Q—How does Scurry County rank among oil-producing counties in Texas?

A—It varies from month to month. June's preliminary figures released by the Railroad Commission — the latest figures available — ranked Scurry ninth that month with 1,146,038 barrels. Gaines County led with 3,453,382, followed by Andrews, Ector, Yoakum, Hockley, Gregg, Pecos and Crane. Tenth was Kent County.

In Brief

Under alert

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — Bulgaria was under national alert today after anti-Communist demonstrators set fire to the headquarters of the governing Socialist Party and ransacked it, scattering party documents in the street.

Police set up roadblocks on major roads to the capital following Sunday night's protest by thousands of demonstrators who demanded the removal of Communist symbols from the eight-story granite building.

Hundreds of police stood guard today around the partially gutted building. The main opposition group condemned the assault and said it could endanger the transition to democracy.

"Do not let yourselves be provoked, keep the public peace, calm down the impatient," the Union of Democratic Forces said in a statement carried by the official BTA news agency. "Let us show in these dramatic hours that we are sensible and civilized people."

Local

Jury trial

Jury selection was underway today in the trial of a 31-year-old Snyder man charged with aggravated sexual assault and indecency with a child.

Testimony in the 132nd District Court trial was expected to get underway by late this afternoon. Charged in the case is Kenneth M. Bailey of 501 34th St.

Boosters

Snyder All-Sports Booster Club will meet at 7 p.m. today in the high school student center.

New officers will be introduced.

Pay bills

Scurry County commissioners court approved payment of bills as the only action in today's meeting.

Local sales tax rebates up slightly over previous year

Sales tax rebates received by the City of Snyder were up 4.62 percent for the month and 2.13 percent for the year, according to the state comptroller's office.

The checks reflect taxes collected on June sales and reported in late July by businesses filing monthly returns and sales taxes reported by quarterly filers whose collections reflect sales made in April, May and June.

Merchants collect state and local taxes and send them to the comptroller's office with their tax returns. The state keeps its share and sends cities and counties the local portion each month.

The July checks showed Snyder received $83,903.99, compared to $80,199.94 for the same month a year ago. For the current fiscal year, Snyder has received $524,953.80, up 2.13 percent from $513,109.95.

Scurry County's rebates were down 4.80 percent for the month, but up 8.96 on a year-to-date basis.

July's checks to the county amounted to $51,846.06, down 4.80 percent from $54,459.95 a year ago. The county has received $33,266.37 on its one-cent tax for the year, as compared to $305,817.56 last year.

Sales tax rebates for area communities are as follows:

—Abilene: Received $1,927,351.18, up 118.40 percent from $882,499.37. The year-to-date total of $9,128,550.09 is up 70.72 percent from last year.

—Andrews: Received $78,507, up 12.57 percent from $69,743.80. The year-to-date total of $458,952.72 is up 196.76 percent from last year.

—Big Spring: Received $191,899.08, up 8.56 percent from $176,765.64. The year-to-date total of $997,084.34 is up 3.86 percent from last year.

—Colorado City: Received

$39,050.15, down 2.92 percent from $40,223.27. The year-to-date total of $241,616.27 is down 6.63 percent from last year.

—Lamesa: Received $56,060.41, down 12.77 percent from $64,264.89. The year-to-date total of $333,353.37 is down 9.25 percent from last year.

—Jayton: Received $2,089.01, up 21.01 percent from $1,726.37. The year-to-date total of $5,749.45 is up 11.11 percent from last year.

—Lubbock: Received $1,718,953.20, down 1.38 percent from $1,666,298.88. The year-to-date total of $10,505,711.43 is up 2.40 percent from last year.

—Post: Received $19,222.43, down 13.26 percent from $22,161.13. The year-to-date total of $107,941.93 is down 1.87 percent from last year.

—Roby: Received $2,320.37, down 10.18 percent from $2,583.42. The year-to-date total (see SALES, page 8)

Cloud-seeding study targets Thomas, Spence watersheds

Colorado River Municipal Water District is conducting a 30-day scientific evaluation involving cloud-seeding which will target watersheds for Lakes J.B. Thomas and E.V. Spence.

The evaluation began Aug. 20 and will end Sept. 20. It is made possible by $46,000, provided by the Texas Water Development Board.

For 19 of the past 20 years, CRMWD has engaged in seeding of convective summer clouds to enhance precipitation. Results in the target area and elsewhere have proven the tool works, officials have said. Whereas in the past, the district has seeded promising single cloud cells, the present experiment will involve randomized seeding of cloud clusters, according to Ray P. Jones, the district's meteorologist.

Selecting the appropriate clusters which not only meet the parameters of seeding but also offer the promise of wider coverage will be in the hands of Dr. Bill Woodley of Woodley Weather Consultants, Boulder, Colo.

He will accompany pilot Jim Wood of Atmospherics, Inc., in a Cessna 421-C, converted for cloud penetration and equipped for instruments reflecting pressures, moisture content, direction, and temperature. If clouds meet a fixed criteria, Dr. Woodley will radio Jones at the old Howard County airport where the Skywatch radar is located. On orders, Jones will open a sealed envelope from the file covering a certain area.

Instructions inside the envelope tell whether to seed. There is no choice; human bias is ruled out.

"If we do this enough times under approximate conditions, we may come up with some definite answers to the probability of desired results," said Dr. Woodley.

Until now, most of the research and seeding have been based on treating every sizeable cloud promising results.

"We're going to stay away from the big stuff — 35,000 feet and above — in this particular study," said Jones.

Meanwhile, Mike Douglas, pilot for the district's regular seeding operation, will be working on clouds calculated to produce rain over the target area from Big Spring to Lamesa, Snyder and Robert Lee. Wesley Cox will check the rain gauge network after every operation to (see SEEDING, page 8)

Restrictions placed on Iraqi diplomats

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department summoned Iraq's ambassador today and informed him that new restrictions were being imposed on the movement of Iraqi diplomats, U.S. officials said.

The restrictions were outlined by Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger to Iraqi Ambassador Mohamed Al-Mashat.

was not disclosed. The U.S. action follows an Iraqi crackdown on the operations of the U.S. Embassy in Kuwait, which has been ringed for the past several days by Iraqi troops who have prevented anyone from entering or leaving the compound.

Iraqi authorities also have cut off water and electricity to the embassy. The State Department, defying an Iraqi demand, is keeping the embassy open as a symbol that the United States does not recognize the Iraqi conquest and annexation of Kuwait.

The administration remains hopeful, however, that worldwide economic sanctions can force President Saddam Hussein from Kuwait.

"He's a classic case of someone who is vulnerable to sanctions," Thomas Pickering, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, said of Saddam.

Oryx executive to speak Tuesday on horizontal drilling

A joint civic club luncheon featuring a vice president of Oryx Energy Company, will be held Tuesday at the Snyder County Club.

Tickets are $6.60, and the meeting is open to the public.

Tax rate before city

Two items are on the agenda when the Snyder city council convenes at 6:30 p.m. today at City Hall.

First item is a meeting to set the city's tax rate for 1990-91.

The city has proposed a tax rate of .3871, or almost six percent above the effective tax rate. The tax revenue would help fund a $5.5 million budget already given council approval.

The proposed tax rate is expected to generate $843,784 in tax revenue. The other major source of revenue would be from utilities where a five percent rate hike has already been approved.

The budget includes a 2.5 percent pay hike for 78 city employees.

Following the budget hearing, the council will hear an engineering report concerning a proposed plan to raise the elevation of two water towers in north Snyder.

John Kelley, an engineer with Parkhill, Smith and Cooper of Lubbock, will make the report. Estimated cost of raising the two towers at 24th St. and Ave. B and at College Ave. and 4th St. is $302,000.

At a July 23 meeting, council members questioned the expected benefits of raising the storage tanks and if the condition of the two tanks had been evaluated.

