those facts, highway accidents will drop sharply.

Students Gary Alford, Nancy Lawson, faculty member, David Middleton and officer Jesse Fricke took part in the tests which were conducted in a specially equipped car. The test driver was signalled to stop by an electrically controlled detonator. As the shell was fired, the street was marked with yellow paint. A second bullet was fired as brakes were applied and a third after the car came to a complete stop. Distances between the spots were carefully measured to determine in feet and inches how far the car traveled before the driver applied the brakes, or how far it traveled after the brakes were applied, or the braking distance.

Smetana emphasized the fact that a driver who observes the speed laws carefully is not a safe driver if he neglects many other items such as proper signaling for turns, approaching an intersection in the proper lane for a turn, the proper way to turn around, and many other things which he demonstrated in the test car.

Oppportunists in HHS Class of '63 Capitalize on Tank Repair Job

There's no questioning the fact that the Class of '63 in Haskell High School includes opportunists among its ranks.

Who else but a fast-thinking Junior would have taken advantage of repairs now being made to Haskell's elevated water storage tank to emblazon "Class '63" for all to see on the side of the 100-ft high tank?

A crew of steelworkers from Pittsburgh Tank Company has been at work on the elevated tower for more than a week, cutting out and replacing sections of the 150,000 gallon tank.

But for a few days at least, we'll be "looking up" to the Class of '63!

Some time during the past few days, however, some budding John Glenns in the Junior Class managed to get to the top of the tower and leave their Class year boldly lettered on the tank.

Because steelworkers have little concern for high school sentiment, they will probably repaint the entire storage tank and lower blotting out the efforts of the high-climbing Juniors.

They have worked almost around the clock on the job.

Clean-Up Will Reduce Health, Fire Hazards

Householders can take a big step forward in fire prevention and improving community health by cleaning up all trash and rubbish which has accumulated during the winter months, and by ridding premises of unsightly weeds and other growth.

The week beginning April 23 has been officially designated as Spring Clean-Up Week in Haskell, and plans are underway to enlist the cooperation of every home in the city.

Here are some of the things suggested for Clean-Up Week: Clean out basements, attics, garages, etc., of all articles that might be a fire hazard.

Clear your yards or lots of all rubbish. Trim shrubbery, hedges, etc. Repair and paint fences. Clear off any vacant lots or space you are going to use for gardens. Plant a border of flowers next to the street.

In the business section, keep windows and sidewalks clean, rear entrances free from unsightly rubbish. Don't throw garbage or refuse of any kind in back yards, or on vacant lots. All garbage and trash should be put in piles for easy pickup and placed in location accessible to city trucks.

A Thought on Worship

If there is a universal language—one that is understood and loved all over the world—probably it is music.

But, unfortunately, because music is so easily within reach these days, many of us take it for granted. We flick on the radio in the car, or at home, and we're not even aware that there is music in the background—until it stops. We are very much occupied with other things.

Faith is something like that. A good many of us take it for granted, too. Maybe we go to church or synagogue a few times a year. And as the weeks go by, we always plan to "go next week, for sure." But "next week" rarely seems to come.

In doing this, we hurt ourselves, actually, more than anyone else. Because it's only through regular worship that we begin to build up the strong religious faith we all need.

Find new strength for your life—attend the church or synagogue of your choice. And, if you're a parent, take the children along with you. They'll thank you, in time, for the faith you've given them.

Don't

Ever wake up in the night with a splitting headache? Or a pain in your interior? And stumble into the bathroom and reach for a bottle in the medicine cabinet? And gulp down a pill or two, or a swallow of medicine?

Just about all of us, if we're honest, must answer Yes to such questions. And that means that we've risked serious—even fatal—trouble.

The American Medical Association offers a few simple rules for taking medicine—and they should be read, remembered and observed by every member of every family.

Never take medicine in the dark—be certain that you know what's in the bottle or the pill box. Read the directions carefully before taking—they are there to protect and aid you. Don't increase the dose or take it more often than directed without checking with your doctor. If the label says "Shake Before Using," it means it—so shake. Don't take a medicine prescribed for someone else—this is a case where one man's meat may be another man's poison. Keep medicines out of the reach of children. Put the cap back on the bottle and screw it down—some medicines change strength when exposed to air. Keep any medicine in its original box—for instance, putting sleeping pills in an aspirin bottle could produce dire effects for someone in the family.

Simple rules? Easy-to-follow rules? They certainly are. And they can prevent trouble, illness, pain, and even, needless to say, death.

