Voters reject half-cent tax

Snyder citizens rejected a proposed half-cent sales tax for economic development Saturday by over 100 votes, indicating their money could better be spent in other ways.

Local civic groups, including the board of county development and chamber board, had endorsed the tax, which would have brought in an estimated $380,000 a year for the purpose of attracting industry. Opponents had lobbied that lower tax rates would go farther in bringing jobs to the city.

Sales tax in the city is currently at 7½ cents and would have gone to 8¼ had the economic development tax been approved.

Saturday's count showed that 499 residents cast ballots against the tax while 395 voted for the increase.

Proponents of the tax increase had said that economic development funds were necessary in order to compete with other communities trying to lure in business. Area towns which have approved the half-cent tax include Sweetwater, Big Spring, Brownfield, Brownwood, Abilene and Amarillo.

Eastland citizens rejected a half-cent sales tax on Saturday, by a vote of 351 to 276.

Q—In reference to the half-cent tax for economic development which was defeated Saturday, how soon could another election be held on the proposal?

A—By law, one year.

In Brief

Free hostage

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A Palestinian group said today it has freed a second Swiss Red Cross worker after more than 10 months in captivity, but the man's whereabouts were not immediately known.

Local

Canvass votes

Snyder City Council will hold a meeting at 6:30 p.m. today to canvass votes from Saturday's half-cent economic development tax election.

Hazardous

Mitchell County Commissioners Advisory Committee will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Mitchell County Courthouse for discussion concerning a proposed hazardous waste site. The committee acts as a liaison between the public and National Waste and Energy Development (NWED), the company proposing a hazardous waste site in Mitchell County.

Mike Robinson, a geologist from Big Spring, has asked to be on the agenda. Robinson questions the accuracy of geological data gathered for NWED.

Appraisal

Scurry County Appraisal District Board of Directors faces little more than routine business in its August meeting Tuesday at 8 a.m.

The only new item facing the board will be a discussion on the records management law. According to Chief Appraiser Ray Peveler, the law increases the amount of permanent records to be kept by the district. Peveler will review with the board the district's options on filing and storage of the new permanent records.

Ira school

Registration for the Ira school system will be held Tuesday and Wednesday from 9 a.m. until noon and 1 p.m. until 3 p.m.

Students new to the district should report to the principal's office.

Those entering kindergarten will need to bring immunization records and a birth certificate.

Shrine Circus

Members of the local Shrine Club and their wives will be calling area residents in regards to ticket sales for the Shrine Circus, to be held Sept. 16 in Scurry County Coliseum.

Shamrock girl claims first in 8-under barrel race here

Rodeo week kicked off here Sunday as eight-year-old Wendy Yarborough of Shamrock posted a 45.32-second time on three rides for first place in the 8-and-under division of the Corky Ogden Memorial World Champion Barrel Race at Scurry County Coliseum.

Talina Bird topped a list of 33 contenders to claim the top spot among riders 19-and-under with a two-run time of 29.53 seconds.

The Ogden Memorial is an annual event which precedes but is not considered a part of the week-long AJRA National Finals Rodeo, scheduled Tuesday through Saturday nights at the coliseum.

AJRA slack competition did begin this morning, however, with the finals of the team roping. An evening slack performance is set for 7:30 today. Roping slack continues each morning, Tuesday through Friday, at 9 o'clock.

There is no charge for the team roping finals or any of the slack performances.

Yarborough registered a first-go clocking of 15.06, followed by a 15.17 on her second ride. Each effort was good for second in the go.

Colorado City cowgirl, Callie Bolin, carved out a three-run time of 46.19 seconds for second place, followed by Kelli Jo Smith of Carlsbad, N.M., with a 46.27 finish.

Lacy Ledford of McLoud, Okla., held the lead after the first-go with her swift 14.91 running of the cloverleaf course. Ledford was trailed by Yarborough's 15.06 while (see RODEO, page 8)

Court sets hearing on county tax rate

Adopts resolution opposing hazardous waste fill, incinerator

Scurry County commissioners this morning unanimously adopted a resolution opposing a proposed hazardous waste landfill and incinerator in nearby Mitchell County, and the court tentatively scheduled a 5 p.m. hearing Thursday to set the county's tax rate for 1991.

Action came during a regular meeting of the court. One purpose of the meeting was to conduct the first of two public hearings on the proposed $13.8 million budget for 1991.

No citizens appeared to comment on the budget, and the court has tentatively scheduled the second public hearing and meeting to set the tax rate Thursday afternoon.

County Judge Bobby Goodwin said Precinct 1 Commissioner

Duaine Davis is in a Lubbock hospital and would likely not be present for Thursday's meeting.

Goodwin said the court was seeking legal direction about all commissioners being required to be present and if the use of a telephone conference call with Davis would meet truth in taxation requirements.

The court recessed at 11 a.m. while awaiting word on legal requirements about the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed McAnally appeared before the court seeking approval of a resolution in opposition to the landfill and incinerator to be located near Westbrook. McAnally, who revealed petitions containing the names of more than 400 local residents, said the project poses (see COUNTY, page 8)

WTC trustees hold hearing on tax rate

Western Texas College board of Trustees will meet at 5:45 p.m. today for a public hearing on the 1990-91 budget and the tax rate.

The board will seek adoption of the budget following the public hearing.

Also on the agenda are the ratification of a bid for roofing repairs, the consideration of bids for computers, printing of the college brochure and janitorial supplies, and approval of July's minutes and financial report.

Trustees are considering a current fund budget for 1990-91 in the amount of $5,929,867, and a tax rate of .1887 cents per $100 in valuation. The .1887 rate is eight percent over the effective tax rate of .1705, but is less than the 1989-90 tax rate of .1964. Estimated net tax revenue at .1887 cents is $1,797,613.

The budget includes a three percent cost of living raise and a one percent merit raise for faculty and staff.

Other budgets considered for 1990-91 are a student housing system fund budget of $625,272, and a student services fee fund of $42,012.

The college has received seven bids from various roofing companies to replace the roof on the college dorm. Trustees will also be considering seven bids for computing equipment, to include 12 IBM or equal computers and three Epson or compatible printers. Also considered will be two bids received for the purpose of printing the WTC brochure and one bid for janitorial supplies.

Blood drive set Tuesday

Cogdell Memorial Hospital Auxiliary and Scurry County Advisory Council for United Blood Services will be sponsoring a blood drive from 10 a.m. until 8 p.m. Tuesday at Towle Park Barn.

Donors who gave blood during the June 19 drive are reminded to bring their cards which can be redeemed for a specially inscribed T-shirt. Also, first-time donors will receive a "Chug-A-Mug" from UBS.

Every other donor Tuesday will receive a coupon for a regular order from Gill's Fried Chicken. Every fifth donor will receive a six-pack of soft drinks from Dr. Pepper Bottling Co.

Seven $5 gift certificates will be distributed by random drawings from both Jaramillo's (see DRIVE, page 8)

SISD board to set tax rate, adopt 1990-91 budget today

Snyder public schools board of trustees has scheduled a 6 p.m. public hearing today to set the tax rate and will follow it up with a meeting to adopt the 1990-91 budget.

The board is considering a tax rate of .97 cents per $100 valuation. That figure is seven cents below the current tax rate of $1.04, but 7.9 percent above the effective tax rate of .8955. The board could approve a tax rate of .9741 without being subject to a rollback election.

During the regular meeting, scheduled for 7 p.m., trustees are expected to approve a budget which will include $13,120,000 in expenditures and $13,086,000 in expected revenue. The difference, some $34,000, could be taken from the district's reserve fund, unless the board decides to find cuts in that amount.

Trustees will also amend the 1989-90 budget; review and act on two resignations and the recommended hiring of two instructors; accept bids on three vans, a station wagon, lunchroom equipment and gasoline; and okay a Texas Association of School Boards policy update in addition to approving a financial report and minutes of previous meetings.

Business Manager Lee McNair has said the 1990-91 budget amounts to about $650,000 more than last year's budget. Almost half of that figure — $300,000 — comes in the form of payroll step (see SISD, page 8)

