Haskell voters marked a record 1,321 ballots in re-electing Mayor J. E. Walling Jr. and three incumbent Aldermen in Tuesday's annual city election. The record turn-out was attributed to the continuing controversy over the Miller Creek water project, to which Mayor Walling's administration has been actively opposed. With this an issue in the municipal election, voters also balloted in a special election or "straw vote" on whether Haskell should or should not "get out of the Miller Creek project."

The vote in Tuesday's election for individual candidates was as follows: For Mayor: J. E. Walling Jr. 839; E. J. Stewart 471. For Aldermen, three incumbents re-elected were Raymond Davis with 840 votes, R. L. Stephenson with 834, and Otho Nanny with 807 votes. Unsuccessful candidates were Tom Watson, who polled 507 votes, H. C. King 512, and Jimmy Turner 487 votes. People, Places & Things
 By A. PATE

Fate was directing traffic at the intersection of Avenue E and North First late Saturday. An ambulance from Stamford was making an emergency run to the Haskell Hospital. Siren screaming as it came through the business section, the ambulance veered west at the northwest corner of the square.

Driver of a car proceeding east on North First apparently didn't hear the ambulance siren. The vehicle cleared the path of the oncoming ambulance by a fraction of a second, thereby averting what could have been a tragic wreck.

It was a situation in which no one could be blamed, but everyone should be thankful.

Everyone welcomes the advent of Spring, with its freshening vegetation and brightly flowering bulbs and hardy bloomers. For all of this, however, the weatherman has a warning that Spring is also the season of tornadoes.

Thanks to science, and especially radar, the approach of tornadoes can now be detected and ample warning given, lessening greatly the danger from the twisters.

Another harbinger of Spring is easily noted. This is the increase in the number of empty beer cans and bottles seen on streets and highways. Maintenance workers with the State Highway Department are the first to notice the increase in this littering of roads. Unbelievable as it sounds, highway department workers pick up TRUCK LOADS of empty beer cans each week during the spring and summer, along the right-of-way of state maintained highways in Haskell County.

Misfortune, illness, financial troubles and at times fancied wrongs are among the things that are blamed for driving people to drink.

We remember an acquaintance of ours who years ago had formed the habit of coming to town each Saturday, generally for the sole purpose of getting soused to the gills.

But he was a man of principles—he had to have some reason for turning to the bottle to drown his sorrows.

One Saturday he came to town for the usual week-end, but could think of no bad news that would get him in the mood for drinking, although he was almost dying to get started.

It was in the fall of the year, he'd made a good crop, was getting out several bales of cotton daily, and had a pocketful of money.

He began inquiring about the health of his friends, thinking if any were ill enough to justify worrying he'd be warrantable in starting on a bottle of forgetfulness.

All of his friends were hale and hearty, doing well, he learned. He faced a real dilemma. Here it was Saturday and his day to get drunk, plenty of money, but no earthly reason to start a binge.

Puzzling over his problem, he stopped in a barber shop, thinking he might hear of some friend's misfortune while getting a hair cut and shave. Instead, the barber's comments were all on the cheerful side.

Still racking his brain for an excuse to start on a bottle, our friend climbed in the shine stand to have his shoes shined. The colored shine boy, usually talkative, appeared to be rather quiet. Our friend, making conversation, asked the shine boy how he was getting along.

"Jes fine, yassuh, jes fine," he replied. Then he casually mentioned he'd received a letter telling that a good friend of his, a colored boy living down at Mart, had fallen under a freight train, and lost his left foot. "Sho' feel sorry for him," the shine boy commented.

"That really is tough," our friend said considerably. Then a light dawned as he quickly asked, "Did you say he was a good friend of yours?" This might be depressing enough to justify a drink. When the shine boy answered in the affirmative our friend's problem was solved. "Needn't take too much time on these shoes, I'm somewhat in a hurry anyway," he said as he handed the shine boy a generous tip.

In a short time he had a bottle and had started the countdown on a real whing-ding. But being a man of principle, he had good reason for drinking—brooding over the misfortune which had befallen the shine boy's friend down at Mart.

Collingsworth County, Texas, has no county jail according to a story in Sunday's Wichita Falls Times.