James E. Roberts, vice president for production since July, 1987, will speak on horizontal drilling.

Tickets may be purchased by calling Dan Hicks, program chairman, at 573-8581; or Lions President Don West at 573-3555.

Oryx has substantial interests in Scurry County. It is an owner and operator of the old Sun Gas Plant, it purchased BHP's interest in the Diamond M plant in 1989, and it has a 24.8 percent interest in the SACROC unit.

In 1989, Oryx and Chevron USA were in negotiations for Oryx to purchase Chevron's 20 percent interest in the SACROC unit.

Roberts was vice president of Sun Exploration and Production and took the same position with Oryx when it separated from Sun Company, Inc. on Nov. 1, 1988.

Roberts joined the Sun organization in 1959 as a gas engineer trainee in Silver. From 1960 to 1965, he was a field engineer for the southwest division production department in Delmitz. From 1965 to 1973, Roberts held engineering management positions for Venezuelan Sun Oil; the last three years as manager of the gas department in Maracaibo.

After a year as operations engineer for Sun International, in Philadelphia, Roberts began a four-year assignment as vice president and general manager, first for Indonesia Sun in Jakarta and then for North Sea Sun in London.

Roberts returned to the U.S. in 1978 as district manager in Corpus Christi for the newly formed Sun Gas Company. In 1980, he was transferred to Dallas as manager of reserves development for Sun Gas.

He moved to Sun headquarters (see SPEAKER, page 8)

"The strategy is to put maximum pressure on Iraq through the U.N.," Pickering said.

"We're watching if the sanctions are going to bite and how rapidly," Pickering said on NBC's "Today" show. Pickering said Saddam is "heavily dependent on oil exports," and "it might be a month or two before it begins to bite."

"I can see a peaceful way out of it," national security adviser

Brent Scowcroft said Sunday. "Saddam Hussein must now see he's facing overwhelming world opinion."

"He is casting about for a way out of the box in which he finds himself," Scowcroft said.

A final piece of the administration strategy was set in place on Saturday when the United Nations Security Council agreed to authorize the use of military (see IRAQ, page 8)

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1990 Universal Press Syndicate

EDITOR'S NOTE: Abby is on a two-week vacation. Following is a selection of some of her favorite past letters.

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote to you a few years back asking why a married man would pick up some tramp and treat her like a lady, then turn around and treat his wife (who was really a lady) like a tramp. Please try to locate it because your answer was one of the best things I've ever read, and I desperately need it now.
SAME BOAT IN ALLENTOWN

DEAR SAME: A sharp-eyed secretary with a mind like a steel trap found it, and here it is:

DEAR ABBY: Why will a married man pick up some tramp and treat her like a lady, then turn around and treat his wife (who is a lady) like a tramp?
MINNIE

DEAR MINNIE: A man picks up a tramp because he wants a female companion who is no better than he is. In her company he doesn't feel inferior. He rewards her by treating her like a lady.

He treats his wife (who is a lady) like a tramp because he feels that by degrading her he will bring her down to his level. This makes him feel guilty, so to get even with his wife for making him feel guilty, he keeps right on punishing her.

DEAR ABBY: My husband owns his own business and travels over a large territory, which means he must be away from home over the weekend quite often. He keeps asking me to meet him out of town for the weekend, as he gets lonesome for me.

Abby, we have three children, 8, 11 and 13, and although I can always get someone to take care of the children, I have mixed emotions about running off and leaving them just to keep my husband company. What would you do?

TRAVELER'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I would join my husband as often as common sense and practicality allowed. I would rather have someone taking care of my children than my husband.

DEAR ABBY: How would you define old age?
GETTING THERE

DEAR GETTING: To recycle an old cliché, old age, like beauty, lies in the mind of the beholder.

But I would say that you've reached it when:

You need your glasses to find your glasses.

You walk into another room and wonder what you went there for.

People start telling you you're looking good, but no one says you're good-looking.

You pass up a romantic encounter because you're worried about your heart.

Don't put off writing thank-you notes, letters of sympathy, etc., because you don't know what to say. Get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Shellfishing barred by 'Red Tide' alert

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Health officials have closed two Texas Coast bays to shellfishing because of an outbreak of micro-organisms called "red tide" in the Rockport area.

The micro-organisms, which four years ago killed millions of fish, prompted the precautionary closure of Copano Bay and parts of Aransas Bay.

The red tide outbreak was identified Thursday afternoon by state health department officials.

Texas Parks and Wildlife officials said although the micro-organisms that make up the red tide are in low concentrations, an increase could kill large numbers of fish.

"This outbreak is in such an early stage that no one's really sure where it has occurred," Parks and Wildlife spokesman Charlie Chandler told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times. "But when it starts up it could go on for months."

Red tides occur when certain toxin-producing micro-organisms reproduce, said Tony Amos, research associate with the University of Texas Marine Science Institute in Port Aransas.

Astrograph

by Bernice Bede Osol

Aug. 28, 1990

Trends and conditions that have an affect upon your work or career should take a turn for the better in the year ahead. At last you'll be able to flow with the tide instead of bucking it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Domestically oriented activities are the ones likely to prove the most satisfying for you today. You might want to putter around the house or perhaps help your mate weed the garden. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland OH 44101-3428.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This might be the time to do something about that brief holiday you've been considering. Today and tomorrow you may be able to find fun objectives at not too great a distance.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) More than one channel offers opportunities for personal gains at this time. Be alert so that you can capitalize on any profitable developments that allow you to get a foot in a door.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Take the initiative today in an arrangement where you are involved with others who have been remiss to take action on a mutual interest.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If there is something secretive you've been working on, continue to be closed mouth about it even though you might be extremely eager to tell your friends what you have up your sleeves.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be extremely attentive today if someone talks about a new endeavor in your presence that is similar to something new on which you've been working. You may learn something of value.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You are likely to be more successful today if you rely less on others and depend more on yourself. You can do whatever needs doing, all it takes is faith.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Things in general should go rather smoothly for you today, because you're likely to view life from a philosophical perspective. That which normally rattles you will be taken in stride.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) An interesting joint venture might develop for you either today or tomorrow. If there is something of this nature you're contemplating, try to do a little ground work in advance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There is a chance you will be a better decision maker today than you will be tomorrow, so if you have to make some important judgments, it's best not to postpone matters.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be logical and methodical regarding your labors today, but also be resourceful. If you apply yourself, you should be able to figure out ways to lighten your burdens.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be careful both today and tomorrow that you do not let persons less competent than yourself manage something you should be handling.

Future face okay

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Miss Oklahoma Cynthia Lynne White got a glimpse of her future face and was pleased with what she saw.

Miss America contestants gathered at the Franklin Institute Science Museum on Sunday for a tour of a new series exhibits on the 21st century.

Miss White braced herself as she gazed into an "aging machine" that uses a computer to predict what people will look like in years to come.

Miss White's image gained a few wrinkles but otherwise changed only slightly.

Liberia: a whirlpool of tribal conflict

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Ten years ago, warriors of the Krahn tribe led a bloody campaign of revenge against Liberians descended from American slaves, who had ruled the country since it was founded in 1847.

Now the Krahn, and their allies of the Mandingo tribe, are themselves being hunted in a tribal war waged without mercy.

Members of the Krahn tribe kill people of other tribes, and the others kill Krahn, solely because of tribal allegiances.

Descendants of the freed slaves brought here early in the 19th century by American civil rights groups are known as American-Liberians. Their forbears organized the True Whig Party, which ruled without interruption, and American-Liberians were widely accused of brutalizing the native inhabitants.

A revolution in 1980 led by Samuel Doe brought an end to their rule.

President William Tolbert was killed in his executive mansion on April 12, 1980. A week later, 13 of Tolbert's ministers and heads of government corporations were executed in public, tied to stakes on the Atlantic beach near the mansion.