Local man, youth charged in crime spree early Sunday

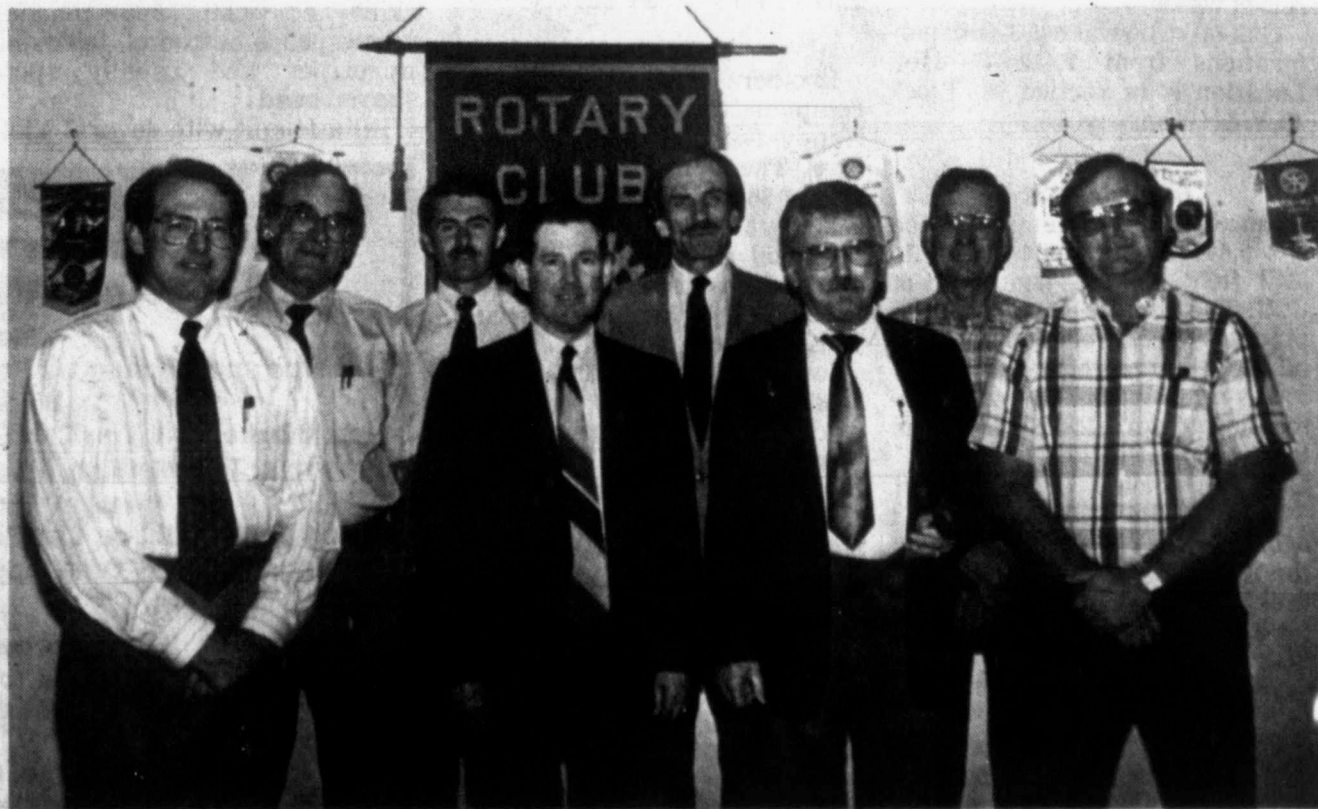

A 17-year-old Snyder man and his 16-year-old companion were arrested early Sunday morning following a series of offenses that included the burglary of Key Brothers Lawn and Leisure on East 37th St.

The crime spree began about 3:52 a.m. Sunday when police received a report of a stolen 1985 Ford pickup from 2905 Ave. G. At 4:36 a.m., police discovered the pickup rammed through the fence at Key Brothers Lawn and Leisure.

Futher investigation revealed that entry had been made into the building. Missing was a blue 1981 Honda motorcycle. The motorcycle was first reported at the Travel Inn Motel, and city officers attempted to stop two subjects on the square who attempted to evade arrest.

At 4:48 a.m., a 16-year-old male was arrested and charged with two counts of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, burglary of a building and for evading arrest.

At 5:01 a.m. police apprehended 17-year-old Manuel Medrano Jr. and charged him with two counts of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle, burglary of a building, evading arrest and misdemeanor theft.

Astrograph
by Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday
August 14, 1990

There is a possibility you might develop some type of enterprise in the year ahead that could provide added income. It will be something you'll be able to do in conjunction with your present mode of earning.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could be a bit of spendthrift today and it won't be due to spending large amounts of money, but it might be due to squandering funds on lots of little insignificant purchases. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your greatest personal gratification today will come from situations where you use your mental prowess and resourcefulness to circumvent obstacles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your curiosity could be rather intense today and this might make companions feel uncomfortable, especially if you question them about issues they don't want to discuss.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You should be rather comfortable in commercial situations today, because if you utilize your attributes properly it will take an exceptionally sharp adversary to better you in a deal.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Independent efforts should produce satisfactory results for you today, but you will be even more effective in partnership arrangements. If you have to make a choice, choose the latter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Occasionally we need some form of material motivation to get us moving, but today the motor force that will drive you will be fueled by pride in your work.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today you could be well organized and methodical, but only up to a certain point. After that you might leave things you should be taking care of up to chance.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll be rather popular with friends and relatives today and some may even gravitate to your place uninvited. Make the drop-ins feel welcomed.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) There isn't much that's likely to escape your attention today, because you'll be both curious and extremely observant. When you learn something it will be difficult to keep to yourself.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your best sources for personal gains today are likely to be channels with which you are already familiar. Focus on these areas instead of looking for a harvest in fields you haven't sown.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The busier you are today, the better you are likely to function. Don't be afraid to take on several assignments simultaneously, even if they're unrelated to one another.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you are harboring some secret ambitions today, it's best to continue to keep them to yourself. Taking could tip off your competition regarding your intentions.

Clements says...

Energy conservation dollars needed in oil & gas research

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas attorney general has urged the U.S. Department of Energy to reject any proposals by Gov. Bill Clements that would divert money for conservation and renewable energy projects to oil and gas research.

In his brief to the department, Attorney General Jim Mattox accused Clements of having "ulterior motives... (to) promote and enhance the interests of the major oil companies."

Mattox and a former Clements staff member say the money isn't supposed to be used for that.

The money, about $360 million, comes from a settlement between the federal government and numerous oil and gas companies accused of overcharging consumers between 1973 and 1981.

Clements, who made his fortune in oil, wants to spend some of it to develop new ways to extract oil and natural gas, the Austin American-Statesman reported Sunday.

Clements says it would benefit consumers and the state's economy.

Auburn Mitchell, the governor's energy director, said, "We're not funding a penny into the industry. We're putting the money into state institutions of higher education with the best oil and gas researchers in the world."

The issue has divided members of Clements' administration.

"These funds were intended by the court to be restitutionary to the consumers who were aggrieved by oil pricing violations," said Carol Tombari, who used to head the state office that administers the money.

In mid-June, Mitchell became director of the governor's new energy division and took over the Energy Management Center, which oversees distribution of the oil overcharge funds. Ms. Tombari resigned June 1.

Legislation for the overcharge funds was created after the 1973 oil embargo by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, or OPEC, which caused a worldwide fuel shortage and drove up the price of oil.

From 1973 until 1981, the federal government imposed controls on oil prices. Later, lawsuits were filed against companies that allegedly violated the price ceilings.

In several settlements, the federal government collected billions of dollars in penalties.

Because it was impossible to determine how much each consumer was owed, much of the money was distributed to the states for projects beneficial to consumers, especially conservation, alternative energy research and utility bill assistance for the poor.

The 1987 Texas Legislature passed the Oil Overcharge Restitution Act to outline how the money should be spent. The bill earmarked $8 million to study "enhanced recovery" methods of hard-to-extract oil and gas on state land.

State officials, arguing that the research could boost production, pumping more money into Texas' public education system, persuaded the Energy Department to approve the funding in 1988.

But a problem arose when Chevron USA and Oryx Energy Corp., which have ties to the lawsuits, leased part of the state land to be studied.

Chevron owns what was once Gulf Oil Corp., a party in the litigation.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm interested in removing body acid. My wedding ring turns my finger black, and my husband has told me I have too much acid in my system. How do I remedy the situation?

DEAR READER: The degree of body acidity is meticulously regulated by many natural and sophisticated mechanisms, involving, in large part, the lungs and the kidneys.

Carbon dioxide, an acidic waste product of metabolism, is exhaled in precise amounts to maintain the proper acidity of body tissues. When excess carbon dioxide builds up in the system, the blood becomes slightly more acidic than normal, and we automatically breathe more rapidly to expel the excess.

You can easily demonstrate this phenomenon by holding your breath. After a minute or two, the urge to release carbon dioxide becomes unbearable.

Similarly, if the system becomes too acidic because of metabolic waste buildup — such as occurs in diabetes whose blood sugars are not controlled — the body compensates by increasing the respiratory rate, thereby decreasing carbon dioxide and reducing the acidity of tissues.

If excess amounts of carbon dioxide are exhaled, leading to under-acidity, the blood becomes non-acidic (alkalotic). You can demonstrate this phenomenon by hyperventilating for several seconds. The lightheadedness and tingling you'll experience are due to the alkalosis resulting from a decrease in the body's carbon dioxide.

In like manner, the kidneys conserve or excrete acids that are water-soluble. If you eat a particularly acidic meal, the kidneys regulate the normal acid balance by excreting more acid in the urine.

Conversely, if you were to ingest large amounts of an alkali — such as bicarbonate of soda — the urine would become alkaline because the kidneys excrete the excess in an attempt to regulate the body's normal acidity.

Thus, your body's acidity is rigidly controlled by normal mechanisms that are, by and large, not easily modified by conscious attempts on your part.

Of course, hyperacidity can affect specific areas of the body; the most common example is peptic ulcer, which occurs in some people who manufacture too much gastric acid. In such situations, people can modify this acidity — by eating antacids, for instance.

Also, some patients form kidney stones (such as uric acid crystals in gout) when the urine is consistently acidic; therefore, in such patients, the regular use of alkali (such as bicarbonate of soda) may help prevent stones, by reducing the urine's acidity.

The problem of skin discoloration from your wedding band may be due to the interaction between substances in your perspiration and one of the metals, such as nickel, alloyed with gold to give strength. This kind of reaction bears an unlikely relation to body acidity, which needs no remedying.

In some people, whose skins turn black under gold jewelry, the cause of the discoloration is the residue of harder cosmetic substances, such as face powders and pancake makeup, that readily abrade a fine powder from the jewelry. This powder sticks to the skin and looks black because the particles are so fine they don't reflect light. To avoid the problem, remove any jewelry before applying makeup or carefully wash the skin under the jewelry with soap and water.

