Exit Merit Plan Insurance

That "safe driver insurance plan" with its penalty points for traffic law violations and accidents goes out the window August 1.

State Board of Insurance bowed to legislators' demands that it be greatly modified. But Board members felt it would be better to scrap the whole thing, and try to work out some plan for later adoption.

Most Texans will find that the abandonment of the merit rating plan will cost them money. This despite the fact that insured Texas car-owners taken as a whole will pay $10,000,000 less for car insurance in the coming year than they did this year.

However—two-thirds of the car owners—those who have been getting 20 per cent discounts because they have had no accidents or reported traffic convictions—will pay the full rates in the year ahead. The other one-third—those who have been paying as much as 100 per cent extra because of bad driving records—will save substantially. They will pay the same rates as everyone else.

One factor in the decision to drop the plan was concern by members of the Board—and the insurance industry—over the increasing number of car owners who just were doing without insurance. Board members felt that to increase the penalties, which would have been necessary to maintain the 20 per cent discount for the "safe drivers", would drive even more people into un-insurance. This would have made the safe driving plan even more out of balance statistically.

Because auto insurance rates are set by counties, and by types of cars and the age groups of drivers, it is not possible to say just what effect the rates will have. Local insurance agents soon will have the information.

Watch the Warrants

Some of the best advice ever given a university graduating class came from Dr. Wallace Sterling, president of Stanford, at this year's ceremony:

"Any invasion that government legally makes upon our purse, property or person, it does with the warrant we have given it.

"If you are indeed genuinely concerned with the enjoyment and expression of your individualism, I hope you will examine with care any warrant you may give to government. Once given, it is difficult to recover."

The whole history of our time is scarred and darkened by these warrants—which result, of course, in the steady erosion of liberties of every kind. We've been luckier if not wiser than most peoples, but that doesn't mean we'll necessarily continue to be. The price of liberty is still eternal vigilance.

People, Places & Things

By A. PATE

It is the policy of almost every newspaper to print the news without fear or favor, or in other words, "let the chips fall where they may."

In practice, however, there are hedges sometimes used to prevent embarrassment of big shots, leading advertisers, politicians, etc. The definition of "news" can sometimes be loosely interpreted to the point where an incident is mentioned without using the name of the principals involved.

We recall one West Texas newspaper publisher who published the news just as it happened, using the names of everyone involved regardless. This practice was vividly illustrated in one issue of his weekly newspaper.

The publisher, a good speaker and regular church-goer, had been asked to speak at the Sunday morning hour at his church, in the absence of the regular preacher. He accepted and filled the engagement.

That afternoon, he accepted another invitation. It was from a cronic and several pals who had organized a friendly game of poker. For some reason or other, the town's Constable raided the game and filed gaming charges.

In the next issue of the weekly paper, under court news, a story told of the gaming raid and listed R., S., among the five men fined.

In the church column of the same issue was a report that Layman R., S., spoke at the morning hour in the absence of the pastor of the Church.

The Negro urchin walked up to Abe Turner's window in the bank and asked for change for a $5 bill, some pennies included. Counting it carefully, the lad looked up admiringly, and Abe asked: "Is it all there?" Flashing a smile, the boy replied, "Sho is, Mistuh Abe, but it jus barely was!"

The phantom lion or panther which has been spotted at intervals around Haskell is believed to have struck in the Mattson community recently.

Henry W. Smith, Mattson farmer, believes the animal killed and devoured a day-old calf on his place one day last week. Although he did not get a glimpse of the lion or panther he thinks he missed doing so by a matter of minutes.

He tells the story as follows: When one of his cows failed to come up with the herd and had been missing a couple of days, he decided to walk through the brushy draw in his pasture and look for her, since the cow was due to drop a calf.

He and Mrs. Smith, accompanied by their large Collie dog, were in a brushy, grassy draw, the dog ranging ahead of the couple some 50 yards or so. When they approached a spot where the undergrowth was especially rank, the dog came charging back to Mr. and Mrs. Smith, frightened "almost to death" as Henry described it. "That dog has fought coyotes and bobcats, and never before had I seen her so badly scared," Henry said.