It seems that the original jail, built around 1900 at Wellington, has been unusable for several years. Persons taken in custody by county officers have to be taken to jails in neighboring cities.

Collingsworth voters last year turned down a proposed $70,000 bond issue for a new jail and the proposition may be submitted again soon, the story related.

Records show that Haskell has had at least three county jails, including the present bascule, built in 1956.

The second jail building, since remodelled and with the third floor removed is now used as a county office building.

Oldtimers will remember the first permanent jail, a brick and stone structure which stood on the site now occupied by Queens Roofing Company building.

The jail walls were of brick made of sand and lime, and were about a foot thick, plastered on the inside.

Bricklayer on the construction job was an Irishman who had had considerable experience in building jails. Being a drinking man at times, his experience also included quite a bit of jail occupancy.

Whether true or not, it was later told that the Irish bricklayer had left a small section of wall under one window of the jail where mortar was used inside and outside courses of brick. This was insurance that in case he was imprisoned at some later date he could easily make his way out.

Whether true or not, a few years after the jail was built, several inmates escaped after battering a hole through the foot-thick wall under a window at the west end of the building.

Later, another hole was broken through under a window in the north wall of the jail, and two men escaped.

On still another occasion, three inmates escaped by picking the lock on their cell door.

It seems the jail was a place of confinement mostly when the inmates agreed.

Only tragic episode connected with the early day jail was the suicide of an inmate around 1908. He died a horrible death after chewing the heads from about half a box of kitchen matches.

Justice of the Peace Virgil A. Brown rounded out his first year in that office on March 18, having been appointed on that date in 1961.

Although a complete summary of the number of cases filed and disposed of is not available, a check of fines and other fees collected shows that the J. P. office had total receipts of $7,016 during the year.

Justice Brown recalls that on his first day in office, he accepted two pleas of guilty in traffic cases, and performed a wedding ceremony for a Negro couple.

Incidentally, Justice Brown recalls that although he has handled hundreds of traffic cases during his first year in office, and has officiated at numerous marriages, he has not been called upon to officiate for another Negro couple during that time.

"It seems I've lost my rabbit foot when it comes to officiating for weddings of colored people," he commented.

Storekeepers' Dilemma

There has been, and still is, a vast expansion of retail-store operations. The result, as an editorial in Chain Store Age points out, is a dilemma for retail development planners.

The editorial deals with current plans for extending retail operations in a New Jersey area with a population of something like 1,750,000. Chain stores, discount houses and department stores are all involved. As it says, "The urge to oversaturate a good territory is hard to resist."

Comparable situations exist just about everywhere in the country. And there are two theories, as Chain Store Age describes them. "One theory has it that heavy retailing concentration in an area can mean more business for all—all, that is, who promote intelligently and consistently, carry proper assortments and depth of merchandise, operate efficiently and price competitively or offer easy-to-identify service and quality.

"Another theory, of course, is that there's just so much business to be spread around and that new competition must mean sales declines for existing operations."

Time will tell. But one thing can be said with certainty: Retailing becomes more aggressive all the time, and requires the highest standards of management to succeed and give the public the kind of service it receives today.

Rules for Kite Flyers

Budding astronauts and jet pilots, who begin their careers in the sky by flying kites these windy spring days, have a few "don'ts" to remember. This point is being stressed by electric companies around the country. They're now publicizing such safety rules as these:

1. Don't use tinsel string, wire, or any twine with metal in it.
2. Don't fly a kite with metal in the frame or tail.
3. Don't fly kites in rainy weather.
4. Don't run across streets or highways while flying kites.
5. Don't fly kites over television or radio aerials.
6. Don't touch fallen electric wires.
7. Don't fly a kite near electric power lines.
8. If a kite does become entangled in electric power lines, LEAVE IT THERE. DO NOT TOUCH the string, or in any other manner attempt to get it down.
9. Use only dry cotton string and dry cloth in kite tails.

Remember, Benjamin Franklin didn't face modern hazards when he flew his kite!

AN OPEN LETTER FROM THE DOCTORS OF HASKELL, BAYLOR, KNOX COUNTY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION

socialized medicine and you

The time has come for us all to stand and be counted on the question of Socialized Medicine. It's no longer an academic question, no longer "something to discuss" or "put off till next year." The time is now—time to decide whether we want the relationship of patient and physician to continue free . . . or whether we want to trade this freedom for control by the Federal Government.

