Ask Us

Q—Since the price of oil has gone up, will Western Texas College be offering any petroleum courses?

A—Vocational programs at the college are based on student demand. College officials don't expect enough demand to resume petroleum technology courses in the near future. However, if there is enough demand, the courses could be offered again.

FOOD BANK — Some 3,700 pounds of food were unloaded Wednesday at Scurry County Food Bank. The food bank, sponsored by Scurry County Ministerial Alliance through Gentle Dove Ministries, purchases the foodstuffs from the Permian Basin Food Bank for 12 cents a pound. Food bank serves key needs

Wednesday marked the expansion of the Scurry County Food Bank as a truck carrying 3,700 pounds of food unloaded at Gentle Dove Ministries.

The bank is sponsored by Scurry County Ministerial Alliance through Gentle Dove Ministries. Gentle Dove is under the direction of Marvin and Sharon Applin.

"There is a tremendous need here," said food bank director Carolyn Jackson.

"We served 400 people through the bank last month and hope to serve that many again, this time more adequately," she added.

First Christian Church, First Presbyterian Church and private individuals were vital in funding the shipment, according to Jackson. Landes Home Furnishings helped to unload the sizeable load of food that included staples such as sugar, flour and fresh apples.

Jackson said the bank follows the government's guidelines for poverty in determining eligibility. Persons receiving food stamps are eligible to "shop" at the bank once a month.

Food is purchased from the Permian Basin Food Bank at a cost of 12 cents a pound.

"We have an urgent need for money to be given because we can buy food so advantageously from Permian Basin Food Bank," noted Jackson.

She also said that there is a demand for soap, personal hygiene articles and paper products including diapers since those items cannot be purchased with food stamps. Baby food is also needed.

Jackson said all donations made to the bank are tax deductible.

CROP funds help locally, worldwide

The annual CROP walk, held to provide funds for agriculture development and disaster relief, is set for at 2 p.m. Sunday at the county courthouse.

Walk organizers say 25 percent of the funds collected will go towards the Scurry County Food Bank.

Over 100 county residents are expected to participate in the event, sponsored locally by the Scurry County Ministerial Alliance. Dr. Tim Griffin, pastor of First Christian Church, will head the effort.

Everyone "who wants a good, three-mile walk" from the courthouse to Tiger Stadium is encouraged to participate.

Those who plan to walk should obtain donor forms, which are available at most churches in the area or from Dr. Griffin at First Christian Church or by calling 573-6115.

Sponsors pledge by the mile. CROP's funds, administered through Church World Service, help people in crisis all around the world in agricultural development and disaster relief.

It is stressed that Church World Service emphasizes self-development, underscoring the need to eradicate the basic causes of hunger and shelter problems.

There are more than 1,600 walks nationwide, involving some three million people as participants and sponsors.

ER contract renewal on board agenda

The renewal of a contract to provide emergency room coverage is among the topics the board of managers will discuss in a 6:30 p.m. meeting at Cogdell Memorial Hospital today.

Administrator Tom Hochwalt will also update board members on the hospital's search for a CEO and a CRNA (certified registered nurse anesthetist). Hochwalt recently announced his resignation as CEO to become senior vice president with St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock. His resignation becomes effective at the first of the year.

Also scheduled are routine items, including a medical staff report, quality assurance report, risk management report, financial report and the approval of previous minutes.

Following the regular meeting, the board will move into executive session for its annual performance evaluation concerning Hochwalt.

The SDN Column By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Success requires getting along with people you can't get ahead of."

We keep thinking, or hoping, that the craze to sue somebody will end and it will be just a phase in American history. But that's not likely.

You may have read about the recent $9 million judgment awarded a New York man who stumbled in front of a subway train under the influence of alcohol.

The accident left the man without one of his arms. Despite proof that the man was drunk at the time of the accident, the Bronx jury still awarded the guy $9 million.

The transit authority has had more than its share of recent legal battles. The TA was ordered to pay $4.3 million to a criminal who was shot in the back and crippled by a policeman after the thug had mugged a senior citizen.

It lost a $1.2 million case for an unsuccessful suicide attempt to a man who jumped in front of a train and lost his legs. And there was an $8.2 million award for a homeless man who stumbled over garbage left by the homeless and fell onto the subway tracks getting badly burned.

When the one-arm man heard of his $9 million windfall, he exclaimed, "God Bless America."

We agree with the Wall Street Journal writer who said, "God save us is more like it."

The American troops in the Middle East remind a lot of older fellows about their days in the military. Nearly everyone remembers that horrible American army staple—Spam.

Despite what former GIs might think, Spam is now being marketed as an upscale product. A California company is offering a gift-pack in its Christmas catalog—and it appears to be a marketing success.

It's proof that some of the younger generation has poor taste.

Austin seeks another top research project

AUSTIN (AP) — The city of Austin is looking for another high-tech prize.

The city already is home to two major high-tech research consortia: MCC, the Microelectronics and Computer Technology Corp., and Sematech, the government-industry semiconductor research lab.

Now Austin is one of four U.S. locations in the running for the headquarters of an international nuclear fusion research project that could employ 200 or more scientists for the next five years.

The project is called the International Thermonuclear Experimental Reactor, or ITER. It is seeking to build the world's first working reactor to harness fusion power, which is the way the sun makes its energy.

Fusion research has been going on for more than 30 years, and researchers expect it will be at least another 35 years before the process becomes commercially viable.

It has enticed scientists for decades with its promise of unlimited energy produced in an environmentally safe manner.

"It's extremely attractive from the environmental point of view," said University of Texas fusion researcher Bill Drummond, who is spearheading Austin's effort to win designation as the project's headquarters. "The only thing not perfect about it is we don't know how to do it."

ITER, a consortium backed by the United States, Soviet Union, Japan and European community, is aimed at taking the world's best fusion scientists and coming up with the first working fusion reactor.

The next phase of its work involves five years of research and design to surmount the last substantial technical hurdles before the reactor is built.

That phase is expected to cost $1 billion over five years, funded equally by the four international partners. If it is successful and if the partners are willing, the third phase would involve the construction of a fusion reactor somewhere in the world.

However, there are still uncertainties surrounding the project.

Despite the endorsement of a scientific panel on fusion, the U.S. Department of Energy has not decided whether to support the second phase of ITER research. It also has not decided whether to recommend a potential host city to the foreign powers.

Nevertheless, Drummond is optimistic ITER will move ahead, and he likes Austin's chances of becoming the host city.

The other U.S. candidates are San Diego; Oak Ridge, Tenn., site of the Oak Ridge National Laboratory; and Boston.

