The editorial follows:

Rep. Carl Vinson of Georgia has said the United States can "eliminate any nation in the world, regardless of its size, if that is the final and ultimate decision.

"If that day ever comes," he said, "we will be hit and will be damaged, but we will survive as a nation and we will continue as a democracy."

Vinson's appraisal bears significance because the veteran Georgia lawmaker is chairman of the House Armed Services committee. He made his remarks in an address before the Reserve Officers Association the same night President Kennedy announced the U. S. plans to resume nuclear testing.

He supported the President's decision on this, saying we must continue to maintain and devolop nuclear weapons su-periority and "renew an all-out testing program of every type of nuclear weapon in our arsenal."

Kennedy's decision has had bi-partisan support in and > Along this line, in the past two weeks, several Haskeil people have received letters and post cards in which they are bemeaned, criticized, and some instances threatened for the stands taken on local isaues.

Writers of these anonymous messages probably gave no thought to the fact that they might be violating postal reg-

We have news for them or this score. Uncle Sam's postal sleuths have a batting average of around 999.9 per cent when it comes to tracing down writers of defamatory and threat-ening letters when they are requested to do so.

We recall an instance several years ago when a Haskell party, in a spirit of fun, wrote a letter to a "Lonely Hearts Club" and signed the name of a well known local resident.

married and head of a family. The joke back-fired, after the man complained to the post office department about use of his name.

Not many days later, one of the department's inspectors walked into a local office and asked a young woman em-ployee if she was not the party writing the letter. Her admis-sion that it was intended as a prank drew a stern warning from the inspector, who explained that severe penalties could be imposed for such vio-

Although not a charter mem-ber, Hill Oates, Haskell drug-gist, joined the local Boy Scout troop just as soon as he became of age, in 1915, and he still recalls the hike and campout which comprised his "initiation" into Scouting.

As any oldtime Scout knows. that. A camp out on any of the numerous small streams meant that the Scouts made the trip to and from the camp site on footwhether to Mule Creek, four miles south, or Turkey Bend on Big Paint Creek some 15 miles distant.

Hill's initiation into Scouting was on a hike and 8-day campon California Creek near the old rock quarry crossing some 12 miles southeast of

Some of the Scouts he re-calls making the hike were Bernie and Billie Neathery. Monroe McConnell, Ben Mc-Fatter, Peck Williams, Arthur Fox, Ted Alexander, and at least half a dozen others whose names he doesn't recall.

The eight days allotted the camp passed all too quickly, Hill recalls, and the entire group of Scouts would have stayed another week if their Scoutmaster could have been talked into it, he declared.

How those early-day Scouts escaped being bitten by copperheads, water moccasins, or rattlesnakes has always been a mystery-but we cannot recall a local Scout ever being bitten by a poisonous snake. Might be that the snakes feared for their own safety and took to the hills when they heard the Scouts approaching.

All of which brings to mind the remark credited to a Rochester man back in 1937 when bootlegging was rampant and the principal entertain-ment in small towns and communities was a dance on Sat-munities was a dance on Saturday night.

Joe Louis had won the world heavyweight title, and was defeating every contender who got in the ring with him.

Someone in a group, when the talk turned to prizefighting queried: "Wonder if anyone will ever whip Louis?"

To which the Rochester man answered: "If Joe Louis ever goes to one of those Saturday night dances at Jud, I'll guar-

On the subject of rattlesnakes, we recall a classic re-mark made by the late "Uncle Steve" Neathery one night while on a fishing trip to Paint Creek a number of years ago.

We were in the party with "Uncle Steve," Giles Kemp, George Cramer, and possibly one or two others. That night, after trot lines had been bajted and the last game of "pitch" played, every-one unrolled his bedding and prepared a pallet on the ground, cots being considered "sissy."

Someone picked up a large dead limb and pitched it on the campfire, sending up a shower of sparks which fell in the surrounding grass. Immediately the dreaded "buzz-z-z" of a rattler was heard, and it sounded like a big one! That electrified everybody and bedrolls were hastily snatched from the ground. Some were placed on top of the two hardtop sedans, where the fishermen felt they could sleep in safety, while others planned to sleep in the cars.

