State gives final okay on 37th St. widening project

The State Department of Highways and Public Transportation has given its go-ahead for a controversial 37th St. widening project here in Snyder. "Our present plan is to let the project in the spring of 1991 and construction should take approximately eight months, being completed in the early fall of 1991," said William Burnett, P.E., district engineer for the Abilene District. The project will reconstruct and widen 37th St. from State Highway 350, or College Ave., to Farm Road 1607. It will include widening the street to four lanes of travel with a left turn lane at the intersection of College Ave. The summer construction schedule will result in the majority of the project being constructed when school is out. A news release from the State Department of Highways and Public Transportation (SDHPT) states "The Abilene district office and the Austin headquarters design division of the SDHPT and Federal Highway Administration (FHWA), having reviewed the project, the environmental, social and economic impact of the project, and the public hearing requirements for the project, have authorized the go-ahead with the use of federal and state urban system funds to widen 37th St."

The release goes on to note that (see 37TH, page 13A)

April 2 trial date for lawsuit filed by Bartels, Walton

U.S. District Judge Sam Cummings of Lubbock has set an April 2 trial date for a lawsuit filed a year ago by former County Auditor Bernhard Bartels and his assistant, Ann Walton, against District Judge Gene L. Dulaney and County Auditor Linda Franklin. Cummings last fall granted a plaintiffs' motion to include Scurry County in the suit as a third-party defendant. Lubbock attorney Bruce Magness is representing the county, and he said in a telephone interview Friday that he will file a motion this week for a summary judgment asking for the county to be dismissed as a defendant. Magness said the Monday, April 2, setting is only tentative, although it would appear that the county would have the best standing to get it postponed. There is no inclination by the commissioners court to delay going to trial. The other attorneys, Lubbock lawyers Brian Quinn and Thomas Griffith, representing Bartels and Walton, and Forrest Bowers, who represents Dulaney, have been involved in the case since the beginning and have done extensive discovery, or evidence-gathering, Magness noted, while he could still do more discovery to prepare for trial. "At this point, we don't contemplate asking for any additional time," he said. "We plan on being ready for April 2." Magness said his motion for a summary judgment, coinciding with arguments in the answer he filed in December, will be based on the contention "that whatever (see LAWSUIT, page 13A)

Services Sunday for former SDN publisher

Services for Herbert "Herb" Feather Jr., 78, former publisher of the Snyder Daily News, are set for 2 p.m. Sunday at Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home Chapel. Burial will follow in the Snyder Cemetery. Feather, who lived at 3798 Dalton Drive, was pronounced dead at 11:58 a.m. Friday by Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway who determined that Feather had died at approximately 7:15 p.m. Thursday at his home. He was born Nov. 5, 1911, in Brewton, Ala., and moved to Snyder from Big Spring in May, 1950 as an associate of Harte-Hanks which began the Snyder Daily News. He became (see FEATHER, page 13A)

Budget insight helped...

Snyder may not be affected by school funding shortage

from local and wire reports
AUSTIN — Superintendent Dalton Moseley said Saturday that he does not expect shortfalls in state funding to affect the Snyder school district this year. A State Board of Education committee, looking at a $109 million deficit in state funding to schools, Friday was urging emergency action by lawmakers to make up the money. School officials blamed higher-than-estimated enrollments, coupled with a greater-than-anticipated need for remedial courses, on the shortfall. School districts' monthly payments from the state should start being adjusted by March to make up their share of the estimated $45 million shortage for 1989-90, state officials said. Snyder officials noted that the adjustment was not unanticipated locally. "I budgeted for this to happen," said Moseley. "I did not budget to their (Texas Education Association) projections, which said Snyder would have a decrease in the number of students. They projected a loss of enrollment, but I knew with the prison here, we could expect an increase. I also expected an increase in the free lunch program, and that's what happened." Moseley said he had not received notice from the state board or the TEA and was not sure what the difference in funds would be for the SISD but noted, "I do not think we will see any loss or hurt, budget-wise, in the short-fall." Moseley said years of experience have made him cautious when putting together the budget. "I may overestimate but I'm not going to underestimate. You can't go on TEA estimates. You have to do a lot of work and a lot of planning. It's not easy to make a $12 million budget and get it as close as you can." State officials noted a $64 million estimated deficit for the 1990-91 school year. That is less (see SCHOOL, page 13A)

Comprehensive auto coverage may go down in Scurry County

A "test-case" scenario involving a medium-sized vehicle indicates that comprehensive automobile insurance coverage may go down in Scurry County by about 9.2 percent, based on new rates adopted by the State Board of Insurance. Joe Fowler of Fowler & Associates warned, however, that because of different types of coverages available, that figure could fluctuate. The state board has approved an average statewide increase of 2.88 percent, effective for policies written or renewed after or on May 1, which will produce an extra $113 million in revenue for the industry. The "test-case" vehicle used was a 1988 Pontiac Bonneville four-door sedan with no male under age 25 as a driver or no single female under 21. The car would be driven back and forth to work. It would include the minimum limits of liability the law requires which is $20,000 per person, $40,000 bodily injury per accident and $15,000 property damage. Coverage would also include $5,000 personal injury protection and would have deductibles of $50 on the comprehensive coverage and $200 on the collision (see RATES, page 13A)

Physician in process of moving to Snyder

Cogdell Memorial Hospital's new obstetrician-gynecologist is in the process of moving to Snyder to open his practice by March 1, hospital board members were told Friday. Comptroller Leslie Robinson, who works here and at St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock, revealed that Dr. Mario Ochoa was to be in Snyder Friday afternoon to look for a home. Robinson spoke in the absence of administrator Tom Hochwalt, who was out of town. He noted that Ochoa, a long-time El Paso physician, has signed a letter of agreement to join Cogdell's medical staff.

In other business at the noon meeting, in which the only item on the agenda was paying bills, board president G.A. Parks Jr. proposed and was given the board's assent for a tour soon of the clinic the hospital staffs at the Price Daniel Unit. Payment of the hospital's monthly bills was approved. Other board members who attended were Jim Palmer, Roy McQueen, Jackie Smith, Brenda Hedges and Bill Wilson III. County Judge Bobby J. Goodwin, an ex-officio hospital board member, and County Auditor Linda Franklin also took part.

Q—Who paid the expenses for Commissioner Tommy Pate's certification courses, Tommy or the county?
A—The county. Each commissioner is budgeted expenses to attend required educational training. Pate received 12 hours of the required 16 by attending the courses.

To be freed

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — Nelson Mandela, the symbol of unyielding black resistance to apartheid, will go free Sunday after more than 27 years in prison, President F.W. de Klerk announced Saturday. "Tomorrow will bring us to the end of a long chapter," de Klerk told a news conference. He said he conferred with Mandela on Friday night and was convinced the black leader is committed to a peaceful resolution of the racial conflict that has plagued South Africa for decades.

River rescue

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A life buoy purchased last month as part of a program to improve U.S. Border Patrol operations has already come in handy. Agents used it to rescue a pregnant woman from the Rio Grande. Dennis Martinson, a Border Patrol inspector, said he was on a bridge over the river shortly before 7 a.m. Saturday when he saw a man yelling in Spanish. "My Spanish isn't very good but I could tell he was saying someone was in the river," Martinson said. "I saw a head bobbing up and down, so I ran to get the life preserver."

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Civic workers need to be like a postage stamp—stick to one thing until it gets there."

We read some distressing news recently. One economic development specialist has estimated that a community must be willing to put hard cash up if it hopes to be successful. The specialist went on to say that communities must be willing to shell out $100,000 for each new job. While we don't altogether agree with that assessment, it is a fact that competition between communities for new payroll dollars is going to be greater in months ahead. All towns in Texas, especially those which have been heavily dependent on the petroleum industry, are alert to even the faint hint of a prospect. It also appears that larger cities have a distinct advantage over rural towns in terms of resources which can be mustered to attract an employer of any size. Long-range planning is going to be the key—to have a war chest ready to help provide needed incentives. Abilene was one of the first cities in the state to approve a half-cent sales tax for economic development. Our neighbors to the east will have in excess of $3 million a year to go after new jobs. Other towns in Texas are getting interested in the sales tax for economic development. We understand Amarillo has already approved the sales tax and Brownfield recently okayed a similar tax. Snyder citizens also need to consider such a sales tax. A half-cent would produce approximately $350,000 per year that could be used for industrial or economic development. The funds cannot be used for any other purpose, and the funds can be carried forward each year so that when a major prospect surfaces—the community will have the resources to compete. Folks interested in the economic well-being of Snyder and Scurry County should insist that leaders take a good look at the half-cent sales tax opportunity.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: The lady I am dating is a single mom (divorced) with a 5-year-old son. "Sean" demands — and gets — her attention constantly. We cannot plan a dinner, movie or trip without considering Sean.

This lady is "Numero Uno" in my life, but I feel like a third-class citizen in her life. How can we ever have a quality relationship if I get only the "leftovers"?

I have discussed this problem with two child psychologists, and neither one of them gave me a satisfactory solution. Please comment.

GETTING THE LEFTOVERS

DEAR GETTING: Your lady friend appears to be a very caring mother, which says a great deal about her character. Were she to put you before her 5-year-old son at this stage of your relationship, I would question her priorities.