Once a U.S. candidate is chosen, it would vie with potential foreign competitors, including Naka, Japan; Garching, Germany; Toronto; and a site in southeastern France.

Winning the second phase of the project would be a prestigious coup for the University of Texas, but not necessarily an economic gold mine. Only about 20 percent of ITER's $200 million annual budget in phase two would be spent on research at the host city.

Man implicates himself in 1977 slaying so he can return to prison

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A former convict who told police he wants to go back to prison because he can't cope with life on the outside has implicated himself in an unsolved 1977 murder, San Antonio police say.

San Antonio Police homicide Sgt. Roland Casias said Wednesday that Rudolf Rodriguez also told officers he had found religion and wanted to return to prison to reform other prisoners.

Rodriguez, 45, whose last known address was in Odessa, had spent 10 years and seven months in prison before his parole last December.

Homicide Sgt. David Ramos said Rodriguez was arrested Monday after he gave officers statements concerning the 1977 slaying of Alfred Garza, 34, of San Antonio.

"It was a real surprise to us when he came in," Ramos said. "The trail on the murder had turned super cold."

Officers said the Oct. 9, 1977, slaying of Garza apparently stemmed from a drug deal that went sour.

Officers said Rodriguez was living in Odessa with a minister after his release from prison.

"He began thinking about what he had done and began feeling remorseful," said Casias. "His motivation for turning himself in is that he wants to go back to prison."

"He's been in most of his life and can't cope on the outside. He said he wants to go back and reform other convicts," Casias said.

Ramos said officers were first skeptical when Rodriguez first told them he was involved in the slaying.

Alternate morgue burned down

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Potter County's alternate morgue, a ramshackle house that had no air conditioning, running water or sewage facilities, has been destroyed after a justice of the peace complained of the poor facilities.

The action was taken Wednesday following complaints by Justice of the Peace Haven Dysart, who told county commissioners that the house could not pass local or state health codes.

The house was located next to the county's barn and had been primarily used for autopsies on bodies that were decomposed or badly burned.

Burning the building was the best way to rid the area of any possible diseases, according to Bob Lolley, county liaison and the road and bridge superintendent.

Lolley said the house was used as an alternate morgue after people were outraged when a pathologist performed an autopsy in the parking lot of a pancake house because he was not allowed to do the procedure on the decomposed body at a funeral home.

Humphrey, the wrong-way whale, leaves Golden Gate

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Humphrey, the humpback whale with either wanderlust or an out-of-whack compass, swam under the Golden Gate Bridge and out to sea after his latest visit to the City by the Bay.

Accompanied by a flotilla of boats, the 40-foot, 45-ton whale cruised into the Pacific late Wednesday afternoon, bringing cheers from his human escorts.

"He looks happy, like this is where he belongs," said Coast Guard Seaman Walter McCrea.

Humphrey, drawn for some unknown reason to San Francisco Bay, tends to overdo his meanderings. In 1985, when the media named him Humphrey, he took a 25-day tour of the area's inland waters. He has come back every year since.

On Sunday, Humphrey returned to the bay and took several more wrong turns before he wandered into shallow water and spent a day stuck on a mud flat. After being freed Tuesday, Humphrey swam toward the ocean.

Whale scientists have no idea why he goes off course.

"My guess is something's wrong with this guy," said Brian Gibeson, a marine biologist at the California Academy of Sciences. It could be that a parasite has affected his brain or inner ear, making Humphrey "like a car with his wheels out of alignment."

Most whales stay about 20 miles outside the Golden Gate, but some like to feed in shallower waters, said Denise Springer of the Marine Mammal Center in Marin County. "It's not unusual for whales to come into the bay. But they usually just take a bite and leave."

Marine biologists feared Humphrey might die while stuck in the shallows near Candlestick Park.

A Coast Guard boat tugged Humphrey with a line as wading people pushed and nudged him until the whale was able to get loose at high tide. A crowd on shore cheered.

5 Americans, including two Texans, arrive in New York

NEW YORK (AP) — Five American men, including two Texans, arrived home from Iraq appearing healthy and in good spirits, and hoping for the speedy release of the rest of the hostages.

The men landed at John F. Kennedy International Airport aboard a Royal Jordanian Airlines flight at about 8:10 p.m. Wednesday.

"I'm very elated to be at home," said Lloyd Graham. "The celebration won't start until all our friends and colleagues can come home too."

Graham, 48, of Houston, suffers from arteriosclerosis and has undergone two quadruple bypass surgeries.

Cheryl Graham flew to New York Wednesday from Texas to meet her husband.

"He told me not to spend any money, but money's not important at a time like this," Mrs. Graham said.

Jack Frazier, 53, of Santa Ana, Calif., said he had been doing construction work in Iraq and that Americans being held there by Iraqi authorities moved around "very discreetly." But he said they did go out every day to buy their own food.

He added that leaving his fellow hostages behind "was the hardest thing I've ever done in my life."

The five men had been staying in diplomatic "safe houses" in Iraq arranged by the U.S. Embassy. Frazier said the Iraqis knew where they were.

A man who wouldn't give his name but who was identified by others as Mark Ward of Middletown, N.J., a marine sergeant attached to the U.S. Embassy in Iraq, told reporters: "I'm glad to be home. Morale is great."

Referring to President Bush, he said: "George, keep up the good work. It's great to be back." His family met him at the airport and toasted his arrival with champagne in plastic cups.

Frazier, Graham and Ward, along with the other two, Larry Murray and John Thompson, were allowed to leave either because they or their relatives have medical conditions. None of them was specific about why they had been released.

Murray's wife, Sandy, who lives in the Houston suburb of Kingwood, said she "talked to him briefly and he seems to be doing very well. He's ready to come home."

She said in telephone conversations with her husband, "he would state that he never felt free to talk."

Mrs. Murray said her husband is "in chronic pain." She did not know his current medical condition, but "as far as I know, it's stable."

The five men were brought out of Iraq along with nine other Americans — mostly ailing or elderly — by seven members of the American-Iraqi Foundation, based in Washington, D.C. The group is made up of U.S. citizens of Iraqi descent.

Dr. Ali Hossaini of Richmond, Va., vice president of the foundation, said the hostages were released after the seven of the group's members met with Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein for 2½ hours on Sunday.

Hossaini, a professor of pathology at the Medical College of Virginia, said the foundation's goal was not to support one side or the other, but to defuse tensions.

"Preventing a catastrophe will save both sides," he said.

'Sheer luck' Newmans say

NEW YORK (AP) — What has kept Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward married for 32 years? Eternal love? Undying affection? Try sheer luck.

The Newmans, breaking a policy of not talking about their marriage, told Parade magazine they don't know why they've stayed together.