Congress is considering legislation at this moment which would establish a system of compulsory medical care for the aged, with health care costs to be financed through higher Social Security taxes.

No matter how you sugar-coat the pill—some call it simply "a method of financing"—the proposal adds up to Socialized Medicine. Let's face it, if a bureau of the Federal Government is to administer health-care financing, then that bureau must also supervise the service—for "he who pays the piper calls the tune." And the calling of the tune won't stop with the aged. For, once the principle has been established, it is bound to be expanded until it covers us all.

Let's help those who need help

We all agree to this. And, as for the medical profession, our profession, service to those in need has always been its keystone.

Moreover, when it comes to medical aid for the aged, the concept of helping those who need help has already become law. A Federal grant-in-aid program has been established for the needy and the near-needy—a program designed to be administered locally for locally determined beneficiaries. The benefits reach out to all of the aged who are in need—not merely to people who are covered by Social Security. And because this program is voluntary, based on need alone, all of the aged who don't need help can stay independent.

So, what's at stake if we should choose compulsory health care (Socialized Medicine) for this or any other segment of our population?

Your freedom is at stake

Freedom is what we all stand to lose. Your freedom to choose the doctor you believe is best for you. And your doctor's freedom—his freedom to treat you in an individual way, adapting his knowledge and skills to your particular problems.

These freedoms are bound to be lost when the Federal Government enters the privacy of the examination room—controlling both standards of practice and the choice of practitioners.

And lost with these freedoms will be one of the basic principles of our responsibility to you. A principle expressed in the physician's pledge—"I will hold in confidence all that my patient confides to me."

There can be no confidence with impersonal third-party control replacing a voluntary relationship. When the doctor is socialized, his patient is socialized as well.

The critical decision on the question of Socialized Medicine will be made in Congress. If you agree with us that preserving the freedoms of medical service is vital, then write to your Senators and Congressman. Join us in telling them that Socialized Medicine is not for Americans—that free men and free institutions are competent to solve tomorrow's problems as yesterday's were solved . . . that medical aid for the aged can be supplied without resorting to Federal control.

CREEK ... UNITY NEWS

BY MRS. GENE OVERTON

Church closed every night. Vicki Morrison made us all proud as she played Sunday for the meeting. Both churches have had very good revival services, and I believe we will see the results in our churches and in our community.

A volleyball team, composed of Martindale Coleman, Robert Starr, Mike Overton, Willie Lee Medford, Pat Morrison, Twain Mickler and Billy Garland Middlebrooks, entered the Mattson tournament last week. They were defeated by Goree on Thursday night and by Mattson Friday night, but they had fun playing and helped Mattson make some needed money.

The senior class of Paint Creek is sponsoring a volleyball tournament Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening of this week. Everyone is invited to attend and see the games.

Mrs. Manley Sikes spent last week in Bangs entertaining Dr. and Mrs. Liker from Minnesota. They are friends of World War II days when the Likers were stationed at Camp Bowie in Brownwood, and had an apartment at the home of Mrs. Sikes. Mrs. Sikes was back in school Monday. She was all well from her bout with pneumonia.

Arthur Montgomery spent several days last week in Grand Prairie visiting his daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Cathey.

Mrs. Allen Overton and little daughter, Jo, were in the style show given by C&B ready-to-wear store at the Legion Hall Friday night.

Little Wanda Griffith, 4th grade daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sammy Griffith, was a patient in the Stamford Memorial Hospital last week with the measles. Some of our little folks have been very ill with measles. Several have had fever as high as 105°. Becky Buerger, baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Buerger was ill over the weekend with the croup. Jeff Smith missed several days of school last week when he had a virus, and Marilyn Griffith had measles, too.

William Overton, English teacher in Sam Houston junior high school at Garland spent Friday night and Saturday at home with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Gene Overton and Mike. William had to get back to his 7th grade Sunday School class Sunday. The Axe Memorial Methodist Church in Garland is so small, with such a large congregation that they have three church services every Sunday morning, and one group of children come to Sunday School at one hour and another group come later. William teaches the lesson twice every Sunday morning. Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Lee (Selda Callaway) belong to his church, too.