The coup and subsequent executions were the work of Doe and 16 other non-commissioned officers from the Krahn homeland, Grand Gedeh County, in the distant eastern interior. Many were illiterate and had never been in touch with civilized life.

Liberia's new rulers appeared to have no sense of money, and the result was economic disaster. American-Liberians kept a low profile.

Since they had no tribe of their own, they became known collectively as the Congo tribe. Congo was a popular term at the time of the U.N. operation to save the former Belgian Congo, now Zaire, from chaos.

A part of Monrovia is known today as Congo Town, after the American-Liberians who settled there.

After Doe's coup, the Krahn were the masters.

Doe ran the country like a private estate. The army commander, Brig. Gen. Thomas Quiwonkpa, attempted a coup in 1985 and was killed.

Air Guard...

Texas unit stationed at Dover

DOVER AIR FORCE BASE, Del. (AP) — Willie Peterson and his wife, Anita Eral-Peterson, got out of the Air Force for fear they would be assigned to different bases.

They opted to finish their military commitment in the Air National Guard. They're still together.

They've been deployed together to Dover Air Force Base and have had to leave their 17-month-old son behind in Dallas.

"It was a possibility of being deployed but I never thought both of us could go. I thought they would like, take him," Eral-Peterson said of her husband Sunday.

They both said that although they have a commitment to the military, they can't wait to get back to Dallas to see their son, Terrell, who is being cared for by relatives.

Peterson and his wife were among three platoons of guardsmen from the 136th Mobile Aerial Port Squadron in Dallas who arrived at Dover early in the afternoon for an indefinite stay to help ship supplies to the Middle East.

The 91 guardsmen will work alongside about 120 Air Force personnel at the busiest air cargo center operated by the Department of Defense. Dover Air Force Base is home to 38 C-5 cargo jets used to transport heavy equipment, supplies and troops to the Middle East.

Since American troops were deployed to the Middle East, base officials said cargo shipments have risen from 4,000 tons monthly to as much as 8,000 tons. Officials said the rate could go even higher when regular resupply missions begin.

"Our people have been on 12-hour shifts for two weeks with little time off. It's going to be a hectic time for you all, and a lot of hard work," Col. Robert Murdock, vice commander of the 436th Military Airlift Wing told the guardsmen during a briefing.

Over the past few weeks, about 100 volunteer Air Force reservists from around the country have helped get the cargo shipped out, said 2nd Lt. Teresa Schallock, a base spokeswoman.

Organizers gearing up for big Texas festival

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dozens of performers, artists and chefs are being contacted for an unprecedented Texas-sized celebration at Kennedy Center next summer.

They will bring Lone Star culture to the nation's capital for two weeks in June during the giant Texas Festival.

Planners hope to have $3 million raised by October to help pay for the event. That's when they plan to announce the major artists — from symphonies to ballet companies to ice house bands — that have agreed to perform.

About $1.5 million has been pledged so far, said Jean Kahn, Dallas-based festival coordinator.

"It really is falling into place well. It's been easier to do than we ever thought it might be," Ms. Kahn said.

Texas celebrities, including Van Cliburn, Mary Martin and Carol Burnett, are helping out.

Planners were sure to invite the top Texans in Washington, President and Mrs. Bush.

Since Gov. Bill Clements announced the festival last spring, about 300 people, mostly volunteers, have started working on it in Texas and Washington. The festival is the first Kennedy Center presentation to focus exclusively on the culture of one state.

"That's really what Kennedy Center is for, to be a national forum for performing arts of the United States as well as the performing arts of the world," center spokeswoman Mary Johnson said.

She said Texas was chosen because of its varied culture. "We want to surprise people with the diversity of Texas," she said.

Jim Bernhard, who is active in the Houston drama community, leads the artistic team choosing the performers. More than 600 Texas artists are being considered.

Andrew Lloyd Webber's "Phantom of the Opera" will be under way in one of the main halls while the Texas Festival is at the Kennedy Center. But festival events will take over the other halls, lobbies, even the restaurants.

Texas cuisine will supplement the normal menu at the center and some of the state's best-known chefs will make guest appearances. One cafe will have a jazz feel, while another takes on a western flavor, Ms. Kahn said.

King, three others in Hall of Fame

SENECA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — Tennis great Billie Jean King and three other women pioneers have been inducted into the National Women's Hall of Fame.

King on Sunday became the only athlete besides golfer Babe Didrikson Zaharias to receive the honor.

"Although I hate being number two, being second behind Babe is OK with me," she said.

Former chief says officer unjustified in shooting

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Police Chief Lee P. Brown said an officer who killed a black motorist never should have shot at the man whose death further strained relations between the department and the minority community.

Scott Tschirhart shot Byron Gillum eight times during a routine traffic stop Nov. 15. Brown, now police commissioner for New York City, dismissed Tschirhart over the shooting.

Brown told arbitrator Charles Morris, a Southern Methodist University law professor, that he believed officer Tschirhart probably wasn't justified in firing even one shot at Gillum.

Gillum, 24, who was shot four times in the back, was the third black man that Tschirhart had killed in his seven years with the Houston Police Department. Grand juries declined to indict him in any of the cases.

Tschirhart, 27, who is white, said he saw a gun between the bucket seats of Gillum's car and shot the off-duty security guard when he made a move toward it. The gun was later found in the car after Gillum escaped through a window and died in a grassy area nearby.

"Looking at the totality of the event, the first shots were not justified, but that couldn't be substantiated. The shots in the back were not justified," Brown testified Saturday in his first public comments on the shooting.

Brown said that while he was in Houston he revised standards for police use of deadly force and that Tschirhart should have handled the situation differently.

"The officer's safety should be paramount," Brown said. "The objective is not to shoot someone, but to take care of the officer."

Brown testified that when Tschirhart saw the gun, he should have ordered Gillum to place his hands on the steering wheel. Then, he said, Tschirhart would have had the opportunity to use Gillum's car as a shield to take cover if Gillum moved for the weapon.

Brown said Tschirhart knew that Gillum was a security guard and that it would not be unusual for him to have a gun. In addition, Brown said Tschirhart radioed to dispatchers that Gillum had a bad attitude and asked them to find some outstanding warrant for Gillum's arrest.

Brown fired Tschirhart in January after an internal affairs investigation of the shooting. After two Harris County grand juries declined to indict him for the shooting, Tschirhart sought an arbitration hearing to get his job back.

Gillum's death came only two weeks after a black woman, Ida Lee Delaney, was killed by a Hispanic officer — one of three off-duty officers who chased her down a Houston freeway while they were returning from a night of drinking. Ms. Delaney, who was on her way to work, finally pulled over to a highway shoulder where a work crew was doing repairs. She and one officer, Alex Gonzales, exchanged gunfire and she was killed.

Gonzales was convicted of voluntary manslaughter and sentenced to seven years in prison. He is appealing the conviction. The other two officers were not indicted.

Two win lookalike contest

SLATON, Texas (AP) — The Peggy Sue immortalized in song by rock 'n' roll pioneer Buddy Holly returned to Texas to judge a Buddy Holly lookalike contest.

But Peggy Sue Rackham of Sacramento, Calif., couldn't make up her mind Saturday. She chose co-winners, Sherrell Wilson and Richard Edwards, both of Slaton.

Slaton is about 15 miles from her hometown of Lubbock, where Holly also grew up.

"Peggy Sue," a hit by Holly and his group, the Crickets, initially was called "Cindy Lou," after Holly's niece, but the name was changed during a recording session in 1957. Ms. Rackham said.

Ms. Rackham married the Crickets' drummer, Jerry Allison, in 1958. They shared a honeymoon in Mexico with Holly and his bride, Maria Elena.

Florida expert Russ Arnold pulled off a remarkable coup a few months ago. He thought he was sacrificing against a vulnerable six hearts, but watch what happened.