"Our marriage hasn't been a bed of roses," Newman said in the magazine's Oct. 28 issue. "Sometimes you get terminally irritated, and at one point I just packed up and left."

Mashed potato casserole looks and tastes good

This mashed potato casserole looks and tastes as good as gold. Carrots, cooked and mashed with the potatoes, are the secret of its rich color and flavor. Serve as a side dish with beef, pork, ham, or poultry. It's a great addition to a holiday meal, too.

Creamy Potato-Carrot Casserole
2 cups peeled, diced potatoes (¾ pound)
¾ cup diced carrots
2 slices bacon
1-3rd cup milk
2 beaten eggs
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
¼ cup sliced green onion
3 tablespoons dairy sour cream or plain yogurt
1 tablespoon grated Parmesan cheese
In a medium saucepan cook potatoes and carrots, covered, in boiling water about 12 minutes or until carrots are tender. Drain.

Meanwhile, in a small skillet cook bacon until crisp. Drain, crumble and set aside.

In a large mixer bowl mash potatoes and carrots with a potato masher or an electric mixer on low speed. Gradually beat in milk until mixture is creamy. Stir in eggs, the ½ cup Parmesan cheese, green onion, sour cream or yogurt.

Transfer to a 1-quart casserole. Bake, uncovered, in a 350-degree F oven for 20 minutes. Sprinkle with the bacon and 1 tablespoon Parmesan cheese. Bake for 15 minutes more or until center is set. Makes 4 servings.

San Francisco's China Cove is "Ellis Island of the West"

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — To a casual visitor, China Cove on Angel Island State Park's northeastern shore is a pleasant sandy beach for picnicking and watching boats in San Francisco Bay.

To others, it is "Ellis Island of the West," and to many of Asian ancestry, it symbolizes something far less welcoming.

The old immigration station at China Cove, opened in 1910, originally was meant to handle an expected flood of immigrants who would be coming to the United States by way of the newly opened Panama Canal. But it was used instead as a detention center for most of the approximately 175,000 Chinese immigrants who came to America between 1910 and 1940, looking for their "Gan Saan" or "Golden Mountain" of wealth which they planned to return to the economically depressed villages that sent them.

At any one time, between 200 and 300 men and 30 to 50 women were detained as they tried to overcome the tangle of restrictive anti-Asian laws. Some of these were held on the island for weeks, months or even years awaiting hearings or appeals on their applications. Almost 10 percent of the detainees eventually were deported, and many of these, to avoid the humiliation of being sent back to their villages, committed suicide.

The detainees often wrote poetry to vent their anger, despair, homesickness and loneliness, and some of it was carved on the walls in the style of the Tang dynasty. The rediscovery of the carvings in 1970 prompted a California State Legislature appropriation for the preservation of the station, which closed after a fire 50 years ago.

Today visitors can visit the old rooms, now brightly painted, and see fragments of the poetry. A 50th anniversary commemoration is planned for November, and many former detainees will make peace with the past, says Paul Chow, whose Angel Island Immigration Station Historical Advisory Committee is planning the event. "We finally made it to Gold Mountain," he says.

The first battle of the Texas Revolution took place Oct. 2, 1835, as American settlers defeated a Mexican cavalry group near the Guadalupe River.

Hummingbirds are smallest birds

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Hummingbirds are the smallest of all birds.

Tiniest of the 19 species in the United States is the calliope hummingbird, which is about three inches long and weighs only a few grams.

Hummingbirds are brightly colored, and feed on small insects and nectar from flowers. They fly quickly, darting upward, downward, backward or forward. They can also hover motionless like a helicopter, thanks to wing-beats as rapid as 70 per second. This helps them when seeking food inside a blossom.

Double comes unglued

It's fine to double when you are virtually certain to set the contract. But you'd better double with glue or an opponent may move to a safer spot. Today's West passed one no-trump, intending to lead spades to defeat the contract, perhaps by more than one trick. But the bidding proceeded with North inquiring about a possible major-suit fit and then inviting game. When South accepted, West gambled a double. He expected to set up his spade suit and then get in with the club ace to beat the contract.

If West could base his action on the bidding, so could South. South surmised that the double was based on either a running spade suit or a suit that would quickly set up, plus an entry. So South moved out of three no-trump. The conservative action would be to try four clubs, his five-card suit. But South was sure that North held four hearts. Furthermore, South did have maximum strength for his opening no-trump. So he decided to play in what he hoped would be a 4-3 fit, and bid four hearts. Everyone passed.

West led K-A and a third spade, ruffed by East and overruffed by declarer. Declarer forced out the ace of clubs before drawing trumps. When the diamond finesse worked, South had 10 tricks and his contract.

If West had quietly passed three no-trump and led the spade king followed by a low spade, declarer might still have made his contract. More than likely, however, he would have played a club, and West would have quickly taken the ace and enough spade tricks to set the contract two tricks.

LAFF-A-DAY

Douglas, Holyfield to battle for crown

LAS VEGAS (AP) — James "Buster" Douglas, who beat the unbeatable Mike Tyson to win the undisputed heavyweight title, must beat his own weight to retain it tonight against undefeated Evander Holyfield.

A disbelieving Douglas, who was never weighed during his training camp, tipped the scales at 246 pounds Wednesday, 14½ pounds heavier than he was when he took the title from Tyson in February. "I'm 236 pounds, 236 pounds," he told officials from the Nevada State Athletic Commission.

The weight shocked not only Douglas, but the camp of Holyfield, who weighed in at 206 pounds for the scheduled 12-round fight. "They better bring a crane in to lift him into the ring," said Holyfield's co-trainer, Lou Duva.

Douglas had said all along he expected to come in near the 231½ pounds he weighed when he fought Tyson. But when he stepped on the scale in a jam-packed convention area at The Mirage late Wednesday afternoon, the scale read 246.

"The fight's on whether you like his weight or not," said Douglas' trainer, J.D. McCauley. "I can't worry about his weight now; it's a done deal. He did his job and he's more ready than he was for the Tyson fight."

The fight, scheduled to begin about 7:30 p.m. from an outdoor arena at The Mirage, is Douglas' first defense of the undisputed title he won in a shocking 10th-round knockout of Tyson Feb. 11 in Tokyo.

In what many think may be the most competitive heavyweight title fight in more than a decade, Douglas, a champion who rose above his earlier failures, meets a challenger who last lost as an amateur in the semifinals of the 1984 Olympics.

Douglas has the size advantage, Holyfield is claiming the mental edge. Oddsmakers once favored Holyfield by a 2-1 margin, but now give the challenger only a 7-5 edge.