"And remember my friends," he warned, "there will be no buying or selling in heaven." A Haskell merchant in a back pew muttered: "That's not where business has gone, anyway!"

A merchant in Flippin, Ark., who grew up in Haskell, still likes to keep in touch with happenings in this area although he left here in 1910 and as he says "That's a long time gone!"

He is Emory E. Noe, who operates a hardware, sporting goods and electrical appliance store in Flippin, Ark. In sending his renewal to The Free Press, he recalls among the old-time families he knew were the Tolivers, Josseloffs, Holts, and the Newsoms, and mentions McNeill & Smith and Jones Cox and Co., among the business firms in 1910 which he remembers. He hopes to visit Haskell again soon, he writes.

When J. M. Diggs answered his telephone on a recent Thursday morning, a man was calling from Benjamin. "Have you sold the jeep you had advertised in the paper?" the man inquired.

Diggs at that time had not received his copy of The Free Press, in which he had placed an ad. and was surprised that someone in Benjamin had already seen the ad.

Telling the man the jeep had not been sold, Diggs was advised: "OK, I'll buy it; will be down there before noon." He came on the dot and quickly made a deal for the dismantled jeep.

Diggs, former Haskell Postmaster and now a retired postal employee, had dismantled the jeep completely, intending to rebuild it in his spare time. Then he gave up that idea and sold the jeep, lock, stock and barrel.

But not without twinges of nostalgia. The faithful jeep had been his mainstay in bad weather for over seven years on his rural route. Rain, mud, snow nor ice had ever stalled the vehicle. Only once was the jeep out of commission. That was a few years ago when a fisherman's car plowed into the jeep on a corner. The rugged little vehicle was badly damaged, and Diggs lost his right thumb as a result of the wreck. After a repair session in a garage and hospital respectively, both jeep and owner went back on duty and stayed in the harness until his retirement date.

While on the subject, we might as well finish the plug about quick sales through use of Free Press Want Ads. The Benjamin man who bought the jeep by telephone before Diggs had read his own copy of The Free Press is a good illustration. Want Ads frequently sell houses, cars, furniture, etc., within hours after the paper is out.

Judging from newspaper accounts, the financial wizardry of Billie Sol Estes merely capitalized on the fact that moneyed interests are eager to "finance" anything on a buy now, pay later plan.

It simply proves that when there's gobs of easy money available, some smart guy will figure out a way to latch on to large quantities of it. Some sharpsters sell oil or mining stock, others desert ranches or seashore estates in Florida.

The Pecos method was much simpler. Sell anhydrous ammonia storage tanks to farmers, with finance companies picking up the tab along with a mortgage. It worked fine until some nosy fellow found out all the tanks didn't exist!

In the boom days before the Big Bust in 1930, some unscrupulous and other relatives.

Miss Zue Lancaster, who has been visiting the family of J. W. Johnson, left yesterday for her home at Granbury.

W. T. Hudson is in Fort Worth this week on business.

ulous car dealers were beginning to catch on to the possibilities of faked sales as an easy route to finance company money. But that ended when the depression hit.

We know one West Texas car dealer who had burnt his fingers in this type of financing. When he learned the mortgage companies were investigating his transactions, he sought the advice of a lawyer. In a few days, to the surprise of everyone, a sanity hearing for the dealer was scheduled in county court and he was adjudged mentally unbalanced. After about 60 days treatment in a state institution he was fully recovered and was discharged. And the finance companies were left holding the bag!

Give a boy an air rifle or a pellet gun and the next thing he has to have is a target! In their eagerness to develop marksmanship, boys are not too particular in aiming strictly at destructive birds. A parakeet, dove, or mockingbird is a target the same as a sparrow.

And if no birds are in sight, a window pane makes an inviting target, as do street light bulbs or other exposed lights.

This week, we have reports of downright destructive vandalism committed by boys with pellet guns.

At Haskell's revered Willow Cemetery, tombstones and monuments have been the targets. Most noticeable damage has been done to monuments in which have been placed photographs reproduced under glass. A number have been shattered, and others damaged by irresponsible youths firing pellet guns at the markers.

Naturally, an effort will be made to determine identity of the culprits and doubtless they will be punished.

But no amount of punishment can repair the permanent damage which has been done to monuments priceless in the eyes of loved ones.

Workmen who have been engaged in repairing and repainting Haskell's elevated water tower have given the installation a major overhauling—the most work that has been done on the storage tank since it was erected in 1936.