Mr. and Mrs. Eric Bergstrom and Joy were in Seymour Sunday to spend the afternoon with their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Morris Allen.

Paint Creek women interested in helping to make the cancer crusade kits are asked to meet Friday at 1:45 at the cancer work room.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Underwood spent from Wednesday until Friday in Atoka, Okla., with their son, Medford, his wife and daughters.

Mrs. Clarence Raughton is in Highland this week with her son, James', family. Jean Ann and Janie Lynn have the measles.

Attending the Haskell County Chapter of T.S.T.A. at Rochester Monday evening were Supt. and Mrs. Pat Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Medford, Paul Fischer, Gene Overton, Bill Tate, Mrs. Olga Taylor, Mrs. J. M. Owens, Mr. Ira Coleman, Jesse Cook, Willie Lee Medford. It was a dinner meeting at the lunch room, and then the group went to the auditorium where they heard the Rochester chorus sing, and Dr. George Bailey of Abilene speak. Dr. Bailey is the pastor of the A.C.C. Church of Christ, and is the father of David Bailey who has visited in our community often.

Arvie Bergstrom attended a banquet for medical students on the A.M. campus week before last. He wrote that some T.V. film was made of some of their campus class and lab work at the Galveston Medical Center and they would be shown on the DuPont Hour on Sunday, May 27. He is in several of them, but is in the back of the class and may not be recognized. I'll try to remember to remind us again in May to watch for it.

Grandma Mickler, who spent several weeks in Pecos with her daughter following Grandma Mickler's death, is at home now.

We extend sympathy to the relatives of Emmitt Howard who died Sunday morning. He was the brother of Mrs. John R. Watson Sr., and Mrs. John Nanny, and has many nephews and nieces in our community. They lived in the old Post community for many years when their children were small.

LETTERS... To The Editor

Editor, The Haskell Free Press:

We, the assembled members of the tri-county medical society: Haskell, Baylor, Knox counties do hereby adopt the following resolutions and submit them for publication so that our patients and friends may know how we stand.

Whereas, federal medical care for all people sixty years of age and over without reference to need or qualifying standards is socialized medicine for this group.

Whereas, the control of the entire field of medicine is planned once a wedding statute is passed.

Whereas, federal control of medicine will destroy the highest standards of medical care in the world.

Whereas, British medicine has been a miserable failure and has deteriorated for sixteen years.

Whereas, we believe that to participate in socialized medical schemes, regardless of names under which it is proposed, will be to lower the standard of care for all and devote none.

We are thereby resolved that our patients will continue to get the same high standard of care, without being a party to nor participating in King-Anderson type legislation. Furthermore, we will not render reports to nor accept payments from the United States government for the treatment of any patient.

R. A. Middleton, M. D. President Haskell, Baylor, Knox Counties Medical Association.

LETTERS . . .
To The Editor
Editor, The Free Press:

"Oh, what a tangled web YOU weave, when first YOU practice to deceive!"

A very peculiar quotation to come from a man who spends $50 for a newspaper ad for no other purpose than to misinform the citizens of his hometown. And he uses his poetic license almost as freely in twisting the quotation from Sir Walter Scott's "Lochans" to attempt to make his point as he uses it in twisting numbers and facts to deceive the people on the water issue.

I think if he will read the quotation again he will find that it reads "Oh, what a tangled web WE weave when first WE practice to deceive!" And I think that a look at some of his statements through the years should prove to your readers that he has either become, hopelessly entangled in his own web or he was not informed on the subject.

In a letter dated Oct. 20, 1949, the Mayor then, Mr. Courtney Hunt, wrote, "Our present water contains high hardness content, is heavily charged with sulphur, is not palatable. . . Haskell faces an acute water shortage. . . The City of Haskell feels it must petition for more and better water, not only for itself, but for the surrounding area."

The web begins to tangle—Today, Mr. Hunt says, "Haskell has plenty of water."

In May, 1950, Mr. Hunt said, "The domestic water problems of Aspermont, Benjamin, or any of the other neighboring towns are as much the concern of Haskell as our own needs." He also said, "We don't know what will happen to our underground supply during the next 30 years."

Tangling still — Today, Mr. Hunt strongly urges "killing the Miller Creek Project" and "digging" our neighboring towns.