All except "Uncle Steve," who calmly went ahead smoothing out his bedroll on the ground, despite the suggestion that he sleep in one of the cars. Then, as he stuck a flashlight under his pillow and prepared to retire, he remarked: "No blankety - blank rattler will come crawling around my pailet if it knows what is good for it!" Whether foolhardy or not, "Uncle Steve" was the only fisherman in the bunch who had a sound night's sleep. Neither was another rattler seen or heard during the remainder of the fishing trip.

One of the greatest hazards fishermen had to contend with back in the days of the Model T were the frequent rain and hailstorms in early spring.
It always seemed that hailstones which fell in the vicinity of Paint or California Creek were always about twice the size of those falling elsewhere! If you had the misfortune of being caught on the creek in a hailstorm, the safest place for survival was to crawl under the car. Those Model T fabric tops would be cut to ribbons by hail, while the car body would be as dented as if it had been worked on with hammers!

Sometimes a hard rainstorm or "head rise" on the creek would maroon the car of a party of fishermen. That meant "drawing straws" of otherwise determiting who was to make a long, disagreeable walk in rain and or farm to telephone for help. Since most of the fishing trips were made without the formality of asking permission from the ranch boss, a strand-ed fisherman seeking help would sometimes walk severa miles to a farmhouse rather than admit to the rancher that he had "slipped in" on his property.

We recall one instance, however, when the opposite was true and the finding of a fisherman's camp was a welcome sight to members of the ranch owner's family who were city dwellers.

It happened back around 1930, on the Reynolds X Ranch. Giles Kemp and the late Theodore Pace had gone to one of their favorite fishing places on Big Paint. About two miles away was a spot on the stream where the ranch owners, who lived in Fort Worth, entertained a large number of friends each year with a fishing and hunting outing of several days.

Giles and Ted had arrived at their fishing spot in time to do their fishing spot in time to do a little fishing, then made camp for the night, unaware that the ranch owners outing was underway a few miles down the creek. Two latecomers to the Reyn-olds outing, driving from Fort Worth, arrived at the Round Mountain headquarters after dark. The couple, a man and his wife, had attended the previous year's outing and were confident they could find their way to the camp five miles from the ranchhouse.

A short time later at a crossing on Paint Creek, their car motor drowned out in high water. Still confident of findingthe camp of their ranch hosts, the couple started out afoot, without even a flashlight,

Back at the camp of the two fishermen, Giles and Ted thought they heard calls for help around 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning, but dismissed the thought. Awakening again around 4:30 as day began breaking the fishermen heard calls again, and answered This breaking the fishermen heard calls again, and answered. This was repeated at intervals as Giles and Ted prepared breakfast. Then, some 30 minutes later, the lost couple straggled in, weary, scared, hungry and half starved for water and food, their last meal having been at noon the day before.

After hearing the couple's story, Giles and Ted assured the couple they could take them right to the Reynolds camp, but insisted they rest a few minutes and eat breakfast an invitation that was quickly

MRS. ED F. FOUTS

Mrs. Ed F. Fouts of Haskell selected as "Mother of the Year" in Mesquite District, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs at the district convention in Sweetwater, is richly deserving of the title, scores of friends pointed out when the announcement of her selection was made.

Nomination of Mrs. Fouts for the TFWC honor was made by the Progressive Study Club of Haskell, of which Mrs. Virgil Cobb is president.

The many and varied activi-ties of Mrs. Fouts in church, civic, and community welfare work was the basis of her nomination by the club.

She was born Bessie Mae Glenn in Bell County, near Heidenheimer, Texas, Sept. 3, 1896. She attended school in Hill County until she was 12 years old. With her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Glenn, she came to Haskell in January, 1908. She attended school in Ballew community until 1914, then came to Haskell to school.