To give you more information about other skin irritations, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Eczema and Psoriasis." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

'Mystery' surrounds oil spills

HOUSTON (AP) — When "mystery oil" appeared on beaches during last month's 700,000 gallon spill in Galveston Bay, federal officials were not surprised to find the oil had nothing to do with the spill.

"Almost always when there's a major spill in one of our coastal areas, we find additional oil hitting the beaches from another source," said Brian Cain, a biologist for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

That could very well happen again.

On Sunday, a barge being loaded with heavy fuel oil at an Arco Petrochemical dock buckled Sunday, spewing more than 20,000 gallons of oil into the Houston Ship Channel, Coast Guard officials said.

Federal officials said some ship and barge operators have created "spills of opportunity" by dumping their waste material into an already soiled Galveston Bay.

Operators who surreptitiously dump waste or flush bilges containing oil save the costs of legal treatment and disposal, Cain said.

"It's a horrible commentary on what's going on in this area," said Ted Eubanks, past president of the Houston Audubon Society and an expert on area birds.

Miss Texas '89 dismayed by B. Magness' remarks

PLAINVIEW, Texas (AP) — The chairman of the Miss Texas Scholarship Pageant says he asked a former Miss Texas to model a swimsuit for him and kissed a pageant contestant because "some of these girls just need to be dirtied up a little."

B. Don Magness made the remark in a Life magazine article appearing this week.

In the article, Miss Texas 1985 Jonna Fitzgerald said she was once asked to model swimsuits for Magness while the two were alone at his home.

"I was put in uncomfortable positions several times as Miss Texas and before," Ms. Fitzgerald said. "I shut my eyes to so many things."

Michelle Royer, a former Miss Texas contestant who went on to become Miss USA 1987, told the magazine that Magness "sometimes liked to kiss on the lips. Those kinds of things made you feel creepy."

Magness told the magazine his actions were "just kind of fun." "You can be too clean and pure," he said. "Some of these girls just need to be dirtied up a little. It's just a continuance of their education."

The article, a profile of Magness' 29-year involvement with the Miss Texas pageant, also examines his dispute with Miss Texas 1989 Leah Kay Lyle.

Underground Texans want to oust Vietnamese officials

HOUSTON (AP) — Vietnamese refugees who fled their war-torn homeland are fighting the country's Communist government from afar.

"How can I enjoy freedom when I know so many of my friends in Vietnam don't enjoy such freedoms?" said Vo Chi, 46, a former South Vietnamese Air Force captain who fled his country after being imprisoned for three years.

Chi, now an electrical engineer in Fort Worth, is one of 300 active members of The National United Front for Liberation of Vietnam in Texas, Louisiana and Oklahoma. An estimated 3,000 sympathizers in the region also support the group "financially, morally and politically," leaders said.

Texas, with an estimated 70,000 to 80,000 Vietnamese who fled their country since 1975, is one of the most active U.S. centers of the liberation front.

Based in Houston, which is home to 50,000 Vietnamese refugees, the front's Texas network has members in Austin, Beaumont, Dallas, Fort Worth, Port Arthur and San Antonio.

"Our goal is to bring democracy and human rights to the country," said Viet Dang, 42, who leads the group in the region. "Our tactics are not to use armed force but use people power."

Racial slaying suspect said to have history of violence

HOUSTON (AP) — A man charged with killing a Vietnamese teen-ager in a racially-motivated attack has a long history of fighting with minorities, acquaintances say.

Derek Ian Hilla, 18, was charged with murder in the death of Hung Truong, 15, of suburban Katy. He and Kevin Michael Allison, 18, who also was charged in Truong's death, were ordered held on $200,000 bail.

Police said Hilla and Allison are members of a group of skinheads, white supremacists who espouse hatred of Jews and minorities and usually sport shaved heads.

Hilla fought with several Vietnamese boys last February at a school parking lot, said James King, principal of Northbrook High School where Hilla attended. King said after the fight, shots were fired at Hilla's house from a moving car and Hilla blamed the shooting on Asians.

Houston Police reports show six shots were fired at the home on Feb. 5, but nobody was hurt. A juvenile was later arrested in connection with the incident.

"He didn't like minorities," King said of Hilla. He said he was surprised at Hilla's arrest "even though I know Derek's attitude."

"He's real prejudiced," said Lisa Tobey, 19, who once lived across the street from Hilla.

Port accidents most common in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Ship Channel, site of last month's tanker-barge collision that spewed 700,000 gallons of crude into Galveston Bay, is the most accident-prone port in the nation, a Coast Guard survey shows.

Nearly 600 other vessels have had accidents in the channel during the past eight years.

"In the Houston Ship Channel you've had some horrendous collisions, sinkings, oil spills, fires and deaths, but people didn't spend too much time talking about it," Arthur McKenzie, a New York-based tanker safety analyst, told The Houston Post.

A survey of Coast Guard statistics from 1981 through June 1989 showed 592 vessels either collided, ran aground, or slammed into a dock, overpass or other fixed object in the 53-mile Port of Houston, which ranks as the nation's third largest in terms of tonnage.

During the same period, the nation's largest port, the Port of New Orleans, reported 235 similar ship accidents, while the second-largest port, New York Harbor, had 514 such mishaps.

"If our record of incidents is significantly higher, I'm surprised to hear that," said Tom Kornegay, managing director of the Port of Houston. "I've always been under the impression that we've had an extremely good safety record."

Since 1986, there has been a steady increase in ship channel collisions and groundings as tens of thousands of barges and tankers wind their way through the crowded canal.

Some experts say port authorities are squeezing too much traffic into a canal that is too narrow. The average tanker measures 100 feet wide, leaving as little as 50 feet between two oil-laden vessels as they pass through the channel.

Port Authority officials said a controversial dredging project could solve the problem by widening the channel from 400 to 530 feet and deepening it from 40 to 45 feet.

But critics of the dredging project say it will damage the environment and only serve to lure bigger ships to the port, eroding its existing safety margin.

Coast Guard officials and analysts point to other solutions, including more training and liability for harbor pilots, an official speed limit and mandatory use of the Vessel Traffic Service, a Coast Guard communication and routing system.

Dad meets daughter through TV show

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A national television program that specializes in the unexplained and unsolved has unwittingly deciphered a teen-ager's uncertainty.

Kimber Tice, 30, met her father, Lavar Bates, for the first time thanks to her mother's chance viewing of the NBC show "Unsolved Mysteries."

Father and daughter met Saturday at a relative's house in Amarillo.

It all started when Ms. Tice's mother, Peggy Atwood, watched a rerun of the show July 4 at her Altus, Okla., home.

One segment of the show profiled the capture of convicted murderer John Mooney. It featured interviews with workers at a Phoenix landscaping company where Mooney was working.

During one of the interviews, Ms. Atwood saw Bates and recognized him as her boyfriend in 1958 and the father of Kimber. She said Bates never knew about Kimber, and she lost track of him soon after their relationship ended.

Ms. Atwood contacted the show's producers, and Bates was in touch within three days.

Bates, who is married and has two other children, said he was shocked to find out about his daughter.

"I wasn't sitting down when I found out, but I sure did soon after I got the news. Then I turned white," said the 54-year-old Chandler, Ariz., man. "It's kind of exciting and scary at the same time."

Ms. Tice, a Pampa mother of two, said she was told about Bates when she was 16.

"I was secure in my life, but I still always wondered what he was like," Ms. Tice said. "I guess that is only normal, but I didn't feel like I needed to go find him at that time."

Ms. Atwood said it was a fluke that she noticed Bates during the television program.

"God just intended for me to see it," she said. "I always watch the show, but usually don't pay close attention. If I had blinked my eyes just for a second, I would have missed it. It was just meant to be."

On Saturday, Ms. Tice and her mother and father sat at a kitchen table and laughed over old photographs of Ms. Tice's childhood and her parent's courtship.

Unsolved Mysteries filmed a dramatization of the meeting Saturday afternoon. The episode tentatively is scheduled to air Sept. 19.

Postpone the decision

By James Jacoby

Declarer based his play for six trump on his ability to win a psychological battle with East. Too bad. Simple arithmetic would have served him better.

When the king of diamonds was led, declarer ducked. West continued with a second diamond, East discarding a low club. Declarer won and played dummy's A-Q of spades, on which East played the seven and the three-spot. When declarer played a third spade from dummy and East followed with the nine, the problem was whether to play East for an original holding of four to the jack. Finally declarer decided that East was trying to give the impression of holding four cards in the suit when in fact West held the jack. So South went up with the king of spades. When West showed out, declarer had only 11 tricks and had to concede the last trick to East's spade jack.

Declarer flunked an elementary test of declarer play. When you have all the tricks but one, play out all the side-suits before making your decision in the key suit. Today's South would then have certain knowledge of what to do. Four rounds of hearts would tell declarer that West held four hearts to begin with. Three rounds of clubs would show that West held only two. And West was already known to have had five diamonds originally. That leaves room for only two spades. So declarer could play dummy's A-Q of spades and, on the third round, finesse against East's jack with absolute certainty.

Seminary workers don't have to smuggle Bibles any longer

DALLAS (AP) — Seminary workers who used to drive double-bottomed vehicles into Eastern Europe to smuggle in Bibles are having an easier time of it nowadays.