In May, 1950, Mayor Hunt endorsed the statement of Homer Hunter, consulting engineer, who said, "Stamford's plan is not big enough to serve three towns and will hardly serve two — and yet Stamford hopes to sell water to both Hamlin and Haskell."

Really Getting Tangled. Now — Mr. Hunt says, "Haskell can get all the water it needs for the next 50 years from Lake Stamford."

In early 1954, Mayor Hunt said, "Engineers estimate it would take $450,000 to $500,000 to complete a pipeline of sufficient size, with filtering plant, pumps, etc., capable of supplying Haskell with water. Our revenue from water would not be sufficient to retire this amount of bonds, wherefore your bonds would have to be divided about half Revenue Bonds and about half Tax Bonds. This, as you can readily see, would double our bonded indebtedness. So it is easy to figure that to join Lake Stamford now, it would mean the doubling of your City's tax renditions, and the doubling of your water rates."

Tangled more than ever—Mr. Hunt says today that Haskell can go to Lake Stamford without a penny of tax bonds—all Revenue Bonds paid by water users.

Mr. Hunt, let's change our quotation to this one by Daniel Webster, "Let us, in this our day . . . perform something worthy to be remembered."

Signed—A New Comer

Bighorn Sheep Make Comeback On Black Gap

Bighorn sheep may be on the way back in Texas. Information has come from the Black Gap Wildlife Management Area in West Texas that two spring lambs have been observed in the bighorn sheep holding pasture on the area. This brings the total of sheep population in the Black Gap Area to 13 head.

This pasture covers approximately 600 acres, and encloses the Bighorn sheep obtained from the Kofa Range in Arizona. Another ewe is in hiding, and it is possible that she will come out with another lamb in the near future.

The mountains on the Black Gap Area provided favorable habitat for Bighorn sheep back in the early days of Texas. They were extirpated when thousands of them were slaughtered by workers building railroads across Texas.

My two opponents for the State Senate are promising that they will correct the inequities in the sales tax and the insurance rating system if they get back to Austin. They've been there for twenty years between them. And they have been passing inequitable laws ever since they have been there.

I guess they have to pass these things so they will have something to promise when they are trying to get re-elected. They promise to undo what they did if you will send them back.

Come One, Come All, to the Haskell Indian Band Coronation Concert April 6, in the Indian Gymnasium at 8:00 p. m. This program is band music at its finest. The numbers range from classical to popular with a few marches mixed in here and there.

Director Frank Porter says he believes this will be the Indians' best performance to date.

The guest soloist for this year's concert will be James Underwood. James is a senior and the Band Captain this year. He has been in the band for several years and has served as first lute for one year and first trombone player for five years.

Other special attractions will be the flute quartet, clarinet quartet and woodwind ensemble.

The highlight of the evening will be the crowning of the Band Sweetheart, Miss Shirley Young by Band Captain James Underwood.

Make plans now to attend the Coronation Concert. This will be music for those who like it and those who don't.

County Gains In Scholastic Census Total

Scholastic census figures recently tabulated in the office of the county school superintendent show an increase of 102 scholastics over last year's count. The total number for the county is 2,561 scholastics.

Carney, Rochester, Rule and Sagerton—all on the west side of the county—show most of this increase, while Paint Creek and Mattson show smaller gains. Haskell and Weinert have a loss of several pupils each.

The over-all gain may not be permanent, however. It is remembered that during the month of January, while the school census was being taken in every school, there still remained a considerable amount of cotton in the fields, and some migrant families were here then, but may not be here now.

School officials are not as much concerned, however, about how many they have on their census lists as they are about how many they have in average daily attendance. It is on the latter figure that the State bases each school's apportionment of salary and operation funds. Parents are urged not to allow their children to be absent from school unnecessarily.

The annual Cancer Crusade is scheduled to begin April 17, chapter officials have announced.

Card of Thanks

We wish to take this opportunity to thank each person for their kindness and thoughtfulness during the illness of Mrs. Sterlin Edwards, those who sent flowers, cards, letters and good, to those who sat and helped in every way. A special thanks to the Doctors and Nurses for their personal care. May God bless you is our prayer. Mr. and Mrs. Sterlin Edwards and daughter, Clara. 14p