On Oct. 18, 1916, she married Ed F. Fouts and they have lived in Haskell since that time. They have three daughliam A. Lee of Wichita Falls

> In addition to her immediate family, she has cared for her mother, Mrs. Rosa Glenn, in her home for 26 years. She reared a nephew from the age of 14 to young manhood and sent him to Hardin-Simmons University. She helped another nephew to become a Baptist minister. She says the greatest sacrifice of her life was to have helped this naphew when he was an infant only a few days old. She left her own one-yearold baby and family to spend five weeks in a Wichita Falls hospital so this child would not be totally blind the remainder of his life. His mother was ill and could not go, and Mrs. Fouts felt that it was her place to take this baby to see if any-thing could be done. # The Truth About What NCTMWA Will Cost Haskell Taxpayers

Because of the misleading statements concerning cost and financing the North Central Texas Municipal Water Authority being made in an effort to "kill" the project, many interested citizens have asked for the true facts concerning the program. These facts are set out in the brief review which follows.

The NCTMWA is a governmental agency created by an Act of the 1957 Legislature, ratified and confirmed by a majority vote of qualified voters in the four member towns of Haskell, Rule, Munday and Goree.

Purpose of the NCTMWA is to develop a dependable source of municipal water for the four towns, the cost to be financed with a bond issue of $3,800,000 voted in 1958. They mature in 40 years and are payable partly from taxes and partly from water revenue.

By virtue of population, Haskell constitutes approximately one-half of the NCTMWA, consequently is responsible for one-half of the Authority's indebtedness.

The engineering report on the project, compiled in May, 1961, by Freese, Nichols and Endress, consulting engineers, estimates total cost of the project at $3,500,000, which means that $300,000 of the original bond issue will not be required unless some unforeseen contingency arises.

A copy of this engineering report was filed at City Hall, where it may be checked for verification of any figures quoted here.

Haskell's Share

Based on the $3,500,00 cost estimate, Haskell's share of the bonded indebtedness would be one-half this amount or $1,750,000.

Bond retirement schedule in the above report calls for annual interest and principal payment of $182,100 in 1964, with $120,891 of this amount to be paid from taxes, the remainder from water revenue. (The year 1964 is used on the assumption that the project could not be completed before that time.)

Keeping in mind that Haskell constitutes one-half the Water Authority, property-owners in this city will be assessed $60,445.50 NCTMWA taxes in 1964. A progressive decline each following year is shown in the schedule.

The total 1964 taxes to be assessed by the Water Authority in Haskell represent about $4,- 900 more than the total city taxes assessed last

Most if not all of this increase is on business and corporate property assessments. For the average homeowner, the NCTMWA tax will be as low or lower than the City tax. This can easily be verified by a check of the tax rolls, which are open to the public.

In 1961 (one of the wettest years in the history of West Texas) Haskell water users paid $59,911.05 for approximately 122,400,000 million gallons of water. This was at the cost of 49c per 1,000 gallons. Under the City's contract with NCTMWA, water users will pay $63,000 annually for 219,000,000 million gallons of filtered, treated water, delivered in the city's elevated reservoir.

In addition, NCTMWA will construct a 500,-000 gallon storage reservoir at the north edge of the city, and lay larger water mains from the north city limits to the elevated tower downtown.

When all these facts are considered, charges and claims that Haskell cannot afford an adequate supply of good water, appear ridiculous on their very face.

For the average homeowner, his NCTMWA tax bill will amount to not more than the price of a cup of coffee daily, or about the same as the State sales tax we are now paying.

Continued litigation and attempts to "kill" the project is not only costing Haskell taxpayers thousands of dollars, it is compelling taxpayers in other member towns-our neighbors-to pay part of the bill on BOTH SIDES of a controversy they did not instigate and for which they are not responsible. Taxes will have to be paid whether the lake is built or not.