Workers at the Eastern European Seminary no longer need aliases because of warming relations and changes within the Communist bloc. Plans are even under way to settle some staff members in Eastern Europe, the group says.

Still, seminary officials won't say in what countries they are working or which 12 religious organizations support the group.

So clandestine is the seminary's work that it has no official contact with the U.S. government. This was strict policy during the Cold War even though its workers risked arrest and possibly torture if they were caught crossing the borders with literature.

"Eastern European Seminary has had no contact with us," Michael Hornblow, a U.S. State Department spokesman, said. "I have never heard of them."

Dozens of workers have helped smuggle caches of Bibles and sponsored underground seminary classes. The seminary is one of several Christian organizations that cooperate in the Bible smuggling.

Christian Aid Ministries, an Ohio-based Mennonite and Amish ministry, has transported food, medicine and Bibles into Romania since 1981.

"We don't like to use the word smuggling," said David Troyer, Christian Aid's general director. "But we had to use ways of getting the literature in that were unorthodox."

The seminary said 4,000 students have participated in its underground classes, which can take from six to 15 months to finish. With a budget of $4 million this year, the seminary is not affiliated with any denomination and asks churches to accredit the students once they graduate.

"We have more opportunity now than we've ever had in the last 70 years," John Maisel, the seminary's president, told The Dallas Morning News.

With religious freedoms flourishing across the Iron Curtain, the seminary can now reflect on how it created one of the largest religious education efforts in the Communist bloc since the end of World War II.

"Of course, we didn't talk openly about what we did," Maisel said. "It was a cold war, and we had to play the game."

The seminary, formed 11 years ago by 12 North American Christian groups, developed a curriculum that included 45 textbooks and workbooks with titles such as "New Testament Survey" and translated the literature into six languages.

"The average pastor in Eastern Europe was doing good if he had a Bible," said Maisel. "We began thinking, 'What is the greatest need?' And the answer was: No one's training the leadership."

Dallas-area staff members edited and printed the books and shipped them overseas. The literature then was spirited into Eastern Europe in modified vans, cars or boats.

Staff members rarely spoke of tasks with other religious workers in either Dallas or Vienna, Austria, which was used as distribution headquarters.

Teams sit through longest rain delay

by The Associated Press

The longest rain delay in baseball history — probably — left the Texas Rangers and Chicago White Sox all wet.

Their game Sunday at Comiskey Park never started and was finally called after a wait of 7½ hours. The weather was the big winner, and so were the 200 fans who were left when it was postponed at 9 p.m. CDT — they got free food and drinks at the concession stands.

Meanwhile, both teams sounded like they'd lost. "This is unprecedented," Rangers manager Bobby Valentine said. "How can they make us sit here? Tell me, when it rains all day, how can anyone predict when the rain is going to stop?"

The game will be made up Friday in Texas, and that upset White Sox manager Jeff Torborg.

"It's not right that we have to play on the road," Torborg said. "I know that's the rule, but it's not right. We're in a pennant race."

While they waited, the White Sox fell five games behind in the American League West as Oakland defeated New York 6-1.

Until a game starts, the home team is in charge of postponing it. Once the game begins, the umpires take control.

More than 30,000 tickets were sold, so the White Sox wanted to play. But when it kept raining, they asked the Rangers whether they would return to Chicago on Thursday, an off-day for both teams. Texas said no.

So they waited. After 2½ hours, the White Sox told fans that rain checks would be honored later this season, whether the game was played or not. After 6½ hours, the concession stands were opened for free.

"We just had to try to get the game in," White Sox owner Jerry Reinsdorf said. "The weatherman kept telling us it would let up. We were not unfair to our fans. I don't regret it. I'd do it again if I had to."

Valentine wouldn't. "I'll tell you one thing. If a player had been injured, he could have retired tomorrow," he said. "A lawyer would have jumped at the chance."

Lakers get Perkins due to Sonju's note

DALLAS (AP) — Forward Sam Perkins says he was prepared to stay with the Dallas Mavericks until the team sent him a letter wishing him good luck with his new team.

Although the Mavericks offered him a six-year, $18 million deal to stay, Perkins joined the Los Angeles Lakers last week.

He said the rift that developed between himself and management in the last year was too great to stay.

The last straw, he told reporters Monday in his first trip back to Dallas since signing with the Lakers, was a letter he received Aug. 2 from Norm Sonju, the club's chief operating officer and general manager.

The NBA salary cap increased Aug. 1. Orlando, Golden State, the Lakers and the Mavericks all made an offer to Perkins at that point.

One of those teams — Perkins wouldn't say which one, but it wasn't the Lakers — offered him a six-year, $20 million contract.

Sonju, who was on vacation in Austria, said Perkins' agent, Lee Fentress, called him the day after the cap increased and told him Perkins would sign with Dallas if it matched the $20 million offer.

Sonju called owner Donald Carter and discussed the deal, but they decided they couldn't match it and sent Fentress and Perkins a telex explaining their reasons.

Sonju said he wished Perkins the best if he signed with another team.

Four days later, Perkins signed a six-year deal with the Lakers believed to be worth roughly $18.5 million.

"This letter changed everything," Perkins said. "It took them so long to give me what the market said, and then the letter came and well, that was it. That's when I made my decision."

"We felt $20 million was more than we could offer," Sonju said. "Technically, what Sam says is correct. But we weren't given a chance to negotiate. We were told the match the offer. That was our only option."

The friction between the Mavericks and Perkins began last season when the forward wanted a five-year, $10 million contract.

Holt named new JV coach

Head volleyball and girls' track coach Patty Grimmert announced recently that Laura Holt has joined the coaching staff of Snyder High School.

Holt was hired to fill the vacancy created when former JV basketball and track coach Laurie Welch was promoted to head girls' basketball coach at SHS following the resignation of Ken Housden last spring.

Coach Holt is a 1985 graduate of Hardin Simmons University.

She played high school basketball and ran track for the Class 2A Holliday Lady Eagles.

Holt coached at Henrietta Junior High School for four years before joining the staff at Snyder.

She will serve as coach for girls' JV volleyball, JV basketball and JV track as well as assisting Grimmert with varsity volleyball and track.

Padres pound Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — You know things are going good when Derek Lilliquist throws a complete-game shutout.

San Diego Padres manager Greg Riddoch pulled Lilliquist's name out of his hat Sunday and Lilliquist responded with the game of his life, a four-hitter as the Padres beat the Houston Astros 9-0.

The victory capped the Padres' 9-2 road trip, the most successful in team history.

"Even a blind squirrel finds an acorn sometimes," Riddoch said about his decision to start Lilliquist. "We certainly found one tonight. In about the seventh inning, I asked Derek if he'd ever gone nine innings and he said 'No,' but he was just great tonight."

The Padres have won four straight games and 16 of their last 21.

THIS IS HOW YOU DO IT — Coach Joe Granato shows his charges what needs to be done during defensive workouts this morning at Snyder High School. Summer football workouts began with weight tests and a mile run at 6:30 a.m. The Tigers are scheduled to workout twice daily with an added kicking drill scheduled in mid-afternoon in preparation for the upcoming grid season. 'Pokes stumble against S.D.

LA JOLLA, Calif. (AP) — The 1990 Dallas Cowboys looked a lot like the 1989 Dallas Cowboys in their exhibition opener.

Save for coach Jimmy Johnson.

Last year, Johnson was in an almost giddy mood after the rookie NFL coach had beaten the San Diego Chargers 20-3 in his first game. The team won three of four that preseason, then dropped 15 during the regular season.

But after a 28-16 loss to the Chargers Saturday night, Johnson didn't let his emotions get the best of him.

"There were some good things out there tonight," Johnson said. "I learned a long time ago, or at least a year ago, that the preseason doesn't mean a whole heck of a lot."

Johnson's offensive game plan Saturday was basic. The Cowboys running game struggled against a defense that often sent as many as eight players at the quarterback.

Quarterback Troy Aikman was Dallas' leading rusher with 51 yards, 48 yards coming on a first-quarter bootleg. Besides Aikman's long run, the Cowboys gained 46 yards on the ground in 24 carries.

Free agent Timmy Smith had 1 yard in seven carries. Terrence Flagler picked up 4 yards in two attempts. Lorenzo Hampton gained 3 yards in two tries.

"I'm not really concerned," guard Crawford Ker said. "We've got to improve on some little things and we'll be okay. Last year we were 3-1 in the preseason and look what happened. I don't care if we lose every preseason game. We just have to get ready for the regular season."

Said Johnson: "We really pulled back on offense and that hampered us some, especially with all the blitzes that San Diego threw at us. Our blockers were outnumbered. In a game that counted, we'd be getting out of those formations and throw the ball."

The Cowboys defense failed to force a turnover or sack the Chargers quarterbacks. Nevertheless, Johnson said he was pleased with his first defensive unit, although he was not happy with the backups.

"The first-team defense did an excellent job," Johnson said. "But our second unit had some breakdowns and problems. They moved the ball against us and that was a little disappointing."

Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said the team hadn't been in contact with the agents for their three holdouts: running back Emmitt Smith, wide receiver Alexander Wright and linebacker Jesse Solomon. Jones said the club had made its final offers to all three players.

The Cowboys' running game could use Smith, whose big-play potential has been compared by team officials to all-time club rushing leader Tony Dorsett.

"We want Emmitt Smith in camp," Jones said. "We know he can make a big contribution. But we know our offers are fair in today's marketplace. We're not going to change our offers."