The stakes are immense for the fight, which will be seen by a near sellout crowd in the 16,350-seat arena at the Mirage and hundreds of thousands more at home on pay-per-view. The fight is being telecast free to American troops stationed overseas.

Douglas will take home $19.9 million and Holyfield, in only his seventh fight as a heavyweight, will earn $8.2 million. The purses are the second-richest in boxing history, surpassed only by the 1988 heavyweight title fight between Tyson and Michael Spinks.

The bout is the first heavyweight title fight since May 1987 without Tyson, who dominated the division before Douglas rose from the canvas in the eighth round in Tokyo to knock him out and capture the crown.

Tyson, though, is not far from either fighter's future. Douglas has already agreed to meet the former champion in a rematch should he beat Holyfield, and promoter Don King claims boxing's sanctioning organizations have also mandated Holyfield fight Tyson next if he wins.

Douglas, who outweighs Holyfield by 38 pounds, is also two inches taller at 6-foot-4 and has a 5½-inch reach advantage. He is 30-4-1 with 20 knockouts.

Holyfield is 24-0 with 20 knockouts.

McGee heads list of baseball players filing as free-agents

by The Associated Press

Oakland outfielder Willie McGee, the National League batting champion heads a list of 19 more players who have filed for free-agency, raising the total to 50.

Jamie Quirk, a backup catcher on the A's, also filed Wednesday, as did pitcher Danny Jackson of the World Series champion Cincinnati Reds.

SJHS spike teams win in Sweetwater

SWEETWATER — Snyder junior high volleyballers brought six teams here for matches Monday and went home with five wins.

The eighth grade White captured a 15-8, 16-14 victory while eighth grade Black won 16-14, 15-0 and eighth grade Gold took a 15-9, 15-7 decision over the young Lady Mustangs.

Snyder seventh graders took two of three matches as Gold won, 17-15, 15-12, and White came out on top, 15-9, 15-10.

Seventh grade Black fell to Sweetwater in three games, 15-10, 9-15, 14-16.

Genifer Vantine served 12 points in the eighth grade White win followed by Sonja Ramos with seven, Angelica Suarez with five, Samantha Boyd's three, two from C'Ella Clayton and one each by Misty Molina and Francis Grear.

Vantine, Ramos and Suarez were chosen MVPs of the contest.

Paula Laster, Michelle Olivarez and Veronica Gomez were tabbed Most Valuable Players in the eighth grade Black win.

Following EHS-Lamesa tie...

Grid title race tightens in District 2-4A

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

District 2-4A was supposed to belong to Estacado, at least for the 1990 football season. Last week's 14-14 tie between the Matadors and Lamesa has changed that and thrown the loop into a tight race for playoff position.

Last Friday, besides the EHS-Tornado tie, Snyder blasted Levelland, 30-7, and Frenship kept Dunbar winless in two district games, 30-6.

In scheduled contests this week, Dunbar, sporting a 3-4 record overall and an 0-2 slate within the loop, is at Snyder, 4-2-1 and 1-1, Estacado, 6-0-1 and 1-0-1, tangles with 5-2, 2-0 Frenship, and Levelland puts its 4-3, 1-1 mark on the line against Lamesa, 3-2-2 and 0-1-1.

All District 2-4A contests Friday begin at 7:30 p.m.

Dunbar at Snyder
The Panthers started the season with a quick 3-0 surge but have drifted down the standings list each week since.

Their latest loss, a 30-6 embarrassment at Frenship, saw the Panthers give up almost 400 offensive yards including 182 in the air and 214 on the ground.

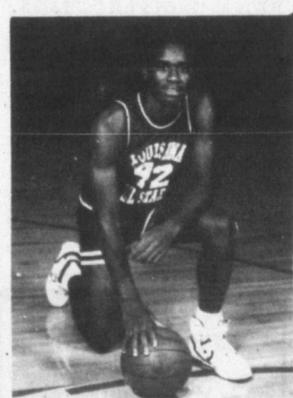

The Panthers' offense fared little better in spite of tailback Typhail McMullan's 99-yard effort which included a one-yard dive for a TD.

Snyder will counter the anemic Dunbar offense with the stingiest defense in the loop. The Tigers have limited their opponents to an average of just 148 yards per contest. They have also tied a team record with 10 interceptions thus far this season.

The Tigers' offense was aided by a 20-point burst against a stiff wind last Friday that lifted Snyder from a 10-7 nail-biter to a 30-7 rout of the Lobos.

Snyder's entire backfield went over 100 yards against Levelland.

Fullback Bryan Brunson carved out 151 yards on his own while tailback Paul Anderson scooted for 102 yards, including a 59-yard TD.

FUTURE LONGHORN — Western Texas College sophomore Michael Richardson has verbally committed to play for the University of Texas Longhorns and coach Tom Penders. Richardson, a 6-4, 185-pound guard, is a native of Lafayette, La. and a transfer student from Panola Junior College. He averaged over 20 points and five rebounds per outing in his high school career and as a freshman at PJC. Richardson was selected all-district, all-state and MVP at the Louisiana Shoot-out as a high school senior. (contributed Photo)

Quarterback Ed Rios had his first 100-yard passing night completing 5 of 12 throws for 106 yards.

Estacado at Frenship
The Matadors have fallen from a No. 2 ranking in the AP schoolboy poll to No. 6 as a result of last week's sister-kisser with Lamesa.

Estacado is now in second place within the district, even though they have yet to lose a game in 1990.

The Mats' attack is led in the air by sophomore quarterback Zebbie Lethridge while senior tailback Robert J. Johnson commands the ground troops.

Lethridge is 27 of 63 passes on the year with just two interceptions and Johnson has accumulated almost 800 yards and 8 TDs.

The EHS defensive unit is allowing just under 200 yards per outing.

Frenship has, thus far, been basically a one-man show with quarterback-punter-defensive back-place-kicker Brad Cade supplying the Tigers with the big play.

Last week Cade completed 10 of 23 passes, threw three scoring passes, kicked four extra-points and averaged 44 yards on three punts.

Running back Brandon Bennett got into the act, as well, gaining 110 yards on 19 carries to help Frenship to a 30-6 win over Dunbar.

The FHS defense, long figured to be the team strength, is giving up about 203 yards per outing.

Lamesa at Levelland
The Golden Tornadoes rose to the occasion last week and tied Estacado while Levelland was falling in the fourth quarter to Snyder.

Lamesa's offensive game plan is carried out by signal caller Jamie Seago. Seago is 29 of 86 passing for 382 yards and four touchdowns for the season. The LHS senior also rushed for 105 yards on 17 carries including runs of 38 and 13 yards for the Tors' points in the tie with Estacado last week.