West led a heart. Declarer won the ace in dummy, pitching his lone spade. Next came dummy's queen of spades. East played the king, and declarer ruffed with the five-spot. South continued with the three of diamonds, West following innocently with the deuce. Declarer called for the four from dummy. When that held the trick, East showing out, the 10 of spades was continued from the North hand. East covered with the ace, and declarer ruffed. Back to dummy's ace of diamonds, and the spade suit was run, declarer pitching all his club losers. So what started out as a sacrifice became a doubled grand slam made.

Do you see the grievous error committed by West? Of course it's too bad that he led a heart rather than either black suit, but that can be excused. Nevertheless, West should expect his partner to be void of diamonds. (What else could explain the opening six-heart bid?) And he should realize that declarer South knows this as well. So a cursory examination of the diamond spots in his own hand and the dummy should make him realize that on the lead of the diamond three from South, he must rise with the queen, saving the deuce. This deprives declarer of the additional entry needed to dummy and results in the doubled slam being set three tricks.

New pageant chief brings different style to the job

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — The quiet manner of the man picked to head the Miss Texas Scholarship pageant isn't anything like the flamboyant style of predecessor B. Don Magness, who resigned last week under fire.

Barry Hall does not wear flashy clothes or pinky rings. And he says he never will be photographed for Life magazine lounging in a jade green jacuzzi filled with mountains of Mr. Bubble and smoking a fat cigar, as Magness was.

"B. Don can get away with that, but I couldn't," Hall said with a laugh. "He's a showman who trusts everyone, but that is just not my style."

Hall, the former pageant president, was picked last week to replace Magness as chief executive officer of the Miss Texas Scholarship Pageant.

Magness stepped down from the top pageant post under growing scrutiny. A Life magazine article started a media blitz when it depicted him as a "lewd and crude" good ol' boy who asked some contestants to model swimsuits unchaperoned at his home and called other contestants "sluts."

It also triggered other reports suggesting that Magness attempted to influence some local pageants.

Magness stepped down at a pageant board meeting last week, saying he believed that the firestorm surrounding him would hurt Miss Texas Suzanne Lawrence's chances Sept. 8 at the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City, N.J.

"He has been a good leader of the pageant and we accepted his decision with regret," Hall told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

He said he and Magness are close friends with very different personal styles.

Those differences will be reflected in how Hall runs the pageant.

"I've always said B. Don and I worked well in the pageant together for 29 years because he's the more outgoing fellow who enjoys being out front while I enjoy staying back in the office taking care of business," Hall said.

Magness said he was happy with Hall's selection.

JV takes 3rd... SHS spike squads compete in events

MONAHANS — Snyder's varsity volleyball team competed in the Monahans Tournament here Friday coming out with a 2-4 game record in the pool-play format.

Teams started each two-game set with four points each and the first team to 15 was declared the winner of that game. Winners did not have to win by a minimum of two points as in regular-season play.

"We're starting to get a little bit," said Lady Tiger coach Patty Grimmett.

"The tournament was a good experience for us. The girls are working better together."

El Paso Bowie defeated SHS, 9-15 and 8-15 in the tourney opener for both clubs.

Snyder took the first game against Monahans, 15-11 before falling in the second by the same score and the Lady Tigers were nipped by Odessa, 14-15 in game one after tying the score at 14-11.

The locals tripped Odessa in the second tilt, 15-9.

Snyder's junior varsity spikers captured third place in the weekend's Key City Tournament in Abilene.

Julie Johnson scored 18 points Saturday followed by Melody Sargent with 17 to pace the Lady Tiger attack.

The SHS JV trounced first-round foe San Angelo Central, 15-4, 15-3 then took Abilene High to three games before falling to the Lady Eagles.

Abilene edged Snyder, 17-15 in the first game followed by a 15-9 win by the Lady Tigers forcing a third and deciding game that Abilene won by a slim 15-13 margin.

Junior varsity players came back from the Abilene loss to defeat Breckenridge, 15-5, 16-14, for third place.

"Overall, we did a good job," said JV coach Laura Holt.

"We missed some serves at costly times, but we're still pleas-

World Series of Golf...

Olazabal blisters field in win

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Jose Maria Olazabal is no longer a little fish on this side of the big pond.

Olazabal made his first victory on this side of the Atlantic a memorable one, winning by a dozen strokes in the World Series of Golf. The 24-year-old Spaniard, who has won eight titles in Europe and one in Japan, labeled himself as a player to watch with his commanding victory on Sunday.

"I don't know if it was historical, but I know I broke all the records," he said.

Olazabal dominated from start to finish.

He followed a record opening round of 61 with three consecutive 67s to finish at 18-under 262. The tournament-record 61 was the low round of the year on the PGA Tour and his 262 total was four strokes better than the previous low this year.

Once he got the lead, Olazabal made sure he didn't lose it. He didn't make a bogey over the last 39 holes and had just three for the tournament. U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, who was second going into the final round, had five bogeys on the front side alone and still finished third.

Olazabal's 12-stroke margin over runner-up Lanny Wadkins was the largest on the PGA Tour

U.S. Open starts today

NEW YORK (AP) — Two years after he won the U.S. Open championship, Mats Wilander may be happy just to get past the first round.

Wilander is the opponent for eighth-seeded Brad Gilbert today as the Open begins its two-week run at Flushing Meadow.

"Six months from now I want to be top 20, top 10," Wilander, who in 1988 won three of the four Grand Slam tournaments and was ranked No. 1 in the world, said last week. "If that doesn't happen, then I've got to think about things."

He might begin thinking tonight when, by the luck of the draw, the Swede is forced to face Gilbert, one of the world's top players. In an exhibition tournament last week, Wilander lost to Todd Martin, who will begin his junior year at Northwestern University next month.

The Swedish right-hander, who took a five-month sabbatical earlier this year, is currently ranked 58th in the world and falling fast.

"I'm worrying about my own game so much I don't enough have space in my mind to worry about the big points," Wilander said. "I'm trying to keep the ball in play."

The Wilander-Gilbert match is scheduled to be the last one played on center court tonight, and the fifth match in Louis Armstrong Stadium at the National Tennis Center.

Play got underway at 11 a.m. EDT today when French Open champion Monica Seles of Yugoslavia met Elena Pam-poulova of Bulgaria. Seles is one of the favorites, along with defending champion Steffi Graf and Martina Navratilova, to capture the women's crown at the year's final Grand Slam tournament.

Last year, Seles was eliminated in straight sets by crowd favorite Chris Evert in the quarterfinals. It was the last match victory in Evert's 19-year career.

"The Stadium Court — that's what killed me," Seles said. "It was the first time it was full and I could see all the famous people I see in the magazines. I feel like it wasn't me out there the way I played."

This year, Seles said, is different.

"Right now, I feel if I play my game at the Open, somebody will have to play great to beat me."

"A year ago I was just a young kid," Seles said. "Now I feel I can do much better because I have more experience. It doesn't matter who's in the stands or if the planes (from nearby LaGuardia Airport) come overhead. I feel I'm prepared for the Open."

Two long-time crowd favorites will be missing this year. Evert retired after last year's tournament, while Jimmy Connors, a five-time U.S. Open champion, withdrew Sunday because of a strained left calf suffered Saturday in a match against Ivan Lendl.

However, it wasn't the injury that kept Connors, who will celebrate his 38th birthday on Sunday, from trying to add to his records at the Open.

"I think it would better for me not to play the Open due to the fact that I don't think I can go out there and play the kind of tennis necessary to give it an all-out effort," Connors said.

Hurricanes tagged No. 1 in preseason

by The Associated Press
Notre Dame still can't catch Miami.

The Hurricanes, who edged the Fighting Irish for the No. 1 ranking in college football last season, did it again in The Associated Press' 1990 preseason poll.