The Cowboys will practice against the Chargers Monday and Tuesday in San Diego as they prepare for their second exhibition game, Saturday afternoon against the Los Angeles Raiders at the Coliseum.

U.S. mounts naval barricade of Iraqi shipping

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, committed to "stop the oil from coming out of there," mounted a naval barricade of Iraqi shipping today and vowed to make that country "pay a price" if it attacks Saudi Arabia or its allies.

An Iraqi tanker tried to dock at a Saudi terminal to take on oil, but was turned away by Saudi officials, diplomatic sources in the region reported.

President Bush and his top aides avoided using the word "blockade" Sunday to describe a U.S. decision to use whatever means necessary to choke off Iraq's oil trade and imports of other goods, including food. But their intention was clear.

"I consider interdiction of shipping to be in accord" with United Nations economic sanctions, Bush told reporters Sunday. "No point getting into all these semantics. The main thing is to stop the oil from coming out of there and that is what we're going to do."

Diplomatic sources at the oil terminal near Yanbu, Saudi Arabia, said the Iraqi tanker al-Qadisiyah, which could carry up to 900,000 barrels of oil, failed in its attempt to moor Sunday night because three tug boats that normally would help have been taken out of the water.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the tanker sailed away today, after its apparent attempt to defy a U.S. declaration that its warships would enforce a U.N. embargo aimed at forcing Iraq's Saddam Hussein to give up his forced annexation of Kuwait.

Ameri al-Anbari, Iraq's ambassador to the United Nations, said today on ABC-TV's "Good Morning America" that the U.N. Security Council should act on Saddam's proposals to end the standoff.

"I don't believe it's up to the United States to enforce sanctions against Iraq," al-Anbari said. "We are putting the ball right in the Security Council's court."

The Iraqi president said Sunday that the withdrawal from Kuwait should be tied to Israeli withdrawal from territories it seized in 1967.

Prince Bandar Bin Sultan, the Saudi ambassador to Washington, said on "Good Morning America" that Saddam should not try to make the Israeli territories a part of the Kuwait crisis.

"He is mixing the issues," the ambassador said. "That is not an excuse for an Arab country to go an invade another Arab country."

The United States intensified its military fortification of Saudi Arabia and the surrounding seas over the weekend, sending in Marine and Army air assault troops and shipping Patriot surface-to-air missiles and other sophisticated air-deployed weapons to the region. Sources who disclosed the movements said Pentagon planners assumed that, in the event of an Iraqi attack, an initial air battle could be decisive.

The commander of the U.S. military action, Gen. H. Norman Schwarzkopf, briefed reporters at MacDill Air Force Base in Florida on the logistical difficulties of transporting troops and backup equipment 7,000 miles by air and 12,000 miles by sea. Schwarzkopf said the Iraqis are "dug in right now for a strong defense."

"We have built up a great deal of force over there now ... and if they do make an attack they are going to pay a price for it," he said.

Schwarzkopf said troops would be on guard against terrorists as well as Iraqi guns and gas. An estimated 50,000 troops are committed to Saudi Arabia in the initial deployment, with contingency plans for a force up to 250,000. "I would never tell you that the American forces that are there are 100 percent out of harm's way," the general said.

Indeed, the Pentagon reported the first casualty of the military action on Sunday. Air Force Staff Sgt. John Campisi, a 30-year-old aircraft mechanic from Covina, Calif., was killed when he was hit by a truck on a darkened runway.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III said the United States would begin "almost instantly" to "take measures that are necessary and proportionate in order to enforce the (United Nations) sanctions."

Asked if the United States was mounting a naval blockade, Baker — appearing on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley," — said: "Let's simply say that we now have the ability, the legal basis for interdicting those kinds of shipments." He declined to use the word blockade.

Bush, vacationing in Kennebunkport, Maine, said the U.N.-approved embargo "gave us broad authority, working in conjunction with others, to do whatever is necessary to see no oil goes out."

Asked if the United States would block shipments of food as well as oil, the president said, "Just watch. Everything."

As the Bush administration vowed to quarantine Iraq, Saddam, in a statement read by a spokesman on television in Baghdad, urged his people to prepare for hardships that may result from the international economic sanctions.

He also linked any Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait to an Israeli withdrawal from the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip and a Syrian withdrawal from Lebanon. Israel seized the occupied territories from Egypt and Jordan in 1967.

The White House "categorically" rejected Saddam's proposals, press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said, calling them "another attempt at distracting from Iraq's isolation and at imposing a new status quo." Only the unconditional withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait will satisfy the United States, he said.

Troops from Texas deployed to Mid East

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — For the first time since rumors began surfacing several days ago, the Pentagon confirmed Texas troops were deployed to the volatile Middle East.

Soldiers of the Army's 11th Air Defense Artillery Brigade at Fort Bliss were sent to the Persian Gulf to participate in Operation Desert Shield, the Pentagon said in a statement released Sunday.

The troops are equipped with Patriot and Stinger anti-aircraft missiles, said Fort Bliss deputy public affairs officer Jean Offutt.

She declined to release the number of troops moved Sunday. But earlier news reports said five batteries, from the 11th Air Defense had been ordered to prepare for departure to the Persian Gulf.

She also declined to say whether the base is expecting further deployments.

"There's no information on that at this point," she said.

On Sunday, soldiers in camouflage uniforms loaded more than 100 armored track vehicles — including tanks and anti-tank missile systems — onto flat rail cars near Biggs Army Air Field at Bliss. The vehicles were stamped with the name of the Fort Bliss-based 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment, whose troops are highly trained in desert warfare.

The 3rd Armored Cavalry Regiment, with 4,200 troops, is "recognized as the Army's experts in desert warfare," according to the Army Times and an unofficial Fort Bliss guide that includes information furnished by the Army.

An Army source in Washington told The Associated Press that troops from Fort Hood also were to be deployed. He gave no details.

A Fort Hood spokesman declined to say Sunday whether any troops have been deployed from the Central Texas base.

"From where I'm sitting, I cannot comment on it," said Maj. Jesse Seigal. "It's not being said officially. If it's an unquoted source or an anonymous source, it's unofficial."

The Fort Bliss soldiers are among the latest to join a rapidly swelling U.S. military force that is preparing to defend the desert kingdom of Saudi Arabia from a possible Iraqi attack.

The Pentagon, citing security concerns, has refused to say how many soldiers, airmen and other ground forces have arrived in Saudi Arabia or where they are setting up their defensive positions. Sources have said contingency plans call for deploying as many as 250,000 ground troops if Iraq were to attack.

The Patriot surface-to-air missiles dispatched from Fort Bliss are being sent on the assumption that, in the event of an Iraqi attack, an initial air battle could be decisive.

Military sources, speaking on condition they not be identified, said Patriot high-altitude missiles have never before been deployed in a military contingency such as the mobilization that has been under way in Saudi Arabia since Wednesday.

The Pentagon officially announced Saturday that elements of the 1st Marine Expeditionary Force at Camp Pendleton, Calif., and the Army's 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky., began moving to embarkation points for the trip to Saudi Arabia.

The Marine force includes elements of the 7th Marine Expeditionary Brigade, the 3rd Marine Aircraft Wing, the 1st Marine Division and the 1st Force Service Support Group, said Lt. Col. Ron Stokes, a Marine Corps spokesman.

Broken vehicle glass results in criminal mischief reports

Two cases of criminal mischief were investigated Sunday by Snyder city police.

At 11:18 a.m., Ignacio Andrade of 1200 28th St. reported that a window on the left side of his pickup had been shattered. At 12:36 p.m., Daniel Rodriguez of 2812 Ave. H reported that a windshield on his vehicle had been shattered.

Earlier in the morning, at 10:14 p.m., a woman at 806 29th St. reported to police of having found a ballpeen hammer near her vehicle. The hammer may have been used in the two cases of criminal mischief.

At 1:13 p.m. Sunday, a report of a vacant building having been broken into was reported. The building was the old Cash Food Store at 25th St. and Ave. L.

At 3:15 p.m., Janie Delao of 1205 13th St. reported that her son's 21-inch bicycle had been stolen. At 6:06 p.m. Sunday, Tony Daves of 1412 30th St. reported that a roll of chain-link fence had been stolen.

At 8:04 p.m., a man went to the police department to return a bicycle reportedly stolen by his 8-year-old son. At 10:24 p.m. Sunday, police investigated a window peeper complaint in the 900 Block of 30th St.

At 10:14 a.m. Sunday, Randall Feaster of Colorado City reported that he had lost his wallet at Wal-Mart. At 10:41 p.m., a wallet was found that had been stolen, but unreported, several months ago.

On Saturday, at 9:51 p.m., Pat Taylor reported a stolen bike and it turned out to be a bike found abandoned earlier in the morning at the Pizza Inn.

At 11:17 a.m., Allan Pollard reported the theft of a mail box at the Hair Station on 26th St. At 10:12 p.m., Mrs. Dean Robertson reported a Class A theft, the theft of her purse from her car on the Furr's parking lot.

At 12:09 a.m. Sunday, a woman called police and said a woman had been chasing her with a gun in the vicinity of 27th St. and Ave. Y. Officers were unable to locate the woman.

At 12:44 p.m., Olga Rodriguez of 121 25th St. called police to complain of a dog damaging her property. At 1:35 a.m., Daniel Rodriguez called to report that four subjects had damaged his vehicle in the 2800 Block of Ave. H.