As Mr. and Mrs. Smith made their way carefully into the brush and tall grass, they came upon the remains of a day-old calf.

"The bones were cleanly picked, and the entire carcass had been devoured except part of the head and the lower parts of the legs. Condition of the carcass indicated the calf had not been dead over an hour," Smith declared. The dog apparently came upon the lion, or panther, as it was devouring the calf, Smith believes. He cannot account for the dog's fright in any other way.

Henry is sure that whatever it was, only one animal killed and ate the calf. Remains of the carcass were not scattered, as they would have been if more than one wild animal had been involved, he explained. And the killer had to be a large animal, Henry said, to devour a calf weighing possibly 70 or 80 pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith searched the surrounding area for signs left by the marauding animal, but could find nothing because of the dense grass which covered the ground. However, on the moist bank of a draw a short distance away, Henry found one footprint almost the size of his hand, which he thinks could have been left by the calf killer.

Some time back, a farmer living south of town had an 800-pound calf killed by some animal or animals. From all evidence, he believes the killer was a lion or panther but like Mr. Smith, he did not see the animal.

If it were not for the distance involved, we'd be tempted to link Haskell's phantom marauder with a similar animal reported seen near Merkel recently.

According to a story in the Abilene Reporter-News, Merkel residents spotted what they described as an "ape or bear" in that vicinity.

However, the animal roaming this vicinity has been definitely identified as a "big cat" or some kind by the scores of persons who have told of seeing it. Most of the sightings have been at night, but on one occasion two Highway Patrolmen spotted the animal in the daytime.

A collection of stories of buried treasure, legendary lost mines, along with typical Texas tales, including numerous original stories by the author, will be published soon by The Taylor Company of San Antonio.

Author is Mike Campbell of this city, retired Linotype and ex-railroad man. He assembled many of the stories during his career as a railroad and newspaperman, during which time he also picked up material for many original yarns.

For a period of several years starting around 1906, a booming industry in Haskell is the manufacture of concrete building blocks. Several small brick plants also were set up, and much of the building material used in erecting local buildings was manufactured right on the ground.

The South Ward school building, a sturdy two-story brick structure which still stands is an example of the durability of the home-manufactured material.

Brick used in the building were molded and pressed at the site, and were "cured" under long sheds nearby.

Most of the concrete building blocks were manufactured in a plant owned by Sherrill Bros. and located just back of their store, about where the Burton Building occupied by the Chevrolet agency now stands.

This plant turned out the concrete blocks used in putting up most of the buildings on the west side of the square, the original North Ward school, and numerous other business buildings.

A. T. Ballard was surprised the other day when a neighbor called on the telephone and read a newspaper clipping as follows: "Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Ballard and son Tommy will spend the weekend in Cisco visiting Mr. Ballard's father, who is in the produce business there. The Cisco man has the distinction of having shipped the first carload of dressed turkeys from Texas."

Then the caller inquired if that correct. Mr. Ballard, heating, he added a query to his answer, saying "Well, it might have been but what are you reading it from?"

The caller, Mrs. Frances End, then told him "From the 25 Years Ago column of the Hubbard City newspaper."

Ballard, who was in the produce business in Hubbard City before coming to Haskell in the early 40's, said he had no idea that anyone here received a newspaper from that city.

From A Pastor's Study

By DOUGLAS B. FINCH
Pastor, First Presbyterian Church
Haskell, Texas

Those persons who object to "creeds" in the church originally objected not so much to the idea of a "creed", but, specifically, to what the creed said. The objectionable element was the statement in the Apostles' Creed which laid claim to being part of the "Holy Catholic Church."

Many of us were raised in sections of the country where we were led to believe that the Roman Catholic Church was some sort of demon-possessed organization—the instrument of the devil. We have come to realize that they are in fact our Christian brothers. They profess the same Christ that we do, and most of our feeling against them has been based on hearsay and superstition implanted in our agile minds by our well-meaning forebears.