The Tornado defensive squad allowed the hard-charging Matadors 238 yards in their last game. They also hawked a pair of Estacado fumbles in the process.

Levelland's ground-based offense revolves around the option play.

Tailback Brooks Broussard and quarterback Lance Patton are the most frequent ball carriers for the Lobos with an occasional dive by 212-pound fullback Jacob Velardez to break the monotony.

Levelland offensive output averages just over 240 yards per tilt while the Lobos' defense has given up 222.6.

President Bush's appeal to Shamir rebuffed

U.S. joins Security Council in another anti-Israel vote

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — For the second time in 10 days, the United States has joined a unanimous Security Council vote rebuking Israel, this time for not cooperating with a U.N. probe in to the Temple Mount killings. Not even a last-ditch personal appeal from President Bush to Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir persuaded Israel to change its mind and officially receive the U.N. investigators. The U.N. resolution, approved 15-0 on Wednesday, is largely symbolic. No sanctions against Israel are expected, said British Ambassador David Hannay, who is president of the council for October.

Israeli security forces trying to quell a riot opened fire and killed 19 Palestinians on Jerusalem's sacred Temple Mount on Oct. 8. Arabs had unleashed a volley of stones on Jews praying below at the Western Wall.

Israel has since seen a spate of Arab-Israeli revenge attacks. In response, Israeli authorities sealed off the occupied territories Wednesday, thus preventing Palestinians from getting to jobs in Israel.

Ten days ago, the United States broke with past practice and joined a 15-0 council vote denouncing Israeli security forces for the shootings on the Temple Mount, in which about 140 Palestinians were wounded.

That resolution asked U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar to send a delegation to investigate and submit a report on the killings.

Council members said in a non-binding presidential statement Oct. 12 that the report should recommend how to protect Palestinians in the occupied West-

Bank and Gaza Strip, which Israel seized in that 1967 Middle East war.

Israel fears that accepting the U.N. mission would be tantamount to accepting world objections to Israel's annexation of predominantly Arab east Jerusalem, which was also captured in the 1967 war.

Perez de Cuellar said last week that if Israel doesn't cooperate with the U.N. investigation, he would have no option but to limit his report to ways of protecting Palestinians.

The resolution approved Wednesday "deplores the refusal of the Israeli government to receive the mission" and "insists" that Israel "permit the mission ... to proceed in keeping with its purpose."

The vote was delayed 24 hours on Tuesday so Bush could contact Shamir, urging him to receive the U.N. mission so the Security Council could resume its series of anti-Iraq resolutions.

The United States had been under intense pressure from Arab and other states not to veto the resolution and risk eroding the fragile coalition arrayed against Iraq, which depends on moderate Arab states such as Egypt, Saudi Arabia and Morocco.

A U.S. official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said there was a late-night exchange between Bush and Shamir on Tuesday in which the Israeli

SO investigates school burglary

Scurry County Sheriff's Office is investigating the burglary of the Hermleigh school agriculture building.

Jerry Church told a deputy that the building had been broken into sometime between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 7:30 a.m. Wednesday. According to reports, two locks had been pried off to gain entry. Approximately $25 in cash was said missing from a desk.

Births

Tim and Susie Mitchell of 1704 Ave. R, announce the birth of a baby girl, weighing seven pounds, eleven ounces, born at 12:41 p.m. on Oct. 24, at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

He is welcomed home by a sister, Casey.

leader took an uncompromising stance.

U.S. officials said they had been led to expect that Israel would agree to some sort of compromise, and Bush was offended by Shamir's intransigence.

The Israeli government denounced the resolution in advance, said it would not cooperate and called the council hypocritical.

Israel is the largest recipient of U.S. foreign aid, and has in the past relied on the United States to block attempts to condemn its actions in the Security Council.

Vehicle stolen at Western Texas

Snyder police are investigating the unauthorized use of a motor vehicle reported Wednesday.

Police were called to Western Texas College at 3:12 p.m. by Chris Stanford who said his 1986 Ford pickup had been stolen.

Later, police were notified that the pickup had been used as a trade-in for a 1991 Mazda at a dealership in Odessa. The pickup was impounded to be picked up later by Stanford.

According to police reports, a suspect has been identified in the case.

At 4:30 p.m., Joe Alvarado said damage had been done to the paint on his 84 pickup at the 250 Club. A report for felony criminal mischief was filed.

A 44-year-old male was arrested at Highway 180 and 84 today at 12:24 a.m. for driving while intoxicated and no Texas driver's license.

A report for Class C assault was filed after police were notified by Cogdell Memorial Hospital personnel at 2:27 a.m. that a 26-year-old female was being treated there. The subject was treated and released.

SS reps can't keep November appointment here

The Big Spring Social Security office will not visit Snyder in the month of November as previously announced. Workers from the Big Spring Social Security office were scheduled to be at the Senior Citizens Center on Nov. 13, but have cancelled their visit due to travel fund limitations.

Toll free service can still be obtained by calling 1-800-234-5772 between the hours of 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The staff of the Big Spring SS office apologizes for any inconvenience this may cause.

Principal militias okay withdrawal

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The three principal Moslem and Christian militias in Lebanon agreed today to withdraw from Beirut and its suburbs in line with the government's plan to end the 15-year-old civil war.

President Elias Hrawi's government obtained agreement from Samir Geagea's right-wing Christian Lebanese Forces militia, Nabih Berri's moderate Shiite Amal militia and Druse warlord Walid Jumblatt's Progressive Socialist Party.

Cheney says troop buildup will continue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said today the United States will continue its military buildup in the Persian Gulf, perhaps adding as many as 100,000 more troops.

"We're not at the point yet where we want to stop adding forces," Cheney said. He declined to say how many troops might be added to the U.S. deployment, which now totals 220,000 troops in and around Saudi Arabia. But when asked if adding 100,000 troops was possible, Cheney said, "It's conceivable that we'll end up with that big an increase."

Pentagon sources said Wednesday the deployment would reach the planned level of 240,000 in three weeks. But Cheney said the administration "never put an upper ceiling on the deployment." His comments came as President Bush faced several decisions about the makeup of the gulf forces and as his top uniformed commander, Gen. Colin Powell, headed home from talks with ground commanders in Saudi Arabia. The talks included discussion of adding more offensive might to the U.S. forces.

Meanwhile, CIA Director William Webster said the Bush administration believes the Middle East will never be secure as long as Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein remains in power unless his weapons are destroyed. He said the administration had "no real confidence that the area will ever be secure again as long as he is still there unless" a regional, countervailing force is put in place or "he is disassociated from his weapons of mass destruction."

Three Democratic incumbents are running unopposed. They include Pete Greene, for county attorney; Frances Billingsley, for county clerk; and Rita Staton, for county treasurer.