At 3:23 a.m., a gas drive off was reported at the Plaza Truck stop on U.S. 84. The customer later returned and paid for the merchandise. At 4:41 a.m. Sunday, a gas drive off was also reported at Allsup's on College Ave.

At 3:24 a.m. Sunday, Leon Gutierrez of 1101 30th St. reported a Class A theft, the theft of a tool box. At 3:26 a.m., Serapio Barron of 2909 Ave. G reported to police that two males were looking through the glove box of his vehicle.

At 3:51 a.m. Sunday, a 22-year-old male was arrested for evading arrest, no liability insurance and for no driver's licence.

At 12:03 a.m. Sunday in the 1800 Block of Huffman Ave., a 28-year-old male was arrested for driving while intoxicated and his 33-year-old passenger was jailed for public intoxication.

Hermleigh man hurt in cycle mishap

A 21-year-old Hermleigh man was injured late Sunday in a motorcycle accident on the parking lot at Everybody's Thriftway, at 35th St. and College Ave.

James Eric Nachlinger of Hermleigh was riding the motorcycle across the parking lot when he lost control and overturned the bike. He was taken to Cozdel Hospital where he was treated and released.

At 2:36 p.m. Saturday, 27-year-old Ronnie Joe Stokes of 116 Browning was charged with driving while intoxicated when the 1979 Ford pickup he was driving struck the Video Depot building in the 2100 Block of 25th St.

At 6:41 p.m. Saturday on the Wal-Mart parking lot, a 1986 Chevrolet driven by Travis Hill of 2311 27th St. was in collision with a 1977 Chevrolet pickup driven by Priscilla Barrera of 125 Milburn. Damage was minor.

A hit and run was reported at 8:32 a.m. Saturday in the 200 block of 35th St. Struck by a vehicle which left the scene was a parked 1984 Buick owned by Don Beck of San Angelo.

Pair arrested by sheriff's deputies

The Scurry County sheriff's department made two misdemeanor arrests Saturday. Deputy Darren Jackson arrested a 37-year-old Snyder man on a bad check warrant and his 36-year-old female companion for possession of drug paraphernalia.

At 2:15 p.m. Saturday, Robert Burton of Route 3 reported that a white goat had been stolen. At 6:40 p.m., Justin Casey reported the theft of a weed eater and box of tools from his home at Dorsey and Ave. R.

major long-term health hazards. McAnally cited possible contamination to area lakes which provide municipal drinking water and air contamination from ash generated by the incinerator. McAnally also expressed concern about hazardous waste material being transported through Scurry County enroute to the incinerator.

McAnally said the petitions were not directed to the Scurry County commissioners court, but would be presented later to Mitchell County commissioners. McAnally called the signatures on the petition an "amazing cross-section of local citizens."

The court also adopted a resolution making the week of Aug. 13 Texas Veterans Land Board Awareness Week.

Four budget transfers were also approved — three from the general contingency fund. The first was for $3,000 to the county judge's budget for expenses associated with the start-up of the 911 emergency system.

Goodwin said early estimates would be $30,000 for mapping and other start-up costs, but a cooperative effort of local emergency units has reduced that substantially.

In addition, $500 was transferred to the adult probation department for the construction of a partition for workspace for an office employee.

Also approved was $3,600 for the justice of the peace office. The funds will be used for software, programming and training required to computerize the office.

The last transfer was approved from the road and bridge contingency fund. Okayed was $10,000 to purchase right-of-way associated with the widening of the road between U.S. 180 and 84 to the Price Daniel Unit. The state has agreed to pave the road and take over maintenance, if the county purchases necessary right-of-way. A planned transfer related to the treasurer's office was not presented.

The county budget will call for a tax rate of .3337, or 7.9 percent over the effective tax rate. The proposed tax rate will generate about $3 million in funds — up $100,000 over 1990.

The county's portion of the budget is $5.7 million and the hospital's budget is $9.1 million. Tax funds for the hospital will be reduced from $488,000 to $225,000.

Members of the court present were Commissioners Tommy Pate, C.D. Gray Jr., Ted Billingsley and Judge Goodwin.

Snyder couple injured in Sunday mishap

A Snyder couple sustained minor injuries Sunday afternoon in a two-vehicle wreck at the intersection of U.S. 84 and 180.

Frances Featherston, 64, and the driver of a 1980 Chrysler, was admitted to Cogdell Hospital for 23-hour observation with neck and foot injuries. Her husband, E. K. Featherston, 66, suffered a head laceration and was treated and released.

The Featherston vehicle was traveling east on 180 when it was struck by a 1978 Cadillac driven by Roby Hall of Ruidoso, N.M. which failed to yield on the exit ramp off U.S. 84.

Hall and the three passengers in his auto were not injured.

Watts Riot is TNT film

NEW YORK (AP) — Early in "Heat Wave," a black teen-ager fresh in from the segregated Alabama of 1960 stands on a hill overlooking Los Angeles. His memories: "It was California. The color-blind dream."

Five years later, the youngster, Bob Richardson, is a Los Angeles Times messenger, made the Times' first black journalist to report on the city's bloody Watts riots after white reporters were attacked there.

Premiering tonight on Ted Turner's TNT cable network, "Heat Wave" is partly based on what scriptwriter Michael Lazlou says was Richardson's true story, sporadically told from Richardson's point of view in voice-overs.

But it's basically a mosaic of life back then in that black community, one that dramatizes events leading up to the riots and the deadly nights of rage, looting and burning that erupted there 25 years ago this month.

It has a number of pluses, including a superb cast. The players include Blair Underwood as Richardson; James Earl Jones as the owner of a Watts shoe-repair business, a man who urges patience; and Cicely Tyson as Richardson's grandmother, who works as a maid for a Beverly Hills family.

You've got to give "Heat Wave" an A for its effort to portray the racial discrimination, the lack of all but menial jobs for blacks, the police harassment of blacks, the anger and frustration that brews up and explodes on one sweltering summer night.

It also has a few well-shaded illustrations of the complexity of the Watts riots, particularly its version of a highway patrolman's arrest of a black teen-ager for suspected drunken driving, an arrest that sparked the riot.

The white patrolman is anything but abusive. The youth's mother shows up and slaps her son for drinking. But when the patrolman, almost apologetically says he has to arrest the teen-ager, the kid gets violent.

More cops are called, they bust heads, they get hit back, the riot is on, and in due course fearful whites in distant neighborhoods arm themselves — including the man for whom Tyson's character works.

Senator: flight attendants' standards unfair

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 40-year-old flight attendant shouldn't be forced to starve herself into her 20-year-old size, says Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, who's asking American Airlines to change its weight policy.

The policy is "outdated and wrong," Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, said in a letter urging the Texas-based airline to scrap its weight standard. The senator said the standard appears to be biased against women, particularly older women.

"According to American's flight attendants, the standard is applied in practice almost exclusively to the female atten-

DEAR READERS: I recently published 10 tips on how to get along with your husband's mother — submitted by a very wise mother-in-law. Then in the interest of evenhandedness, I asked for letters from daughters-in-law offering suggestions to their mothers-in-law on how to get along with your son's wife.

Did I get letters! Today's column will be a compilation of the best tips on how to get along with your daughter-in-law.

1. When you call to talk with your son and your daughter-in-law answers the phone, don't say, "Is John there?" Spend a few minutes asking how she is and what's new. And if they live out of town, when you write a letter, always address it to both your son and his wife.

2. If your son has been previously married, don't bring up his past marriage. If he's had girlfriends in his past, don't mention them either. If your daughter-in-law has been previously married and has children by that marriage, accept these grandchildren as your own. Don't play favorites.

3. Never offer advice unless it's asked for. And never criticize your daughter-in-law's housekeeping, cooking, children, friends or new hairdo. And don't try to rearrange her furniture.

4. Ask for — and display — pictures that include her and her children. Every time she looks at them, she will feel wonderful.

5. Never say, "John looks thin, or pale, or tired." His wife will take it as a personal insult.

6. If your daughter-in-law has given you a gift, show your appreciation by wearing it — or displaying it — proudly.

7. Never repeat family gossip. And try not to listen to any.

8. Don't allow your son or his wife — in the heat of anger — to tell you something unkind about the other. They will eventually kiss and make up, and you will be left holding their dirty laundry.

9. Don't drop hints about how much you would like to have grandchildren. Some couples aren't ready, some couples may have been trying for a long time without success, and some couples have decided that they don't want any — which is strictly their business.

10. And one cardinal rule should always be observed. Regardless of how close you live to each other, never drop in unexpectedly. A telephone call from the corner drugstore is all it takes.

11. If perchance she has hurt your feelings, take it up with her. Do not let it fester, and don't complain to your son.

12. Also — don't monopolize holidays. Remember that your daughter-in-law has parents, siblings and friends that she might like to spend time with on holidays. Some couples may even like to spend an occasional holiday by themselves.

13. Let your son go. Recognize and respect him for the adult he is. Stop calling him Skippy, Sonny, Junior or any other juvenile nickname that he has long outgrown.

14. Also, if you have other daughters-in-law — or daughters of your own — treat them all equally. And that goes for their children, too.

DEAR ABBY: Let me tell you about my mother-in-law. There is never a time when she would stop by and not be welcome. My house could be a mess, my son dirty, my hair in rollers and my fridge empty. My mother-in-law (whose house is always immaculate) could come in, have a cup of instant coffee and visit, and never make me feel the least bit guilty. I know she loves me because she knows that her son is very happily married, and that's the most important thing in the world to her. And she never lets me forget it.