Don't view your time with her as "leftovers" simply because you are not "Numero Uno." The lady appears to be a class act.

DEAR ABBY: What can I say to a man I love whose breath turns me off and whose teeth are in terrible condition? He is neat and clean in every other way, but he has neglected his mouth for many years. I am 42 and he is 48.

I live in California, and he lives in Virginia and flies here every other weekend just to be with me. He says he loves me, but I could love him a lot more if his breath and teeth were taken care of. I don't know how to go about telling him this. Maybe if you put this in the paper, I could cut it out and send it to him.

VIRGINIA LADY

DEAR LADY: I am printing your letter. If your friend misses it or chooses to ignore it, you must tell him that because you care about him, he absolutely must see a dentist!

Assure him that dentistry has come a long way in the last 35 years, and it is no longer the painful ordeal it was when he was a boy — which was probably the last time he saw a dentist, or a dentist saw him.

DEAR ABBY: No problems here today — just happiness and bursting with pride!

In 1985, a young man wrote to you, wondering if he should go back to college. He said, "I am a 36-year-old college dropout whose lifelong ambition was to be a physician, but it will take me seven years, and in seven years I will be 43 years old."

Your answer: "And how old will you be in seven years if you don't go back to school?"

Abby, that made a tremendous impression on my son who was 29 years old at the time. Danny had been toying with the idea of going back to college to study ornamental horticulture and landscape design, but he thought he was too old to be going to classes with students so much younger than himself.

Well, Danny clipped that column and went back to college, and every time he became discouraged, he would read it again. As you can imagine, it is now yellow and worn, and finally had to be wrapped in plastic to hold it together.

This morning Danny Anderson graduated from the University of Tennessee — with honors!

Thank you, thank you, thank you! DANNY'S MOM, KNOXVILLE

DEAR MOM: Congratulations! This column is for Danny. Have it laminated for him.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Eight years ago, I took chemotherapy for breast cancer. I suffered from fatigue that never went away. I also forget things and don't retain as much as I did before. Is there any evidence that chemotherapy suppresses something that never fully recovers?

DEAR READER: This is a difficult question to answer because it depends on the type and extent of your breast cancer, as well as the kind of chemotherapy you received. If, before treatment, the cancer had spread, you may experience permanent fatigue and trouble concentrating, because such cancer can cause the symptoms you describe.

Also, chemotherapy sometimes exerts profound effects on the body because it affects normal cells as well as abnormal ones. Therefore, feeling below par is a common consequence of chemotherapy and can last several months.

Although it's possible the anti-cancer medication could be affecting you eight years after treatment, I do not believe this is likely. I'm more concerned you may have developed another problem, such as anemia or an underactive thyroid gland. Alert your physician to your symptoms, and ask him or her to investigate them with suitable tests.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Breast Cancer and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have angina and have been placed on Cardizem. I take three tablets per day. The instructions indicate it should be taken one hour before meals or two hours after. This presents problems. Is it important to take this or other medications exactly as directed?

DEAR READER: Cardizem (diltiazem) is a calcium channel blocker used to treat angina or hypertension. In pill form, it is more readily absorbed from an empty stomach; hence, the manufacturer recommends taking it before meals.

Taking the pill two hours after meals certainly could be an inconvenience. It seems to be easier for pa-

Mattox goes after one diet clinic

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox said Friday he obtained a temporary restraining order against American Medical Clinics Inc., a Houston-based diet business that also operates in Austin and San Antonio.

"American Medical Clinics embarked on an elaborate and well-orchestrated scheme by misrepresenting a standard formulae diet as a medically supervised weight-loss program," Mattox said.

There was no telephone listing for American Medical Clinics in Houston. Austin attorney Charles Burton, representing the company, said he couldn't comment on Mattox's allegations because he just got involved in the case Friday and had not had time to read the pleadings.

tients to remember to take medication before meals, than later when they are busy with other activities. Therefore, keep the problem simple: Take one pill about 30 minutes before breakfast, another one 30 minutes before lunch (or in mid-afternoon) and one at bedtime.

Incidentally, other brands of diltiazem are marketed in sustained-release capsules. Ask your doctor whether a change to a long-acting brand would control your angina and solve the problem of multiple dosage.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm an elderly lady with dentures. Because my gums are shrinking, I use a cream to hold the dentures in place. What is this goop made of, and is it harmful to use?

DEAR READER: The active ingredient in most denture adhesives is sterculia (karaya) gum, a natural plant product completely free of health hazards. To find out the names of other substances in the denture cream you use, ask your dentist or pharmacist.

Orange forecast inches up

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The outlook for Florida's orange crop is sunnier now than shortly after the Christmas weekend freeze, according to a new forecast which calls for higher yield.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture's monthly crop report issued Friday revised the January figure upward by 8 million boxes of early and mid-season oranges.

"Utilization of freeze-damaged fruit has exceeded expectations of the first post-freeze forecast in January," the report said.

The boost from 60 million to 68 million places the current year's estimated crop at 100 million 90-pound boxes for all oranges. The revised estimated orange crop loss since the freeze drops from 29 percent to 23 percent.

Much of the early analysis of freeze damage was based on a similar freeze in 1983, which cut production by 30 percent, said of-officials of the USDA's Agricultural Statistics Service in Orlando.

If the new projection stands, production will be about one-third lower than the 146.6 million boxes of all oranges harvested last season. Before the freeze, the 1989-90 harvest had been estimated at 130 million boxes.

The estimated juice yield was decreased to 1.29 gallons per box from the 1.3 gallons projected last month.

The now-ripening Valencia orange crop forecast was unchanged from January's projection of 32 million boxes.

Seedless grapefruit-harvest projections dropped even further, however, from a figure of 35.5 million boxes right after the freeze to 32.5 million. Last year's production was 51 million boxes.

Citrus statistician Paul N. Messenger of the Orlando office said analysts had compared the Christmas freeze to the one in 1983 because they had been so similar in temperatures and duration, the time of year and the amount of the crop on the trees.

"It is apparent that the early and mids did not have as great a loss as they did in the '83 freeze," Messenger said. Another reason for the slight upward revision in the forecast is "the good salvage operations of the crop," he said.

Harvesting and processing of the ice-bitten fruit is about 90 percent complete, with only a few southern areas remaining to be picked in the state's 700,000-acre citrus belt.

Some industry officials have estimated financial losses at farm level at $200 to $300 million.

Prosecutors drop charges

HOUSTON (AP) — Prosecutors have dropped an indecent exposure case against former Houston police officer James Cebula out of fear that a trial would traumatize the 5-year-old victim.

The case was the only outstanding charge against Cebula, whose sentencing last summer on a rape conviction sparked widespread public indignation.

Cebula received 10 years' probation for raping a handcuffed woman he had arrested in 1988. Prosecutor Marie Munier said many people had expressed hope that prosecutors could make up for the light sentence by winning a prison term in the indecent exposure case.

State District Judge Lupe Salinas signed a dismissal order at Munier's request.

"I think the public perceived that this was another chance to right the wrong, but this wasn't a rape case," Munier said. "This was a third degree felony. The punishment range isn't the same. This is just not the case to do it. And it's not fair to put the community's expectations on the shoulders of a 5-year-old."

According to the indictment, Cebula exposed himself to the girl May 10, 1989, as she rode her bicycle past his home. He was awaiting trial on the rape charge at the time.

"I did not arrive at this decision because Mr. Cebula is not guilty, but because my daughter has tried to block this out of her memory and I do not feel that she would benefit from this trial," the mother wrote in a three-page affidavit signed Thursday.

"I believe this could hurt her emotions severely. She has suffered enough pain."

Gotti acquitted in shooting

NEW YORK (AP) — The acquittal of reputed mob boss John Gotti on charges he ordered the shooting of a union official brought cheers in court and a celebration in the Queens neighborhood where the "Dapper Don" is king.

Gotti, the man authorities call America's No. 1 organized crime boss, won his third victory over government prosecutors Friday when a jury found him innocent of assault and conspiracy.

His co-defendant, Anthony Guerrieri, was also acquitted. Gotti's supporters applauded loudly as the verdict was read, provoking Acting Justice Edward McLaughlin to threaten them with 30 days in jail if they didn't stop.

Gotti, who favors $1,800 suits and pinkie rings, kissed his lawyer Bruce Cutler after the verdict and left the Manhattan courthouse without commenting.

A short time later, he arrived at a favorite hangout in Manhattan's Little Italy and was cheered wildly by people waiting for him on the street. Two women kissed him before he ducked inside. Later fireworks were set off.

Near another Gotti hangout, the Bergin Hunt and Fish Club in the borough of Queens, residents decorated homes and stores with balloons and signs congratulating Gotti on his acquittal.

"We're happy he won. He's a good man to have on the avenue," said resident Phyllis Maccarelli.

Gotti, 49, allegedly assumed control of the Gambino family after the December 1985 execution of "Big Paul" Castellano and his bodyguard outside a Manhattan restaurant.

Weather, panel lighting concern crash investigators

ARDMORE, Okla. (AP) — An important question about the fatal crash of a small plane last week is whether the lighting inside the plane was working properly or if the pilot knew how to use the controls, investigators say.

