coach of the Titans. He will bring with him eight former H-S Cowboy stars as well as former McMurry athletes.

The Texans are coached by Hank Stram, former SMU coach and are owned by Lamar Hunt the organizer of the new American Football League. Among the Texans' stars are Jack Spikes of Snyder and TCU; Chico Mendoza of TCU and Ranger; Marvin Terrell of Mississippi; Jim Swink of TCU and Abner Haynes of North Texas State.

Cotton Leading Income Source For Farmers

Texas outranked other states in cash receipts from farm marketing of cotton, rice and grain sorghum in 1957, reports John G. McHaney, economist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Cotton was the leading income source for Texas farmers as it brought in one-third of the total cash receipts. Although Texas grain sorghum accounted for over half of the total U. S. production, it accounted for only 10 per cent of the State's farm income, McHaney continues.

In other rankings, Texas was second in receipts from cattle and calves, fourth in sheep and lambs and peanuts, and fifth in flaxseed. Even though Texas retained its top spot for number of cattle and calves on hand, Iowa ranked first in total cash receipts, McHaney says.

Hints on Summer Care of Poultry

Although hot weather of late spring, summer and early fall increases the feed efficiency of laying flocks, it can also be detrimental to them, reports Dr. J. H. Quisenberry, head of the Texas A&M Poultry Science Department.

Twenty years of growth is the record claimed for the national 4-H clothing award program which today involves nearly three-quarters of a million girls between 10 and 21 years of age.

This report comes from the National 4-H Service Committee which developed the program over two decades ago in cooperation with the Extension Service. It has been supported ever since by Coats & Clark Inc., of New York.

Right now across the nation young seamstresses are putting the finishing touches on skirts, dresses and coats. The garments were carefully cut, stitched and sewn under the knowing eye of their local 4-H Club leader.

Many hopeful models also are rehearsing for a fashion show and exhibit of their handiwork in competition with other club members for county, state and national 4-H clothing awards provided by Coats & Clark.

Cuban Dictator's Actions Make Sugar Control Bill Necessary

The decision of Fidel Castro to enter into economic agreements with Russia, and his continuing hostile and menacing manner in whipping up Cuban resentment against America made it mandatory that we approve President Eisenhower's request for discretionary powers to alter the Cuban sugar quota.

Continuing that, we will have to alter the Cuban sugar quota does not grow as an act of economic reprisal against the Cuban people, who we have long regarded and still regard and treat as good neighbors.

When I say that as a nation and a people we have befriended Cuba and have gone to extremes to use her sugar many Texas farmers know what I'm talking about.

Nematodes Limit Production of Garden Crops

Are your garden vegetables poor producers? If so, the plants may have been damaged by root knot.

Root knot occurs in all areas of Texas, and is usually more common in sandy soils. The disease is caused by nematodes, Nematodes are small, microscopic worms belonging to a group of animals known as roundworms.

Plants damaged by nematodes show a lack of vigor as indicated by stunting, wilting and yellowing of the leaves. Loss of leaves often occurs. Plants may die. Vegetables are usually small and unfit to eat.

To examine suspected plants, carefully remove roots and soil with a shovel. Diseased roots have abnormal galls or knots. Avoid confusing root knot with nodules or legumes. Root knot swellings are a part of the root itself. Nodules are easy to push off of the root.

Nematodes are controlled by a combination of cultural practices and the use of nematocides.

For further information contact your extension agent and ask for a copy of MP-356, "Plant Nematodes - Their Identification and Control."

Head smut disease of grain sorghums occurs in all areas of Texas. Heaviest losses may range up to 50 per cent.

Heat is the worst enemy of egg quality. The following practices will pay off in higher grades and longer shelf life which means more income for the poultryman: gather eggs at least three, and preferably five times daily; place in coolers immediately; gather the eggs in a wire basket and do not fill over half full; separate the clean eggs from the dirty and spray with a light oil or wax; wash dirty eggs with a sanitizer detergent and cool quickly after drying; if possible transport eggs in a refrigerated truck; gather and store eggs on small end.