Most of the work has been done on the interior of the tank, out of sight from onlookers. But there has been considerable repair work on the outside, cutting out and replacing sections of the tank, etc., visible to the public.

Fascinating to the average man who believes in keeping his feet on the ground, is the apparent disregard of danger by the steelworkers as they walk around and work on the big tank 100 feet above the ground.

Incidentally, until this repair job started, I was under the impression that the only way to the tank and top of the tower was by way of the ladder on one of the "legs" or supporting towers. Now I've learned there's another ladder inside the big pipe or "riser" from the bottom of the tank to the ground.

When the tank and riser is empty of water, a manhole cover can be removed at the ground level to enter the riser, where an inside ladder leads to the top.

A man would need to be careful climbing that ladder, because there's no telling what effect this Haskell water has had on the ladder rungs over a period of years!

Now that the presence and purpose of the manhole on the riser is known, we hope none of our enterprising local pranksters try to use it some night!

One of the current projects of our more dare-devil minded youths when they tire of "dragging" we understand, is to see who can climb highest on the TV cable tower. At night, of course. At last report, the record was slightly above the midway red light on the tower.

Yes, Virginia, there is an Easter bunny . . . but sometimes, he's a bell.

According to one European legend, church bells, which do not ring from Good Friday to Easter, fly to Rome. On their way back, they drop eggs for children to find.

Bells have always been closely associated with religious observances, reports the World Book Encyclopedia. Long before Christ, high priests of the Israelites wore bells as a protection against evil spirits. Since the 500's Christians have used bells to summon worshippers.

During the Middle Ages, bells were considered spiritual things. They received the blessing of a bishop and were washed with holy water—a custom known as the baptism of the bell. The bishop prayed that the bell would summon the faithful to worship, drive away storms and frighten evil spirits.

Bells had other uses, too, wood.

"SMALL BUSINESS"

BY C. WILSON HARDER

By an overwhelming majority, in fact 85%, the nation's independent business and professional people, voting through the National Federation of Independent Business, have expressed opposition to the proposed measures to permit federal employees to unionize.

If federal employees were ever unionized, the present 2 1/2 million employees would constitute the biggest union in the nation.

For some time the nation's businessmen have also requested a reduction in non-essential federal expenses, of which employee payrolls are a big item.

In this session of Congress they are going to get strong support in this direction from many Congressmen who are appalled at the constantly increasing inflationary pressures brought on by putting more and more civilian jobs on Uncle Sam's payrolls.

Rep. Richard Roudebush points out that in the first ten months of last year, 100,000 new employees were added, or a rate of 10,000 new civilian jobs a month.

He points out that in fiscal 1961, the federal civil payroll reached an all time high of $13.6 billion. In order to support this vast bureaucratic payroll, it cost each family in the land an average of $345 in hard earned tax money.

In 1947, he states, the per family cost for the bureaucratic payroll only averaged $134. Thus, the biggest cost increase in the nation in the intervening years has been the expense of more and more people to shuffle more and more papers.

Yet all this vast increase in payrolls does nothing to increase the productive wealth of the nation. A comparable employment increase in business and industry, of course, would mean a greater output of goods and services, thus increasing the gross national output.

But money paid out in federal payrolls becomes sterilized and places a burden on the economy.

Despite this fact, in the last session a bill was defeated which would have raised salaries as much as 75%.

To Rep. Roudebush, and many others, it seems more than obvious that Federal civilian payrolls must be slashed, and slashed quite quickly.

That is why the bill introduced by Rep. Ben Jensen at the last session will be the focus of considerable attention during this session. This bill provides that when vacancies arise in federal jobs, that only one out of each four vacancies be filled until there has been a ten per cent cut accomplished in the total federal employment. This bill will get substantial support from the nation's independent business and professional people.

Valuable Guns Described In Magazine Story

Today's old guns are those involved in some period of history, or which were owned by men who made that history. This is the story of Henry Stowers on gun collectors in the April issue of Texas Game and Fish magazine.

In this article the author presents the pictures and the history of some of these guns. He deals specifically with a gun collector who owns a buffalo gun with a value of $4500. "Fake antiques are the bane of both dealers and collectors," Stowers writes.

One of the first things a collector should learn is to evaluate the gun's condition. He cites the set of standards adopted by the National Rifle Association.

Many collectors have found their hobby financially profitable. Some spend time on restoring them to their original finish. Others find their guns more valuable left in the condition in which they are found. The article is illustrated with

More Color TV Due This Fall, Reports Say

Reports continue to circulate in the television industry that another major network (CBS) will begin color-casting this fall. C. P. Woodson, local radio and television dealer, said this week.