Four people died March 31 when the leased Piper Cherokee crashed while en route from McAlester to Ardmore.

Two children of state Rep. Bill Brewster died in the crash, along with Madill publisher Herb Pate and Broken Arrow oil man Jack Kirkpatrick, the pilot.

Kirkpatrick had less than an hour of instruction on the aircraft from Dub Shaw, owner of Pro Flight, where it was leased, said Ray Wall, investigator for the National Transportation Safety Board.

"The pilot owned an airplane, but the knobs and switches are different from the one he leased for the political tour, creating the possibility of confusion," Wall said Thursday.

Shaw has told investigators Kirkpatrick did well when the pair went through the aircraft. The light controls may have been pointed out, but the lights were never actually turned on during the checkout, Wall said.

"We don't know if he even knew how to use them," he said.

Stormy weather the night of the crash also is expected to play a big part in determining the cause of the crash.

National Weather Service officials said the weather that night was below instrument flight rating conditions with a ceiling of 600 feet and visibility less than seven miles. Kirkpatrick did not have an instrument flight rating certificate.

"I have a lot of factors to investigate," Wall said. "The weather is one of the biggest."

The condition of the cockpit makes investigators' job more difficult. More than half of the airplane burrowed into the ground when it hit.

The cockpit, in hundreds of unrecognizable pieces, has been brought to Air Salvage in Lancaster, Texas, in four large wooden boxes.

Water district records gain

January deliveries by the Colorado River Municipal Water District showed nearly a one percent gain over the same month in 1989, but water lost through post-freeze breaks may have accounted for this.

The total for the month, 1,083,670,720 gallons, was up 4.7 million gallons or .87 of one percent. Municipal deliveries of 969,830,100 gallons were up 44.9 million gallons or 4.83 percent. On the other hand, declining oil and industrial deliveries of 113,840,620 gallons were off by 23.69 percent.

The most pronounced gain occurred in Big Spring, which used 205,353,800 gallons, a gain of 34 million gallons or 19.84 percent. The city, however, had the greatest loss of water in the wake of the Christmas zero weather that popped water mains in an unprecedented number.

Midland, making unusual mid-winter adjustments to its system, showed 278,560,700 gallons, a decline of 30.4 million gallons or 9.33 percent. Odessa used 402,793,000 gallons, up 31.2 million gallons or 8.37 percent; Snyder 69,246,000 gallons, up 4.4 million gallons for 6.75 percent; Stanton, 6,881,000 gallons, a loss of 839,000 gallons or down 10.78 percent.

During the month, Robert Lee drew 5,049,000 gallons, whereas a year ago, it took only 347,000 gallons. San Angelo took 1,766,600 gallons, and last year took none for the month.

Spacecraft swings around Venus

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — NASA's Galileo spacecraft snapped photographs of Venus Saturday after zooming around the planet in a "celestial billiard shot" that sent the robot explorer toward its 1995 encounter with Jupiter.

"We have clearly achieved the sole objective of going to Venus: a trajectory that will help us ultimately reach Jupiter," said Bill O'Neil, Galileo science and mission design manager at NASA's Jet Propulsion laboratory. "All systems have been operating perfectly."

The 2.8-ton spacecraft made its closest approach to Venus at 9:59 p.m. PST Friday, passing 10,028 miles above the furnace-like surface of the second planet from the sun, O'Neil said.

Galileo's camera snapped pictures of the planet to study wind and cloud patterns and search for lightning that might indicate the presence of volcanoes erupting beneath the clouds.

The camera will continue to take pictures of Venus for a week, "so we'll end up with a movie of Venus as we recede," mission director Neal Ausman said.

The spacecraft's ultraviolet, visible and infrared light sensors studied the makeup of Venus' carbon-dioxide atmosphere, mapped cloud-top temperatures and looked for the glow of the lower atmosphere backlighting the clouds, said project scientist Torrence Johnson.

The pictures and data were stored on Galileo's tape recorder, and won't be sent back to Earth until October when the spacecraft is close enough to transmit the material with its antenna. That antenna now can be used only for communications to keep Galileo operating.

Galileo's main umbrella-shaped antenna must remain furled to protect it from sunlight until after the craft cruises past Earth on Dec. 8.

The $1.35 billion mission also will let Galileo examine Earth, its moon and one or two asteroids before the spacecraft separates into an orbiter and a small probe in July 1995. In December 1995, they arrive at Jupiter, the solar system's largest planet, after a 2.4-billion-mile trip, including 182 million miles to reach Venus.

Galileo was deployed from space shuttle Atlantis last Oct. 18.

Lady Tigers rap MHS

Snyder ties Big Spring for post-season spot

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor
A famous sports maxim says that offense sells tickets and defense wins championships.

If that is the case, more people should have been at the Snyder-Monahans girls basketball game Friday, and it will be tough to get past the Lady Tigers. Snyder claimed a 68-45 win that was nowhere near as close as the score indicates.

A one game playoff to determine the second district playoff participant is slated between Snyder and Big Spring Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Coahoma Middle School gym.

Sweetwater, 14-0 in District 4-4A competition has already claimed the loop crown. The winner of the Lady Tigers-Lady Steers matchup will advance to play the winner of the Canyon Randall-Levelland game.

Randall and Levelland finished the season tied for the District 1-4A title.

The Lady Tigers simply suffocated Monahans with a full court press that resulted in a pair of turnovers on 10-second violations in the first quarter.

Another two five-second calls went against the Lady Lobos in the second quarter.

As for offense, Snyder's girls pounced on the Monahans press, scoring 23 points in the opening quarter and putting the game away in the first eight minutes.

At the end of the first period the Lady Tigers held a 23-4 lead.

"We got off to a good start," said coach Kenneth Housden.

"We were playing good defense and shooting the ball well.

"With our early success we were able to go to the bench early and play a lot of people," he said.

All the Lady Tigers got into the game and all but one scored.

Anne Osborn gave the Snyder crew a 20-point bulge with a free throw to start the second quarter.

The Lady Lobos finally got in to double figures with a minute left in the first half as Tina Hix hit a short jump shot to set the score at 30-11.

At the half Snyder held a 34-13 advantage.

The barrage continued into the third quarter as Snyder moved to a 41-15 lead on a pair of Dessie Ware free-throws.

Osborn connected on an eight footer followed by a Teena Brazier bucket just inside the three-point line and SHS was up 45-16.

Kim Wheeler hit a lay-up for Monahans followed by a Liz Grethouse basket and a hoop by Ware off the offensive boards to give Snyder a 31-point lead.

The Lady Lobos closed to within 20, 61-41, in the middle of the fourth on a three-point basket by Suzie Molina but Ware put down a three of her own to get the points back.

Teena Brazier was the high scorer in the game with 15 points.

Anne Osborn finished with 14 followed by Dessie Ware with 11.

For the Lady Lobos, Molina and Wheeler each scored 11.

The win ties Snyder with Big Spring for second place in District 4-4A after the Lady Steers beat Andrews Friday night.

Both teams sport 9-5 loop slates.

The junior varsity girls wrapped up a 20-5 season Friday with a 57-38 pasting of Monahans. Schanekka Thompson scored 21 to lead all scorers.

SHS golfers in SA tourney

SAN ANGELO — The Lady Tigers golf team of Snyder High finished the San Angelo Invitational Tournament in ninth position after Friday's competition at Bentwood Country Club. Snyder finished with a two-day score of 821.

Andrews won the event carding a two-round 711.

San Angelo Central, second place after their first round 371, fired a 372 Friday for a total of 743.

Abilene Cooper's 758 was good enough for third place in the tourney.

San Angelo Central's Lisa Balch grabbed medalist honors with a 156 score.

Wendy Ward of San Antonio Roosevelt shot a 78 on Thursday and an 84 Friday to finish second individually with a 162.

Lisa McQuatters was third with twin 84's and a tournament total of 168.

Kim Duncan paced the Snyder team with a 182 and a squad-best 88 in the first round of play.

Amy Armstrong's 194 was followed by Wendy Miller with a 219 and Ginny Fenton's 262.

Jacy Laroux was forced to withdraw from competition with a sprained ankle.

"I'm pretty proud of the way they played," said golf coach Penny Perry.

"It's the hardest course we played."

The Snyder girls will take to the links again next week as they travel to Big Spring on Friday.

DEFENSE — Dana Fenton, 41, and Robbie Brazier, far right, put the clamps on Monahans' Kim Wheeler in Friday's 68-45 win for the Lady Tigers. Snyder allowed just 13 points in the entire first half of the game. The victory ties Snyder with

Big Spring for the second playoff spot in the district and forces another confrontation between the two squads. The game is set for Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Coahoma Middle School gym. (SDN Staff Photo)

Tigers claim 50-40 win over Monahans

MONAHANS — Snyder's boys cage team stayed tied with Pecos for first place in District 4-4A with a 50-40 win over the Monahans Lobos Friday night.

"Despite the score," said Snyder coach Larry Scott, "we feel like we played a pretty good game."

"We had a little lapse in the second quarter where they outscored us, but we were getting good shots in that stretch, they just weren't falling."

"We had balanced scoring," he reported, "it was a pretty good game for us, overall."

Sophomore post Hayward Clay led the Snyder attack with 12 points.

Ed Rios and Tracy Brazier each tossed in nine.