Jerry Gannaway is unopposed for county commissioner in Precinct 4 and Wanda Rushing is unopposed for justice of the peace in Precinct 1. Both are Democrats.

Subcontractors draw blame

EL PASO, (AP) — A New York clothing manufacturer said it's not to blame for garment workers going unpaid for clothes they sewed for the company.

But Clement Soffer, Jou-Jou Designs president, said in the future the company will not allow contractors to subcontract orders without the company's permission.

The company turned over canceled checks and other documents to La Mujer Obrera, The Working Woman, that Soffer said prove the company paid contractors for all work.

"In essence, we have proven Jou-Jou is innocent in the matter," he said.

The company donated $5,000 to La Mujer Obrera, an advocacy group for garment workers. The group has staged several demonstrations to draw attention to the plight of El Paso garment workers.

Members of La Mujer Obrera traveled to Jou-Jou's headquarters in New York about a month ago to present complaints of 91 workers who are owed $40,000.

"Sometimes in an old industry, when the factory is producing an order and is coming close to the deadline ... it goes out and gives the order to someone else so it won't lose the business," Soffer said.

"We have fallen on unscrupulous people, thieves and they stole the money from these people," he said.

In the past year, members of La Mujer Obrera have chained themselves to sewing machines, staged a weeklong hunger strike and held various demonstrations in attempt to recoup unpaid wages.

Group leaders claim contractors and subcontractors hire workers to fill a clothing order and shut down before the workers are paid. The contractors then reopen under another name and do the same thing again.

Workers had mixed feelings about Soffer's donation and pledges of support.

"He gave us some money, but it is not enough for us because we lost jobs and money and a lot of time," said Armando Cejudo, 60.

Cecilia Rodriguez, La Mujer Obrera director, said although Jou-Jou's main interest was to clear its name, it was important that her group was able to bring Jou-Jou leaders to El Paso to look into the problem.

Court rules in biggest blowout case in U.S.

AUSTIN (AP) — A state district judge must allow parties in two lawsuits involving the nation's largest gas well blowout to question their adversary's experts and look at an investigation into alleged kickbacks, the Texas Supreme Court said.

The two separate rulings Wednesday by the court concern the October 1981 blowout of Key Well 1-11 in Wheeler County in the Texas Panhandle.

Supreme Court Justice Raul Gonzalez said in two opinions that the blowout was the largest in the country and spawned a complex web of lawsuits involving more than 100 parties.

More than 20 million cubic feet of natural gas escaped each day during the blowout. It took more than a year to control, according to the Texas Railroad Commission.

Workers had to excavate a hole 154 feet deep and 700 feet wide to get down to where they could divert and capture the gas.

On Wednesday, the court ordered state District Judge Granger McIlhany to vacate orders that denied one company a look at a kickback investigation conducted by the well's operator, Apache Corp., which together with El Paso Exploration Co. owned the working interest of the well.

The court also ordered McIlhany to vacate an order that prevented Axelson Inc. and a number of mineral interest owners from questioning experts of another group of defendants.

The mineral interest owners sued Apache and El Paso Exploration alleging that those companies committed wrongful acts that caused the blowout.

year-old daughter died with the girl when the water tanker the volunteer was driving flipped over and burst into flames as the woman responded to a call.

The woman, who had been working with the Spillway Volunteer Fire Department for nine months, was not identified pending notification of her parents, said Spillway Fire Capt. Erich Stumpfrock.

The toddler, Jennifer Kelley, was the daughter of Spillway Volunteer Fire Department chief Jeff Kelley, said Les Weaver, spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety.

"The whole department is taking it very badly," Stumpfrock said. "We all work together. Anything within the department, you'd do as a team. Anytime something like this happens, it's very tragic."

The 2:30 p.m. accident occurred on Confederate Park Road near the Parker-Tarrant County line.

The woman received a call for backup help at a house fire on Confederate Park Road and took the girl along on the call, Stumpfrock said.

The 1,000-gallon 1968 truck apparently blew a tire and the woman lost control of it, officials said.

Witnesses told investigators that the truck swerved, flipped over into a ditch and burst into flames. The woman and the child were trapped in the vehicle and burned to death, officials said.

It took work crews more than an hour to remove the charred and twisted wreckage.

Bush blamed for tough GOP position

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans are bracing themselves for Election Day losses and conservatives are ready to lay the blame at the feet of President Bush.

With less than two weeks remaining before the polls open, polling data from a wide range of states points to growing support for Democratic candidates.

"A month ago I would have said we were going to win one or two seats in the Senate," said David Keene, a Republican political consultant and conservative activist. "I think now we're going to lose two and it could be more."

Keene also predicted Wednesday that GOP losses in the House "would be a lot worse than anybody thought." And, he said, "it's traceable to one person and that's the president of the United States."

Going into the election, Democrats control the Senate by a margin of 55-45 and the House by 258-176. Republicans had hoped to trim the Senate margin and hold their House losses to fewer than 10 seats.

But the budget negotiations proved a disaster for Republicans. Conservatives rebelled against Bush's decision to drop his hard-line opposition to any tax increases and helped defeat a compromise package worked out between the White House and the congressional leadership.

Then the president appeared unable to make up his mind on whether he would or would not agree to increasing the tax load on the rich.

While all that was happening, the Democrats succeeded in reinforcing a public perception of the Republicans as the party that cared more about the wealthy than the middle class.

In a recent Newsweek poll, 65 percent of the people said they thought Bush was "more concerned about wealthy Americans than he should be."

"In the last 10 days Republicans have taken a nosedive," said Rep. Vin Weber, R-Minn., who believed the Republicans should hold to a hard line against tax increases.

"It's not possible for the Republican Party to win the public relations battle over fairness," said Weber. "People are inclined to believe that the Republican Party is the party of the rich more than the Democratic Party."

DEAR ABBY: I would like to thank you personally for the many years that you have striven to increase the morale of our servicemen stationed overseas. I am one of the individuals who benefited greatly from your efforts.

While stationed on the USS Kittyhawk (CVA-63) off the coast of Vietnam at Christmastime in 1967, I received a letter through your Operation Dear Abby that interested me. It was from a young lady living in Minnesota. I was all of 19 at the time, away from home, very lonely, and it eased my loneliness, so I started writing to her.

After numerous letters, telephone calls and a visit to Minnesota, we knew we were right for each other, so we were married in the autumn of 1969, after I left the Navy.

I returned to the Navy in 1975, and now have a son who has been in the Navy for more than two years. He's stationed on an aircraft carrier in Norfolk, Va. We also have a daughter commencing her sophomore year in high school.