Quoting a national publication of the industry, "Home Furnishings," Woodson said: "The speculation about CBS was ignited when the American Broadcasting Company officially said it would start color-casting this fall. Both ABC and CBS have been hold-outs on color, with the National Broadcasting Co., carrying the ball alone. "Should all color-casting could mean that year for color-casting a thing as the television industry has long felt that color will grow continually, making it a fact of life. The industry is now heathily marketing

CITIZENSHIP (By Eddie Hester)

I am an American. Listen to my words, Fascist, Communist. Listen well, for my country is a strong country, and my message is a strong message. I am an American, and I speak for Democracy. My ancestors have left their blood on the green at Lexington and the snow at Valley Forge, on the walls of Ft. Sumner and the fields of Gettysburg, on the waters of the River Marne and in the shadows of the Argonne Forest, on the beachheads of Salerno and Normandy and the sands of Okinawa, on the bare, bleak hills called Pork Chop and Old Baldy and Heartbreak Ridge.

A million and more of my countrymen have died for freedom. My country is their eternal monument. They gave their lives that we might truly say: "We the people of the United States, in order to form a more perfect Union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

These men who gave their lives live on in men and women practicing their rights as free citizens. Each citizen owes loyalty to his country. It is his duty to obey the law, vote for officers, pay taxes to support the government, and serve in the armed forces to defend the country.

They live on in the voice of a young Jewish boy saying the sacred words from the Torah: "Hear, O Israel: the Lord our God, the Lord is One. Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy might." And in the voice of a Catholic girl praying: "Hail, Mary, full of grace, the Lord is with thee . . ." and in the voice of a Protestant boy singing: "A mighty Fortress is our God, a Bulwark never failing."

There is a voice in the soul of every human being that cries out to be free. America has answered that voice. America has offered freedom and opportunity such as no land before her has ever known.

This is my answer, Fascist, Communist! Show me a country greater than our country, show me a people more energetic, creative, progressive—bigger-hearted and happier than our people, not until then will I consider your way of life. For I am an American, and I speak for democracy. Citizens of the United States listen to the words of a leader who says, "Ask not what your country can do for you, ask what you can do for your country!" And my fellow citizens of the world: Ask not what America will do for you, but what together we can do for the freedom of man.

CITIZENSHIP

(By Carolyn Williams)

American democracy—a great and meaningful term in our own personal lives, in the history of the development of our country, and in the political and social history of the world.

And yet, what does it mean to each of us as we sit here today, secure in our daily lives? Has this meaningful term lost its meaning for us through frequent and common use? Let us just for a moment consider what American democracy is.

Certainly it is that principle of government by which we live as a society in the 50 states of the United States of America. Actually, democracy is simply "the rule of the people."

The United States has stood proof that "the rule of the people" is a good and practical rule, that the government "of the people, by the people and for the people" better provides for the welfare of the majority of men than any other social system in the history of man. And we, as distinct from millions of men through ages of pursuit of happiness, are guaranteed our basic human rights.

Why and how then are we so rarely and so wondrously distinguished?

Did we not call democracy, quoting one of our presidents, government "of the people, by the people, and for the people?" This means simply that to enjoy the rights, privileges and freedoms of American democracy, we must meet its obligations and responsibilities. Even more simply, unless we give of ourselves to democratic government, we cannot receive in full measure. For this government is no more than 180 million individual Americans like ourselves; and to each of those 180 million "rulers" fall the duties of ruling as well as the rewards.

Thus, as our interest in government insures good government for many, our obligation to take an intelligent part in government is a serious one.

What are some of the steps that may be taken toward improved citizenship for the preservation of our American democracy? As students we should make every effort to prepare ourselves for the role we will have in our nation. When we are older, we must exercise intelligently our franchise or right to vote. Each of us should certainly be registered voters; we should encourage our neighbors and members of our community to register and help them if necessary with information on how to register.

Once registered, we should inform ourselves on the issues at stake in an election by examination of the political parties, their platforms and their candidates. Which party has acted in the best interest of the public in the past? Which political platforms best meet the present needs of the local and/or national community? Which candidates seem best qualified in terms of ability, experience, past performance, and personal platform?

Finally as informed citizens, we should vote, in primary as well as in general elections. The good citizen votes according to the dictates of his conscience and not always according to his party affiliation. Therefore, we must examine the principles, performance and platform of the individual as well as the party, and choose the candidate whose principles and conduct we approve.

participating in American democracy? Yes. Is there more that we might do for improved citizenship? Again the answer is yes.