Craig Abercrombie paced the Monahans team with 14 points followed by Cris Hallum with 11.

Snyder jumped out to a 17-5 lead at the end of the first quarter.

The margin narrowed to 24-17 at the half but the Tigers came on and outscored the Lobos, 26-23 in the last two periods for the win.

The junior varsity boys claimed a win in Monahans, too, taking a 49-41 come-from-behind win over the Lobos.

Jerry Don Tippins and Paul Anderson each scored 12 for the Tigers in the JV victory. Snyder's next battle will be against Sweetwater Tuesday night on the Mustangs home court.

Amnesiac, relatives to meet

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — A man known only as John Doe because he has no memory before October last year was to meet Saturday with people who say he's their lost relative. But he's not sure the meeting will solve his problems. "I don't know how to explain it. It's good, but I don't remember any of these people," he said Friday in a telephone interview.

Doe said he last remembers being picked up by Topeka police as he was wandering through a motel parking lot in October.

He had no identification and told police he did not know his name, address or anything else about his past.

Since then, he's undergone extensive hypnotherapy and had his fingerprints sent to the FBI.

But the search for his identity produced only tiny clues until a Milwaukee television station picked up his story Thursday night. People there who saw the program claimed to be his relatives, according to his therapist, Rick Selig.

Selig said the presumed relatives say Doe is actually Melvin Wolf, a 53-year-old small appliance repairman from Angleton, Texas.

The people said Wolf left home Aug. 20, 1989, on a business trip, and never returned.

"Legally, we can't say that this individual is Melvin Wolf until we get confirmation with the fingerprints," said Selig, a clinical social worker at the Topeka Psychiatric Clinic. Selig has worked with Doe since he was found in October.

Donna Caske, Wolf's sister from Angleton, is expected to arrive Saturday in Topeka to determine whether Doe is actually Wolf, Selig said.

"I don't know what to say," Doe said. "I'm nervous, excited, scared — everything you can say ... How come I was gone for six months and nobody missed me?"

Topeka police Sgt. Greg Halford said authorities plan to check Doe's fingerprints with Wolf's and meet with Mrs. Caske and other relatives.

"We do not think this is a hoax," Halford said.

Selig said Doe spoke Friday on the telephone with Mrs. Caske and others claiming to be relatives, but he did not remember them. Mrs. Caske said Wolf lived with her.

"Hopefully, (seeing them) will spark some memories for him," Selig said. Mrs. Caske said no one reported Wolf missing because it was not unusual for him to stay away from home, Selig said.

Selig said Doe was diagnosed as suffering from psychogenic amnesia — a total memory loss he said can come from some "extraordinarily stressful event, a very painful event."

Selig said he has been conducting extensive hypnotherapy with Doe to reduce anxiety and help him remember his past. Meanwhile, a fingerprint check with the FBI turned up nothing.

After a lengthy hospital stay, Doe moved into a halfway house in Topeka. He eventually became the house manager while continuing treatment with Selig.

Selig said that about a month ago during hypnosis, Doe began to recall certain details of his life, such as a U.S. Army serial number, a farm scene, and the first names of his parents. He also spoke fluent German and stated that he served in Germany during World War II, Selig said. He recalled vivid details of Berlin, and remembered that he once owned a 1966 Dodge van.

Teenager's parents drop suit

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The parents of deceased teenager Chad Cadenhead have dropped their lawsuit against a former San Antonio teacher accused of having sex with the teen to concentrate on their son's death.

"They have now decided to pursue how their son died," family attorney Lynn Taylor said of Chris and Kay Cadenhead. "They don't believe he committed suicide."

Cadenhead was 17 when he shot himself Jan. 28, 1988, according to the Bexar County medical examiner. Hogan was fired a month and a half after Cadenhead's death when four of his friends swore that they had seen Cadenhead and Hogan having sex a month before his death, when Cadenhead was 16.

The Cadenheads filed suit against Hogan and the Northside School District in October the day a jury began deliberating criminal charges that Ms. Hogan had sex with Cadenhead when he was 16, too young legally to consent to a sexual relationship with an adult. The jury acquitted the former Clark High School teacher in October of sexual assault charges.

Following the acquittal, the Cadenheads pursued their lawsuit, accusing Hogan of contributing to their son's death. They claimed the school district was liable too because other teachers and administrators knew of inappropriate behavior by Hogan but failed to act.

Hogan became the sole defendant after a district judge ruled in November that the school district could not be held liable under the law and dismissed that portion of the Cadenhead suit.

Friday, Cadenhead lawyers Taylor and Nick Rothe filed a request in district court to drop the suit. The school district had been the most important defendant and without it, there was no point in continuing, Taylor said. "Since the school district and its administrators were immune from suit, and since the action and inaction of the district was our primary focus in bringing the suit in the first place, we have today voluntarily dismissed Lou Ann Hogan," the Cadenheads said in a statement issued after the suit was dropped.

Financial Focus

This column seldom advocates more government control. The New York Stock Exchange and the National Association of Security Dealers do a creditable job of policing its members and their representatives.

In the past several years, however, there has been a rapidly increasing number of salespeople offering financial services and products. Many are not members of the NYSE or the NASD nor are they subject to their scrutiny. Thus, the Securities and Exchange Commission is the only national agency capable of exercising control over this rapidly expanding segment of this industry.

The Investment Company Institute, through its president, David Silver, recently requested that Congress re-evaluate the budget and level of funding for the SEC. Silver's concerns are genuine, documented and worthy of sharing with the investing public.

The complexity and difficulty of the regulatory and enforcement problems facing the SEC have increased dramatically in recent years.

The ICI reported that between 1963 and 1988, the number of brokerage firms has grown from 5,482 to 12,140, an increase of 121 percent. The number of investment advisers has grown from 1,564 to 14,120, an increase of 803 percent.

In 1963 the first major insider trading case was yet to come. Today the "big" case is almost routine.

Finally, a growing number of securities frauds now have an international aspect adding another dimension to SEC supervision. Yet with all these added responsibilities, the staff of the SEC has grown only 38 percent, from 1,481 in 1963 to a projected 2,050 in the coming budgetary year.

"The greatest irony is found by comparing user fees collected by the U.S. Treasury under the securities laws," said Silver. In 1963 these user fees represented only 19 percent of the total budget. Currently user fees are approaching twice the size of the budget.

According to Silver, "The investing public and the industry are not receiving the services from government which they need...and, as these figures show, they are not receiving the services for which they pay."

The fundamental statutory mandate of the SEC, one it has pursued the past 55 years, is to act in the "public interest" for the "protection of investatory." The Institute's concern is that with the unprecedented and growing complexities of the securities markets, the SEC's underfunded and understaffed position could impair their mission.

The SEC serves a vital protection need of the investing public. The Investment Company Institute recognizes this vital role of the SEC and should be congratulated for its positive-action position.

School officials stop survey

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Some high school journalism students say they will go to the school board to appeal a principal's decision blocking their plans to publish a survey on homosexuality.

The school's principal, Winifred Taylor, and high-ranking officials from the Fort Worth Independent School District said the action was taken because they felt the survey could cause psychological damage to high school students.

The administrators also warned student editors and faculty advisors at the Arlington Heights High School newspaper that all newspaper articles all must be reviewed by Taylor prior to publication, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported.

The newspaper's staffers published the list of survey questions after administrators had stopped their circulation and forbade publishing the results.

There were 10 questions asking students such things as their feelings about homosexuals' rights, and if they know any homosexuals.

"Have you ever thought you could be homosexual?" asked the final question.

The paper's staff said it wanted to conduct the survey because fellow students are concerned about AIDS and also because federal officials are conducting an investigation of homosexuality at nearby Carswell Air Force Base. That investigation has led to the discharge of 12 airmen.

Editors of the Jacket Journal began distributing the survey questions on Jan. 11 to 400 students during the school's homeroom period.

The survey was blocked by administrators after complaints from several teachers at the school.

Although the results were not published, the newspaper did list the survey questions in its Feb. 2 edition.

Man recalls brush with death

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — The way Virgil Baldwin has it figured, he must have been one day away from death.

A week ago, the 43-year-old Fort Davis man was lying in a desolate, rock-covered field in West Texas, his leg pinned underneath his overturned pickup.

This weekend he is hospitalized in Odessa, recovering from being trapped two nights in sub-freezing temperatures and pulling himself across rugged terrain with only his arms.

"The field was rocky and there were some stickers. I knew if I stayed out there another day I'd die," said Baldwin, who is a construction worker.

Baldwin remembers little about the actual accident that put him in the perilous predicament. He was driving on a farm road about 12 miles south of Marfa on Feb. 3 when he fell asleep, according to Department of Public Safety reports.

"I just remember going through the windshield," he said. "A little later, I remember I couldn't get out from under the truck. My leg was pinned."

The wreck occurred shortly before midnight, and it wasn't until hours later that he was able to pry his leg free. With what strength he had left, he dragged his limp body along, using only his arms to propel himself.

"I could only move maybe a foot or two at a time, then I'd have to rest awhile," said Baldwin, grimacing as he recalled the agony.

It was frustrating as Baldwin realized how close he was to civilization, yet so far away. His truck had ripped through a fence, then went about 100 feet down a gully, stopping upside-down and out of sight of the Presidio County roadway.