Abby, thank you! On Oct. 25 we will celebrate our 21st wedding anniversary, and we owe it all to you and your concern for servicemen stationed overseas. Keep up the excellent work!

CHARLIE
IN BRUNSWICK, MAINE

DEAR CHARLIE: Congratulations to you and your family. May you have many more happy anniversaries. God bless you and yours.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the person who requested money instead of flowers for a funeral: Japanese-Americans have a tradition called "koden." When a person dies, every one brings envelopes containing money, which is given to the family of the deceased. The amount ranges from as little as $10 to sums in the hundreds (usually from a company or club that is familiar with that tradition). The total is usually enough to pay for the bulk, if not all, of the funeral expenses. This was extremely helpful when my aunt died following a long and costly illness. The medical expenses drained the family's savings, and the funeral would have been too much for them to handle. The "koden" they received paid for her funeral.

F.Y.I. IN TORRANCE, CALIF.

DEAR F.Y.I.: The tradition you mention is also practiced in Hawaii and in the Philippines, and I hope it takes hold in other countries. What a wonderfully considerate gesture.

DEAR ABBY: I have a married daughter who has two children. I also have a son. He is not married. How should the amount I spend for Christmas gifts be figured?

For example, if I spend $100 per person for Christmas, my daughter's family will get a total of $400. Should I give my unmarried son $100 — or the same I give my daughter's family, which is $400?

I want to be fair, but I don't think my son should be cheated because he's not married. What do you think?

FEELING GUILTY
IN WARREN, MICH.

DEAR FEELING GUILTY: Your son is not being cheated. If you plan on giving $100 to each person, your daughter's family is comprised of four people — hence $400 is appropriate.

Since your son has no wife and family, your gift of $100 to him is fair. You have no reason to feel guilty.

Greater emphasis than usual will be placed upon your leadership qualities in the year ahead. In situations where you didn't mind taking orders, you'll now want to be the person who issues the directives.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) The consequences of your behavior could affect people with whom you'll be involved today, so try to be doubly certain your motives are constructive and noble. CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Financial conditions could be rather testy for you today, so manage your resources wisely. Avoid excessive spending and think twice before borrowing or loaning money.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It's imperative that you establish realistic objectives today. If you fail to do so, you might incur severe frustrations striving for something which is unattainable.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) It's best you do nothing today which you know from your own personal experience causes you problems. Pisceans who ignore their better judgment may end up with regrets.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) A domineering companion or associate might try to involve you in something today in which you do not wish to participate. If you lack resolve, this person might succeed. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It could be a grievous error if you underestimate your competition today. Give him/her credit for at least matching your capabilities or perhaps even exceeding them.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Before beginning, review your tasks and assignments today, especially those which are distasteful. If your heart isn't in your work, you could unconsciously make things worse than when you started.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Hard feelings could result today if you expect too much from another in a joint venture.

The same will be true if too much is expected from you. All efforts must be equal.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Before finding fault with your mate today, keep in mind that small disagreements could be completely blown out of proportion. Once you open Pandora's box, you might not be able to close it.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Virgos have acute, critical faculties and it is easy for them to spot flaws in others. Today, however, if you see something that disturbs you, you'd be wise to keep your comments to yourself.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your extravagant urges might vie for expression today and there is a possibility you could do something foolish financially. Before taking an outlandish risk, remember how hard money is to come by.

Leno says he goes to sleep

CHICAGO (AP) — Always-on-tour comedian Jay Leno says he has become so good at his routine he can do it in his sleep.

"When I do two two-hour shows, which is fairly often, I get into the rhythm of the thing and I fall asleep on stage," Leno, a regular host on "The Tonight Show," said in the December issue of Playboy.

"I just plain go out for about 40 minutes and then come back in again and drift in and out. My wife knows when I'm asleep. But I don't think anybody else does."

Dr. Gott Hostages wives pass time together

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is your recommendation on testing children for high cholesterol to avoid problems later in life?

DEAR READER: Recent studies have shown that children with high cholesterol levels often become adults with high cholesterol, too. Although in children the risks of excess cholesterol are low, in adults the condition is associated with a higher incidence of heart attacks. Therefore, checking youngsters' cholesterol levels seems, at first glance, to be sensible. However, the issue has yet to be resolved; even pediatricians don't agree whether routine cholesterol screening of children is appropriate or whether, in most cases, treatment should be offered.

To begin with, cholesterol testing should be performed by hospital laboratories; when done in doctors' offices, it is notoriously unreliable. Also, more than one test should be obtained; a single analysis can be misleading.

Second, low-fat diets, the preferred treatment in children, can take a lot of fun out of growing up; no ice cream, for example. In addition, young children need a certain amount of fat to develop their nervous systems and brains. No one knows the long-term consequences of fat-deprivation during periods of rapid growth. Low-fat diets have not been proved safe in children.

Finally, pediatric specialists do not recommend testing for children younger than 2. The American Academy of Pediatrics suggests cholesterol testing on a case-by-case basis, primarily in those where there is a family history of heart disease (heart attack in parents or grandparents younger than age 55). The Academy has concluded that cholesterol levels about 200 milligrams per deciliter are well enough above normal to warrant attention.

Treatment of children in this high-risk category involves more than simply lowering cholesterol intake; a professional nutritionist's advice is required to ensure that young patients receive enough calories and nutrients to permit proper growth.

Thus, the current consensus is to withhold cholesterol screening in children. This leaves individual decisions up to the pediatrician, depending on the child's general health and family history.

The wives of two men being held hostage in the Middle East hope their pain and suffering can be transformed into a lasting friendship that will help them endure the seemingly endless days of frustration.

"We are going to try to do something constructive, give each other strength," said Patricia Hale, who welcomed Donnita Cole into her home Wednesday for a week.

"Neither one of us are ones to sit around and throw our arms up and weep, not that there haven't been tears."

Their husbands, Edward Hale and John Cole, were working for Houston-based OGE Drilling, Inc., on contract assignment in Kuwait when Iraqi troops invaded Aug. 2.

For nearly three months, Mrs. Cole and Mrs. Hale, who met in person for the first time about a month ago, have been making daily calls to the State Department, watching 24-hour news stations and trying to contact released hostages who may have seen their husbands.

"We share a lot of the same feelings," said Mrs. Hale. "We talk nearly every day on the phone. We are so frustrated because there is so very little that we can do. It tends to make a person feel very, very helpless."

But good news arrived for two Houston families, who are spending their first day today with hostages Larry Murray and Loyd Graham, who were released from Baghdad on Tuesday.

"I had been out (Tuesday) and when I came home there were lots and lots of messages on the machine and each one was about Larry," said Sandy Murray of the Houston suburb of Kingwood. "I talked to him briefly and he seems to be doing very well. He's ready to come home."