Are we then actively participating in American democracy? Yes. Is there more that we might do for improved citizenship? Again the answer is yes. One of our first duties always is simply to obey the law. And certainly we should follow the election of a candidate to a responsible civic position with citizen support of new campaigns and projects. We should accept jury service when called upon. We might visit governmental and public institutions in order to continue to inform ourselves with current civic issues and problems. And we can, when able, serve on public boards and participate in community affairs. And finally, for some of us, good citizenship may entail candidacy and election to public office, for the best candidate is the interested and well-informed citizen.

With 180 million such interested and informed citizens, think how strongly we might mold the future of this American democracy of ours.

Trinity Lutheran Women Meet for Regular Program

The A.L.C.W. of the Trinity Lutheran Church held its meeting Thursday, April 5, at 2:00 p. m., with many members present.

The meeting was opened with the singing of a hymn followed by devotions and Bible Study led by Mrs. Elton Klose. The month's topic was "Christ Gives Light to the Blind." The study was taken from the book of John, chapter 9, verses 1-41. Individual study material was used which is in the monthly A.L.C.W. publication "The Scope."

After the singing of "Beautiful Saviour," Mrs. Alton Peiser gave the "Cause of the Month" which was on "Higher Education."

Business meeting was then held and roll call was answered with the name of a "Woman of the Bible."

The group is looking forward to a good attendance next month for the A.L.C.W. sponsored Mother-Daughter Banquet. Those members who have no daughter are urged to "adopt" one for the banquet.

The meeting was closed with offering meditation given by Mrs. Felix Klose and table prayer being sung in unison.

The hostesses for this April meeting were Mrs. Annie Kretschmer and Mrs. Frank Moeller.

Mrs. Alton Peiser and Mrs. Frank W. Moeller are serving on Altar Guild and Visitation this month.

The women held their meeting in the church and all enjoyed the beauty of the new carpet which was purchased by the A.L.C.W. and Brotherhood.

The women urge everyone to bring their used clothing to the church between now and May 6 to be sent overseas to those in need.

Presbyterian Women Hear Review By Mrs. J. B. Pumphrey, Sr.

Women of the First Presbyterian Church of Haskell had the privilege of having Mrs. J. B. Pumphrey Sr. of Old Glory, chairman of District VII of Central Texas Presbytery, to give a review of "The Quiet Crusaders" to them on Monday, April 9, in the home of Mrs. Jack Pippin.

"The Quiet Crusaders" was written by Henry L. McCorkle, now editor of The Episcopalian, formerly managing editor of Presbyterian Life. Mr. McCorkle sketches the biographies of some twenty evangelical Christians in a dozen Latin American countries. Through dramatic incidents in their lives he shows how they and others like them are bringing a gentle Christian revolution into the life of their land. They are helping build a sounder economy on a firm educational basis, working for religious and political freedom, and demonstrating in their transformed lives the power of Christ. They are the quiet crusaders who are making their faith a creative force in Latin America.

"We need to teach more about the Risen Christ, about the Church Triumphant," so says Rev. Jorgelina Loyada, a brilliant person, a determined educator and a world traveled ecumenical leader, who has the distinction of being the first woman ever to preach in an Argentine prison. She says, "We need to have this sense of joy and victory about our work in Latin America. We are ready for it, and so are the millions we are here to serve."

Mrs. Pumphrey ended her questions from the book by asking each of us to ask ourselves this question: "Are we ready to serve and help the Latin American countries?"

This World Mission Study season was extremely well carried out with the Latin American theme in the table decorations and the buffet luncheon served to two guests, Mrs. Pumphrey and Mrs. R. K. Denson Jr., of Rule, and to the Haskell members: Mmes. John L. Tubbs, F. E. Frierson, Sam P. Herren, Howard Perry, John W. Pace, Sam T. Chapman, Theron Cahill, Jean McMillen, Jimmy Browning, J. T. Hester, Douglas Finch, Ira Hester, B. C. Chapman, Carrie Williams, Ed Hester and Jack Pippin.

Be Certain About Soil Additives Before Buying, Agent Suggests

By F. W. MARTIN
County Agent

As expected in a rapidly changing agriculture, new products such as soil conditioners continue to appear on the market. Jim Valentine, Area Soil Chemist, the Agricultural Extension Service in Lubbock, states some may have merit while others are of questionable value or may be entirely worthless. Such materials are sometimes greatly over-priced. Benefits to be derived from their use may be stated in vague or misleading terms and statements may be based on mere opinion or pure fancy.