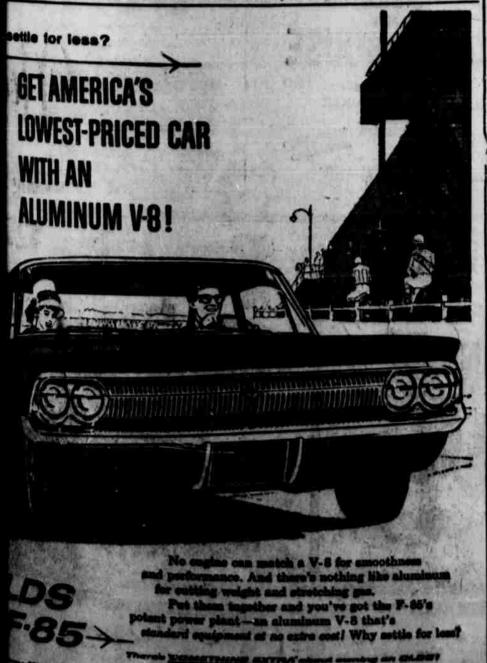

Is that good for Haskell, which has for its slogan "The Friendly, Progressive City"?

In its entire history, Haskell has never defaulted on any obligation nor repudiated any pledge with a neighboring town.

Can we afford now to jeopardize the future credit of our city, when some day we may need to finance bonds for streets, sewers, school improvements, hospital expansion, or other civic projects?

Keep in mind that all figures mentioned in this message can be verified from reports and data on file at the City Hall.

8, at the Philadelphian Club House.

Ray Fulenwider, as head

Club House. The Rules for the show have been published in the Rule Review.

Engagement Announced
Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Balley are announcing the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Pamela Sue, to Glen Dale Schonerstedt.

Fulenwider, as head waiter, showed guests to their seats. Tables were enclosed in the garden and encircled the wishing well. Italian food was served, featuring spaghetti and meat balls.

Doyle Maynard, pastor of the Rule Church of Christ, served as Master of Ceremonies and welcomed the guests. Jerry Lowrey gave the invocation.

"The Four Flushers" a male quartet from Abilene Christian College, entertained the group with a musical program.

Seniors present were: Paula Bell, Martha Campbell, Dudley Briles, Kathryn Carothers, Bar-bara Colbert, Sharron Carnes, Ford Cole, Charlotte Laughlin, Jerry Lowrey, Bennie Mueller, Jimmy New, Linda Stremmel, Nancy Turnbow, Hollis Riggins, Molly Wilcox, Jana Ulmer and Jerry Sprayberry.

Other seated guests were Mr. and Mrs. David Garlington, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Dunnam, Mr. and Mrs. Doyle Maynard, and the A. C. C. Quartet. Mrs. LaVon Beakley took a picture of each table and each guest will be given a copy.

R. R. Commission Wildlife Young Orders Pipeline Extension Here

According to an announcement from Austin the Texas Railroad Commission ordered a pipeline extension and con-nection in the Haskell County Regular Field.

The order requires the Crown Central Petroleum Corp. and Crown Central Pipeline Co., a common Carrier, common pur-chaser of crude oil in the Has-kell field, to extend its lines and make connection with facilities on leases owned by the late B. A. Duffy of Abilene. Involved are 19 producing wells northwest of Haskell. Oil from the wells was being trucked to a pipeline at the expense of the

The holding is the first to be issued under the commission's 1958 order requiring "reasonable connections" by pipeline carriers when oil reserves justify them.

The president of the Texas Independent Producers and Royalty Owners Association said the ruling is "a new cornerstone in conservation

J. F. West of Stamford called the order a demonstration that the Railroad Commission "is determined to pioneer new paths to fair and equal treatment for all producers."

Rural Wrecks

The Highway Patrol investi-gated four rural accidents in Haskell County during the month of January, according to Sgt. Frank Jircik, Patrol Supervisor of this area. These wrecks accounted for an estimated property damage of $1,085.00.