But in spite of our attitude toward the Roman Church, we find that the word "catholic" does not belong to them exclusively, and we simply cannot surrender the word to them. Any good dictionary will explain to the interested researcher that the word "catholic" means "the whole Christian body or church—universal in extent and involving all and having sympathies with all who believe in Christ as the Son of God." We could substitute the word "universal" for the word "catholic" and it would be the same.

While we do not surrender the word to the Roman Church, neither do we exclude them from it. This is not our right of our desire. If we profess Him, we cannot deny them! The fact is that the word

"catholic" belongs to all churches who profess Jesus Christ as their Lord and Savior. To object to the term and thus deny one's part in the Church universal is a brave step indeed—especially if one calls himself Christian. If the stand thus taken resolves in one little segment of Christianity claiming Christ's blessing upon it while denying that same blessing for others to the conclusion that they are somehow "The Church" of Christ, is a condition most to be pitied.

The Lutherans, the Baptists, the Presbyterians, the Methodists, the Assembly of God, the Four Squares, the Shakers, the Dunkers and the Holy Rollers are all part of the universal church. If they profess the name of Christ in sincerity and truth and claim to be His children and part of His covenant family. If they are not, the judgment rests with God.

We may hold tenaciously to our own, unique method of expression of faith, but we are the Church catholic, whether we like it or not. Most of us don't deserve to be so-called, but Christ makes it possible in spite of our unworthiness.

If we feel no sense of oneness with others who make a similar profession of Christ, then we are not following Christ's commandment to love God first and your neighbor as yourself. Chances are that we are the strange ones if we feel "exclusive," and the Biblical words might apply: "I tell you, I do not know where you come from; depart from me, all you workers of iniquity!" (Luke 13:27.)

MULCH AIDS PLANT GROWTH—Three years of research and testing have demonstrated petroleum mulch technique can, under responsible climatic conditions, vastly increase agricultural crop values. Above, a researcher examines at the right soybean plants grown with the mulch. The development is greater than that of the soybeans not treated with mulch. The petroleum mulch was developed by Esso Research Company, research affiliate of Humble Oil & Refining Company, and has been tested on a wide variety of crops in the United States and abroad. The mulch, which is harmless to the plants, is applied by tractor equipment over seed beds or growth areas to form a thin, dark, protective layer. This promotes quick seed germination and healthy crops by reducing moisture evaporation, and protecting against erosion and chemical or mineral fertilizers. The product, into which pesticides can be incorporated, upon completion of government approval.

Chas. B. Goodwin Completes Basic Jet Training

Pensacola, Fla. (FHTNC)—Naval Aviation Cadet Charles B. Goodwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph B. Goodwin of 109 South Ave. L, Haskell, completed basic jet training June 20, with Training Squadron Four at the Forrest Sherman Field Naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla.

To qualify he completed 25 hours of jet flight time while perfecting air-to-air gunnery and he also successfully completed six arrested carrier landings and six catapult take-offs from the deck of the training carrier USS Antietam in the Gulf of Mexico.

He has been transferred to the Advanced Training Command, Corpus Christi, Texas, for the final phase of his flight training.

Cadet Goodwin entered the service in December 1957 and is a graduate of Haskell High School.

Haskell ROTC Cadet Training At Fort Sill

Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) Cadet Lewis Jones of West Texas State College, son of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow W. Jones, 1014 N. 6th St., Haskell, is at Fort Sill, Okla., attending six weeks of intensive infantry training.

During the six weeks training Cadet Jones with nearly 1500 buddies from the great southwest will learn the way he, as a future second lieutenant, must lead, train, and teach his subordinates.

Cadet Jones is scheduled to complete his summer camp duties on or about August 3rd, at which time he will join his parents in Haskell.

PIONEER TEXANS AND FRENCHMEN

In Castroville, 25 miles west of San Antonio, the spire of Saint Louis Church is a symbol of Frenchmen in Texas during the pioneer days of the Texas Republic. Appropriately located, the French colonial edifice stands at Paris and Angelo streets.