Miami topped Notre Dame by 25 points in voting by a nationwide panel of 60 sports writers and broadcasters.

"It's nice to be recognized, but it also puts a burden on you," Miami coach Dennis Erickson said. "When you're No. 1, everybody wants to play their best against you."

The Hurricanes, who have won three of the last seven national championships, received 24 first-place votes and 1,431 points. Notre Dame was runner-up with 22 first-place votes and 1,406 points.

It's the first time Miami has been ranked No. 1 in the preseason poll, which started in 1950. Prior to this year, the Hurricanes' highest preseason ranking was No. 3 in 1986.

Miami lost six starters from last year's dominating defense, which allowed the fewest points and yards in the nation. But the Hurricanes return eight starters on offense, including Heisman hopeful Craig Erickson at quarterback.

"We have a chance to be a real good team," coach Dennis Erickson said. "It's going to be a challenge, though, because our schedule is a lot tougher. Last year, we won some games when we didn't play well. I don't think we'll be able to do that this year."

Certainly not on Oct. 20, when the Hurricanes visit Notre Dame. The last three seasons, the winner of that game has gone on to capture the national title.

Miami and Notre Dame both lost one game last season, but the Hurricanes finished No. 1 because they beat the Irish 27-10.

Auburn is third in the preseason poll, Florida State is No. 4 and Colorado is No. 5. Auburn received three first-place votes and 1,311 points, while Florida State — which handed Miami its only defeat last season — got six first-place votes and 1,268 points.

Colorado, which was No. 1 last season before losing to Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl, received four first-place votes and 1,258 points. The Buffaloes opened the season on Sunday by tying No. 8 Tennessee 31-31 in the Pigskin Classic at Anaheim, Calif.

The remaining first-place vote in 15 years and the fifth-largest ever. The most lopsided win this year had been five shots.

Wadkins had held the previous tournament record of 13-under 267 when he won in 1977.

"Nobody scared it for 13 years and then it was shattered," he said. "And nobody else was even close. The impressive thing is that second place was so far back."

Wadkins, with a closing 66, was runnerup at 274 — a score that would have won the last four World Series.

"I would have taken 6-under and thought it would win easily," he said.

The victory, worth $198,000 to Olazabal, may have finally made him a recognizable, if mispronounced, name in the States. It also may get him out from the shadow of fellow Spaniard Seve Ballesteros, a winner of five major championships.

"I wasn't very well known in the States... I'm trying to make my own way," said Olazabal, whose preferred pronunciation is oh-la-TTHAH-bull. "The only way to do that was by winning tour-

Rookie kicker wins Pokes' starting job

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys rewarded the surprising performance of rookie kicker Ken Willis by cutting veteran Luis Zendejas.

Willis, a free agent from the University of Kentucky, won the position in Saturday's 20-9 exhibition victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers. He hit a 35-yard field goal and an extra point, but the Cowboys were most impressed with his kickoffs.

"The doubt that we had on him was his kickoffs," coach Jimmy Johnson said. "But last night we changed our approach on kickoffs and he was placing the ball very accurately."

Zendejas, who was cut for the third time in his four-year NFL career, hit a 51-yard field goal and missed from 58 yards. He also missed the first two exhibition games with a thigh injury that hampered his ability on kickoffs.

Johnson said he would not be looking to bring in another veteran kicker.

"This was a matter of Ken winning the job," Johnson said. "He's a very mature kicker, especially for a rookie."

Last season, Zendejas, one of five brothers who have kicked in college or the NFL, made five of nine attempts in seven games after he was claimed on waivers from the Philadelphia Eagles.

The Cowboys released five other players Sunday, including running back Junior Tautalatasi nements. This is one step forward."

Despite also winning a 10-year exemption on the U.S. tour, he said he had no plans to alter his current schedule.

Olazabal started the final round the same way he had the previous three — by ravaging the first two holes. He had two more birdies, ending the week with seven birdies and an eagle in eight opportunities.

Even he admitted he was in what the pros refer to as a "zone."

"It seems easy because everything goes right," he said. "You don't think you're going to make bogeys or mistakes. And when you do, you think you'll save them."

Irwin, the reigning U.S. Open champion, faltered to a closing 74 and was third at 3-under 277 — 15 shots back. The only other player to break par was Donnie Hammond, who was at 1-under 279.

Larry Mize was at even-par 280, Greg Norman finished at 281, Tom Kite was at 282 and Payne Stewart at 283.

OC standout picks Auburn

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Rodney Dent, considered among the top sophomore big centers in the country, will attend Auburn after the 1990-91 season, his junior college coach said.

Odessa Junior College coach Dennis Helms said the 6-10 Dent decided to announce his choice early to relieve pressure on his play and studies, just as Nevada-Las Vegas star Larry Johnson did two years ago.

Dent will play his sophomore season at Odessa. He averaged 14 points and nine rebounds in leading the Wranglers to a 32-7 mark last year.

"He just wanted to get it out of the way so he can concentrate on school and on this season," Helms said of Dent's decision Sunday night.

Johnson also committed prior to his sophomore year under Helms.

went to Michigan State. However, only one other voter put the Spartans in the Top 10 and they wound up 23rd.

Michigan, last year's preseason No. 1, is sixth this year. Nebraska is next, followed by Tennessee, Southern Cal, Clemson, Illinois, Alabama, Texas A&M, Arkansas, Virginia, Brigham Young, Ohio State, Pittsburgh, UCLA and Washington.

Rounding out the Top 25 are Penn State, Oklahoma, Michigan State, Houston and West Virginia.

Virginia, which won a share of its first ACC championship last season, made the preseason rankings for the first time in school history.

UCLA and Oklahoma are the only ranked teams that didn't finish in the Top 25 last season. UCLA went 3-7-1 and Oklahoma was 7-4.

A team gets 25 points for a first-place vote, 24 points for second and so on, all the way down to one point for 25th place.

Hospital unit is called to active duty

Obituaries

By The Associated Press

Members of a 1,000-bed Army Reserve hospital unit in Houston will be sent to Fort Hood to replace medical personnel deployed to the Persian Gulf as a convoy from the Central Texas post moved out today, a unit spokesman says.

Most of the 300-plus members of the 4005th Army Hospital augmentation unit have been activated, said Maj. Charles Simmons, a Houston spokesman for the unit said Sunday.

The unit is made up of physicians, nurses and other support personnel such as X-ray and lab technicians, said Simmons, adding he expects selected members to report for duty within seven days.

Simmons confirmed the unit will fill in for deploying Army troops at Darnall Army Hospital at Fort Hood.

"They (unit members) were aware of the possibility of going," said Simmons. "They're ready to do their part."

Most members are from the Houston area but some are from other cities such as Austin, Temple and San Antonio, Simmons said.

Maj. Jon Fory said the callup of doctors, nurses and staff in the 4005th Hospital unit was announced Saturday, along with activation orders for the 136th Mobile Aerial Port Squadron in Louisiana.

Fory said the hospital unit is part of the 807th Medical Brigade based in Seagoville. He said the callup involves about 300 troops.

"It's an augmentation unit. It's not a hospital unto itself," Fory said. "It's the staffing that would support a hospital."

The hospital unit was one on a list released Friday by Rep. Greg Laughlin, D-West Columbia. Laughlin said eight naval reserve units had been targeted for possible activation.

Some Army Reserve and Guard units in Texas have been placed on pre-alert status, he said, meaning they have been notified they may be activated, Fory said.

Those reserve units are the command element of the 383rd Quartermaster Battalion, El Paso; 327th Chemical Co., Bay City; 601st Transportation Detachment at Rio Grande City and 302nd Military Police Co., Fort Worth. The Guard's 136th Communications Battalion, headquartered in Temple, also has been placed on pre-alert status.