She said in telephone conversations with her husband, "he would state that he never felt free to talk."

Both men were among 14 Americans — mostly ailing or elderly — who were released Tuesday.

Graham, 48, of Houston suffers from arteriosclerosis and has undergone two quadruple bypass surgeries.

Mrs. Murray said her husband is "in chronic pain." She did not know his current medical condition, but "as far as I know, it's stable."

From seeing his picture on television as he arrived at the airport in Amman, Jordan, Mrs. Murray said her husband appeared to be doing well.

"His eyes looked clear and bright and he looked happy to come home," she said.

Cheryl Graham flew to New York Wednesday to meet her husband as he arrived in New York City.

"He told me not to spend any money, but money's not important at a time like this," Mrs. Graham said.

Mrs. Hale said she was happy to hear of the hostages' release.

"It's a good sign to see people still coming out," she said. "The fact that two of the men were from Houston just brings us that much closer. It's a little glimmer of hope in between the long periods of waiting."

Mrs. Hale said she was distressed by recent reports from British government officials, who say the hostages' living conditions are deplorable.

"We have no idea where our husbands are or how they are being treated," said Mrs. Hale. "And I don't think things are getting better over there."

Cabinet shakeup coming up?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although Labor Secretary Elizabeth Dole is the first to quit President Bush's Cabinet, administration officials and analysts suggest more changes may soon follow as Bush's presidency reaches its two-year mark.

With Mrs. Dole's announcement Wednesday that she has accepted the presidency of the American Red Cross, speculation abounds about a midterm Cabinet shakeup.

Administration sources said that while nothing is clear at this point, new jobs for Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner and Housing Secretary Jack Kemp could be in the works.

The next to leave the Cabinet? It's anyone's guess. And if Bush knows, he's keeping it to himself.

But frequent speculation is that Commerce Secretary Robert Mosbacher and Attorney General Dick Thornburgh might be next to call it quits.

Mosbacher, a Texas oil millionaire, is said by those who know him to be tiring of the job. And Thornburgh has come under increasing criticism for his policies, most recently from Congress for his role in unsuccessful efforts to shape a civil rights bill compromise.

Meanwhile, the battles with Congress over the budget have bloodied both budget director Richard Darman and White House chief of staff John Sununu. Some White House insiders, speaking on the condition of anonymity, suggest one of them may find a new assignment in the new year — and that it isn't likely to be Sununu.

One scenario that figures prominently in talk at the White House: the retirement of Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady and the appointment of Darman to succeed him.

Darman is a former deputy Treasury secretary.

Bush's original Cabinet has held together longer than most, perhaps because it is one that has been marked by more than a usual degree of congeniality.

Many of its members are longtime friends of Bush's. Brady, Mosbacher and Secretary of State James A. Baker III are among Bush's oldest and best friends.

White House aides say they think it unlikely that Bush will seek to force out any member of his Cabinet.

Thus, it is unlikely that either Education Secretary Lauro F. Cavazos or Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan would be forced out, even though they have been criticized for ineffectiveness, the official said.

Administration sources said Skinner is restless in his job as transportation secretary and may be rewarded with something more challenging.

Barker, others seek film boycott

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. (AP) — Game show host Bob Barker and an animal rights group want people to boycott a film in which horses jump from a 10-foot platform into an 11-foot-deep tank of water.

"Wild Hearts Can't Be Broken," which is being filmed here, is about a woman who jumped into the ocean on horseback from a pier at Atlantic City, N.J., during the 1930s.

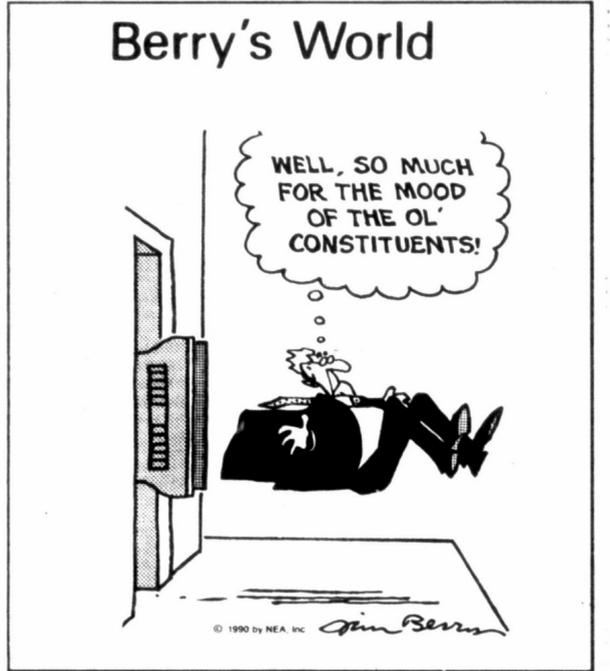

Lou Phillips, production executive for the movie, said producers have gone beyond American Humane Association standards in the care of the horses, and no injuries have been reported.

The jump "may be acceptable to the producers, may be acceptable to the association, but if the horses could speak, I'd bet it would not be acceptable to them," Barker said Tuesday.

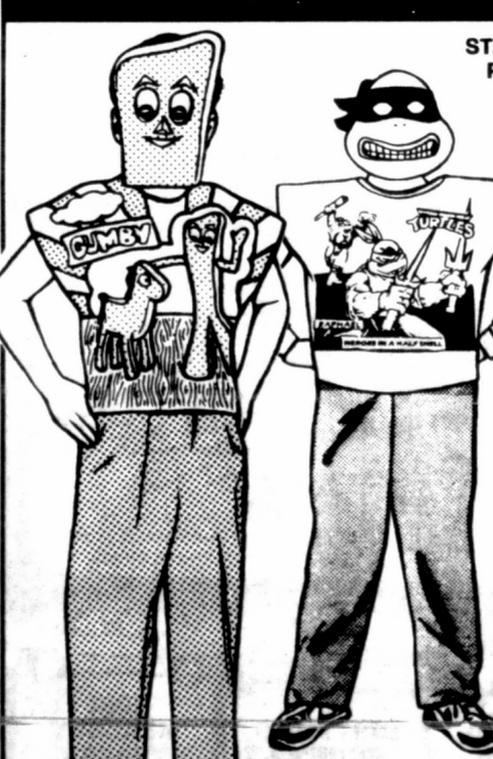

Barker, a longtime animal rights activist, works with the Coalition to Protect Animals in Entertainment.

Since forming in 1987, the coalition has called for the boycott of 10 movies, including "Project X," "The Bear," "Young Guns II" and "Days of Thunder."