Saint Louis Church was begun in 1847 by Abbe Domenach, and completed in 1850. Mesquite and local oak timber were used to frame stained glass windows brought from Galveston.

In early Spring, links between Texas and France will be renewed once more in a very special way when Air France 707 jetliners open direct service between Houston and Paris. On board "The Parisian" service, travelers will be whisked over the 5,037-mile route in 9 hours and 20 minutes. Today, as before, the ties between Texas and France are founded on hospitality, mutual interests, and friendship.

In many places, Frenchmen marked their role in the Texas Republic's history. General Sam Houston was received in Austin at the French Embassy, then presided over by Count Dubois de Saligny. In the 1850's, 2,134 French pioneers established farms on the Rio Grande River and founded such towns as D'Hanis, and Quilhi which still dot the map of Texas. French settlers also founded in 1859 the colony of "La Reunion" on the Trinity River across from what is today the City of Dallas.

Now, Air France jets will bridge the distance between Texas and France three times weekly, a further impetus to traditional understanding through travel of Europeans and Americans.

OUTDOORS IN TEXAS

It's the hook that snags the fish, but that chunk of lead—your sinker—plays a far more important role in fishing than most anglers realize.

Certain kinds of fishing call for particular types of sinkers. Some of the more popular sinkers include the square pyramid, triangular bank, bank, dipsey, ball pointed triangular pyramid, diamond, egg, tournament casting, multiple triangular, coil, multiple-eyed cone, torpedo, drail, keel, coin, chain and rangeley.

Sinkers fall into three general groups: bottom fishing, casting and trolling.

Let's take a look at the groups:

Bottom Fishing. Here the principal factor is enough weight to reach the bottom. In shallow water with no current, a quarter-ounce sinker might do the job. But 75 miles offshore at one of the snapper banks where the water may be 90 feet deep with a strong current running, you might need eight ounces to a pound of lead to carry the bait to the bottom.

Casting. In casting, where distance is required, the sinker should be streamlined.

Trolling. Special sinkers are needed for trolling. They must be free of holes, depressions or bumps that could cause bubbles when pulled through the water, since the bubbles serve only to distract the attention of the fish from the bait. Trolling sinkers generally are cigar shaped and designed so they will not spin. When a sinker spins, it will cause one of two things—the line to twist or the line to unravel. Either way it will ruin your line.

The best bait in the world is not worth a hoot if the sinker fails to keep it in place. In an angular rolling surf or undertow the shifting sand coupled with the force of the surf or current often will roll the bait and sinker parallel to the shore at a fast clip. Sometimes it will actually wash the terminal tackle right up onto the shore. Thus for a sinker of fishing you need a sinker with large flat surfaces—sinkers that won't roll but tend to bury in the shifting sand. You can get by with round sinkers but only if several are used.

Generally speaking the best sinkers for surf fishing are the square pyramid, diamond and bank types.

There are a few species of fish that have to be hooked the instant they hit the bait. There are also several species that must be allowed to take the bait a few seconds before striking. In either case, special sinkers or rigs are needed if you expect to score on fish.

Let's look at surf fishing as an example. If a heavy surf is running and heavy sinkers are used, the fisherman often will be unable to feel the fish touching the bait because of the weight of the sinker. By the same token there are some fish that will promptly spit out the bait if they feel the pull of the sinker on the line.

You can get around this problem with what is known as a fish-finder rig. Just slip your line or leader through the sinker eye. The line or leader, be-

Screwworm Control

Dr. P. W. Martin, County Agent

Are they really screwworms? The only sure way to identify a screwworm is to collect maggots for microscopic examination by a specialist. This is why livestock producers are asked to collect worms from every infested livestock wound. Success of the eradication program will depend in part on positive identification of as many cases as possible. The by-day execution of the program. Cooperation to date has been excellent, but we need continued cooperation.

Although the largest number of wounds infested with maggots are infested by those of the true screwworm, other kinds of maggots may be involved. This has been confusing to some producers.