The Pentagon declined to confirm the contents of the list, which included another Houston-based medical unit, two Austin-based hospital units, one medical unit from Dallas, one medical unit from San Antonio, a security unit from Corpus Christi and a sealift unit from Orange.

The entire 3rd Armored Cavalry at Fort Bliss, with nearly 4,500 soldiers, 1,700 vehicles and 75 aircraft, will be dispatched to the Middle East, officials say. Elements of the 2nd Armored Division and the 1st Cavalry at Fort Hood also are slated to join Operation Desert Shield in Saudi Arabia.

Officials have not revealed when the units will actually move, saying such information is classified.

Officials at Fort Hood in Central Texas say a convoy moving equipment to Houston was on the road early today.

Three groups of 100 vehicles moved by 600 troops are traveling from Fort Hood through Belton, Round Rock, Taylor, Elgin, Bastrop and La Grange, on the trip, said III Corps media relations officer Jeffe Seigal.

The convoy departed about 4:30 a.m. today and the last vehicle should arrive in Houston by 5 p.m., officials said.

"This will be the first convoy out of Fort Hood," Seigal said. "These are trucks and fork lifts and supply-type vehicles," not combat vehicles, he said. The vehicles and equipment will be shipped to the Middle East, but the soldiers will return to Fort Hood.

The callup of Air National Guard and Air Force Reserve units is the start of a national mobilization of reserves that President Bush authorized Wednesday. The mobilization is expected to continue at least until Oct. 1.

The 136th Signal Battalion headquartered in Temple has been placed on alert for possible deployment, Gov. Bill Clements said. It has units in Houston and San Antonio.

An Army transport command began shipping vehicles and equipment Saturday through the Barber Cut Ship Channel near La Porte in Trinity Bay.

JIM C. STIRLING

Jim C. Stirling

1918-1990

Services are set for 11 a.m. Tuesday at Ira Baptist Church for Jim Clayton Stirling, 72, who died at 6:25 p.m. Saturday at Humana Hospital in Abilene. Masonic graveside services and burial will follow at Hillside Memorial Gardens. Rev. Don Antion and Rev. Dayton McCarter will officiate.

Mr. Stirling was born April 8, 1918, in Red Rock and had lived in Ira most of his life. He married Dena Faye Hill on Oct. 8, 1938, in the Canyon Community of Scurry County.

He was a Baptist deacon for 42 years and a member of the Masonic Lodge No. 934. He was a cotton farmer and a pipefitter and had been active in community activities, until his health prevented him from doing so.

He was preceded in death by one brother, R.D. Stirling.

He is survived by his wife, Dena Faye; two daughters and sons-in-law, Lorita and Don Keller of Buna and Joy and Mike Posey of Brownwood; one son and daughter-in-law, Bob and Linda Stirling of Pasco, Wash.; one sister, Vivian Cummings of Canyon; one sister-in-law, Oleta Stirling of Las Vegas, N.M.; six grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Roland Blackstock, Manley Burrow, Billy Calley, Bob Rosson, W.T. Cox, Lawton Taylor and R.J. Rosson. Members of Mr. Stirling's Sunday school class will be honorary pallbearers.

Ella McPherson

1916-1990

BRECKENRIDGE — Graveside services were set for 1 p.m. today at Cedar Hill Cemetery for Ella McPherson, 74, who died Saturday in an Abilene hospital.

She was the sister of Charbel Robinson of Snyder.

Born in Bonham, she grew up in Amherst and had lived in Hobbs, N.M., before moving to Breckenridge in 1964. She moved to Abilene in 1978 and back to Breckenridge in 1989.

She was a veteran of World War II, having served in the Women's Army Air Corp. She was a member of the Baptist Church and was the widow of John McPherson.

Other survivors include her daughter, Alicia Lewis of Abilene; six grandchildren; and three great-grandchildren.

Girls' bodies found

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Two young girls kidnapped in separate incidents were found dead over the weekend — one in a drainage ditch near her apartment and the other about 60 miles away on a desolate road.

"These cases are always a lot harder. They strike close to home," Lt. Albert Ortiz, head of the San Antonio Police Department homicide division, said at a news conference Sunday.

The girls were the subjects of massive searches, one of which spread through South Texas and ultimately became nationwide. Authorities said they did not believe the deaths were related.

A passerby in an all-terrain vehicle found the decomposed body of 11-year-old Heidi Seeman along Highway 220 Saturday near Wimberly in Hays County, Ortiz said. A strong odor and buzzards flying overhead attracted the motorist's attention.

Heidi disappeared Aug. 4 as she was walking along a road near her San Antonio home. Thousands immediately joined the search for the girl after her abduction. Reward money in the case grew to at least $50,000.

Williams' business secrecy questioned

HOUSTON (AP) — Public Citizen, a public-interest watchdog group, said voters should be concerned about Republican gubernatorial nominee Clayton Williams' practice of keeping business deals and legal settlements secret.

The Houston Chronicle reported Sunday that Williams, a West Texas multimillionaire entrepreneur, has abused lax state court rules to seal business moves and lawsuit manipulations.

"It should cause Texans a great deal of concern that Williams has an established pattern of sealing court files every time he has an opportunity just to prevent people from taking a look at the inner-workings of his business," said Tom Smith, director of Public Citizen.

The massive amount of litigation involving Williams and his companies has become a central focus of an advertising campaign by his Democratic opponent Ann Richards. Television commercials for her campaign depict Williams as a shady businessman and attacks several of his business practices, including his refusal to make public his income tax returns and the use of junk bonds in the buyout of one of his companies.

But Williams' press secretary Gordon Hensley told The Associated Press the candidate did nothing illegal and is controlling his business in a prudent manner.

"Court records of business suits are sealed so that greedy trial lawyers — who incidentally are among Richards' largest campaign contributors — don't file lawsuits at a later date, attempting to use old allegations to essentially extort a similar settlement payment at a later date," Hensley said Sunday. "This is the practice with business lawsuits and also common with medical malpractice suits."

Williams was on vacation and not interviewed for the Chronicle article.

After a three-month examination of Williams' legal maneuvers, the Chronicle reported virtually every one of the lawsuits filed against him, ranging from small injury claims to multimillion-dollar allegations of fraud and price-fixing, were settled out of court and the settlement kept secret at Williams' insistence.

Smith said new court rules that take effect Sept. 1 will make it more difficult to seal records and files in state court. Created by the state Supreme Court earlier this year, the new rules will allow consumer groups and media expanded rights to contest the sealing of files.

But in the past, if both sides in a lawsuit wanted a file sealed, it nearly always was permitted. And Williams took advantage of the rules, the newspaper reported.

ClayDesta Communications, a telecommunications firm which made its chairman Williams a household name through his cowboy-clad commercials, was challenged by a federal lawsuit three years ago.

Many in Gulf wary of long-term U.S. military presence

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — The arrival of powerful U.S. military forces in the Persian Gulf has strongly bolstered the immediate security of many prosperous oil states.

But some analysts say the U.S. forces could become liabilities the longer they stay, and that gulf states truly interested in more security may have to change their government structures to rally more long-term popular support.

King Fahd of Saudi Arabia, who has invited the bulk of the U.S. forces onto the territory of his conservative Islamic nation, has said repeatedly that their presence will be temporary. They will leave as soon as Saudi Arabia no longer faces the threat of invasion from Iraq, according to the king.

But it was a fundamental change in policy to invite non-Muslim military forces into Saudi Arabia, the birthplace of Islam, and sensitivities in the area about foreign forces are high.

"The American military presence is friendly at least for the time being and until the Iraqi danger is repulsed and crushed," said Jassem Murad, a former Bahraini parliament deputy.

"But if the Americans try to prolong their stay in the gulf, they would be regarded as enemies worthy of nothing less than denunciation."