"I could hear the cars going by from time to time," Baldwin recalled. "I yelled, but they couldn't hear me."

But fortune smiled on Baldwin when a ranch hand noticed the broken fence on Monday morning. When he stopped to investigate, he spotted the vehicle and called authorities.

Baldwin was taken by ambulance to Brewster Memorial Hospital in Alpine, then transferred to the Odessa hospital where he underwent extensive surgery.

"I think if I wasn't in the best of health, I wouldn't have come out of that ditch alive," Baldwin said.

Baldwin now has a steel rod placed in his thigh and screws in his ankle to repair breaks. He also suffered a fractured bone in his calf and broken ribs.

"He's tough as a boot," said Johnny Gentry.

It would not include uninsured motorist coverage. "Manual figures," or figures taken directly from the book indicate that the above policy would cost $644 currently. Beginning May 1, the new rate would be $585, or a 9.2 decrease. Fowler said liability alone for the "test-case" is now $154. He noted that the Independent Insurance Agents Association has not released a breakdown of figures to determine how much the basic policy will be. According to information from the State Board of Insurance, however, basic liability on the 1988 Pontiac Bonneville would increase in cost to $166.

the judge did and whatever the other defendants did in the case, Scurry County had no control over it and is not responsible for it. "The commissioners want to proceed. We could probably engage in a great deal of discovery, but the commissioners feel we should go ahead and get the county out of it." In his answer to the suit, Magness also filed a cross-action against Dulaney and County Auditor Linda Franklin, asking that they be ordered to reimburse the county if it is found to have any liability in the case. Bartels and Walton are contending that Dulaney acted unconstitutionally when he declined to renew Bartels' appointment because of Walton's activities during the fall 1988 race between Dulaney and local attorney Pete Greene for the district judgeship. The plaintiffs are seeking reinstatement, back pay and other damages.

He is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Buddy (Glenda) Powell of Big Spring; four grandchildren; two sisters, Mary Williams of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Sabina Gardner of Little Rock, Ark.; two brothers, Frank Feather of Snyder and Dan Feather of Slaton.

Sentence is revoked

A 35-year-old Fort Worth man's eight-year probated sentence for possession of a controlled substance was revoked last week in 132nd District Court. Tommy R. Wade was on probation for having less than 28 grams of methamphetamines in his possession on April 14, 1987, and District Judge Gene L. Dulaney revoked his probation and ordered him to begin serving seven years in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice. According to court records, Wade's probation was revoked because he had not paid his court costs or probation fees and because he left Lubbock County, where he had been serving his probated sentence, for more than 72 hours without notifying his probation officer.

Minor wreck

A truck hit a parked schoolbus at 3:53 p.m. Friday in the 3100 Block of 32nd St. Police said a 1983 Ford truck driven by Gary L. Scott of 3757 Dalton Ave. hit the 1975 International bus, owned by Snyder Independent School District, and that damages were minor.

DWI arrests

Police arrested a woman and a girl in separate incidents early Saturday, the 36-year-old woman at 12:27 a.m. Saturday in the 3900 Block of College Ave. for DWI. The 15-year-old girl was taken into custody at 12:45 a.m. in the 700 Block of 20th St. for being a minor in possession of alcohol.

count the revised enrollment figures.

The Supreme Court, which found glaring disparities among rich and poor school districts, set a May 1 deadline for the Legislature to change the funding system, which relies largely on a combination of state aid and local property taxes.

The formula for cutting state funds to districts takes into account their wealth, lessening the effect on poor districts. The Education Board's school finance committee voted to ask the governor to put the shortage before lawmakers as an emergency funding item in the special session.

37th St.

the city of Snyder is responsible for acquiring right-of-way needed to construct the project and adjusting utility lines to clear construction operations. The state and the FHWA will fund an estimated $805,000 for the construction of the widening. This includes preparations of plans for the street improvement, supervision of construction activities and payment to contractors. Upon completion, 37th St. will revert back to the city of Snyder and the city will be responsible for all future maintenance expenditures.

The completion of the project is expected to aid the east-west traffic flow, assisting emergency vehicles and reducing school traffic congestion.

A public hearing on the proposed widening drew 170 citizens to the junior high school on Sept. 12 of last year. At the meeting, Mayor Troy Williamson and City Manager John Gayle gave the city's position supporting the project. Gayle noted that the widening was originally called for in the city's 1972 master plan.

A majority of citizens at the meeting, including many who have residences on or adjacent to 37th St., opposed the project. The city reviewed the project as recently as last Monday, noting that the widening would entail an encroachment approaching the intersection at 37th and College from four to 11 feet on the south side and almost 15 feet on the north. The encroachments would then average between 12 and 13 feet on the north side and between two and three feet on the south side as 37th extends from College Ave. west to Austin Ave.

Burglaries are noted

Police are investigating a burglary that was reported Friday at the 2908 37th St. home of Leland Redline. Officers said the burglar or burglars gained entry to the unlocked home and stole a coin collection and some jewelry. Redline reported the break-in at 12:49 p.m.

A city police detective reported Friday night that two juvenile boys had been identified in a Tuesday burglary at Boss Exxon at 1401 25th St.

He said the two, both 15 years old, were turned over to a county juvenile officer. He said none of the money that was taken from the station had been recovered. The amount stolen was not reported.

Pint-sized philanthropist in king-sized controversy

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A pint-sized philanthropist who has taken the Springtown Police Department under her wing now finds herself in the middle of a king-sized controversy.

For more than a year, fifth grader Wendy Dowdle has singlehandedly organized bake sales, car washes and other fund raisers to earn the money to buy bulletproof vests for the town's 10 reserve police officers.

Police Chief Larry Nix is in hot water because of how it looks to outsiders when a little girl supplies officers with bulletproof vests, an unnamed police department source told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

The controversy has put a stop to Wendy's campaign. And, Nix has been placed on administrative leave due to officials' reservations about how he carries out his duties. The city council in this town, northwest of Fort Worth, will meet Feb. 19 to decide if Nix will be fired.

But, city Administrator Larry Slayton said city officials do not object to Wendy's project.

"I don't think there's any problem with her raising money for the police department. All contributions are gratefully accepted in government," he said. "She's to be commended for caring."

Wendy's mother says the situation is discouraging and has quashed her daughter's fundraising activities.

"Right now she feels sort of responsible for what is happening to the chief," said Wendy's mother, Belinda Medford. "It's only a small complaint, but she feels like she's responsible for everything. She was really upset."

Wendy has removed the donation jars she had placed in businesses and has canceled a Valentine's Day bake sale.

Friends say the controversy is sending a negative message to young people.

"People are always saying: 'Why don't kids care? Why don't kids get involved?' Well, Wendy's involved and now they're saying she's wrong," said neighbor Carolyn Ashcraft.

Wendy's project was sparked in October, 1988, by a contest held by the town's reserve police officers to raise money for bulletproof vests. Wendy was the only contestant, raising $5.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

An era ended quietly in Snyder just before Christmas when Bill King Jr. and his wife, Vondell, closed the doors of King and Brown for the last time.

Open since 1921, this locally owned appliance business had operated continuously at its present location, 1914 25th St., for the past 69 years.

King and Brown, which started out as a car dealership in the 1920s, was founded by Porter King and Earl Brown, Bill King's father and uncle, respectively. Porter King, who locally was often referred to as the "old gentlemen" died in 1981 at the age of 92. Porter's wife, the former Grace Moore, died in 1979. And Brown died in 1959.

They said Porter, who never retired, "died with his boots on." He also had all of his faculties at the time of his death and was sick just a very short time before passing away.

Porter's wife taught first grade in Scurry County for more than 60 years. Even after the state insisted she retire she continued to substitute teach for about a year.

The former Grace Moore was teaching school in Post when Porter began to court her. The Kings said they still have the buggy they used during their courting days.

Bill King had worked in the store along side his father and uncle since the end of World War II, and after the death of his father and uncle, he assumed the role of manager. For the past 10 years he was ably assisted by his wife, Vondell, who sold insurance successfully for some 28 years before giving that up to help her husband with store sales.

King said his father liked to work with his hands so he left the bookkeeping chores to him. At one time they repaired cars, refrigerators and Farmall tractors.

In 1921, Porter King was employed at the Paxton Car Agency which sold Dodges, DeSotos, Plymouths, and Chryslers. He and Brown decided to purchase the agency together that year and that is what launched their partnership.

At first, King and Brown only sold cars but soon they branched out into selling appliances and furniture. Old store records which Bill King numbers among his most prized possessions included listings of refrigerator purchases dating back to 1922. Hanging on the wall of the office of the now closed business, are numerous awards garnered for selling the most refrigerators.

Bill King explained that his father and uncle were more or less forced out of the car business during the Depression because the company they got their cars from insisted they take so many cars each year and because of hard times people just weren't buying that many cars.

The store dropped cars from its inventory around 1933 or 1934. Instead they concentrated on selling refrigerators.

Also during that decade, a portion of the shop was rented to the Scurry County Times, a forerunner of the Snyder Daily News.

Bill King remembers those first refrigerators which, unlike their modern day counterparts, were square box shaped and came in two parts, a cabinet and a plant or compressor. Before rural electricity became readily available, wind chargers provided the energy to run the refrigerators, King said.