The true screwworm is only one of a large group of flies, most of which are referred to as common blow flies. However, screwworm maggots infest only the wounds of living warm-blooded animals. Some of the maggots infesting wounds may be maggots which breed primarily in carcasses. When they are found in living animals, carcass-breeding maggots are usually found feeding on soiled wool or in wounds containing decaying blood and tissue.

The true screwworm is distinguished from common blow fly maggots by two dark parallel air tubes. These tubes are readily visible in full-grown maggots of the screwworm but are scarcely visible in the maggots of other blow flies. Screwworms have a pinkish tinge when they have completed feeding and are about ready to leave the wound. Most common blow fly maggots have white, yellow, or gray colors. However, microscopic examination by a specialist is the only sure means of identification. Producers should continue to collect 10 or more worms from deep in each wound and take them to their county agent, vocational agricultural teacher or local livestock inspector.

PAINT CREEK... COMMUNITY NEWS BY MRS. GENE OVERTON

The Scouts came home from Camp Tonkawa tired, happy, proud of themselves and dirty. Gene said they were a real good bunch of boys, and he was so proud of them for working so hard on advancement at camp. Every boy earned at least two merit badges, and some earned four, which is quite an accomplishment. I left out the name of one little Scout last week, James Redding with the Eagle patrol, and he really made his Scoutmaster proud. He was a non-swimmer and Tenderfoot at the beginning of camp, and he learned to swim and made second class this week. He sunburned his face, and he was a pretty tired boy, but he made it. Bob Earles and Ricky Perry became Life Scouts. Steve Smethie and James Wall became Star Scouts. Mike Wright and Thurman Howeth, First Class, and James Redding, Second Class. Jeff Cadenhead earned the woodcarving merit badge. Wayne Cadenhead earned Woodcarving, Life-saving and Nature; Phil Coleman earned Life-saving and First Aid; Riley Couch earned Soil and Water Conservation, Nature and First Aid; Derral Davis earned Soil and Water Conservation, Nature and First Aid; Bob Earles earned Life-saving, First Aid, Canoeing and Nature; Walter Felker earned Soil and Water Conservation, Nature and First Aid; Thornton Gilmore earned Nature, Soil and Water Conservation, Life-saving and First Aid; Joe Greer earned Canoeing; Paul Heibert earned Soil and Water Conservation and First Aid; Johnny Joeslet earned canoeing and swimming. Steve Livengood earned wood carving; Dean Maltzberger, canoeing and swimming; Ricky Perry, Soil and Water Conservation, Life-saving, canoeing, Nature and First Aid; James Wedding earned woodcarving; Allen Smethie earned Rowing and Nature; Steve Smethie earned Nature, canoeing, First Aid and swimming; Joe David Thompson earned swimming and canoeing; James Wall earned Nature and First Aid; Randy Wiseman earned Soil and Water Conservation and wood carving, and Mike Wright earned swimming, First Aid and Nature. A new Tenderfoot scout in the troop is Sam Stone. Almost all the boys advanced in their rifle and archery and scoutcraft. The troop enjoyed having as guests at camp, Bill Jones from Rule, Paul Heibert of Troop 36, Dwight Overton and Dave Smethie. Bill earned the Pro-marksman and Marksman rifle medal. Dwight learned to swim. The Patrol Leaders managed their patrols well. Johnny Joeslet, Steve Livengood, Allen Smethie and Riley Couch are patrol leaders. Wayne Cadenhead is troop senior patrol leader. The week at Camp Tonkawa is sort of the climax of the year's activities in Scouting and the community is proud of our scout troop. Scoutmasters Roy Wiseman and Gene Overton spent the week at camp. Doc Jones helped take the gear down and went Saturday to help bring it back. Ira Coleman stayed after the parents visit Thursday night and drove the bus in Saturday. The mothers and daddies and little sisters and brothers went down on Thursday night to see the camp and have supper with the boys. This year we spread our supper on the tables at the campsite and we had such a nice supper. Afterward we all attended the Order of the Arrow tapping out ceremony and scouts Phil Coleman, Steve Smethie, Ricky Perry, Wayne Cadenhead and Danny Isbell were tapped out as honor campers. That's enough about the boys in the community. We have some girls who left for camp Monday. Sheryl Moore, Janay and Vicki Morrison, Sandy and Patsy Tate, Billie Cockrell, Rita Wood and Barbara Cunningham are attending Intermediate G. A. Camp at Lueders this week. Mrs. Morris Haynes, G.A. Director and Joann Griffith are spending the week with the girls. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bahnsen of Denton spent the weekend with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Walton. Larry and Terry, Mrs. Bahnsen is attending North Texas State University this summer working on her Master's degree. Little Leslea Erwin, baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Erwin of Wichita Falls is spending this week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Earles and her uncle, Bob. You never saw the like of new cars in the community. Mr. and Mrs. Glen Walton have a new golden tan Chevrolet. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Buerger have a new bronze Oldsmobile, and Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Earles have a new red and white Ford pickup. Mr. and Mrs. Walter McDaniel of Corsicana spent the weekend with her brothers, Pat and Van Morrison. Mr. and Mrs. McDaniel are on their way to Colorado for their vacation. Pat Morrison, superintendent of the Paint Creek school and lay leader of the Methodist Church, was the speaker at the Methodist Church Sunday evening. It was Layman's Day. Phil Coleman and Allan Smethie are spending the fifth week of scout camp at Camp Tonkawa. They are camping with the troop from Rotan. The school house has a new