Murad contended that gulf governments "will have to revive and encourage the incipient democratization movements, reconsider the distribution of their countries' wealth and institute a foolproof system of social justice."

Over the past two decades, Kuwait has had, off and on, the only freely elected parliament in the Arab world. It was suspended twice — in 1976 and in 1986 — because of alleged abuses by radical deputies.

Elsewhere in the region, no government has been willing to facilitate the democratic process. Saudi Arabia has promised, but never established, an Islamic constituent body known as a Shura consultative council. Bahrain's three-year democratic experience ended in the dissolution of parliament in 1975. Other countries in the region, without exception, remain under dynastic rule with no elected constituent institutions.

Insulin 'guinea pig' survives 68 years

PEKIN, Ill. (AP) — In 1922, Urvan Ubben's parents had his "funeral picture" taken, certain he'd be the next family member to die of diabetes.

Today, the 77-year-old laughs at the childhood photo and how he cheated death by being one of the first people to test insulin. Experts say he may be the world's oldest surviving diabetic.

"I was one of the guinea pigs when Eli Lilly was trying to mass-produce insulin in Indianapolis back in 1922," Ubben said. "In those days, they figured that if you had diabetes, you didn't have a chance. And my parents were highly skeptical of insulin."

"So when I came back from the experimental treatments in Indianapolis, my parents still thought I was going to die and they wanted a picture of me. So they had my picture taken."

"Years later, I was looking at my mother's old pictures with an aunt. When we came across that photo, she said 'Urv, there's your funeral picture.' We just laughed about it."

Diabetes, a disease caused by excess sugar in the bloodstream, was no laughing matter when Ubben developed it in 1922.

Earlier that year, Ubben's sister Theola died after slipping into a diabetic coma. Ubben already had lost an aunt, an uncle and his great-grandfather to the disease.

"It was quite scary for my parents and they were pretty discouraged," Ubben said. "Insulin had just been discovered earlier that year; no one knew anything about it."

"Of course, now we know it's wonderful stuff. It's kept me alive all these years."

Study says teaching is a revolving door

WASHINGTON (AP) — A predicted teacher shortage probably will not materialize because many veterans who left the profession are returning, a study said today.

The National Center for Education Information said more than a third, 38 percent, of current public school teachers have had at least one break from teaching.

Nearly half, 46 percent, of new teachers hired since 1985 have had at least one break, and 18 percent of these have had two or more breaks.

"Teaching appears to be a revolving door," the study said.

Center director Emily Feistritzer said, "There is absolutely no question" that statistics projecting teacher shortages are not accurate. She said little attention has been paid to the "returning teacher phenomenon."

"All this business of teachers being miserable and leaving is not being borne out in data anywhere," she said.

The study analyzed the results of a 58-question survey of 3,201 current elementary and secondary school teachers — 2,380 public school teachers, 469 teachers who had participated in alternative teacher certification programs in Texas and New Jersey and 352 private school teachers.

Alternative teacher certification flopped 4 years ago, then made it big

NEW YORK (AP) — Garth Brooks, one of country music's hottest young singer-songwriters, says he's glad his first shot at stardom four years ago flopped.

"I wouldn't trade that experience for the world," Brooks said of his trip to Nashville at age 24. "It was what I needed. I had thought the world was waiting for me, but there's nothing colder than reality."

tion programs are for people who did not earn a college degree in teaching. Twelve percent of those teachers who were hired in the last five years have taught before.

The study also showed:

—The teaching force in America is getting older, whiter and more female. The average age of all public school teachers is 42 years; of new teachers hired since 1985, the average age is 35 years. Ninety-two percent of all public school teachers are white and 71 percent are women.

—To become a teacher, alternative routes attract minorities more than traditional certification routes. Forty-three percent of the teachers from the Texas alternative route and 20 percent from the New Jersey alternate route are minorities.

—Alternate route teachers are much more willing to teach in inner cities than those coming through traditional programs. A third, 33 percent, of alternate route teachers say they would be willing to teach in large inner cities, compared with 12 percent of the new hires from traditional programs and 12 percent of all current public school teachers.

—Since most teachers are women, Feistritzer said childbearing was listed most often as the reason for taking a break from teaching.

About three-fourths of all

Brooks said in the Sept. 3 issue of People that he returned to Oklahoma and got married. When he went back to Nashville in 1988, his luck was better.

His debut album sold 1 million copies and launched four No. 1 singles. Brooks was nominated this month for five Country Music Association awards, including male vocalist of the year, song of the year and most promising newcomer.

teachers said they chose the profession because of a "desire to work with young people."

Ninety-three percent of the private school teachers said they were satisfied with their jobs. That compared with 89 percent of the alternative route teachers in Texas and New Jersey, 87 percent of the returning teachers and 83 percent of all public school teachers.

There are 2.3 million public school teachers and another 300,000 private school teachers. Some education-related groups are predicting a shortage, based on teacher attrition, increasing student enrollments and fewer college graduates seeking teaching jobs.

Quake-damaged highway repairs stalled

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — How much trouble could it be to repair a few hundred feet of earthquake-damaged pavement? In the case of Highway 1, plenty.

Half a million cubic yards of the winding, two-lane highway — 800 feet of road and the dirt below — have been sliding into the Pacific since October's quake.

It was closed in January. Ordinarily, a few months of work would have the highway looking brand new.

But Highway 1 isn't an ordinary road. Nature and man keep it unique.

The stretch of road north of San Francisco was carved into a cliff hundreds of feet above the sea. The scenic route chronicled by John Steinbeck linked the northern and southern ends of the state in the days before superhighways.

Because the road cuts through a variety of jurisdictions, a small army of bureaucrats has to approve before repairs can begin.

Stinson Beach residents say the closed section is killing summer tourism. Those living along Panoramic Highway, the mountain route chosen as a detour, complain about heavy traffic they say isolates them from emergency vehicles.

The detour carries about 6,000 vehicles a day — double last summer's figure.

"If this road is blocked and someone up here has a heart attack, the normal six- to seven-minute response time of paramedics could turn into an hour," said Del Goetz, organizer of the neighborhood Highway 1 Emergency Committee.

Business at Stinson Beach, usually a popular summer hangout for tourists and sunbathers, is down an estimated 30 percent.

The California Department of Transportation, which routinely removes slides from the coastal highway, initially estimated it would take three months to clear and repair the fallen road.

But the project was stalled by 13 federal, state and local agencies that didn't want the dirt and blacktop shoved into the ocean or dumped on land they protect.

"What used to be a county road through ranch land is now a state road through state parks surrounded by federal parks near a marine sanctuary at a time when environmental laws not only are very strict, but are being enforced with vigor," said Jerry Hauke, a Caltrans engineer.

Involved are the Army Corps of Engineers, the state Department of Fish and Game, the U.S. Wildlife Service and the Golden Gate National Recreation Area, along with state and local commissions and other groups.

"All of these little agencies have their microscopic duty. That's the only angle they're looking at. Our problem is there is no bureaucracy looking at it from the people's standpoint," said Farhad Mansourian, deputy director of the county Public Works Department.

The environmental impact reports demanded by many of the agencies could have delayed repairs up to three years, Hauke said.

But a compromise worked out earlier this month could reopen the road by next summer at a cost of $3 million to $5 million.

The 13 agencies agreed to a state plan to rebuild the damaged section on more stable ground 200 to 300 feet inland. The proposal calls for pushing only the earth above the present road into the ocean, Hauke said.

The Army Corps of Engineers, which must issue the permit, said formal approval could be given within 45 days of receiving environmental clearance from other agencies.

Goetz said history and red tape shouldn't be allowed to paralyze the present.

"We need to revamp our culture so we don't become mired in the bureaucracy," he said.

Crisis sure to spark environmental debates

WASHINGTON (AP) — Environmentalists are digging in for a new assault on what they consider sacrosanct energy reserves as threatened oil shortages and rising gasoline prices spurred by the Persian Gulf crisis start biting into American pocketbooks.