A LOVING DAUGHTER-IN-LAW

DEAR DAUGHTER-IN-LAW: I know the joy of having a wonderful mother-in-law. I've had one for 51 years. (God bless you, Rosie!)

Texan's Pearl Harbor heroism subject of television movie

WACO, Texas (AP) — Doris Miller's heroic efforts during the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor 48 years ago may come to life in a made-for-television movie tentatively scheduled to air next year.

The Chrysler Corporation and ABC Television have agreed to commission a "treatment" of the story, an initial step in a movie's production. If the treatment — a summary outlining a script, its theme, characters and tone — gains approval, work would start on writing a screenplay.

Chrysler spokesman Alan Miller cautioned that Chrysler is committed to only the initial stage.

Barbara Brogliatti, whose Brogliatti Company handles public relations for SabanScherick Productions, said Edgar J. Scherick would serve as the executive producer on the Miller project, with Doris Kearns Goodwin and Richard Goodwin as co-executive producers.

If the yet-untitled project continues to win a green light from its producers and backers, it may eventually become a two-hour "Chrysler Showcase" movie tentatively planned for broadcast near the 50th anniversary of the Dec. 7, 1941 attack on Pearl Harbor.

SabanScherick Productions will work on the project through Bozell and BBDO Advertising. SabanScherick's most recent television productions include the miniseries "The Kennedys of Massachusetts," "The Phantom of the Opera," "Anything to Survive" and the TNT film "The Secret Life of Ian Fleming."

Brogliatti said the idea for a movie on Miller's heroism on the famous "Day of Infamy" likely grew from discussions between Scherick and the Goodwins on historical stories ripe for television treatment.

The Goodwins are no strangers to American history. Doris Goodwin wrote "The Fitzgeralds and the Kennedys," and Richard Goodwin wrote "The American Condition." Albert Ruben will use the Goodwins' research on the Doris Miller story to prepare the summary and, later, a screenplay.

Miller, born in Waco in 1919, was serving as a mess steward — the only duty in the Navy open to blacks at the time — on the USS West Virginia on the morning that Japan launched a surprise air attack on American Naval forces anchored in the harbor.

When his commanding officer, Capt. Mervyn Sharp Bennon, was wounded, Miller dragged him off the ship's bridge to shelter. Miller then manned a machine gun and opened fire on attacking planes, downing two to four Japanese planes.

His heroic action earned him a Navy Cross and a Purple Heart among other citations. Miller died two years after Pearl Harbor. He was killed in action when a Japanese submarine sank his ship. The Navy named a destroyer escort after Miller in 1972.

Albany, N.Y., historian Leroy Ramsey resurrected Miller's case six years ago, when a reading of the more than 1,200 Medal of Honor citations convinced him at least two black veterans — one of whom was Miller — had strong enough records to merit consideration.

Though about 1½ million black Americans served in World Wars I and II, none received a Medal of Honor, the nation's highest military honor.

Due largely to Ramsey's efforts, and the interest of the late U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas, and U.S. Rep. Joseph DioGuardi, R-N.Y., the Pentagon agreed to a full review of Miller's case. That review is still pending.

Fifth 'Rocky' movie due in November

NEW YORK (AP) — With the fifth, and reportedly final, "Rocky" movie in the can, Sylvester Stallone says maybe now fans can get to know who he really is.

"Rocky's not me. I don't accept all the accolades that Rocky gets," Stallone said in the September issue of Vanity Fair. "The people are responding to the character. When they're cheering, they're cheering for Rocky."

He said his Hollywood image was created mainly by his tough-guy screen characters and divorces, especially his split with actress Brigitte Nielsen. But he said he's not bitter.

"If anybody should have become an alcoholic or a drug addict or a dyed-in-the-wool misogynist, it's me," Stallone said. "I've had every opportunity to cop out. I've been publicly humiliated ... and held up to ridicule. I've never read about a divorce that had as much sexual innuendo as mine did with Brigitte. That was very embarrassing."

Fake cowboy is arrested in Missouri

DANVILLE, Ind. (AP) — A man accused of stealing horses, saddles and even a man's name is now facing charges.

The cowboy, who calls himself William Robert Stanley, was being held Sunday on $300,000 bond in a Springfield, Mo., jail on theft and other charges filed in Greene and Dallas counties in Missouri.

"Horse stealing and saddle theft are crimes that most people think died with the Old West. But it is still really big business," said Hendricks County sheriff's Lt. Stephen G. Golden, who had been tailing the mystery cowboy for months.

Theft charges also are pending in Hendricks County.

Stanley, who has been known to sport red boots and a black hat, is accused of stealing horses and high-priced saddles from New York to Texas and assuming the identity of a Texas man.

The tall, slender, sandy-haired man is suspected of stealing more than 100 horse saddles and other gear during the past three years, Golden said.

The man, who insists he is William Robert Stanley, was arrested Thursday in Springfield along with two alleged accomplices. Norma Hall, 21, and Carl Howard, 24, both of Buffalo, Mo., face charges of burglary and theft, police said.

Police don't know the actual identity of the mystery cowboy. Indiana police say the real Stanley is dead. Investigators tried to take fingerprints Friday, but several of the prints didn't come out because the tips of the man's fingers had been burned or filed off. The cowboy said the damage was caused while he was shoeing horses.

Police also have been trying to trace at least 13 horses that witnesses have reported seeing in the cowboy's trailer in recent weeks. Two of the horses have been confiscated in Hendricks County.

Missouri police believe the cowboy led an operation that stole animals and gear from their state for sale in Tennessee, Oklahoma and Texas.

In turn, Texas authorities believe horses and gear were bought or stolen there and trucked north to small towns in Indiana and other states for resale in auction barns.

The real William Robert Stanley, 34, of Irving, Texas, died in Baylor Medical Center in Dallas on Jan. 18 of complications from the treatment of leukemia. He had been the assistant administrator of the Scottish

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission has filed a federal class-action suit in Los Angeles contending the policy discriminates against women, and especially discriminates against women over 40.

Rite Children's Hospital in nearby Fort Worth.

Before the paperwork about Stanley's death could filter through the government bureaucracy, Golden believes the cowboy raced to Stanley's hometown of Concord, N.H., and obtained an official copy of Stanley's birth certificate.

The cowboy next went to Tulsa, Okla., where he got a driver's license Jan. 26 in Stanley's name with a physical description written to fit himself.

Women see black legislator's election win as 'half a loaf'

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Women lawmakers who fought to elect a female vice president at the National Conference of State Legislatures say they got half a loaf with the election of a black man to the post.

Arizona Rep. Art Hamilton was elected as the NCSL's vice president, the first elected black officer in the conference's 16-year history.

"The women just decided to challenge the system, and they got half a loaf," said Tennessee Rep. Lois DeBerry, a member of the NCSL executive committee.

A group of the legislators attending the convention pushed Texas Rep. Wilhelmina Delco, a black woman, for the vice presidential post. But she was ruled ineligible Thursday because she does not hold a leadership position in her state Legislature, Ms. DeBerry said.

"There was a lot of talk about the women wanting to break in what they called the good old boy network," Ms. DeBerry said.

"I guess it's just like in each representative's House where you have this all-male team," she said. "There have been some changes, but it's still the good old boy network."

Disappointed with her loss, Mrs. Delco said she's satisfied with the gains blacks have made in the organization.

"We've been putting pressure on for a long time," she said. "I think we have raised the sensitivity here."

Hamilton, a Democrat, becomes president-elect in December when Maine House Speaker John Martin takes over as president.

"I think the organization will never be the same again," Hamilton said Friday after the organization wrapped up its 16th annual meeting.

"I started my effort for this office nine months ago," Hamilton said. "I don't feel I was a compromise candidate at all. I was the leading candidate for some time."

Blinking test may be useful

BOSTON (AP) — A test that blows puffs of oxygen at the eye identified Alzheimer's patients in a group of elderly people, suggesting it may help in diagnosing the mind-robbing disease, a researcher says.

The test, which employs a form of learning made famous by Russian scientist Ivan Pavlov, identified 19 of 20 people who had been diagnosed with probable Alzheimer's, said Diana Woodruff-Pak. But it also put seven of 20 healthy subjects in the same category, an error rate that must be reduced, she said.

After more research, the procedure may become a useful addition to the battery of tests used to diagnose Alzheimer's, she said.

Woodruff-Pak is a psychology professor at Temple University in Philadelphia and director of the Philadelphia Geriatric Center's Cognitive Neuroscience Laboratory. She spoke at a weekend session of the American Psychological Association's annual meeting, and in a later interview.

Her study is "intriguing, it's tantalizing," said Deborah Claman, program director for neuropsychology at the National Institute on Aging in Bethesda, Md. More research must be done before the test's usefulness can be assessed, she said.

Alzheimer's disease is a progressive neurological disorder. It causes gradual memory loss, impairment of judgment, disorientation, personality changes, difficulty learning and loss of language skills.

Woodruff-Pak's test checks for a form of learning called classical conditioning. Essentially, that is learning to associate one stimulus with another. Pavlov showed dogs can learn that a particular sound meant a meal was coming.

In the new experiment, participants wore an apparatus that placed the mouth of a tube close to one eye. They heard a beep lasting for a half-second, during which the tube blew a puff of oxygen into the eye, making them blink.

This was done repeatedly, and the test was to see how often people blinked when they heard the beep but before the puff.