Ballot Order Of Amendments Is Determined

Secretary of State Frank Lane of Austin has announced the order in which the proposed constitutional amendments will appear on the ballot in the November general election.

Others, in the order they will appear, would: Raise the limit on use of state funds to assist aged, blind and children to $52 million.

Permit creation of hospital districts in Ochiltree, Castro, Hansford and Hopkins counties.

Provide for a state conservation storage facilities in reservoirs.

Authorize retirement, disability and death benefits for elected and appointive officers who have served for 12 years or more.

Insure continuity of state and local governmental operations in emergencies resulting from disasters.

Establish a ceiling of $2.5 million per year on the amount that may be paid out of state funds for aid to the totally and permanently disabled.

Authorize the construction, equipping, maintenance and financing of a home for the aged in Titus County and permit the legislature to authorize the creation of two hospital districts in Brazoria County.

Permit state employees to serve as a consultant or on an advisory committee.

Authorize the resale of lands of the veterans land fund.

Delegate limited zoning powers to any county bordering on the Gulf.

Provide that taxes or bonds previously voted in any school district, the major portion of which is in Dallas County, shall not be abrogated, cancelled or invalidated by any change in boundaries.

Provide for trials on all appeals from administrative or executive agencies of government.

Haskell Teacher Will Attend A&I Summer Institute

Gerald McCoy, science teacher at Haskell High School, has been awarded a National Science Foundation stipend for study at a summer institute in physics to be conducted at Texas A&I College, Kingsville.

The institute, scheduled for July 15-August 24, was made possible by a grant of $29,100 to Texas A&I by the National Science Foundation.

Thirty teachers have received appointments to the institute. Their stipends are accompanied by dependency and travel allowances.

Hamlin Increases Water and Sewer Charges

The Hamlin City Council has announced an increase in municipal water and sewer rates, to become effective on August 1.

New sewer charge will be $2.50 per month, sanitary charge $2.00, and the trash pick-up fee will be $1.00. New water rates will be $2.50 minimum (no change) for the first 2,000 gallons.

Hamlin is supplied from Lake Stamford and has a pipeline to Stamford where it ties in with that city's supply line from the lake.

"SMALL BUSINESS" By C. WILSON HARDER

Congressman Tom Johnson of Maryland is just one of the many members of Congress who look askance at proposal for Federal government to control farm production.

Obviously, for years the various farm programs have been failures. In the 27 years between 1933 and the end of fiscal 1960 the price support programs had cost the taxpayers $10 billion.

In addition, payments under conservation, other programs, run about two-thirds of a billion per year. Storage costs on surplus farm products are said to currently run about $1 1/2 million per day.