Both King and his wife talked fondly of his parents. Besides being a man of personality who drew oldtimers to the store while he was alive, King said his father could fix or make just about anything and that skill proved very beneficial during World War II when spare parts for refrigerators were very hard to come by.

If Porter King could not order the necessary part he simply made something that would work anyway. He liked to work on cars, appliances, and Farmall tractors and he was very good at it, according to his son, who preferred the managing end of the business.

Porter was always inventing something his son said and one day he turned an old discarded refrigerator into a water fountain. To power it he rigged an air compressor. That invention, just one of many credited to Porter, still operates today and can be found in the store building.

Porter King devoted his life to the family business which he helped found and everywhere he went he was noted for "tipping his hat to the ladies."

Vondell said she was especially fond of her father-in-law, whom she affectionately called "dad King" because she had lost her father when she was 18 years old.

After she and Bill married, she said her parents-in-law became more like her parents and that is how things remained until they died.

She especially enjoyed Porter's sense of humor which could manifest itself in many different ways.

For the past 32 years, Mrs. King said she has never missed a state fair in Dallas because she likes the musicals. One year they all went to Dallas and at one point she said she began to complain that her feet hurt. She said Porter advised her to go barefoot and that is just what she did.

The following year, Bill and his wife again went to the state fair in Dallas but this time neither Porter nor his wife chose to accompany them. Instead, Vondell said her father-in-law told her husband to come by before they left town.

When they did stop by on their way to Dallas, she said Porter presented her with a big box of tennis shoes for her "aching feet."

Later, while in Dallas, she said she put as many of the tennis shoes on her as she could, had her picture taken and sent a copy to Porter.

Naturally the picture arrived after they did, but she said she never said a word and just waited for him to receive it in the mail. When it did arrive, she said they all had a big laugh.

Besides being able to "make anything with his hands," they said Porter King was also very active in the community. He and his wife and five other couples started the country club. He served as the first Scoutmaster in Snyder and was a charter member of the First United Methodist Church. In addition, he was a Mason, Shriner and member of the Lions Club.

CLOSED, BUT NOT FORGOTTEN—Bill King Jr. and his wife, Vondell, closed King and Brown Furniture and Appliance Store in December of last year. The business had been operated at its 1914 25th address since it was first opened in 1921 by King's father, Porter King, and his uncle, Earl

Brown. However, when King and Brown first opened in Snyder 68 years ago it was an automobile dealership. The Kings said it was hard to close the doors for the last time because they have many memories of the establishment and its founders. (SDN Staff Photo)

They said working with his hands is what "kept Porter young." They related another anecdote in which Porter saw a new game called Wahoo and within a short time he made a replica of the playing board which they still have and use today.

When King and Brown first stocked refrigerators, Bill King explained that people were distrustful of frozen food which was thought to be "poison." Commercial establishments kept chest type freezers but the average household did not.

Women were used to canning everything, including meat, using pressure cookers and No. 2 wash tubs to heat the jars. Canned food was then stored in the cellar.

Some of the earliest refrigerator models were powered by kerosene, King said. Later, after electricity became readily available, it became the primary source of power for refrigerators.

King explained that in the days before microwaves, self-cleaning ovens, garbage disposals, dish washers, and frostless refrigerators, people had to be convinced that purchasing one of the new refrigerators on the market was a sound investment.

King said he often used an electric proof meter to determine how much electricity the refrigerator would use. He said electricity was cheaper and more efficient than kerosene.

Many people also bought refrigerators on time. Records of all purchases were always kept at the store, he said.

Several years ago, after Porter King's death, a Fluvanna woman who had bought a refrigerator from Porter decades ago came looking for him because something had gone wrong with it. King said he wasn't sure they could help her, but since they had a record of the purchase and a record of the model and serial numbers they were able to order the necessary parts and fix the refrigerator.

King remembers the store getting smoke damage one time and them having a fire sale because of it, but the times in the past when Snyder flooded, King and Brown was spared because it set up slightly higher than other buildings on 25th Street.

King said his father always "went out of his way to help people."

The Kings called Porter and Grace "a patient, ideal couple" who were very diversified. They read "all the time" and that is how they learned to do things, they explained.

They also learned how to save everything during the Depression and Mrs. King said that it took numerous garage sales before everything was sold that they had stored in their home while living.

Porter King, a native of Midlothian, moved to Snyder in 1908 at the age of 19. He was employed as a barber and even owned his own shop for a while before he helped found King and Brown. He also cut hair in Fluvanna for a time.

In those days, King said each man kept his own shaving mug at the barber shop.

He never retired and in 1977 when he was 88 years old, Porter helped the store celebrate its 56th consecutive year of business at the same location. That event was recorded with a front page story in the Snyder Daily News.

Bill King was born in Snyder in the same house where he and his wife are now living. They have an outdoor fish pond of which they are very fond, but recently they said a raccoon got into pond and killed the fish.

He attended Texas Tech for a year before joining the National Guard and when World War II started he was mobilized into the Army and, rising to the rank of sergeant in communications, he said he saw action during four D-Day campaigns. He helped set up communications for the first European campaign. He served in North Africa, Sicily, France and Germany.

He was involved in sports and liked to do both yard and garden work. He cared for chickens, cows, and pigeons and was active in the Boy Scouts.

In 1937, King said Life Magazine carried a picture of him selling horny toads near the national Capitol. When he ran out he said his father had more collected so he could send them to him.

King said he had never planned to work at his father's store, but after World War II ended he said Porter asked him to come home to Snyder because he couldn't find any other help. And that is just what King did.

He said he remained with the store because he "liked being his own boss" and because of all the old timers who would come by to see his father and then him after his father died.

Mrs. King sold insurance for Kentucky Central Life for 28½ years before she quit to help her husband with sales at the store.

During those 28½ years, Mrs. King said she was named agent of the year 16 times and won 26 trips to various points in the world.

She attributed her success

PAST HISTORY — Porter King was a well-known businessman in Snyder before he died in 1981 at the age of 92. As shown in the top left photo, King was a barber when he first moved to Snyder. In 1921, he and Earl Brown founded King and Brown which at first sold automobiles and in later years became a furniture and appliance store. The bottom left photo was taken of King in May of 1970, the year the store celebrated its 50th anniversary.

Bill King, Jr., top right photo, went to work in his father's store after he was discharged from the service following World War II. After managing the store for many years he and his wife, Vondell, closed its doors in December of last year. This photo of King was also taken in 1970. Seated in the bottom right photo is Porter King's wife, Grace, who died in 1979. (Family Photos) because she was "color blind" when she talked to people about their insurance needs. And she said she cared just as much about a $1,000 policy as she did about a $50,000 policy.

The Kings have five children, nine grandchildren, and one great-grandson, none of whom live in Snyder.

Now that they have closed the store they said they do not have any specific plans but when they get ready to go somewhere they'll be able to do it. For the past year when they needed to be out-of-town she said they put a sign on the door saying when they would be back.

Closing the store was hard, and Mrs. King said that when they began to move out the inventory which had been purchased she said she got choked up and couldn't remain their. King was moved by the experience also but he is looking forward to retirement.

She is originally from Oklahoma and King's family roots can be traced to Tennessee where his grandfather was born.

Luck conquers all

By James Jacoby

South was lucky. First he started with a takeout double with peculiar distribution. When partner showed values by jumping to two hearts, East came to life with a jump to five diamonds. South now pictured North holding something like A-Q-J-x-x of hearts, so he jumped to six spades.

After the expected diamond lead, South ruffed high, led a low spade to dummy and ruffed another diamond. Then he played king of hearts. He next played a heart to the ace, intending to ruff one low heart and then get rid of both clubs on the good 10 and eight of hearts. Oops! East showed out on the second heart. Of course declarer had missed the 100 percent safe play for 12 tricks after the heart jack had appeared. All he had to do was play a second heart to dummy's eight-spot. If East won the queen, the slam would still be ensured. So why was South lucky? If you play a hand badly and still make your contract, that's lucky.

Declarer ruffed a heart back to his hand and led the jack of clubs, passing it into East. East now had to either give declarer a ruff and a sluff or lead away from the K-9 of clubs. Lesson: South's sudden jump to six spades suggested the void in diamonds. West should have thought twice about his opening lead. A club lead would have placed a heavy burden on South. Probably declarer should still play East for a singleton jack of hearts (it seems unlikely that East would jump to five diamonds with a spade loser and doubleton Q-J of hearts), but declarer would at least have a chance to go wrong.

IMMUNE SYSTEM

A 30-day in-hospital controlled study of 34 healthy men and women, sixty years and older, were randomly assigned by Prof. S.N. Meydani, DVM, PhD of Boston, to take 400 IU vitamin E twice daily, or a placebo. The results: greater immune responsiveness for the vitamin E supplement group with blood and TB-type skin tests. Evidently healthy seniors eating a normal diet can improve their immunity to infection by taking vitamin E supplements. Dr. Meydani stated that vitamin C and beta-carotene could also benefit the immune system.

SUPER SAVERS PACK RATS

People who collect, save or hoard insatiably are often referred to as "pack rats." Pack rats are different from collectors. Pack rats save everything from junk mail to scraps of lumber, dead flowers and worn out shoes.