Iraq's invasion of Kuwait was only a few days old when Sen. Frank Murkowski, R-Alaska, persuaded colleagues to approve a measure that would make it easier to expand oil drilling on federal land, bypassing some environmental restrictions.

The oil industry was just as quick to call for abandoning recent curbs on offshore oil drilling, relaxing requirements for cleaner burning gasoline and drilling in some environmentally sensitive areas.

Although neither Murkowski's nor any of the other proposals has won final congressional approval, environmentalists fear an intensified push by industry to win relief from hard-fought environmental gains when Congress returns from summer recess after Labor Day.

"Now that we're on the verge of another major national debate on energy policy, we're about to be deluged with a lot of bad ideas," Marc Ledbetter of the American Council for an Energy-Efficient Economy said in a recent interview.

Ledbetter and other environmentalists worry that the debate will be fueled by renewed declarations that the United States depends too much on imported oil from the Middle East and thus may be too ready to commit troops to fight for it.

The oil companies are trying to use the Middle East crisis to get Congress to "push the panic but-

Tag business may develop worldwide market

DALLAS (AP) — Technology that was invented to monitor cows could reshape the way transportation and shipping companies track their cargo, says the company that created it.

Dallas-based Amtech Corp., which used the same patented technology for electronic toll tags on the Dallas North Tollway, has spent 3½ years and almost $30 million on plans for the cargo-tracking technology.

The project has been backed by Dallas billionaire H. Ross Perot and the founders of the Blockbuster Video chain.

Drivers on the Dallas tollway use the Amtech system, which works like grocery store scanners that read bar codes on merchandise.

The technology was developed by government scientists in Los Alamos, N.M. In 1972, the Agriculture Department launched a program to implant tiny circuits under a cow's skin to monitor the animal's location and temperature.

Later, the Energy Department became involved in the project to develop a system that could control access to sensitive installations, such as nuclear power plants.

The company says similar systems could be used to track far-flung international fleets.

ton" and wipe out 20 years of public lands protection, complained Peter A. Berle, president of the National Audubon Society.

There is also concern that the latest oil price shocks will complicate final clean air legislation.

Some industry spokesmen are suggesting that skyrocketing oil prices, the threat of armed conflict and a declining economy argue against imposing expensive new environmental controls that eventually will cost at least $20 billion a year.

"We must respect the environment, but can't afford to continue keeping rich U.S. energy potential under lock and key when we're sending young Americans overseas to protect western oil interests," Richard Seibert, vice president of the National Association of Manufacturers, said last week.

Richard Rahn, chief economist for the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, said the Middle East crisis should "wake people up" to the need to balance environmental protection and economic cost.

These arguments are nothing new, said Michael McCloskey, chairman of the Sierra Club. He recalled the "dreadful times" after oil shocks in 1973 and 1979 when environmental programs were under similar attack.

"The oil companies are now trying to get the American people to believe that our country needs to sacrifice its public lands so that it can pump its way out of today's oil disruption," he said.

But McCloskey and other environmentalists say the Middle East crisis also points out the need for more energy conservation and less use of fossil fuels. The burning of fossil fuels is a major cause of global warming and urban pollution.

"There will be some old battles reopened by the oil companies especially, but I'm quite confident that the environmental positions are going to prevail," Christopher Flavin of the Worldwatch Institute said in a recent interview. "The American people will not abandon environmental issues."

Neurological disease is progressive

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Our 50-year-old daughter has been plagued for a number of years with headaches, back pain, weakness when climbing stairs and seizure-like spells during the night. She's been diagnosed with olivopontocerebellar atrophy, and her doctor says there is no treatment. Is this an hereditary disorder, and what can you tell us about it?

DEAR READER: The olivopontocerebellar atrophies include a rare group of inherited neurological diseases marked by progressive nerve malfunction: difficulty walking (ataxia), tight muscles (spasticity), visual difficulties (optic atrophy and retinal disease), problems with circulation and sweating (autonomic dysfunction) and dementia.

The damage involves large areas of the central nervous system and, like all hereditary diseases, is incurable. Symptoms are treated as they occur, for example, circulatory problems, such as low blood pressure, can be helped by salt supplements and cortisone (to raise blood pressure); muscle relaxants often relieve spasticity.

Because your daughter has been diagnosed with an unusual and serious disease of nerves, she should be under the care of a neurologist who can coordinate the many resources she will eventually need, including medication, physical therapy and help at home.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Would you please explain CMV (cytomegalovirus)? I understand it is a combination of hepatitis and mononucleosis.

DEAR READER: Cytomegalovirus infection can be unsuspected in adults. The virus, which is related to herpes, initially causes flu-like symptoms (fever, sore throat and aches) that usually disappear within a few days. The virus may then lie dormant in the system for years, periodically resurfacing to cause fatigue, fever, malaise and rash.

Although CMV is ubiquitous (up to 90 percent of adults have been infected in the past), it rarely causes serious consequences. Nonetheless, some patients develop a disease resembling mononucleosis, with exhaustion, swollen glands and tonsillitis. In others, CMV infection can cause hepatitis, with jaundice, fever and nausea. CMV has, in some cases, been linked to the chronic fatigue syndrome, a poorly understood condition, marked by lethargy and loss of stamina.

Active congenital infection (spread from mother to infant before birth) may be serious and untreatable, leading to stillbirth and post-natal death from hemorrhage, brain damage and liver failure.

CMV is diagnosed by isolating the virus from various body fluids or by demonstrating anti-CMV antibodies in blood tests. The disease is untreatable, but most patients recover uneventfully.

CMV is distinct from the viruses that cause mononucleosis and hepatitis — but it often produces symptoms that mimic these diseases. To give you more information about how viruses cause other disease, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Viruses and Cancer." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Hillside Memorial Gardens has served Snyder and surrounding area for years

Hillside Memorial Gardens, located on the Colorado City Highway, has been serving Snyder and the Scurry County area for many years.

Hillside Memorial Gardens is a perpetual care cemetery governed by the State Banking Department. The one price you pay for perpetual care is the only one you ever have to pay. There are no yearly dues necessary for the upkeep of the property.

The staff at Hillside Memorial Gardens is committed to serving your best interests. W.C. and Greg Graves will be glad to help you with any of your pre-need planning. Everyone plans for the future in one way or another whether with savings or insurance to take care of something that might happen. Why not prepare for the inevitable? Making the decision to purchase a Family Memorial Estate plan now insures that the decision is made together and one is not left to make it alone. Statistics show that these decisions are made 67 percent of the time by widows and children and 33 percent of the time by husbands. The purchase of a Family Memorial Estate plan can also be a savings plan because the deed is the equivalent of a paid up insurance policy.

Lots at Hillside Memorial Gardens are reasonably priced and they offer a Pre-Need Financial Plan of only 20 percent down and small monthly payments without interest or carrying charges. If the only time you have is on the weekends, Greg can be contacted at 573-5864 and he will be glad to help you any time.

Granite and bronze memorials are available at Hillside Monument Works and Greg goes to great lengths to see that the finished product is one that pleases the family members and reflects the individualism of the loved one for whom the monument has been created.

The staff at Hillside realizes that they provide an important service to the community and work hard to maintain the trust and confidence of the people. They will be happy to counsel with anyone at anytime concerning their present or future needs. Give them a call at 573-5251 or go by and visit with them at Hillside Memorial Gardens and Monument Works on the Colorado City Highway.

Needs of recipient countries emphasized

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States and other nations that donate food are putting more emphasis on the needs of recipient countries and less on their own domestic concerns, such as getting rid of surplus commodities, say two USDA economists.

Since the early 1970s, the principal donors have been the United States, Canada and the European Community, with wheat and wheat products constituting about 83 percent of the tonnage shipped.