So, averaging everything out, it appears that farm programs are costing slightly under $1 1/2 billion per year. This is a great burden on the taxpayers.

On the other hand, since end of World War II, U.S. taxpayers have put up an average of almost $6 1/2 billion per year for foreign give away.

Now the plan is to keep on with foreign give aways, including billions for communist Tito, but to eliminate farm payments at least in part, U.S. farmer is to be regimented.

Congressman Johnson explains that the program would place severe restrictions on the production of corn, oats, barley, grain sorghums, and farmers would need government permission to grow these crops.

Restrictions would be placed on wheat planting, and milk cows would be ordered to slow down.

In the meantime half the world goes hungry. And a great part of these people in hunger are the very people it is being sought to influence away from communism.

It would seem that if the million and a half dollars per day being used to store surplus food, were used to give away surplus food to the desperate people, the cause of peace would be much better served than serving away an average of more than $18 million per day in form of foreign give aways to foreign politicians, cartels, and other big interests.

In addition, cutting off imports of food would also aid the American farmer as the U.S. imports more food than it exports. After deducting coffee which is not grown in the U.S. the value of U.S. food imports is $2 1/2 billion. The value of U.S. food exports is $2 1/2 billion. But as much as $2 1/2 billion values are based on U.S. prices, and the import values of foreign prices, the tonnage of food imported is greater than that exported.

It is doubtful the farmer wants to surrender his freedom. But the American farmer is learning that a little bureaucracy is a dangerous thing and that history teaches once bureaucrats establish even a small beachhead it almost takes blood at the barricades to push them out again.

For since the Caesars, bureaucrats have always sought to cover up their own ineptness and errors by getting issued the edicts which regiment. This is the position the farmer now finds himself in.

Cattle Grub Control On Beef Animals

Ruelene both as a spray and a pour-on, and Co-Ral, as a pour-on, are being added to our cattle grub recommendations on beef cattle.

All of these materials should be used between the time hee fly activity ceases in the spring and before grubs appear in the backs of animals. In most areas of Texas the systemic insecticides can effectively be used between May 1 and August 1.

Co-Ral may be applied effectively as a high pressure, 0.5 percent spray mixed at a rate of 16 pounds of 25 percent wettable powder in each 100 gallons of water. Spray each animal completely; thoroughly wet the entire animal to the skin so the chemical will be adequately absorbed.

Power sprayers developing 250 pounds or more of nozzle pressure per square inch are preferred.

Large animals require approximately 1 gallon of spray; smaller animals require 1 to 3 quarts, depending on size. Do not apply Co-Ral 0.5% spray within 7 days of slaughter.

Sprays of Co-Ral also control horn flies, lice, ticks, and screwworms.

Co-Ral by Pour-on To apply as a back-line treatment, mix 4 pounds Co-Ral 25W (25 percent wettable powder) in 3 gallons water or light mineral oil. N. F. Pour uniformly down the back-line of the animal at the rate of 1/2 pint per animal.

Ruelene is easily applied by a pour-on method. The mixture for this treatment consists of 1/2 gallon of Ruelene 25E (25 percent emulsifiable) to each 1 gallon of water. Pour this mixture along the back of each animal at the rate of 1 ounce for each 100 pounds of animal weight. However, 1 cup (8 fl. oz.) is sufficient to treat an animal weighing 800 pounds or more.

In other words, it is never necessary to use over 1 cup to treat an animal. Pour the material as evenly as possible along the backbone from the shoulders to the tail, using a long-handled dipper. Do not apply within 28 days of slaughter.

Ruelene Spray Ruelene 25E may be used as a spray at 0.5 percent strength. Mix 2 gallons of Ruelene 25E concentrate with each 98 gallons of water to make 100 gallons of mixed spray solution. Spray the animals as outlined for Co-Ral spray. However, Ruelene cannot be applied within 28 days of slaughter.

Trolene is a systemic grubicide that can be effectively administered to cattle through the normal feeding operation. Trolene can be fed as a feed mixture or as a mineral mixture. In order to obtain effective grub control it is essential that the animals eat enough feed or mineral to receive adequate Trolene to kill the grubs.