The Highway Patrol super-visor pointed out that rural motor vehicle traffic accidents in the 29 county North Texas district have declined slightly district have declined slightly during January, 1962, as compared with the same month last year. Nine deaths were chalked up last month as compared to ten that were recorded in January, 1961, 147 injuries were reported this January which is higher than the 105 for the same period last year. A total of 217 rural traffic accidents of 217 rural traffic accidents were investigated as compared to 225 for January, 1961. "The slight decrease in the total number of accidents is encouraging to us, but the increase in the number of persons injured points out the need for compliance with the speed regula-tions by all motorists to reduce severity of these accidents,' the Sergeant stated.

The Highway Patrol Ser-geant reminded motorists that Texas law requires all registered motor vehicles to have valid inspection stickers displayed by midnight April 15 and the best way to avoid the long line expected in the last-minute rush is to have your ve-hicle inspected now.

Should Be Left Alone

A warning against picking SPECIAL ELECTION up young wildlife has been Held in the City of Ha made by J. B. Phillips, coordinator of law enforcement for the Game and Fish Commis-

This is the time of the year when young of the wild has a tendency at times to stray from the mother, and persons are inclined to want to make pets. This is particularly true of young deer. Persons who capture and at-tempt to confine wild animals as pets are subject to arrest for violation. In addition, many of these young animals turn out to be not such good pets, and many times they revert to nature and injure their benefactors. An additional risk in picking up these youngsters is in the rables threat, which has been reading, particularly among skunks. Skunks should be avoided for this, among other reasons, and domestic should be kept away them at all times.

He also advised dog owners to keep them in control, so that babes of the wild will not be destroyed by roving dogs.

Spring Is Time For Seeding Vative Grasses

'In the spring, a young man's fancy turns to thoughts of love' was quoted many years ago. But in the spring, most of us begin to think of gardens, flowers, and land preparation flowers, and land preparation for the coming crops. Few, if any, give any real thought to grass in the spring except to maybe clean up the lawn mower, or make needed re-pairs to farm equipment used for fighting grass in the fields. Maybe the ranchers are think-ing about their grass greening

J. C. Yeary, work unit con-servationist for the local Soil Conservation Service at Haskell tells us that we should begin to think about planting our native grasses sometime within the next three to six weeks for best results.

Waterways that were shaped and seeded to dead litter crops last year should be seeded as soon as possible. Old fields that are planned to be seeded to permanent type grasses and those bare spots in rangeland should be seeded starting now, Yeary said.

Broadcasting or drilling grass seed is considered to be the best method of seeding. A firm seedbed with plenty of trash for wind erosion protection is needed for best results. Very little, if any, land disturbance is recommended. Grass seeds do not want too much soil on top for effective germ-

Waterways planned for seeding to permanent grasses this year are located on the Leroy Schaake Farm north of Has kell, the Jack Chapman Farm at Mattson, and the Cecil Corley Farm west of Haskell. Old fields being converted

A silver spoon glittered in the water some 50 feet out from the T-head of a pier—and about two feet below the surface. Due to the height of the pier and clearness of the Gulf water, the spoon could easily be seen. Suddenly a slender silvery torpedo bolted up from the depths. Wham! It hit the spoon solid and headed out to sea.

Jno. L. McCollum Is It Receives USDA Award

John L. McCollum, Dallas, has been honored by the U. S. Department of Agriculture with a superior performance award and a check of $250 for the valuable contribution he has made in performing his dutier as area manager of the Cotton Branch.

The award was presented at a recent nationwide conference of USDA cotton officials at Galveston.

McCollum has been with the U.S. Department of Agriculture since June, 1928. After serving in various capacities in Washington, Memphis and At-lanta, he came to Dallas in 1942 as senior economist with the U. S. quality statistical work. When this work was transferred to Washington, he was named area manager of the cotton office at Dallas and has served in that capacity since 1944. McCollum, a native of Haskell Texas, was graduated from Texas A. & M. in 1928. His entire career has been with USDA.

The award was made to Mc-Collum for his conscientious at tention to the programs of the Cotton Division and mainten-ance of smooth working rela-tions with the cotton trade and the general public.