Valentine further states it is always hazardous to purchase a material that bears no guarantee as to its formulation. By not stating what is in the product the seller is in no way liable, and existing laws such as those governing fertilizers have no jurisdiction over the manufacturer or seller.

The primary soil conditioner for this area is organic matter and if your soil contains a modest one per cent organic matter this is equal to 20,000 lbs. per surface six inches. We have no known bacteria deficiency, and it is estimated that there are 400 to 500 lbs. of live bacteria in an acre furrow slice of soil. The population rises and falls depending on the amount of residue returned, moisture, and temperature.

Contrary to some claims made for conditioners there is no known practical procedure for changing soil texture since texture refers to the size of the individual soil particles. Structure of clay soils can be improved by the addition of certain materials but the cost may run as high as $400 per acre.

Valentine concludes by saying its your money—consider the products carefully before buying and do not expect them to substitute for the plant food elements commonly obtained through commercial fertilizers.

Speed and Greed Big Factors In Traffic Mishaps

When you are exceeding the speed limits, or traveling too fast for conditions, you are displaying greed of the most dangerous kind. "Just how do you mean?" someone might ask. First of all, it must be explained by saying that speed laws are determined by traffic engineers with one major thought in mind: Safety! The speed limit posted on highways, freeways, streets and in school zones is the maximum safe speed under favorable conditions a motorist can travel on these thoroughfares.

Greed, as we usually know it, was demonstrated clearly during World War II when many persons hoarded certain hard-to-get items. Hoarding of course, resulted in smaller shares for those conforming with rationing laws. This was bad enough, however this kind of hoarding did not usually impair life or limb.

Greed, as demonstrated in traffic, is another matter. Here when a motorist hoards time by exceeding speed limits, or driving too fast for conditions, he steals the time lawfully his and disregards the safety of others.

His usual practice is to leave late for engagements, then try to make up time by exceeding speed limits or going too fast for conditions. His greed is transferred to the pedal under pressure, and all law-abiding motorists and pedestrians in his path are in danger of serious injury or death.

Hoarding time by speeding is a deadly business where innocent and guilty alike may suffer for the sake of a few minutes or seconds. Let us take an example of the hoarding driver traveling down the road at 60 mph, 50 feet behind another car traveling 60 mph. The minimum safe following distance under ideal conditions is 120 feet. The accepted guide in determining this minimum following distance is to double the speed in miles per hour of the vehicle you are following to determine your following distance. All this hoarding driver can gain is to get to his destination 70 feet earlier than if he were following at 120 feet. At 60 mph this gain amounts to eight-tenths of one second.

Method Used In Planting Cotton Factor In Determining Profits

The new system of measurement Service. The first thought question of how are you going to plant your cotton is quite common among farmers this year. Several factors should be considered according to J. C. Yearly Jr., of the Soil Conservation Service.

Which way will make the most profit? The first thought of many farmers is to use a skip-row pattern that will spread the cotton over the entire farm. However, this type of farming has many disadvantages. Some of these are hidden. One of these hidden disadvantages is the effect this type farming has on the soil. Skip-row cotton returns very little plant residue to the soil. The soil becomes more depleted each year when nothing is returned except cotton stalks. As the land becomes depleted profits go down. Crop failure is another disadvantage of a one-crop system. If something happens to the cotton crop the entire year's income is lost. By growing more than one crop the farmer increases his chances for having some return each year. As the old saying goes, "It's best not to put all your eggs in one basket."

A second factor to consider is the type of soil. Increased farming costs have made it unprofitable to farm cotton on poor soil. Recent studies with farmers have shown that unless a field will average about 100 pounds of lint cotton per acre, there will be nothing left after expenses are paid. The rising costs of machinery, repairs and labor makes it necessary to keep the land built up in order to make profitable yields. Every farmer should take a second look before planting cotton on steep, shallow soil. The expenses may be more than the income.

Yearly stated that a balanced cropping system can be carried out in several different ways. Some may prefer to plant the cotton in a skip-row pattern that will allow them to come in later and plant a second crop in the blank rows. This has worked real well for several farmers in the district. Crops such as sorghums, cowpeas, guar, small grains and winter peas have been used. Others may wish to plant their cotton on less acres by using solid planting or a two-in and one-out pattern. By so doing they can use the remainder of their land for growing another crop such as sorghum or small grain. These crops can then be rotated so that all the land receives adequate amounts of plant residue to keep it productive.