Collectors usually have a system or special interest. In recent studies, psychoanalysts say hoarders resemble compulsive personalities in their tendency to avoid or postpone decisions, become depressive when forced to reawaken old memories, or grieve when something is lost (thrown away).

Attempts to clean up and organize may be upsetting since there is too much stuff to manage without spending enormous amounts of time and effort. Pack rats pose problems for themselves and others around them. Is excessive saving associated with earlier emotional or economic deprivation?

Can the behavior be changed or averted? When does the hoarding start? When behavioral scientists find the rest of the answers, pack rats will have this piece of paper to add to their collection.

SCS Notes

By MICHAEL SQUIRES

There are many options available to producers in the way of alternatives toward farm plans. One that I would like to discuss now is windstrip management.

The use of windstrips in the croplands to meet the minimum requirements set forth by the Food Security Act of 1985 (FSA) is by far the most popular in Scurry County. In order to remain in compliance with USDA farm program benefits, producers need to know how to properly manage their windstrips.

Recently, I was out in the field looking at windstrips and how they were being applied. In most cases, the protective strips are being planted on the tops of the terraces. I saw only one field where the strips had any significant height. In order for the strips to be effective, they must be maintained at a height that will afford the most protection for the crops and the land on the leeward back, and some on the front sides of the terraces.

This procedure is adequate; however, in order for the strips to be effective, they must be maintained at a height above the top of the terrace. If the strips are kept at four to six inches high, they will not be effective. In the case of wheat, the mature height should be used. If you are using forage sorghum, then at least 36 inches or greater should be maintained throughout the critical wind erosion period which is from Oct. 1 to May 15.

Also, in some locations, permanent grass strips need to be maintained at their mature height and not be mowed prior to the critical erosion period. Windstrips, annual or perennial, offer a great deal of protection to both the land and the crops.

1990 is the year that we have been working toward these past three years. This is the year that all of our past planning will start to take shape on the ground. Whether you have planned windstrips, crop residue use, conservation cropping systems, or something else, now is the time to begin the application phase. The deadline for total application is Jan. 1, 1995. It is better not to wait until the last minute to fully apply your conservation plan because the result could be forfeiture of all USDA farm program benefits.

If you have any questions about what you need to do in order to begin or complete your conservation plan, call the Soil Conservation Service office at 573-6317, or stop by and the staff will be glad to assist you.

SEX IN THE FORBIDDEN ZONE, by Peter Rutter. Drawing on case reports and interviews with more than 1,000 people, Dr. Rutter reveals the hidden epidemic of forbidden sex. He offers insights into why men in power — therapists, doctors, clergy, teachers and others — betray the trust of women who have come to them for professional help. He explains why women's emotional needs lead them into accepting such a relationship. The lessons learned here are applicable to a wide variety of problems with sexual boundaries, and show how to reinforce those boundaries against invasion.

Couple wed in double-ring ceremony

Nita Kay Hambrick and Roger Andrew Gattis were united in marriage January 20 at Abundant Life Church with Rev. John T. Howard Jr. officiating.

The bride is the daughter of John Westley Hambrick and Patsy Ann Hambrick, and the groom is the son of Guy Thomas Gattis and Carol Gattis.

Jerry Moon, cousin of the bride served as candlelighter.

Teresa Head of Sweetwater, sister of the bride, performed "I Choose You Again," and "Angel Eyes," accompanied by John Howard Jr.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of white lace. The gown featured six rolls of lace which together made up the skirt. The veil was made of white roses and small peach roses intertwined in the headpiece. She wore white shoes featuring a bow.

The bridal bouquet featured peach, pink and mauve roses with long strands of pearls. Peach, pink and white streamers accented the bouquet.

Milissa Holt of Borger served her best friend as maid of honor. Carol Johns of Borger and Kimmie Schreiber of Austin, cousins of the bride, served as bridesmaids. The attendants wore matching dresses of mauve and carried small bouquets fashioned like the bridal bouquet. Robbin Gattis of Dallas served her aunt as junior bride. She wore a white wedding dress.

David Click of California served the groom as best man. Groomsmen were Terry Rowland and Larry Rice, both of Morton. Michael Trae Gardener, the groom's only nephew, served as junior groom. Ushers were Randy and Robby Gattis, brothers of the groom. All male attendants as well as the groom were attired in white tuxedos.

The bride is a 1987 graduate of Sweetwater High School and the groom is a 1981 graduate of Morton High School. Following a honeymoon trip, the couple is at home in Snyder, where the groom is employed at Energy Electric.

EXTENSION SERVICE OFFERS FUTURES, OPTIONS TRAINING

Area farmers who wish to improve their skills in marketing their products can find help at two workshops being held in February by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service. The programs will focus on use of futures and options in developing a marketing plan.

An introductory futures and options workshop will be held Feb. 13-14 at the Texas A&M University Agricultural Research Extension Center, north of the Lubbock airport. An intermediate level workshop for more experienced users of futures and options will be held at the center Feb. 15. The training will be from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day.

While some aspects of marketing aren't in your control, others can be affected by your timely, informed action. Taking advantage of the things you can determine, such as when and how you price your product, will increase your feeling of control in your business and help you be a better manager.

Participants in the first workshop will learn how futures markets operate and how to use them. Other topics include use of commodity options as price insurance; how to figure your local price from futures prices, how to work with a broker, market prospects for cotton, and when to use different pricing strategies.

This workshop will cost $20. A notebook and materials will be furnished.

The second workshop, Feb. 15, will help participants be better able to evaluate alternative marketing strategies for use in their marketing plan. Registration will be $10.

Topics will include cotton market outlook, basis update, technical analysis, the 1990 farm bill, and basic price risk management strategies.

Dr. Carl Anderson, cotton marketing specialist for the extension service, will be the primary instructor for both sessions. He will be assisted by Dr. Jackie Smith, extension service agricultural economist and marketing specialist.

Pre-registration is not required for either workshop. Spouses are encouraged to attend at no extra cost. Lunches will not be provided.

More information is available from local county agents of the extension service. Dr. Smith may also be contacted at (806) 746-6101.

Buffalo Reef

By Bill McClellan

The subject of this column is the mail and food in general, and chocolate in particular. In other words, it's a throw-away.

Got a complaint about chocolate? It breaks you out? You love it but it doesn't agree with you? Well, you might be faulting the wrong sweet.

I don't want to fuel a debate on the subject but according to literature from the Mayo Clinic, having an allergy to chocolate is "more of a folktale than a recognized medical condition."

The clinic says that a small minority of people do show allergic symptoms to peanuts and seafood, but nope, not chocolate. And, there is no evidence to support the charge that chocolate can cause or worsen a migraine headache.

So there. It can cause a slight bulge in the midsection, though. I don't need the Mayo Clinic to tell me that.

The Mayo Clinic also says there is no established link between developing acne and eating chocolate, or any other foods, just in case you wanted their opinion. And no, I don't suspect the Mayo Clinic is subsidized by Hershey's.

Anyway, here are some chocolate facts: 1, the average person eats 11 pounds of chocolate a year; and 2, a typical 1.5-ounce bar of milk chocolate provides about 220 calories.

If you are calorie conscious on a yearly basis instead of a per candy bar basis, that's about 25,813 calories a year. Or 117.3 candy bars a year or one chocolate bar every three days, plus trips to the dentist.

So, if you're ready to give chocolate another try, and in a big way, you might want to order something called Attivo's Ultra Gourmet Garden of Eden Chocolate-Caramel Apples.

These "delights" — Granny Smith apples on a stick coated with caramel and "half-dipped" in bittersweet chocolate — are available at the low, low price of $27.50 for a box of three, plus $5 shipping. For only $32.50 — roughly $10.17 apiece — you can buy chocolate-caramel apples, especially gift-wrapped.

SDN Opinion Page

And it's okay because chocolate doesn't cause acne, migraines or allergies. At this price it causes heart attacks.

The "Ultra Gourmet" apples are listed in a magazine we routinely get entitled Uncle Dutchie's Gourmet Co-op (Your Unique Magazine for Unusual & Hard-to-find Products From All Over).

The Snyder Daily News gets a lot of mail on a daily basis from a lot of places. The Mayo Clinic newsletter and Uncle Dutchie's Gourmet Co-op are examples.

This week's offerings include an invitation to join the Mikhail Gorbachev Fan Club; a zillion political announcements from as many candidates; a form letter from Ed McMahon with Johnny Carson Tonight Show stationary plugging St. Jude's Ranch for Children in Nevada; 30 letters dealing with real estate; 15 letters from educational groups such as the Texas State Teachers Association; 25 letters from the state and national departments of agriculture; promotional literature from Sea World, Astro World, Kansas, New Mexico, Texas, San Antonio and the Texas Railroad Museum, to name a few; and a yearly report from PETA, the folks who hope to make us vegetarians in our lifetime and who support groups such as the one which trashed laboratories at Texas Tech University.

One last note comes from the Texas Department of Agriculture that you might find interesting. Unofficially, Texas serves up more catfish than any state in the country. Texans, according to the TDA, fry up a 118-million-pound batch every year — 40 percent of the country's 295-million-pound harvest.