If the mineral mixture is used, the animals should receive 0.3 pounds of the 0.275 percent mixture per 100 pounds of body weight daily for 14 consecutive days.

If the Trolene FM (feed mixture) is used the animals should receive 0.33 pounds of the 0.6 percent feed mixture per 100 pounds of body weight daily for 7 consecutive days.

Additional information given on the label will assist you in determining how much of the feed or mineral mixtures should be fed. Do not feed either mixture within 60 days of slaughter.

Cautions Certain precautions should be taken with all insecticides. Be sure to follow all precautions printed on the container label including restrictions on treating young, stressed or sick animals and number of days required between treatment and slaughter.

Damage Caused by Grubs Cattle grubs cost livestock producers in the United States from 100-200 million dollars each year. Losses to the packer result from the necessary carcass trimming and devaluation and hide damage. On the farm and ranch losses result from skin irritation, nervousness of the animals, below normal weight gains, lowered milk production and excessive running and frequent accidents to cattle feeding in infested pastures during the spring.

Simple Rules to Provide Safety From Tornado

To know what to do when a tornado is approaching may mean the difference between life and death. Below are a few simple rules that will provide a wide measure of safety when a tornado threatens.

When time permits, go to a tornado cellar, cave or underground excavation which should have an air outlet to help equalize the air pressure. It should be kept fit for use, free from water, gas or debris, and preferably equipped with pick and shovel. There is no universal protection against tornadoes except underground excavations.

If you are in open country: 1. Move at right angles to the tornado's path. Tornadoes usually move ahead at about 25 to 40 miles per hour. 2. If there is no time to escape, lie flat in the nearest depression such as a ditch or ravine.

If in a city or town: 1. Seek inside shelter, preferably in a strongly reinforced building. STAY AWAY FROM WINDOWS! 2. In homes: The corner of the basement toward the tornado usually offers greatest safety, particularly in frame houses. People in houses without basements can sometimes be protected by taking cover against heavy furniture against inside walls. Doors and windows on the sides of the house away from the tornado may be opened to help reduce damage to the building.

3. Standing against the inside wall on a lower floor of an office building offers some protection. 4. In schools: 1. In city areas: If school building is of strongly reinforced construction, stay inside away from windows, remain near an inside wall on the lower floors when possible. AVOID AUDITORIUMS AND GYMNASIUMS with large, poorly-supported roofs! 2. In rural schools that do not have strongly reinforced construction, remove children and teachers to a ravine or ditch if storm shelter is not available.

If in factories and industrial plants: On receiving a tornado warning, a lookout should be posted to keep safety officials advised of the tornado's approach. Advance preparation should be made for moving workers to sections of the plant offering the greatest protection.

Keep calm. It will not help to get excited. People have been killed by running into streets and by turning back into the path of a tornado. Even though a warning is issued, chances of a tornado striking one's home or location are very slight. Tornadoes cover such a small zone, as a rule, that relatively only a few places in a warned area are directly affected. You should know about tornadoes though, "just in case."

File Claims Now For Refund On Gasoline Taxes

Farm operators can now submit Form 2240 Claim for Refund of Federal Tax on gasoline used on the farm.

Rate of the Federal tax refund is 4 cents per gallon and includes gasoline purchased before July 1, 1962, which was used on a farm after June 30, 1961 and before July 1, 1962 for farming purposes. You may also include gasoline used by other persons on your farm in cultivating the soil or raising or harvesting any agricultural or horticultural commodity. You are entitled to include this gasoline even though it was purchased by a custom operator, a neighbor, or an employee who then used this gasoline on your farm for farming purposes.

The period covered by this claim is from July 1, 1961 through June 30, 1962, and should be filed on or before Oct. 1, 1962. Only one claim per year may be filed. If you have filed the previous year, you will be sent the Form 2240 card in the mail. These should be returned to the District Director of Internal Revenue, Dallas, Texas.

If you have not received a card, or are filing for the first time, these cards are available at the County Agent's office.