Woman is raped in taxicab

FORT WORTH (AP) — Police arrested a 23-year-old man in connection with a reported gang rape of a 17-year-old woman in a hijacked taxi whose driver had been robbed and beaten unconscious.

The man, whose name was not immediately known, was being held under $25,000 bail Sunday at the Tarrant County Jail.

The woman told police as many as 15 men witnessed and participated in the attack, which began about 5:30 a.m. Saturday. She heard someone call out to her as she rode in the cab and she asked the driver to stop.

The woman started talking to the men and at one point, the men tried to sell her drugs, police said. When she refused, they started beating on the cab and grabbing her, Detective J.L. Clamon said.

One of the men threw a large rock at the cab, breaking the windshield and a window on the driver's side. The others pelted the vehicle with rocks and bricks.

As the rock-throwing continued, the driver was pulled from the vehicle and robbed of about $700, police said.

Gang violence up in suburban Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Gang-related drive-by shootings are rattling the windows in Grand Prairie, Garland and Lewisville, and police are concerned about the escalation of suburban gang violence.

Not so long ago, gang activities involved only pranks, rowdy parties and some graffiti in North Texas.

But in April a 16-year-old boy was shot in the leg while lying on the couch in his Grand Prairie home. Seven other bullets were found in and around the house.

"It made us realize we would have to do something before some more innocent people got hurt," Sgt. Steve Braden, head of Grand Prairie's four-officer street crime unit, told The Dallas Morning News.

So far, no estimates of the total number of suburban gangs have been made. But police blotters show that recently:

— Up to 20 gang members clashed July 14 on a Carrollton golf course, leaving three teenagers injured.

— A shootout between rival gangs outside an Arlington recreation center on June 1 killed Dong Nguyen, 17, of Garland and wounded a 14-year-old Arlington girl.

— Gang battles sparked at least 10 drive-by shootings in Grand Prairie this spring.

— Lewisville gang members shot out the windshield of a car full of non-gang youths on May 5, narrowly missing the occupants. On May 18, another gang-related shooting hit a 17-year-old in the arm, and on May 22, a delivery man was beaten by four suspected gang members outside a convenience store.

— And in Garland, a Thanksgiving Day burglary turned into a deadly chase. Police interrupted nine teen-agers taking nearly 50 shotguns and rifles from a pawnshop.

The youngsters fled, and police chased one of their cars to Rowlett where it crashed, killing a 15-year-old boy and a 17-year-old boy, both members of an East Dallas gang.

Police agree that the gangs of the 1990s are not confined to a self-assigned turf.

A recent rash of restaurant robberies by some members of a Grand Prairie gang included hits in Arlington, Irving, Dallas and Cedar Hill.

"There is no part of any city in the (Dallas-Fort Worth area) that is safe from gang violence. Dallas has a big problem. Fort Worth has a gang problem. And it will follow people," said Rod Cochran, an investigator with the youth division of the Dallas County district attorney's office.

Most suburban gangs are smaller, less organized and less criminally evolved than their urban counterparts, officials say. But the acceleration of suburban activity has captured the attention of law enforcement officials.

"We're walking kind of a fine line there. We want people to know gangs exist and can be a problem. At the same time, we don't want to overly alarm people," said Officer Melvin Willis, a psychologist and spokesman for the Mesquite Police Department.

In Carrollton, Sharon Brown of the Police Department's juvenile section fields public queries about the new phenomenon.

"I think a lot of people don't realize they're out there," she said.

"I get phone calls from people who are kind of surprised when they hear about them from their kids. We've been telling them we do have some gang activity. Not the violence like Dallas, but we do have some."

Town's project in a hole

PILOT POINT, Texas (AP) — Jokes about potholes the size of a Volkswagen may not be far from the truth in this North Texas community, where residents say pavement craters could damage their cars.

Some residents even have asked the city for asphalt so they could fill the deep holes themselves.

"What the citizens will do is more or less patching up the areas that we can't get to," City Administrator Natalie Kelly said Sunday.

Ann Sitzes said her asphalt request prompted her brother-in-law, City Council member Gene Sitzes, to propose a program for residents to help fill the worst holes.

Called Adopt a Pothole, the plan will be considered by the City Council at 6:30 p.m. today.

Ms. Kelly said residents would fill potholes with city-supplied asphalt, with a municipal worker then packing the material with a roller.

"I'd like to try it on a trial basis for 60 to 90 days — something like that," said Ms. Kelly.

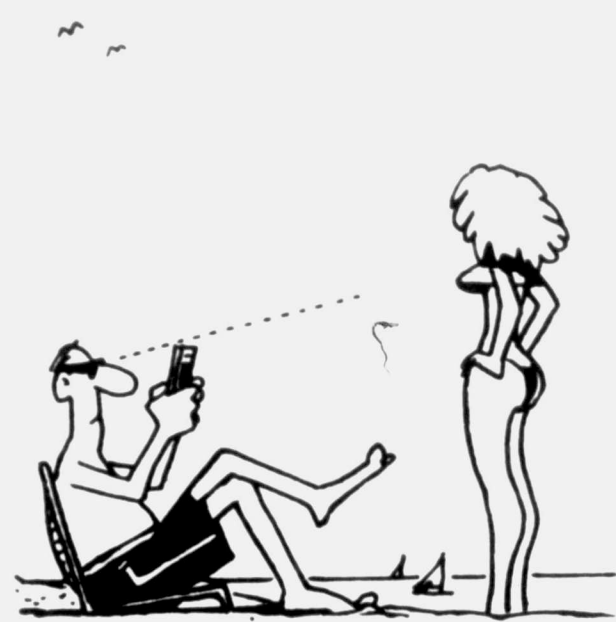

She said the city plans to award a contract today for rebuilding up to six of the city's 18 miles of streets, but cannot afford more repairs for about two years.

Mrs. Sitzes said she requested asphalt last spring so she and her husband, Paul Sitzes, could repair their street.

Willene Crutsinger, another City Council member, said years of neglect and poor drainage created potholes more than a half-foot deep in some places.

"You cannot imagine how bad our streets are," she said.

Reynolds now struggling for audience

HOUSTON (AP) — A six-month test of a new cigarette initially targeted at young women with blue collar jobs shows that men outnumber women Dakota smokers 4-1.

The brand isn't exactly burning up the market in its attempt to compete with established cigarettes, the Houston Chronicle reported.

R.J. Reynolds unveiled Dakota cigarettes six months ago, with test markets in Houston and Nashville. But the company instantly drew criticism from anti-smoking groups over early plans to attract "virile females" in a campaign dubbed "Project VF."

But the Chronicle quoted sources at Adweek magazine reporting an overwhelming majority of the R.J. Reynolds' Dakota smokers are men.

"Now Dakota is going head-to-head with Marlboro, and it will get killed," said Jack Trout, a partner in Trout & Ries, a marketing strategy firm in Connecticut. "To say, 'We are a terrific new men's cigarette,' get out of here. It will never work."

Dakota, designed to compete with Marlboro, is hardly making a dent in demand for the nation's leading brand, the Chronicle reported.

"We haven't seen a demand for them," said Jerry Court, manager of City Wide Wholesale Foods, a Houston distributor. "We don't sell enough of them to worry about."

For every two cartons he sells of Dakota, Court sells 4,000 cartons of Marlboro regular, he said. And that excludes the 12 other varieties of Marlboro.

"It's selling, but it is a very slow mover right now," said Greg Cobos, assistant manager of GSC Distributing Cos. "Every time we get a new product like this, it will sell quite a bit at first. Then it will slow down to almost nothing."

Abraham Ganim, a partner in B&G Tobacco & Candy Co., called the Dakota sales "fair, not the greatest in the world."

The best news for Reynolds comes from Stop N Go, the chain that owns 497 convenience stores in Houston. Of the 150 cigarette brands that Stop N Go carries, Dakota is No. 75 in sales.

"It's doing better than any new cigarette has done in recent times," said Chris Brewster, Stop N Go senior vice president. "In that context, it has been quite a success."

Tobacco distributors in Nashville reported mixed results. Some say Dakota is garnering a respectable share of business, while others say Dakota has captured less than 1 percent of the market there.

For its part, Reynolds refuses to discuss Dakota.

"We are still testing Dakota in Houston and in Nashville," said Reynolds spokeswoman Deidre

Dyer. "That's the only comment we have."

Reynolds backed away from its "virile female" theme and is promoting its newest brand with print and billboard ads and a slew of premiums such as T-shirts, lighters, even disposable cameras.

But the fortunes of Dakota demonstrate a fundamental limitation for tobacco companies wanting to introduce products: New cigarettes must compete in a shrinking market. Cigarette sales have dropped from a peak of 626.5 billion cigarettes in 1981 to 523.6 billion in 1989.

Women and minority groups are the only population segments smoking more than in the past. But tobacco companies have had trouble pitching their products directly to those groups without producing a furor.

ABC newsman Sam Donaldson says he might be too nice

RADNOR, Pa. (AP) — ABC newsman Sam Donaldson says he might be too nice.

The acid-tongued reporter pulled his punches during verbal sparring with "PrimeTime Live" co-anchor Diane Sawyer when the low-rated show premiered last year, he said in the Aug. 18 issue of TV Guide.

"I could not bring myself to slap Diane across the chops," he said. "With George Will (his sparring partner on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley"), I have no problem. Maybe it's a sexist thing, I don't know. I haven't analyzed the motivation."

Despite the show's failure to attract a large audience, Donaldson said pairing him with Ms. Sawyer was no mistake.