The TDA does not recommend chocolate-dipped fish, as near as I can determine.

Last weekend, my daughter asked to see the old scrapbook that I'd kept through high school and college. The pages were so brittle that they broke off as we turned them, and everything that had not been pasted had to be re-taped as we went along. And there, mixed in amongst the ticket stubs and football spirit ribbons and boys' snapshots and old letters and play programs and party invitations, was an article from a 1966 "Reader's Digest" (carefully positioned next to concert tickets), entitled, "Everybody Has a Beatle."

The writer described, with wry humor, her daughter's contortions on the sofa as she watched in glazed-eyed adoration the Beatles' now famous appearance on the Ed Sullivan Show. She'd asked her daughter WHY she could get so excited over "those four jumping jacks named after bugs and had too much hair?" And her daughter had replied, "What did you hang YOUR dreams on, Mother?"

And her mother thought, "Clark Gable carrying Scarlett up those stairs...the eyes of Charles Boyer...slow, smoke-talking Humphrey Bogart..."

Over the next few months, she observed her daughter's growing sense of fun and excitement as she and her friends looked forward to seeing the Beatles in concert, how "Everybody had a Beatle" — the shy, moody George; the handsome, funny Paul; the lusty, extroverted Ringo; the bright, witty, John. She described the secret language she's hear among them, like, "Oh, cor, it was really gear!" She wrote, "Girls like Joanie and Melanie, who were not yet cheerleaders or class presidents or captains or prom queens, were living in The Crowd—the great swelling ocean of the world..."

After The Concert, as her daughter gave ecstatic details of the event, she declared to her mother that the excitement would surely never end.

And the mother, (Elinor Wikler), wrote, "Over? The Beatles? Soon, probably for Joanie. Over, and brought bubbling to the surface again someday in her own kitchen, with her own daughter."

"But if ever, in Joanie's big, swelling ocean of a world, I would find a long-haired Englishman named George, or Ringo, or Paul, or John, I'd thank him for giving her the warmth of a crowd, and for easing, with bouncing music, the pain, the awe, the loneliness, the delight, of growing up."

My daughter liked my scrapbook. As we were walking into the den where her daddy sat, she said loudly, "I didn't know you had so many boyfriends," before I could shush her.

And then, the next day, we watched a tape she'd begged to rent for the weekend. It was about the newest phenomenon to hit the world of rock and roll, a clean-cut group of young men known as "The New Kids on the Block."

Immediately, as we plugged it in, she rhapsodized, "That's Jordan. He's the lead singer, and he plays the keyboard. And there's George, and John..."

"George and John?" I teased, but she didn't hear me.

After a while, I complained, "There's nothing new about their music. They're doing the same thing the Jackson Five used to do, before Michael grew up and turned weird. The same complicated, well-choreographed dance routines, the same falsetto voices, the same..."

But she wasn't paying any attention.

I found their music to be somewhat monotonous, and after a while, went into the kitchen, but then I heard something that brought me back. One of the boys was being interviewed, and he said, "Sometimes kids think they have to one-up each other. Like, if you drink a beer, then maybe you should smoke a marijuana cigarette, and if you smoke pot, then maybe you should try cocaine. We try to give kids something positive to one-up themselves on...Our song, 'Hangin' Tough' is about how, if you keep on tryin', you can eventually do anything you set your mind to do."

As they broke into the song, I tiptoed into my daughters room, took out her cassette by the same name, and read the back. It said, "The New Kids on the Block say, 'No to drugs' and 'Peace'."

I wandered back into the hall and watched her for a while, her rapt, pleasure-filled face turned up to the TV screen, her body moving in time with the music, singing along under her breath to every word, which somehow, she'd been able to decipher. And so, as I watched my daughter wade out into that ocean and join The Crowd which has long since faded away for me...I knew the voyage would be warm and sweet, the memories sharp, and the experience, unforgettable.

I raised my hand and waved good-bye, but she didn't see. It didn't worry me though. I knew that someday she would.

Sweeteners may sour weight loss

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

If you think artificial sweeteners are the way to have your cake and eat it, too, here's some information you should know. According to Consumer Reports' medical experts, sugar substitutes are not likely to help you lose weight, and they may cause harm.

Many people believe they're doing themselves a favor by drinking a diet soda with a slice of pizza. But to lose weight effectively, you must burn more calories than you consume. That means eat less and exercise more. The calories you save with an artificial sweetener are probably too few to spare you pounds in the long run. Foods high in fat probably contribute more to obesity than do sweet foods.

Surprisingly few studies have examined whether artificial sweeteners help keep people from gaining weight, and those few have been inconclusive. One study of some 80,000 women recorded their weights and their use of sugar substitutes over the course of a year. It found that the women who used sugar substitutes tended to gain weight while those who didn't use them tended to stay the same weight. Of course, the study's result is colored by the probability that people who try to avoid sugar are often people who have a problem with weight control.

Only diabetics, who have to limit their intake of simple sugars, have good reason to use an artificial sweetener. It helps them eat "more normally" without elevating blood sugar.

Sugar in moderation won't harm most people, except in its role as a promoter of tooth decay. But proper brushing, flossing, fluoride and professional cleaning will minimize sugar's effect.

Even though safety concerns about sugar substitutes have existed for some time, the market is booming. Currently, three artificial sweeteners are available — saccharin, aspartame and the new acesulfame K.

Saccharin has long been suspected of increasing your risk of cancer. In 1977, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration first proposed banning the substance. At that time, saccharin was the only artificial sweetener on the market. Bowing to pressure from soft-drink manufacturers and consumers, Congress placed a moratorium on the ban and mandated a warning label instead. The moratorium has been extended every few years since.

A safer alternative to saccharin may be aspartame, also known by its brand-name Nutrasweet. Even though it's one of the most thoroughly tested additives ever approved by the FDA, its long-term effects are unknown. But it is known that aspartame can be dangerous for people who have phenylketonuria, or PKU, a relatively rare inherited disorder.

The newly approved acesulfame K is the only sugar substitute on the market without any warning label. Right now, it's only available for tabletop use but should be in soft drinks in the near future. Acesulfame K is used in the product Sweet One. Like all artificial sweeteners, the long-term safety of acesulfame K is unclear.

If sugar substitutes were effective aids in weight control, their risks might seem acceptable. But their lack of clear benefit justifies treating them warily. If you must use an artificial sweetener, Consumer Reports' medical experts suggest aspartame or acesulfame K rather than saccharin.

Female pilots dodged gunfire in Panama

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two female U.S. Army helicopter pilots say they were only doing their job when they came under heavy fire ferrying their male counterparts into combat during the early hours of the Panama invasion.

And, they say, they'd have no fear about doing it again.

"I don't think I deserve any more attention than any of the men who did the same job I did," Lt. Lisa Kutschera said in a telephone interview from Panama. "It's my job."

With their male counterparts, Kutschera and two other female aviators are being nominated by the Army for the coveted Air Medal in recognition of their achievements.

And along with 25-year-old Warrant Officer Debra Mann — whose helicopter had to be grounded after it was hit — Kutschera is being nominated for the Bronze "V" decoration, an award for particular courage. They would be the first women so honored, Army officials say.

Their stories provide new evidence of the exposure of Army women to combat situations during Operation Just Cause and are sure to feed the controversy over the Army's ban on women serving in combat roles.

"It was combat, especially flying during the day, when you couldn't tell where the fire was coming from unless it hit something on the aircraft," Kutschera said.

"At night, when you see the tracer bullets coming at you, you realize you could end up giving up your life for your country," added the Milwaukee native.

Kutschera and Mann, flying UH-60 "Blackhawk" helicopters, tried to evade enemy bullets as they ferried infantry troops to several landing zones after the invasion started on Dec. 20.

After Mann returned from one flight, it was discovered her helicopter had been hit by several rounds and damaged badly enough that it had to be grounded.

"We'd heard the shots but we didn't even know we had been hit," she said in the interview.

U.S. law bars the Navy and Air Force from placing women in combat roles. The Army attempts to follow the law with its policy of "combat exclusion" that prevents women from being assigned jobs directly related to combat. As the Army defines it, that is seeking out and engaging the enemy.

Psi Zeta chapter plans induction ceremonies this Sunday afternoon

Induction ceremonies for new members of the Psi Zeta chapter of Phi Theta Kappa will be held at 2 p.m. Sunday in the Western Texas College Fine Arts Theatre.

Dr. Jim Palmer, social science division chairman, will be the guest speaker for the program. He will take as his topic the honors topic for Phi Theta Kappa this year, "The Americas: Distant Neighbors Building Bridges."

About 30 students are to be inducted in the ceremonies, Dr. Mary Hood, faculty sponsor for the WTC chapter, said.

The executive board of the chapter will direct the program. Making up the executive board are Tammy Castillo, Shea Fenton and Gigi Tharpe of Snyder, David Beard from Granbury, Aaron Brown from Roscoe, Vicky Chavez from Haskell, Marla McCoy from Aspermont, Greg Parker from Albany, Lesa Sorrells from Maryneal and Lori Tate from Hermleigh.

The public is invited to attend the program.

Phi Theta Kappa is the only nationally recognized honor fraternity for students in American junior colleges. The WTC chapter was chartered after the college accepted its first students in 1971.