Crop rotations and proper land use are essential to prosperous farming. The California Creek & Wichita - Brazos Soil Conservation Districts encourage farmers to practice conservation farming.

Outdoors In Texas

By VERN SANFORD

During the past hunting season more than 2,400 permits to kill antelope were issued to Texas hunters.

This may not seem unusual to people unfamiliar with the antelope story in Texas. But to those in the know it is indeed

Farm Facts

In the past 30 years the value of the soybean crop has increased a hundred-fold. It now is worth over a billion dollars annually and ranks fifth among cash crops.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture estimates that 26.4 million acres will be planted to soybeans in the 1958 season. About 1.5 million a year were planted during the 1920's.

The USDA attributes this to: (1) improved varieties; (2) diversion of land to soybeans as a result of price supports and restrictions on acreage of other crops; and (3) a shift in acreage from feed grains to soybeans as requirements for feed for workstock dwindled.

Wartime demand for fats and oils spurred a rapid expansion in soybean acreage. Oil supplies were cut off from the Far East and soybean oil helped alleviate this shortage.

With incomes increasing, there has been a bigger demand for meat. This has resulted in greater need for livestock and a rising trend in soybean meal consumption. The Corn Belt is the top soybean area, but production has zoomed in the Delta and Lake states. About 15% of the acreage is in the Delta states.

other animal found in Texas. The antelope is an animal of American vintage. It descended from a group of animals which couldn't, for some unknown reason, survive the climatic changes which the earth went through in the distant past.

Because the antelope lives out on the vast, bare plains where it is naked to the world, it must depend upon its legs and eyes for protection.

In these two respects the antelope is well blessed. It can detect something unnatural more than a mile away. Furthermore, it can run at a speed that will astonish those who have never seen one galloping away in a plume of dust.

But the antelope has one weakness that hunters exploit to advantage. It is a highly curious animal. Often it will come toward a hunter just to satisfy its own curiosity.

Because of its unmatched speed, hunters use fast flat-trajectory cartridges when seeking the antelope. Preferably something like the .243, .244 or .270.

It isn't unusual for a hunter to fire at an antelope to see one herd topple. The antelope can run fast. It can cover miles at speeds of 60 mph.

Antelope horns grow as large as those of any animal in the States, but even more commendable is the Pecos region of the Alpine.

Any buck antelope measuring inches in length or 17 inches in diameter to brag about.

In 1941, only those eligible for social security received 66 per cent of what they were collecting.

remarkable.

Back in the early 1930s the antelope was threatening to become extinct in Texas. There were less than 500 roaming the range.

Only through concentrated conservation practices were antelope herds brought back to the huntable numbers we enjoy today.

The bulk of the Texas antelope are found in the Trans-Pecos region of West Texas. Some also roam the prairies of the Panhandle.

Unlike deer, the antelope won't jump a fence. When ranching became a big business in Texas, barbed wire fences were criss-crossed over the land, thus posing a man-made barrier to the antelope. Fences restricted the antelope's range.

But by trapping the antelope and moving them to areas where there were no fences, the Texas Game and Fish Commission expanded both the range of the antelope and the size of the herds.

In one instance, a few years back, a herd of antelope was causing some concern among pilots using the Marfa airport. The sleek animals gathered on the grassy runways to feed. Naturally the pilots had to do some fancy flying to dodge them.

But biologists took care of the problem. They simply trapped the antelope and found them a new home.

An antelope has horns branched like the antlers of a deer. But on an antelope they are true horns and not antlers. Antlers are solid bone.

The antelope is the only animal in the world with branched horns. Also, it is the only one which sheds the outer shell annually. It isn't kin to any

IN TEXAS

Where to fish from a pier troubles many anglers. Tendency of most fishermen is to hurry to the end of the T-head, then cast out as far as possible.

Unless you know there are fish working in the deep water, casting far out from the T-head is a waste of time.

Instead, try reading the water for fish signs.

If there are several lines of breakers from the end of the pier, give that water a try. As the waves curl over and break, they churn up the bottom and free minute marine life.

It's in this wave break that during the summer along the Gulf coast, great numbers of speckled trout are taken. And in the fall, these same breakers yield red fish.

If you have a calm day when there are no waves breaking, look for signs of bait fish. Odds are heavy that game fish will be working right under the schools of bait.

There are two reasons for fishing from the side of the pier where the current is running away from it. First, you need less weight to keep the bait out from the pier. Second, the current will work in your favor in keeping the fish from swimming under the pier and around the pilings.

But remember this. When you hook your fish, you'll have more tension on your line since both the fish and the current will be pulling against you.

While this may initially stack the odds against you, in the end it will work in your favor. We say this because when a fish tires he will invariably try to swim with the current.

That way you're assured the fish will be well clear of the pilings. Furthermore, the current will keep the fish from drifting under the pier when you seek to gaff or net him.

To Preserve Your Catch Keeping your fish fresh and edible can be a problem for the pier angler.

A fish will spoil fast if allowed to lie on the deck in the hot sun. So, if you have to keep him on deck, cover him with a wet tow sack. Or put him in the sack, tie a rope around the neck of the sack and lower the whole works into the water.

If you don't have a sack, bring along a stringer that's long enough to reach the water.

But whether you lower the fish in a sack or on a stringer, don't allow it to sink to the bottom. There the crabs will mutilate your catch in short order.

A recent publication, MP-548, "Bermudagrass Production in Northeast Texas," of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station shows the value of Coastal Bermudagrass as a forage producer for this section of Texas. Copies are available from the Agricultural Information Office, College Station, Texas.

An improved method for determining soil phosphorus is now being used by the soil testing laboratories operated in the state by the Agricultural Extension Service. It is the result of several years of research work by Texas Agricultural Experiment Station personnel, Extension Soil Chemist Bill Bennett said.

Former Haskell Man Honored by O. C. Hospital

A new family room at the Children's Memorial Hospital in Oklahoma City was dedicated recently as a memorial to the late head of the orthopedic appliances department.

It's called the William M. McDonald Family Room. McDonald, a former resident of Haskell, died Sept. 27, 1960. On the University of Oklahoma Medical Center staff 13 years, he fitted children with orthopedic appliances, shared in their triumph when they learned to walk again or to adjust to a crippling condition.

A "prayer room" or "family room" was long a dream of his. Space on the hospital's main floor was redecorated and furnished to provide a secluded area where relatives of patients can be alone or talk privately with physicians.

The project was financed with a memorial fund started by doctors in the department of orthopedic and fracture surgery. Other persons and medical center departments and groups also contributed.

IMPROVING AFTER UNDERGOING SURGERY
Mrs. Alfred Turnbow, who recently had major surgery in Wichita Falls General Hospital, was able to be returned to her home here last week. She is reported improving satisfactorily.

Work Started on 10-Mile Stretch F-M Road in Lake Stamford Area

Construction has been started on a 10-mile stretch of new Farm-to-Market Highway in the Lake Stamford area. It includes 7.6 miles of FM 600 in Haskell County, and 2.4 miles of FM 600 in Jones County.

The location of this highway follows basically an existing county road starting from FM 618 in Haskell County approximately 6 miles east of US Highway 277, and crossing the causeway across Lake Stamford. From that point it follows the county roads and crosses the Haskell-Jones County line and proceeds to an intersection of FM Highway 142 and FM Highway 600 approximately 7 miles east of Stamford.

Contractor on the new highway is Harry Newton, Inc., of Graham, with 138 working days allowed for completion of the project.

Prior to starting work, a pre-construction conference was held at the office of the Resident Engineer in Anson, with representatives from Harry Newton Inc., The Texas Department of Public Safety, Texas Highway Department, and Paint Creek Rural High School present.

The purpose of this conference was to secure closer cooperation between the County, Department of Public Safety, and the Highway Department Engineering Personnel concerning the safety and convenience of the traveling public through these projects while they are under construction. A review of all signs and barricades called for by the governing specifications and plans was held.

Mr. Zack Burkett, vice president of Harry Newton, Inc., stated that his construction schedule called for the clearing and grubbing operation now under way to be completed in the near future. The concrete crews have already started excavating and forming for the culverts on the projects. The roadway excavation will begin on the North end of the location and proceed to the causeway area across Lake Stamford. Upon completion of the dirt work in this area, the crews will shift to the South end of the project in Jones County and proceed back to the causeway area. At the time the dirt work is completed on the North end, which is estimated to be 2 or 3 weeks hence, the concrete crews will start work on the bridge across Paint Creek at the causeway. Mr. Burkett stated that his schedule called for approximately 4 weeks work for the completion of this bridge. The construction of this bridge will necessitate the closing of the road during this time because of the impracticability of a detour. As soon as the bridge is open to traffic Mr. Burkett stated his Base Material Haul operations would begin. Due to construction procedure the traveling public will encounter short detours and short delays in their travel. These will be kept to a minimum however, and the public is requested to cooperate by complying with all barricades and warning signs.
